Mute, (Mutus) One Dumb, that cannot speak, or who refuses to speak. And by our Law a Prisoner may stand Mute two Manner of Ways: 1. When he speaks not at all, and it shall be inquired whether he stand Mute out of Malice, or by the Act of God; and if by the latter, then the Judge ought to inquire whether he be the same Person, and of all Pleas which he might have pleaded in his Defence, if he had not been Mute. 2. When the Prisoner pleads not directly, or will not put himself upon the Inquest to be tried; and a Person feigning himself Mad, and refusing to answer, shall be taken as one who stands Mute. 2 Inst. H. P. C. 226. Also if a Prisoner on his Trial peremptorily challenge above the Number of Jurors allowed by Law, this being an implied Refusal of a legal Trial, he shall be dealt with as one that stands Mute, and according to some Opinions be hang'd. H. P. C. 259. Kel. 36. 2 Hawk. 327. A Felon obstinately standing Mute is to be put to the Penance of Paine forte & Dure: In Case of High Treason where the Offender stands Mute, he shall have Judgment and forfeit Lands and Goods, as if he had been attainted; likewise in the Case of Felony and Petit Treason, if a Person by standing Mute do not avoid being attainted for such Crimes, he shall forfeit his Lands and Goods in the same Manner as on other Attainders: Though whenever a Person standing Mute is adjudged to his Penance for Felony, and thereby prevents that Attainder which otherwise he might have incurred, he forfeits his Chattels only, and not his Lands. 2 Hawk. P. C. 330, 331. It is said by Sir Math. Hale, that an Appellee of Felony standing Mute shall be executed, and not have

Judgment of Penance; but the contrary hath been held by others. H. P. C. 226. S. P. C. 150. 2 Inst. 178. Kel. 37. One who stands Mute shall have the Benefit of his Clergy, unless it be otherwise specially provided by some Statute. And although it be enacted by the Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. That if any Person shall be indicted of any Offence, for which by Virtue of any former Statute, he is excluded from the Benefit of his Clergy, if he had been thereof convicted by Verdict or Confession, if he stand Mute he shall not be admitted to the same; yet Appeals, and Offences excluded from the Benefit of the Clergy, by subsequent Statutes, seem not within that Act: And a Statute taking away the Benefit of Clergy generally from those who are convicted of a Crime, doth not take it away from those who stand Mute on an Indictment or Appeal. 2 Hawk. 332. See Felony.

Mutual Promise, Is where one Man promises to pay Money to another, and he in Consideration thereof promises to do a certain Act, &c. Such Promises must be binding, as well of one Side as the other; and both made at the same Time. Hob. 88. 1 Salk. 21. Where there are mutual Promises, and one of the Parties dies, whereby the other Party could not charge the Executor on the Promise of the Testator; yet 'tis here said the Promise by the Survivor shall continue. Yelv. 133. But it is held, that on Mutual Promises and Covenants, equal Remedies are on both Sides; though the Performance need not be precisely alledged, &c. 3 Salk. 15, 108. 1 Lev. 88. 2 Mod. 34.

B. &c. Navy, Signifies the Fleet or Shipping of a Prince or State; or an Armament at Sea. The Navy of England it has been observed, excels all others for three Things; viz. Beauty, Strength and Safety; for Beauty our Ships of War are so many floating Palaces; for their Strength so many moving Castles; and for Safety, they are the most defensive Walls of the Land: And as our naval Power gains us Authority in the most distant Climates, so the Superiority of our Fleet above other Nations, renders the British Monarch the Arbiter of Europe. The Kings of England in ancient Times commanded their Fleets in Person; and the renowned King Arthur, famous for his warlike Achievements, vindicated the Dominion of the Seas, making Ships of all Nations salute our Ships of War, by lowering the Top-sail, and striking the Flag, as in like Manner they shall do the Forts upon Lands, by which Submissions they are put in Mind that they are come into a Territory, wherein they are to own a Sovereign Power and Jurisdiction, and receive Protection from it: And this Duty of the Flag, which hath been constantly paid to our Ancestors, serves to imprint Reverence in Foreigners, and adds new Courage to our Seamen; and Reputation abroad, is the principal Support of any Government at home. King Edgar Successor to Arthur, stiled himself Sovereign of the narrow Seas; and having fitted out a Fleet of four hundred Sail of Ships, in the Year 937, sailing about Britain with his mighty Navy, and arriving at Chester, was there met by eight Kings and Princes of foreign Nations, come to do him Homage; who as an Acknowledgment of his Sovereignty, rowed this Monarch in a Boat down the River Dee, himself steering the Boat; a marine Triumph which is not to be paralleled in the Histories of Europe. Canutus, Edgar's Successor, laid the ancient Tribute called Danegeld, for the Guarding of the Seas, and Sovereignty of them; with the following Emblem expressed, viz. Himself sitting on the Shore in his Royal Chair, while the Sea was flowing, speaking, Tu meæ ditiois es, & Terra in qua sedeo est, &c. And Egbert, Alfred and Elfred kept up the Dominion and Sovereignty of their Predecessors; nor did the succeeding Princes of the Norman Race, waive this great Advantage, but maintained their Right to the

the four adjacent Seas surrounding the British Shore: The Honour of the Flag King John challenged, not barely as a Civility, but a Right to be paid cum debita reverentia, and the Persons refusing, he commanded to be assaulted, and taken as Enemies: And the same was ordained not only to be paid to whole Fleets, bearing the Royal Standard, but to those Ships of Privilege that wear the Prince's Ensigns or Colours of Service; this Decree was confirmed and bravely asserted by a Fleet of five hundred Sail, in a Royal Voyage to Ireland, wherein he made all the Vessels which he met with in his Way, in the eight circumfluent Seas, to pay that Duty and Acknowledgment, which has been maintained by our Kings to this Day, and was never contested by any Nation, unless by those who attempted the Conquest of the intire Empire. It was Trade that gave Occasion to the bringing of mighty Fleets of Ships to Sea; and upon the Increase of Trade, Ships of War were necessary in all Countries for the Preservation of it in the Hands of the just Proprietors: And in ancient Times the several Counties of England were liable to a particular Taxation for building Ships of War, and fitting out Fleets, every one in Proportion to their Extent and Riches; so that the largest Counties were each of them to furnish a First Rate Man of War, and the others every one to build one in Proportion; but this Method has been long disused, and the Fitting out our Navy for many Ages has been always thrown into the publick Charge. King Edw. 3. in his Wars with France, had a Fleet of Ships before Calais, so numerous, that they amounted to seven hundred Sail: But King Hen. 8. it is said, was the First that began to build a Navy Royal in England; he built a Ship called the Great Henry of one thousand Tuns, the largest Ship that had been then seen in this Kingdom, (though now our First-Rate Ships of War, contain at least two thousand Tuns, are mounted with above one hundred Cannon, and carry above one Thousand Men.) He fitted out a Royal Fleet, constituted a Navy Office, &c. And in this King's Reign, and the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, our Royal Navy was in a most flourishing Condition, being mostly commanded by our valiant Nobility; and it is remarkable, that there are Lists of the Fleets of Queen Elizabeth, which make it appear there was but one private Gentleman a Captain, all the rest being Lords and Knights: So high was the Esteem for Service at Sea in those Days, when our Princes ruled with the most consummate Glory: But the Opinion of serving at Sea in late Times having been very much lessened, it has since been declined by the Nobility and Gentry. The Navy Royal of England is at this Time in a very flourishing State; for Number of Shipping, and Strength and Force of the Ships, it was never, perhaps, more formidable than now; and when compleat, it is divided into three Squadrons, distinguished by the different Colours of the several Flags, viz. Red, White, and Blue; the principal Commanders whereof bear the Title of Admiral, and each has under him a Vice-Admiral, and a Rear-Admiral, who are likewise Flag-Officers. There are belonging to his Majesty's Navy, six great Yards, viz. Chatham, Deptford, Woolwich, Portsmouth, Sheerness, and Plymouth; fitted with several Docks, and furnished with Stores of Timber, Masts, Anchors, Cables, &c. And for the Management of the Navy Royal, there are several Officers of Trust and Authority, besides the Commissioners of the Admiralty; as the Treasurer, Controller, Surveyor, Commissioners of the Navy, Commissioners of Victualling Office, &c. the Principal whereof hold their Offices by Patent under the Great Seal. By Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 37. the Sum of 570,000 l. was appropriated for the Building of twenty-seven Ships of War, with their Guns, Rigging, &c. And the 6 Ann. c. 13. enacts, That over and above the Ships for the Line of Battle, forty-three Ships of War shall be employed as Cruisers and Convoys, for the better preserving such Ships as shall be made Use of in the Trade of Great Britain; four of these Ships are to be Third Rates, and sixteen Fourth Rates, and the rest of sufficient Force to guard our Commerce: They are to attend in certain Stations; and the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty may direct the Commissioners of the Navy, or some one or more Persons resident at such Places as his Majesty shall appoint, to superintend and oversee every Thing relating to those Cruisers; also the Commissioners of the Admiralty have Power to order any of the said Ships to be employed in the Line of Battle, in Case of Necessity. This Statute likewise impowers the Commissioners of the Admiralty, during War, to grant Commissions to Privateers and Commanders of Ships, for the Taking and Seizing Ships and Goods of Enemies. For the Furnishing of Mariners for the Fleet; by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 21. it is enacted, That all Seamen, Watermen, &c. above the Age of eighteen Years, and under fifty, capable of Sea Service, who shall register themselves voluntarily for the King's Service in the Navy Royal, to the Number of thirty Thousand, shall have paid to them the yearly Sum or Bounty of 40s. besides their Pay for actual Service, and that whether they be in Service or not; and none but such Mariners, &c. as are registred, shall be capable of Preferment to any Commission, or be Warrant Officers in the Navy: And such registred Persons are exempted from serving on Juries, Parish Offices, &c. also from Service aboard after the Age of fifty-five Years, unless they go voluntarily; and when by Age, Wounds, or other Accidents, they are disabled for future Service at Sea, they shall be admitted into Greenwich Hospital, and there be provided for during Life: And the Widows of such Seamen as shall be slain or drowned, not of Ability to provide for themselves, shall be likewise admitted into the said Hospital; and their Children educated, &c. But if any registred Seaman shall withdraw himself from the King's Service, in his Ships or Navy; or if any such Mariner relinquish the Service, with the Consent of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, he shall for ever lose the Benefit of the Act, and be compelled to serve in his Majesty's Fleet for six Months without any Pay. By a subsequent Statute 4 & 5 Annæ, Watermen plying on the Thames between Gravesend and Windser, on Notice given by the Commissioners of the Admiralty to the Company of Watermen, are to appear before the said Company, to be sent to his Majesty's Fleet; or on Refusal, they shall suffer one Month's Imprisonment, and be disabled working on the Thames for two Years. The Registring of Seamen is the grand Nursey for the Fleet; but there are other Ways and Means of supplying Mariners for the Navy Royal, and Training up of Persons in the Sea Service: For the Stat 2 Ann. c. 6. provides, that poor Boys, whose Parents are chargeable to the Parish may by Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, with the Consent of two Justices of the Peace, be placed out Apprentices to the Sea Service, until the Age of twenty-one Years, they being thirteen Years old, at the Time of their Placing forth: Those at eighteen Years of Age, may be impressed for Service in the Fleet, when the Owners or Masters of such of them as shall prove qualified, shall have able Seamen's Wages; and all Masters and Owners of Ships, from thirty to fifty Tuns Burden, are required to take one such Apprentice, one more for the next fifty Tun, and one more for every hundred Tun above the first Hundred, under the Penalty of 10 l. Masters of Apprentices placed out by the Parish, may with the Consent of two Justices turn over such Apprentices to Masters of Ships for the Remainder remainder of their Terms: Lewd and disorderly Servants, Vagrants, &c. are to be taken up and sent to his Majesty's Fleet; and poor Prisoners for Debt, which were to have the Benefit of 4 & 5 Anne, appearing on their Release to be able-bodied Seamen, were to enter themselves in the Service. Thus is the Navy recruited with Mariners; not to mention particularly the Manner of Pressing in Cities and populous Towns, on extraordinary Occasions. By a late Statute, Encouragement is given to Seamen to enter into his Majesty's Service voluntarily; Volunteers entering their Names with any Commission Officer of the Fleet, and forthwith proceeding towards their Ships, on Certificate thereof shall be intitled to Wages from the Date of the Certificate, and be allowed the usual Conduct Money, and also be paid an Advance of two Months Wages, &c. And if any Volunteer is turned over to another Ship, he shall receive, over and above his Wages due, the like Advance of two Months pay, and not serve in a lower Degree than he did before. Persons listed on board Ships of War, are not to be taken thereout by any Process at Law, unless it be for a criminal Matter; or where the Debt amounts to 20*l.* When Seamen die on board, the Commander of the Ship shall, as soon as may be, make out Tickets for their Pay, which shall be paid to their Executors, &c. without tarrying for the Ship's Return: And Seamen's Pay shall not be bargained and sold; but Tickets may. Governors and Consuls in foreign Parts, are to provide for Shipwreck'd Mariners at 6*d.* per Dijon each, and put them on board the first Ships of War, &c. and on sending Bills of Disbursements with Vouchers to the Commissioners of the Navy, they shall be paid. 1 Geo. 2. c. 19. Also the Pay and Wages of one Man in a hundred, of every Ship of War, and Value of his Victuals, shall be applied for relieving poor Widows of Officers of the Navy, by 6 Geo. 2. c. 25. A late Statute has ordained, that able Seamen who voluntarily enter on Board Ships of War, shall receive 5*l.* besides their Wages, and ordinary Seamen 3*l.* And if any Seaman, under a Commission or Warrant Officer, that enters into the Service, be killed or drowned, his Widow, on Certificate to the Commissioners of the Navy that she's such, is to have by Way of Bounty, one Year's Wages, according to the Pay for which he served. 14 Geo. 2. c. 38. The Commissioners of the Navy, &c. have Power to examine and punish all Persons who make any Disturbance, fighting or quarrelling in the Yards, and Offices, &c. of the Navy: And in the 13th Year of King Charles 2. an Act passed for the regulating the Government of the Fleet; and also an Act 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. which contains the particular excellent Articles and Orders following.

Articles for the Government of his Majesty's Navy, by the Stat. 22 Geo. 2. c. 33. 1. Officers are to cause publick Worship, according to the Liturgy of the Church of England, to be solemnly performed in their Ships, and take Care that Prayers and Preaching by the Chaplains be performed diligently, and that the Lord's Day be observed. 2. De admittas, Is a Writ directed to the Bishop, for the Plaintiff or Defendant, where a Quare Impedit dit or Affise of Darrein Presentment is depending, when either Party fears that the Bishop will admit the other's Clerk during the Suit between them: It ought to be brought within six Kalendar Months after the Avoidance, before the Bishop may present by Lapse; for 'tis in vain to sue out this Writ when the Title to present is devolved unto the Bishop. Reg. Orig. 31. F. N. B. 37. Writ of Ne admittas doth not lie, if the Plea be not depending in the King's Court by Quare Impedit, or Darrein Presentment; and therefore there is a Writ in the Register directed to the Chief Justice of C. B. to certify the King in the Chancery, if there be any Plea before him and the other Judges between the Parties, &c. So that the Writ should not be granted until that be done: But yet it may be had out of the Chancery before the King is certified that such Plea of Quare Impedit is depending; and then the Party grieved may require the Chief Justice to certify, &c. New Nat. Br. 83, 84. The Writ runs, Prohibemus vobis, Ne admittas, &c.

Feat, Is the Weight of a pure Commodity alone, without the Cask, Bag, Dross, &c. Merch. Dist.

Necessity. If a Fire happen in a Street, a Person may justify the pulling down a Wall or House of another Person, to prevent its spreading; it being a Case of Necessity. Staund. P. C. And where several Persons are in Danger of Drowning, one to save his Life may thrust another from the Boat's Side, &c. for the Necessity of it. Bac. 25. And we have a Maxim in our Law; Necessitas non habet Legem. Co. Lit.

Ne exeat Regnum, Is a Writ to restrain a Person from going out of the Kingdom without the King's Licence. F. N. B. 85. It may be directed to the Sheriff to make the Party find Surety that he will not depart the Realm; and on his Refusal, to commit him to Prison: Or it may be directed to the Party himself; and if he then goes, he may be fined. 2 Inst. 178. And this Writ is granted on a Suit's being commenced against a Man in the Chancery, when the Plaintiff fears the Defendant will fly to some other Country, and thereby avoid the Justice and Equity of the Court; which hath been sometimes practised: And when thus granted, the Party must give Bond to the Master of the Rolls in the Penalty of 1000 l. or some other large Sum, for yielding Obedience to it; or satisfy the Court by Answer, Affidavit, or otherwise, that he hath no Design of leaving the Kingdom, and give Security therefore. Practis. Solic. 129. A Ne exeat Regnum has been granted to stay a Defendant from going to Scotland; for though 'tis not out of the Kingdom, yet it is out of the Process of the Court, and within the same Mischief. 2 Salk. 702. 3 Mod. 127, 169. 4 Mod. 179. If the Writ be sued for the King, the Party against whom sued may plead Licence by Letters Patent, &c. which shall discharge him: But where any Subject goes beyond Sea with the King's Licence, and continues longer than his appointed Time, it hath been held he loses the Benefit of a Subject. 4 Leon. 29. And if a Person beyond Sea refuses to return into England on the King's Letters under his Privy Seal, commanding him upon his Allegiance to return; being certified into the Chancery, a Commission may be awarded to seize his Lands and Goods for the Contempt; and so it is if such Person's Servants hinder a Messenger from delivering his Message, on Affidavit of it, &c. Jenk. Cent. 246. 3 Nels. Abr. 211. See Fugitives.

Negative. A Negative cannot be proved or testified by Witnesses, only an Affirmative. 2 Inst. 662. Though a Negative is incapable of being proved directly; yet indirectly 'tis otherwise: For in Case one accuses B. to have been at York, and there had committed a certain Fact, in Proof of which he produces several Witnesses; here B. cannot prove that he was not at York, against positive Evidence that he was; but shall be allowed to make out the Negative by collateral Testimony, that at that very Time he was at Exeter, &c. in such a House, and in such Company. Forfeiture 37.

Negative pregnant, (Negativa pregnans) Is a Negative, which implies or brings forth an Affirmative; and is said to be where a Negative carries an Affirmative in his Belly. Lit. Rep. 65. Where an Action is brought against a Man, and he pleads in Bar of the Action a Negative Plea, which is not so special an Answer to the Action, but it includes also an Affirmative; this is a Negative pregnant: As for Instance, he in Reversion brings a Writ of Entry in casu Proviso, upon an Alienation made by Tenant for Life, supposing that he has aliened in Fee; which is a Forfeiture of his Estate: If the Tenant comes and pleads that he hath not aliened in Fee; this is a Negative, wherein is included an Affirmative; for though it be true, that he hath not aliened in Fee, yet it may be he hath aliened in Tail, which is also a Forfeiture of his Estate. 2 Lill. Abr. 212. If a Breach be assign'd that a Man was not seized of an Estate in Fee; and the Bar is, that he was seized, &c. notwithstanding any Act done by him; this is Pregnant and uncertain. Litt. Rep. 64. And if a Person being impleaded to have done a Thing on such a Day, or in such a Place, denieth generally, without saying any Thing more, that he did it on the Day, &c. it is a Negative Pregnant, as it implieth nevertheless that in some Sort he did it. Dyer 17. A Negative Pregnant is a Fault in Pleading; and there must be a Special Demurrer to a Negative Pregnant Plea, &c. for the Court will intend every Pleading to be good, 'till the contrary doth appear. Mich. 23 Car. 1. B. R. See 2 Leon. 248.

Requidare, Signifies to claim Kindred. Leg. H. 1. c. 70. LL. Inac. Sect. 7, 8.

Negligence, Is where a Person neglects or omits to do a Thing which he is by Law obliged to. And where one has Goods of another, to keep till such a Time, and hath a certain Recompence or Reward for the Keeping, he shall stand charged for Injury by Negligence, &c. But if he hath nothing for Keeping them, he is not bound to answer. Doct. & Stud. 269. A Man that finds another's Goods, if they are after hurt by wilful Negligence, 'tis held he is chargeable to the Owner; though it is otherwise when they are lost by Casualty, as in Case they are laid in a House that is accidentally burnt, or if he deliver them to another to keep, who runs away with them, &c. Ibid. It is held if an Accountant be robbed, and it is without his Default and Negligence, he shall not be answerable for the Money. 1 Inst. 89. A Right may be lost by Negligence; as where an Action is not brought in the Time appointed by the Statute of Limitations, &c. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 16.

Negro. By the Laws of Virginia, Negro Servants are saleable; and where a Negro is sold here, in Action Indebitatus Assumpsit for the Money, the Declaration ought to be, that the Defendant was indebted to the Plaintiff for the Negro sold here at London, but the said Negro at the Time of Sale was in Virginia, and that by the Laws and Statutes of Virginia, Negroes are saleable as Chattels. Per Holt. C. J. 2 Salk. Rep. 666. In Action of Trover for a Negro, and Verdict and Damages for the Plaintiff; it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that Trover lay not for a Negro, for the Owner had not an absolute Property in him: But the Court seem'd to think that in Trespas Quare Captivum suum cepit, the Plaintiff might give in Evidence that the Party was his Negro, and he bought him. Ibid. See Stat. 13 Geo. 1. cap. 9.

Neif, (Fr. Naif, i. e. Naturalis, Nativa) Was a Bond-Woman or the Villein, born in one's House, mentioned in the Stat. 9 R. 2. c. 2. If a Bond-Woman married a Free man, she was thereby made free; and being once free, and discharged of Bondage, she could could not be Nief after, without some special Act done by her, as by Divorce, Confession in Court, &c. And a free Woman taking a Villein to her Husband, was not thereby Bond; but their Issue were Villeins as their Father was; though this is contrary to the Civil Law, which says, Partus sequitur Ventrem. Terms de Ley 454. Anciently Lords of Manors sold, gave, or assigned their Bondmen and Niefs, as appears by the following Deed of Gift.—*Sciant quod ego Radulphus de C. Miles Dominus de L. Dedi Domino Roberto de D. Beatricem filiam Will. H. de L. quondam Nativam meam, cum tota sequela sua & omnibus Catallis suis perquisitis & perquirendis; Habend' & Tenend. prædictam Beatricem cum tota sequela sua & omnibus Catallis suis & omnibus rebus suis perquisitis & perquirendis prædicto Domino Roberto vel suis assignatis, libere, quiete, bene & in pace imperpetuum, &c. A Writ founded on the Statute of Magna Charta, c. 10. that lies for a Tenant distrained by his Lord, for more Services than he ought to perform; and is a Prohibition to the Lord not to distrain or vex his Tenant: In a special Use, it is where the Tenant hath prejudiced himself, by doing greater Services, or paying more Rent, without Constraint, than he needed; for in this Case, by Reason of the Lord's Seisin, the Tenant cannot avoid it by Avowry, but is driven to his Writ for Remedy. Reg. Orig. 4. F. N. B. 10. And if the Lord distrains to do other Services, or to pay other Rent than due, after the Prohibition delivered unto him, then the Tenant shall have an Attachment against the Lord, &c. and when the Lord cometh thereon, the Tenant shall count against him, and put himself upon the Grand Assise, &c. whereupon Judgment shall be given. New Nat. Br. 22. This Writ is always Ancestral, where the Tenant and his Ancestors have holden of the Lord and his Ancestors; and the Lord hath incroached any Rent, &c. A Feoffee shall not avoid Seisin of Rent had by Incroachment of his Feoffor, nor have the Writ Ne injuste Vexes; also a Man shall not have a Writ of Ne injuste Vexes against the Grantee of the Seigniorie. Mich. 18 Ed. 2. 10 Ed. 3. And Tenant in Tail may not have this Writ; but shall plead and shew the Matter, and not be estopped by the Payment of his Ancestors, &c. Trin. 20 Ed. 3.

Nihil capiat per Breve, or per Billam. Is the Judgment given against the Plaintiff in an Action, either in Bar of his Action, or in Abatement of his Writ or Bill, &c. Co. Lit. 363.

Nihil

Nil dicit, Is a Pleading by the Defendant to put in an Answer to the Plaintiff's Plea by the Day assigned; which being omitted, Judgment is had against him of Course, as saying nothing, why it should not: These Words are generally writ short Nil dicit, &c.

Nil dicit or Nil dicitis, Are Issues which the Sheriff that is appointed in the Exchequer says, are Nothing words, and illeivable, for the Insufficiency of the Parties from whom due. Practice Excheq. pag. 101. Accounts of Nil dicit shall be put out of the Exchequer. Stat. 5 R. 2. c. 13.

Nil Debet, Is a common Plea to an Action of Debt, when the Money is paid: But 'tis no Plea in Covenant, or Breach assigned for Non-payment of Rent, &c. 3 Lev. 170. If Action of Debt be brought against a Sheriff or Gaoler, for the Escape of one in Execution, the Plaintiff must declare upon the Judgment, and yet Nil debet per Patriam is a good Plea. 1 Saund. 38. It is entered thus: Et præd. A. B. per, &c. litora. suum ven. & defend. vim & injur. quando, &c. Et dicit quod ipse Non debet præfat. A. B. vigint. lib. nec aliqu. denar. sum. in forma præd. præd. A. B. superius vers. cum narravit, &c.

Nil habuit in Tenementis, A Plea to be pleaded in an Action of Debt only, brought by a Lessor against Lessee for Years, or at Will, without Deed. 2 Lill. Abr. 214. In Debt for Rent upon an Indenture of Lease, Nil habuit in Tenementis may not be pleaded; because it is an Estoppel, and a general Demurrer will serve. 3 Lev. 146. But if Debt is brought for Rent upon a Deed Poll, the Defendant may plead this Plea: And where a Defendant pleaded Nil habuit in Tenementis tempore Dimissionis; the Plaintiff replied, Quod habuit in Tenementis, &c. and Verdict and Judgment was had for the Plaintiff; whereupon Writ Error being brought, it was assigned for Error, that the Replication was not good, for he ought to have shewn what Estate he then had; and of that Opinion was the Court; and it had been naught upon a Demurrer, but being after a Verdict, it is good. Cro. Jac. 312. If a less Estate is found than the Plaintiff pleads in his Reply to a Nil habuit, &c. so as it be sufficient to intitle the Plaintiff to make a Lease, it is good enough. 10 W. 3.

Nil prius, Is a Commission to Justices of Nisi prius; so called from a Judicial Writ of Distringas, whereby the Sheriff is commanded to distrain the impanelled Jury to appear at Westminster before the Justices at a certain Day in the following Term, to try some Cause, Nisi prius Justic. Domini Regis ad Affisas capiend. occurrunt, viz. unless the Justices come before that Day to such a Place, &c. 2 Inst. 424. 4 Inst. 159. A Writ of Nisi prius is where an Issue is joined, then there goes a Venire to summon the Jury to appear at a Day in Court; and upon the Return of the Venire, with the Panel of the Jurors Names; the Record of Nisi prius is made up and sealed, and there goes forth the Writ of Distringas to have the Jurors in Court, Nisi prius Justic. veniunt, &c. such a Day in such a County, to try the Issue joined between the Parties. 2 Lill. 215. A Record of Nisi prius ought to contain a Transcript of the whole Issue-Roll; and no Record of Nisi prius for the Trying an Issue at the Assises, shall be sealed after a Month next following the End of the Term; which Time is by a late Order of Court altered to three Weeks. Ibid. All Civil Causes grown to Issue in the Courts at Westminster, are brought down in the Vacation before the Day of Appearance appointed for the Jury above, into the County where the Action was laid, to be tried there; which is usually done in two or three Days: And then upon the Return of the Verdict given by the Jury to the Court above, the Judges there give Judgment for the Party for whom the Verdict is found: And these Trials by Nisi prius are for the Ease of the Country, the Parties, Jurors, and Witnesses, by saving them the Charge and Trouble of coming to Westminster; but in Matters of great Weight and Difficulty, the Judges above, upon Motion and Information, will often retain Causes to be tried there, though laid in the Country, and then the Juries and Witnesses in such Causes must come up to the Courts at Westminster for Trial at Bar: And the King hath his Election to try his Suits at the Bar, or in the Country, &c. Wood's Inst. 479. The Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 30. having ordained, that all Pleas in either Bench, which require only an easy Examination, shall be determined in the Country before Justices of Assise, by Virtue of the Writ appointed by that Statute, commonly called the Writ of Nisi prius; it has been held, that an Issue joined in the King's Bench upon an Indictment or Appeal, whether for Treason or Felony, or a Crime of an inferior Nature, committed in a different County from that wherein the Court sits, may be tried in the proper County by Writ of Nisi prius: But as the King is not expressly named in this Statute; and it is a general Rule, that he shall not be bound except named, it is said where the King is Party, a Nisi prius ought not to be granted, without his special Warrant, or the Assent of his Attorney; though the Court may grant it in Appeals in the same Manner as any other Actions. 2 Inst. 424. 4 Inst. 160. Dyer 46. 2 Hawk. P. C. 411. Justices of Nisi prius have Power to record Non-suits and Defaults in the Country at the Days assigned; and are to report them at the Bench, &c. And are to hear and determine Conspiracy, Confederacy, Champerty, &c. by 12 Ed. 2. c. 4. 4 Ed. 3. c. 11. Nisi prius shall be granted in Attaints; but that which cannot be determined before the Justices upon the Nisi prius, shall be adjourned to the Bench where they are Justices: And the Justices before whom Inquisitions, Inquests, and Juries, shall be taken by the King's Writ of Nisi prius, are impower'd to give Judgment in Felony and Treason, &c. and to award Execution by Force of their Judgment. Stat. 5 Ed. 3. 14 Hen. 6. cap. 1. It was held by Hale, that the Justices of Nisi prius have not any original Power of determining Felony, without special Commission for that Purpose; and by Virtue of the Acts 27 Ed. 1. & 14 H. 6. they have Authority to determine such Felonies only, as are sent down to be tried before them; in which Case on Removal of the Indictments, they may proceed to Trial and Judgment as if Justices of Gaol-Delivery. 2 Hale's Hist. P. C. 41. The Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and in their Absence two other of the Judges, &c. as Justices of Nisi prius for the County of Middlesex, shall try Causes upon Writs of Nisi prius on Issues joined in B. R. and C. B. and the Exchequer, which were formerly only triable at Bar, in the Term-time, or or four Days after each Term. 18 Eliz. c. 12. And the Time is enlarged to eight Days after the End of any Term; also any one Judge or Baron may try Issues, &c. according to the Statute 18 Eliz. in the Absence of the Chiefs, and all Sheriffs, Officers, Parties and Witnesses, are required to give Attendance, &c. by the 12 Geo. 1. c. 31. The Authority of Justices of Nisi prius in the Country, is annexed to the Justices of Assise: And the Court above will take judicial Notice of what is done at Nisi prius; being entered on Record. 2 Hawk. 409. See Assise.

Privilium Britones, Is used for Welshmen; because in Carmarthenshire and other Northern Counties of Wales, they lived near high Mountains covered with Snow.—Cum adversus Nivicolinos Britones Regia esset Expeditio. Du Cange.

Nobility, (Nobilitas) Signifies a Nobleness of Birth, Generosity or Greatness of Mind, Excellence of Virtue: According to Juvenal, — Nobilitas sola est atque unica Virtus.

A Nobleman among all Men is defined to be a Person, that hath a certain Eminency above the Rest; one who is known by the heroical Virtues of his Life; and the Nobility with us compriseth all Degrees of Dignity above a Knight; and is derived from the King, who may grant it in Fee, or for Life, &c. See Peers of the Realm.

Noble, Was an ancient Kind of English Money, in Use in the Reign of K. Ed. 3. And Knighton tells us, the Rose Noble was a Gold Coin current in England about the Year 1344. At this Day there is no peculiar Coin of that Name; but a Noble is six Shillings and eight Pence Value, being a third Part of twenty Shillings. Mercb. Dict.

Noctanter, Is the Name of a Writ issuing out of the Chancery, and returnable in the King's Bench, given by the Statute Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 2. c. 46. By Virtue of which Statute, where any one having Right to approve Waste Ground, &c. makes and erects a Ditch or an Hedge, and it is thrown down in the Night time, and it cannot be known by a Verdict of Assise or a Jury, by whom; if the neighbouring Villis will not indict such as are guilty, they shall be distrained to make again the Hedge or Ditch at their own Costs, and to answer Damages. 2 Inst. 476. And the Noctanter Writ thereupon is directed to the Sheriff of the County, commanding him by the Oath Proborum & legalium hominum Com' predicti Inquirer. qui Malefactores & pacis Dom. Regis perturbatores apud, &c. Sepes & Fossata A. B. ibidem per ipsum nuper levat' Noctanter aut tali tempore quo facta eorum sciri non credebant prostraver. ad dampnum pred. A. B. & contra Pacem Dom. Regis, &c. And on the Return of this Writ by the Sheriff, that the same is found by Inquisition, and the Jury are ignorant who did it; the Return being filed in the Crown Office, there goes out a Writ of Inquiry of the Damages, and a Distingas to the Sheriff to distrain Propinquas Villatas sepes & Fensuras pred' circumadjacentes sepes, &c. prostrat. Levare ad Custos suas proprios, and also to restore the Damages, &c. The circumadjacent Villis intended by the Statute, are the contiguous Villis round the Place; and if they are not contiguous, they are not guilty, and may plead so: And when other Villis near of as great Value, by Favour or Negligence of the Sheriff are not summoned, &c. they may plead as Tenants do, where all are not summoned. As to the Pleadings to this Writ, where more Damages are found than there ought to be; the Defendants may by Protestation deny the Fact, or confess and aver that the Damages were but small; and traverse that the Party sustinuit damna to the Sum found, or any other Sum beyond what they admit; or may plead Not guilty, and in their Defence any Matter which will be a Bar to the Prosecutor, but Satisfaction. 2 Lill Abr. 217. Here if the Villis repair, Damages ought not to be given to the Value of the Repairs; and if the Villis which are liable there to have repaired, it ought so far to help them in the Trial of the Quantum damnificatus, that the other Damages ought only to be considered. Ibid. The Charges of the Defence for the several Villis must be raised by Agreement; and if they cannot agree, each Vill is to bear their own Charges, as in Case of a Suit against a Hundred, till Execution; and then the Statute of 27 Eliz. hath provided a Remedy: The Writ of Noct- anter, by the better Opinion, lies for the Prostration as well of all Inclosures as those improved out of Commons; but if it be not in the Night, this Writ will not lie: And there ought to be a convenient Time (which the Court is to judge of) before the Writ is brought, for the Country to inquire of and indict the Offenders; which Sir Edw. Coke says should be a Year and a Day. 2 Inst. 476. Cro. Car. 440. 1 Keb. 545. And if any one of the Offenders be indicted, the Defendants must plead it, &c.

The Word Noctanter is so necessary in an Indictment of Burglary, that it hath been adjudged insufficient without it. Cro. El. 483.

Noctes & Noctem de Firma. In the Book of Domesday we often meet with Tot Noctes de firma, or firma tot Noctium; which is understood of Entertainment of Meat and Drink for so many Nights: For in the Time of the English Saxons, Time was computed not by Days, but Nights; and so it continued till the Reign of King Hen. 1. as appears by his Laws, cap. 66, 76. And from hence it is still usual to say a Sevenight, i. e. Septem Noctes, for a Week; and a Fortnight for two Weeks, i. e. Quatuordecim Noctes.

Nocturns or Noctri, (Sax.) The learned Spelman says is derived from the old Saxon Neod, obsequium & Fry, Ignis, and signified Fires made in Honour of the Heathen Deities. But by others it is said to come from the Saxon Neb, that is necessary; and was used for the necessary Fire.

Nolle prosequi, Is used in the Law, where a Plaintiff in any Action will proceed no further, and may be before or after a Verdict; though it is usually before: And it is then stronger against the Plaintiff than a Nonsuit, which is only a Default in Appearance; but this is a voluntary Acknowledgment, that he hath no Cause of Action. 2 Lill. 218. A Plaintiff comes by his Attorney hic in Curia & fateatur se ulterius Nolle Prosequi; whereupon Judgment was given, That the Defendant eat sine Die, and no Amercement upon the Plaintiff: This was held erroneous; for the Plaintiff ought also to be amerced. 8 Rep. 58. Where there are two Defendants, and one pleads Not guilty, and the other another Plea; it upon a Demurrer there is a Judgment for the Plaintiff against one on the Demurrer, and a Nolle Prosequi for the other, there it ought to be eat sine Die, or it is ill; and the Entry of Quod eat sine Die is a Discharge to the Defendant. Cro. Jac. 439. Hob. 180. In an Action brought against three Persons, one of them pleads the General Issue, and the other Specially; the Plaintiff demurs on the Special Plea, and tries the General Issue, on which he hath a Verdict and Judgment; but before Judgment on the Demurrer he enters a Nolle Prosequi as to the Demurrer: And it was adjudged, that if the Nolle Prosequi had been entered before the Verdict and Judgment, it had discharged the whole Action; being in Nature of a Release in Law to the others: So also if Judgment had been against all the Defendants, and the Plaintiff had entered the Nolle Prosequi for Two; for Nonsuit or Release, or other Discharge of one, discharges all the rest. Hob. 70. But in Action of Trespas against two, one pleaded Not guilty, and the other justified; and both Issues being found for the Plaintiff, and several Damages and joint Costs assessed; the Plaintiff then entered a Nolle Prosequi against one, and took Judgment against the other for Damages found against him, and the Costs; upon which it was insisted on for Error, that the Entry of a Nolle Prosequi before Judgment as to one, is a Release to him, and quasi a Release to both: Per Cur', it is not an absolute Release, but as it were an Agreement that the Plaintiff will not proceed against the one; and as to him it is a Bar, but he may proceed against the other; and where they sever by Pleas, there may be Proceedings against one one, and a Nolle Prosequi against the other. Cro. Car. 239, 243. 2 Lill. 220. It has been held, in Trefpals against three Defendants; if a Nolle Prosequi were entered against two, before Judgment against any of them, it had not amounted to a Release to them all; only to a Waiver of Suit: And the three Defendants cannot join in a Writ of Error; for those against whom the Nolle Prosequi is entered, are not damnified. Jenk. Cent. 309. On two Promises, the Plaintiff may demur as to one Promise, and enter a Nolle Prosequi as to the other; and if Judgment is had on the first Promise, it will be well enough, though the Nolle Prosequi be not entered before such Judgment. 2 Lev. 33. And if there are divers Issues, or an Issue and Demurrer in one Cause, against one Person, joined between the Parties, the Plaintiff may enter on the Roll a Nolle Prosequi, that he will not proceed on one or more of the Issues, or Demurrer joined; and may notwithstanding go to Trial upon the Rest of the Issues, or argue the Demurrer. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. The King may enter a Nolle Prosequi on an Information; but it shall not stop the Proceedings of the Informer. 1 Leon. 119. And if an Informer cause a Nolle Prosequi to be entered, the Defendant shall have Costs, &c. by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. Keble mentions a Nolle Prosequi on Retraxit by Attorney. 3 Keb. 332.

Nomination, (Nominatio) Is a Power that a Man hath, by Virtue of some Manor or otherwise, of appointing a Clerk to a Patron of a Benefice, by him to be presented to the Ordinary. The Right of Nomination a Man may have by Deed; and in such Case, if the Patron refuse to present the Nominate, or presents another, he may bring a Quare Impedit; for he who is to present, is only an Instrument to him who *nominate*s; and the Person who hath the Nomination is in Effect the Patron of the Church. Plowd. 529. Moor 47. A Nominator must appoint his Clerk within six Months after the Avoidance; if he doth not, and the Patron presents his Clerk before the Bishop hath taken any Benefit of the Lapse, he is obliged to admit that Clerk: But where one hath the Nomination, and another the Presentation, if the Right of Presentation should afterwards come to the King, it is said he that hath the Nomination will be intitled to the Presentation alio; because the King who should present cannot be subservient to the Nominator, it being contrary to his Dignity. Hugh's Pars. Law 76, 77. Right of Nomination may be forfeited to the Crown as well as Presentation; where the Nominator corruptly agrees to nominate within the Statute of Simony, &c.

Nomina Villarum. King Edw. 2. sent his Letters to every Sheriff in England, requiring an exact Account and Return into the Exchequer of the Names of all the Villages, and Possessors thereof in every County; which being done accordingly, the Returns of the Sheriffs all joined together, are called Nomina Villarum, still remaining in the Exchequer. Anno 9 Ed. 2.

Nomine Pœnæ, Is a Penalty incurred for not paying of a Rent, &c. at the Day appointed by the Lease or Agreement for Payment thereof. 2 Lill. 221. If Rent is reserved, and there is a Nomine Pœnæ on the Non-payment of it, and the Rent be behind and unpaid, there must be an actual Demand thereof made, before the Grantee of the Rent can distrain for it; the Nomine Pœnæ being of the same Nature as the Rent, and issuing out of the Land out of which the Rent doth issue. Hib. 82, 133. And where a Rent-Charge was granted for Years, with a Nomine Pœnæ and Clause of Distrain, if it was not paid on the Day; on the Rent's being behind, and the Term expired, the Court was moved that the Grantee might distrain for the Nomine Pœnæ; but it was held that he could not, because the Nomine Pœnæ depended on the Rent, and the Distrain was gone for that, and by Consequence for the other. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1182. See Stat. 8 Ann. c. 17. When any Sum Nomine Pœnæ is to be forfeited for Non-payment of Rent at the Time, &c. the Demand of the Rent ought to be precisely at the Day, in respect of the Penalty: And Debt will not lie on a Nomine Pœnæ, without a Demand. 7 Rep. 28. Cro. Eliz. 383. Style 4. If there is a Nomine Pœnæ, of such a Sum for every Day, after Rent becomes due, it has been a Question whether there must be a Demand for every Day's Nomine Pœnæ, or one Demand for many Days: And by the better Opinion it hath been holden, that for every Day there ought to be a Demand; and that one will not be sufficient for the Whole: But where a Nomine Pœnæ of 40s. was limited quolibet die proximo the Feast-Day on which the Rent ought to be paid, it was adjudged that there was but one 40s. forfeited, because the Word Proximo must relate to the very next Day following the Rent Day; and so likewise when the Rent became due and unpaid at the next Rent Day after that, and so on. Palm. 207. 2 Nelf. 1182. An Assignee is chargeable with a Nomine Pœnæ incurred after the Assignment, but not before. Moor 357. 2 Lill. Abr. 221. Though a Forfeiture is mentioned to be Nomine Pœnæ, on not paying of a collateral Sum; it is no Nomine Pœnæ, if it be not of a Rent. Lutw. 1156.

Non-ability, Is an Exception taken against the Plaintiff in a Cause, upon some just Ground, why he cannot commence any Suit in Law; as Præsumptio, Outlawry, Excommunication, &c. F. N. B. 35, 65. Vide Disability.

Nonæ & Decimæ, Payments made to the Church by those who were Tenants of Church Farms; where Nonæ was a Rent or Duty for Things belonging to Husbandry, and Decimæ were claimed in Right of the Church. Formerly a ninth Part of moveable Goods was paid to the Clergy on the Death of Persons in their Parish, which was called Nonagium; and claimed on Pretence of being distributed to pious Uses. Blount.

Non-age, In general Understanding is all the Time of a Person's being under the Age of One and Twenty; and in a special Sense, where one is under Fourteen, as to Marriage, &c.

Non Assumpsit, A Plea in personal Actions, whereby a Man denies any Promise made, &c. See Assumpsit.

