

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE P R E F A C E.

THE Publick being very sensible of the great Advantage and Usefulness of DICTIONARIES, as is evident from the general Acceptation that many New Ones, in most Faculties, have lately met with, it were altogether needless to insist on that Topick; but it is requisite to give some Account of the present Undertaking, and to shew what Improvements are here made to the Elaborate Work of our Ingenious Countryman Mr. Edward Phillips, the Merit of which has been already sufficiently made known to the World, by the Sale of Six several Impressions.

THE Whole has been carefully Revis'd, in order to correct Faults, supply Defects, and retrench Superfluities; and it was judg'd expedient to leave out all Abstracts of the Lives of Eminent Persons, Poetical Fictions, Geographical Descriptions of Places, &c. (except a few that serve to illustrate or explain other Terms, which have their Derivation from, or some Dependance on them) in regard that they are already treated of at large, in several particular Dictionaries. In the room of these, are inserted near Twenty Thousand hard Words and Terms in all Arts and Sciences, which are not to be found in the former Editions of this Work, nor in any other General Dictionary whatsoever; that is to say, such Terms as relate to Divinity, the Civil and Canon Law, the Common and Statute Laws of this Realm, Moral and Natural Philosophy, Metaphysics, Mathematicks, Botanicks, Musick, Physick, Surgery, Anatomy, Chymistry, Pharmacy, Confectionery, Cookery, Maritime and Military Affairs, Merchandize, Husbandry, Horsemanship, Handicrafts, and Manufactures: To which are added many Country-Words, and such as are us'd in our ancient Latin Writers, old Records, Deeds, Charters, Evidences &c. Also the Greek and Latin Names of many sorts of Beasts, Birds, Fishes, Insects, Plants, Metals, Minerals; and other Productions of Nature; with their respective Qualities, and principal Virtues. The Magistrates and Officers of the Grecian and Roman Empires, with their Sacred Rites, Laws, Customs, Festivals, Games, Exercises and Sports, are likewise particularly insisted on. Besides a summary View of Religious Orders, Monasteries, Heresies and Sects; with a short Description of Publick Buildings, noted Colleges, Hospitals, Schools, Offices, Natural Rarities, and other Remarkable Things in England, and our American Plantations: Also an exact Account of Ancient and Modern Coins, Weights and Measures with their present Value, Extent, and Capacity, &c. all digested into Alphabetical Order, and Methodically express'd in their proper Places.

T H I S Collection is made out of the most Approved Authors, and the best Originals the present Age affords ; and 'tis far the largest of any hitherto extant, (as it has been already hinted) in regard that it contains all manner of difficult Words and Terms of Art, which are to be found in any Writers of Note : So that now, more than ever, it may be justly said to answer the Title of The New World of Words, Universal Dictionary, or Compleat Glossography. As for the individual Terms, care has been taken every where to set down their Original and proper Signification, which tends very much to clear up the several Senses wherein they are now generally receiv'd : And they are also explain'd with all possible Perspicuity and Brevity, so as not to interpret any hard Word by others that are as little intelligible, or at least not so obvious to Persons who are not well vers'd in polite Literature ; a Fault too frequent in Performances of this Nature.

A N D farther, although it be no Part of our Design, to teach the Liberal or Mechanical Arts and Sciences, as a late Learned Author has attempted to do ; nevertheless, it may be fairly affirm'd, There are many Principles and Rules laid down, with opposite Hints, and Remarks throughout the whole Work, which may give Light even to the Knowledge of those Arts : So as to be of very good Use to young Students and Practitioners of every Profession ; as also to Foreigners, who are desirous to be acquainted with the Terms and peculiar Idioms of our English Tongue ; which is now so far improv'd, that for Copiousness, variety of Style, clearness and elegance of Expression, and other Advantages, it may be said to equal, if not surpass, all other Modern Languages.

T O conclude, if this Undertaking meets with a favourable Reception among the Judicious, it will be an ample Recompence for the great Pains taken by the Publisher, who is ever ambitious to approve himself,

Their very humble Servant,

John Kersey.

Abarnare, an old Latin Law-Term, signifying to detect or discover any secret Crime; from the Saxon Word Abarian, to make bare, uncover, or disclose.

To Abate, (Fr.) to bring down, to lower or humble.

Abashed, made ashamed or confounded.

Abasment, Astonishment, Confusion.

Abasi, a Coin current in Persia, and other Eastern Countries, worth about two Spanish Reals, or 1 s. 2 d. Sterling.