Non-claim, Is an Omission or Neglect of one that claims not within the Time limited by Law; as within a Year and a Day, where continual Claim ought to be made; or in five Years after a Fine levied, &c. By which a Man may be barred of his Right of Entry. Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. 32 H. 8. c. 33. See Claim.

Non compos Mentis, Is where a Person is not of sound Mind, Memory, and Understanding. And there are four Sorts of Non compos Mentis. 1st, An Idiot or natural Fool. 2^{dly}, A Madman, or one who was of Sane Memory, but hath lost his Understanding by Sickness, Accident or Misfortune. 3^{dly}, A Lunatick, sometimes of Sane Memory, and at other Times not so. 4^{thly}, A Drunkard that deprives himself of his Memory and Understanding for a Time. But though a drunken Person is Non compos Mentis, it shall give no Privilege or Benefit to him, as to Acts done, &c. And his Drunkenness shall not extenuate, but rather aggravate his Offence, as well touching his Life as his Lands or Goods. 1 Inst. 264. 4 Rep. 125. A Deed of Feoffment, Grant, &c. made by a Person Non compos Mentis is voidable; his Heir as privy in Blood, may shew the Disability of his Ancestor, and avoid his Grants; and his Executors, &c. as Privies in Representation may do the same, fame, by setting forth the Infirmity of the Testator or Intestate. 4 Rep. 126. Where a Person of Sane Memory becomes Non compos Mentis, and afterwards aliens his Lands or Goods; if he be found Non compos, and that he had aliened, the King may protect him, and take the Profits of his Lands, &c. to maintain him and his Family. Rep. 127. And he that hath the Custody of a Man of Non sane Memory is accountable as Bailiff to the Non compos, his Executors or Administrators. Ibid. A Man Non compos Mentis shall not lose his Life for Felony or Murder; for he cannot be guilty of the Murder of another. 3 Rep. 124. 3 Inst. 5, 54. Though if one who wants Discretion or Understanding, does any corporal Hurt to, or Trespas against another; he may be compelled by Action to render Damages. 35 H. 6. 1 Inst. 247. 1 Hawk. P. C. 2. Vide Lunatick.

Non-conformists. The Statutes 1 Eliz. and 13 Car. 2. were made for the Uniformity of Common Prayer, and Service in the Church; and Persons not conforming thereto are subject to divers Penalties. Statute 13 Ann. c. 2. And it has been held, that a Dissenter may be fined for not conforming to bear Offices of Charge, &c. in the Government. 4 Mod. Rep. 273, 274.

Non Damnificatus, Is a Plea to an Action of Debt upon a Bond, with Condition to save the Plaintiff harmless. 2 Lill. Abr. 224. If the Condition of a Bond be to save harmless only, Non Damnificatus generally is a good Plea; but if it be to discharge the Plaintiff, &c. then the Manner of the Discharge is to be shewn. 1 Leon. 72. When one pleads a Discharge, and that he saved another harmless, he ought to shew how he did it, that the Court may judge thereof: Though a Defendant may plead Non Damnificatus, without shewing of it; because he pleads in the Negative, and then the other Party shall shew Damnification. Cro. Jac. 363. 2 Rep. 3, 4. March 121. It has been adjudged, where a Condition of a Bond is to save harmless from all Suits in general, Non Damnificatus may be pleaded; and if it is in a particular Suit or Thing, there the Defendant must set forth how he hath saved harmless and discharged; but where a Suit is upon a Counter-Bond, the Plea of Non Damnificatus is good. 8 W. 3. B. R. 5 Mod. 243.

Non Decimando. A Custom or Prescription De Non Decimando is to be discharged of all Tithes, &c. See Modus Decimandi.

Non Distringendo, Is a Writ not to distrain, used in divers Cases. Table of Reg. of Writs.

Nones, (Nona) Of every Month is, the seventh Day of March, May, July, and October; and the fifth of all the other Months. By the Roman Account, the Nones in the afore mentioned Months are the six Days next following the first Day, or the Calends; and of others the four Days next after the first, according to these Verses,

Sex Nonas Majus, October, Julius & Mars,
Quatuor at reliqui, &c.

Though the last of these Days is properly called Nones; for the others are reckoned backwards as distant from them, and accounted the third, fourth, or fifth Nones, &c. And Nones had their Name from their Beginning the Ninth Day before the Ides. See Ides.

Non est Culpabilis, Short Non Cul. is the general Plea to an Action of Trespas, whereby the Defendant absolutely denies the Fact charged on him by the Plaintiff; whereas in other special Pleas, the Defendant grants the Fact to be done, but alleges some Reasons why he lawfully might do it. And as the Plea of Non Culp. is the general Answer in Actions of Trespas, being Actions criminal civilly prosecuted; so it is likewise in all Actions criminally followed, either at the Suit of the King or any other, where the Defendant denies the Crime for which he is brought to Trial. S. P. C. lib. 2. c. 63.

Non est factum, A Plea where an Action is brought upon a Bond, or any other Deed, and the Defendant denieth that to be his Deed whereon he is impleaded. Broke. In every Case where a Bond is void, the Defendant may plead Non est factum: But when a Bond is voidable only, he must shew the special Matter, and conclude Judgment Si Abis, &c. 2 Lill. 226. If a Deed is raised in a material Part, by which it becomes void, the Person bound by it may plead Non est factum, and give the Matter in Evidence; because it was not his Deed at the Time of the Plea. 11 Rep. 27. A Bond was dated November the 10th, and so set forth in the Plaintiff's Declaration; the Defendant pleaded Non est factum, and though it was found that it was not delivered till the eighteenth, the Issue being upon a Non est factum, it appeared to be his Deed: But it is said the Defendant might have helped himself by Pleading. Cro. Jac. 126. The Defendant pleads Quod factum predicti. was made and delivered without a Date, and that the Plaintiff put a Date to it, and so Non est factum; this was held naught upon a Demurrer, for the Defendant confesses the Deed, by saying Factum predicti. and afterwards denies it; though he might have said generally, Non est factum. Cro. Eliz. 800. Where two are jointly bound in a Bond, and an Action is brought on it against one only, he cannot Plead Non est factum, or Demur in that Case; but may have his Plea in Abatement of the Writ. 5 Rep. 119. None but the Party, his Heirs, Executors, &c. can plead Non est factum. Lutw. 662.

Non est Inventus, Is the Sheriff's Return to a Writ, when the Defendant is Not to be found in his Bailiwick. And there is a Return that the Plaintiff Non invenit Plegium, on original Writs. Shep. Epit. 1129.

Nonfeasance, Is an Offence of Omission of what ought to be done; as in not coming to Church, &c. which need not be alledged in any certain Place; for generally speaking it is not committed any where: But Nonfeasance will not make a Man a Trespasser, &c. 1 Hawk. 13. Hob. 251. 8 Rep. 146.

Non implacitando aliquem de Libero Tenemento Sine Wrebi, Is a Writ to prohibit Bailiffs, &c. from distraining or impleading any Man touching his Freehold, without the King's Writ. Reg. Orig. 171.

Non intromittendo, quando Wrebe Præcipe in Capite subdole impetratur, Was a Writ directed to the Justices of the Bench or in Eyre, commanding them not to give one, that had, under Colour of intitling the King to Land, &c. as holding of him in Capite, deceitfully obtained the Writ called Præcipe in Capite, any Benefit thereof, but to put him to his Writ of Right. Reg. Orig. 4. This Writ having Dependence on the Court of Wards, since taken away; is now disused.

Nonjurors, Are Persons that refuse to take the Oaths to the Government, who are liable to certain Penalties; and for a third Offence to abjure the Realm, by 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 1. Parsons, Vicars, &c. are to take the Oaths, and give their Assent to the Declaration 14 Car. 2. c. 4. or they shall not preach, under the Penalty of 40l. &c. Stat. 17 Car. 2. c. 21. Ecclesiastical Persons not taking the Oaths on the Revolution, were rendered incapable to hold their Livings: But the King was empowered to grant such of the Nonjuring Clergy as he thought fit, not above twelve, an Allowance out of their Ecclesiastical Benefices for their Subsistence, not exceeding a third Part. 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 8. Persons refusing the Oaths, shall incur, forfeit, and suffer the Penalties inflicted inflicted on Popish Recufants, and the Court of Exchequer may issue out Procefs against their Lands, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 27. See the Stat. 1 Geo. 1. c. 55. and Oaths.

Non Merchandizando distualia, Is a Writ to Justices of Assise, to inquire whether the Magistrates of such a Town do sell Victuals in Grofs, or by Retail, during the Time of their being in Office, which is contrary to an ancient Statute; and to punish them if they do. Reg. Orig. 184.

Non Molestando, A Writ that lies for a Person who is molested contrary to the King's Protection granted him. Reg. Writs 184.

Non obstante, (Notwithstanding) Is a Clause frequent in Statutes and Letters Patent, and is a Licence from the King to do a Thing which at the Common Law might be lawfully done; but being restrained by Act of Parliament, cannot be done without such Licence. Vaugh. 347. Plowd. 501. It is ordained by the Statutes of 2 E. 3. 14 E. 3. and 13 R. 2. that the King's Pardon of notorious Felonies, &c. should not be granted, although with the Words Non obstante any Statute: Yet Patents of Pardon of such Offences, were allowed with a Non Obstante, and notwithstanding any Clause to defeat the same. Jenk. Cent. 308. The Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 2. confirmed all Grants of the Queen by Letters Patent, of any Honours, Castles, Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. and that they should stand and be good in Law against the Queen, her Heir and Successors, Non obstante any Mis-naming, Mis-recital, Want of Certainty, finding Offices or Inquisitions, Livery of Seisin, &c. By 14 Car. 2. c. 11. it was declared, that all Grants of Pensions, &c. and every Non obstante therein contained, should be void. And the 1 W. & M. c. 2. makes Dispensations, Non Obstante to Statutes, void; unless allowed therein. See Dispensations and Grants of the King.

Non omittas, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff, where the Bailiff of a Liberty or Franchise who hath the Return of Writs refuses or neglects to serve a Procefs, for the Sheriff to enter into the Franchise and execute the King's Writ himself, or by his Officer: Before this Writ is granted, the Sheriff ought to return, that he hath sent to the Bailiff, and that he hath not served the Writ; but for Dispatch, the usual Practice is to send a Non omittas with a Capias or Laitat. F. N. B. 68, 74. 2 Inst. 453. If a Sheriff return that he sent the Procefs to the Bailiff of a Liberty, who hath given him no Answer; a Non omittas shall be awarded to the Sheriff: And if he returns that he sent the Procefs to such Bailiff, who hath returned a Capi Corpus, or such like Matter; and the Bailiff bring not in the Body, or Money, &c. at the Day, the Bailiff shall be amerced, and a Writ issue to the Sheriff to distrain the Bailiff to bring in the Body. 2 Hawk. 143. Writs of Capias Utlagatum, and of Quo Minus out of the Exchequer, and it is said all Writs whatsoever at the King's Suit, are of the same Effect as a Non omittas; and the Sheriff may by Virtue of them enter into a Liberty and execute them. 2 Lill. Abr. 229. The Reg. of Writs mentions three Sorts of this Writ, which was given to prevent Liberties being privileged to hinder or delay the general Execution of Justice: And the Clause of the Non omittas is, Quod Non omittas propter aliquam Libertatem, (viz. of the Liberty to which the Sheriff hath made a Mandavi Ballivo, qui nullum dedit Responsum quin in eam ingrediatis & Capias A. B. Si, &c.

Non-plevin, (Non-plevina) Is defined to be Defaulta post Defaultam; and in Hugham Magna, cap. 8. it is said, that the Defendant is to replevy his Lands seized by the King within fifteen Days; and if he neglects, then at the Instance of the Plaintiff at the next Court Day, he shall lose his Seisin, Sicut per Defaultam post Defaultam: But by Statute it was enacted, that none should lose his Land, because of Non-plevin. i. e.

where the Land was not replevied in due Time. 9 Ed. 3. c. 2.

Non ponendis in Wills & Juratis, Is a Writ granted for freeing and discharging Persons from serving on Assises and Juries; and when one hath a Charter of Exemption, he may sue the Sheriff for returning him. This Writ is founded on the Stat. of Westm. 2. c. 38. And the Stat. Articuli super Chartas, cap. 9. F. N. B. 165. 2 Inst. 127, 447.

Non procedendo ad Wilsam Rege inconsulto, A Writ to stop the Trial of a Cause appertaining to one that is in the King's Service, &c. until the King's Pleasure be farther known. Reg. Orig. 220.

Non Pros. If a Plaintiff in an Action, doth not declare against the Defendant within reasonable Time, a Rule may be entered against him by the Defendant's Attorney to declare; and thereupon a Non Prof. &c. Practif. Salic. 222. And a Plaintiff may enter a Non Prof. against one Defendant, where there are two that sever in their Pleas, before the Record of the Cause is sent down by Nisi prius to be tried at the Assises: But it is said there cannot be a Non Prof. at the Trial at the Assises. 3 Salk. 246. Though in Action against several Defendants, it has been ruled otherwise. 2 Salk. 456. Non Pros. have been frequent upon Informations; but never upon Indictments, till the Reign of King Charles 2. Ibid. See Nolle Prosequi, and Non suit.

Non-Residence, Is applied to those Spiritual Persons that are not Resident, but do absent themselves wilfully by the Space of one Month together, or two Months at several Times in one Year, from their Dignities or Benefices, which is liable to Penalties, by the Statute against Non Residence. 21 H. 8. c. 13. But Chaplains to the King, or other great Persons, mentioned in this Statute, and the 25 H. 8. c. 16. may be Non resident on their Livings; for they are excused from Residence whilst they attend those that retain them: And Bishops are not punishable by Statute for Non-Residency; but if a Bishop hold a Deanery, Parsonage, &c. in Commendam with his Bishoprick, he is punishable by the Stat. 21 H. 8. for Non-Residence on the same. Also where Bishops are Non-resident on their Bishopricks, they are liable to Ecclesiastical Censure; and the King may issue a mandatory Writ for their Attendance thereon, and compel them to it by seizing their Temporalties, a notable Precedent whereof we have in the Case of the Bishop of Hereford, in the Reign of King Hen. 3. 2 Inst. 625. See Residence.

Non Residentia pro Clericis Regis, Is a Writ directed to the Bishop, charging him not to molest a Clerk employed in the King's Service, by Reason of his Non-Residence; in which Case he is to be discharged. Reg. Orig. 58.

Non sane Memoria, (Non sane Memoria) Is used in Law for an Exception to an Act, declared to be done by another, whereon the Plaintiff in any Action grounds his Pleint; and the Effect of it is, that the Party that did that Act, was not well in his Senses when he did it, or when he made his last Will and Testament. New Book Entries. And Sane Memory for the Making of a Will is not always where the Testator can answer Yes or No, or in some Things with Sense; but he ought to have Judgment to discern, and be of perfect Memory, or the Will shall be void. Moor, c. 1051. See Non compos Mentis.

Non suit, (Tergiversatio, Litis renunciatio) Is the letting a Suit or Action fall; or a Renunciation of it by the Plaintiff or Demandant, most commonly upon the Discovery of some Error or Defect, when the Matter is so far proceeded in, as the Jury is ready at the Bar to deliver their Verdict. 2 H. 4. c. 7. Where a Man brings a personal Action, and doth not prosecute it with Effect, or if upon the Trial, he refuses to stand a Verdict; then he becomes nonsuited: If the Plaintiff be not ready at the Trial when the Jury is called and sworn, the Court may call him Nonfuit; it shall be intended he will not proceed in his Cause, though sometimes the Court hath staid a While in Expectation of his Coming, and making good his Action: And on a Trial, when the Jury comes to deliver in their Verdict, and the Plaintiff is called upon to hear their Verdict; if he do not appear after thrice called, by the Crier of the Court, he is nonfuit, and the Nonfuit is to be recorded by the Secondary, by the Direction of the Court, at the Prayer of the Defendant's Counsel; for the Court will not order it to be recorded, except the Counsel pray it. Hill. 21 Car. B. K. 2 Lill. Abr. 231. But where a Plaintiff doth not appear to hear the Verdict when he is called, and thereupon the Court directs the Secondary to record the Nonfuit; if afterwards he do appear before the Nonfuit is actually recorded, the Court may proceed to take the Verdict; it not being a Nonfuit till recorded by the Secondary, and then it is made Part of the Record, and is in the Nature of a Judgment against the Plaintiff. 2 Lill. 232. A Plaintiff in Ejectment not appearing at the Assises, he was nonfuit, and this was recorded; but as there was no Venire or Habeas Corpora, the Nonfuit was discharged, because the Judge of Nisi prius hath no Power to nonfuit without an Habeas Corpora or Distingas. Sid. 164. After a Demurrer joined, if the Court gives a Day over, the Plaintiff may be nonfuit; for the Plaintiff is then demandable: And after a Judgment quod computet, the Plaintiff may be nonfuit, because it is but an interlocutory Judgment; though after any Verdict, whereupon a final Judgment is to be given, he cannot. 1 Inst. 140. 2 Lill. 231. At Common Law, upon every Continuance or Day given, the Plaintiff might be Nonfuit; so that even after a Verdict, if the Court took Time to consider of it, the Plaintiff was demandable, and might be nonfuit; but this is now remedied by the Stat. 2 Hen. 4. Yet after a privy Verdict, the Plaintiff may still be nonfuit; and so he may after a special Verdict found; and after a Demurrer, though the Matter was argued, if the Court give a Day over. 1 Inst. 139. Dyer 53. 3 Salk. 249. In real or mixed Actions, the Nonfuit of one of the Plaintiffs or Demandants is not the Nonfuit of both; in this Case, he which makes Default shall be summoned and severed: But regularly in personal Actions, the Nonfuit of one Plaintiff is the Nonfuit of the others, unless in some Particulars. 1 Inst. 138, 139. If an Action of Debt, &c. is brought against two or more Defendants, by several Counts and one Præcipe, a Nonfuit as to one, is so to the Rest; for the Writ is one, and the Pledges de Prosequendo are the same: It is otherwise in a Discontinuance; which being against one shall not extend to the others; because there are several Declarations against them. Jenk. Cent. 309. 3 Salk. 244. And where there is but one Defendant, who pleads to Issue as to Part, and demurs to the other Part, the Plaintiff may be nonfuit as to one, and proceed for the other. Hob. 180. The King cannot be nonfuit, because in Judgment of Law he is always present in Court; though the Attorney General may enter a Nolle Prosequi: And the King's Suit may be discontinued, upon the Prayer of the Party, after a Year; where it is delayed to be prosecuted, 1 Inst. 139. Goldsb. 53. Also notwithstanding the King cannot be nonfuit in any Information or Action, wherein he himself is the sole Plaintiff, an Informer Qui tam, or Plaintiff in a popular Action, may be nonfuit; and thereby wholly determine the Suit as well in Respect of the King as of himself. 1 Inst. 139. Bro. 68. Fitzherb. 13. A foreign King seeking to take the Benefit of the National Laws here, may be nonfuit in England; which was the Case of the King of Spain. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. A Nonfuit after Appearance, in Appeals of Murder, Writs of Quare Impedit, Attaints, &c. is peremptory. 1 Inst. 139. In other Cases, when a Plaintiff is nonfuit, he may proceed again on a new Declaration; but not on that wherein he became nonfuit, that Declaration being void, and he hath no Day in Court. A Nonfuit is not generally a Bar to Actions of the like Nature, for the same Cause or Duty; yet a Retraxit is a Bar to all other Actions. 2 Lill. 231. On Nonfuit of the Plaintiff, &c. Costs are given to the Defendant in all Cases where the Plaintiff would have had Costs, if Judgment had been for him. Stat. 4 Jac. 1. c. 3. And on Appearance entered at the Return of the Writ, if the Plaintiff neglects to deliver a Declaration against the Defendant, in a personal Action, &c. before the End of the next Term following, a Nonfuit shall be entered against the Plaintiff; and he is to pay Costs to the Defendant. 13 Car. 2. c. 2.

Rep. 250.* And our Books mention Non-tenure general and special: General, where one denies ever to have been Tenant of the Land in Question; and special is an Exception, alledging that he was not Tenant the Day whereon the Writ was purchased. West. Symb. par. 2. When the Tenant or Defendant pleads Non-tenure of the Whole, he need not say who is Tenant; but if he pleads Non-tenure as to Part, he must set forth who is the Tenant. 1 Mod. 181. Non-tenure in Part or in the Whole is not pleadable after Imparlance. 3 Lev. 55.

Notice, Is the making of something known, that a Man was or might be ignorant of before. And it produces divers Effects; for by it the Party that gives the same, shall have some Benefit which otherwise he should not have had: And by this Means, the Party to whom the Notice is given, is made subject to some Action or Charge, that otherwise he had not been liable to; and his Estate in Danger of Prejudice. Co. Litt. 309. Notice is required to be given in many Cases by Law, to justify Proceedings where any Thing is to be done or demanded, &c. But none is bound by the Law to give Notice to another Person of that which such other may otherwise inform himself of. 22 Car. B. R. If one be bound by an Assumpsit generally to do a Thing to another, he to whom the Promise is made must give Notice when he will have him to do it; but if he promise that another Person shall do it, there he to whom the Thing is to be done is not obliged to give Notice to that third Person when he will have it done, but the Party must procure it at his Peril: For it may be he may not know that other Person, and there is no Privity of Contract between them Two, as there is betwixt the other Two. 2 Lill. Abr. 239. And in Case of a Promise it has been adjudged, that where a Penalty is to be recovered, Notice is requisite; but it is not so where Damages are to be recovered; in which Case the Party hath sufficient Notice by the Action brought. 1 Bull. 12. If a Person promise to pay so much to another at his Day of Marriage; the Party at his Peril is to take Notice of the Marriage. Cro. B. shall advise, the Obligor is bound to make the Assurance, without Notice that A. B. had advised it; but if he had been bound to make such Assurance as the Counsel of the Obligee should advise, Notice ought to be given the Obligor, that the Counsel of the Obligee had advised it. 1 Leon. 105. If I am bound to enfeoff such Persons as the Obligee shall name, he is to give Notice of those which he names, or I am not bound to enfeoff them. 2 Danv. Jac. 391. If the Agreement be that a Person shall pay so much as A. B. hath paid, the Defendant is to inquire of him, and the Plaintiff is not bound to give Notice; But if the Person or Thing is altogether uncertain, the Plaintiff to intitle himself to an Action must give Notice. Cro. Jac. 432, 433. If an Act is to be done by a Stranger, and not by the Plaintiff, the Cognisance thereof lies as well in the Notice of the Defendant as of the Plaintiff; and therefore the Plaintiff need not lay a Notice. Cro. Jac. 497. Cro. Car. 132. A Thing lies in the Knowledge of the Plaintiff, there ought to be Notice given to the Defendant. March 156. Mod. 230. And when one may take Notice, and not the other; Notice is necessary. Latch 15. It has been holden, that a Defendant having undertaken to do a Thing, undertakes to do all Circumstances incident to the Doing it, and that without Notice; but if he had been ignorant of the Thing to be done, then Notice must be given. 2 Bull. 143. If one make a Lease for Years, with Covenant that if the Lessee, his Executors and Assigns, do not repair within six Months after Notice given, the Lease to be void; and the Lessee makes a Lease for Part of his Term to another, and then the House is decayed: In this Case the Notice is to be given to the first Lessee in Person, and not to the Under-Tenant. 2 Cro. 9, 10. A Notice may not be pleaded to be given to Executors, without averring the Death of the Testator. Hob. 93. In all Writs of Enquiry of Damages, as well in real as personal Actions, Notice must be given to the other Party to the Suit. March Rep. 82. Want of Notice, upon various Occasions, has been often the Cause of Arrest of Judgment in Actions, &c.

And Nuſances are Publick and Common, or Private: A Common Nuſance is defined to be an Offence againſt the Publick, either by doing a Thing which tends to the Annoying of all the King's Subjects, and is common againſt all; or by neglecting to do any Thing which the common Good requires. 2 Roll. Abr. 83. And Annoyances in Highways, as where a Gate, Hedge, &c. or Ditches are made therein; of Bridges and publick Rivers, diſorderly Alehouſes, Bawdy-Houſes, Gaming Houſes, Stages for Rope-Dancers, Mountebanks, &c. Brewing Houſes erected in Places not convenient; Cottages with Inmates; common Scolds, Eves-Droppers, &c. are generally Common Nuſances. 2 Inſt. 406. If a Man ſtops up the Light of another's Houſe; or builds ſo near to and hanging over mine, that the Rain which falleth from his Houſe falls upon mine; the Turning or diverting Water, running to a Man's Houſe, Mill, Meadow, &c. or ſtopping up a Way, leading from Houſes to Lands; Suffering the next Houſe to decay to the Damage of my Houſe; and ſetting up or making a Houſe of Office, Lime-pit, Dye-houſe, Tan-houſe or Butcher's Shop, &c. and ſiting them ſo near my Houſe, that the Smell thereof doth annoy me, or is infectious; or if they hurt my Lands or Trees, or the Corruption of the Water of Lime-pits ſpoils my Water or deſtroys Fiſh in a River, &c. Theſe are in general Private Nuſances. 3 Inſt. 231. 9 Rep. 54. 5 Rep. 101. 1 Roll. Abr. 88. 2 Roll. 140. 1 Danv. Abr. 173. For a common Nuſance, Indictment lies at the Suit of the King; and the Party ſhall be fined and imprifoned, &c. No Action lieth in this Caſe, becauſe if one Man might have an Action, all Men may have the like: And the Indictment muſt be ad Commune Nocumentum omnium Ligerum, &c. 5 Rep. 73. 1 Inſt. 56. 1 Vent. 208. But though Action may not be brought for a common Nuſance, but Indictment or Prefentment; yet where the Inhabitants of a Town had by Cuſtom a watering Place for their Cattle which was eſtopped by another, it has been held, that any Inhabitant might have an Action againſt him, otherwiſe they would be without Remedy; becauſe ſuch a Nuſance is not common to all the King's Subjects, and preſentable in the Leet, or to be redreſſed by Prefentment or Indictment in the Quarter Sessions. 5 Rep. 73. 9 Rep. 103. And if any one Perſon hath more particular Damage by a common Nuſance than another; as if by Reaſon of a Pit dug in a Highway, a Man for whoſe Life I held Lands is drowned; or my Servant falling into it receives Injury, whereby I loſe his Service, &c. for this ſpecial Damage, which is not common to other Perſons, Action lies. 5 Rep. 73. 4 Rep. 18. Cro. Car. 446. Vaugb. 341. 4 Bull. 344. For private Nuſances, Action on the Caſe lieth, or Affise of Nuſance by the Party grieved; and on Action for a private Nuſance, Judgment ſhall be given that the Nuſance ſhall be removed, and the Party injured recover Damages for the Injury ſuſtained. 1 Roll. Abr. 391. 1 Vent. 208. There is a Difference between an Affise for a Nuſance, and an Action on the Caſe; for the firſt is to abate the Nuſance, but the laſt is not to abate it, but to recover Damages: Therefore if the Nuſance be removed, the Plaintiff is intitled to his Damages which accrued before; and though 'tis laid with a Continuando for a longer Time than the Plaintiff can prove, he ſhall have Damages for what he can make Proof of before the Nuſance was removed. 2 Mod. 253. A Man may have an Action for a Nuſance, or he may abate or demolish the ſame; but if he deſtroy the Nuſance himſelf, before he bring his Action, he may not after have an Action for the Wrong, nor recover any Damages. 9 Rep. 55. F. N. B. 185. 2 Roll. Abr. 745. It is ſaid both of a common and private Nuſance, that they may be abated or removed by thoſe Perſons that are prejudiced by them; and they need not ſtay to protecutore for their Removal. 2 Lill. Abr. 244. Wood's Inſt. 443. And it has been adjudged, that every Perſon may remove a Nuſance; and that the Cutting a Gate ſet croſs an Highway is lawful. Cro. Car. 184, 185. Alſo if a Houſe be on the Highway, or a Houſe hang over the Ground of another, they may be pulled down; but no Man can juſtify the Doing more Damage than is neceſſary, or Removing the Materials. 1 Hawk 199. A Man builds a Houſe ſo near mine that it is a Nuſance; I may enter and pull it down; and a Man indicted for a Riot in ſuch a Caſe had only a ſmall Fine ſet on him. 2 Salk. 459. Where two Houſes, one whereof is a Nuſance to the other, come both into one and the ſame Hand, the Wrong is purged. See Hob. 131. If a Ship be ſunk in a Port or Haven, and it is not removed by the Owner, he may be indicted for it as a common Nuſance, becauſe it is prejudicial to the Commonwealth in hindering Navigation and Trade. 2 Lill. 244. Indictment lies for laying Logs, &c. in the Stream of a publick navigable River: It is a common Nuſance to divert Part of a publick navigable River whereby the Current of it is weakened, and made unable to carry Veſſels of the ſame Burden as it could before: And if a River be ſtopped to the Nuſance of the Country, and none appear bound by Preſcription to cleanſe it; thoſe who have the Piſcary, and the neighbouring Towns that have a common Paſſage and Easement therein, may be compelled to do the ſame. 1 Hawk. P. C. 198, 199, 200. It is a common Nuſance indictable, to divide a Houſe in a Town for poor People to inhabit in, by Reaſon whereof it will be more dangerous in the Time of Sickneſs and Infection of the Plague. 2 Roll. Abr. 139. A common Play houſe, if it draws together ſuch Numbers of Coaches and People as incommode and diſturb the Neighbourhood, may be a Nuſance; but theſe Places are not naturally Nuſances, but become ſo by Accident. 1 Roll. Rep. 109. 1 Hawk. 191. A prohibitory Writ was iſſued out of B. R. againſt Betterton and other Actors, for erecting a New Play-houſe in Little Lincoln's Inn Fields, reciting that it was a Nuſance to the Neighbourhood; and they not obeying the Writ, an Attachment was granted againſt them: But it was objected that an Attachment could not be iſſued, and that the moſt proper Method was to proceed by Indictment, and then the Jury would conſider whether it were a Nuſance or not; and this was the better Opinion. 5 Mod. 142. 2 Nelſ. Abr. 1192. One Hall having begun to build a Booth near Charing Croſs for Rope dancing, which drew together a great many idle People, was ordered by the Lord Chief Juſtice not to proceed; he proceeded notwithstanding, affirming that he had the King's Warrant and Promiſe to bear him harmleſs; but being required to give a Recogniſance of 300 l. that he would not go on with the Building, and he reſuſing, he was committed, and a Record was made of this Nuſance, as upon the Judge's own View, and a Writ iſſued to the Sheriff of Middleſex to proſtrate it. 1 Vent. 169. 1 Mod. 96. Erecting a Dove-cote is not a common Nuſance; though Action of the Caſe will lie at the Suit of the Lord of the Manor for erecting it without his Licence. 1 Hawk. 199. It was anciently held, that if a Man erected a Dove-cote, he was puniſhable in the Leet; but it has been ſince adjudged not to be puniſhable in the Leet as a common Nuſance, but that the Lord for this particular Nuſance ſhould have an Action on the Caſe, or an Affise of Nuſance; as he may for building an Houſe to the Nuſance of his Mill. 5 Rep. 104. 3 Salk. 248. Neither the King, nor Lord of a Manor, may Licence any Man to make or commit a Nuſance.

1 Roll. Abr. 138. A Brewhouse erected in such an inconvenient Place, wherein the Business cannot be carried on without greatly incommoding the Neighbourhood, may be indicted as a common Nusance; and so in the like Case may a Glass-house, &c. 1 Harok. 199. Where there hath been an ancient Brewhouse Time out of Mind, although in Fleet-streets, &c. this is not any Nusance, because it shall be supposed to be erected when there were no Buildings near: Though if a Brewhouse should be now built in any of the High Streets of London, or trading Places, it will be a Nusance, and Action on the Case lies for whomsoever receives any Damage thereby; and accordingly in an Action brought against a Brewer in the last Case, where a Person's Goods were injured in his Shop, the Jury gave the Plaintiff for two Years Damages sixty Pounds. 2 Lill. Abr. 246. Palm. 536. A Plaintiff was possessed of an House wherein he dwelled, and the Defendant built a Brewhouse, &c. in which he burnt Coal so near the House, that by the Stink and Smoak he could not dwell there without Danger of his Health; and it was adjudged that the Action lay, though a Brewhouse is necessary, and so is burning Coal in it. Hutton 135. If a Person melt Lead so near the Close of another Person, that it injures his Grass there, and whereby Cattle are lost; notwithstanding this is a lawful Trade, and for the Benefit of the Nation, Action lies against him; for he ought to use his Trade in waste Places, so as no Damage may happen to the Proprietors of the Land next adjoining. 2 Roll. Abr. 140. Building a Smith's Forge near a Man's House, and making a Noise with Hammers, so that he could not sleep, was held a Nusance, for which Action lies; although the Smith pleaded that he and his Servants worked at seasonable Times; that he had been a Blacksmith, and used the Trade above twenty Years in that Place, and set up his Forge in an old Room, &c. For though a Smith is a necessary Trade, and so is a Limeburner, and a Hog-Merchant; yet these Trades must be used not to be injurious to the Neighbours. 1 Lutw. 69. But if a Schoolmaster keeps a School so near the Study of a Lawyer by Profession, that it is a Disturbance to him; this is not a Nusance for which Action may be brought. Wood's Inst. 538. An Innkeeper brought an Action on the Case against a Person for erecting a Tallow Furnace, and melting stinking Tallow so near his House that it annoyed his Guests, and his Family became unhealthful; and adjudged that the Action lay. Cro. Car. 367. So where a Person kept a Hogsty near a Man's Parlour, whereby he lost the Benefit of it. 2 Roll. Abr. 140. Yet 'tis said to be no Nusance to a Neighbourhood, for a Butcher, or Chandler, to set up their Trade and Houses amongst them: But it may be by such Tradesmen, laying stinking Heaps at their Doors; in other Cases the Necessity of the Thing, shall dispense with the Noisomness of it. Pasch. 5 Jac. 1. B. R. If a Man have a Spout falling down from his House, and another Person erect any Thing above it, that the Water cannot fall as it did, and is forced into the House of the Plaintiff, and rots the Timber; it is a Nusance actionable. 18 E. 3. 22. Roll. Abr. 140. And in Trespas for a Nusance, in causing stinking Water in the Defendant's Yard to run to the Walls of the Plaintiff's House, and piercing them so that it run into his Cellar, &c. Judgment was given for the Plaintiff. Hardres 60. An Action lies for hindering of the wholesome Air, and also for corrupting of the Air. 9 Rep. 58. And none shall cast any Garbage, Dung, or Filth into Ditches, Waters, or other Places, within or near any City or Town, on Pain of Punishment by the Lord Chancellor at Discretion, as a Nusance. Stat. 12 R. 2. c. 13. The Continuation of a Nusance is as it were a new Nusance: Where a Nusance is erected in the Time of the Devisor, and continued afterwards by the Devisee, it is as the new Breeding of such a Nusance. 2 Leon. 129. Cro. Car. 231. If one hath a Freehold Land adjoining to the Highway, and he incroach Part of the Way, and lay Lands to it; and then dying it comes to his Heir, if he continues it, though he do nothing else, he may be indicted for the Continuance of the Nusance. Roll. Abr. 137. A Man erects a Nusance, and then lets it; the Continuance by the Lessee has been held a Nusance, against whom the Action lies. Cr. Jac. 373. Moor 353. But it is said in another Case of this Nature, that admitting the Plaintiff might have an Assise of Nusance against the Builder, the Lessor, he cannot have an Action against his Lessee, because it would be Waste in him to pull it down; but the Plaintiff may abate the Nusance standing on his own Ground: Yet where the Thing done is a Nusance per intervalla, as a Pipe or Gutter, Action lies against the Lessee, because every fresh Running is a fresh Nusance; and if a Man have a Way over the Ground of another, and such other stops that Way, and then demises the Ground, an Action lies against the Lessee for continuing this Nusance. 1 Mod. 54. 3 Salk. 248. If a Person assigns his Lease with a Nusance, Action lies against him for continuing it, because the Lease was transferred with the original Wrong, and his Assignment confirms the Continuance; besides he hath a Rent as Consideration for the Continuance, and therefore he ought to answer the Damages occasioned by it. 2 Salk. 460. 2 Cro. 272, 555. If a Nusance is levied in an House, &c. to the Prejudice of another, and then the House is aliened; Action of the Case lies against him that levied it, and also against the Alienor for continuing it, by Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 24. If a Fair or Market be set up to the Nusance of another, the Party grieved may have his Writ or Action. F. N. B. 187. 2 Saund. 173. Lutw. 69, 91. And no special Nusance need be assigned, when a Matter appears to the Court to be a Nusance. 9 Rep. 54. A Nusance in a Church-yard, is properly of Ecclesiastical Cognisance. Carthew 152. If a Man straiten a Way only, and do not stop it up, Action of the Case lieth, not Assise of Nusance. 33 H. 6. c. 26. But for stopping such Way belonging to a Freehold Tenement, an Assise will lie; and where one may have Assise of Nusance for an Injury to his Way, there he shall not have Action of Trespas. 19 H. 6. 29. 2 Skep. Abr. 468. When a Man hath but a Term of Years in a House or Lands, and not a Freehold, he shall not have an Assise of Nusance; but Action upon the Case. New Nat. Br. 10. Writs of Nusance, called Vicintiel, are to be made at the Election of the Plaintiff determinable before the Justices of either Bench, or the Justices of Assise of the County, being in Nature of Assises, &c. 6 R. 2. c. 3. GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sberiff of S. Greeting: A. B. hath complained to us, that C. D. unjustly, &c. hath raised, and set up a Wall, or stopped a certain Way, or made a Ditch, &c. to the Nusance of his Freehold in R. And therefore we Command you, that if the said A. shall make you secure, &c. Then do you cause twelve free and lawful Men of the same Venue or Neighbourhood, to view the Wall, or Way, &c. and that Tenement, and their Names to be impanell'd; and Summon them by good Summoners, that they be before our Justices at, &c. ready to recognize, &c. and summon the said C. that he be then there to hear, &c.

O.

O, Is an Adverb of Calling; or Interjection of Sorrow: And the seven Antiphones, or alternate Hymn of seven Verses, &c. sung by the Choir in the Time of Advent was called O, from beginning with such Exclamation. In the Statutes of St. Paul's Church in London, there is one Chapter De faciendo O. Liber Statut. MS. f. 86.

Oath, (Sax. Eoth, Lat. Juramentum) Is an Affirmation or Denial of any Thing, before one or more Persons who have Authority to administer the same, for the Discovery and Advancement of Truth and Right, calling God to Witness, that the Testimony is true; therefore it is termed Sacramentum, a Holy Band or Tie: And it is called a Corporal Oath, because the Witness when he swears lays his Right-hand upon and toucheth the Holy Evangelists, or Book of the New Testament. 3 Inst. 165. There are several Sorts of Oaths in our Law, viz. Juramentum promissionis, where Oath is made either to do or not to do such a Thing. Juramentum purgationis, when a Person is charged with any Matter by Bill in Chancery, &c. Juramentum probationis, where any one is produced as a Witness, to prove or disprove a Thing: And Juramentum triationis, when any Persons are sworn to try an Issue, &c. 2 Nell. 1181. All Oaths must be lawful, allowed by the Common Law, or some Statute; if they are administered by Persons in a private Capacity, or not duly authorized, they are Coram non Judice, and void; and those administering them are guilty of a high Contempt, for doing it without Warrant of Law, and punishable by Fine and Imprisonment. 3 Inst. 165. 4 Inst. 278. 2 Roll. Abr. 257. One that was to testify on the Behalf of a Felon, or Person indicted of Treason, or other Capital Offence, upon an Indictment at the King's Suit, could not formerly be examined upon his Oath for the Prisoner against the King; though he might be examined without giving him his Oath: But by a late Statute, Witnesses on the Behalf of the Prisoner upon Indictments, are to be sworn to depose the Truth in such Manner as Witnesses for the King; and if convicted of wilful Perjury, shall suffer the Punishment inflicted for such Offences. 1 Ann. c. 9. And the Evidence for the Defendant in an Appeal, whether Capital or not, or on Indictment or Information for a Misdemeanor, was to be upon Oath before this Statute. 2 Hawk. P. C. 434. A Person that is to be a Witness in a Cause may have two Oaths given him, one to speak the Truth to such Things as the Court shall ask him concerning himself, or other Things which are not Evidence in the Cause; and the other to give Testimony in the Cause in which he is produced as a Witness: The former is called the Oath upon a Voyer dire. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. If Oath be made against Oath in a Cause, it is a Non liquet to the Court which Oath is true; and in such Case the Court will take that Oath to be true, which is to affirm a Verdict, Judgment, &c. as it tends to the expediting of Justice. 2 Lill. Abr. 247. And the Court will rather believe the Oath of the Plaintiff than the Oath of the Defendant, if there be Oath against Oath; because it is supposed that the Plaintiff hath Wrong done him, and that he is forced to fly to the Law to obtain his Right. Ibid. A voluntary Oath, by the Consent and Agreement of the Parties, is lawful as well as a compulsory Oath; and in such Case, if it is to do a Spiritual Thing, and the Party fail, he is suable in the Ecclesiastical Court, pro lesione Fidei; and if to do a Temporal Thing, and he fail therein; he may be punished in B. R. Adjudged on Assumpsit, where if the Defendant would make Oath before such a Person, the Plaintiff promised, &c. Cro. Car. 486. 3 Salk. 248. By the Common Law, Officers of Justice are bound to take an Oath for the due Execution of Justice. Trin. 22 Car. 1. B. R. Though if Promissory Oaths of Officers are broken, they are not punished as Perjuries, like unto the Breach of Affertory Oaths; but their Offences ought to be punished with a severe Fine, &c. Wood's Inst. 412. Antiently at the End of a legal Oath, was added, So help me God at his holy Dome, i. e. Judgment; and our Ancestors did believe, that a Man could not be so wicked to call God to witness any Thing which was not true; but that if any one should be perjured, he must continually expect that God would be the Revenger: And thence probably Purgations of Criminals, by their own Oaths, and for great Offences by the Oaths of others, were allowed. Malmib. lib. 2. c. 6. Leg. H. 1. c. 64.

Oaths to the Government. By Magna Charta, the Oaths of the King, the Bishops, the King's Counsellors, Sheriffs, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. were appointed, 9 H. 3. The Oaths of the Judges of both Benches; and of the Clerks in Chancery and the Curstors, were ordained by 18 Ed. 3. Ecclesiastical Persons are required to take the Oaths of Supremacy, &c. And Clergymen not taking the Oaths, on their Refusal being certified into B. R. &c. incur a Premunire. 1 Edw. cap. 1. Officers and Ecclesiastical Persons, Members of Parliament, Lawyers, &c. are to take the Oath of Allegiance, or be liable to Penalties and disabilities. 7 Jac. 1. c. 6. Persons shall take the Oaths, and receive the Sacrament, to qualify them to bear any Office of Magistracy in Corporations. 13 Car. 2. c. 1. And Officers of the Lieutenancy and Militia are required to take the Oaths by 13 Car. 2. c. 6. All Persons that bear any Office, Civil or Military, or receive any Salary, &c. from the King, are to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy; and Persons refusing are disabled, &c. 25 Car. 2. c. 2. By the 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 6. the Coronation Oath was altered and regulated; and the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy abrogated, and others appointed to be taken and enforced, on Pain of Disability, &c. by 1 W. & M. c. 8. and 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 27. All that bear Offices in the Government, Peers and Members of the House of Commons, Ecclesiastical Persons, Members of Colleges, School masters, Preachers, Serjeants at Law, Counsellors, Attornies, Solicitors, Advocates, Proctors, &c. are enjoined to take the Oaths of Allegiance, Supremacy and Abjuration; and Persons neglecting or refusing, are declared incapable to execute their Offices and Employments, disabled to sue in Law or Equity, to be Guardian, Executor, &c. or to receive any Legacy or Deed of Gift, to be in any Office, &c. and to forfeit 500*l.* This extends not to Constables, and other Parish officers, nor to Bailiffs of Manors, &c. 13 W. 3. c. 6. The Stat. 1 Ann. c. 22. obliges the receiving the Abjuration Oath, with Alterations: And by 4 Ann. c. 8. the Oath of Abjuration is settled after the Death of Queen Anne, without Issue. Also the Oath of Abjuration, with further Alterations relating to the Protestant Succession, is required to be taken by the 1 Geo. 1. c. 13. And by a late Statute, all Persons whatsoever are to take the Oaths to the Government, or register their Estates, upon Pain of Forfeiture, &c. 9 Geo. 1. c. 24. See Papists.