To Abate, (Fr.) to diminish, to make or grow less:

less: In Common-Law, to disable, defeat, or overthrow; to come to nought, to be abolished, quashed, or made of no effect: Thus to abate a Writ is to destroy it for a Time, thro' want of good Ground, or other Defect. The Appeal abatesh by Cousenage, i. e. the Accusation is defeated or made void by Deceit.

A Stranger is also said to Abate, when he enters upon a House or Land immediately after the Death of the last Possessor, before the right Heir take Possession, and so keeps the said Heir out of it.

Abatement, that which is abated, a Lessening: In a Law-sense, the Act of Abating, Defeating, or Disabling; as the Abatement of a Writ, &c. Also the entering upon an Inheritance, by stepping in between the former Possessor and his Heir.

Abatement of Honour, (in Heraldry) is an accidental Mark added to a Coat of Arms, whereby its Dignity is abated, upon Account of some dishonourable Quality or Stain in the Bearer; and it is either a Mark of Diminution; as a Delf, a Point Dexter parted Tenne, a Goar Sinister, &c. Or else an absolute Reversion or Over-turning of the whole Escutcheon.

Abator, (Law-Term) one that abates, i. e. intrudes into Houses or Land, void by the Death of the former Possessor, and as yet not entered or taken up by his Heir.

Abatures, (among Hunters) Foiling, the Sprigs or Grass that a Stag thrusts down in passing by.

Abawen, abashed, daunted, a Word us'd by the famous English Poet, Geffrey Chaucer.

Abdals, a kind of religious Persons among the Persians, who make Profession of Poverty, and lodge in Churches: They take Name from Abdala, the Father of their false Prophet Mahomet.

Abbenam, the Head of the twelfth House in a Scheme or Figure of the Heavens, sometimes so call'd by Astrologers.

Abdi, (Heb. my Servant) the Father of Kish, and Grand-father of Saul the first King of Israel.

Abdicare, (Lat.) a Term in the Roman Law; signifying to abdicate, to renounce, abandon, or quit; as Abdicare filium, to disinheret, disown, or cast off a Son; Abdicare Magistratum, or se Magistratu, to renounce the Office of a Magistrate, to lay down or abandon it; and Abdicare se statu suo, was to renounce his Condition, to become a Slave, and be degraded from the Privilege of a Citizen of Rome.

To Abdicate, to Renounce or Resign, to give over.

Abdication, the voluntary Act of Abdicating, Renouncing, Disowning, &c. A Term generally us'd among the Civilians, and also in the Common Law, where there is only an implicit Renunciation: As when a Person does Actions that are altogether inconsistent with the Nature of his Trust, he does in effect renounce it; which was the famous Case of a late unfortunate Prince.

Abdicere, (Lat.) a Word us'd among the Roman Augurs or Sooth-sayers, for to disown or forbid: In a Law-sense, to give Sentence against one, to debar him from his Demands, or not to allow them: Thus abdicere vindicias signify'd as much as not to allow a Man the Possession of a Thing in Controversy; and addicere vindicias imply'd the quite contrary.

Abditorium, (in our old Writers) an Abditory, or Place to hide and keep Goods, Plate, Money, &c.

Abdomen, (in Anat.) that Part of the Belly which is between the Navel and the Privities, the lower Belly; the lowermost of the three Venters, or great Cavities, which contains the Stomach, Guts, Liver, Spleen, Bladder, &c. Abducent Muscles. See Abductores.

Abduction, properly a drawing or carrying away: In Logic, an Argument that leads from the Conclusion to the Demonstration of a Proposition.

Abductor Indicii, (Lat. in Anat.) a Muscle that serves to draw the Fore-finger from the others, and is by some reckon'd among the Interossei: It arises from the Os Metacarpi that bears up the Fore-finger; and joining one of the Lumbrical Muscles is inserted with it, together with the Tendon of the Abductor Pollicis.

Abductor minimi Digiti, a Muscle which draws the little Finger from the rest, and appears in some Bodies divided into two or three Muscles, each having a different Series of Fibres: It takes Rise from the Ligamentum Transversale, and fourth Bone of the Carpus, as also from the third Bone of the Carpus, and from the upper Parts of the Os Metacarpi. The first of these Originations ends at the upper Part of the first Bone of the little Finger forwards; the second at the same Part of the said Bone side-ways; and the third is inserted with the Tendon of the Extensor minimi Digiti, to the upper Part of the third Bone of the little Finger.

Abductor minimi Digiti Pedis, a Muscle of the little Toe, which draws it off from the rest, and springs from the outward Part of the Os Calcis or Heel Bone, as also from the out-side of the Os Metatarsi of the little Toe; where it makes one Tendon at its Insertion to the upper Part of the first Bone of the little Toe, on the out-side and side-ways.

Abductor Oculi, a Muscle of the Eye, so nam'd from its Action, which is to draw off the Eye from the Nose: It is also call'd Indignabundus, from its being made use of in Scornful Resentments.

Abductor,

Abductor Pollicis, is a Muscle of the Thumb, which arises from the inner part of the Ligamentum Transversale Carpi, and becomes Tendinous as its Implantation to the upper and outward part of the second Bone of the Thumb side-ways. This Muscle takes Name from its Use, which is to draw the Thumb from the Fingers.

Abductor Pollicis Pedis, a Muscle of the great Toe, which pulls it from the rest: It takes rise from the Os Calcis, on the in-side and side-ways, and in half its Progress joyns with another fleshy Beginning that springs from the Os Cuneiforme Majus, which bears up the Os Metatarsi of the great Toe; 'till at last both making one Tendon are implanted to the outward part of the Os Sesamoides of the great Toe, side-ways.

Abductores, or Abducent Muscles, (in the general) are all those which serve to open or pull back divers Parts of the Body, as the Arms, Legs, Eyes, Nostrils, Lips, &c. And the Opposites to these are usually termed Aductores, or Adducent Muscles.

A-bearing, (Law-word) as, To be bound to a good a-bearing, i. e. to one's good Behaviour. See Surety of the Peace.

To Abide, to abide. Chaucer.

Abel, (Heb. Vanity) the Name of Adam's second Son, who was killed by his Brother Cain.

Abel-tree, a finer kind of white Poplar.

Abere, Aburder, (old Law-term) plain or downright-Murder, as distinguished from Manlaughter and Chance-medley, from the Saxon Words abere apparent, notorious and Mord Murder.

To Abet, to encourage, egg, or set on; to maintain, uphold, or back; to assist or aid.

Abetment, (in common Law) an encouraging or setting on to commit any Crime.

Abetter, or Abettor, one that eggs on or assists another in the doing of an Unlawful Act; as Abettors of Murder, Treason, Felony, &c.

Abettors, (in a Law-sense) are also those that without Cause procure others to sue out false Appeals of Murder or Felony against Men, in order to render them infamous.

Abeyance, Lands, Tenements, Goods, &c. Are said to be in Abeyance, when they are only in Expectation or Understanding; that is to say, in the Intendment and Consideration of the Law. So when a Parson dies and the Church is void, the Fee is in Abeyance, because it is not determined who shall succeed him.

Alga, (Lat.) an Herb or Weed growing on the Sea-shore; Reets or Sea-weed.

Algarat, a Chymical Preparation made of Butter of Antimony, diluted or wash'd in a large Quantity of warm Water, 'till it turn to a white Powder. This Medicine is given in Quartans, intermitting Fevers, and all Diseases, wherein 'tis requisite to purge and vomit strongly; and it is otherwise call'd Mercurius Visa.

Algatr, (old Word) if to be, notwithstanding, altogether.

Algates, (old Word) ever, even now, for all that.

Algebra, or The Analytical Art, is a Science of Quantity in general, or a peculiar manner of Reasoning, which takes the Quantity sought, whether it be a Number or Line, as if it were known or granted; and then by the Help of one or more Quantities given, proceeds by undeniable Consequences, 'till at length the Quantity first only suppos'd or feign'd to be known, is found equal to some Quantity or Quantities certainly known, and is therefore likewise known. This Science is so call'd from the Arabick Particel, Al i. e. excellent, and Geber, the Name of its supposed Inventer; and it is two-fold, viz. Numeral and Literal.

Numeral or Vulgar Algebra, being the more Ancient, serves only for the Resolution of Arithmetical Questions; and it is so termed, because in this Method, the Quantity sought or unknown, is represented by some Alphabetical Letter, or other Character taken at Pleasure; but all the given Quantities are express'd by Numbers.

Literal or Specious Algebra, or The New Algebra, is that Method, by which as well the given or known Quantities, as the unknown, are all severally express'd or represented by Alphabetical Letters; and it is generally useful, for the solving of all Mathematical Problems, both Arithmetical and Geometrical.

Algema, (Gr.) Pain, Sickness.

Algeneb, (Arab.) a fixed Star of the second Magnitude, or Size, in the right Side of Perseus, whose Longitude is 57 Degr. 17 Min. Latitude 30 D. 5 M. Right Ascension 44 D. 15 M.