Persons maintaining an Oath to be unlawful, are punishable by Fine and Imprisonment, &c. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. Two Justices of Peace have Power to to tender the Oaths to suspected Persons; and if they refuse them, it is to be certified to the next Quarter-Sessions, and from thence into B. R. and the Offenders shall be adjudged Popish Recusants Convict, and forfeit Lands, Goods, &c. But it hath been held that a Person cannot be said to refuse the Oaths unless they are read or offered to be read to him. Oaths must be taken in the very Words expressed in the Acts, and cannot be qualified; yet using the Words in Conscience, instead of my Conscience, or Sea of Rome, instead of See of Rome, is not material. 1 Bull. 197.

Form of the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.

I A. B. do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be Faithful, and bear true Allegiance to his Majesty King George.

So help me God.

And I do swear, that I do from my Heart abhor, detest and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable Doctrine and Position, that Princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any Authority of the See of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their Subjects, or any other whatsoever: And I do declare, that no Foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State or Potentate, hath or ought to have any Jurisdiction, Power, Superiority, Prebeminence or Authority, Ecclesiastical or Spiritual, within this Realm.

So help me God.

Form of the Oath of Abjuration required by Law.

I A. B. do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify and declare in my Conscience, before God and the World, that our Sovereign Lord King George, is lawful and rightful King of this Realm, and all other the Dominions and Countries thereunto belonging. And I do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I do believe in my Conscience, that the Person pretended to be Prince of Wales, during the Life of the late King James 2. and since his Decease pretending to be, and taking upon himself the Stile and Title of King of England, by the Name of James 3. or of Scotland, by the Name of James 8. or the Stile and Title of King of Great Britain, hath not any Right or Title whatsoever to the Crown of this Realm, or any other the Dominions thereunto belonging. And I do Renounce, Refuse and Abjure any Allegiance or Obedience to him; and I do swear, that I will bear Faith and true Allegiance to his Majesty K. George, and him will defend to the utmost of my Power against all traitorous Conspiracies and Attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his Person, Crown or Dignity. And I will do my utmost Endeavours to disclose or make known to his Majesty and his Successors, all Treasons and Traiterous Conspiracies which I shall know to be against him or any of them. And I do faithfully promise, to the utmost of my Power to support, maintain and defend the Succession of the Crown against him the said James, and all other Persons whatsoever; which Succession by an Act entitled, An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better Securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, is and stands limited to the late Prince's Sophia, Electress and Dutchess Dowager of Hanover, and the Heirs of her Body, being Protestants. And all these Things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to the express Words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common Sense and Understanding of the said Words; without any Equivocation, mental Evasion, or secret Reservation whatsoever. And I do make this Recognition, Acknowledgment, Abjuration, Renunciation, and Promise, heartily, willingly and truly, upon the true Faith of a Christian.

So help me God.

Hen. 3. were so carefully heeded, that they were entered into the Fine Rolls under the Title of Oblata; and if not paid, esteemed a Duty, and put in Charge to the Sheriff. Philips of Parvencyance. In the Exchequer it signifies old Debts, brought as it were together from precedent Years, and put on the present Sheriff's Charge. Præ. Excheq. 78.

Oblations, (Oblationes) Are thus defined in the Canon Law: Dicuntur, quæcumque à piis fidelibusque Christianis offeruntur Deo & Ecclesiæ, sive res solidæ sive mobiles sint. Spelm. de Concil. Tom. 1. p. 393. The Word is often mentioned in our Law-Books; and formerly there were several Sorts of Oblations, viz. Oblationes Altaris, which the Priest had for saying Mass; Oblationes Defunctorum, which were given by the Last Wills and Testaments of Persons dying to the Church; Oblationes Mortuorum, or Funerales, given at Burials; Oblationes Pœnitentium, which were given by Persons penitent; and Oblationes Pentecostales, &c. The Chief or Principal Feasts for the Oblations of the Altar, were All Saints, Christmas, Candlemas and Easter, which were called Oblationes quatuor principales; and of the Customary Offerings from the Parishioners to the Parish priest, solemnly laid on the Altar, the Mass or Sacrament Offerings were usually Three-pence at Christmas, Two-pence at Easter, and a Penny at the two other principal Feasts: Under this Title of Oblations were comprehended all the accustomed Dues for Sacramentalia or Christian Offices; and also the little Sums paid for saying Masses and Prayers for the Deceased. Kennet's Gloss. Oblationes funerales were often the best Horse of the Defunct, delivered delivered at the Church-Gate or Grave to the Priest of the Parish; to which old Custom we owe the Original of Mortuaries, &c. And at the Burial of the Dead, it was usual for the surviving Friends to offer liberally at the Altar for the pious Use of the Priest, and the good Estate of the Soul deceased, being called the Soul-Seat: In North Wales this Usage still prevails, where at the Rails of the Communion Table in Churches, is a Tablet conveniently fixed, to receive the Money offered at Funerals, according to the Quality of the Deceased; which has been observed to be a providential Augmentation to some of those poor Churches. Kennet's Gloss. At first the Church had no other Revenues beside these Oblations, till in the fourth Century it was enriched with Lands and other Possessions. Blount. Oblations, &c. are in the Nature of Tithes, and may be sued for in the Ecclesiastical Courts, and it is said are included in the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. for Recovery of small Tithes under 40s. by the Determination of Justices of Peace, &c. Count. Parf. Compan. 137, 138.

Obligation, (Obligatio) Is a Bond, containing a Penalty, with a Condition annexed for Payment of Money, Performance of Covenants, or the like; and it differs from a Bill, which is generally without a Penalty or Condition, though a Bill may be Obligatory. Co. Litt. 172. And Obligations may be by Matter of Record; as Statutes and Recognizances, to which there are sometimes added Defeasances, like to the Condition of an Obligation: But when the Obligation is Simple or Single, without any Defeasance or Condition, it is most properly called so. 2 Shep. Abr. 475. Simony or Usury against the Statutes, is pleadable in Avoidance of Obligations, &c. See Bond. See also Stat. 1 R. 2. 28 H. 8. 5 Ed. 6. 13 & 31 Eliz. 16 Car. 2.

Obligor, Is the Party that enters into or makes an Obligation; and the Obligee is the Person to whom made.

Obolata terre, Is according to some Accounts, Half an Acre of Land; but others hold it to be only Half a Perch. Spelm. Gloss.

Oboventiones, (Oboventiones) Are Offerings or Tithes; and Oblations, Oboventions and Offerings are generally one and the same Thing, though Obovention has been esteemed the most comprehensive. The Profits of the Churches in London were formerly the Oblations and Oboventions; for which a Remedy is given by Law: But the Tithes and Profits arising to the London Clergy are now settled and appointed by Act of Parliament, Count. Parf. Compan. 138. Rents and Revenues of Spiritual Livings are called Oboventions. 12 Car. 2. c. 11. — Margarita Comitissa de Warwick Univerſis Sanctæ Matris Ecclesiæ filiiis, &c. Ite omnes Oboventiones tam in Decimis Majoribus & Minoribus, quam in aliis rebus de Affariis de W. & Decimam pannagii, &c. MS. penes Will. Dugdale, Mil. See Oblations.

Occasso, Is taken for a Tribute which the Lord imposed on his Vassals or Tenants; propter occasiones Bellorum vel aliarum Neceſſitatum. And Occasionare signified to be charged or loaded with Payments; or occasional Penalties. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 24.

Occationes, Derived ab occando, viz. Harrowing or Breaking Clods, are Assarts: Affarta vulgo dicuntur quæ apud Iſidorum Occationes nominantur. Lib. niger Scacc. par. 1. cap. 13. Spelm.

Occupant, (Occupans) Is he that first seizes or gets Possession of a Thing. An Island in the Sea, precious Stones on the Sea shore, and Treasure discovered in a Ground that has no particular Owner, by the Laws of Nations belong to him who finds them, and gets the first Occupation of them. Treat. Lawv. 342. Where a Man findeth a Piece of Land that no other possesses or hath Title unto, and he that so finds it doth enter upon the same; this gains a Property, and a Title by Occupancy: But this Manner of gaining Property of Lands has long since been of no Use in England; for Lands now possessed without any Title are in the Crown, and not in him that first enters. Ibid. 218. Though an Estate for another Person's Life, by our ancient Laws, may be gotten by Occupancy: As for Example; A. having Lands granted to him for the Life of B. dieth without making any Estate of it; in this Case, whosoever first enters into the Land after the Death of A. it is said getteth the Property for the Remainder of the Estate granted to A. for the Life of B. For to the Heir of A. it cannot go, not being an Estate of Inheritance, but only an Estate for another Man's Life; which is not descendible to the Heir, unless he be specially named in the Grant: And the Executors of A. cannot have it, as it is not an Estate Testamentary, that it should go to the Executors as Goods and Chattels; so that in Truth no Man can intitle himself unto those Lands: And therefore the Law preferreth him that first enters, and he is called Occupans, and shall hold the Land during the Life of B. paying the Rent, and performing the Covenants, &c. Bac. Elem. 1. And not only if Tenant per terme d'auter Vie dies, living Cestuy que Vie; but if Tenant for his own Life grant over his Estate to another, and the Grantee dies before him, there shall be an Occupant. Co. Litt. 41, 388. A Man cannot be an Occupant but of a void Possession; and it is not every Possession of a Person entring that can make an Occupancy, for it must be such as will maintain Trespass without farther Entry. Vaugh. 191, 192, Carter 65. 2 Keb. 250. There can be no Occupancy by any Person of what another hath a present Right to possess: Occupancy by Law must be of Things which have natural Existence, as of Land, &c. and not of Rents, Advowsons, Fairs, Markets, Tithes, &c. which lie in Grant, and are incorporeal Rights and Estates; and there cannot be an Occupant of a Copyhold Estate. Vaugh. 190. Mod. cap. 66. And Occupancy of Land in our Law now seldom happens; Leases and Grants being generally made to the Lessees or Grantees, and their Heirs, during the Life of Cestuy que Vie, whereby the Lands for the Remainder of the Term descend to the Heir; &c. Wood's Inst. 216. By Statute, any Estate per auter Vie shall be deviseable by Will in Writing; and if no Devise thereof be made, but the Heir become special Occupant, it shall be Assets in his Hands by Descent to pay Debts; and if there be no special Occupant, it shall go to the Executors or Administrators of the Party that had the Estate, and be Assets in their Hands. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. It hath been adjudged, that an Heir, Executor, &c. shall be charged on this Statute with Payment of Debts only, not Legacies, except devised particularly out of the Estate; and an Estate per auter Vie of an Intestate, is not distributable. Mich. 8 W. 3. B. R. 2 Salk. 464.

Occupation, (Occupatio) Signifies in our Law Use or Tenure; as we say such Land is in the Tenure or Occupation of such a Man, that is, in his Possession or Management: Also it is used for a Trade or Mystery. 12 Car. 2. c. 18. 249. And Occupationes at large are taken for Purprestures, Intrusions and Usurpations; and particularly for Usurpation upon the King, by the Stat. de Bigamis, c. 4. 2 Inst. 272.

Occupabit, Is a Writ that lies for him who is ejected out of his Freehold in Time of War; as the Writ Novel Disseisin lies for one disseised in Time of Peace. Ingham.

Ottave, The eighth Day after any Feast inclusively. See Uras.

Ovis & Btia, Was a Writ anciently called Breve de Bono & Malo, directed to the Sheriff to inquire whether a Man committed to Prison upon Suspicion of Murder, were committed on just Cause of Suspicion, cion, or only upon Malice and Ill will: And if upon the Inquisition it were found that he was Not guilty, then there issued another Writ to the Sheriff to bail him. Reg. Orig. 133. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 20. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 11. But now that Course is taken away, by the Stat. 28 Ed. 3. c. 9. S. P. C. 77. 2 Inſt. 42. 9 Rep. 506.

Deconomus, Is sometimes taken for an Advocate or Defender; as, Summus Secularium Oeconomus & Protector Ecclesiarum. Matt. Paris. Anno 1245.

Deconomicus, A Word used for the Executor of a Last Will and Testament, as the Person who had the Oeconomy or fiduciary Disposal of the Goods of the Party deceased. Hist. Dunelm. apud Wharton Angl. Sacr. par. 1. pag. 784.

Offence, (Delictum) Is an Act committed against a Law, or omitted where the Law requires it, and punishable by it. Westm. Symb. And all Offences are Capital, or not so; Capital, those for which the Offender shall lose his Life: And not Capital, where an Offender may forfeit his Lands and Goods, be fined or suffer corporal Punishment, or both; but not Loss of Life. H. P. C. 2, 126, 134. Capital Offences are comprehended under High Treason, Petit Treason, and Felony: Offences not Capital include the remaining Part of the Pleas of the Crown, and come under the Title of Misdemeanors. An Offence may be greater or less, according to the Place wherein it is done. Finch 25. But the Offence will be in equal Degree in them, who are equally tainted with it; and those that Act and Consent thereto, are alike Offenders. 5 Rep. 80. Some Offences are by the Common Law; but most of them are by Statutes.

Offerings, Are reckoned among Personal Tithes, payable by Custom to the Parson or Vicar of the Parish, either occasionally, as at Sacraments, Marriages, Christenings, Churching of Women, Burials, &c. or at constant Times, as at Easter, Christmas, &c. Count. Pars. Compan. 137. Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. Vide Oblations.

Offerings of the King. All Offerings made at the Holy Altar by the King and Queen, are distributed amongst the Poor by the Dean of the Chapel: And there are twelve Days in the Year, called Offering Days, as to these Offerings, viz. Christmas, Easter, Whitsunday, All Saints, New Year's Day, Tuesday Day, Candlemas, Annunciation, Ascension, Trinity Sunday, St. John Baptist, and Michaelmas Day: All which are high Festivals. Lex Constitution. 184. The Offering commonly made by King James 1. was a Piece of Gold, having on one Side the Portrait of the King kneeling before the Altar, with four Crowns before him, and circumscribed with this Motto, Quid retribuam Domino pro omnibus quæ tribuit mihi? And on the other Side, a Lamb lying near a Lyon, with this Inscription, Cor contritum & humiliatum non despiciet Deus. Ibid.

Offertorium, Is used for a Piece of Silk, or fine Linen, to receive and wrap up the Offerings or occasional Oblations in the Church. Statut. Eccl. S. Paul. London, MS. fol. 39.—Offertorium esse Sindonem sericeam, seu Lintheam, in quo fidelium Oblationes reponerantur.—Sometimes this Word signifies the Offerings of the Faithful; or the Place where they are made or kept: And sometimes the Singing at the Time of the Sacrament, &c.

Office, (Officium) Is a Function, by Virtue whereof a Man hath some Employment in the Affairs of another, as of the King, or any common Person. And an Officer, is he that is in Office, who is so employed. The King in a general Sense, is the Chief and Supreme Officer, for the Government of the Kingdom: And Officers under him are distinguished into Ecclesiastical, for Church Affairs; Civil, concerning Matters of Justice; and Military, belonging to the Army, &c. Also Officers are Judicial, as those who fit as Judges in the Courts at Westminster, and other Courts; or Ministerial, the greater Part whereof attend upon the others, to make ready Things for them, or execute what they have determined. 2 Skep. Abr. 497, 498. And there are Officers of Counties; of Cities and Corporate Towns; and of Hundreds, Manors, and Parishes; some whereof hold their Offices for one Year only, others during Pleasure, and some during Life. Ibid. 509. There is an Office in Fee, which a Man hath to him and his Heirs: And Offices may be granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, Years, &c. But Offices which concern the Administration of Justice, cannot be granted for Years, to go to Executors, &c. 9 Rep. 97. Every Subject is capable of an Office generally by Grant; but if an Office that concerns the Administering or Execution of Justice, &c. be granted to one who is not skilled to execute it, the Grant is void. Cro. Jac. 605. And no Man, though never so skilful, is capable of a judicial Office in Reversion; for notwithstanding a Person may be of Ability to execute the Place at the Time of the Grant of the Reversion, yet before the Office falls, he may become unable and insufficient to perform it: But ministerial Offices may be granted in Reversion, in Fee, or for Life, &c. as the Office of Marshal of England, Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Warden of the Fleet, &c. 1 Inſt. 3. 11 Rep. 4. 2 Roll. Abr. 286. Officers of the King's Courts are to be sworn to appoint such Ministers under them, for whom they will answer shall be faithful, and such as are sufficient, and attending the Performance of their respective Businesses. Stat. 2 H. 6. cap. 10. By 12 R. 2. cap. 2. it is enacted, That no Officer or Minister of the King shall be ordained or made for any Gift, Favour or Affection; nor shall any be put into Office, but such as are sufficient; a Law (said Sir Edward Coke) worthy to be writ in Letters of Gold, but more worthy to be put in Execution: For certainly Justice will never be duly administered, but when the Officers and Ministers of Justice are of such Quality, and come to their Places in such Manner as by this Law is required. Co. Litt. And by the Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 16. if any Officers touching the Administration of Justice, or concerning the King's Treasure, &c. shall bargain or sell any of the said Offices, or take any Money, Profit, Reward, &c. for the same, they shall not only forfeit their Estates therein, but every Person so buying, giving or assuring, shall be adjudged disabled to hold the same Office, and all Contracts shall be void, &c. But the two Chief Justices, or Justices of Assize, may grant Offices as before this Act. And if an Office described by the Statute has a Salary annexed to it, a Deputation thereof reserving a less Sum than the standing Salary, will not be within the Statute; so reserving a Sum out of the Fees, &c. as to making Bonds and Securities void. Mod. Caf. 235. The Statutes 14 R. 2. & 1 & 13 H. 4. ordain, that Officers of the Customs shall not have any such Office for Term of Life, only during the King's Pleasure; and they shall be resident on their Offices in their proper Persons. An Officer of the Revenue withdrawing himself from the Execution of his Office, to the Intent a Grant or Deputation might be made to another, on certain Terms. Vide Skinn. 340. Sir Robert Vernon Cofferer in the Reign of King James 1. for a certain Sum of Money, did bargain and sell his Place to Sir A. J. and agreed to surrender the same to the King, to the Intent a Grant might be made to Sir A. J. and he accordingly surrendered, and thereupon Sir A. was by the King's Appointment admitted and sworn Cofferer; and yet it was adjudged by the Lord Chancellor Egerton and other Justices, that the said Office was void; whereupon Sir A. J. was removed, and another sworn in his Place. Co. Litt. 234. Queen Elizabeth granted the Office of Exigenter of London to one, when there was no Lord Chief

Chief Justice of the Common Pleas; and it was held that the Grant was void, because the Office was incident to that of Chief Justice, &c. Dyer 257. 4 Rep. 33. Where an Affise has been brought on the King's granting an Office in the Gift of another, see Moor 844. The King may not grant an Office to the Prejudice of the Freehold of others in their Offices, which is contrary to Law, and the Judges in such a Case refused to admit an Officer, though commanded to do it by Sign Manual. 1 And. 152. A Person who was Remembrancer of the Exchequer, and held that Office by Patent for Life, was made a Baron of that Court; adjudged that the Office of Remembrancer was ipso facto void and determined, because a Man cannot be Judge and Minister in one and the same Court. Dyer 198. Several Offices were never instituted to be used by one Man: And no new Office can be erected with new Fees, or old Offices established with new Fees, without an Act of Parliament; as the Fees amount to a Taxation upon the Subject, who may not be so charged but by Parliament. 2 Inst. 533. 12 Rep. 117. Ancient Offices are to be granted in such Manner as they used to be, unless an Alteration is made by Act of Parliament. If an Officer is constituted by Statute, he hath no greater Authority than the Statute gives him; he cannot prescribe as an Officer at Common Law may. 4 Inst. 75, 146, 267. 4 Rep. 75. If a Man prescribes to an Office, and the Profits thereof, he ought to shew it to be Antiquum Officium. Cro. Jac. 605. And a Fee may belong to an ancient Office, and Debt will lie for it. Lutw. 381. If a Person usurps an Office, the Acts of the Officer are void; but if he comes in by Colour of Election, &c. his Acts shall be binding, though he is only an Officer de facto; for all ministerial and judicial Acts done by an Officer de facto are good. 1 Lutw. 508. Offices of Trust must be personally executed, except granted to be executed by Deputy; and Offices of personal Trust cannot be assigned. Vaugh. 181. There shall be no Survivorship of an Office of Trust, if it be not granted to two Officers, &c. and the Survivor. 2 Mod. 260. Where an Office of Trust is granted to two for their Lives, by the Death of one the Grant is void: But if it were Et eorum diutius viventis, the Survivor shall hold, to whom another may be added. 11 Rep. 3, 4. A Man having an Office granted him, to enjoy so long as he behaves well, Quamdiu se bene gesserit, hath an Estate in it for Life. Shov. 523, 531. 4 Mod. 167. An Estate in an Office durante beneplacito, is at the Will of the King only; and may be surrendered, forfeited, &c. 2 Salk. 465. Publick Officers by Patent, cannot be removed at Pleasure; nor may any Officer be thus removed, where he hath any other Fees and Profits belonging to his Office, besides a collateral certain Fee. But private Officers by Grant may be turned out at Pleasure; and so may an Officer for Life, &c. where he hath no other Profit but a collateral certain Fee; as a Bailiff, Receiver, Auditor, &c. yet it is said he must have his Fee. 1 Inst. 233. Litt. 378. 9 Rep. 50. 3 Cro. 59, 60. Non user of publick Offices, which concern the Commonwealth, is a Cause of Forfeiture: Though Non-user of it self, without some special Damage, is no Forfeiture of a private Office; and the same may be said of a Refusal to execute the Office upon Request. 9 Rep. 50. 1 Inst. 233. For Mis user an Office is liable to be forfeited; as if a Steward of a Court, burns the Court Rolls, takes a Bribe, &c. Wood's Inst. 204. And where a Condition in Law requires Skill and Confidence in Cases of Offices, which descend to an Infant or Feme Covert; if they do not observe it, they forfeit their Interest: But if an Infant or Feme Covert break a Condition in Law, that requires no Skill or Confidence, this is no absolute Forfeiture. 1 Inst. 233. 8 Rep. 44. Officers entrusted with a particular Administration of Justice; as Sheriffs, Coroners, Gaolers, Keepers of Houses of Correction, Constables, &c. neglecting any Part of their Duties, may be fined and imprisoned. Wood 421. All Officers Civil and Military are to take the Oaths, and receive the Sacrament, &c. upon Pain of Disability, and other Penalties. Stat. 25 Car. 2. 13 W. 3. And no such Office shall be void on the Death of the King, but shall continue six Months; unless superadded, or made void by the next Successor. 1 Ann. c. 8. Persons that have forfeited any Office to which another is preferred, shall not be restored to the same. Stat. 1 Ann. c. 2. Officers, &c. having neglected to take the Oaths, allowed further Time to do it, &c. 6 Geo. 2. c. 4. But all Persons who shall hereafter be admitted into any Office, shall take the Oaths, &c. within six Months, or be actually liable to all Penalties and Disabilities, by Stat. 9 Geo. 2. c. 26. and 16 Geo. 2. c. 30.

Offices of the Government. The Parliament in former Times had a Right in nominating, placing, and displacing of the Great Officers of the Kingdom, when they corrupted or miscounselled the King, of which many Instances may be given. Pryn.

Office found, Is where an Inquisition is made to the King's Use of any Thing by Virtue of his Office who inquireth, and it is found by the Inquisition. In this Signification it is used in the Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 20. and Staundford's Prærog. pag. 60. where to traverse an Office, is to traverse an Inquisition taken of Office: And to return an Office, is to return that which is found by Virtue of the Office. Kitch. 177. There are two Kinds of Offices issuing out of the Exchequer by Commission, viz. an Office to entitle the King, in the Thing inquired of; and an Office of Instruction. 6 Rep. 52. The Office of Intitling, doth vest the Estate and Possession of the Land, &c. in the King, who had therein before only a Right or Title; as where an Alien purchases Lands, a Person is attaint of Felony, or the like: And the other Office, is where Land is vested and settled before in the King, but the Particularity thereof doth not appear upon Record. 4 Rep. 58. Plowd. 484. And the Effect of this Office is, that the King from the Time of the Finding, shall be answered the Profits without any Entry, &c. 5 Rep. 32. 10 Rep. 115. If any Office be wrongly found; those who are grieved, may be relieved by a Traverse, or Monstrans de Drois, by Pleading or Petition: For every Office is in Nature of a Declaration, to which any Man may plead, and either deny or confess, &c. Plowd. 448. Bro. 506. Where Offices are found before the Eicheators, they must be delivered by Indenture under the Hands and Seals of the Jurors. Dyer 170. The King by the Common Law is not in Possession of Lands, forfeited for Treason, during the Life of the Offender, without an Office found: But the Lands, whereof a Person attainted of High Treason dies seized of an Estate in Fee, are actually vested in the King, without any Office; because they cannot descend, the Blood being corrupted, and the Freehold shall not be in Abeyance. 2 Hawk. P. C. 448. Vide Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 20. There may be an Office, and Scire facias, and Seizure on such Office, &c. See Inquisition.

Open Theft, (Sax. Openbeof) Is a Theft that is manifest. Leg. Hen. cap. 13.

Open-Tide, i. e. When Corn is carried out of the Common Fields. Brit.

Operarii, Were such Tenants who had some little Portions of Land by the Duty of performing many bodily Labours, and servile Works for their Lord, being no other than the Servi and Bondmen: They are mentioned in several ancient Surveys of Manors.

Operatio, One Day's Work performed by a Tenant to his Lord. Paroch. Antiq. 320.

Opposer, An Officer belonging to the Green Wax in the Exchequer. See Exchequer.

Oppression, In a private Sense, is the Trampling upon, or Bearing down one, on Pretence of Law, which is unjust: But where the Law is known and clear, though it be unequitable, the Judges must determine according to that. Vaugh. 37. In another Signification, it is said by Fortescue, that all the unjust Methods invented by Princes, to extort Money from their Subjects, are so many Fountains of Oppression, which never dry up; for succeeding Kings seldom fail to follow the Example of their Predecessors. Fortesc. Laud. Leg. Angl.

Opton, When a new Suffragan Bishop is consecrated, the Archbishop of the Province by a customary Prerogative doth claim the Collation of the first vacant Dignity or Benefice in that See, at his own Choice; which is called the Archbishop's Option. Cowel.

Ora. This was Saxon Money or Coin, valued at sixteen Pence, and sometimes according to Variation of the Standard at twenty Pence. It is a Word which often occurs in Domesday, and the Laws of King Canutus.

Orando pro Rege & Regno, An ancient Writ. Before the Reformation, while there was no standing Collect for a sitting Parliament, when the Houses of Parliament were met, they petitioned the King that he would require the Bishops and Clergy to pray for the Peace and good Government of the Realm, and for a Continuance of the good Understanding between his Majesty and the Estates of the Kingdom; and accordingly the Writ De Orando pro Rege & Regno was issued, which was common in the Time of King Edw. 3. Nichol. Engl. Hist. par. 3. p. 66.

Orcards. Persons robbing Orcards are to make such Recompence for Damage as a Justice shall award, and forfeit not exceeding 10 s. or be sent to the House of Correction, &c. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 7.

Orcel, Orcel, A Sort of Cork; or rather Stone-like Allum, which Dyers use in their Colours. Stat. 1 R. 3. cap. 8. 24 H. 8. c. 2. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. c. 2.

Orcel, or Orcel, (From the Sax. Ore, i. e. Metallum, & Delfan, effodere) Is used in old Charters or Privileges, being taken for a Liberty, whereby a Man claims the Ore found in his own Ground; and also Coal, as a Delfe of Coal is that which lies in Veins under Ground, before it is digged up.

Ordeal, (Ordealium) A Saxon Word compounded of Or, Magnum, & Dale Judicium, that is a great Judgment, was a Form of Trial, for discovering Innocence or Guilt; and was used for a Kind of Purgation, practised in ancient Times, in the Canon Law called Purgatio vulgaris, whereby the Party purged was judged expers Crimini, or Not guilty. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 9. Anciently, when an Offender being arraigned pleaded Not guilty, he might chuse whether he would put himself for Trial upon God and the Country, by twelve Men, as at this Day, or upon God only; and then it was called the Judgment of God, presuming that he would deliver the Innocent. Terms de Ley 462. 9 Rep. 32. This Trial was two Ways, one by Water, and another by Fire: The Water Ordeal was performed either in hot or cold; in cold Water the Parties suspected were adjudged Inno-

Innocent, if their Bodies were not born up by the Water contrary to the Course of Nature; in hot Water, they were to put their bare Arms or Legs into scalding Water, which if they brought out without Hurt, they were taken to be innocent of the Crime. They that were tried by the Fire Ordeal, passed bare footed and blind fold over nine hot glowing Plow-shares; or were to carry burning Irons in their Hands, usually of one Pound Weight, which was called Simple Ordeal; or of two Pounds, which was duplex; or of three Pounds Weight, which was triplex Ordalianum; and accordingly as they escaped, they were judged innocent or nocent, acquitted or condemned: This Fire Ordeal, was for Freemen, and Persons of better Condition; and the Water Ordeal for Bondmen and Rusticks. Glanv. lib. 4. c. 1. And the horrible Trial by Fire Ordeal, in the first Degree, Queen Emma, Mother of Edward the Confessor, underwent on a Suspicion of her Chastity: Also an Example of the second Kind is mentioned in our Books of a Company of Persons suspected to be Stealers of the King's Deer, in the Reign of King Will. 2. who having carried burning Irons without Injury, on its being reported to the King, he received it with a remarkable Indignation; and replied, Quid est id? Deus est justus Judex: Pereat qui deinceps hoc crediderit.

The Saxons, besides the Trial by Combat, commonly used their Fire and Water Ordeals; but this Ordalianum Law was condemned by Pope Stephen 2. and afterwards here totally abolished by Parliament, so as to be no Trials but by Jury. Rot. Pat. Anno 3 Hen. 3.

Orders, Are of several Sorts, and by divers Courts; as of the Chancery, King's Bench, &c. Orders of the Court of Chancery, either of Course or otherwise, are obtained on the Petition or Motion of one of the Parties in a Cause, or of some other interested in or affected by it; and they are sometimes made upon Hearings, and sometimes by Consent of Parties. Praet. Solic. 26. They are to be pronounced in open Court, and drawn up by the Register from his Notes; and if there be any Difficulty in adjusting the Notes, a Summons is given by the Register for the Clerk or Solicitor of the other Side to attend, whereupon they are settled, or the Court is applied to, if it cannot be otherwise done: And before the Orders are entered and passed by the Register, the other Side hath four Days allowed to object against them, for which Purpose Copies are delivered; and when they are perfected, they are to be served on the Parties, or the Clerk or Solicitor employed by them. Ibid. If an Order is of Course, the Solicitor usually draws up the Notes or Minutes, and gives them to the Register's Clerk, to draw up the Order from; and when the Order is drawn up, it is to be entred by the Entering Clerk, which must be within eight Days from the Pronouncing; and then the Register passes and signs it, after which is the Service, &c. For not obeying an Order, personally served, a Party may be committed.

Orders of the King's Bench, Are Rules made by the Court in Causes there depending; and when they are drawn up and entered by the Clerk of the Rules, they become Orders of the Court. 2 Lill. 261. This Court doth not take Notice of Orders made in Chancery, nor in any other Court, so as to be bound by them; but will proceed according to their own Rules and Orders. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. And if a Cause be put in the Paper of Causes, that it may be spoke unto in Matter of Law, by the Order of the Court; and the Attorney in the Cause doth not attend at the Day, the Cause is to be put out of the Paper, and not be put in again that Term; except very good Cause be shewn. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. 2. Lill. 261. The Court of King's Bench hath Power to quash any Orders made at the publick or private Sessions of the Peace; or by any other Commissioners, if they find good Reason for it. Ibid.

Orders of Justices of Peace. Justices of Peace that make Orders, must be said in such Orders to be Justices of the County, for residing in the County is not sufficient; but they need not be of the Division: It must also appear that one of the Justices was of the Quorum. 2 Salk. 474. 480. An Order signed separately by two Justices of Peace, not being present together at the doing of it, was ruled naught upon the Statute 14 Car. 2. c. 12. See 1 Ld. Raym. 55. Also where 'tis said, that two Justices doin Order instead of do, the singular Number for the plural, it has been adjudged ill. 2 Raym. 1198. And if the Name of the County be not in the Body of Orders, but only in the Margin, they will be quashed: Though some Orders of Removal with the Name of the County in the Margin, have been held good. Mich. 11 Geo. 1. Mod. Ca. in L. and E. 310. The Sessions of the Peace, during all their Sessions, may alter or revoke their Orders, and make a new Order to vacate the former, though it be drawn up; as Judgments in B. R. may be altered during the same Term, the Sessions as well as the Term being in Law accounted as one Day. Ibid. 606. And the Quarter-Sessions is not bound to set forth the Reason of their Orders and Judgments, no more than other Courts. 2 Salk. 607. Justices of Peace at the Quarter-Sessions may rectify Defects of Form in Orders, &c. upon Appeals, and then shall determine the Matters according to the Merits of the Case; and no Orders shall be removed into B. R. without entering into Recognizance of 50 l. to prosecute with Effect, &c. otherwise the Justices to confirm their Order, by Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 19. See Poor.

Ordinance, (Ordinatio) Is a Law, Decree, or Statute, variously used. Litt. Dist.

Ordinance of the Forest, (Ordinatio Forestæ) Is a Statute made touching Matters and Causes of the Forest, Anno 34 Ed. 1.

Ordinance of Parliament, Is said to be the same with Act of Parliament; for in the Parliament Rolls, Acts of Parliament are often called Ordinances, and Ordinances Acts: But originally there seems to be this Difference between them; that an Ordinance was but a temporary Act, by Way of Prohibition, which the Commons might alter or amend at their Pleasure; and an Act of Parliament is a perpetual Law not to be altered but by King, Lords and Commons. Rot. Parl. 37 Ed. 3. Pryn's Animadver. on 4 Inst. 13. And Sir Edward Coke says, that an Ordinance of Parliament is to be distinguished from an Act; in as much as the later can be only made by the King and the three Estates, whereas the former is by one or two of them. Co. Litt.

Ordinary, (Ordinarius) Is a Civil Law Term for any Judge that hath Authority to take Cognizance of Causes in his own Right, and not by Deputation; but by the Common Law, it is taken for him that hath ordinary or exempt and immediate Jurisdiction in Causes Ecclesiastical. Co. Litt. 344. Stat. Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 19. This Name is applied to a Bishop who hath original Jurisdiction; and an Archbishop is the Ordinary of the whole Province, to visit and receive Appeals from inferior Jurisdictions, &c. 2 Inst. 398. 9 Rep. 41. Wood's Inst. 25. The Word Ordinary is also used for every Commissary or Official of the Bishop, or other Judge Ecclesiastical, Ecclesiastical, having judicial Power: An Archdeacon is an Ordinary; and Ordinaries may grant Administration of Intestates Estates, &c. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. 9 Rep. 36. But the Bishop of the Diocese, is the true and only Ordinary to certify Excommunications, Lawfulness of Marriage, and such Ecclesiastical and Spiritual Acts to the Judges of the Common Law; for he is the Person whom the Court is to write to in such Things. 2 Shep. Abr. 472. For the Ordinary's Power, it is declared by many Statutes; as relating to visiting Hospitals, by 2 H. 5. c. 1. The Certifying of Bastardy, &c. 9 H. 6. c. 11. Concerning Questions of Tithes, that shall come in Debate before him. 27 H. 8. c. 20. Allowance of Schoolmasters, &c. 23 Eliz. c. 1. 1 Jac. 1. c. 4. And their Authority in general is restored, by 13 Car. 2. c. 12. The Ordinary's Power and Interest in a Church, is of admitting, instituting and inducting Parsons; of seeing and taking Care that it be provided with a Pastor, by the Patron who has the Right of presenting; or in his Default, to bestow the Church on some proper Person to serve the Cure, &c. 1 Roll. Rep. 453. Before Presentation to a Church, the Ordinary may sequester the Profits; and during the Vacation, 'tis said he may make a Lease. 1 Keb. 370. When the Ordinaries or their Ministers have committed Extortion or Oppression, they may be indicted, putting the Things in certain, and in what Manner, &c. 25 Ed. 3. c. 9. Formerly Clerks accused of Crimes were delivered to the Ordinary, and the Bodies of such Clerks kept in the Ordinary's Prison until they had been tried before him by a Jury of twelve Clerks; and if condemned, they were liable to no greater Punishment than Degradation, Loss of Goods, and the Profits of their Lands; unless they had been guilty of Apostacy, &c. This was when they had the Privilege of being tried only by Ecclesiastical Judges; which was so far indulged them; that after they had been once delivered to the Ordinary, they could not be remanded to any Temporal Court, until the Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 4. 2 Hawk P. C. 361.

Ordinary of Retowgate, Is one who is Attendant in ordinary upon the condemned Malefactors in that Prison to prepare them for Death; and he records the Behaviour of such Persons.

Ordinatione contra Serbientes, A Writ that lieth against a Servant, for leaving his Maker contrary to the Statute. Reg. Orig. 189.

Ordination of Clergy. No Man is capable of taking any Parsonage, Vicarage, Benefice, or other Ecclesiastical Promotion, or Dignity whatsoever, but must be ordained a Priest, to qualify him for the same. A Clerk is to be twenty-three Years old, and have Deacon's Orders, before he can be admitted into any Share of the Ministry: And a Priest must be twenty-four Years of Age, before he shall be admitted into Orders to preach, or to administer the Sacraments; but the Archbishop may dispense with one to be made Deacon at what Age he pleases, though he cannot with one that is to be made a Priest. 13 Eliz. Deacons and Priests are to be ordained only upon the four Sundays immediately following the Ember Weeks, except upon urgent Occasions; and it is to be done in the Cathedral or Parish-Church where the Bishop resides, in Time of Divine Service, and in the Presence of the Archdeacon, Dean, and two Prebendaries, or of four other grave Divines. And no Bishop shall admit any Person into Orders, without a Title, or Assurance of being provided for; and before any are admitted, the Bishop shall examine them in the Presence of the Ministers, that assist him at the Imposition of Hands; on Pain, if he admits any not qualified, &c. of being suspended by the Archbishop from making either Deacons or Priests for two Years. Can. 31,

34. If any Impediment or Crime be objected against one that is to be made either Priest or Deacon, at the Time that he is to be ordained, the Bishop is bound to surcease from ordaining him, until he shall be found clear of that Impediment or Crime; and it is generally held, that whatever are good Causes of Deprivation, are also sufficient Causes to deny Admission to Orders; as Incontinency, Drunkenness, Illiterature, Perjury, Forgery, Simony, Heresy, Outlawry, Bastardy, &c. 2 Inst. 631. 5 Rep. A Person to be ordained Priest, must bring a Testimonial of four Persons, known to the Bishop of his Life and Doctrine; and be able to give an Account of his Faith in Latin: And a Deacon is not to be made a Priest, unless he produce to the Bishop such a Testimonial of his Life, &c. and that he hath been found faithful and diligent in executing the Office of a Deacon. A Bishop shall not make any one a Deacon and Minister, both together upon one Day; for there must be some Time of Trial of the Behaviour of a Deacon in his Office, before he is admitted to the Order of Priesthood, which Time is generally the Space of a Year, or it may be a shorter Time on reasonable Cause allowed by the Bishop: And Priests and Deacons are not only to subscribe the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, but take the Oath of the King's Supremacy, &c. as directed and altered by Stat. 1 W. & M. A Priest by his Ordination receives Authority to preach the Word, and administer the Holy Sacraments, &c. (but he may not preach without Licence from the Bishop, Archbishop, or one of the Universities): And Ordination of a Priest is thus performed: After Veni Creator is sung, and some Prayers are read, the Bishop, with the Divines present, laying their Hands severally on the Priest's Head, the Bishop pronounces the Words following.

Form of the Ordination of a Priest.

Recieve the Holy Ghost for the Office and Work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed to Thee by the Imposition of our Hands; whose Sins Thou dost forgive, are forgiven, and whose Sins Thou dost retain, are retained; and be thou a faithful Dispenser of the Word of God, and of his holy Sacraments, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. — Then the Bishop delivers a Bible to him with these Words, viz. Take Thou Authority to preach the Word of God, and to minister the Sacraments in the Congregation, where thou shalt be lawfully appointed.

The Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 6. punishes corrupt Ordination of Priests, &c. If any Persons shall take any Reward, or other Profit, to make and ordain a Minister, or to licence him to Preach, they shall forfeit 40 l. and the Party so ordained, &c. 10 l. by this Statute.

Ordines Majores & Minores. The Holy Orders of Priest, Deacon, and Subdeacon, any of which were anciently a Qualification for Admission to an Ecclesiastical Benefice, were called Ordines Majores; and the inferior Orders of Reader, Chantor, Psalmist, &c. termed Ordines Minores; for which the Persons so ordained, had their Prima Tonsura, different from the Tonsura Clericalis.

Ordinum fugitivi, Signified those of the Religious who deserted their Houses, and throwing off the Habits, renounced their particular Order, in Contempt of their Oath and other Obligations. Paroch. Antiq. 388.

Ordo, Is taken for that Rule which the Monks were obliged to observe. In Eadmer. vita S. Anselmi, cap. 37.

Ordo,

Ordo Sacerdotum, The White Friars, or Augustines; and the Cistercians also wore White.

Ordo Niger, Were the Black Friars. Sub norma Benedicti famulantes; as Ingulphus tells us, pag. 851. The Cluniacs likewise wore Black. Matt. Paris. 321, 514.

Oratio, (From the Sax. Orf, i. e. Pecus, & Gild, Solutio, vel Redditio) Signifies a Payment or Delivery of Cattle: But it seems rather a Penalty for taking away Cattle. Lambard.

Orfraies, (Aurifisum) A Sort of Cloth of Gold, fringed or embroidered, formerly made and used in England, worn by our Kings and Nobility: And the Cloths of the King's Guards were called Orfraies, because adorned with such Works of Gold. Mention is made of these Orfraies in the Records of the Tower.

Orgallous, (From the Fr. Orgueil, i. e. Pride) Haughty and High-minded. 4 Inst. 89.

Orgais, Is the greatest Sort of North Sea Fish, now called Organ Ling, which is a Corruption from Orhney; the best being taken near that Island. 31 Ed. 3. Stat. 3. cap. 2.

Orgill, (Sine Compensatione) Without Recompence; as where no Satisfaction was to be made for the Death of a Man killed, so that he was judged lawfully slain. Spelm.