Algol, or Wreath's Head, a fixed Star of the third Magnitude in the same Constellation of Perseus, having for its Longitude 51 D. 37 M. Latitude 22 D. 22 M. and Declination 39 D. 39 M.

Algorithm, the practical Operation in the several Parts of Specious Arithmetick or Algebra; sometimes it is taken for the Practice of Common Arithmetick by the ten Numeral Figures.

Algorithm,

Algorithm, the Art of computing or reckoning by Numbers, which contains the Five principal Rules of Arithmetick, viz. Numeration, Addition, Substraction, Multiplication and Division; to which may be added Extraction of Roots: It is also call'd Logistica Numeralis.

Alguazil, a Sergeant or Officer that arrests People in Spain, and executes the Magistrates Orders.

Algum or Almug, (Heb.) a sort of fine Wood growing on Mount Lebanon.

Alidada, (Arab.) the Index or Ruler that moves on the Center of an Astrolabe Quadrant, or other Mathematical Instrument, and carries the Sight: It is so call'd by the Arabian Writers of Mathematics, from whom we have taken several other Arabick Terms; Almacanter, Azimuth, Zenith, Nadir, &c.

Alica, (Lat.) a kind of Italian Wheat: Also Meat, Potage or Drink made of that Corn; Frumenty, Flummery, Barley-broth, &c. Also a nourishing Physical Porion.

Alicant-wine, a sort of Wine made of Mulberries growing about Alicant, one of the Chief Towns of the Province of Valentia in Spain.

Alice, (Germ.) a proper Name of Women, from Adeliza, i. e. Noble.

Alien, (Lat.) a Foreigner or Stranger, one born in a Foreign Country, who according to our Common-Law, is not capable to inherit Lands in England, till he be naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament.

To Alien, (Law-word) to transfer or convey the Property of any thing to another. To Alien in Fee, is to sell the Fee Simple of any Land, or Tenement, or of any incorporeal Right. To Alien in Mortmain, is to make over an Estate to a Religious House, or other Body Politick.

Alien Priories, those Cells of Monks sometime established in England, which belong'd to Foreign Monasteries, and were dissolv'd by Authority of Parliament, under King Henry IV. but some were made Indigene or Enderized.

To Alienate, to sell, give, or make over the Property of any thing to another; also to estrange or draw away the Affections.

Alienation, the Act of alienating, selling, making over, &c.

Aliformes Musculi, (Lat. in Anat.) certain Muscles that arise from the Ossa Pterygoidea, or Wing-like Bones, as also from the Process of the Os Cuneiforme, and end in the Neck of the lower Jaw. These Muscles are otherwise call'd Alares, and Pterygoides in Greek.

Aliformes Processus, are the Prominences or Knobs of the Os Cuneiforme, or Wedge-like Bone, from the Fore-part, and the same with the Pterygoides.

Aliment, Food or Nourishment: In a Physical Sense, whatever may be dissolved by the Ferment or natural Heat of the Stomach, and Chang'd into the Juice call'd Chyle, to repair the continual wasting of the Parts of the Body: Also that which serves to nourish and supply the Decays of a vegetable Body, as a Plant, Tree, &c.

Alimentalis Ductus: See Ductus Alimentalis.

Alimentary, belonging to Nourishment.

Alimony, formerly signify'd Maintenance, Sustainance or Food: But it is now only taken in a Law-Sense, for that Portion or Allowance, which a marry'd Woman may sue for, upon any occasional Separation from her Husband, wherein she is not charg'd with Elopement or Adultery.

Oil, and afterwards roll'd themselves in the Dust.

Alipzua, Plaisters that have no Fat in them.

Alipazua, a sort of fine Powder mixt with Oil, in order to be soak'd into the Body, to hinder Sweating.

Alipterium, a Place in the Bath, where People were anointed after they had wash'd.

Aliptes, among the Ancients) an Officer that anointed the Wrestlers, before they went to Exercise, and took Care to keep them in Strength and good Complexion: It is also taken by Cornelius Celsus for a Surgeon.

Aliquant Part, (Lat. in Arithm.) such a Part of a great Number, as is contain'd certain times therein, with some Remainder over and above: Thus 2 is contain'd thrice in 7, and 1 is left as a Remainder.

Aliquot Part, a Part which being taken aliquoties, or certain times precisely constitutes the greater Number: So 3 is an aliquot Part of 12; for 3 taken Four times exactly makes 12, without any Excess or Defect.

Alifanders, an Herb otherwise call'd Loavage.

Alkabetz, (among Chymists) an Universal Menstruum or Dissolvent capable (as they say) of dissolving or reducing all manner of mixt Bodies, into a Liquor of its own Substance, preserving the Power of its Seeds, with its natural Essential Form entire; and by this Menstruum they also pretend to extract the Sulphur of Metals.

Alkahengi or Winter-Cherry, the Fruit of one of the Sorts of the Plant call'd Night-shade.

Alkali, (in Chymistry) a fixed Salt drawn out of the Ashes of calcin'd Herbs or Minerals by means of a boiled Lixivium or Lie: Its Name is taken from the Herb Kali, otherwise call'd Salt-wort and Glass-wort, being a kind of Sea-blite, which is one of the chief Ingredients us'd in the making of Glass, and affords a great Quantity of this sort of Salt. Also any earthly Matter that ferments and works with Acid, is termed an Alkali.

Alkalizate Bodies, are those which have their Pores naturally so formed in such a Proportion, as that they are fit to be pierc'd and put into a violent Motion, by the Points of the Acid pour'd upon them.

Alkalizate Spirit of Wine, a pure and rich Spirit that will burn all-away, and even fire Gun-powder, so call'd by Mr. Boyle, and made by distilling Spirit of Wine, from Salt of Tartar, or Tartar calcin'd to Whiteness.

Alkalization, a turning into an Alkali, as when some Alkali is infus'd in Spirit of Wine, to heighten its dissolving Quality.

Alkanet, an Herb otherwise call'd Spanish-Bugloss, the Root of which is us'd to Colour Things with; and being made into an Ointment, it helps old Ulcers, hot Inflammations, Burns, Scalds, and St. Anthony's Fire.

Alkermes, a Confection sold in Apothecaries Shops; so named from the Arabick Particle Al, and the chief Ingredient of it call'd Kermes or Chermes, which have certain red or scarlet Grains.

Alkashone, (old Word) a made Request.

Algood, a sort of Herb commonly call'd Mercury, and by some Good-Henry.

Alheal, a vulnerary Herb, otherwise call'd Crown's Wound-wort.

Alseed, an Herb so named from its fulness of Seed.

Allantois or Allantoides, (Gr. in Anat.) one of the Coats that belong to a Child in the Womb; which being plac'd between the Ambion and the Chorion, receives the Urine that comes out of the Bladder, by the Navel and Urachus. It is also call'd call'd Farciminalis Tunica, because in many Brutes 'tis of the Shape of a Gut-pudding; but in Man and some few other Creatures it is round.

Allar, the Alder-tree, a bushy Tree, whose inward Bark is very yellow, and purges Choler, Phlegm, and watery Humours.

To Allay, to assuage or ease, to lessen one's Pain or Grief; also to temper or mix Metals with a baser sort. See Alloy.

To Allay a Phreatant, is to cut or carve it up at Table.

Allecti, (Lat. among the Romans) they that were taken out of the Rank of Gentry, to fill up the Senators Places.

Alliative, that is of an alluring, charming, enticing, or engaging Quality.

To Allodge, to produce a thing for Proof, to Quote, to Instance in.

Allegation, an Alledging or Proving; the Quotation of an Authority, Book, &c. to make good any Point or Assertion.

Allegiance, the natural and sworn Obedience that is due from Subjects to their Sovereign Prince. The Word at first properly signify'd the Legal Subjection of every Vassal to his Lord.

Allegiare, (old Latin Law-word) to excuse, defend, or justify by course of Law. Leges Alvredi, cap. 4. — Allegiat se facinoris, i. e. let him clear or purge himself of the Crime laid to his Charge.

Allegorical, belonging to, or partaking of the Nature of an Allegory.

To Allegorize, to use Allegories, or to explain according to the Allegorical Sense.

Alhemante or Almahin, a kind of grave solemn Musick, where the Measure is full and the Movement slow.

Alheviare, (Lat.) to make light of, to slight or disparage. In some old Records, to levy or pay an accustomed Fine or Composition.

To Alheviare, to lighten, or soften, to allay, assuage, or ease; to lessen one's Pain or Grief.

Alheviation, Alleviating, or Allaying; Ease, Comfort, Refreshment.

Alley, (Fr.) a narrow Lane, a Walk in a Garden.

Alliaria, (Lat.) an Herb tasting like Garlick, and call'd Jack of the Hedge, or Sauce alone; Ramsons.

Alliance, (Fr.) an Uniting or Joining of Families together by Marriage, or of Common-Wealths by Leagues; Kindred by Marriage, Match, League.