Original, In the Court of King's Bench, the usual Original Writ issued in Actions, is for Action of Trespass upon the Case; and this Court doth not issue Originals in Actions of Debt, Covenant, or Account, &c. Whereas the Court of Common Pleas, proceeds by Original in all Kinds of Actions: But to arrest and sue a Party to Outlawry, it is made Use of by both Courts. And for Originals in Trespass on the Case, there is a Fine payable to the Crown, where the Damages are laid above forty Pounds in Proportion to the Damage. Practif. Solic. 254, 255. The Original is the Foundation of the Capias, and all subsequent Process; the Return whereof is generally the Jesse of the Capias: Though the Capias may be taken out before the Original, by leaving the Præcipe with the Filazer, who will make out a Capias upon it, and afterwards carry it to the Curstor to make an Original; and the Filazer when it is returned, is to file it with the Cliffus Brevium. Proceedings in Actions by Original are thus,—When the Defendant is arrested and appears, the Plaintiff's Attorney is to deliver a Copy of his Declaration to the Defendant's Attorney; and the Term he declares, after Rules given to plead, he calls upon him for his Plea, and draws his Replication, &c. He also makes up the Paper-Book, and delivers a Copy of it to the Defendant's Attorney: Then if it be an Issue, he gives Notice of Trial, signs his Venire Distr. Jur' &c. and seals the Record of Nisi prius; when he summoneth his Witnesses, prepares Breviates, and goes to Trial as in Actions by Bill: After the Trial is over, the Issue must be entered in due Time on the Filizer's Roll; and Rules given to sign Judgment, whereupon Judgment is entered, and Execution made out for the Party recovering. Pract. Solic. 256. Attornies being better skill'd in the Method by Bill, &c. Originals are seldom prosecuted in B. R. unless it be in Ejectment, &c. where there is this Advantage, that a Writ of Error upon a Judgment in Ejectment by Original cannot be brought, or at least is not returnable, but during the Sitting of the Parliament, which is of great Use for the speedy getting into Possession. Pract. Atorn. Edit. 1. pag. 130. There are new Originals to warrant Judgment; and in Cases of Outlawry, Writs of Error, &c. And if a new Original be returned any Time before Judgment is signed, it is soon enough. Ibid. 319. An Original in Case, &c. sets forth the whole Declaration of the Plaintiff; and the Writ runs thus: George the Second, K. of Great Britain, &c. To the Sheriff of S. Great- ing: If A. B. shall make you secure in prosecuting his Claim, then put C. D. of, &c. in your County to find Pledges and sufficient Sureties, that he be before our Justices at Westminster, on the Day, &c. to answer to the said A. B. in an Action; That whosoever the said C. on the Day and in the Year, &c. at the Parish, &c. aforesaid in your County, was indebted to the said A. in the Sum of, &c. for Goods, &c. to the said C. at the special Instance and Request of him C. before that Time sold and delivered, and being so indebted; he faithfully promised, &c. (as in the Declaration to the End) to the Damage of the said A. &c. And have you there the Names of the Pledges and this Writ. Witness our self at Westminster, the Day, &c. in the seventh Year of our Reign. See Writ.

Originalia, In the Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer, the Transcripts, &c. sent thither out of the Chancery are called by this Name, and distinguished from Recorda; which contain the Judgments and Pleadings in Suits tried before the Barons.

Abr.* 311. If any one without the Consent of the Court of Aldermen, marries such an Orphan under the Age of twenty one Years, though out of the City, they may fine and imprison him, until paid. 1 Lev. 32. 1 Ventr. 178. Executors and Administrators of Freemen dying, are to exhibit true Inventories of their Estates before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen in the Court of Orphans, and must give Security to the Chamberlain of London and his Successors by Recognizance for the Orphan's Part; which if they refuse to do, they may be committed to Prison until they obey. Wgod's Inst. 522. If any Orphan, who by the Custom of London is under the Government of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, sue in the Spiritual Court for any Legacy, &c. a Prohibition shall be granted; because the Lord Mayor and Aldermen only have Jurisdiction of them. 5 Rep. 73. But an Orphan may waive the Benefit of suing in the Court of Orphans, and file a Bill in Equity against any one for Discovery of the Personal Estate, &c. The Lord Mayor and Commonalty of London being answerable for the Orphans Money paid into the Chamber of the City, and by some Accidents become indebted to the Orphans and their Creditors, in a greater Sum than they could pay; by Stat. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 10. it is enacted, that the Lands, Markets, Fairs, &c. belonging to the City of London, shall be chargeable for raising Eight thousand Pounds per Ann. to be appropriated for a perpetual Fund for Orphans; and towards raising such a Fund, the Mayor and Commonalty may assess Two thousand Pounds yearly upon the Personal Estates of Inhabitants of the City, and levy the same by Distress, &c. Also a Duty is granted of four Shillings per Tun on Wines imported, and on Coals; and every Apprentice shall pay 2s. 6d. when he is bound; and 5s. when he is admitted a Freeman; for raising of the said Fund: The Fund is to be applied for Payment of the Debts due to Orphans, by Interest after the Rate of 4l. per Cent. &c. And no Person shall be compelled by Virtue of any Custom of the City, to pay into the Chamber of London any Sum of Money or personal Estate belonging to an Orphan of any any Freeman for the Future. 5 & 6 W. & M. By the Stat. 21 Geo. 2. c. 29. the Duty of 6d. per Chaldron on Coals, given by the Stat. 5 & 6 W. & M. towards the Orphan Debt, is continued for thirty-five Years.

Churchwardens by this Statute are called Overseers of the Poor, and they join with the Overseers in making a Poors Rate, &c. But the Churchwardens having distinct Business of their own, usually leave the Care of the Poor to the Overseers only; though anciently they were the sole Overseers of the Poor. Dalt. ch. 27. Wood's Inst. 93. See Poor.

Overt, (Fr.) Is used for open; Overture, an Opening, also a Proposal. Law Fr. Dist.

Overt-Act, (Apertum factum) An open Act which by Law must be manifestly proved. 3 Inst. 12. Some Overt Act is to be alledged in every Indictment for High Treason: Such as for Treason in compassing the Death of the King, the providing Arms to effect it, &c. 3 Inst. 6, 12. H. P. C. 11. And no Evidence shall be admitted of any Overt-act, that is not expressly laid in the Indictment, by Stat. 7 W. 3. Vide Treason.

Overt-Word, Is an open plain Word, not to be mistaken. Stat. 1 Mar. Sess. 2. c. 3.

Overs, (Fr.) Acts, Deeds, or Works: And Overs, are Days Works. 8 Co. Rep. 131.

Ousted, (From the Fr. Ouster, to put out) As ousted of Possession, is where one is removed or put out of Possession. 3 Cro. Rep. 349.

Ouster le Main, (Amovere manum) Signifies a Livery of Land out of the King's Hands, or a Judgment given for him that sued a Monstrans de droit; and when it appeared upon the Matter, that the King had no Title to the Land he seized, Judgment was given in the Chancery that the King's Hands be moved, and thereupon an Amoveas manum was awarded to the Escheator, to restore the Land, it being as much as if the Judgment were given that the Party should have his Land again. Staundf. Prærog. cap. 24. 28 Ed. 1. cap. 19. It was also taken for the Writ granted upon a Petition for this Purpose. F. N. B. 256. And it is written Outer le Maine, in the 25 Hen. 8. cap. 22. But all Wardships, Liveries, and Ouster le mains, &c. are taken away by Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24.

Ouster le Mer, (Fr. Oultre, i. e. Ultra, & le Mer, Mare) Is a Cause of Effoin or Excuse, if a Man appear not in Court on Summons, for that he was then beyond the Seas.

Outfangthef, (From the Sax. Ut, i. e. Extra, fang, captus, & Theof, fur) Fur extra Captus, quem Dominus, quanquam in alieno fundo comprehensum, in Curiam tamen suam revocat, ibique judicat. Litt. It is a Liberty or Privilege, as used in the ancient Common Law, whereby a Lord was enabled to call any Man dwelling in his Manor, and taken for Felony in another Place out of his Fee, to Judgment in his own Court. Rastal. Stat. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 15.

Outhest, Is the same with Outborn; which is a Calling Men out to the Army, by the Sound of an Horn.

Out-houses, Are those belonging and adjoining to Dwelling-houses; and Taking away any Money, Goods, &c. from such Outhouses, in the Day-time of 5s. Value, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. Dalt. c. 99. Stat. 32 Eliz. c. 15. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. See Burglary.

Outland. The Saxon Thanes divided their hereditary Lands into Inland, such as lay nearest to their own Dwelling, and which they kept to their own Use; and Outland, which lay beyond the Demesans, and was granted out to Tenants, but merely at the Will and Pleasure of the Lord, like to Copyhold Estates. This Outland they subdivided into two Parts, whereof one Part they disposed among such as attended on their Persons, called Theodens, or lesser Thanes; and the other Part they allotted to their Husbandmen, or Churls. Spelm. de Feud. cap. 5.

Outlaw, (Sax. Utlaghe Lat. Utlagatus) One deprived of the Benefit of the Law, and out of the King's Protection. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47. If where a Person is called into the Law, after an original Writ, and three Writs of Capias, Alias and Pluries, returned by the Sheriff Non est inventus, and Proclamation made for him to appear, &c. he contemptuously refuses to appear, he is then outlawed: And in former Times no Person was outlawed but for Felony, the Punishment whereof being Death, any Man might kill an Outlaw as a Wolf; but this was prohibited by Statute, and none but the Sheriff by lawful Warrant, may put any Man outlawed for Felony to Death, on Pain to suffer the like Punishment, as if he had killed any other Person. Brañ. lib. 5. 2 Aff. pl. 3. 1 Inst. 128. A Woman cannot be an Outlaw, because Women are not sworn to the King as Men are; to be ever within the Law; therefore they are said to be waived, as not regarded but forsaken of the Law. F. N. B. 160. And an Infant under twenty one Years old, his Age to take the Oath of Allegiance, cannot be outlawed. When a Person is restored to the King's Protection, he is Inlawed again.

Outlawry, (Uilagaria) Is where a Person is outlawed, that he loses the Benefit of a Subject. Process of Outlawry lies in all Appeals, whether of Felony or Maihem, and in Indictments of Treason, or Felony; and also Indictments of Trespass Vi & Armis, Conspiracy, or Deceit; but not on any Indictment for a Crime of an inferior Nature: And it lies not in any Action on a Statute, unless it be given by such Statute, either expressly or impliedly: But by divers Statutes, Outlawry lies in many Civil Actions; as in Debt, Case, Account, Covenant, &c. and may be before Judgment had in the Suits, or after Judgment; and Outlawries are become frequent in personal Actions. Finch 346, 355. 1 Inst. 128. 2 Harok. P. C. 302, 303. As by committing Felony, by the Common Law, a Man forfeited all his Lands, Goods and Chattels; so by an Outlawry for Felony, at this Time he forfeits the same. 1 Inst. 128. Outlawry in personal Actions is by Statute only, in which Case the Goods and Chattels of the Person are only liable, as those alone were chargeable in personal Actions, and they are forfeited to the King, who shall likewise have the Pernancy of the Profits of the Chattels Real; though this seems by a Consequence only, for that the Party being extra Legem, is therefore incapable to take the Profits himself. 3 Salk. 263. Upon an Outlawry on a Judgment in Debt, &c. the Person immediately forfeits his Goods and Chattels to the King; but not the Profits of his Land or his Chattels Real, until Inquisition taken: And Alienation after an Outlawry, and before Inquisition, is a good Bar to the King, as to the Perception of the Profits. Raym. 17. Hardr. 101. 1 Salk. 395. If after Outlawry in a Personal Action, and before Seizure, the Party outlawed levy a Fine, the Cognisee shall hold against the King: But if the Seizure be before the Fine levied, it is good for the King. 1 Lev. 33. By a Feoffment made before a Seizure, upon an Outlawry, the King is ousted of the Pernancy of the Profits. Ibid. An Outlawed Person was sued in the Exchequer by Bill, to discover his real and personal Estate for the Benefit of the King; and upon a Demurrer to the Bill, because the Defendant is not bound to accuse himself, it was over-ruled, the King having a Title by the Outlawry, which is quasi a Judgment for him. Hardr. 22. And the King may dispose of the Land itself of a Person Outlawed, by the Course of the Exchequer. Raym. 17. Where two or more Persons have jointly any Goods or Chattels, and one of them is outlawed; by this all the Goods, &c. will be forfeited to the King; it may be otherwise of Lands: But the Sheriff ought not to sell the Goods of one outlawed; for he shall be restored to them again, if the Outlawry be reversed. Dyer 11. 8 Rep. 143. 2 Shrep. Abr. 187. In Ejectment, Lessee for Years was indicted, and Outlawry had against him; and it being found by Inquisition that he was possessed of his Term at the Time of the Outlawry, the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer sold the Lease for a valuable Consideration: Then the Outlawry was reversed; and Judgment given that he should be restored to all which he had lost by Reason of the Outlawry; and though the Term was lawfully sold, and the Possession in another, yet it was held that the

Lessee should have his Term again; for otherwise the Judgment upon the Reversal would be in vain, as by that he is to be restored to all which he lost, &c. which cannot be unless he have his Lease again. 1 And. 277. A Lessee was outlawed for Felony; he assigned his Term, and then the Outlawry was reversed, and the Assignee brought Trespass for the Profits taken between the Outlawry and the Assignment; and it was adjudged good, because the Outlawry being reversed, it was as if there was none, and there is no Record of it. Cro. Eliz. 270, 278. The King on Reversal of an Outlawry, may grant Restitution de Omnibus quibus nobis non est Responsum: And if there be Lands, there must be a Scire facias to the Lords mediate and immediate, to shew Cause why the Party should not have Restitution. 2 Lev. 49. 2 Salk 495. 2 Nelf Abr. 1217, 1218. A B. was a Bankrupt, and sometime afterwards being outlawed, the King made a Lease of the Profits of his Lands, and granted his Goods; afterwards a Commission of Bankruptcy was taken out against him, but it was five Years after he had committed the Act of Bankruptcy; resolved, that by the Outlawry he forfeits his Goods and Chattels, his Leases for Years, and his Trust in such Leases, and the Profits of his Freehold Lands; but that this Outlawry cannot defeat any Interest which his Creditors had acquired in the Estate, because he voluntarily suffered himself to be outlawed. 1 Salk. 108. Sid. 115. A Man was indebted to one by Judgment, and to another on Bond, and was outlawed upon the Bond, and his Lands seized; and the Question being, Whether the Judgment Creditor could extend those Lands, it was held that the Outlawry shall be preferred, except the Judgment Creditor could shew any Practice between the Obligor and Obligee. 2 Salk. 495. By Outlawry, a Man is disabled to sue; of which all Men may take Advantage by Pleading, until the Outlawry is reversed. Litt. 197. 1 Inst. 122, 128. One outlawed cannot prosecute in any Court, unless it be to reverse his Outlawry. Cro. Jac. 425. But he may make a Will, and have Executors, or an Administrator. Cro. Eliz. 575, 150. And an Executor may reverse an Outlawry of the Testator, where he was not lawfully outlawed. 1 Leon. 325. An Executor or Administrator outlawed is not disabled to sue Actions in Right of the Testator or Intestate: Also a Mayor and Commonalty may sue for, a Corporation, notwithstanding the Outlawry of the Mayor. 6 Rep. 53. On a Writ of Error to reverse an Outlawry, the Outlawry is no good Plea in Disability of the Person: But Outlawry may be pleaded in Bar to Audita Querela. Sid. 43. In Assumpsit upon a Bill of Exchange, &c. the Defendant pleaded an Outlawry in Bar; and on Demurrer to this Plea it was objected, that it ought to be pleaded in Abatement, because in this Action Damages are to be recovered, which are uncertain, and therefore not forfeitable by Outlawry: But it was adjudged, that it is pleadable in Bar, for the Debt is certain, though it is to be recovered in Damages. 3 Lev. 29. And in Indebitatus Assumpsit and Quantum meruit, for Meat, Drink, &c. Plea of Outlawry by the Defendant is good, though in this Action Damages are only recovered; and it is the Consideration which creates the Debt or Duty, notwithstanding the Recompence is to be had by Way of Damages. 2 Ventr. 282. A Defendant pleaded an Outlawry in Bar to Action of Trover, and held good, though the Plaintiff in such Action could only recover uncertain Damages; for the Action is founded on the Property of the Goods, and these being forfeited by the Outlawry, the Plea is good. 3 Leon. 205. In Action of Assault and Battery, the Plaintiff recovered in C. B. and upon Writ of Error in B. R. the Judgment was affirmed; and thereupon the Plaintiff brought a Scire facias to shew Cause Quare Executionem non haberet, to which the Defendant after an Imparance pleaded an Outlawry before the Judgment had, in Bar to the Execution; and it was ruled a good Plea; in this Case, though before the Judgment nothing is forfeited, yet a certain Sum being recovered in the Action, that is forfeited by the Outlawry had against the Plaintiff. W. Jones 238. Nelf. Abr. 1219. A Plaintiff delivered his Declaration in Trinity Term, the Defendant imparled to Michaelmas Term, and in the long Vacation the Plaintiff was outlawed; and then in Michaelmas Term the Defendant pleaded this Outlawry in Bar to the Action, but did not say, That it was after the last Continuance, for which Reason the Plaintiff demurred; but the Plea was adjudged good, since the Record of the Outlawry doth appear. 5 Mod. 11. Where an Outlawry is pleaded, it must be Sub pede Sigilli, otherwise the Plaintiff may refuse it; but if he accepts the Plea, he shall not afterwards demur for that Cause. 1 Salk. 217. And how to plead an Outlawry in the same Court, or in another; and before, or after Judgment. Lutw. 40, 110, 111. An Attorney brought an Action of Debt by Bill of Privilege, and after Judgment the Defendant was outlawed, who brought a Writ of Error to reverse it; and it was adjudged that Process of Outlawry did not lie upon such Judgment, because there was no Capias in the original Action. 1 Leon. 229. A Judgment in Debt was had against two Defendants, and a Capias ad satisfaciendum sued forth against one of them, upon which he was outlawed; and afterwards he brought a Writ of Error to reverse the Outlawry, and assigned for Error that it ought to have been awarded against both; and so it was held. Cro. Eliz. 648. Two Persons were outlawed, one of them moved, that upon filing common Bail he might have Leave to reverse the Outlawry; and adjudged that the Writ of Error to reverse it, must be brought in the Name of both the Defendants; and where one appears, the other is to be summoned and seivered, and then it may be reversed as to him who appears, but he must give Bail to appear and answer the Action. 2 Salk. 496. An Outlawry grounded upon an Indictment on the Statute against Forcible Entry, preferred against several Persons, may be reversed as to some of the Parties, and stand good as to others that are outlawed, upon the same Indictment: For the Outlawries against them are several, and not entire, and the Proceedings to the Outlawry may be good as to some of them, and as to the others may not be good. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 263. If a Party outlawed comes in gratis upon the Return of the Exigent, Alias, or Pluries, he may be admitted by Motion to reverse the Outlawry, without putting in Bail: If he comes in by Cepi Corpus, he shall not be admitted to reverse the Outlawry, without appearing in Person, as in such Case he was obliged to do at Common Law; or putting in Bail with the Sheriff for his Appearance upon the Return of the Cepi Corpus, and for doing what the Court shall order; Appearance by Attorney is an Indulgence by the Statute 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. And the Bail is to be special or common, in this as in other Cases; but Treason and Felony are excepted out of the Act. 2 Salk. 496. It is said that on Outlawry the Party ought to appear in Person, and submit himself to his Trial; and it must be ex gratia, if he is admitted to assign Errors before. 3 Salk. 263. In Case of Outlawry for Felony, the Errors to reverse it are to be certainly alledged in Writing, and be sufficient, before a Writ of Error shall be allowed. Jenk. Cent. 165. Persons outlawed for Felony cannot be bailed, being attainted in Law; they may appear in Person, and plead Error in Avoidance of the Outlawry, &c. 2 Inst. 187. H. P. C. 101, 105. Upon Outlawry in Treason or Felony, it may be reversed by Writ of Error, or Plea; and it has been observed, that few Outlawries for Treason, Felony or Trespas, are valid, because the Statutes relating to the same are not pursued, as the Statutes 1 H. 5. cap. 5. 6 H. 6. cap. 1. 8 H. 6. cap. 10. By the Statute 5 Ed. 6. c. 11. Out- lawry against one for Treason, being out of the Realm, or beyond Sea, shall be good in Law: And if the Party within one Year after the Outlawry, or Judgment thereon, shall yield himself to the Chief Justice of England, and traverse the Indictment whereupon he was outlawed, he shall be admitted to such Traverse, and being acquit shall be discharged of such Outlawry. Since this Statute, and the 26 H. 8. c. 13. In Case of Treason one is barred of his Writ of Error, if he does not come in within a Year after the Outlawry, while he was out of the Realm, or beyond Sea: And when an Outlawry of Treason or Felony is reversed, the Party must plead to the Indictment. Wood's Inst. 659. Sir Thomas Armstrong was outlawed for High Treason; and being taken in Holland, was brought into England, and he desired that he might have Leave of the Court of B. R. to reverse the Outlawry, and be tried by Virtue of the Statute of Edw. 6. alledging that it was not a Year since he was outlawed, &c. but it was denied, because he had not rendered himself according to the Statute, to have the Benefit thereof, but was apprehended and brought before the Chief Justice; wherefore a Rule was made for his Execution. 3 Mod. Rep. 47. It hath been adjudged, that if a Man commits a Murder, and, after the Exigent awarded against him, he flieth out of the Realm, and then is outlawed, he shall not reverse it for that Cause; because he fled on Purpose to avoid the Law, and therefore by his Absence he shall not have the Benefit of the Law; but if the Attorney General, &c. confess that he was beyond Sea both before and after he was outlawed, the Outlawry may be reversed. 2 Cro. 464. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1222, 1223. In a Civil Cause, if one appears before he is returned outlawed, he may superse the Exigent, &c. And where a Defendant is beyond Sea, in Prison, &c. the Award of the Exigent may be reversed. As suing to the Outlawry is practised only where a Defendant is not easy to be taken, or hath not sufficient Estate in the County to be summoned; if, where the Party is well known, is sufficient, and may be arrested, the Plaintiff outlaw him, he shall be ordered to reverse it at his own Expence. But where Motion was made upon Affidavit, that the Defendant lived publicly, and therefore to order the Plaintiff to reverse the Outlawry at his own Charge, it was not granted; because the Charge is small in C. B. to reverse an Outlawry, viz. but 16*s.* 8*d.* But in B. R. it is very chargeable. 2 Salk. 495. 2 Nelf. 1224. A Defendant was actually in Execution in the Fleet at the Suit of the Plaintiff in another Action, and yet he outlawed him; and upon Affidavit of this Matter, the Plaintiff was ordered to reverse the Outlawry at his own Charge. Ibid. When a Person would reverse an Outlawry, he must have an Attorney of Record to undertake an Appearance to a new Original; and put in special Bail, if the Debt or Damage amount to 10*l.* or above: And if it be an Outlawry after Judgment, it cannot be reversed until Satisfaction is acknowledged by the Plaintiff on Record; or the Defendant hath brought the Money into Court. If an Outlawry be reversed, the Plaintiff may declare against the Defendant for the same Cause of Action in two Terms, upon a new Original, and in another County than that where the Action was first laid. 3 Lev. 245. But if the Plaintiff proceeds not in two Terms after Notice, the Defendant shall have Costs. In the Reversing of Outlawries, Proceedings may be by Motion to inform the Court of some Fault; or by Writ of Error, &c. And an Outlawry may be reversed, where the County Court Days are mistaken in the Proclamations; if sufficient Time is not allowed between any of them; the Party is misnamed, or the Sheriff's Name omitted or mistaken; by any Error found in the Return of the Proclamation, or for Want of filing it; Want of Returns, and Mistakes in the Writs of Alias, Capias, &c. And so if the Exigent and Proclamation do not go forth to the County where the Party dwells; if there be no Warrant of Attorney filed for the Plaintiff the same Term sued forth, &c. 1 Inst. 128. 2 Inst. 670. When it is not had in a due Course of Process, the Outlawry will be erroneous; so if a Man is outlawed in a Suit, wherein Outlawry doth not lie, as in Detinue of Charters, &c. Or on an original Writ, without any Addition of Estate, Mystery, or Degree of the Party: And if the Principal Record be reversed for Error, the Outlawry grounded upon it shall be reversed also. Goff. 148. Dyer 223. An Outlawry in B. R. may be reversed there; because it is the Judgment of the Coroner, and not of the Court: But although there be a Superfedeas to the Exigent, the Outlawry cannot be reversed in this Court without a Writ of Error: In C. B. it is otherwise. Jenk. Cent. 116, 119. A Defendant is outlawed in a Civil Action in B. R. if the Proclamation therein is not filed, the Defendant may reverse the Outlawry without any Writ of Error, by pleading no Proclamation filed; and upon the Custos Brevium's attending the Court with the File of Writs, whereby it appears that the Proclamation is not filed, the Court will reverse the Outlawry; but if the Proclamation be filed, then he must bring his Writ of Error to reverse it. 2 Lill. Abr. 263. If a Husband and Wife are returned Uilagati fuerunt, as the Wife ought to be waived, this Error may be avoided by Exception, on a Motion to the Court in the same Term in which they were outlawed; but not afterwards without Writ of Error. 2 Bull. 213. If the Names of Coroners are not put to the Judgment of Outlawry; or it is not said Coronatoris Comitatus, &c. it is Error, for which the Outlawry may be reversed. 1 Roll. Rep. 266. 2 Cro. 528. 2 Roll. Rep. 82. The Court of B. R. will not reverse an Outlawry, though both Parties consent, except there be Error in the Outlawry; the King being concerned as well as the Parties. 2 Lill. 262. Judgment in Outlawry is given by the Coroners of the County; for after the Defendant is quinto exactus, and maketh Default, the Judgment is Ideo Uilagatur per Judicium Coronatorum: In London it is pronounced by the Recorder; per Judicium Recordatoris, &c. 1 Inst. 288.

To sue a Person to Outlawry, in Debt, Trespass, &c. in B. R. the two chief Terms for it are Easter and Michaelmas, and Care is to be taken not to begin in Hillary Term, for then the Defendant will not be outlawed in less than four Terms, by Reason of the Shortness of Easter Vacation; but if you commence your Suit in any other Term, the Outlawry will be finished in three Terms, the Original being returnable the first Return of the Term: And in London one may sue to the Outlawry three Times in the Year, because the Hustings, wherein Proclamation is to be made, are oftner held than the County-Court in the Country; for which Reason in suing to the Outlawry, most Actions are laid in London. In this Action first a Præcipe is to be made out, if it be for Debt, or a Pone in Case, Trespass, &c. And having carried it to the Curfitor of the County wherein the Action is laid, he makes the Original thereupon; which you are to carry to the Filazer of the County, who will make out a Capias, Alias, and Pluries, or for Dispatch you may make them out yourself; all of which must have fifteen Days between the Date and Return, and are return'd Non est Inventus of Course, and filed with the Custos Brevium. When the Capias, Alias, and Pluries are returned, the Pluries is to be carried to the Exigent of the County, who will make out your Exigent and Proclamation, which is to be sent down to the Sheriff of the County where the Defendant lives; and the Exigent being carried to the proper Sheriffs, you call for their Returns at the Time when returnable, allowing five County-Court Days between the Tasse and Return of the Exigent, if the Action be laid in the Country, and five Hustings if it be laid in Town; and when your Exigent and Proclamation are returned, the latter is to be filed with the Custos Brevium, and the Exigent with the Filazer of the County; whereupon the Filazer will make out a Capias Uilagatum into any County you desire, where the Defendant hath any Estate. Practis. Solic. 257. If Judgment be had against a Defendant, who, to evade the Law and Execution against him, lurks in several Counties, he may be sued to Outlawry after Judgment, and on issuing a Capias ad satisfaciend. for the Debt and Costs, and a Non est Inventus returned, an Exigent is made and returned by the Sheriff; upon which you may have a Capias Uilagatum into as many several Counties as you please, till the Defendant is taken; and then he cannot be discharged without making Satisfaction to the Plaintiff, a Pardon of the Outlawry, or reversing the same for Error. Ibid. 322. And where a Plaintiff recovers Damages, and he against whom the Damages are recovered, is outlawed at the King's Suit; no Pardon shall be granted, unless the Chancellor is certified that the Plaintiff is satisfied his Damages, by Stat. 5 Ed. 3. See Capias Uilagatum, and Exigent.

Oyer. This Word was anciently used for what we now call Assizes. Anno 13 Edw. 1.

Oyer of a Deed, Is where a Man brings an Action of Debt upon a Bond, or other Deed, and the Defendant appears, and prays that he may bear the Bond, &c. wherewith he is charged, which shall be allowed him. 2 Lill. Abr. 266. The Demand of Oyer is a Kind of Plea, and may be counterpleaded: Where there may be Oyer, the Party demanding it is not bound to plead without it; but the Defendant may plead without it if he will, on taking upon him to remember the Bond or Deed; though if he plead without Oyer, he cannot after waive his Plea, and demand Oyer. Mod. Ca. 28. 3 Salk. 119. In the Court of B. R. Oyer may be prayed after Imparlance; but not in C. B. 5 Rep. 74. After Imparlance, lance, Oyer cannot be demanded, because Impar lance is always to another Term: Also after a Plea in Abatement, Oyer may not be had the same Term, to plead another dilatory Plea. Mod. Ca. 27. 2 Lill. 267. To demand Oyer of an Obligation is not only to desire the Plaintiff's Attorney to read the same; but to have a Copy thereof, that the Defendant may consider what to plead to the Action. Hob. 217. And when upon Oyer of a Deed it is entered, the whole Case appears to the Court, as if the Deed were in the Plea, and the Deed is become Parcel of the Record: Though Oyer of a Deed cannot be demanded only during the Term it is produced in Court; and then it may be entered in hac verba, and there may be a Demurrer or Issue upon it, &c. 5-Rep. 76. Lutw. 1644. 3 Salk. 119. Where Oyer is prayed, it is always intended that the Deed is in Court; which it is not of another Term. Sid. 308. 3 Salk. A Defendant ought to crave Oyer of the Plaintiff's Deed, on which he hath declared; and cannot set forth another, to plead Performance thereof. Mod. Ca. 154. 2 Nels. Abr. 1225. If there is Misnomer in a Bond, &c. the Defendant is to plead the Misnomer, and that he made no such Deed, without craving Oyer; for if he doth, he admits his Name to be right. 1 Salk. 7. Executors bringing Action of Debt, the Defendant may demand Oyer of the Testament, &c.

Oyer de Record, (Audire Recordum) Is a Petition made in Court, that the Judges, for better Proof sake, will bear or look upon any Record. And it hath been adjudged, that the craving Oyer of an original Writ is not like the craving Oyer of a Deed; because the Deed is always produced by the Plaintiff, and it is the Act of the Party, wherefore he shall not be admitted to say that it is not his Deed: But the filing a Writ, and having it read on Oyer demanded, is the Act of the Court. 2 Lutw. 1641. If a Record of the same Court is pleaded in Abatement, and the Plaintiff demands Oyer of that Record, and it is not given him in convenient Time, Plaintiff may sign Judgment. Cartbew's Rep. 454, 517. See 3 Salk. 119.

Oyer and Terminer, (Fr. Ouir & Terminer, Lat. Audiendo & Terminando) Is a Commission directed to the Judges, and other Gentlemen of the County to which issued, by Virtue whereof they have Power to bear and determine Treasons, and all manner of Felonies and Trespases. Crompt. Jurisd. 121. 4 Inst. 152. 2 Inst. 419. It is the first and largest of the five Commissions by which our Judges of Affise do sit in their several Circuits: And is General, for trying all Offenders and Offences; or Special, to try only particular Persons or Offences: And in our Statutes it is often printed Oyer and Determiner. 4 Inst. 162. The usual Commission of Oyer and Terminer of Justices of Affise is general; and when any sudden Insurrection or Trespals is committed, which requires speedy Reformation, then a special Commission is immediately granted. Westm. 2. 13 E. 1. c. 29. F. N. B. 110. And this Commission was formerly issued only where some Insurrection was made, or heinous Misdemeanor was done in any Place; when the Manner and Usage was to grant a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, to hear and determine such Misbehaviours; and the Stat. 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. requireth that no Commission of Oyer and Terminer be granted, but before the Justices of one Bench or other, or the Justices itinerant, and that for horrible Trespases. New Nat. Br. 243. A Man may have a special Commission of Oyer and Terminer, to inquire of Extortions and Oppressions of Under-Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Clerks of the Market, and all other Officers, &c. upon the Complaint and Suit of any one that will sue it out: And the King may make a Writ of Association unto the Justices of Oyer and Terminer, to admit those into their Company whom he hath associated unto them; also another Writ may be sent to the Judges to proceed, although that all the Justices do not come at the Day of the Sessions; and this Writ is called the Writ of Si non omnes, &c. Ibid. 245, 247. As to these Commissions it is said, that if a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, &c. be awarded to certain Persons to inquire at such a Place, they can neither open their Commission at another, nor adjourn it thither, or give Judgment there; if they do, all their Proceedings shall be esteemed as coram no Judice: But it is held, that Justices appointed pro hac vice, may adjourn their Commission from one Day to another, though there be no Words in their Commission to such Purpose; for a general Commission authorizing Persons to do a Thing, doth implicitly allow them convenient Time for the doing it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 18. Upon the general Commission of Oyer and Terminer, there should issue a Precept to the Sheriff in the Name of the Commissioners, bearing Date fifteen Days before their Sessions, that he return twenty-four Persons for a Grand Jury ad Inquirendum, &c. on such a Day; and the Sheriff is to return his Panel annexed to the Precept: And by the Statute 5 Ed. 3. c. 11. Justices of Oyer and Terminer may issue Process of Outlawry in any County of England, against Persons indicted before them; but all their Process are regularly to be in the Names, and under the Seals of the Commissioners, viz. three of them, one being of the Quorum. 2 Hale's Hist. P. C. 26, 31. The same Justices at the same Time may execute the Commission of Oyer and Terminer, and also that of Gaol Delivery; and the same Persons being authorized by both these Commissions, may proceed by Virtue of the One in those Cases, where they have no Jurisdiction by the other, and make up their Records accordingly. Ibid. 20. But Justices of Oyer and Terminer cannot proceed but upon Indictments taken before themselves, unless they have a Commission of Gaol-Delivery likewise, or a special Commission; for the Commission of Oyer and Terminer is, Ad Inquirendum, Audiendum & Terminandum, To inquire, hear and determine. Wood's Inst. 478. And though Justices of Gaol Delivery have a more general Commission for proceeding against and trying Malefactors, than the Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer have; yet such Justices may not proceed but on Indictments found before other Justices, as Justices of Peace, &c. 2 Hawk. 24. On Indictments found before the Justices of Oyer and Terminer, they may proceed the same Day against the Parties indicted.

Form of a Commission of Oyer and Terminer.

This is a Special Commission of Oyer and Terminer granted upon urgent Occasion; and the Party suing it might thereupon take out a Writ to the Sheriff commanding him to arrest Goods wrongfully taken away, and keep them in safe Custody, till Order made concerning them by the Justices assigned to determine the Matter. Reg. Orig. 126. F. N. B. 112.

Pain Fort & Dure, (Lat. Pœna Fortis & Dura, Fr. Peine Forte & Dure) Signifies an especial Punishment inflicted by Law, on those that being arraigned of Felony, refuse to put themselves upon the ordinary Trial, but stubbornly stand mute; and it is vulgarly called Pressing to Death. Stat. Westm. 1. cap. 12. If a Criminal doth not plead directly to the Fact, or put himself on Trial by the Country, he shall be put to the Penance of Pain Fort & Dure, in Cases of Petit Treason and Felony; and forfeit his Goods; and some Criminals have undergone this Punishment, to prevent Attainder, Corruption of Blood, and Forfeiture of Lands; but upon standing mute in High Treason, the highest Offence, and in Petit Larceny, the lowest of all Felonies, the Offenders shall have the like Judgment as if they had been convicted by Confession or Verdict. 3 Inst. 217. H. P. C. 226. Kel. 27. Women standing mute in Felony are liable to Penance of Pain Fort & Dure as well as Men. 2 Inst. 177. The Judgment of Pain Fort & Dure by the Common Law, and according to the usual Practice, as recorded in our Books, is as follows, viz. That the Criminal shall be remanded to the Prison from whence he came; and put in some low dark Room, and there laid on his Back, without any Manner of Covering, except for the Privy Parts, with his Legs and Arms extended with Cords to the four Quarters of the Room, and that as many Weights shall be laid on his Body as he can bear, and more; and that he shall have no Sustainance, but of the worst Bread and Water, and shall not eat the same Day in which he drinks, nor drink the same Day he eats; and that he shall so continue till he die. S. P. C. 150. 2 Inst. 178. But anciently the Judgment was not that he should so continue 'till he were dead, but till he should answer; and he might save himself from the Penance, by putting himself on his Trial. 2 Hawk. P. C. 331. Before Judgment passes of Pain Fort and Dure, the Court orders a Taste to be given to the Criminal of the Pain to be endured, if he will not comply; and the Court will not proceed to this Judgment; before all Methods are used to persuade him to plead: This is the constant Practice of Newgate-Sessions. Kel. 27, 28. See Mute.

Pallio cooperire. It was anciently a Custom, where Children were born out of Wedlock, and their Parents afterwards intermarried, that those Children, together with the Father and Mother, stood under a Cloth extended while the Marriage was solemnizing, which was in the Nature of Adoption; and by such Custom, the Children were taken to be legitimate.——In signum Legitimationis Nati ante Matrimonium consuerunt poni sub Pallio super Parentes eorum extento in Matrimonii solemnizatione. Epist. Rob. Grothhead Episc. Lincoln.

Pallium, Is a Word often mentioned in our old Historians; and Durandus tells us, that it is a Garment made of White Wool, after the following Manner, viz. The Nuns of St. Agnus every Year, on the Feast-Day of their Saint, offer two White Lambs on their Altar of their Church, during the Time they sing Agnus Dei in a solemn Mass; which Lambs are afterwards taken by two of the Canons of the Lateran Church, and by them given to the Pope's Subdeacons, who put them to Pasture 'till Shearing-time, and then they are shorn, and the Pall is made of their Wool, mixed with other White Wool: The Pall being thus made is carried to the Lateran Church, and there placed on the High Altar by the Deacons of that Church on the Bodies of St. Peter and St. Paul; and after a usual Watching, it is carried away in the Night, and delivered to the Subdeacons, who lay it up safe. And because it was taken from the Body of St. Peter, it signifies the Plenitude of Ecclesiastical Power; and therefore it was the Prerogative of Popes, who pretend to be the immediate Successors of that Saint, to invest other Prelates with it, which at first was done no where but at Rome, but afterwards at other Places. Durandus's Rationale.

Palls, The Pontifical Vestures made of Lamb's Wool, in Breadth not exceeding three Fingers, cut round that they may cover the Shoulders; they have two Labels or Strings on each Side, before and behind, and likewise four purple Crosses on the Right and Left, fastned with Pins of Gold, whose Heads are Saphire: These Vestments the Pope gives or sends to Archbishops and Metropolitans, and upon extraordinary Occasions to other Bishops; who wear them about their Necks at the Altar, above their other Ornaments. The Pall was first given to the Bishop of Osia, by Pope Marcus the Second, Anno 336. And the Preface to an ancient Synod here in England, wherein Odo, Archbishop of Canterbury presided, begins thus:——Ego Odo humilis & extremus, divina largiente Clementia, Almi Præfulis & Pallii honore ditatus, &c. Selden's Hist. Reg. Orig. 223. And the Impanelling a Jury is the entering their Names by the Sheriff into a Panel or little Schedule of Parchment; in Panello Assise. 8 H. 6. c. 12. Panels of Juries are to be returned into Court, on Writs of Nisi Prius, &c. before Inquests can be taken upon them, by Stat. 42 Ed. 3. c. 11. And Persons indicted of High Treason shall have a Copy of the Panel of the Jurors, who are returned to try them, two Days at least before tried. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 3. Papists* are to repair to their usual Place of Residence, and not remove above five Miles, without Licence, &c. The 3 Jac. 1. cap. 5. enacts, That no Papists, or Popish Recusant convict, shall come to Court; practice the Common Law, Civil Law, Physick, &c. or bear any Publick Office or Charge, but shall be utterly disabled to exercise the same; and liable to a Penalty of 100*l.* But Offices of Inheritance may be executed by Deputies taking the Oaths, by 1 W. & M. Sess. 2. c. 14. Grants of Advowsons, or Right of Presentation to Churches, &c. by any Papists, or Person any ways in Trust for him, to be void; except made for valuable Consideration to some Protestant Purchaser, for the Benefit of a Protestant only; and Persons claiming under such Grant, shall be deemed as Trustees for a Papist, and they and their Presentees be compelled to make Discovery thereof and the Intent, as directed by 12 Ann. &c. 11 Geo. 2. Papists are to register their Estates, as by this Statute is directed, on Pain of Forfeiture; and Lands registered must be expressed in what Parishes they lie, who are the Possessors thereof, the Estate therein, and the yearly Rent, &c. Persons suing in Chancery for Forfeitures for Default of Registry, may demand all Discoveries as if Purchasers; and they may bring Ejectment on their own Demise, and give the Act and special Matter in Evidence. 1 Geo. 1. c. 55. Sales of Lands by Papists (incurring the Disabilities 11 & 12 W. 3.) to Protestant Purchasers, are confirmed notwithstanding the Disability of Persons joining in the Sale; unless before such Sales any Person who is to take Advantage of the Disability, has recovered, or entered his Claim, and given Notice, &c. No Lands shall pass from Papists, by Deed or Will, without Inrollment: And Papists are rendered incapable to purchase Lands. 3 Geo. 1. c. 18. Deeds and Wills of Papists have further Time to be Inrolled, and not avoidable for Want thereof, &c. by 6 Geo. 2. c. 5. All Persons within England, of the Age of eighteen Years, not having taken the Oaths, and who refuse to take the same, shall register their Estates as Papists; or neglecting such Registry, are to forfeit the Inheritance of their Lands, Two Thirds to the King, and the other Third to the Prosecutor. 9 Geo. 1. c. 24. But by a subsequent Act, this shall not extend to oblige any Woman to take the Oaths, or to register her Estate; nor any Person that hath only an Interest in Lands in Reversion; or to Estates under 10*l.* a Year, &c.

Œc. And only one Year's Rent and Profits of Lands is forfeited for Default of Registering by this Statute, recoverable by Actions in the Courts at Westminster, within six Months after the Offence: Persons in Prison, beyond Sea, Non Compos, &c. are to have six Months to take the Oaths and register their Estates, after the Removal of their Disabilities; and Certificates by the proper Officers, shall be allowed as Evidence of Taking the Oaths, &c. 10 Geo. 1. c. 4. By the late Statute, the reputed Owners of Estates being Papists, on conforming to the Protestant Religion, and taking the Oaths, the same to be recorded, and they and all Protestants claiming under them, shall possess the Estates freed of Disabilities incurred by such Owners, &c. And any Person's Right entitled to a Reversion, is saved if his Suit be commenced in Twelve Months after the Determination of the precedent Estate. But Persons conforming as aforesaid, and afterwards returning to the Popish Religion, shall be ever after incapable of any Benefit by the Act 11 Geo. 2. c. 17. See Oaths.

Papists taxed. Papists or reputed Papists, who refuse to take the Oaths 1 M. & M. are to pay double to the Land Tax, &c. Stat. 8 W. 3. c. 6. And a Tax of 100,000*l.* for the Year 1723. was laid on the Lands of all Papists, over and above the double Taxes, towards reimbursing the Publick the Charges occasioned by late Conspiracies; charged so much on every County, &c. and leviable by the Commissioners of the Land Tax, by Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 18.