Allied, match'd, united, or joined by a League.

Allies, Princes or States that have enter'd into an Alliance or League for their mutual Defence and Preservation.

Alligation, (Lat.) a Tying or Binding to: In Arithmetick, a Rule by which such Questions are resolv'd, as relate to the mixing of divers Merchandizes, Metals, Simples, Druggs, &c. of unequal Price, one with another, so as to find how much of each must be taken, according to the Tenour of the particular Question. This Rule is so call'd from the Numbers being bound or joyn'd together by circular Lines, and is of two sorts, viz. Medial and Alternate.

Alligation Medial, is, when having the several Quantities and Rates of divers Simples propos'd, we discover the mean Rate of a Mixture compounded of these Simples.

Alligation Alternate, is, when having the several Rates of divers Simples given, we find out such Quantities of them, as are necessary to make a Mixture, which may bear a certain Rate propos'd.

Alligato, (Lat. in Husbandry) a Binder or Tyer of the Vines to their Stakes. Also a kind of West-Indian Crocodile, that keeps both in the Water and on Land: These monstrous Creatures grow as long as they live, being sometimes 18 Foot long, and as big as a Hoghead; they smell like Musk, so strongly, that the Air is scented for 100 Paces about them, and the Water in which they lie.

Alliteration, (in Rhetorick) a Repeating and Playing on the same Letter.

Allieth, the Name of a Star in the Tail of the Great Bear; the Observation of which is much us'd at Sea, in order to find out the Height of the Pole, or the Latitude, &c.

Angle, (Lat.) a Corner; also a Fishing-Rod. In Geometry, a Space comprehended between the meeting of two Lines, which is either greater or less, as those Lines incline towards one another, or stand farther asunder. These Angles are of two sorts, viz. Plain or Spherical.

Plain Angle, is the Distance or Opening of Two Lines that touch one another in the same Plane, but so as not to make one strait Line, and the Lines that form it are termed Legs: Or it is a Space bounded by the Meeting of two Lines, which cut one another on a Plane; and may be either Right-lined, Curvilinear, or Mixed.

A Right-lined or Rectilineal Angle, is an Angle made by the meeting of two Right Lines. A Curvi-linear or Crooked-lin'd Angle, that which is made by the Intersection or Mutual Cutting one another of two crooked Lines. A Mixti-linear or Mixed Angle, that which takes its Rise from the meeting of a Right Line and a Curve or Crooked Line.

Spherical Angle, an Angle made by the Meeting of two Arches of great Circles, which intersect or mutually cut one another on the Surface of the Globe or Sphere.

Angles, whether Plain or Spherical, may be consider'd as Right, Acute, and Obtuse.

A Right Angle, is when one Right Line falls perpendicularly on another, so as to leave an equal Space on each Side, and the Measure of this Angle is always 90 Degrees or one quarter of a Circle; every Circle being usually divided into 360 equal Parts, call'd Degrees.

An Acute Angle, is that which is less than a Right one, or contains less than 90 Degrees, and is so call'd because its Angular Point is sharp: An Obtuse Angle, having its Angular Point blunt or broad, is greater than a Right one, and consists of more than 90 Degrees. But no Angle can contain fully 180 Degrees; for then one Leg falls into the same Right Line with the other, and they make the Diameter of the Circle.

Obtuse

Angles, have also several other Names according to their different Positions, their Relation to the respective Figures they are in, and the Lines that form them; as either Contiguous or Opposite, External or Internal, Oblique, Solid, &c.

Contiguous or Adjacent Angles, have one Leg common to both Angles, and both taken together are always equal to two Right ones: Opposite or Vertical Angles, those that are made by two Right Lines crossing each other, and which only touch in the Angular Point. They take Name from their being opposed ad Versicem, or at the Top; and therefore in some Books are called Head-Angles. An Angle also in any Triangle is said To be Opposite to the Side that subtends it.

External Angles, are the Angles of any Right-lined Figure without it, when all the Sides are severally produced or lengthened; and they are all taken together, equal to four Right Angles.

Internal Angles, (in General) are all Angles made by the Sides of any Right-lined Figure within.

Oblique Angles, are such as are either Acute or Obtuse, in Opposition to Right-Angles.

A Solid Angle, is the Meeting of several Planes or level Surfaces; which mutually cut one another, and meet all in one Point.

Angle at the Circumference, is an Angle made by any two Chords which meet there in a Point.

Angle of a Segment, is an Angle made by the Circumference of a Circle and a Right-Line cutting it: And Angle in a Segment is an Angle made by two Right-Lines rising from the Angles of the Segment, and meeting in the Circumference.

To Conclude, to finish, make an end of, or close; to infer, gather by Reason, or draw a Consequence, to resolve upon, or determine.

Conclusion, the End, Close, or Issue of a thing; a Consequence or Inference: In Logick, the last of the three Propositions of a Syllogism: Also a Term us'd in Law, when a Man by his own Act upon Record has concluded, or charg'd himself with a Duty, or other thing: It is also taken for the end or latter part of any Declaration, Bar, Replication, &c.

Conclusive, that serves to conclude.

Concomitant, accompanying, going along with.

A Concomitant, a Companion, Attendant, or Follower.

Concord, Agreement, Union, good Understanding: In Common Law, an Agreement between Parties that intend the levying of a Fine of Lands one to another, in what manner the Land shall pass: Also an Agreement made upon any Trespas committed between several Parties.

In Musick, Concords, are certain Intervals, or Distances between Sounds, which delight the Ear, when heard at the same time: These Concords are the Third, Fifth, Sixth, and Eighth, together with their Octaves, as the Tenth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, &c. They are also of two sorts, viz. Perfect and Imperfect.

Perfect Concords, are the Fifth and Eighth with all their Octaves. Imperfect Concords, are the Third and Sixth with their Octaves: The Imperfect ones are likewise distinguish'd into the greater and lesser Third; as also the greater and lesser Sixth.

To Concord, to agree together.

Concordance, a general Index, or Table, in Alphabetical Order, of all the Words contain'd in the Holy Bible.

Concordant, agreeing together.

Concordat, an Agreement made in all manner of Ecclesiastical Matters, especially upon the Resignation or Exchange of Benefices.

To Concoypate, to mix or mingle together in one Body, to incorporate, or imbody.

Concourse, a running, or resort of People to a Place; a meeting, or coming together.

Concrete Numbers, (in Arithm.) are those that are apply'd to express any particular Subject; as 3 Men, 4 Pounds, $\frac{3}{4}$ of a Shilling, &c. whereas if nothing be join'd with the Number, 'tis taken abstractly or universally: Thus 4 signifies an Aggregate, or Sum of four Units, let those Units be Men, Pounds, Horses, or what you please.

A Concrete, a thing grown together, or made up of several Ingredients: In Logick, any Quality consider'd with its Subject; as Album a white thing: Thus if we say, Snow is white, then we speak of Whiteness in the Concrete: And in this respect it is contradictinguish'd from Abstract, when the Quality is taken into Consideration separately; as Albedo, Whiteness, which may be in Paper, in Ivory, and in other things, as well as in Snow.

In Natural Philosophy and Chymistry, Concrete, implies a Body made up of different Principles, and is therefore much of the same Signification as the Word Mix'd: Thus Antimony is a Natural Concrete, or a Mix'd Body compounded in the Bowels of the Earth; and Soap is a Falshious Concrete, or a Body mix'd together by Art.

Concreted, congealed, or clotted.

Concretion, a growing, or gathering together; a congealing or thickning, a growing hard: In a Philosophical Sense, the uniting together of several very small Parts of a Natural Body into concrete or sensible Masses, by which means it becomes so and so figured and determin'd, and is endued with such and such Properties: In Pharmacy, or the Apothecaries Art, Concretion, is a thickning of any boil'd Liquor or Juice into a more solid Mass.

Concubaria, (in old Latin Records) a Fold, a Penn, or Place where Cattle lie together.

Concubinage, the keeping of a Concubine, or Miss; Fornication, Whoredom. In a Legal Sense, an Exception against a Woman that sues for her Dower, whereby it is alledg'd, That she is not a Wife lawfully marry'd to the Party, in whose Lands she seeks to be endow'd, but his Concubine.

Concubine, a Woman that lies and lives with a Man, as if she were his lawful Wife; an Harlot, or Strumpet.

† Conculation, a stamping upon, a treading, or trampling under Foot.

Concupiscence, an over-eager, or earnest Desire, a coveting; especially an inordinate Desire of the Flesh.

Concupiscible, as The Concupiscible Appetite or Faculty, i. e. that Affection of the Mind, which stirs up to covet or desire any thing.

To Concurr, (properly to run with others) to conspire, to help, to agree with one in something, to give one's Consent.

Concurrance, Meeting, Assistance, Approbation.

Concurrent, jointly consenting, or agreeing to.

A Concurrent, a Competitor, or Rival, one that stands for a thing with another.