Par, Is a Term in Exchange, where a Man to whom a Bill is payable receives of the Acceptor just so much in Value, &c. as was paid to the Drawer by the Remitter. Merch. Diſ. And in Exchange of Money, Par is defined to be a certain Number of Pieces of the Coin of one Country, containing in them an equal Quantity of Silver to that of another Number of Pieces of the Coin of some other Country; as where thirty-six Shillings of the Money of Holland, have just as much Silver as twenty Shillings English Money: And Bills of Exchange drawn from England to Holland, at the Rate of thirty-six Shillings Dutch for each Pound Sterling, is according to the Par. Lock's Confid. of Money, pag. 18.

Parage, (Paragium) Signifies Equality of Name, Blood, or Dignity; but more especially of Land, in the Partition of an Inheritance between Coheirs: Hence comes to disparage, and Disparagement. Co. Litt. 166.

Paragium, Was commonly taken for the equal Condition betwixt two Parties to be contracted in Marriage: For the old Laws of England did strictly provide, that young Heirs should be disposed in Matrimony cum Paragio, with Persons of equal Birth and Fortune, Sine Disparagatione.

Paramount, (Compounded of two French Words, Par, i. e. Per and Monter, ascendere) Signifies in our Law the highest Lord of the Fee, of Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments. F. N. B. 135. As there may be a Lord Mesne, where Lands are held of an inferior Lord, who holds them of a Superior under certain Services; so this superior Lord is Lord Paramount: And all Honours, which have Manors under them, have Lords Paramount. Also the King is Chief Lord, or Lord Paramount of all the Lands in the Kingdom. Co. Litt. 1.

Paraphernalia, or Paraphernalia, (From the Gr. Παρά, Prater, and Φίση, Dos) Are those Goods which a Wife challengeth over and above her Dower or Jointure, after her Husband's Death; as Furniture for her Chamber, wearing Apparel, and Jewels, which are not to be put into the Inventory of her Husband. 1 Cro. Rep. A Wife, after the Death of her Husband, may claim her Paraphernalia or necessary Apparel for her Body, and Cloth given her to make a Garment, &c. besides her Dower; so that the Husband cannot give them away by Will: But she shall not have excessive Apparel, beyond her Rank. Pearl Necklaces, Chains of Diamonds, Gold Watches, &c. may be included under Paraphernalia, if they were usually worn by the Wife, and were suitable to her Quality and the Fashion of the Times, and they are Assets to pay Debts and Legacies; provided the Husband does not give these away by Will. 1 Roll. Abr. 911. 3 Cro. 343. Kitch. 369. Noy's Max. 168. It was adjudg'd in the Viscountess Bindon's Case, that Paraphernalia ought to be allowed to a Widow, having Regard to her Quality and Degree; and that her Husband being a Viscount, she shall be allowed her Jewels to the Value of 500 Marks, &c. 2 Leon. 166. A Widow retain'd a Chain of Diamonds and Pearls, against the Devise of her Husband; and two Judges held, that she might detain them, because they were convenient for a Woman of her Quality; but Two other Judges were of a contrary Opinion, that Paraphernalia should be not only convenient, but necessary; otherwise the Widow shall not detain them against the express Devise of the Husband: Though it is said it was adjudg'd, that the Widow might detain necessary Apparel, and likewise Ornaments, against the Devise of her Husband; and that he cannot dispose of them by Will, though he might have sold them in his Life-time; for immediately upon his Death, the Property is vested in the Widow. Cro. Car. 347. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1225. All the Wife's wearing Apparel, more than that which is necessary and convenient, is a Chattel in the Husband; and after the Husband's Death shall go to his Executors: But what is necessary for her Condition and State, and comes under Paraphernalia, she shall have as her own Goods, and may dispose of at her Death; or take after the Death of her Husband. Bro. 9. Doſ. & Stud. 17. Though by our Law the Wife may not make a Will of and Devise them, without the Assent of the Husband whilst he lives; because the Property and Possession is in him. 2 Skep. Abr. 423. Mich. 27 Eliz.

Parastus, A Word used for a Domestick Servant. Blount.

Parabail, (Per-availle) Signifies the lowest Tenant of the Fee, or he that is immediate Tenant to one who holdeth over of another; and he is called Tenant Paravail, because 'tis presumed he hath Profit and Avail by the Land. F. N. B. 135. 2 Inst. 296.

Parcelle Terræ, A Parcel of Land, as used in some ancient Charters. — Sciatis, quod ego Stephanus W. Dedi, &c. Roberto de D. Unam Parcellam Terræ cum pertinentiâ jacen', &c. Sine dat.

Parcel-makers, Are two Officers in the Exchequer, that make the Parcels of the Escheators Accounts; wherein they charge them with every Thing they have levied for the King's Use, within the Time of their being in Office, and deliver the same to the Auditors, to make up their Accounts therewith. Practica Excheq. 99.

Parceners, (Quasi Parcellers, i. e. Rem in Parcellas dividentes) Are of two Sorts, viz. Parceners according to the Course of the Common Law; and Parceners according to Custom. Parceners by the Common Law, are where a Man or Woman seised of Lands or Tenements in Fee-simple or Fee-tail hath no Issue but Daughters, and dieth, and the Tenements descend to such Daughters, who enter into the Lands descended to them, then they are called Parceners, and are but as one Heir to their Ancestor; and they are termed Parceners, because by the Writ de Partitione faciendâ the Law will constrain them to make Partition; though they may make Partition by Consent, &c. Litt. 243. 1 Inst. 164. And if a Man seised of Lands in Fee simple, or in Tail, dieth without any Issue of his Body begotten, and the Lands descend descend to his Sisters, they are Parceners; and in the same Manner where he hath no Sisters, but the Lands descend to his Aunts, or other Females of Kin in equal Degree, they are also Parceners: But where a Person hath but one Daughter, she shall not be called Parcener, but Daughter and Heir, &c. Litt. Sect. 242. If a Man hath Issue two Daughters, and the eldest hath Issue divers Sons and divers Daughters, and the Youngest hath Issue divers Daughters; the eldest Son of the eldest Daughter shall not only inherit, but all the Daughters of the youngest shall inherit, and the eldest Son is Coparcener with the Daughters of the youngest Sister, and shall have one Moiety, viz. his Mother's Part; so that Men descending of Daughters, may be Parceners as well as Women, and shall jointly plead and be impleaded, &c. 1 Inst. 164. None are Parceners by the Common Law, but either Females, or the Heirs of Females, which come to Lands or Tenements by Descent. Litt. 254. Parceners by Custom is where a Person seised in Fee-simple, or in Fee-tail of Lands or Tenements of the Tenure called Gavelkind, within the County of Kent, &c. hath Issue, divers Sons, and dies; such Lands shall descend to all the Sons as Parceners by the Custom, who shall equally inherit and make Partition as Females do, and a Writ of Partition lies in this Case, as between Females, &c. Litt. Sect. 265. Women Parceners make but one Heir, and have but one Freehold: But between themselves they have in Judgment of Law several Freeholds, to many Purposes; for one of them may infeoff the other of her Part; and the Parcenary is not severed by the Death of any of them; but if one dies, her Part shall descend to her Issue, &c. 1 Inst. 164, 165. If one Parcener make a Feoffment in Fee of her Part, this is a Severance of the Coparcenary, and several Writs of Præcipe shall lie against the other Parceners and the Feoffee. 1 Inst. 167. Though if two Coparceners by Deed alien both their Parts to another in Fee, rendering to them Two and their Heirs a Rent out of the Land, they shall have the Rent in Course of Parcenary; because their Right in the Land out of which the Rent is reserved was in Parcenary. Ibid. 160. If there be two Parceners, and each of them taketh Husband, and have Issue, and the Wives die, the Parcenary is divided, and here is a Partition in Law. Ibid. Partition of Lands held in Tail, by the Death of one Sister without Issue is made void, and the other Sister as Heir in Tail will be intitled to the whole Land; and may have Writ of Formedon where the other Parcener hath aliened. New Nat. Br. 476. And a Writ of Nuper obiit lies for one Parcener deformed by another, &c. F. N. B. 197. If any Parceners or their Issues be disseised, they must join in an Assise against the Disseisor; so if they have Cause to bring any Action of Waste, &c. 1 Inst. 95, 198. Two Parceners are of Land, one enters and claims the Whole, and is disseised, she alone may maintain Assise; but if the Disseisin be of Rent, the other Parceners must be named, or the Writ shall abate. Jenk. Cent. 41, 42. The Possession of one Parcener, &c. of Land, without an actual Ouster, gives Possession to the other of them. Hob. 170. Dyer 128. One Parcener may justify the Detaining of the Deeds concerning the Land against another, as they belong to one as well as the other. 2 Roll. Abr. 31. Parceners are to make Partition of the Lands descended; and Estates of Coparceners at Common Law are applicable only to Inheritances: Partition may be made between Parceners of Inheritances, which are intire and dividable, as of an Advowson, Rent-charge, or such like; but it is otherwise of Inheritances which are intire and indivisible, as of a Piscary, Common without Number, or such uncertain Profits out of Lands; for in such Case the eldest Parcener shall have them, and the others have Contribution from her out of some other Inheritance, left by the Ancestors; but if there be no such Inheritance, then the Eldest shall have these uncertain Profits for one Time, and the Youngest for another Time. Dyer 153. Parceners cannot make Partition so as for one to have the Land for one Time, and another for another, &c. for each is to have her Part absolutely: But where there is an Advowson descended to them, they may present by Turns; and if there be a Common, &c. which may not be divided, one may have it for one Year, and another for another Year, &c. 1 Inst. 164. An Advowson is an intire Thing, and yet in Effect the same may be divided betwixt Parceners; for they may present by Turns: And if there be Coparceners of an Advowson appendant to a Manor, and they make Partition of the Manor, without mentioning the Advowson; the same is still appendant, and they may present by Turns. 8 Rep. 79. If two Parceners be of an Advowson, and they agree to present by Turns, this is a good Partition as to the Possession; but it is not a Severance of the Estate of Inheritance. 1 Rep. 87. And where there are Coparceners of an Advowson, the Eldest hath Privilege to present first; not in respect of her Person, but Estate: And if one Parcener hath a Rent granted to her upon a Partition made, to make her Part equal with the other, she may distrain for the Arrears of such Rent of common Right; and so shall the Grantee of the Rent, because it is not annexed to her Person only, but to her Estate. 3 Rep. 32. If there are two Parceners of a Manor, and on Partition made, each of them hath Demesnes and Services allotted; in this Case each of them is said to have a Manor. 1 Leon. 26. Davis 61. A Partition may not be of Franchises, as Goods of Felons, Waifs, Estrays, &c. which are casual. 5 Rep. 3. Partition between Parceners may be made four Ways, viz. First, when they themselves divide the Lands equally into so many Parts as there are Parceners; and each chuses one Share or Part, the Eldest first, and so the one after another, &c. Secondly, When they make Agreement to chuse certain Friends to make Division for them: Thirdly, Partition by drawing Lots, where having divided the Lands into as many Parts as there are Parceners, and written every Part in a distinct Scroll, being wrapt up, they draw each of them one out of a Hat, Basin, &c. And Fourthly, Partition by Writ De Partitione facienda, which is by Compulsion, where some agree to Partition and others do not; and when Judgment is given on a Writ of Partition, it is that the Sheriff shall go to the Lands, and by the Oaths of twelve Men make Partition between the Parties, to hold to them in Severalty, without any Mention of Preference to the eldest Sister, &c. Litt. 248. 1 Inst. 164. But if there be a Capital Messuage on the Land to be divided, the Sheriff must allot that wholly to the eldest of the Parceners. 1 Inst. 165. The Partition made and delivered by the Sheriff and Jurors, ought to be return'd into the Court under the Seal of the Sheriff, and the Seals of the twelve Jurors; for the Words of the judicial Writ of Partition which doth command the Sheriff to make Partition are, Assumptis tecum duodecim, &c. & Partitionem inde Scire facias Justiciariis, &c. sub sigillis tuo & sigillis eorum per quorum Sacramentum Partitionem illam feceris, &c. If Partition be made by Force of the King's Writ, and Judgment thereof given, it shall be binding to all Parties, because it is made by the Sheriff, by the Oath of twelve Men, by Authority of Law; and the Judgment is, that the Partition shall remain firm and stable for ever. 1 Inst. 171. In a Writ of Partition, the Judgment was, Quod Partitio fiat; and before it was executed by the Sheriff, a Writ of Error was brought; and it was adjudged that a Writ of Error doth not lie upon this first Judgment, because this is not like other Actions, where Error lies before the Habere facias Seigniam is returned, and the Judgment is final; but it is not so in this Case, as there must be another Judgment, i. e. Quod Partitio stabilis maneat, which cannot be till the Partition is made and returned by the Sheriff. Hely 36. Dyer 67. Where two Persons hold Lands pro Indiviso, and one of them would have his Part in Severalty, and the other refuseth to make Partition by Deed, there lies the Writ De Partitione facienda against him who refuseth, directed to the Sheriff; and he must be present when the Partition is made; and if it is objected before the Return of the Writ, that he was not present, it may be examined by the Court; but after the Writ is returned and filed, 'tis too late. Cro. Eliz. 9. A Writ of Partition was taken forth, and the Sheriff made Partition, but was not upon the Land; and on Motion that the Return might not be filed, but that a new Writ might be awarded, because the Sheriff was not on the Land, the Court staid the Filing, and on examining the Sheriff, ordered a new Writ. Cro. Car. 9, 10. On Writ of Partition to the Sheriff to make Partition of Lands, Part of the Lands were allotted to one, and the Jury would not assist the Sheriff to make Partition of the other Part; which appearing upon the Return of the Writ, the Court was moved for an Attachment against the Jury, and a new Writ to the Sheriff. Godb. 265. Partition was brought by Tenant in Fee of one Moiety, against Tenant for Life of the other Moiety, on the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 32. And though it has been resolved, if Partition be made between one that hath an Estate of Inheritance, and another who hath a particular Estate for Life; that the Writ ought to be fram'd upon the Statute, and to be made special, setting forth the particular Estate: Yet it was held to be good where the Writ was general. Godb. 84. 2 Lutw. 1015. A Partition may be made by Statute of any Estate of Freehold, or for Term of Years, &c. of Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments whereof the Partition is demanded; and if after Process of Pone return'd upon a Writ of Partition, and Affidavit of Notice given of the Writ to the Tenant to the Action, and a Copy left with the Tenant in Possession at least forty Days before the Return of the said Pone, &c. there be no Appearance entered in fifteen Days; the Demandant having entered his Declaration, the Court may give Judgment by Default, and award a Writ to make Partition, whereby the Demandant's Part or Purpart will be set out severally; which Writ being executed, after eight Days Notice, and return'd, and thereupon final Judgment entered, shall conclude all Persons, &c. But the Court may suspend or set aside the Judgment, if the Party concerned move the Court in a Year, and shew good Matter in Bar. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 31. And by this Statute, if the High Sheriff by Reason of Distance, &c. cannot be present at the Execution of any Judgment in Partition, then the Under-Sheriff, in the Presence of two Justices of Peace of the County, shall proceed to the Execution of the Writ, by Inquisition, and the High Sheriff is to make the Return, &c. Ibid. When the Partition is made and returned, the Persons who were Tenants of the Lands or any Part thereof, before divided, shall continue Tenants of the Lands they held, to the respective Owners, under such Conditions and Rents as before: And no Plea in Abatement shall be admitted or received in any Suit of Partition; nor shall the same be abated by the Death of any Tenant, &c. Ibid. In a Writ of Partition the Defendant pleaded, that he himself formerly brought Writ of Partition against the now Plaintiff, and had Judgment to have Partition, and this was held a good Plea; but it was a Question, whether it should be pleaded in Bar or Abatement, or by Way of Estop-

pel. Dyer 92. No Damages can be recover'd on a Writ of Partition, though the Writ and Declaration conclude ad Damnum. Hely 35. Noy 143. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1237. Where Judgment for Debt is had against one Parcener, the Lands, &c. of both may be taken in Execution, and the Moiety undivided is to be sold, and then the Vendee will be Tenant in Common with the other Coparcener: If the Sheriff seise only a Moiety and sell it, the other Parcener will have a Right to a Moiety of that Moiety. 1 Salk. 392. All Partitions ought to be according to the Quality and true Value of the Lands, and be equal in Value: But if Partition be made by Parceners of full Age, and unmarried, and Sane Memoriae, it binds them for ever, although the Value be unequal, if it be made of Lands in Fee; and if it be of Lands entailed, it shall bind the Parties themselves for their Lives, but not their Issues, unless it be equal: If it be unequal, the Issue of her, that hath the lesser Part, may after her Decease disagree, and enter and occupy in Common with the Aunt: Also if any be covert, it shall bind the Husband, but not the Wife or her Heirs; or if any be within Age, it shall not bind the Infant, but she may at her full Age disagree, &c. 1 Inst. 166, 170. 2 Lill. Abr. 283. Though if a Wife after the Coverture, or the Infant at her Age, except of the unequal Part, they are concluded for ever. 1 Inst. 170. And where there be two Coparceners, and one of them hath seven Daughters, and dieth; if the other Parcener releaseth to any one of the Daughters her whole Part, here, although she to whom the Release is made, have not an equal Part, the Release is good. Ibid. 193. It hath been adjudged, that notwithstanding a Partition is unequal, if it is by Writ, it cannot be avoided; but if it be by Deed, it may be avoided by Entry. 1 Inst. 171. If the Estate of a Parcener be in Part evicted, that shall defeat the whole Partition; Partition implying a Warranty and Condition in Law to enter upon the whole on Eviction, as in Case of Exchange of Lands. 1 Inst. 173. 1 Rep. 87. And if after Partition, one of the Parts is recovered from a Parcener by lawful Title, she shall compel the others to make a new Partition. Cro. Eliz. 902. But as to Eviction of Parceners, if one of them sell her Part, and then the Part which the other Parcener hath is evicted; in this Case she that loseth her Part, cannot enter on the Alienee, for by the Alienation the Privity is destroyed. 1 Inst. 173. Among Parceners, a Partition upon the Land may be good without Deed; but not amongst Jointenants, &c. Dyer 29, 194.

Parco factio, Is a Writ that lies against him who violently breaks a Pound and takes out Beasts from thence, which for some Trespas done, &c. were lawfully impounded. Reg. Orig. 166. And if a Person hath Authority to take Beasts out of the Pound; if he breaks the Pound, before he demands the Cattle of the Keeper thereof, and he refuseth, or interrupts him in the taking of them, &c. the Writ Parco factio lies. Dr. and Stud. 112. Damages are recoverable in this Writ; and the Party may be punished, as for a Pound Breach in the Court Leet. 1 Inst. 47. F. N. B. 100. The Word Partus was frequently used for a Pound to confine trespassing or straying Cattle; whence Imparcare to impound, Imparcatio Pounding, and Imparcamentum, Right of Pounding, &c.

Pardon, (Pardonatio, Fr. Perdonatio) Is the forgiving an Offence against the King: It is a Work of Mercy, whereby the King, either before Conviction or Attainder, or afterwards, forgiveth any Crime, Offence, Punishment, Execution, &c. And the King may extend his Mercy upon what Terms he pleases; and annex Conditions to his Pardon, on the Performance whereof the Validity of the Pardon will depend; as upon Condition of Transportation, &c. 3 Inst. 233. 1 Inst. 274. Pardons of Crimes and Transgressions against the King and the Laws, are Ex gratia Regis, or of Course; the First is that which the King, in some special Regard of the Person or other Circumstance, gives by his absolute Prerogative or Power; yet where some Things are required for its Allowance by the Common Law and by Statute; and the other is that which he granteth, as Law and Equity persuade for a light Offence, where a Person is convict of Homicide casual and excusable. S. P. C. 47. H. P. C. 38. West. Symb. par. 2. Sect. 46. And Pardons of Grace are either General, by Act of Parliament or Charter of the King; or Particular, at the Coronation or any other Time, when any Offence is committed, &c. 2 Inst. 200. 3 Inst. 233. H. P. C. 250. A general Pardon doth discharge, not only the Punishment which was to have been inflicted upon the Person that did commit the Offence pardon'd; but also the Guilt of the Offence itself: It pardons Culpa so clearly, that in the Eye of the Law the Offender is as innocent as if he never had committed the Crime. 2 Lill. Abr. 270. And the Pardon of a Treason or Felony, even after a Conviction or Attainder, so far clears the Party from the Infamy, that he may have an Action for a Scandal in calling him Traitor or Felon, after the Time of the Pardon; and he may be a good Witness notwithstanding the Attainder or Conviction, because the Pardon makes him a new Man, and gives him a new Capacity and Credit. 2 Harwk. P. C. 395. Also a Conviction of Felony, and Burning in the Hand, has in some Cases the Effect of a Pardon; for by this the Party is cleared of his Offence, and becomes a lawful Witness: But it seems to be the better Opinion, that the Pardon of a Conviction of Perjury doth not so restore the Party to his Credit, as to make him a good Witness. Ibid. A Conviction of Barrety renders a Man infamous, and incapable of being a Witness; but a general Pardon will restore him: And according to Holt, Ch. Just. the Difference between the King's Special Pardon and a General Pardon is this; wherever the Dif-

Dif-

Disability is Part of the Judgment by Act of Parliament, as in a Conviction of Perjury upon the Statute, there the King's Special Pardon cannot remove that Disability, but a General Pardon may; but where the Disability is by the Common Law, and only consequential to the Conviction, and no Part of the Judgment, in that Case the King's Pardon will take it away. 2 Salk. 513. 3 Salk. 264. The King may by Pardon restore a Person attainted of Treason or Felony, to his Lands, &c. But full Restitution of the whole Blood cannot be made by him, which must be by Parliament. The King's Pardon restores the Blood as to all Issue begotten afterwards; If a Man be attainted of Treason, &c. and the King pardons him, after which he purchases Lands and marries, and hath Issue and dies, this Issue shall inherit; for by his Pardon he is well restored, and is thereby enabled to purchase &c. Daij. 14. The Words Pardonavit, Remisit & Relaxavit, in a Charter of Pardon granted to one for Felony, doth not restore unto him what he hath forfeited to the King; there must be the Word Restituit in the Pardon, to restore him to the Goods, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 270. No Pardon by the King, without exprefs Words of Restitution, shall devest the King or a Subject of an Interest in Lands or Goods, vested in them by an Attainder or Conviction precedent; but a Pardon prior to a Conviction, will prevent any Forfeiture of Lands or Goods. 5 Rep. 10. 2 Hawk. P. C. 306. The Power of Pardoning all Offences is inseparably incident to the Crown by our Common Law: Though the King's Power of Pardoning is restrained by Statute in Cases of Murder; and where an Appeal may be brought at the Suit of the Subject, by the Laws of England a Murderer could never be pardoned. Shew. 284. 2 Inst. 316. 5 Rep. 50. In Appeals of Death, of Rape, Robbery, &c. the King cannot pardon. The King may pardon Crimes, Punishments and Forfeitures, and in Forgery, the corporal Punishment; but the Plaintiff cannot release it. 3 Inst. 171. An Offence Malum in se cannot be pardoned before committed. Fench 234. A Pardon of Murder, &c. shall not be allowed without Writ of Allowance directed to the Justices. Raym. 13. The King on granting these Pardons, speaks with or hath a Certificate from the Judges, where they think the Case deserves Mercy. Jenk. Cent. 173. In Case of Treason, a Pardon shall be admitted without Writ of Allowance; though not of Felony. Cro. Eliz. 814. And by our Statutes, no Charter of Pardon is to be granted for Murder, only where one killeth another in his own Defence, or by Misadventure. 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. Also no Pardon of the Death of a Man, or other Felony, is to be granted but where the King may do it consistent with his Coronation-Oath. 14 Ed. 3. c. 15. Pardons which have not in them the Suggestion, whereupon they are granted, and also the Suggestor's Name, &c. shall be void. 27 Ed. 3. c. 1. The Offence is to be particularly specified in Pardons; no Pardon of Treason or Felony shall pass, without Warrant of the Privy Seal; and if the Offence is found willful Murder, the Pardon shall not be allowed. 13 R. 2. c. 1. and 16 R. 2. c. 9. And Persons pardon'd of Felony, are to enter into a Recognizance with two sufficient Sureties for Good Behaviour for seven Years, &c. 5 & 6 W. & M. c. 13. A Man was indicted for Murder and Robbery, which he confessed, and produced his Pardon, which was of all Murders, Robberies, &c. Non obstante the Statute 13 R. 2. But the Court would not allow it; for after the said Statute a general Non obstante would not do, without a Recital of the Effect of the Indictment, that it may appear the King was apprised of the Fact. Sid. 366. 2 Nels. Abr. 1233. One Parsons being attainted for the Murder of Mr. Wade, pleaded the King's Pardon, which was for the Murder by exprefs Words, without any Non Obstante, that being taken away by the Statute 1 W. & M. And he produced the Writ of Allowance, certifying that he had found Sureties for the Peace, &c. On its being objected against the Allowance of the Pardon, that the Crime could not be pardoned by Law: It was held, that there was as good Reason for the King to pardon an Indictment for Murder, which is his Suit; as for the Party to discharge an Appeal for the same Crime, which is the Suit of the Subject; and that the King was by his Coronation Oath, to shew Mercy as well as to do Justice: That the Statute 2 Ed. 3. did not prohibit the Pardoning Murder, it only meant that the King should be fully informed before he pardoned any Felony; for before the Statute of Gloucester, c. 9. it was usual for Criminals of this Nature to apply to the Lord Chancellor, and by false Suggestions procure Pardons with general Words in them; and this was the Occasion of these restrictive Statutes, that Application should be made to the King in Person, to the Intent he himself might be apprised of the Matter: 'Tis true, by the Statute 13 R. 2. great Difficulties were put upon Suitors for a Pardon of Murder; they were to incur a Penalty, &c. but by the Statute 16 R. 2. this was repealed, which shews that there is a Necessity that the King should have Power to Pardon; and the Pardon was allowed. Hill. 3 W. & M. B. R. 2 Salk. 499. 4 Mod. 63. It was moved in the Court of B. R. Hill. 1 Ann. That Foxworthy, who was pardon'd for the Murder of a Person who came in Aid of a Constable to arrest him, might be charged with an Action in the Custody of the Marshal; but for that, if he could not pay the Debt or find Bail, the Pardon might be frustrated thereby, it was refused: In this Case it was agreed, That if after the Allowance of the Pardon he had broke the Peace, he might, notwithstanding his Pardon, be detained for that Offence; and be brought up again and ask'd what he had to say why Sentence should not pass; and if he pleaded the Pardon, the Attorney General would reply the Condition and Breach, &c. Farell. Rep. 153. To arrest a Felon after Pardon is not penal, if the Party arresting knew it not, because it is an Act of Justice: And the Breach of the Peace may be a Forfeiture of a Pardon of Felony, that is Conditional. Hob. 67, 82. Moor, ca. 662. The King pardons no Treasons by Implications; but by Special Words of Pardon. Hutt. 21. In Sir Walter Raleigh's Case it was adjudged, That the King's Grant of a military Command to a Person attainted of High Treason, and in his Commission called his True and Loyal Subject, and having thereby judicial Power given him over the Lives of others, did not amount to a Pardon of Treason, because every Pardon of Treason requires an exprefs Mention of it; and if the Offence had been but Felony, it could not have been pardon'd after the Attainder, without exprefs Mention made both of the Felony and the Attainder. 2 Hawk. P. C. 388. A Man commits Felony, and is attainted thereof, and abjured for the same; the King pardoneth him the Felony, without mentioning the Attainder or Abjuration, the Pardon is void. 3 Inst. 238. Pardon of all Felonies doth not extend to Piracy; for it cannot be extended beyond the Words of it: And a Pardon of all Felonies is no Bar to Execution, where a Felon is attainted; nor will a Pardon of all Attainders, or Executions, pardon the Felony. 1 Inst. 391. 3 Inst. 15, 233. 2 Hawk. 384. But a Pardon of all Misdemeanors, Trespasses and Offences, &c. will pardon any Crime which is not Capital; here the Word Offences is very extensive; And a Person convicted of a Præmunire, obtained a Pardon in these Words, Pardonus omnes & singulas Transgressiones, Offensiones, & Contemptus; and it was adjudged, that the Præmunire was pardoned. 1 Mod. 102. 2 Bulst. 299. If a General Act of Pardon be of all Felonies, Offences, Injuries, Misdemeanors, and other Things done before such Day, and a Person has a Wound given before the Day, though he dies not till after the Day mentioned in the Pardon; as the Stroke which was the Cause of his Death is pardoned, all the Effects of it are pardoned. Read on Stat. Vol. 4. pag. 327. And all Contempts being pardon'd, Amerciaments, &c. depending upon them, are of Consequence pardoned. 5 Rep. 49. A General Pardon of all Felonies, &c. except Murder, will pardon a Felo de se. 1 Lev. 8. By the Pardon of Murder, Manslaughter is pardoned. Finch 21. In some Cases, the Felony of one Man may be so far dependant upon that of another, that a Pardon of it may enure to his Benefit; as where the Principal pleaded his Pardon, and was allowed it at Common Law, before Attainder, this extended to the Accessary; and where he pleads, and is allow'd it, at this Day, before his Conviction, 'tis said the Accessary may take the Benefit of it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 387. If a Man be bound to the King, as Surety for another, for the Payment of a Fine, or other Debt due to the Crown; the Pardon of the Principal is a Discharge of the Surety. Ibid. A. bound in a Recognizance of 1000*l.* to the King, is attainted of Treason, and the King pardons him, and restores to him all his Chattels, &c. This Debt to the King remains. Dyer 124. An outlawed Person was falsly returned upon the Exigent, and afterwards the Sheriff obtained the King's Charter of Pardon of all Misprisions, Offences, &c. but yet the Judges fined him for his false Return, and upon an Attachment he was taken in Execution: He then sued a special Writ on the Pardon, in Nature of an Audita Querela, and was discharged. Jenk. Cent. 109. If an Informer begins his Suit, before the Offender obtains a Pardon, he shall have his Part, though that of the King is discharged: 'Tis otherwise if the Pardon comes before the Suit of the Informer. Ibid. 111. A Pardon may be of all Suits in the Spiritual Court pro salute Animæ, as well before as after a Suit commenced: Not where the Party hath a Property in the Thing, as for Tithes, Legacies, &c. which the King cannot pardon. 5 Rep. 51. Although the Suit in the Spiritual Court be for the King, which he may pardon; when Sentence is given in a Cause of Defamation, &c. and Costs are taxed for the Plaintiff, he hath thereby a particular Interest in them by the Sentence, which the King cannot pardon: Though if the Pardon had been before Sentence, it had discharged all. Ibid. Where a General Pardon pleaded in the Spiritual Court would not be allowed there; the Party had a Prohibition. Moor 1171. Notwithstanding the King's Pardon to a Simonist, coming into a Church contrary to the Stat. 3 Ed. 6. or to an Officer coming into his Office by corrupt Contract, contrary to 5 & 6 Ed. 6. may save such Clerk or Officer, from any criminal Prosecution thereupon; yet it shall not inable the Clerk to hold the Church, nor the Officer to retain the Office, because they are absolutely disabled by Statute. 2 Hawk. 395. But where one, who was Judge of the Prerogative Court, was sentenced for Bribery, &c. and fined and imprisoned, and another obtained his Office; he afterwards brought an Assise for the said Office, and produced the King's Pardon after Sentence, wherein all the Special Matter was recited, and all Penalties and Punishments by Reason thereof, and all Disabilities were pardoned: Adjudged, that the Pardon had taken away the Force of the Sentence, and that he might proceed in the Assise. Cro. Car. 40. A General Pardon by Parliament shall set aside a Judgment for a Crime; and relate to the first Day of the Parliament. Latch 22. 2 Nels. Abr. 1227. And a General Pardon doth pardon publick Offences, done against the Commonwealth, but not private Injuries to particular Persons: It shall be taken Beneficially for the Subject, and most strongly against the King. 5 Rep. 49. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. A General Pardon by Act of Parliament, 'tis said, ought to be taken Notice of by the Court; but if it hath Exceptions of Offences or Persons, the Court cannot take Notice of it, nor can the Party have Benefit thereof unless he pleads it, and shews that he is none of the Persons, &c. excepted. 3 Inst. 233. 1 Lev. 25. He that will take the Benefit of a general Pardon, is to plead the Statute by which it is granted, that the Court may judge whether his Offence is pardoned or not, which they cannot do if the Pardon be not pleaded, and the Party do not shew that he is comprised in the Pardon. 2 Lill. Abr. 268. Sometimes Advantage is given to the Offenders by the Act itself without pleading: And it hath been held, where a Statute Pardon contains Exceptions in the Body of the Act, he who pleads such Statute, to intitle himself to the Benefit thereof, must aver himself not to be a Person excepted; but when the Exception follows in a distinct Clause, by Way of Proviso, he needs not. 1 Vent. 134. 3 Salk. 266. A Charter of Pardon of the King under the Great Seal, cannot be allowed unless it be pleaded; and he who pleads such a Pardon, ought to produce it sub pede Sigilli: And it will be Error to allow a Man the Benefit of it, if it be not pleaded. H. P. C. 250. If there be Variance between the Record on which a Man is convicted or attainted, and his Charter of Pardon; if there be no Repugnancy that the same Person or Thing are meant in both, it may be supplied by proper Averments; as that he is the Person intended in the Indictment, and the Pardon, &c. And there are some Instances in the old Books, where upon such Variance the Court took an Enquiry of Office, whether the same Person was meant in both Records: Also if such variant Pardon be pleaded without any Averment, the Court may give a farther Day either for the Party to perfect his Plea, or to purchase a better Pardon. 2 Hawk. 398. Pardon for Treason cannot regularly be pleaded, until the Prisoner is charged with Indictment for the Offence committed. 4 Rep. 43. The Acceptance of a Pardon is an Argument of Guilt; and he that pleads it, confesseth the Fact: But a Person may wave it, if it be not a general Pardon by Parliament, which cannot be waved. 4 Inst. 235. If a Peer hath a Pardon, he must plead it before the Judges of the Court where he is indicted. Wood's Inst. 673. And if one have a Charter of Pardon of Felony, the Court will allow it upon the Prayer of the Party, and on his producing it at the Bar; for if he pray not the Allowance of it, the Court cannot tell whether he accepts of the Benefit thereof; and he is to do it upon his Knees, to express his Thankfulness for the Mercy afforded him by the Pardon. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. Gloves are due to the Judges on Allowance of a Pardon. Pult. 88.

General Acts of Pardon. In the 5th and 13th Years of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; and also 21 Jac. 1. General Pardons were granted, which were very extensive and beneficial to the Subject. By Stat. 12 Car. 2. a General Pardon was granted to Persons concerned in the Grand Rebellion against King Charles 1. except those who sat in the traitorous Assembly which proceeded against the King's Life; and the two Persons that appeared disguised on the Scaffold at the King's Murder, &c. The 25 Car. 2. c. 5. likewise granted a General Pardon. By 2 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 10. A General Pardon was granted on Account of the Revolution and Abdication of King James 2. Treasons against the King and Queen's Persons, Murders, &c. excepted; and there was an Exception of the Marquis of Powys, the Lord Bishop of Durham, the Lord Jefferies, &c. The Stat. 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 20. was made for a general and free Pardon. And by 7 Ann. c. 23. was granted the Queen's most Gracious, General and Free Pardon; Treason, Murder, &c. and Persons employed in the Service of the Pretender excepted. By the 3 Geo. 1. c. 19. a General and Free Pardon was granted of Crimes and Offences; and out of this Act were excepted Murders, Piracies, Burglaries, Rapes, &c. and all such Persons as were in the Service of the Pretender, and levied War against his Majesty in the late Rebellion; also Robert Earl of Oxford, Simon Lord Harcourt, Matthew Prior, Thomas Harley, and Arthur Moor, Esqrs. and such who were impeached by Parliament. And the 7 Geo. 1. c. 29. granted a most gracious, general and free Pardon, without the Exception of the Persons above named, so that it extended to those Gentlemen; and the late Directors of the South Sea Company for their Conduct in the Year 1720. were excepted out of this Statute. See the Stat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 20. By the Stat. 20 Geo. 2. c. 52. a General Pardon was passed, but with diverse Exceptions.

Pardons by Statute on Discovery of Accomplices in Crimes, are granted in the following Cases. For the Discovery of Highwaymen, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. 11 W. 3. for discovering Counterfeiters of the Coin, 6 & 7 W. 3. for the Discovery of Persons guilty of Burglary, &c. 5 Ann. for discovering of Offenders in forcibly hindering or wounding any Officer of the Customs in the Execution of his Office, 6 Geo. 1. and for Discovery of Smugglers of the Customs, &c. 7 Geo. 1.

Pardoners, Were Persons that carried about the Pope's Indulgences, and sold them to any that would buy them. Stat. 22 H. 8.

Parent, (Parents) A Father or Mother; but generally applied to the Father. Parents have Power over their Children by the Law of Nature, and the Divine Law; and by those Laws they must educate, maintain and defend their Children. Wood's Inst. 63. The Parent or Father hath an Interest in the Profits of the Childrens Labour while they are under Age, if they live with and are maintained by him: But the Father hath no Interest in the Estate Real or Personal of a Child, otherwise than as his Guardian. Ibid. The eldest Son is Heir to his Father's Estate; and if there are no Sons, but Daughters, the Daughters shall be Heirs, &c. And there being a reciprocal Interest in each other, Parents and Children may maintain the Suits of each other, and justify the Defence of each other's Persons. 2 Inst. 564.

Parentale, or de Parentela se tollere, Signified to renounce his Kindred or Family, which was done in open Court before the Judge, and in the Presence of twelve Men, who made Oath that they believed it was done for just Cause: We read of it in the Laws of K. Hen. 1. c. 88. — Si quis propter Faidam vel causam aliquam de Parentela se velit tollere & eam foris Juraverit, & de societate & hereditate & tota illius ratione se separet, si postea aliquis a Parentibus abjuratis moriatur, vel occidatur, nihil ad eum de hereditate vel compositione pertineat, &c.

Parish, (Parochia) Did anciently signify what we now call the Diocese of a Bishop: But at this Day it is the Circuit of Ground in which the People that belong to one Church do inhabit, and the particular Charge of a Secular Priest. It is derived from the Saxon Paroc-scyne, Preostscyre, which signifies the Precinct of which the Priest had the Care, in English Priest-shire. This Realm was first divided into Parishes by Honorius, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Year of our Lord 636. according to Camden, who reckons 9284 Parishes in England, but other Authors differ in the Number. Camd. Britan. pag. 160. It is said that Parishes were ordained by the Lateran Council; before which every Man being obliged to pay Tithes to a Priest, had his Liberty to pay them to what Priest he pleased; but then came the Council which made the Parishes, and decreed, that every Person should pay his Tithes to his Parish Priest. Hob. 296. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. The Lord Chief Justice Holt held, That Parishes were instituted for the Ease and Benefit of the People, and not of the Parson; and the Reason why Parishioners must come to their Parish Churches, is, because he having charged himself with the Cure of their Souls, that he may be enabled to take Care of that Charge. 3 Salk. 88; 89. A Parish may comprise many Villages; but generally it shall not be accounted to contain more than one, except the contrary be shewed, because most Parishes have but one Vill within them. Hill. 23 Car. 1. B. R. And it shall not be intended that there is more than one Parish in a City, if it be not made to appear; for some Cities have but one Parish. Ibid. Where there are several Villages in a Parish, they may have Peace-Officers, and Overseers of the Poor for every particular Vill: And an ancient Vill in a Parish, that Time out of Mind hath had a Church of its own, and Church wardens and Parochial Rights, being reputed a Parish, is a Parish within the Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 2, to provide for its own Poor, and shall not pay to the Poor of the Parish wherein it lies. Cro. Car. 92, 384, 396. But to make a Vill a reputed Parish within 43 Eliz. it must have a parochial Chapel, Chapel-wardens and Sacraments at the Time that Statute was made. 2 Salk. 501. Parishes in Reputation are within that Statute, especially when it has been the constant Usage of such Parishes to chuse their own Overseers; who may distrain for a Poor Tax, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 160. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1235. Money given by Will to a Parish, shall be to the Poor of the Parish, as adjudg'd in Equity. Chan. Rep. 134. If a Highway lie in a Parish, the Parish is obliged to repair the same; and it is the most convenient and equal for the Parishioners in every Parish, to repair the Ways within it, if they are able to do it. 2 Lill. 272. And if any Vill, Liberty, &c. that uses to repair their own Highways, shall after the usual Rate levied and employed, find the Ways not sufficiently repaired; the whole Parish may be ordered by Justices of Peace in their Sessions to contribute to the Repairing thereof. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 29. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 37. Extraparochial drained Lands shall be assessed to the parochial Rates of such Parish as lies nearest to such Lands, and if any Dispute shall arise touching what Parish such Lands ought to be assessed in, it shall be determined by the Justices in Sessions.

Parish Clerk. In every Parish the Parson, Vicar, &c. hath a Parish Clerk under him, who is the lowest Officer of the Church. These were formerly Clerks in Orders, and their Business at first was to officiate at the Altar, for which they have a competent Maintenance by Offerings; but now they are Laymen, and have certain Fees with the Parson, on Christnings, Marriages, Burials, &c. besides Wages for their Maintenance. Count. Parf. Compan. 83, 84. They are to be twenty Years of Age at least, and known to be of honest Conversation, sufficient for their Reading, Singing, &c. And their Business consists chiefly in Responses to the Minister, Reading of Lessons, Singing of Psalms, &c. And in the large Parishes of London, they have some of them Deputies under them for the Dispatch of the Business of their Places, which are more gainful than common Rectories. Ibid. The Law looks upon them as Officers for Life: And they are chosen by the Minister of the Parish, unless there is a Custom for the Parishioners or Churchwardens to chase them; in which Case the Canon cannot abrogate such Custom; and when chosen it is to be signified; and they are to be sworn into their Office by the Archdeacon. Cro. Car. 589. Can. 91.

Parishioner, (Parochianus) Is an Inhabitant of or belonging to any Parish, lawfully settled therein. See Poor.

Parish Offices. Divers Persons are exempted from serving in Parish Offices on Account of their Professions, viz. Physicians and Surgeons, Apothecaries, Dissenting Teachers, Registered Seamen, and Persons having profecoted any Felon to Conviction, &c. Stat. 32 H. 8. 1 W. & M. 7 & 8 & 10 & 11 W. 3. 1 & 10 Ann. &c.

Park, (Lat. Parcus, Fr. Parque, i. e. locus inclusus) Is a large Quantity of Ground inclosed and privileged for wild Beasts of Chase, by the King's Grant or Prescription. 1 Inst. 233. Manwood defines a Park to be a Place of Privilege for Beasts of Venary, and of other wild Beasts of the Forest and of the Chase, tam Sylvestres, quam Campestres; and differs from a Chase or Warren, in that it must be inclosed, and may not lie open; if it do, it is good Cause of Seizure into the King's Hands as a Thing forfeited; as a Free Chase is, if it be inclosed; besides, the Owner cannot have an Action against such as hunt in his Park, if it lies open. Manw. Forest Laws. Crompt. Jurisd. 148. No Man can now erect a Park, without a Licence under the Broad Seal; for the Common Law does not encourage Matters of Pleasure, which bring no Profit to the Commonwealth. Wood's Inst. 267. But there may be a Park in Reputation, erected without lawful Warrant; and the Owner of such a Park may bring his Action against Persons killing his Deer. Ibid. To a Park three Things are required, 1. A Grant thereof. 2. Inclosures by Pale, Wall or Hedge. 3. Beasts of a Park, such as the Buck, Doe, &c. And where all the Deer are destroyed, it shall no more be accounted a Park; for a Park consists of Vert, Venison and Inclosure, and if it is determined in any of them, it is a total Disparking. Cro. Car. 59, 60. And the King may by Letters Patent dissolve his Park. 2 Lill. Abr. 273. Parks as well as Chases are subject to the Common Law, and are not to be governed by the Forest Laws. 4 Inst. 314. Pulling down Park Walls or Pales, the Offenders shall be liable to the same Penalty as for killing Deer, &c. by Stat. and the Statutes against Deer-stealing, are the 13 Car. 2. c. 10. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 10. 5 G. 1. c. 15, &c. See Deer-stealers.

Park-hote, Signifies to be quit of inclosing a Park, or any Part thereof. 4 Inst. 308.

Parle Hill, The learned Spelman gives us this Description of it; it is (says he) Collis vallis plerumque munitus, in loco campestris, ne infidiis exponatur, ubi convenire olim solebant Centuriæ aut Viciniæ incolæ ad lites inter se tractandas & terminandas; Scotis reor Grith-hill, q. Mons pacificationis, cui Asyli privilegia, concedebantur; & in Hibernia frequentes vidimus, the Parle and Parling Hills. Spelm. Gloss.

Parliament, (Parliamentum, from the Fr. Parler, i. e. loqui, & Ment, Mens, to speak the Mind, sometimes called Commune Concilium Regni Angliæ, Magnum Concilium, &c.) Is a grand Assembly, or Convention of the three Estates of the Kingdom, summoned to meet the King, to consult of Matters relating to the Common Wealk; and particularly to enact and repeal Laws. Some Authors say, that the ancient Britains had no such Assemblies; but that the Saxons had; which may be collected from the Laws of King Ina, who lived about the Year 712. And William the first, called the Conqueror, having divided this Land among his Followers, so that every one of them should hold their Lands of him in Capite, the Chief of these were called Barons; who it is said thrice every Year assembled at the King's Court, viz. at Christmas, Easter, and Whitson-tide, among whom the King was wont to come in his Royal Robes, to consult about the Publick Affairs of the Kingdom. This King called several Parliaments, wherein it appears, that the Freemen or Commons of England were also there, and had a Share in making of Laws: He by settling the Court of Parliament so established his Throne, that neither Britain, Dane, nor Saxou, could disturb his Tranquillity; the making of his Laws were by Act of Parliament, and the Accord between Stephen and him was made by Parliament; though all the Times since have not kept the same Form of assembling the States. Dodderidge's Antiq. Parliament. And according to the same Author, there was a Parliament before there were any Barons; and if the Commons do not appear, there can be no Parliament; for the Knights, Citizens and Burgeses, represent the whole Commons of England, but the Peers only are present for themselves, and none others. Ibid. Sir Edward Coke affirms, that divers Parliaments were held before the Conquest; and produces an Instance of one held in the Reign of King Alfred: He likewise gives us a Conclusion of a Parliament holden by King Atellstan, where Mention is made, that all Things were enacted in the great Synod or Council at Grately, whereat was Archbishop Wolfselme, with all the Noblemen and Wisemen, which the King called together. 1 Inst. 110. It is apparent, (says Mr. Pryn) from all the Precedents before the Time of the Conquest, that our primitive Synods and Councils were nothing else but Parliaments; that our Kings, Nobles, Senators, Aldermen, Wisemen, Knights and Commons, were present and voting in them as Members and Judges: And Sir Henry Spelman, Camden, and other Writers, prove the Commons to be a Part of the Parliament in the Time of the Saxons, but not by that Name, or elected as consisting of Knights, Citizens and Burgeses. Pryn's Sovereign Pow. Parliament. As to the Original of the present House of Commons, our Authors of Antiquity vary very much; many are of Opinion that the Commons began not to be admitted as Part of the Parliament, upon the Footing they are now, until the 49 H. 3. And the Reason for it is, because the first Writ of Summons of any Knights, Citizens and Burgeses, is of no ancienter Date than that Time. But the great Charter in the 17th Year of King John, (about which Time the Distinction of Barones Majores and Minores is supposed to begin) was made per Regem, Barones & Liberos Homines totius Regni. Mr. Selden says, that the Borough of St. Albans claimed by Prescription in the Parliament, 8 Edw. 2. to send two Burgeses to all Parliaments, as in the Reigns of Edw. 1. and his Progenitors, which must be the Time of King John; and so before the Reign of King Hen. 3. And in the Reign of Hen. 5. it was declared and admitted, that the Commons of the Land were ever a Part of the Parliament. Selden's Tit. Hon. 709. Polydore Virgil, Hollinshead, Speed and others mention, that the Commons were first summoned at a Parliament held at Salisbury, 16 Hen. 1. Sir Walter Raleigh, in his Treatise of the Prerogative of Parliaments, thinks it was Anno 18 H. 1. And Dr. Heylin finds another Beginning for them, viz. in the Reign of K. H. 2. Thus much for the Original of our Parliament: Which is the highest and most honourable, and absolute Court of Justice in England; consisting of the King, the Lords of Parliament, and the Commons; and again, the Lords are divided into two Sorts, viz. Spiritual and Temporal; and the Commons divided into three Parts, i. e. into Knights of Shires or Counties, Citizens out of Cities, and Burgeses from Boroughs; the Words of the old Latin Writ to the Sheriff for the Election, being Duos Milites gladiis cinctos magis idoneos & discretos comitatus tui, & de qualibet civitate

tate comitatus tui duos Cives, & de quolibet Burgo duos Burgenses, de Discretioribus & magis sufficientibus, &c. Inst. 109. The Jurisdiction of this Court is so transcendent, that it makes, enlarges, abrogates, repeals and revives Laws and Statutes, concerning Matters Ecclesiastical, Civil, Criminal, Martial, Maritime, &c. And for making of Laws and in proceeding by Bill, this supreme Court is not confined either for Causes or Persons within any Bounds; nor is it tied down to any certain Rules or Forms of Law, in Proceedings and Determinations: The Court of Parliament hath Power to judge in Matters of Law; and redress Mischiefs and Grievances that happen, especially such as have no ordinary Remedy; to examine into the Corruption of Judges and Magistrates, and illegal Proceedings of other Courts; to redress Errors, and determine on Petitions and Appeals, &c. and from this High Court there lies no Appeal. Ibid. Affairs of Parliament are to be determined by the Parliament; though the Parliament err, it is not reversible in any other Court: And not only what is done in the House of Commons, but what relates to the Commons during the Parliament, and sitting the Parliament, is no where else to be punished but by themselves, or a succeeding Parliament. Sir Robert Atkins. Every Court of Justice having Laws and Customs for its Direction, the High Court of Parliament hath its own proper Laws and Customs, called the Laws and Customs of Parliament; inasmuch that no Judges ought to give any Opinion of Matters done in Parliament, because they are not to be decided by the Common Law: But the Parliament, in their Judicial Capacity, are governed by the Common and Statute Laws, as well as the Courts in Westminster-Hall. 4 Inst. 14, 15. State Trials, Vol. 2, 735. The Lords and Commons in their respective Houses have Power of Judicature, and so have both Houses together: And in former Times both Lords and Commons sat together in one House of Parliament. 4 Inst. 23. The Lords have one that presides as Speaker in common Affairs, usually the Lord Chancellor; and the Commons have their Speaker, chosen by the House, but to be approved of by the King: The Commons anciently had no continual Speaker, but after Consultation, their Manner of Proceeding was to agree upon some Person of great Abilities, to deliver their Resolutions: In the Reign of William Rufus, there was a great Parliament held at Rockingham, and a certain Knight came forth and stood before the People, and spake in the Name and Behalf of them all, who was undoubtedly the Speaker of the House of Commons at that Time: But the first Speaker certainly known was Peter de Mountford, 44 H. 3. when the Lords and Commons sat in several Houses, or at least gave their Assents severally. Lex Constitution. 162. Sir Richard Walgrave, 5 R. 2. was the first Speaker that made any formal Apology for Inability, as now practised: Richard Rich, Esq.; 28 H. 8. was the first of our Speakers that is recorded to have made Request for Access to the King: Thomas Moyle, Esq.; 34 H. 8. is said to be the first Speaker that petitioned for Freedom of Speech; and Sir Thomas Gargrave, 1 Elix. was the first that made the Request for Privilege from Arrests, &c. Sir John Busbey, 17 R. 2. was the first Speaker presented to the King in full Parliament by the Commons: And when Sir Arnold Savage was Speaker, 2 Hen. 4. it was the first Time that the Commons were required by the King to chuse a Speaker. Ibid. 163. &c. The King cannot take Notice of any Thing said to be done in the House of Commons but by the Report of the House; and every Member of the House of Parliament has a judicial Place, and can be no Witness. 4 Inst. 15. When King Charles 1. being in the House of Commons, and sitting in the Speaker's Chair, asked the then Speaker, whether certain Members, whom the King named, were present? The Speaker, from a Presence of Mind which arose from the Genius of that House, readily answered, That he had neither Eyes to see nor Tongue to speak, but as the House was pleased to direct him. Atkins's Jurisd. and Antiquity of House of Commons. King Henry 8. having commanded Sir Thomas Garvy, one of the Judges of the King's Bench, to attend the Chief Justices and know their Opinion, whether a Man might be attainted of High Treason by Parliament, and never called to answer; the Judges declared it was a dangerous Question, and that the High Court of Parliament ought to give Examples to inferior Courts, for proceeding according to Justice, and no inferior Court could do the like. Lex Constitution. 161. The House of Lords is a distinct Court from the Commons, to several Purposes, and is the Sovereign Court of Justice, and Dernier Resort: They try Criminal Causes on Impeachments of the Commons; and have an original Jurisdiction for the Trial of Peers upon Indictments found by a Grand Jury: They also try Causes upon Appeals from the Court of Chancery, or upon Writs of Error to reverse Judgments in B. R. &c. And all their Decrees are as Judgments; and Judgment given in Parliament may be executed by the Lord Chancellor. 4 Inst. 21. Finch 233. 1 Lev. 165. It is said, that the Judicial Power of Parliament is in the Lords; but that the House of Lords hath no Jurisdiction over original Causes, which would deprive the Subject of the Benefit of Appeal. 2 Salk. 510. Also the House of Commons is a distinct Court to many Purposes; they examine the Right of Elections, expel their own Members, and commit them to Prison, and sometimes other Persons, &c. And the Book of the Clerk of the House of Commons is a Record. 2 Inst. 536. 4 Inst. 23. The Commons coming from all Parts are the General Inquisitors and Grand Inquest of the Realm; to present publick Grievances and Delinquents to the King and Lords to be punished by them: And any Member of the House of Commons, has the Privilege of impeaching the highest Lord in the Kingdom. Wood's Inst. 455. As the House of Lords seems to be politically constituted for the Support of the Rights of the Crown; so the proper Province of the House of Commons, is to stand for the Preservation of the People's Liberties. The Commons in making and repealing of Laws, have equal Power with the Lords; and for laying of Taxes on the Subject, the Bill is to begin in the House of Commons, because from thence the greatest Part of the Money arises, and it is they that represent the whole Commons of England; for which Reason they will not permit any Alterations to be made by the Lords in a Bill concerning Money: And as formerly the Laying and Levying of new Taxes have caused Rebellions and Commotions, this has occasioned, particularly 9 E. 3. when a Motion has been made for a Subsidy of a new Kind, that the Commons have desired a Conference with those of their several Counties and Places, whom they have represented before they have treated of any such Matters. 4 Inst. 34. There are no Places of Precedency in the House of Commons as there are in the House of Lords; only the Speaker has a Chair or Seat, fixed towards the upper End, in the Middle of the House; and the Clerk, with his Assistant, sits near him at the Table, just below the Chair: The Members of the House of Commons never had any Robes, as the Lords ever had, except the Speaker and Clerks, who in the House wear Gowns, as Professors of the Law do during the Term-Time. If a Lord be absent from the House, he may make another Lord his Proxy; though a Member of the House of Commons cannot make a Proxy. Wood's Inst. 456. No Knight, Citizen or Burghers of the House of Commons, mons, shall depart from the Parliament without Leave of the Speaker and Commons assembled; and the same is to be entered in the Book of the Clerk of the Parliament. Stat. 6 Hen. 8. c. 16. And in the 1 & 2 P. & M. Informations were preferred by the Attorney General against thirty nine of the House of Commons, for departing without Licence, whereof six of them submitted to Fines; but it is uncertain whether any of them were ever paid. The Calling of the House is to discover what Members are absent, without Leave of the House, or just Cause; in which Cases Fines have been imposed: On the Calling over, such of the Members as are present, are marked; and the Defaulters being called over again the same Day, or the Day after, and not appearing, are sometimes summoned, and sometimes sent for by the Serjeant at Arms. Lex Constitution. 159. Forty Members are requisite to make a House of Commons for Dispatch of Business; and the Business of the House is to be kept entirely a Secret among themselves: In the 23d Year of Queen Elizabeth, Arthur Hall, Esq; Member of Parliament, for publishing the Conferences of the House, and writing a Book which contained Matters of Reproach against some particular Members, derogatory to the general Authority, Power, and State of the House, and prejudicial to the Validity of the Proceedings, was adjudged by the Commons to be committed to the Tower for six Months, fined 500 l. and expelled the House. But the Speaker of the House of Commons, according to the Duty of his Office, as Servant to the House, may publish such Proceedings as he shall be ordered by the Commons assembled; and he cannot be liable for what he does that Way by the Command of others, unless all those other Persons are liable. The Case of William Williams, Esq; If any Member of either House speak Words of Offence in a Debate, after the Debate is over he is called to the Bar, where commonly on his Knees he receives a Reprimand from the Speaker; and if the Offence be great, he is sent to the Tower. When the Bill of Attainder of the Earl of Strafford, was passing the House of Commons, Mr. Taylor, a Member of that House, opposed it with great Violence and Indecency, and being heard to explain himself, was commanded to withdraw; whereupon it was resolved he should be expelled the House, be made incapable of ever serving as a Member of Parliament, and should be committed Prisoner to the Tower, there to remain during the Pleasure of the House: And he was called to the Bar, where he kneeled down, and Mr. Speaker pronounced the Sentence accordingly. And Sir John Elliot, Denzil Hollis, and another Person having spoken these Words, (viz. The King's Privy Council, his Judges, and his Counsel learned in the Law, have conspired to trample under their Feet the Liberties of the Subject, and of this House), an Information was brought against them by the Attorney General; and farther, for that the King having signified his Pleasure to the House of Commons for the Adjournment of the Parliament, and the Speaker endeavouring to get out of the Chair, they Violenter, &c. detained him in the Chair, upon which there was a great Tumult in the House, to the Terror of the Commons there assembled, and against their Allegiance, in Contempt of the King, his Crown and Dignity: The Defendants pleaded to the Jurisdiction of the Court; and refused to answer but in Parliament; but it was adjudged, that they ought to answer, the Charge being for a Conspiracy, and seditious Acts to prevent the Adjournment of the Parliament, which may be examined out of it; and not answering, Judgment was given against them, that Sir John Elliot should be committed to the Tower, and fined 2000 l. and the other two were fined and imprisoned. Cro. Car. 130. Members of Parliament are not only privileged from Arrests, but likewise in an extraordinary Manner from Assaults, Menaces, &c. Sir Robert Brandling made an Assault upon Mr. Witherington, a Member of the House of Commons, in the Country before his coming up to Parliament, and Sir Robert was sent for by the House, and committed to the Tower. An Anno 19 Jac. 1. some Speeches passed privately in the House between two of the Members, and on of them going down the Parliament Stairs struck the other, who catching at a Sword in his Man's Hand, endeavoured to return the Stroke; and upon Complaint to the House of Commons they were both ordered to attend, where he who gave the Blow was committed to the Tower during the Pleasure of the House. Assaulting a Member coming to or attending in Parliament, the Offender shall pay double Damages, and make Fine and Ransom, &c. by Stat. 11 Hen. 6. All Members of Parliament, that they may attend the publick Service of their Country, have Privilege of Parliament for themselves and their menial Servants, to be free from Arrests Subpoenas, Citations, &c. and for their Horses and Goods to be free from Distresses: And this Privilege of Parliament doth generally hold in all Cases except in Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace 4 Inst. 24, 25. There are many remarkable Cases in our Books treating of the Privileges of Parliament relating to Arrests of Members of the House of Commons, and their Servants, and the Manner of their Confinement, Release, &c. The first Year of King Jac. Sir Thomas Shirley, a Member of Parliament, was arrested four Days before the Sitting of the Parliament, and carried Prisoner to the Fleet on which a Warrant issued to the Clerk of the Crown for a Habeas Corpus to bring him to the House, and the Serjeant was sent for in Custody who being brought to the Bar, and confessing his Fault, was excused for that Time: But on hearing Counsel at the Bar for Sir Thomas Shirley, and the Warden of the Fleet, and upon producing Precedents Simpson the Prosecutor, who caused the Arrest to be made, was ordered to be committed to the Tower and afterwards the Warden refusing to execute the Writ of Habeas Corpus, and the Delivery of Sir Thomas being denied, was likewise committed to the Tower; though on his agreeing to deliver up Sir Thomas, upon a new Warrant for a new Writ of Habeas Corpus, and making his Submission to the House, he was discharged: This Affair taking up some Time the House entered into several Debates touching their Privileges, and how the Debt of the Party might be satisfied, which produced three Questions. First, Whether Sir Thomas Shirley should have Privilege? Secondly, Whether presently, or to be deferred? And, Thirdly, Whether the House should petition the King for some Course for securing the Debt of the Party, according to former Precedents and saving harmless the Warden of the Fleet? At which Questions were resolved; and a Bill was brought in to secure Simpson's Debt, &c. which also occasioned an Act 1 Jac. 1. cap. 13. for Relief of Plaintiffs in Writs of Execution, where the Defendants in such Writs are arrested, and set at Liberty by Privilege of Parliament, by which a fresh Prosecution and new Execution may be had against them when that Privilege ceases. Lex Constitut. 141 And 19 Jac. 1. one Johnson, a Servant to Sir James Whitlock a Member of the House of Commons, was arrested by two Bailiffs, who being told Sir James Whitlock was a Parliament Man, answered, that they had known greater Men's Servants than his taken from their Masters in Time of Parliament: And then appearing, the two Bailiffs were sentenced to ask Pardon of the House and Sir James Whitlock, on their Knees; that they should both ride on on Horse bare backed, Back to Back, from Westminster to the Exchange, with Papers on their Breasts signifying their Offence; all which was to be executed presently, Sedente Curia. Ibid. In Action of Debt upon a Bond, conditioned that B. B. should render himself at such a Day and Place to an Arrest; the Defendant pleaded, that by Privilege of Parliament, the Members, &c. and their Servants ought not to be arrested by the Space of forty Days before the Sitting of the Parliament, nor during the Session, nor forty Days afterwards; and that B. B. was at that Time Servant to such a Member of Parliament, so as he could not render himself to be arrested: Upon Demurrer to this Plea, it was adjudged ill, because he might have rendered himself at the Time and Place; but then it would be at their Peril if he was arrested. 1 Brownl. 81. The Commons in Parliament claim Privilege for forty Days before and after each Session and Prorogation. 2 Lev. 72. Though the Statute 12 W. 3. cap. 3. ordains, that Actions may be prosecuted in any of the Courts at Westminster against Persons intitled to Privilege of Parliament, after a Dissolution or Prorogation, until a new Parliament is called, or the same is reassembled: And after Adjournment for above fourteen Days, and the respective Courts may proceed to Judgment, &c. Proceedings are to be by Summons and Distress infinite, &c. until the Parties shall enter a common Appearance; and the Real or Personal Estates of the Defendants may be sequestred for Default of Appearance; but the Plaintiff may not arrest their Bodies: And where any Plaintiff shall be stayed or prevented from Proceeding by Privilege of Parliament, he shall not be barred by any Statute of Limitation, or Non-suited, Dismissed, or his Suit discontinued for Want of Prosecution; but at the Rising of the Parliament shall be at Liberty to proceed to Judgment and Execution. And by 2 Ann. cap. 8. Actions may be prosecuted against Officers of the Revenue, or in any Place of publick Trust, for any Forfeiture or Breach of Trust, &c. and shall not be stayed by Colour of Privilege: But such Officer being a Member of Parliament, is not subject to Arrest during the Time of Privilege, but Summons, Attachment, &c. By the 11 Geo. 2. cap. 24. Any Person may prosecute a Suit in any Court of Record, &c. in Great Britain or Ireland, against any Peer, or Member of the House of Commons, or other Person intitled to Privilege, in the Intervals of Parliaments, or of Sessions, if above fourteen Days; and the said Courts, after Dissolutions or Prorogations, are to give Judgment, and award Execution: And no Proceedings in Law against the King's immediate Debtor, as such, &c. to be delayed under Colour of such Privilege; only the Person of a Member of Parliament, &c. shall not be arrested or imprisoned. A Defendant who was a Member of Parliament, brought a Letter from the Speaker to the Court of King's Bench to stay Proceedings; but the Court would not allow it, but told him he might bring his Writ of Privilege. Latch 150. Judgment was had against the Defendant, and afterwards he was chosen a Member of Parliament, and after his Election he was taken in Execution, yet he had his Privilege; though the Book tells us minus juste. Moor 57. And where Judgment being had against a Defendant, and he was taken in Execution in the Morning, and about three Hours afterwards was chosen a Member of Parliament; the House agreed, that being arrested before he was chosen, &c. he shall not have his Privilege. Moor 340. 1 Nelf. Abr. 27. The Courts at Westminster may judge of the Privilege of Parliament, where it is incident to a Suit the Court is possessed of: And Courts may proceed to Execution between the Sessions of Parliament, notwithstanding Appeals lodged, &c. State Trials, 2 Vol. pag. 66, 209.

Election of Members of Parliament. The Parliament is called by Force of the King's Writ of Summons out of Chancery, at least forty Days before the Parliament begins: And the Commons are elected by the People; and every Member, though chose for one particular Place or Borough, serves for the whole Kingdom. Also as Attendance of this Nature is for the Service of the Publick, the whole Nation has such an Interest therein, that the King cannot grant an Exemption to any Person from being elected as a Knight, Citizen or Burgess in Parliament; and for that Elections ought to be free. 29 Hen. 6. But an Alien cannot be elected of the Parliament, for he is not the King's Liege Subject; though if an Alien were Naturalized by Act of Parliament, he was eligible till the Stat. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. A Man attainted of Treason or Felony, or one outlawed, &c. is not eligible; nor shall such Persons be suffered in the House of Parliament. 4 Inst. 48. A Person under the Age of twenty one Years, may not be elected to sit in Parliament; neither can any Lord sit there, until he be of the full Age of twenty-one Years. Ibid. It was formerly held, that Mayors and Bailiffs of Towns Corporate were not eligible; but now they may be elected. And so may a Sheriff of a County, for another Shire. 4 Inst. 38 H. None of the Judges of the King's Bench or Common Pleas, or Barons of the Exchequer, who have Judicial Places, can be chosen Knight, Citizen or Burgess of Parliament, as it is now holden, and because they are Assistants in the House of Lords: And yet we find in the Parliament Roll 31 Hen. 8. that Thorpe, Baron of the Exchequer, was Speaker of the House of Commons: Persons that have Judicial Places in the other Courts, Ecclesiastical or Civil, are eligible. 4 Inst. 47. Clergymen are not eligible to be Knights, Citizens or Burgesses of Parliament, they being of another Body, viz. of the Convocation. Ibid. Any of the Profession of the Common Law, and which are in the Practice of the same, are eligible; but Anno 6 H. 4. a Parliament was summoned by Writ, and by Colour of a certain Ordinance, it was forbidden that any Lawyers should be chosen; by Reason whereof my Lord Coke observes, this Parliament was fruitless: And the prohibitory Clause inserted in the Writs was against Law, for Lawyers are eligible of Common Right, and cannot be disabled by Ordinance without Act of Parliament. By Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. no Person who had any Office or Place of Profit under the King, or Pension from the Crown, was to serve as a Member of the House of Commons. And by 4 & 5 Ann. no Member of Parliament may enjoy any Office in the Government, and sit in the House at the same Time by Virtue of his former Election; for by the Acceptance of any Office, his Election is void: But he may be elected again, on a new Writ issued out, and sit in the House; and Officers in the Army or Navy, receiving any new Commission, need not be re-elected. 5 Ann. When Persons are incapable of being elected, the Election shall be void; and Sitting or Voting in the House of Commons they shall forfeit 500 l. And the Statute 1 Geo. 1. c. 56. enacts that no Man having any Pension from the Crown, either in his own Name or in Trust for him, shall be elected a Member of Parliament; and Pensioners presuming to Sit and Vote, shall forfeit 20 l. for every Day, &c. The Act mentions only a Pension for any Term or Number of Years; and not a Pension during Pleasure, according to the 4 Ann. cap. 8. 'Tis now enacted, that no Person who shall be a Commissioner of the Treasury, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Commissioner of the Admiralty, Paymaster of the Army, Secretary of State, &c. shall be capable of being a Member in any Parliament, which shall be hereafter summoned and holden. Stat. 15 Geo. 2. c. 22. But this Statute does not exclude clude the Secretaries of the Treasury, or of those other Officers; or any Person having an Office for Life. Ibid. By ancient Statutes, Knights of the Shire are to be resident in the County, for which they are chosen; as likewise Citizens and Burgeses elected shall be resident in and free of the same Cities and Boroughs, the Day of the Date of the Writ of Summons, and they are to be notable Knights of the same County, &c. notable Esquires or Gentlemen: Also by a late Act, no Person shall be qualified to serve in Parliament as a Knight of the Shire, who hath not an Estate of Freehold or Copyhold for Life, or some greater Estate to his own Use, of 600*l.* a Year, over and above what will satisfy all Incumbrances; and a Citizen and Burges 300*l.* per Annum, of which Oath is to be made at the Request of a Candidate, or two Persons having Right to Vote; and if any Person be elected and returned not so qualified, the Return shall be void. 9 Ann. cap. 5. And none shall be qualified by Virtue of any Mortgage, whereof the Equity of Redemption is in another; unless the Mortgagee shall have been in Possession seven Years before the Election: Though the eldest Son of a Peer, or of any Person qualified to serve as a Knight of the Shire, shall not be incapable of being elected. Stat. Ibid. Members of Parliament must take the Oaths to the Government before they Sit and Vote in the House; or shall be adjudged Popish Recusants, and be disabled to sit in Parliament, and liable to certain Forfeitures, &c. Stat. 5 Eliz. cap. 1. 30 Car. 2. c. 1. And this Statute is confirmed and enforced by the 13 & 14 W. 3. c. 6. The Election of Knights of the Shire, is to be made by the Majority of People dwelling in the Counties, having each of them Lands or Tenements to the yearly Value of 40*s.* besides Reprises; and he that cannot expend 40*s.* per Ann. shall have no Vote in the Election of Knights for the Parliament. 8 H. 6. c. 7. And by the 10 H. 6. c. 2. an Elector of Knights of the Shire must be resident, and have 40*s.* per Annum Freehold over and above Reprises in the same County. The 7 & 8 W. 3. requires, that every Freeholder shall take an Oath that he is a Freeholder of the County, and has Freehold Lands or Hereditaments of the yearly Value of 40*s.* lying at such a Place, within the said County, and that he hath not been before polled at the Election: No Person is to be admitted to vote in any Election of a Member to serve in Parliament, who is under the Age of twenty one, or be intitled to any Vote by Reason of any Trust or Mortgage; if the Trustee or Mortgagee be not in actual Possession, and receive the Rents and Profits of the Estate: But the Mortgagor or Cestui que Trust in Possession, shall and may vote for the same Estate: And all Conveyances of Lands, Tenements, &c. in order to multiply Votes, or split and divide the Interest in any Houses or Lands, among several Persons, to enable them to vote, shall be void and of none Effect. By the 10 Ann. c. 22. none shall have a Voice for electing Knights of the Shire in Right of any Lands, who has not been charged or assessed to the publick Taxes, Church Rates and Parish Duties, in such Proportion as other Lands and Tenements of 40*s.* per Annum, lying within the same Parish; and for which he shall not have received the Rents and Profits, or be intitled to have received the same to the full Value of 40*s.* or more, to his own Use for one Year, before the Election; except such Lands or Tenements come by Descent, Devise, Presentation to some Church, or Promotion to an Office, to which a Freehold is annexed; and Persons voting contrary shall forfeit 40*l.* This extends not to restrain Persons from voting for Knights of the Shire, in respect of any Tithes, or other incorporeal Inheritances, or Messuages, &c. belonging to Offices, by reason the same have not been usually assessed to any publick Taxes; or in regard to Lands not taxed to all Taxes, if they have been generally assessed to some one or more of the said Rates, &c. by 12 Ann. c. 5. All Estates and Conveyances made to any Person in a fraudulent Manner, on purpose to qualify him to vote, subject to Conditions to defeat or determine such Estate or re convey the same, shall be taken against the Persons executing them as free and absolute; and all Bonds, &c. for Redemption shall be void; also Persons voting by Colour of such Conveyance, incur a Forfeiture of 40*l.* The above Statutes, for preventing fraudulent Conveyances to multiply Votes on Electing Knights of Shires, are made to extend to Lands or Tenements, for which any Persons shall vote for the Election of Members to serve in Parliament for any City or Town, that is a County of itself; and if any Person votes at such Election as a Freeholder, not having his Estate a Year before, and assessed as described in the Act 10 Ann. he is liable to the Penalties imposed on unqualified Voters 13 Geo. 2. c. 20. Persons refusing to take the Oaths of Abjuration, &c. are made incapable to vote for Members of Parliament. 1 Geo. 1. c. 13. By the Stat. 18 Geo. 2. c. 18. No Person shall vote for the Electing a Knight of the Shire in England and Wales, in Respect or Right of any Messuage, &c. which has not been charged or assessed to the Land Tax twelve Kalendar Months next before the Election. But not to restrain any Person from voting in Right of any Rents or Chambers in the Inns of Court, &c. or any Messuages or Seats belonging to any Offices, in regard they have not been usually assessed to the Land Tax. No Person shall vote at any such Election without having a Freehold in the same County, of the clear yearly Value of 40*s.* over and above all Rents and Charges, or without having been in the actual Possession or Receipt of the Profits above twelve Kalendar Months, unless the same came to him within the Time aforesaid, by Descent, Marriage, Marriage Settlement, Devise or Promotion to any Benefice or Office; or shall vote in Right of any Freehold granted to him fraudulently, or vote more than once at the same Election, under the Penalty of 40*l.* No publick Tax, Rate or Assessment, shall be deemed a Charge on any Freehold. At every Election of a Knight of the Shire in England and Wales, the Sheriff shall erect, at the Expence of the Candidates, Booths for taking the Poll, not exceeding the Number of Rapes or Hundreds in the County, or the Number of fifteen, and affix at each Booth the Name of the Rape, &c. for which such Booth shall be allotted, and depute a proper Clerk at each Booth for taking the Poll, at the Expence of the Candidates, not exceeding a Guinea a Day each Clerk; and shall make a List for each Booth, of all the Towns, Villages, &c. lying in the Rape, &c. for which such Booth is allotted, and deliver a Copy thereof to any Candidate on Request. And no Sheriff or Clerk appointed to take the Poll for any of the said Booths, shall admit any Person to vote for any of the Lands, &c. sworn to be lying in some Parish, Town or Place, not mentioned in the List made out for such Booth, unless such Lands, &c. lie in some Town, &c. not mentioned in any of the Lists made out for all the said Booths. And the Sheriff shall allow a Cheque Book for every Poll Book for each Candidate. By the Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 28. the like Provision is made as in the preceding Act, touching the Qualification of Electors of Members of Parliament, to serve for such Cities and Towns in England as are Counties of themselves. No Person to vote in Election of such Member, having a Right to vote in respect of Lands, &c. unless he have Lands, &c. in the same City or Town, of the yearly Value of 40*s.* over and above all Rents

and Charges, &c. ut supra. The Sheriff to allow each Candidate a Cheque Book for each Poll Book. The Sheriff is to proceed to Election within eight Days after Receipt of the Writ, and give three Days Notice of the Election. As to who are or ought to be the Electors in Boroughs, it hath very much exercised the British House of Commons: In the 22 Jac. 1. it was resolved, that where there is no Charter or Custom to the contrary, the Election in Boroughs is to be made by all the Householders, and not Freeholders only: And in a Question whether the Commons or the Capital Burgesses of a certain Borough in Lincolnshire, were the Electors of Members of Parliament, Anno 4 Car. 1. it was agreed, That the Election of Burgesses in all Boroughs did of common Right belong to the Commoners, and that nothing could take it from them but a Prescription and constant Usage beyond the Memory of Man. It has been holden, That the Commonalties of Cities and Burghs are only the ordinary and lower Sort of Citizens, Burgesses or Freemen; and that the Right of Election of Burgesses to Parliament in all Boroughs, belongs to the Commoners, viz. the ordinary Burgesses or Freemen; and not to the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council: Though the Meaning of the Words Communitates Civitatum & Burgorum, has always signified, rightly understood, the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council, where they were to be found; or the Steward or Bailiff, and Capital Burgesses, or the governing Parts of Cities and Towns, by what Persons soever they were governed, or Titles called. The most extraordinary Case which has happened in this Age, with Relation to the Determinations of a Committee of Privileges and Elections, was the Case of Alby and White, concerning the Borough of Aylesbury; on a Question put, Whether an Action at Law lies for an Elector who is denied his Vote? In this Case the Debates ended in the following Resolutions, viz. That the Qualification of Electors and of Persons elected, is cognizable only before the Commons in Parliament; and that the examining and determining the Qualification or Right of any Elector, &c. belongs to them, where the Acts of Parliament give no particular Direction; that whoever shall prosecute any Action, &c. which shall bring the Right of Electors to the Determination of any other Jurisdiction than that of the House of Commons, except in Cases specially provided for by some Statute, shall be guilty of a Breach of the Privilege of the House. Several Persons were committed to Newgate by a Warrant signed by Robert Harley, Speaker of the House of Commons, for prosecuting Actions at Law against the Constables of the aforesaid Borough of Aylesbury, who refused to take their Votes at the Election of Members of Parliament, &c. in Contempt of the Jurisdiction and Privileges of the House; and this Matter being returned by Habeas Corpus severally, and the several Persons Defendants brought into Court, their Counsel moved that they might be discharged, for that the Prosecution of a Suit at Law could be no unlawful Act, nor a Breach of the Privileges of the House of Commons: Three Judges were of Opinion, that the House were the proper Judges of their own Privileges; but Holt Chief Justice held, That the Authority of the Commons was circumscribed by Law; and if they should exceed that Authority, then to say they were Judges of their own Privileges, is to make their Privileges to be what they would have them to be; and that if they should wrongfully imprison, there could be no Redress, so that the Courts at Westminster could not execute the Laws upon which the Liberties of the Subject subsist. 2 Salk. 503. And in Action on the Case, by a Burget of Aylesbury, against the Constables of the said Borough, for refusing to receive the Plaintiff's Vote in the Election of a Member of Parliament; the Plaintiff had a Verdict, but the Judgment was arrested by the Opinion of three Judges, viz. That the Action is not maintainable, because the Constables acted as Judges, and the not Receiving the Plaintiff's Vote is Damnum sine injuria; for when the Matter comes before the House, his Vote will be received; that the Right of electing Members to serve in Parliament, is to be decided in Parliament, and the Plaintiff may petition the House for that Purpose, and after 'tis determined there, he may then bring his Action, and not before. Holt Chief Justice contra, That the Plaintiff had a Right to vote; a Freeholder has a Right to vote by Reason of his Freehold; and it is a real Right, and the Value of his Freehold was not material till the Stat. 8 H. 6. which requires it to be 40s. per Annum: That as it is Ratione liberi tenementi in Counties; so in ancient Boroughs, they have a Right to vote ratione Burgagii; and in Cities and Corporations, it is ratione Franchisæ, and a personal Inheritance, vested in the whole Corporation, but to be used by the particular Members; that this is a noble Privilege, which entitles the Subject to a Share in the Government and Legislature; and that if the Plaintiff hath a Right, he must have a Remedy to assert that Right, for Want of Right and Want of Remedy is the same Thing; that Refusing to take the Plaintiff's Vote is an Injury, and every Injury imports a Damage; and that where a parliamentary Matter comes in incidentally to an Action of Property, in the King's Court, it must be determined there, and not in Parliament; the Parliament cannot judge of the Injury, nor give Damages to the Plaintiff, and he hath no Remedy by Way of Petition: And according to this Opinion, the Judgment of the other three Judges was reversed upon a Writ of Error brought in the House of Lords. 1 Salk. 19. Mod. Caf. 45. This Case occasioned great Disputes between the two Houses of Parliament; the Lords insisting, That if the Commons only could judge of the Right of their Electors, they would in Effect chuse their Electors, &c. And the Commons alledging, that if the Right of Electors might be determined in the Courts of Law, from whence Causes are removed by Writ of Error into the House of Lords, the Lords would become Judges of the Right of Electors to chuse, and consequently who were duly elected Members of the Commons House, whereby the Commons would lose their Independency, and be subject to the Lords, &c. But the Parliament being soon after prorogued, the Dispute was dropp'd. By the Common Law of England, every Commoner hath a Right not to be subjected to Laws made without their Consent; and because such Consent cannot be given by every individual Man in Person, by Reason of Number and Confusion; that Power is lodged in their Representatives, elected and chosen by them, viz. Knights, Citizens, &c. 3 Salk. 18. And in several Counties, the Citizens and Burgesses were formerly chosen in the County Courts, with the Knights of Shires, and jointly returned, &c. For there are commonly four or five Citizens or Burgesses sent from the respective Cities or Boroughs to the County-Court; and there they were chosen, with full Power for themselves and their several Communities, to do and consent to such Things, as by the Common Council of the Kingdom assembled in Parliament, should be ordained and enacted. It is said by some Writers, that in ancient Times the King hath nominated the very Persons to be returned, and did not leave it to the Election of the People; for which they give an Instance in the 45th Year of Ed. 3. And among the Parliament Writs 14 Eliz. there appears to be an Appointment and Return of Burgesses, by the Lord of a Town, &c.

Et c. But these are single Instances in their Kind; and the Writs for Elections in the 23d Year of King Edw. 1. ran in English as follows, viz.

Form of an ancient Writ for Election of Members of Parliament.

TO the Sheriff of, &c. Greeting: Because we desire to have a Conference and Treaty with the Earls, Barons, and other great Men of our Kingdom, to provide Remedies against the Dangers our Kingdom is in at this Time; therefore we have commanded them, that they be with us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. next coming, to treat, ordain, and do, so as those Dangers may be prevented: And we command, and firmly enjoin thee, that, without Delay, thou dost cause to be chosen, and to come to us, at the Time and Place aforesaid two Knights of the County aforesaid, and of every City two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, of the best, most able, and discreet Men for Business; so as the said Knights may have sufficient Power for themselves and the Community of the County aforesaid; and the Citizens and Burgesses may have the same Power separately from them, for themselves and the Communities of Cities and Burghs, then to do in the Premises what shall be ordained by the Common Council of the Realm, so that the Business aforesaid may not remain undone; and have there the Names of the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses, and this Writ. Witness the King, &c.

The Return of the Writ, thereon indorsed, was thus:

IA. B. Sheriff, by Vertue of this Writ have caused to be chosen in the County of, &c. two Knights, and of every City of the same County two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, of the best, most able, and discreet Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the County, City and Burghs aforesaid, according to the Tenor of the Writ.