Concurring or Congruent Figures, (in Geom.) are such as being laid one upon another, will exactly meet and cover one another. Thus it is a received Axiom, with respect to plain, or superficial Figures, Quod quæ sibi mutuo congruunt, sunt equalia, i. e. those Figures which will exactly cover one another are equal.

Concussion, a shaking, or jumbling together: Also Publick Extortion, when an Officer, or Magistrate pillages the People, by Threats; or Pretence of Authority.

Concussionary, an Extortioner, one that practises such kind of Extortion, or Violence.

To Cond or Conn, (Sea-term) to conduct, or guide a Ship in the right Course; for he that conns, stands aloft with a Compass before him, and gives the Word of Direction to the Man at the Helm how to steer.

If the Ship go before the Wind, or betwixt two Sheets; the Words of Art are, Port the Helm, i. e. put the Helm on the Left-hand, or Left-side of the Ship; or Starboard the Helm, i. e. put it to the Right; and then the Ship will always go the contrary Way. If the Conder say, Helm a Mid-ship, he would have the Ship go right before the Wind, or directly between her two Sheets. If the Ship sail by a Wind, or on a Quarter-wind, the Word is a-loof! keep your Loof! fall not off! veer no more! keep her to? touch the Wind! have a care of the Lee-latch! All which Expressions are of the same Signification, only imply that the Steersman should keep the Ship near the Wind: On the contrary, to make her go more large, or more before the Wind, the usual Phrases are, Ease the Helm! No near! Bear up! But if the Conder say Steady, his meaning is that the Ship should be kept from making Yaws, or going in and out; and when he would have her go just as she does, he cries Keep her thus, thus! &c.

To Condemn, (Lat.) to sentence one to Death; to blame, disapprove, or dislike.

Condemnable, that deserves to be condemned.

Condemnation, Condemning, Sentence.

Condensantia, (Lat.) Medicines that are of a thickening Quality.

Condensation, the Act of condensing, thickening, or hardening: In a Philosophical Sense, it is, when a natural Body takes up less Space, or is confined within less Dimensions than it was before.

To Condensate or Condense, to thicken, to make thick, or to grow thick: In Philosophy, to bring the Parts of a Body into a narrower Compass; the opposite Term being to Karify.

Conder, one that condi, or gives Directions to the Steers-man for the guiding, or governing of a Ship. Conders are also those that stand upon high Places near the Sea-coast, to make Signs to the Fishers, with Boughs, &c. in their Hands, shewing which way the Shoal of Herrings passes; which they can more easily discern from thence, by a kind of blue Colour the Fish make in the Water, than those that are in the Ships and Boats: They are otherwise call'd Hewers and Balkers.

To Condescend, (Lat.) to comply, submit, or yield to, to vouchsafe.

Condescendency, the Act of condescending, or complying; Complaisance, or Compliance.

Condign, that is according to Merit, worthy, suitable, besitting.

Condisciple, a School-fellow, or Fellow-student.

Conduit, (Fr.) a Water-course, a Passage, or Pipe, for conveying Water to several Places.

Condyloma, (Gr. in Anat.) the knitting, or joining of the Joints of an Animal Body: Also a kind of hard brawny Swelling in the Fundament, which proceeds from black Humours settling in that Part, and is sometimes accompany'd with an Inflammation.

Condylus, a Knuckle, a Joint in the Elbow, Knee, Ankle, &c. Condylis are also the small Rings, or Knobs of Bones, otherwise call'd Productions.

Cone, (in Geom.) a solid Figure, consisting of straight Lines that arise from a circular Base, and grow narrow by degrees, till they end in a Point at the top, directly over the Center of the Base. This Figure is produc'd by the turning of the Plane of a Right-angled Triangle, round the Perpendicular Axis, or Leg: So that if the Leg be equal to the Base, the Solid produced is a Right-Cone; if it be less, it is an Acute-angled Cone; and when greater, an Obtuse-angled Cone.

A Cone, is also said to be Right, with respect to the Position of its Axis, i. e. when it is Perpendicular to the Horizon; but if the Axis be not so, 'tis call'd an Oblique Cone: And a Cone is termed Scalenoss, when one side of it is longer than the other.

Cone of Rays, (in Opticks) the Rays of Light that fall from a certain Point in any Object on the whole Surface of a Glass, and have the Glass for its Base.

Cone or Colne, (Sax.) an Account, or Reckoning: Whence a young Woman at Fourteen, or Fifteen Years, is judg'd by the Law, to be of a competent Age, to keep Cone and Key of the House, i. e. to take upon her the Management of Household Affairs.