By the Stat. 7 H. 4. cap. 15. the Election of Knights of the Shire is to be made in the following Manner: At the next County-Court, after the Delivery of the Writ, Proclamation is to be made by the Sheriff of the County, of the Day and Place the Parliament is to assemble, and that all as are there present shall attend at the Election of Knights of the Shire; and then in full County, a free and indifferent Election shall be made: And after such Choice, the Names of the Parties chosen, are to be written on an Indenture under the Seals of the Electors; which Indenture so sealed and tacked to the Writ, shall be the Sheriff's Return thereof. And by the 23 H. 6. cap. 7. it is enacted, That the Sheriff after Receipt of the Writ, shall deliver a Precept under his Seal to every Mayor and Bailiff of Cities and Boroughs within his County, reciting the Writ, and requiring them to chuse two Citizens and Burgesses to come to the Parliament; and such Mayors and Head Officers, are to make Return of the Precept to the Sheriff, by Indenture, &c. whereupon the Sheriff is enabled to make a good Return of the Writ: The Sheriff is to make Election between the Hours of eight and eleven in the Forenoon; and if any Knight, Citizen, or Burgess, returned by the Sheriff shall be put out, and the Name of another put in, diverse Penalties are incurred; Sheriffs acting contrary to this Statute, and not returning a Member duly elected, are subject to a Forfeiture of 100*l.* recoverable by Action of Debt; and Officers of Corporations, making false Returns, liable to a Penalty of 40*l.* Et c. It has been adjudged on this Act, that though no Election should be made of any Knight of the

Shire, but between eight and eleven of the Clock in the Forenoon; if the Election be begun within that Time, and cannot be determined in those Hours, it may be made after. 4 Inst. 48. And if any Electors give their Voices before the Precept for Election is read and published, it will be of no Force; for after the Precept is thus read, Et c. they may alter their Voices and make a new Election. Ibid. 49. The Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. ordains, if any Person shall return a Member to serve in Parliament for any Place, contrary to the Determination in the House of Commons of the Right of Election for such Place, the Return so made shall be judged a false Return; and the Party making it may be prosecuted, and double Damages with Costs recovered against him: Officers wilfully and falsely returning more Persons than are required to be chosen by the Writ or Precept, the like Remedy may be had against them; and all Contracts, Promises, Et c. to return any Member of Parliament, are not only declared void, but the Makers or Givers of the Contracts, Et c. or of any Gift or Reward to procure a false or double Return, shall forfeit 300*l.* one Third to the King, another to the Informer, and the other Third to the Poor of the Place, and to be recovered in any Court of Record at Westminster, &c. By 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 25. When any new Parliament shall be called, there shall be forty Days between the Tests and Returns of the Writs; the Lord Chancellor, Et c. is to issue out Writs for Election of Members of Parliament, with as much Expedition as may be; and the several Writs shall be delivered to the proper Officers for Execution, who are to indorse the Day of the Receipt on the Back of the Writ, and forthwith make out the Precepts to each Borough, Et c. which are to be delivered to the Officers of every such Borough, within three Days, and they must likewise indorse the Day of Receipt, and immediately cause publick Notice to be given of the Time and Place of Election, and proceed to Election thereupon in eight Days: For electing of Knights of the Shire, the Sheriff is to hold his County Court at the most publick and usual Place, and there proceed in the Election at the next Court, unless it fall out to be within six Days after the Receipt of the Writ, and then the same is to be adjourned, giving ten Days Notice of the Election; if the Election be not determined on View, but a Poll is demanded, the Sheriff is to take the same, and likewise a Scrutiny, and he or his Under-Sheriff shall appoint and swear Clerks for that Purpose, Et c. The County-Court is not to be adjourned to any other Place, without the Consent of the Candidates; nor shall any unnecessary Adjournments be made, but the Poll to proceed; also every Sheriff, Et c. is to deliver a Copy of the Poll to any Person desiring it; and Officers for every wilful Offence against this Act, are subject to a Forfeiture of 500*l.* And by 6 Geo. 2. cap. 23. the County Court for electing Knights of the Shire in Parliament, may be adjourned over from Day to Day, until the Election, Et c. is determined; but not to a Monday, or Friday, &c. only, which will be void. The 10 & 11 W. 3. directs, That the Sheriff or other Officer having the Execution and Return of Writs of Summons for Parliament, shall on or before the Day of Meeting of the Parliament, and with all Expedition, not exceeding fourteen Days after Election, make Returns to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery to be filed, on Pain of forfeiting 500*l.* And the returning Officer, within twenty Days after the Election, is to deliver over to the Clerk of the Peace, all the Poll-Books on Oath made before two Justices, to be preserved among the Records of the Sessions of the Peace, Et c. 10 Ann. cap. 23. In double Returns, it has been formerly merly a general Practice in the House of Commons, that neither one nor the other should sit in the House, until it be decided; Anno 1640. two Returns were made for Great Marlow, and in both Indentures one Person was returned, and he was admitted to sit, but the others ordered to withdraw until the Question was determined: And in the same Year, it was ordered, That where some are returned by the Sheriff or such other Officer as by Law hath Power to return, and others returned by private Hands; in such Case, those that are returned by the Sheriff or other Officer, shall sit until the Election is quashed by the House. Ordin. 1640. If one be duly elected Knight, Citizen, or Burgess, and the Sheriff, &c. return another, the Return must be reformed and amended; and he that is duly elected, is to be inserted, for the Election is the Foundation, and not the Return. 4 Inst. 49. In Action of the Case, &c. the Plaintiff declared, that he was duly elected a Member of Parliament for such a Borough, and the Defendant returned two other Persons; and that he petitioned the House of Commons, and was adjudged to be duly elected, and his Name ordered to be inserted in the Roll, and the Name of the other to be razed out: The Plaintiff had a Verdict; but it was adjudged in Arrest of Judgment, that this Declaration was not founded on the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. because that Statute gave an Action where there was none before, and therefore the Fact must be laid agreeable to it, which not being done, the Defendant had Judgment. 2 Salk. 504. The Court will not meddle in an Action upon a double Return, until it is determined in Parliament. Lutw. 88. And it hath been holden that for a double Return, no Action lay before the Statute 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. because it is the only Method that the Sheriff had to secure himself; and when the Right was decided in the Parliament, then one Indenture was taken off the File, so that it is not then a double Return; neither can the Party have an Action for a false Return, for the Matter may be determined in the House whether true or false; and if so, there will be an Inconvenience in contrary Resolutions, if they should determine it one Way, and the Courts at Law another Way; but after a Dissolution the Action may lie for a false Return, as then the Right cannot be determined in Parliament. 2 Salk. 502. A double Return is of the same Nature with a false Return, as to Action on the Case; in both it is grounded on the Falsity; but there is another Reason why this Action will not lie for a double Return, (viz.) because the Law doth not take any Notice of such a Return, it is only allowed by the Usage of Parliament, and in Cases wherein the proper Officer cannot determine who is chosen; therefore when he doubts, he makes a double Return, and submits the Choice to the Determination of the House of Commons; and if that House doth admit such Returns, and make Determinations on them, it will be hard for the Law to subject a Man to the Action only for submitting a Fact to be determined by a Court, which hath a proper Jurisdiction to determine it: And by Reason of the Variety of Opinions, that an Action in this Case would lie, and would not; it hath been enacted by Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. That the last Determination of the House of Commons concerning the Right of Election, is to be pursued. 2 Lev. 114. 1 Nels. Abr. 30. A Member elected and returned for several Places, is to make his Choice for which Place he will serve; and if he doth not, by the Time which the House shall appoint, the House may determine for what Place he shall continue a Member, and Writs shall go out for the other Place. Candidates are not to make Presents of Money to, or treat, &c. Electors, after the Teste of the Writ of Summons, or issuing out the Writs of Election, or after any Place of a Member becomes vacant; if they do, for this Bribery they shall be incapacitated to serve as Members. 7 W. 3. c. 4. And no Officers of the Excise; Post-Office, &c. are to make any Interest for Members of Parliament, on Pain of forfeiting 100*l.* and Disability, &c. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 20. By a late Act, an Oath is to be taken by Electors of Members of Parliament, That they have not received or had any Money, Gift, Reward, Office, Place or Employment, or any Promise for Money, Gift, Place, &c. to them or their Use, to give their Votes; and if they ask, take, or contract for any Money, or Reward, by Gift or other Device, to give or refuse their Votes, or if any Persons by Gift, &c. corruptly procure any one to give his Vote, they shall forfeit 500*l.* and be disabled to vote in any Election of Members of Parliament, and to hold any Office, or Franchise, &c. And Officers admitting Persons to Vote, without taking the aforesaid Oath, if demanded, incur a Forfeiture of 100*l.* Likewise an Oath is to be administered to Returning Officers, That they have not received any Money, Gift, Office, Place, &c. or Promise for such, for making any Returns, &c. Stat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 24. Persons are to be prosecuted within two Years, after any Offence against this last Statute, for preventing Bribery and Corruption in Elections of Persons to serve in Parliament, or shall not be liable to any Incapacity or Forfeiture, &c. by the 9 Geo. 2. c. 38. And when Election of any Members of Parliament shall be made, the Secretary at War shall issue Orders for the Removal of all Soldiers quartered in any City, Town, or Borough, where such Election shall be, one Day at least before, to the Distance of two or more Miles; and not to make a nearer Approach, until after the Poll taken is ended, &c. But this not to extend to the Liberty of Westminster, &c. in Respect of his Majesty's Guards; nor to fortified Places, &c. Stat. 8 Geo. 2. cap. 30.

Parliaments holden, and Proceedings in. All Parliaments are to be held without Force. 7 Ed. 1. Before the Conquest, Parliaments were held twice every Year: The 4 Ed. 3. enacted, That a Parliament should be holden once a Year, and oftner if necessary; and the 36 Ed. 6. requires a Parliament to be held every Year. But by the Means of Cardinal Wolsey, the Favourite of King Hen. 8. a Parliament was held but once in fourteen Years during that Reign; which was upon a remarkable Occasion, viz. to attain the Duke of Buckingham. The Stat. 16 Car. 2. cap. 1. ordains, That the Sitting and Holding of Parliaments shall not be discontinued above three Years. And the 6 W. & M. cap. 2. enacts, That new Parliaments shall be chosen once in three Years; and no Parliament continue longer than three Years. But by 1 Geo. 1. c. 38. The Time of Continuance of Parliaments is enlarged to seven Years; to be computed from the Day appointed for their Meeting, by the Writ of Summons. The occasional Law, 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. cap. 1. declared, That the Lords and Commons convened at Westminster, were the two Houses of Parliament, notwithstanding the Want of any Writ of Summons, or other Defect of Form, &c. Though the Stat. 12 and 13 Car. 2. c. 1. made it very Penal, for any Persons to affirm that the Houses of Parliament have a Legislative Power without the King. An old Statute ordains, That every Person and Commonalty, having Summons to Parliament, shall come thither, in Pain to be amerced, or otherwise punished: And if the Sheriff doth not summon them, he shall likewise be amerced, &c. 5 R. 2. c. 4. On the holding of a Parliament, the King the first Day sits in the upper House, and by himself or the Lord Chancellor, shews the Reasons of their Meeting; and then the Commons are commanded commanded to chuse their Speaker, which they having done, two or three Days afterwards he is presented to the King, and after some Speeches is allowed, and sent down to the House of Commons; when the Business of Parliament proceeds. 12 Rep. 115. A Parliament cannot begin on the Return of the Writs, without the Presence of the King, in Person, or by Representation; and by Representation two Ways, either by a Guardian of England, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, when the King is out of the Realm; or by Commission, to certain Noble Lords in Case of Indisposition, &c. when his Majesty is at Home. 4 Inst. 6, 7. And if any Parliament is to be holden before a Guardian of the Realm, there must be a special Commission to begin the Parliament; but the Teste of the Writs of Summons is to be in the Guardian's Name: And by an ancient Law, if the King being beyond the Seas, cause a Parliament to be summoned in this Kingdom, by Writ under the Teste of his Lieutenant; and after the King returns hither, the Parliament shall proceed without any new Summons. 8 H. 5. In the fifth Year of King Henry 5. a Parliament was held, before John Duke of Bedford, Brother to the King, and Guardian of the Kingdom. Anno 3 Edu. 4. a Parliament was begun in the Presence of the King, and prorogued to a further Day; and then William Archbishop of York, the King's Commissary by Letters Patent, held the same Parliament, and made an Adjournment, &c. And 28 Eliz. the Queen by Commission under the Great Seal, reciting, that for urgent Occasions she could not be present in her Royal Person, did authorise John Whitgift Archbishop of Canterbury, William Lord Burleigh, Lord Treasurer of England, and Henry Earl of Derby Lord Steward, to hold a Parliament, &c. Ad faciendum omnia & singula, &c. necnon ad Parliamentum Adjornand' & Prorogand', &c. And in the upper Part of the Page, above the Beginning of the Commission is written, Domina Regina Representatur per Commissionarios, viz. &c. These Commissioners sat on a Form before the Cloth of State, and after the Commission read, the Parliament proceeded. A Parliament may be holden at any Place the King shall assign; but it ought not to be dissolved as long as any Bill remains undiscussed, and Proclamation must be made in the Parliament, that if any Person have any Petition, he shall come in and be heard, and if no Answer be given, it is intended that the Publick are satisfied. Lex Constitution. 157. In former Times, by the Death of the King during the Sitting of the Parliament, the Parliament was ipso facto dissolved: But by the Stat. 4 Ann. c. 8. A Parliament sitting or in Being, at the Demise of the King, shall continue for six Months; unless prorogued or Dissolved, by such Person to whom the Crown shall come; by 1 and 12 W. 3. All Orders of Parliament determine by Prorogation; and one taken by Order of the Parliament, after their Prorogation, may be discharged on an Habeas Corpus, as well as after a Dissolution: But the Dissolution of a Parliament doth not alter the State of Impeachments, brought up by the Commons in a preceding Parliament. Raym. 120. 1 Lew. 384. And it hath been resolved by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, that Cases of Appeals and Writs of Error, shall continue, and are to be proceeded in Statu quo, &c. as they stood at the Dissolution of the last Parliament. Raym. 381. A Prorogation of the Parliament is always by the King, and in this Case the Sessions must begin de Novo; and if a Parliament is prorogued upon the Return of the Writ of Summons, it begins at the End of the Prorogation: An Adjournment is by each House, and the Sessions continues notwithstanding such Adjournment. 1 Mod. 242. By a Prorogation of a Parliament, there is a Session; and every several Session of Parliament is in Law a several Parliament: Though if it be only an Adjournment, there is no Session; and when a Parliament is called and doth sit, but is dissolved without any Act passed, or Judgment given, it is no Session of Parliament, but a Convention. 4 Inst. 27. If a Parliament is assembled, and several Orders are made, and Writs of Error brought in the House of Peers, and several Bills agreed on, but none signed; this is but a Convention, and no Parliament, or Sessions of Parliament: But every Session, in which the King signs a Bill, is a Parliament; and so every Parliament is a Session. 1 Roll. Rep. 29. Hutt. 61. And a Session doth continue, until it is prorogued or dissolved. The Parliament from the first Day of sitting is called the first Session of Parliament, &c. Raym. 120. And the Courts of Justice ex Officio are to take Notice of the Beginning, Prorogation, and Ending of every Parliament; also of all general Statutes: And Acts of Parliament take Effect from the Beginning of the Parliament, unless it be otherwise ordered by the Acts. 1 Lev. 296. 4 Rep. Hob 111. On a Prorogation, such Bills as have passed either or both Houses, not having received the Royal Assent, must fall: For there can be no Act of Parliament, without the Consent of the Lords, and Commons, and the Royal Fiat of the King, giving his Consent Personally, or by Commission; and by the Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 21. the King may pass Acts by Commission under the Great Seal, signed by his Hand; and such Acts shall be of equal Force as if the King were present in Person. Every Man in Judgment of Law is Party to an Act of Parliament; after the Royal Assent is given, it is the Prince's, and whole Realm's Deed. The Determination of the High Court of Parliament, being presumed to be the Act of every particular Subject, who is either present personally, or consenting by his Representative. Publick Bills or Acts of Parliament are commonly drawn by such Members of the House of Commons as are most inclined to the Effecting the Good of the Publick, particularly in Relation to the Bill designed, taking Advice thereupon; and Acts for the Revival, Repeal, or Continuance of Statutes, are penned by Lawyers, Members of the House, appointed for that Purpose: And in the bringing in and passing of Statutes, the following Formalities are observ'd, viz. Any Member of Parliament may move for a Bill to be brought in, except it be for imposing a Tax, which is to be done by Order of the House; and being granted, the Person making the Motion, and those who second it, are ordered to prepare and bring in the same: When the Bill is ready, some of the Members ordered to prepare it, present it; and upon a Question being agreed to, it has the first Reading by the Clerk at the Table; after this the Clerk delivers the Bill to the Speaker, who, standing up, declares the Substance of it; and if any Debate happens, he puts the Question, whether the same shall have a second Reading; And sometimes upon Motion appoints a Day for it; for publick Bills, unless upon extraordinary Occasions, are seldom read more than once in a Day, the Members being allowed convenient Time to consider of them: If nothing be said against a Bill, the ordinary Course is to proceed without a Question; but if the Bill be generally disliked, a Question is sometimes put, whether the Bill shall be rejected? And if it be rejected, it cannot be proposed any more that Sessions: When a Bill hath been read a second Time, any Member may move to have the same amended; but no Member of the House is admitted to speak more than once in a Debate, except the Bill be read more than once that Day, or the whole House is turned into a Committee; and after some Time spent in Debates, the Speaker collecting the Sense of the House, reduces the

the same to a Question, which he submits to the House, and is put to the Vote: And a Question is to be put, after the Bill is so read a second Time, whether it shall be committed? which is either to a Committee of the whole House or a private Committee, as the Importance of the Bill shall require; and this Committee is to report their Opinion of the Bill, with the Amendments, to the House, the Chairman having caused the Clerk attending to read the Bill, and read it himself, putting every Clause to the Question, &c. The Chairman makes his Report at the Side Bar of the House, reading all the Alterations made, and then delivers the same to the Clerk of the Parliament; who likewise reads all the Amendments, and the Speaker puts the Question, whether they shall be read a second Time? And if that be agreed unto, he reads the Amendments himself, and puts the Question, whether the Bill so amended shall be ingrossed, and read a third Time some other Day? And then the Speaker takes the Bill in his Hand, holds it up, and puts the last Question, whether the Bill shall pass? If a Majority of Voices are for it, then the Bill passes; and it is sent up to the House of Lords, where, when it is twice read, the Question is to be for Commitment; or if it be not committed, then it is to be read a third Time, and the next Question to be for its Passing; and upon the third Reading of the Bill, any Member may speak against the whole Bill to throw out the same, or for Amendment of any Clause thereof; and if it be amended, it is to be sent back again to the Commons for their Concurrence, and being returned, is then passed in the House of Lords, and ready for the Royal Assent. If a Bill passes in one House, but a Demur happens upon it when sent to the other House, in this Case a Conference is demanded; wherein certain deputed Members of each House meet in the Painted Chamber, and Debate the Matter; and when they have agreed, the Bill passed is brought to the King in the House of Lords, where having his Royal Robes on, he declares the Royal Assent, by the Clerk of the Parliament. Pract. Solic. in Parliam. 397, 398. As for private Bills, Leave is to be obtained by Petition, &c. to bring in the same; and the Substance thereof is to be set forth, until which a Bill is not to be offered; and when the Petition is read, and Leave given to bring in the Bill, whereupon it is accordingly brought into the House, the Persons concerned and affected by it may be heard by themselves or Counsel at the Bar, or before a Committee, to whom such Bill is referred; (and in Case of a Peer, he shall be admitted to come within the Bar of the House of Commons, and sit covered on a Stool whilst the same is debating). And after Counsel is heard on both Sides, and the House is satisfied with the Contents of the Bill, it is committed, and passed, &c. All Bills, Motions and Petitions, are by Order of Parliament to be entered on the Parliament Rolls, although they are denied, and never proceed to the Establishment of a Statute, together with the Answers. Lex Constitution. 154. The Speaker of the House of Commons is not allowed to persuade or dissuade in passing of a Bill, only to make a short Narrative of it; opening the Parts of the Bill, so that all may understand it; if any Question be upon the Bill, he is to explain, but not enter into Argument or Dispute; and he is not to vote, except the House is equally divided: When Mr. Speaker desires to speak, he ought to be heard without Interruption; and when the Speaker stands up, the Member standing up is to sit down: If two stand up to speak to a Bill, he that would speak against the Bill, if it be known, is to be first heard; otherwise he that was first up, which is to be determined by the Speaker: No Member is to be taken down, unless by Mr. Speaker, in such Cases as the House do not think fit to admit; and if any Person speak impertinently, or besides the Question, the Speaker is to interrupt him, and know the Pleasure of the House whether he shall be further heard: But if he speaks not to the Matter, it may be moderated: And whosoever hisses or disturbs any Person in his Speech, shall answer it at the Bar of the House. In the enacting of Laws, and other Proceedings in Parliament; the Lords give their Voices in their House, from the puiſne Lord ſeriatim, by the Word Content, or Not Content: The Manner of Voting in the House of Commons, is by Yea and No; and if it be difficult to determine which are the greater Number, the House divides, and four Tellers are appointed by the Speaker, two of each Side, to Number them, the Y's going out, and the No's staying in; and thereof Report is made to the House. When the Members of the House go forth, none is to stir, until Mr. Speaker rises from his Seat; and then all the Rest are to follow after.

If Goods pauned are perishable, and no Day being set for Payment of the Money, they lie in Pawn till spoiled, without any Default in him that hath them in Keeping; the Party that pauned them shall bear the Damage, for it shall be adjudged his Fault that he did not redeem them sooner; and he to whom pauned may have Action of Debt for his Money: Also if the Goods are taken from him, he may have Action of Trespals, &c. Co. Litt. 89, 208. Where Goods are pauned for Money borrowed, without a Day set for their Redemption, they are redeemable at any Time during the Life of the Borrower. They may be redeemed after the Death of him to whom pauned; but not after the Death of him who pauned the Goods. 2 Cro. 245. But where a Day is appointed, and the Pawner dieth before the Day; his Executors may redeem the Pawn at the Day, and this shall be Affets in their Hands. 1 Bulst. 30, 31. Goods pauned generally, without any Day of Redemption, if the Pawner dies, the Pawn is absolute and irredeemable; if the Paunee dies, it is not so. Noy 137. 1 Bulst. 9. If Goods are redeemable at a Day certain, it must be strictly observed; and the Paunee, in Case of Failure of Payment at the Day, may sell them. 1 Roll. Rep. 181, 215. In other Cases, Brokers commonly stay but a Year for their Money lent on Pawns, at the End of which, if not redeemed, they sell the Goods. Law. Secur. 99. He who borrows Money on a Pawn is to have again the Pledge when he repays it, or he may have Action for the Detainer; and his Tender of the Money revests the Special Property. 2 Cro. 244. And it hath been held, that where a Broker or Paunee refuses upon Tender of the Money to redeliver the Goods in Pawn, he may be indicted; because being secretly pauned, it may be impossible to prove a Delivery for Want of Witnesses if Action of Trover should be brought for them. Pasch. 5 W. 3. 3 Salk. 268. Adjudged, that if Goods are lost, after the Tender of the Money, the Paunee is liable to make them good to the Owner for after Tender he is a wrongful Detainer, and he who keeps Goods wrongfully must answer for them at all Events, his wrongful Detainer being the Occasion of the Loss: But if they are lost before a Tender, it is otherwise; the Paunee is not liable if his Care of Keeping them was exact; and the Law requires nothing of him, but only that he should use an ordinary Care in Keeping of the Goods, that they may be restored on Payment of the Money for which they were deposited; and in such Case if the Goods are lost, the Paunee hath still his Remedy against the Pawner for the Money lent. 2 Salk. 522 3 Salk. 268. If the Pawn is laid up, and the Paunee robb'd, he is not answerable: Though if the Paunee useth the Thing, as a Jewel, Watch, &c. that will not be the worse for Wearing, which he may do, it is at his Peril; and if he is robbed, he is answerable to the Owner, as the Using occasioned the Loss &c. Ibid. If the Pawn is of such a Nature that the Keeping is a Charge to the Paunee, as a Cow or a Horse, &c. he may milk the one, or ride the other, and this shall go in Recompence for his Keeping: Things which will grow the worse by Usage as Apparel, &c. he may not use. Owen 124. A Person borrows 100*l.* on the Pawn of Jewels, and takes a Note from the Lender acknowledging them to be in his Hands, for securing the Money; after- ward wards he borrows several other Sums of the same Person, for which he gave his Notes, without taking any Notice of the Jewels. As in this Case it was natural to think the Lender would not have advanced the Sums on Note only, but on the Credit of the Pledge in his Hands before; it was decreed in Equity, that if the Borrower would have his Jewels he must pay all the Money due on the Notes. Preced. Canc. 419, 421.

Pannage, In Woods and Forests for Swine. Vide Pannage.

Payment of Money before the Day appointed, is in Law a Payment at the Day; for it cannot, in Presumption of Law, be any Prejudice to him to whom the Payment is made, to have his Money before the Time; and it appears by the Party's Receipt of it, that it is for his own Advantage to receive it then, otherwise he would not do it: Yet it is said, that the Defendant must not plead, that the Plaintiff accepted it in full Satisfaction; but that he paid it in full Satisfaction. 5 Rep. 117. Payment of a lesser Sum in Satisfaction of a greater, cannot be a Satisfaction for the Whole, unless the Payment be before the Day: Though the Gift of an Horse, or Robe, &c. in Satisfaction, may be good. Ibid. And where Damages are uncertain, a less Thing may be done in Satisfaction of a greater. 4 Mod. Rep. 89. Upon Solvit ad Diem pleaded, it is good Evidence to prove Payment at any Time after the Day, and before the Action brought; and Payment, although after the Day, may be pleaded to any Action of Debt, upon Bill, Bond or Judgment, or Scire facias upon a Judgment. 2 Lill. Abr. 287. Statute 4 & 5 Ann. But though Payment after the Day, is good by Way of Discharge, it will not be so by Way of Satisfaction. 4 Mod. 250. Payment is no Plea to Debt on a Covenant, or an Obligation, without Acquittance; but if the Obligation have a Condition, it is otherwise. Dyer 25, 160. If a Bond, &c. be for Payment of Money, and no Day is set, Damages cannot be recovered till a Demand is made. Bridgm. 20. For Payment of Rent there are said to be four Times; 1. A voluntary Time, that is not satisfactory, and yet good to some Purpose; as where a Lessee pays his Rent before the Day, this gives Seisin of the Rent, and enables him to whom paid to bring his Assise for it. 2. A Time voluntary and satisfactory in some Cases; when it is paid the Morning of the last Day, and the Lessor dies before the End of the Day, this is a good Payment to bind the Heir or Executor, but not the King. 3. The legal, absolute and satisfactory Time, which is a convenient Time before the last Instant of the last Day, and then it must be paid. 4. Is satisfactory, and not voluntary, but coercive, when forced and recovered by Suit at Law. Co. Litt. 200. 10 Rep. 127. Plouv. 172. Payment of Money shall be directed by him who pays it, and not by the Receiver, &c. 5 Rep. 117. Cro. Eliz. 68. In the Payment of a Testator's Debts by Executors, they are to pay these first; on Judgments, Mortgages, Rent due by Lease, &c. then Bonds and Bills, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 927. Vide Bond and Rent.

Peace, (Pax) In the general Signification, is opposite to War; but particularly with us it signifies a quiet and inoffensive Behaviour towards the King and his People. Lamb. lib. 1. c. 2. All Authority for keeping of the Peace comes originally from the King, who is the supreme Officer or Magistrate for Preservation thereof; though it is said the King cannot take a Recognizance of the Peace, because it is a Rule in Law that no one can take any Recognizance, who is not either a Justice of Record, or by Commission: Also it is certain, that no Duke, Earl, or Baron, as such, have any greater Power to keep the Peace, than meer private Persons. Lamb. lib. 1.

cb. 3. Dalt. cb. 1. But the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, the Lord High Steward, the Lord Marshal, and every Justice of the King's Bench, have as incident to their Offices, &c. a general Authority to keep the Peace throughout the Realm, and to award Process for the Surety of the Peace, and take Recognizances for it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 32. And every Court of Record hath Power to keep the Peace within his own Precinct: As have likewise Sheriffs of Counties, who are intrusted with the Custody of the Counties, and consequently have by it an implied Power of Keeping the Peace within the same; and Coroners may bind Persons to the Peace who make an Affray in their Presence; but these last may not grant Process of the Peace, &c. Ibid. It is said every Man is to be a Constable, to keep the Peace amongst others, and the Justices of Peace are to do the same especially; and no Man may break it. 3 Shep. Abr. 14. Peace shall be kept, and Justice and Right duly administered to all Persons.. Stat. 1 R. 2. c. 2, &c. See Justice of Peace and Good Behaviour.

Peace of God and the Church, (Pax Dei & Ecclesie) Was anciently used for the Rest and Cessation, which the King's Subjects had from Trouble and Suits at Law between the Terms. According to Spelman, Pax Dei Tempus dicitur cultui Divino adhibitum, etque appellatione omnes Dies Dominici, Festa & Vigiliae censentur. Spelm. Gloss.

Peace of the King, (Pax Regis) Is that Peace and Security, for Life and Goods, which the King promises to all his People under his Protection: And where an Outlawry is reversed, a Person is restored to the King's Peace, called Ad Pacem redire. Bract. lib. 3. c. 11. There is, besides these, the Peace of the King's Highway, which is the Immunity that the King's Highway hath to be free from Annoyance or Molestation. The Peace of the Plough, whereby the Plough and the Plough Cattle are secured from Distresses. F. N. B. 90. And Fairs have been said to have their Peace; because no Man might be troubled in them for any Debt contracted elsewhere.

Pecia, A Piece or small Quantity of Ground — Cum duabus Peciis, &c. diæ terre pertinentibus. Paroch. Antiq. 240.

Pectorale, A Word often met with in old Writings; and most Authors agree, that it is the same with the Garment call Rationale, which the High Priest in the old Law wore on his Shoulders as a Sign of Perfection, and the High Priests of the new Law wear as a Sign of the greatest Virtue: It is by some taken to be that Part of the Pall which covers the Breast of the Priest, and from thence termed Pectorale; but it is by all agreed to be the richest Part of that Garment, embroidered with Gold, and adorned with precious Stones. Item Capa cum Pectorale optime brendato cum rotundis Pectoralibus aurifrigiis, &c. humerali vincato de Fino auro brendato, & lapidibus insertis, &c.

Pectorzel, Armour for the Breast, a Breast-plate or Petrel, for a Horse; from the Lat. Pectus: It is mentioned in the Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 3.

Peculiar, (Fr. Peculier, i. e. Private) Is a particular Parish or Church, that hath Jurisdiction within itself, and Power to grant Administration or Probate of Wills, &c. exempt from the Ordinary. There are Royal Peculiars, and Archbishops Peculiars: The King's Chapel is a Royal Peculiar, exempted from all Spiritual Jurisdiction, and reserved to the immediate Government of the King himself; and there are also some peculiar Ecclesiastical Jurisdictions belonging to the King, which formerly appertained to Monasteries and Religious Houses. Wood's Inst. 504. It is an ancient Privilege of the See of Canterbury, that wheresoever any Manors or Advowsons do belong to it, they forthwith become exempt from the Ordinary,

Ordinary,

Ordinary, and are reputed Peculiaris of that See; not because they are under no Ordinary, but because they are not under the Ordinary of the Diocese, &c. For the Jurisdiction is annexed to the Courts of Archbishops, and the Judge thereof may originally cite to these Peculiaris of the Archbishop. Ibid. The Court of Peculiaris of the Archbishop of Canterbury, hath a particular Jurisdiction in the City of London, and in other Dioceses, &c. within his Province, in all fifty-seven Peculiaris. 4 Inst. 338. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. There are some Peculiaris which belong to Deans and Chapters, or a Prebendary, exempted from the Archdeacon only; they are derived from the Bishop, of ancient Composition, and may be visited by the Bishop in his primary or triennial Visitation: In the mean Time an Official of the Dean and Chapter, or Prebendary, is the Judge; and from hence the Appeal lies to the Bishop of the Diocese. Wood. 504. Appeal lieth from other peculiar Courts to the King in Chancery. Stat. 25 H. 8. The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have a peculiar Jurisdiction; and the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury have a large Peculiar within that Diocese; so have the Dean and Chapter of Litchfield, &c. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1240, 1241. There is Mention in our Books of Peculiaris of Archdeacons; but they are not properly Peculiaris, only subordinate Jurisdictions; and a Peculiar is prima facie to be understood of him who hath a coordinate Jurisdiction with the Bishop. Hob. 185. Med. Ca. 308. If an Archdeacon hath a peculiar Authority by Commission, this shall not take away the Authority of the Bishop; but if he hath Authority and Jurisdiction by Prescription, it is said it shall. 3 Roll. Rep. 357. Where a Man dies intestate, leaving Goods in several Peculiaris, it has been held that the Archbishop is to grant Administration. Sid. 90. 5 Mod. 239.

Pecunia, An Estate in Money, Goods and Chattels, &c. Leg. Ed. Confess. c. 10.

Pecunia Ecclesiæ, Has been used for the State of the Church. Till Animadu. on Selden's Tithe.

Pecunia Sepulchralis, Money paid to the Priest at the Opening of the Grave, for the Benefit of the Deceased's Soul. Leg. Canonic. 102. And this the Saxons called Sanslead, Sanscot, and Anima Symbolum. Spelm. de Concil. Tom. 1. fol. 517.

Pecuniary. All Punishments of Offences were anciently Pecuniary, by Mulf, &c. See Fine.

Pedage, (Pedagium) Signifies Money given for the Passing by Foot or Horse through any Country, Pedagium à Pede dictum est, quod a transseuntibus solvitur, &c. Cassian. de Conf. Burgun. pag. 118. Pedagia dicuntur quæ dantur a transseuntibus in locum constitutum à Principe, &c. Et capiens Pedagium, debet stare salvam Conductum, & Territorium ejus tenere securum. Spelm. This Word is likewise mentioned by Mat. Paris. Anno 1256. And King Edw. 3. granted to Sir Nele Loring Pedagium Sancti Macbarii, &c. Rot. Pasch. 22 Ed. 3.

Pedale, A Foot-Cloth, or Piece of Tapestry laid on the Ground to tread on for greater State and Ceremony. Ingulph. pag. 41.

Pedis abscissio, Cutting off the Foot, was a Punishment of Criminals in former Times inflicted here instead of Death; as appears by the Laws of William, called The Conqueror, viz. Interdicimus ne quis occidatur vel suspendatur pro aliqua Culpa, sed amantur Oculi, Abcendantur Pedes, vel Testiculi, vel Manus. Leg. Will. 1. cap. 7. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 38. Bract. lib. 3. c. 32.

Pedones, A Word used for Foot-Soldiers. Simon de Burb. Anno 1085.

Pect, or Pier, (Fr. Pierre) Is a Fortress or Defence made against the Force of the Sea; for the better Security of Ships that lie at Harbour in any Haven: Such as the Pier of Dover. Stat. 14 Car. 2.

cap. 27. And the Pier of Great Yarmouth, mentioned 22 Car. 2. c. 2.

Petragium, A Duty or Imposition for Maintenance of a Sea Pier: Also the Dignity of the Lords or Peers of the Realm.

Peers, (Parus) Signifies in our Common Law those that are impanelled in an Inquest for the Trial of any Man, and convicting or clearing him of the Offence for which he is called in Question: And by the Laws and Customs of England, every Man is to be tried by his Peers or Equals. Kitch. 78. Magna Charta, 9 H. 3. c. 29. And as every one of the Nobility being a Lord of Parliament, is a Peer or Equal to all the other Lords, though they are of several Degrees; so the Commons are Peers to one another, although distinguished as Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen, &c. 2 Inst. 29. 3 Inst. 31.

Peers of Fees. The Word Peer denoted originally one of the same Rank and Condition; afterwards 'tis said it was used for the Vassals or Tenants of the same Lord, who were obliged to serve and attend him in his Courts, being equal in Function: these were termed Peers of Fees, because holding Fees of the Lord, or for that their Business in Court was to sit and judge under their Lord of Disputes arising on Fees: But where there were too many such in one Lordship, the Lord usually chose out Twelve, who had the Title of Peers, by Way of Distinction and Eminence; from whom it is said we derive our common Juries, and other Peers. Cowel.

Peers of the Realm, (Parus Regni, Proceres) Are the Nobility of the Kingdom, and Lords of Parliament; who are divided into Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts and Barons: And the Reason why they are called Peers, is for that notwithstanding there be a Distinction of Dignities in our Nobility, yet in all publick Actions they are equal; as in their Votes of Parliament, and in Passing upon the Trial of any Nobleman. S. P. C. lib. 3. And this Appellation seems to be chiefly borrowed from France, from those twelve Peers that Charlemaine instituted in that Kingdom, (called Parus vel Patricii Franciæ) but we have applied this Name to all our Lords of Parliament, and have no set Number of Peers, for they are more or less at the King's Pleasure. All Nobility and Peerage is granted by the Crown; and created either by Writ, or Letters Patent: The Calling up a Lord by Writ is the most ancient Way, and gives a Fee simple in a Barony, without Words of Inheritance, viz. To him and his Heirs; but the King may limit the general Estate of Inheritance to Heirs Male, or the Heirs of the Body: And as soon as the Person called sits in Parliament by Virtue of this Writ, his Blood is ennobled, and he is a Peer; but if he dies before he sits in Parliament, he is not, the bare Direction and Delivery of the Writ having no Effect. 1 Inst. 9, 16. But Creation by Letters Patent is good, and makes the Peerage sure, although he never sits in Parliament, and his Heirs shall inherit the Honour pursuant to the Words of the Patent: Though the Persons created must in this Case have the Inheritance limited by apt Words; as to him and his Heirs, or the Heirs Male of his Body, Heirs of his Body, &c. otherwise he shall have no Inheritance. 1 Inst. 2 Inst. 48. The King may create either Man or Woman Noble for Life only: And Peerage may be gained for Life, by Act of Law; as if a Duke take a Wife, she is a Duchess in Law by the Intermarriage; so of a Marquess, Earl, &c. 1 Inst. 16: 9 Rep. 97. Also the Dignity of an Earl may descend to a Daughter, if there be no Son, who shall be a Countess; and if there are many Daughters, it is said, the King shall dispose of the Dignity to which Daughter he pleases. 1 Inst. 165. Wood's Inst. 42. It has been resolved in the House of Peers, that if a Person is summoned as a Baron to Parliament by Writ, and futing die, leaving two or more Daughters, who all dying, one of them only leaves Issue a Son; such Issue has a Right to demand a Seat in the House of Peers. Skinner's Rep. 441. Before the Time of King Edw. 3. there were but two Titles of Nobility, viz. Earls and Barons: The Barons were originally by Tenure, afterwards created by Writ, and after that by Patent; but as to Earls, they were always created by Letters Patent. Seld. 536. And King Hen. 6. created Edmond of Hadham, Earl of Richmond, by Patent, and granted him Precedency before all other Earls. Queen Mary 1. likewise granted to Henry Ratcliff, Earl of Suffex, a Privilege by Patent beyond any other Nobleman, viz. that he might at any Time be covered in her Presence, like unto the Grandees of Spain; and some few others of our Nobility have had conferred on them this Honour. The Stat. 31 H. 8. c. 10. settles the Precedency of the Lords of Parliament, and great Officers, &c. After whom, the Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts, and Barons, take Place according to their Antienty; but it is declared, that Precedence is in the King's Disposition. Thomas de la Warre was summoned to Parliament by Writ, Anno 3 Hen. 8. and William his Son, Anno 3 Ed. 6. was disabled by Attainder to claim any Dignity during his Life, but was afterwards called to Parliament by Queen Elizabeth, and sat there as puisne Lord, and died; then Thomas, the Son of the said William, petitioned the Queen in Parliament to be restored to the Place of Thomas his Grandfather; and all the Judges to whom it was referred were of Opinion that he should, because his Father's Disability was not absolute by Attainder, but only personal and temporary during his Life; and the Acceptance of the new Dignity by the Petitioner shall not hurt him, so that when the old and new Dignity are in one Person, the old shall be preferred. 11 Rep. 1. A Dignity of Earl, &c. is a Title by the Common Law; and if a Patentee be disturbed of his Dignity, the regular Course is to petition the King, who indorses it and sends it into Chancery. Strandf. Prærog. 72. 22 Edw. 3. And where Nobility is gained by Writ, or Patent, without Descents, it is triable by Record; but when it is gained by Matter of Fact, as by Marriage; or where Descents are pleaded, Nobility is triable per Pais. 22 Aff. 24. 3 Salk. 243. A Person petitioned the Lords in Parliament to be tried by his Peers; the Lords disallowed his Peerage, and dismissed the Petition: And it was held in this Case, that the Defendant's Right stood upon his Letters Patent, which could not be cancelled but by Scire facias; and that the Parliament could not give Judgment in a Thing which did not come in a judicial Way before that Court. 2 Salk. 510, 511. 3 Salk. 243. Where Peerage is claimed ratione Baronii, as by a Bishop, he must plead, that he is unus Partium Regni Angliæ; but if the Claim is ratione Nobilitatis, he need not plead otherwise than pursuant to his Creation. 4 Inst. 15. 3 Salk. 243. There are no feudal Baronies at this Day: But there are Barons by Succession, and those are the Bishops, who by Virtue of ancient Baronies held of the King, (into which the Possessions of their Bishopricks have been converted) are called by Writ to Parliament, and have Place in the House of Peers as Lords Spiritual: The Temporal Possessions of Bishops are held by their Service, to attend in Parliament when called; and that is in the Nature of a Barony; and all the Bishops together, it hath been said, made one of the three Estates in Parliament; but this is denied, because they have separately from the other Lords no negative Vote, &c. And though the Bishops are Lords of Parliament, and called by the King's Writ, and have a Vote there; they shall not be tried by the Peers, as they do not sit in Parliament by Reason of their Nobility, but of their

Baronies which they hold in Right of the Church: They are not of the Degree of Nobility; their Blood is not ennobled, nor their Peerage hereditary; so that they are to be tried by the Country, i. e. by a common Jury: And when one of the Nobility is to be tried by his Peers in Parliament, the Spiritual Lords must withdraw, and make their Proxies. 1 Inst. 70, 97, 110. 3 Inst. 30. 4 Inst. 1, 2. Some Bishops have been tried by Peers of the Realm; but it hath been when impeached by the House of Commons, as upon special Occasions many others have been who have not been Peers: And the Bishops may claim all the Privileges of the Lords Temporal; saving they cannot be tried by their Peers, because the Bishops cannot in like Cases pass upon the Trial of any other Peers, they being prohibited by Canon to be Judges of Life and Death, &c. When a Lord is newly created, he is introduced into the House of Peers, by two Lords of the same Form in their Robes, Garter King at Arms going before, and his Lordship is to present his Writ of Summons, &c. to the Lord Chancellor; which being read, he is conducted to his Place: And Lords by Descent, where Nobility comes down from the Ancestor, and is enjoyed by Right of Blood, are introduced with the same Ceremony, the presenting of the Writ excepted. Lex Constitution. 79. A Nobleman, whether a Native or Foreigner, who has his Nobility from a Foreign State, although the Title of Dignity be given him, (as the highest and lowest Degrees of Nobility are universally acknowledged) in all our legal Proceedings no Notice is taken of his Nobility, for he is no Peer: And the Laws of England prohibit all Subjects to receive any hereditary Title of Honour or Dignity, of the Gift of any Foreign Prince, without the Consent of the Sovereign. Ibid. 80, 81. Though Dignities of Peerage are granted from the Crown; they cannot be surrendered to the Crown, except it be in order to new and greater Honours, nor are they transferrable over, unless they relate to an Office: And notwithstanding there are Instances of Earldoms being transferred, and wherein one Branch of a Family sat in the House of Peers, by Virtue of a Grant from the other Branch, particularly in the Reigns of Hen. 3. and Ed. 2. These Precedents have been disallowed; and the Duke of Bedford, who in the Reign of King Edw. 4. was degraded for Poverty, and Want of Possessions to support his Title, lost not his Peerage by Surrender, but by the Authority of Parliament: And as Dignities may not be surrendered or transferred, without Authority of Parliament; so it hath been holden, that Honour and Peerage cannot be extinguished but by Act of Parliament, the King and Kingdom having an Interest in the Peerage of every Lord. Lex Constit. 85, 86, 87. An Earldom consists in Office, for the Defence of the Kingdom; and of Rents and Possessions, &c. and may be intailed as any other Office may, and as it concerns Land: But the Dignity of Peerage cannot be transferred by Fine, because it is a Quality affixed to the Blood, and so merely Personal, that a Fine cannot touch it. 2 Salk. 509. 3 Salk. 244. A personal Honour or Dignity may be forfeited, on committing Treason, &c. for it is implied by a Condition in Law, that the Person dignified shall be loyal; and the Office of an Earl, &c. is ad Consulendum Regem tempore Pacis, & Defendendum tempore Belli, therefore he forfeits it when he takes Counsel or Arms against the King. 7 Rep. 33. 2 Nels. Abr. 934. All Peers of the Realm are looked upon as the King's hereditary Counsellors: And as to the Privileges belonging to the Peerage, they are very great. At Common Law, it was lawful for any Peer to retain as many Chaplains as he would; but by Statute 21 Hen. 8. their Number is limited, viz. a Duke to have Six; Marquess or Earl Five; Viscount Four; Baron Three, &c. In many Cases, the Pro-

testation of Honour shall be sufficient for a Peer; as in Trial of Peers, they proceed upon their Honour, not upon Oath; and if any Peer is a Defendant in a Court of Equity, he shall put in his Answer upon his Honour; (though formerly it was to be on Oath): And in Action of Debt upon Account the Plaintiff being a Peer, it shall suffice to examine his Attorney, and not himself on Oath: But where a Peer is to answer Interrogatories, or make an Affidavit, or to be examined as a Witness, he must be upon his Oath. Bract. lib. 5. c. 9. 9 Rep. 49. 3 Inst. 29. W. Jones 152. 2 Salk. 512. A Subpoena shall not be awarded against a Peer out of the Chancery, in a Cause; but a Letter from the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, in Lieu thereof. In any Trial where a Peer of the Realm is Plaintiff or Defendant, there must be two or more Knights on the Jury. 2 Mod. 182. Though it is said, if a Knight is return'd on a Jury where a Nobleman is concerned, it is not material whether he appear and give his Verdict or not. 1 Mod. 226. A Peer may not be impanelled upon any Inquests, though the Cause hath Relation to two Peers; and if any Peer be return'd upon a Jury, a special Writ shall issue for his Discharge from Service. No Peer can be assessed towards the Militia, but by an Assessment made by Six or more Peers; and the Houses of Peers shall not be searched for Conventicles, but by Warrant under the Sign Manual, or in the Presence of the Lord Lieutenant, or one Deputy Lieutenant, and Two Justices of the Peace. 13 & 14 Car. 2. and 22 Car. 2. A Peer of the Realm being sent for by the King, in coming and returning may kill a Deer or Two in a Forest through which he passes; being done by the View of the Forester, or on blowing a Horn. 9 H. 3. If any Person shall divulge false Tales of any of the Lords of Parliament, by which Diffension may happen, or any Slander arise, the Offender shall be imprisoned, &c. Stat. Westm. 1. c. 34. A Nobleman menacing another Person, whereby such other Person fears his Life is in Danger, no Writ of Supplicavit shall issue, but a Subpoena; and when the Lord appears, instead of Surety, he shall only promise to keep the Peace. 35 H. 6. No Capias or Outlawry can be sued out against Peers of the Realm, in Civil Causes; and no Effoin lies against them. 9 Rep. 49. The Person of a Peer, as well out as in Parliament-time is privileged from all Arrests; unless for Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, &c. Peers are not to be arrested upon mean Process, or on Execution for Debt or Trespass, because they are presumed not only to attend the King and the Publick Affairs, but the Law doth intend that they have sufficient Lands in which they may be distrained: But they may be arrested or apprehended in Criminal Cases. 6 Rep. 52, 53. And though a Peer may not be arrested in his Body; yet his Estate may be sequestred for Debt, &c. upon a Prosecution after a Dissolution and Prorogation of Parliament, or Adjournment for above the Space of fourteen Days, when he refuses to appear and answer. 12 W. 3. See the 11 Geo. 2. c. 24. And of late Years, on Non appearance, &c. the Coaches and Horses of several Peers of this Kingdom, have out of the Time of Privilege been distrained, and Cattle seized upon their Lands, to compel them to appear: But the Privilege of a Peer is so great in Respect of his Person, that the King may not restrain him of his Liberty, without Order of the House of Lords, except it be in Cases of Treason, &c. A memorable Case wherein was that of the Earl of Arundel imprisoned by the King in the Reign of Charles 1. Every Lord of Parliament is allowed his Clergy in all Cases, where others are excluded by the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. 12. except wilful Murder; and cannot be denied Clergy for any other Felony wheretof it was grantable at Common Law, if it be not ousted by some Statute made since the first of King Ed. 6: 8. P. C. 130. And the Lord Murky, who was tried by his Peers for Murder, and found guilty of Man-slaughter, was discharged without Clergy. Sid. 277. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1181. Peers of the Realm are to be tried by their Peers in Parliament. Magna Charta, c. 29. and 15 Ed. 3. c. 2. But Noblemen of France, Ireland, &c. and Sons of Dukes or Earls who are Noble, and have the Title of Lords, but are not Lords of Parliament, shall not be permitted to have this Trial. 2 Inst. 50. A Peer shall be tried by his Peers, on Indictment for Treason, Murder or Felony; though in Appeal of Felony, he shall be tried by Freeholders: And Indictments of Peers for Treason or Felony, are to be found by Freeholders of the County, and then they plead before the Lord High Steward, &c. 1 Inst. 156. 3 Inst. 28.

On the Trials of Peers in Criminal Matters, all the Peers who have Right to sit and vote in Parliament, are to be duly summoned twenty Days at least before the Trial, to appear and vote at the same; every such Peer first taking the Oaths required by the Act 1 W. & M. &c. The Peer being indicted for the Treason or Felony, before Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, or in the King's Bench, if the Treason, &c. be committed in the County of Middlesex; then the King by Commission under the Great Seal, constitutes some Peer (generally the Lord Chancellor) Lord High Steward, who is Judge in these Cases; and the Commission commands the Peers of the Realm to be attendant on him, also the Lieutenant of the Tower, with the Prisoner, &c. A Certiorari is awarded out of the Chancery, to remove the Indictment before the Lord High Steward: And another Writ issues for the Bringing of the Prisoner; and the Lord Steward makes his Precepts for that Purpose, assigning a Day and Place, as in Westminster Hall inclosed with Scaffolds, &c. and for summoning the Peers, which are to be Twelve and above at least present: At the Day, the Lord High Steward takes Place under a Cloth of State; his Commission is read by the Clerk of the Crown, and he has a White Rod delivered him by the Usher, which being return'd, Proclamation is made, and Command given for Certifying of Indictments, &c. and the Lieutenant of the Tower to return his Writ, and bring the Prisoner to the Bar; after this, the Serjeant at Arms returns his Precept with Names of the Peers summoned, and they are called over, and answering to their Names are recorded, when they take their Places: The Ceremony thus adjusted, the High Steward declares to the Prisoner at the Bar, the Cause of their Assembly, assures him of Justice, and encourages him to answer without Fear; then the Clerk of the Crown reads the Indictment, and arraigns the Prisoner, and the High Steward gives his Charge to the Peers; this being over, the King's Counsel produce their Evidence for the King; and if the Prisoner hath any Matter of Law to plead, he shall be assigned Counsel; but if he pleads Not guilty, and has nothing farther, he shall be allowed no Counsel, for the Court are instead of it; after all the Evidence given for the King, and the Prisoner's Answer heard, the Prisoner is withdrawn from the Bar, and the Lords that are Triers go to some Place to consider of their Evidence: But the Lords can admit no Evidence, but in the Hearing of the Prisoner; they cannot have Conference with the Judges, (who attend on the Lord High Steward, and are not to deliver their Opinions before hand) but in the Prisoner's Hearing; nor can they send for the Opinion of the Judges, or demand it, but in open Court; and the Lord Steward cannot collect the

Evidence,

Evidence, or confer with the Lords, but in the Presence of the Prisoner; who is at first to require Justice of the Lords, and that no Question or Conference be had but in his Presence: Nothing is done in the Absence of the Prisoner, until the Lords come to agree on their Verdict; and then they are to be together as Juries until they are agreed, when they come again into Court and take their Places; and the Lord High Steward, publickly in open Court, demands of the Lords, beginning with the Puisne Lord, whether the Prisoner, calling him by his Name, be guilty of the Treason, &c. whereof he is arraigned, who all give in their Verdict, and he being found Guilty by a Majority of Votes more than Twelve, is brought to the Bar again, and the Lord Steward acquainting the Prisoner with the Verdict of his Peers, passes Sentence and Judgment accordingly: After which, an O Yes is made for dissolving of the Commission, and the White Rod is broken by the Lord High Steward; whereupon breaks up this Grand Assembly, which is esteemed the most solemn and august Court of Justice upon Earth. 2 Haruk. P. C. 421, 422, &c. The Lord High Steward gives no Vote himself on a Trial by Commission; but only on a Trial by the House of Peers, while the Parliament is sitting: Where a Peer is tried by the House of Lords in full Parliament, the House may be adjourned as often as there is Occasion, and the Evidence taken by Parcels; and it hath been adjudg'd, that where the Trial is by Commission, the Lord Steward, after a Verdict given, may take Time to advise upon it, and his Office continues till he has given Judgment. But the Triers may not separate upon a Trial by Commission, after the Evidence is given for the King; and it hath been resolved by all the Judges, that the Peers in such Case must continue together till they agree to give a Verdict. State Trials, Vol. 2. fol. 702. Vol. 3. fol. 657. 2 Haruk. 425. A Peer of the Realm arraigned in Parliament, must be tried before a Lord Steward; and if he appear not, he shall be outlawed: And he cannot waive a Trial by his Peers; for if a Peer on Arraignment before the Lords refuse to put himself upon such Trial, he shall be proceeded against as one who stands mute: But if one who has a Title to Peerage, be indicted and arraigned as a Commoner, and plead Not guilty, and put himself upon his Country; it hath been held, that he cannot afterwards suggest that he is a Peer, and pray Trial by his Peers. 3 Inst. 30. Kel. 57. Dalif. 16. It is said a Writ of Error lies in the King's Bench of an Attainder of a Peer before the Lord High Steward. 2 Haruk. P. C. 462. If a Peer be attainted of Treason or Felony, he may be brought before the Court of B. R. and demanded what he has to say why Execution should not be awarded against him? And if he plead any Matter to such Demand, his Plea shall be heard, and Execution ordered by the said Court, upon its being adjudg'd against him. 1 H. 7. 22. pl. 15. Bro. Coro. 129. Fitz. Coro. 49. Likewise the Court of King's Bench may allow a Pardon pleaded by a Peer to an Indictment in that Court: But that Court cannot receive his Plea of Not-guilty, &c. but only the Lord Steward on an Arraignment before the Lords. 2 Inst. 49. The Sentence against a Peer for Treason, is the same as against a common Subject; though the King forgives all but Beheading, which is a Part of the Judgment: For other Capital Crimes, Beheading is also the general Punishment of a Peer; but 33 H. 8. the Lord Dacres was attainted of Murder, and had Judgment to be hanged; and Anno 3 & 4 P. & M. the Lord Stowton being attainted of Murder, had Judgment against him to be hanged by the Neck until he was dead, which Sentences were executed. If Execution be not done; the Lord Steward may by Precept command it to be done ac-

ording to the Judgment. 3 Inst. 31. Trial by Peers is a Practice very ancient: In the Reign of Will. 1. called The Conqueror, the Earl of Hereford, for conspiring to receive the Danes into England, and depose the Conqueror, was tried by his Peers, and found guilty of the Treason, per Judicium parium suorum; but he lived in Prison his whole Life, 2 Inst. 50. The Duke of Suffolk, 28 H. 6. being accused of High Treason by the Commons, put himself upon the King's Grace, and not upon his Peers, and the King alone adjudg'd him to Banishment; but he sent for the Lord Chancellor, and all the Lords that were in Town to his Palace at Westminster, and also the Duke, and commanded him to quit the Kingdom in their Presence: The Lords nevertheless entered a Protest to save the Privilege of their Peerage; and this was deemed no legal Banishment, for the King's Judging in that Manner was no Judgment at all; he was extrajudicially bid to absent himself out of the Realm, and in doing it he was taken on the Sea and slain. The Case of the Lord Cromwell, in the Reign of K. H. 8. was very extraordinary; this Lord was attainted in Parliament, and condemned and executed for High Treason, without being allowed to make any Defence: And several great Persons during this Reign were brought to Trial before Lords Commissioners. Anno 32 Car. 2. the Lord Stafford was tried for Treason; and after the Evidence was given for the King, and the Prisoner had summ'd up all his Objections to the King's Evidence, he insisted upon several Points of Law, viz. That no Overt-Act was alledged in his Impeachment; that they were not competent Witnesses who swore against him, but that they swore for Money; and whether a Man could be condemned for Treason by one Witness, there not being two Witnesses to any one Point, &c. But the Points insisted upon being over-ruled, he was found Guilty by a Majority of twenty four Votes; and was executed on Tower-Hill. Secrets. As we have Noblemen of several Ranks; so we have Noble Women, and these may be by Creation, Descent, or Marriage: And first, King Hen. 8. made Anne Bullen, Marchioness of Pembroke: King James 1. created the Lady Compton, Wife to Sir Tho. Compton, Countess of Buckingham in the Life-time of her Husband, without any Addition of Honour to him; and also the same King made the Lady Finch Viscountess of Maidstone, and afterwards Countess of Winchelsea, to her and the Heirs of her Body: And the late King Geo. 1. made the Lady Schulinburgh, Dutchess of Kendal. A Woman Noble by Creation or Descent marrying one under the Degree of Nobility, still remaineth Noble; but if she be noble by Marriage only, she loseth her Dignity if she marry afterwards a Commoner; though not if the second Husband is noble, and inferior in Dignity to the first Husband: And by the Curtesy of England, Women noble by Marriage always retain their Nobility. 1 Inst. 16. 1 Inst. 50. 6 Rep. 53. If an English Woman born takes to Husband a French Nobleman, she shall not bear the Title of Dignity; and if a German Woman, &c. marry a Nobleman of England, unless she be made Denizen, she cannot claim the Title of her Husband, no more than her Dower, &c. Lex Constitution. 80. A Countess or Baroness may not be arrested for Debt or Trespas; for though in Respect of their Sex, they cannot sit in Parliament, they are nevertheless Peers of the Realm, and shall be tried by their Peers, &c. But a Capias being awarded against the Countess of Ruriland, it was held that she might be taken by the Sheriff; because he ought not to dispute the Authority of that Court from whence the Writ issued, but must execute it, for he is bound by Oath so to do; and although by the

the Writ itself it appeared, that the Party was a Countess, against whom a Capias would not generally lie, for that in some Cases it may lie, as for a Contempt, &c. therefore the Sheriff ought not to examine the judicial Acts of the Court. 6 Rep. 52. By the Statute 20 Hen. 6. cap. 9. a Dutcheff, Countess, or Baroness, married or sole, shall be put to answer, and judged upon Indictments of Treason and Felony, before such Judges and Peers as the Peers of the Realm shall be: And it has been agreed, that a Queen Consort, and Queen Dowager, whether the continue Sole after the King's Death, or take a second Husband, and he be a Peer or Commoner; and also all Peeresses by Birth, whether they be sole or married to Peers or Commoners; and all Marchionesses and Viscountesses are intitled to a Trial by the Peers, though not expressly mentioned in the Act. 2 Inst. 50. Cromp. Jurisd. 33. 2 Harwk. P. C. 423. A Dutcheff, Marchioness, Countess, or Baroness, may retain two Chaplains, by 21 Hen. 8. cap. 13. But it is said that a Baroness, &c. may not retain Chaplains during her Coverture. Wood's Inst. 44. 4 Rep. 89. Vide Chaplain.

Poisa, A Pound weight; it was anciently used for Pondus, whence to Peise or Poise, and Pesage.

Pela, A Peel, Pile or Fort; and the Citadel or Castle in the Isle of Man was granted to Sir John Stanley by this Name. Pat. 7 H. 4.

Venables *Arx. clamat Quod si aliquis Tenent. sine Resident. infra Dominium sine Manerium de kinderton feloniam fecerit, & Corpus ejus per ipsum Thomam super factum illud captum, & convict. fuerit, habere Pelfram, viz. Peltage, The Custom or Duty paid for Skins of Leather. Rot. Parl. 11 H. 4.

Pellicia, A Pilch: Tunica vel Indumentum Pelliseum, hinc Super-pellicium, A Sur-pilch or Surplice. Spelm.

Pelt-wood, Is the Wool stripp'd off the Skin or Pelt of a dead Sheep. Stat. 8 H. 6. c. 22.

Pen, A Word used by the Britains for a high Mountain, and also by the ancient Gauls; from whence those high Hills, which divide France from Italy, are called the Appennines. Camd. Britan.

Penal Laws, Are of three Kinds, viz. Poena Pecuniaria, Poena Corporalis, and Poena Exilii. Cro Jac. 415. And Penal Statutes have been made upon many and various Occasions, to punish and deter Offenders; and they ought to be construed strictly, and not be extended by Equity; but the Words of them may be interpreted beneficially, according to the Intent of the Legislators. 1 Inst. 54, 268. Where a Thing is prohibited by Statute under a Penalty, if the Penalty, or Part of it be not given to him who will sue for the same; it goes and belongs to the King. Rap. Entr. 433. 2 Harwk. 265. But the King cannot grant to any Person, any Penalty or Forfeiture, &c. due by any Statute, before Judgment thereupon had; though after Plea pleaded, Justices of Assize, &c. having Power to hear and determine Offences done against any Penal Statute, may compound the Penalties with the Defendant, by Virtue of the King's Warrant or Privy Seal. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 3. There are Penalties ordained by several Penal Acts of Parliament, to be recovered in any Court of Record; but this is to be understood only of the Courts at Westminster, and not of the Courts of Record of inferior Corporations. Jenk. Cent. 228. The Spiritual Court may hold Plea of a Thing for-bidden by Statute upon a Penalty; but they may not proceed on the Penalty. 2 Lev. 222. See Information.

Penalty of Bonds, &c. If a Man brings an Action of Debt upon a Bond for Performance of Covenants, the Plaintiff shall recover the whole Penalty of his Bond; because in Debt, the Judgment must be according to the Demand, and the Demand is to be for the whole Penalty: But upon the Defendant's bringing a Bill in Equity, and praying an Injunction to the Suit at Common Law, the Court of Equity usually grants it till the Hearing of the Cause; and upon the Hearing of the Cause, they will continue the Injunction farther, and order a Trial at Law on a Quantum damnificatus, for the Jury to find what Damage the Plaintiff received by Reason of the Breach of Covenants, &c. And they farther order, that after such Verdict given at the Common Law, both Parties shall resort back for the Decree of that Court: So that here must be several Actions and Suits at Law and in Equity; whereas a bare Action of Covenant, without suing for the Penalty of the Bond, will make an End of the Business in less Time, and for a much less Charge. 2 Lill. Abr. 288, 289. A Person being intitled to the Penalty by Law, a Court of Equity will not relieve against it, without paying Principal, Interest and Costs; and where a Penalty is recovered at Law and paid, Chancery may decree the Party to refund all, except the Principal and Interest, &c. Chan. Rep. 437. This Court will not generally carry the Debt, beyond the Penalty of a Bond: Yet where a Plaintiff came to be relieved against such Penalty, though it was decreed, it was on the Payment of the principal Money, Interest, and Costs; and notwithstanding they exceeded the Penalty, this was affirmed. 1 Vern. 350. Abr. Cas. Eq. 92.

Penance, (Pœnitentia) Is a Punishment imposed for a Crime by the Ecclesiastical Laws. It is an Acknowledgment of the Offence, and standing in some publick Place, &c. to satisfy the Church for the Scandal given by an evil Example; particularly in the Cases of Adultery, &c. for which the Offender stands in the Church, Barefoot and Bare headed, in a White Sheet, &c. But for smaller Faults it may be made in the Court or before the Minister and Churchwardens, or some of the Parishioners; as in Case of Defamation, &c. Wood's Inst. 507. Penance may be changed into a Sum of Money, to be applied to pious Uses, called Commuting. 3 Inst. 150. 4 Inst. 336.

Penance At Common Law, where a Person stands mute. See Pain Fort & Dure.

Penerarius, An Ensign-bearer; as John Parient was Squire of the Body, and Penerarius to King Rich. 2.

Penon, (Fr. Pennon) A Standard or Banner carried in War. 11 R. 2. c. 1.

Pensa Salis, A Weigh of Salt, containing 256 Pounds.

Pensam, Ad Pensam, The ancient Way of paying Money by Weight; opposed to the Payment of the Pound de numero, importing twenty Shillings. Lownd's Ess. on Coin. See Scalam.

Pension, (Pensio) Is an yearly Payment of Money in Recompence of Service, &c. And to receive a Pension from a foreign Prince or State, without Leave of our King, has been held to be criminal, because it may incline a Man to prefer the Interest of such foreign Prince to that of his own Country. 1 Harwk. P. C. 59. Persons having Pensions from the Crown are declared incapable of being elected Members of Parliament, &c. by Statutes 12 W. 3. 4 & 5 Ann. 1 Geo. 1. See Parliament.

Pensions of Churches, Are certain Sums of Money paid to Clergymen in Lieu of Tithes. And some Churches have settled on them Annuities, Pensions, &c. payable by other Churches; which Pensions are due by Virtue of some Decree made by an Ecclesiastical Judge upon a Controversy for Tithes, by which the Tithes have been decreed to be enjoyed by one, and a Pension instead thereof to be paid to another; or they have arisen by Virtue of a Deed made by the Consent of the Parson, Patron, and Ordinary; and if such Pension hath been usually paid for twenty Years, then it may be claimed by Prescription, and be recovered in the Spiritual Court; or a Parson may prosecute his Suit for a Pension by Prescription, either in that Court or at Common Law, by a Writ of Annuity; but if he takes his Remedy at Law, he shall never afterwards sue in the Spiritual Court: If the Prescription be denied, that must be tried by the Common Law. F. N. B. 51. Hardr. 230. Vent. 120. A Spiritual Person may sue in the Spiritual Court, for a Pension originally granted and confirmed by the Ordinary; but where it is granted by a Temporal Person to a Clerk, he cannot; as if one grant an Annuity to a Parson, he must sue for it in the Temporal Courts. Cro. Eliz. 675. If a Parson or Vicar have a Pension out of another Church, and it is not paid, they may bring a Writ of Annuity; because a Pension issuing out of a Rectory is the same Thing as a Rent, for it may be demanded in a Writ of Entry, and a Common Recovery may be suffered of it. 2 Nels. Abr. 1243. Upon a Bill in the Exchequer for a Pension, issuing out of a Vicarage, it hath been held, that though there is no Glebe nor Tithes, but only Offerings, &c. yet the Vicar is chargeable; and a Suit may be brought in this Court as well as at Common Law, &c. for a Pension by Prescription. Hardr. 230. A Pension out of an Appropriation by Prescription is suable in the Spiritual Court; and if the Duty is traversed, it may be tried there. 1 Salk. 58. A Libel was had in the Spiritual Court for a Pension, to which the Plaintiff made a Title by Prescription; and a Prohibition was prayed, for that the Court had no Cognisance of Prescriptions; but adjudged, that they having Cognisance of the Principal, it shall draw the Accessary. 1 Vent. 3. The Curate of a Chapel of Ease libelled against the Vicar of the Parish for the Arrears of a Pension, which he claimed by Prescription; though a Prohibition was granted, because the Curate is removeable at the Will of the Parson, and therefore cannot prescribe; he must bring a Quantum meruit. 2 Salk. 506. The Statute 13 Ed. 1. appoints a Remedy for Pensions in the Ecclesiastical Court: And the 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 19. gives Damages to the Value and Costs, &c.

Pensions of the Inns of Courts, Are annual Payments of each Member to the Houses. And also that which in the Two Temples is called a Parliament, and in Lincoln's Inn a Council, in Gray's Inn is termed a Pension, being usually an Assembly of the Members to consult of the Affairs of the Society.

Pension-writ, Is a Writ or peremptory Order against those who are in Arrear for Pensions and other Duties; and when once issued, none sued thereby in any of the Inns of Court shall be discharged or permitted to come in Commons 'till all Duties are paid. Ord. Gray's Inn.

Pensioners, (Pensionarii) Are a Band of Gentlemen so called, that attend as a private guard on the King's Person; they were first instituted Anno 1539.

Pentecostals, (Pentecostalia) Certain pious Oblations paid at the Feast of Pentecost or Whitsuntide by Parishioners to the Priest of the Parish, &c. Which Oblations were likewise termed Whitson Farthings, and divided into four Parts; one to go to the Parish Priest, a Second to the Poor, a Third for the Repairs of the Church, and the Fourth to the Bishop of the Diocese. Steph. of Pentecostals, &c.

Peny, Was our ancient current Money; and the Saxons had no other Sort of Silver Coin. 2 Inst. 575. It was equal in Weight to our Three Pence now; five of those Penies made one Saxon Shilling, and thirty Pence a Mark, which weighed as much as Three of our Half-Crowns: And this Peny was made with a Cross in the Middle, and so broke into Halfpence and Farthings. Matt. Paris. 1279. The English Peny called Sterling is round, and anciently weighed 32 grana sumentis in medio Spicæ. Stat. Edw. 1. See Denarius.

Peny-weight. As every Pound contains 12 Ounces, so each Ounce was formerly divided into twenty Parts, called Peny-weights; and though the Peny-weight be altered, the Denomination still remains: Every Peny-weight is subdivided into twenty-four Grains.

Perambulation, (Perambulatio) Signifies a Travelling through, or over: As Perambulation of the Forest is the Surveying or Walking about the Forest, and the utmost Limits of it; by certain Justices, or other Officers thereto assigned, to set down and preserve the Metes and Bounds thereof. 17 Car. c. 16. 20 Car. 2. c. 3. 4 Inst. 30. Perambulation of Parishes is to be made by the Minister, Church-wardens and Parishioners, by going round the same once a Year, in or about Ascension Week: And the Parishioners may well justify going over any Man's Land in their Perambulation, according to Usage; and it is said may abate all Nuisances in their Way. Cro. Eliz. 444. And there is a Perambulation of Manors; and a Writ Perambulatione facienda, which lies where any Incroachments have been made by a neighbouring Lord, &c. then by the Assent of the Lords, the Sheriff shall take with him the Parties and Neighbours, and make a Perambulation, and settle the Bounds: Also a Commission may be granted to other Persons to make Perambulation, and to certify the same in the Chancery, or the Common Pleas, &c. And this Commission is issued to make Perambulation of Towns, Counties, &c. New Nat. Br. 296. If Tenant for Life of a Lordship, and one who is Tenant in Fee-simple of another Lordship adjoining sue forth this Writ or Commission, and by Virtue thereof a Perambulation is made; the same shall not bind him in Reversion: Nor shall the Perambulation made with the Assent of Tenant in Tail, bind his Heir. Ibid. And 'tis said this Assent of the Parties to the Perambulation ought to be acknowledged and made Personally in the Chancery, or by Dedimus Potestatem; and being certified, the Writ or Commission Issues, &c. The Writ begins thus: The King to the Sheriff, &c. We Command you, that taking with you Twelve discreet lawful Men of your County, in your proper Person you go to the Land of A. B. of, &c. And the Land of C. D. of, &c. And upon their Oaths, you cause to be made Perambulation betwixt the Lands of the said A. in, &c. and of the said C. in, &c. So that it be made by certain Metes or Bounds and Divisions, &c. And make known to our Justices at Westminster, &c.

If Perambulation be refused to be made by a Lord, the other Lord who is grieved thereby shall have a Writ against him, called de Rationabilibus Divisis.

Perch, Is used with us for a Rod or Pole of sixteen Foot and a Half in Length, whereof forty in Length and four in Breadth, make an Acre of Ground. Crompt. Jurisd. 222. But by the Customs of several Counties, Counties, there is a Difference in this Measure: In Staffordshire it is twenty-four Foot; and in the Forest of Sherwood twenty-five Foot, the Foot there being eighteen Inches long: And in Herefordshire, a Perch of Ditching is twenty-one Foot; the Perch of Walling sixteen Foot and a Half; and a Pole of deniered Ground is twelve Foot, &c. Skene.

Peremptory, (Peremptorius) Joined with a Substantive, is taken for a final and determinate Act, without Hope of Renewing or Altering the same: And there is a Peremptory Day, Action, &c. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 20. F. N. B. 35, 38, 104. If a Defendant in an Action, tender an Issue in Abatement of the Plaintiff's Writ, and the Plaintiff demurs upon the Issue, if on arguing the Demurrer the Issue is over-ruled as not good; the Court will give the Defendant a Day over to answer peremptorily, viz. To plead a Plea to the Merits of the Cause; the former Plea which was over-ruled, being only in Abatement of the Writ: But it is otherwise where such an Issue and Demurrer is in Bar of the Action; for there the Merits of the Cause are put upon it. Trin. 24 Car. 1. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 190. A Peremptory Day is when a Business is by a Rule of Court to be spoken to at a precise Day; but if it cannot be spoken unto then, by Reason of other Business, the Court at the Prayer of the Party concerned will dispense with the not speaking to it at that Time, and give a farther Day without Prejudice to him; and this is called the putting off of a Peremptory, and is used to be moved for by Counsel at the Rising of the Court, when it is granted of Course. 2 Lill. Ibid. If a Peremptory Day is put off by the Court, the Party that will take Advantage of it, must enter the Rule of Court that was made for the Putting it off. Trin. 651. Peremptory Challenge of Jurors in Capital Cases. Vide Challenge.

Perfide balere, Is a Term in the Ecclesiastical Law; and signifieth a Dispensation granted to a Clerk, who being defective in his Capacity, is nevertheless admitted de facto to a Benefice, or other Ecclesiastical Function: And it is also called a Writ. Stat. 25 Hen. 8. c. 21.

Periphrasis, (Lat.) Is a Circumlocution; a Figure of Rhetoric, when that which might have been said in one or two Words is expressed by many. Litt. Dial. No Periphrasis or Circumlocution will supply Words of Art, which the Law hath appropriated for the Description of Offences in Indictments: And not any Periphrasis, Intendment and Conclusion shall make good an Indictment, which doth not bring the Fact within all the material Words of a Statute; unless the Statute be recited, &c. Cro. Eliz. 535, 749. 2 Hawk. P. C. 224, 249.

Perjury, (Perjurium) Is a Crime committed, when a lawful Oath is administered by one that hath Authority to any Persons in a judicial Proceeding, who swear absolutely and falsely in a Matter that is material to the Issue or Cause in Question, by their own Act, or the Subornation of others. 3 Inst. 164. And Perjury, before the Conquest, was punished sometimes by Death, other Times by Banishment, and sometimes by corporal Punishment, &c. Afterwards it came to a Fine and Ransom, and Disability to bear Testimony. 3 Inst. 163. At Common Law, Perjury and Subornation of Perjury is punished by Fine, Imprisonment, Pillory, &c. and the Offender is ever after incapable to be a Witness. 3 Inst. 163. By Statute, Persons committing wilful and corrupt Perjury, in any Cause depending concerning Lands or Goods, &c. in any of the Courts of Record, shall forfeit 20*l.* and be imprisoned six Months, and their Oath shall not be received in any Court of Record, until the Judgment is reversed; and if the Offenders have not Goods or Chattels to the Value of 20*l.* they shall be set on the Pillory in some Market place, and have both their Ears nailed thereto: And unlawful and corrupt Procuring and Suborning a Witness to give false Testimony in any Court of Record, &c. or corruptly Procuring any Witness to testify in perpetuum rei Memoriam, the Offender shall forfeit 40*l.* And if he be not worth 40*l.* he shall suffer six Months Imprisonment, and stand on the Pillory in some open Market near the Place where the Offence was committed; and shall not be received as a Witness till such Judgment be reversed; but if the Judgment be reverted, the Party grieved shall recover Damages against the Prosecutor, by Action on the Case, &c. 5 Eliz. cap. 9. And not only in a Court of Record, but in any other lawful Court, as a Court-Baron, &c. Perjury may be committed. Wood's Inst. 412. It has been adjudged, that if a Man be convicted of Perjury at the Common Law, a Pardon will restore the Party to his Testimony; but not in a Conviction on the Statute, for there he must reverse the Judgment before he can be restored, and Disability is Part of the Judgment. 2 Salk. 513. 2 Nelf. Abr. 978. Yet a Person convicted of Perjury was allowed to make Affidavit, to set aside a Judgment for Irregularity; though the Affidavits of such Persons have been refused to be read. 2 Salk. 461. Perjury, if it relates to Justice, is punishable by Statute; and if it be in a Spiritual Matter in the Spiritual Court, it may be punished there. 3 Salk. 269. A false Oath in a Court of Justice is more criminal than elsewhere. And 'tis an Offence for which the Party may be indicted, either by the Common Law, or upon the Statute 5 Eliz. by which the Punishment is enlarged, but the Nature of the Offence is not altered by that Statute; and in many Cases an Indictment will lie at Common Law, when it will not lie upon the Statute; as for Instance: A Person may be indicted at Common Law for a false Affidavit taken before a Master in Chancery, but not on the Statute; because this is not Perjury in a Matter relating to the Proof of what was in Issue. Style 336. Sid. 106. Bull. 322. The Statute extends to no other Perjury than that of Witnesses; but Persons perjuring themselves in their Answers in Chancery, or in the Exchequer, by Affidavit, or Swearing the Peace against another, &c. may be punished for the Perjury at the Common Law; which is esteemed the safest Way to prosecute for Perjury, or Subornation of Perjury. 3 Inst. 166. 2 Roll. Abr. 77. Wood's Inst. 414. In an Indictment of Perjury, upon an Answer in Chancery, it was ruled, That the Complainant in Chancery is no Witness pending the Suit; but if the Bill be dismissed he is a Witness. And in this Case, there being but the Oath of the Prosecutor, and so Oath against Oath, the Defendant was acquitted. Mich. 4 W. & M. B. R. Skin. Rep. 327. Perjury at Common Law may be in an immaterial Thing in an Answer in Chancery; but if one swear false to an Interrogatory, in a Thing not materially charged therein, this is not Perjury, because he who administered the Oath had not Power to administer it, but in Matters charged in the Interrogatory. Sid. 274. And where an Oath is taken before one, that hath not Authority to do it; or when a Court hath no Authority to hold Plea of the Cause; there Perjury cannot be committed. 3 Inst. 164. 4 Inst. 278. Also if an Oath be given by him that has lawful Authority, and any Breach be made therein, if it be not in a judicial Proceeding, it is not punishable as Perjury by the Common or Statute Law; as where one takes an Oath to the Government, or duly to perform an Office, &c. and breaks it. Read. on Stat. Vol. 4. 349. Indictment will not lie at the Sessions before Justices of Peace, for a Perjury at Common Law; though it will for a Perjury upon the Stat. 5 Eliz. that Statute giving the Justices Jurisdiction. 1 Salk. 406. It is said a Man may be indicted for Perjury upon a voluntary and extrajudicial Oath; a Case being cited where a Person stole the Daughter of another, and made Oath before a Justice of the Peace, that he had her Father's Consent, and this in order to get a Licence to marry her; he was indicted and convicted thereupon. 1 Vent. 370. On Indictment for Perjury, for that the Defendant swore at a Trial by Nisi prius, that a Person was on such a Day in London, to be arrested; this was material, as the Issue to be tried was concerning the Arresting him by the Sheriff, and it was proved that he was in Southwark at that Time, and the Defendant being found Guilty was fined 20l. Sid. 404. A Person was indicted for Perjury, and convicted of Swearing that he was Servant to W. R. when in Truth he was Servant to his Servant, and fined 10l. Allen 79. If any false Oath hath Relation to the Issue, 'tis Perjury; and there may be Things circumstantial which amount to this Crime, when they tend to prevent Discovery of the Truth: To swear to the Credit of a Witness, if it be false, is Perjury. Comberb. 461. Perjury in Witnesses, if it is not of Consequence in the Decision of the Cause, though it is a false Oath, it is not to be punished as Perjury: But if a false Oath be given by a Man, attended with Circumstances, which make them Reasons of his Remembrance of a Thing, to strengthen the substantial Part of his Evidence, by this Means the Jury may be induced in the Giving of a Verdict, and he may be guilty of Perjury. 3 Inst. 167. 1 Roll. Abr. 41, 78. 1 Cro. 428. 2 Lill. Abr. 291. Palm. 382, 535. Though where a Witness being ask'd, Whether such a Sum of Money were paid for two Things in Controversy between the Parties? Answer'd, That it was, where the Truth of it was, that it was paid only for one of them by Agreement; such Witnesses ought not to be punished for Perjury; for as the Case was, it was no Way material whether it was paid for one or both. 2 Roll. Rep. 41. To make an Offence Perjury, it must be wilful and deliberate, and not committed through Surprise, Inadvertency, or Mistake of the Question; and the Deposition is to be direct and absolute, not as the Person swearing thinks or believes, &c. 3 Inst. 167, 266. Nothing which the Party offers upon his Belief is assignable for Perjury. Sid. 418. It must be false, in express Words or Intention, to make it Perjury: For Falshood in Intention may be punished by the Common Law, though the Words be true: And if one knows not what he swears, it is a false Oath in him, so that one may swear the Truth, and yet be perjured; as where the Plaintiff in an Action caused two Men to swear the Value of his Goods, who never saw or knew them, although that which they swore was true, yet because they knew it not, it was a false Oath in them, for which the Procuror and the Witnesses were sentenced in the Star Chamber. 3 Inst. 166. 2 Roll. Abr. 77. But here 'tis held, a Man ought not to be drawn into a constructive Perjury. 2 Salk. 514. Perjury may not be in a private Matter, howsoever wilful or malicious the Oath may be; and upon this Ground it hath been holden, that a false Oath taken by one upon the Making of a Bargain, that the Thing sold is his own, is not Perjury. 1 Hawk. 173. An Indictment for Perjury may be preferred against one for Taking a false Oath rashly, and for want of Consideration, in a Court of Record; and he may be convicted and fined thereupon, but the Fine shall be more moderate than where committed out of Malice. 2 Lill. Abr. 291. The Words Wilfully and Corruptly must be inserted in the Prosecution upon the Statute; and an Indictment was held ill, because it did not alledge that the Defendant voluntarily swore, &c. 3 Inst. 166. 1 Cro. 147. Perjury or Subornation of Perjury, in Proceedings on an Indictment, is not within the Statute, which mentions only Suits by Writ, Bill, Plaint, or Informacion: And no false Oath is within the Intent of the Act, that is not prejudicial to some Person in this Cause; and gives him just Cause of Complaint, that he was aggrieved by the Deposition of the Witness. 3 Inst. 164. But it hath been held not to be material upon an Indictment of Perjury at Common Law, whether the false Oath were at all credited, or whether the Party in whose Prejudice it was intended were in the Event any Way griev'd by it, or not; as this is not a Prosecution grounded on the Damage of the Party, but on the Abuse of publick Justice. 3 Leon. 230. 2 Leon. 211. And if a Person procure another to take a false Oath amounting to Perjury, but he doth not take it, though the Person who incited him is not guilty of Subornation of Perjury, he is punishable by Fine. Read. Stat. 4 Vol. 360. Where a Plaintiff loses his Action by a false and perjured Witness produced on the Part of the Defendant, it is said he cannot have an Action against that Witness, till he is indicted and convicted; unless it be such a Perjury, or in such a Court, that an Indictment would not lie for it. Sid. 90. 3 Salk. 270. On Motion to amend an Information for Perjury, it was granted, giving Notice to the Defendant what they would amend; and he to shew Cause why they should not. 1 Lev. 189. Acquittal upon a bad Indictment of Perjury is no Plea to a good one, and the Party may be indicted de novo; but an Acquittal upon a good One is peremptory. Med. Ca. 167. A Person was found guilty in an Information for Perjury, and upon several Affidavits the Court was moved for a new Trial; though it was denied, except the King's Counsel would consent, notwithstanding it appeared to the Court that there was Cause for a new Trial. Sid. 49. Sir John Jackson being acquitted of a great Debt, by the Perjury of Fenwick and Holt, they were indicted for the Perjury, and the Trial being appointed, the Witnesses who could prove it were arrested and committed, so that they could not be present at the Trial; and this being done by the Contrivance of Sir John, he was found guilty of the Misdemeanor on an Information, and fined 1000 Marks, and committed for a Month: But the Court would not grant a new Trial in Perjury. Sid. 149, 153. An Indictment for Perjury will not be quashed for any Insufficiency until the Merits are tried, and 'tis Time enough to move to quash it after a Verdict; and no Certiorari shall be had to remove an Indictment for Perjury or Forgery; for when they are removed, they are seldom proceeded on. Sid. 54. 2 Nels. Abr. 975. Indictment at Common Law is to be brought where a Witness for the King swears falsely; or he may be punished by Information: And the Offence of Perjury, if prosecuted by Indictment, is local; but 'tis otherwise on an Information. 3 Inst. 164. 1 Vent. 182. Persons guilty of Perjury, by a late Statute, shall, over and beside the Punishment already inflicted by Law, be sent to the House of Correction for a Time not exceeding seven Years, or may be Transported to the Plantations for seven Years in like Manner as Felons, &c. 2 Geo. 2. c. 25.

(then having Authority to administer the Oath to the said A. B.) and being sworn upon the Holy Gospel of God, did then and there upon his Oath, maliciously, falsely, wilfully, and corruptly depose, swear and affirm in Writing, of and concerning, &c. in a Cause between E. F. Plaintiff, and G. H. Defendant, that, &c. (here reciting the Perjury) when in Fact, &c. And so the said A. B. on the said Day, &c. in the, &c. Perpetuity, (Perpetuitas) Is a Continuance everlastingly; and in Law, it is when an Estate is designed to be so settled in Tail, &c. that it cannot be undone or made void: As where it all the Parties that have Interest join, they cannot bar or pass the Estate; but if by the Concurrence of all having the Estate-tail, it may be barred, it is no Perpetuity 2 Lill. Abr. 292. An Estate Tail, by the Device of a Common Recovery, being made barable; to prevent the same, Men did entail their Lands with Condition, that none of them that had the Land, should do any Act to put it from the next Heir; and if any did, that he should forfeit his Estate, and such Heir should enter, &c. but this being found of ill Consequence, the Law hath adjudged all these Conditions void, and so avoided Perpetuities. 1 Andersf. 237, 341. It is a Rule that hath destroyed Perpetuities, that an Estate cannot be made to cease for a Time, and then to rise again; or to cease as to one Person, and have Being as to another; or deprive a Tenant in Tail by Condition or Limitation of the Power of Alienation. Hob. 257. 1 Rep. 84. Perpetuities are odious in the Law; and an executory Devise of Lands after an Estate-tail generally tends to a Perpetuity; though not where it depends upon one Life, when a Fee-simple may be to one, and remain to another, &c. 2 Cro. 695. A Term for Years may not be devised in Tail, with Remainders over to raise a Perpetuity: But a Limitation of a Term in Reversion, to several Persons in esse, doth not extend to create a Perpetuity; though if it be to Persons not in esse, it is otherwise. Moor 495. Chanc. Rep. 8. A Lease for Years, to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, &c. is not good; but it may be assigned to Trustees, for the Issue in Tail to receive the Profits, &c. yet if such a Lease comes then to be limited in Tail, a present Remainder may not be limited thereon; but the Law will allow a future Contingent Estate, so as it wears out in a short Time, as in the Compass of two Lives, &c. 10 Rep. 87. 4 Inst. 27.

And the like was given by Offa King of the Mercians, through his Dominions, Anno 794. But it is said not to be as a Tribute to the Pope, but for the Sustentation of the English School or College at Rome; and it was called Peter-pence, because collected on the Day of St. Peter ad vincula, and was a Penny for every House. King Edgar's Laws contain a sharp Constitution touching this Money. Leg. Edg. 78. cap. 4. Petition, (Petitio) Hath a general Signification for all Kinds of Supplications made by an Inferior to a Superior, and especially to one having Jurisdiction. S. P. C. c. 15. And it is used for that Remedy which the Subject hath to help a Wrong done by the King, who hath a Prerogative not to be sued by Writ: In which Sense it is either general, That the King do him Right and Reason, whereupon follows a general Indorsement upon the same,

Let Right be done the Party: Or it is Special, when the Conclusion and Indorsement are special, for this or that to be done, &c. Staundf. Prærog. c. 22. By Statute, the Soliciting, Labouring or Procuring the Putting the Hands or Consent of above twenty Persons to any Petition, to the King, or either House of Parliament, for Alterations in Church or State; unless by Assent of three or more Justices of Peace of the County, or a Majority of the Grand Jury, at the Assises or Sessions, &c. and repairing to the King or Parliament to deliver such Petition, with above the Number of ten Persons, is subject to a Fine of 100 l. and three Months Imprisonment, being proved by two Witnesses, within six Months, in the Court of B. R. or at the Assises, &c. 13 Car. 2. cap. 5. And if what is required by this Statute be observed, Care must be taken that Petitions to the King contain nothing which may be interpreted to reflect on the Administration; for if they do, it may come under the Denomination of a Libel: And 'tis remarkable, that the Petition of the City of London, for the Sitting of a Parliament was deem'd libellous; because it suggested that the King's Dissolving a late Parliament was an Obstruction of Justice. Read. Stat. Vol. 4. 353. Also the Petition of the seven Bishops, sent to the Tower by King James 2. was called a Libel, &c. 3 Mod. Rep. 212. To subscribe a Petition to the King, to frighten him into a Change of his Measures, intimating that if it be denied, many Thousands of his Subjects will be discontented, &c. is included among the Contempts against the King's Person and Government, tending to weaken the same, and punishable by Fine and Imprisonment. 1 Hawk. Charles 1. there was a famous Petition of Right: That none should be compelled to make or yield any Gift, Loan, Benevolence, Tax, and such like Charge, without Consent by Act of Parliament; nor upon Refusal so to do, be called to make Answer, take any Oath not warranted by Law, give Attendance, or be confined, or otherwise molested concerning the same, &c. And that the Subject should not be burdened by the Quartering of Soldiers or Mariners; and all Commissions for proceeding by Martial Law, to be annulled, and none of like Nature issued thereafter, lest the Subject (by Colour thereof) be destroyed or put to Death, contrary to the Laws of the Land, &c. Physicians. No Person within the City of London, or seven Miles thereof, shall practice as a Physician or Surgeon, without a Licence from the Bishop of London, or Dean of St. Paul's; who are to call to their Assistance four Doctors of Physick, on Examination of the Persons before granted: And in the Country, without Licence from the Bishop of the Diocese, on Pain of forfeiting 5 l. a Month, 3 Hen. 8. cap. 11. By the 14 & 15 H. 8. c. 5. the King's Charter for incorporating the College of Physicians in London, is confirmed: They have Power to chuse a President, and have perpetual Succession, a Common Seal, Ability to purchase Lands, &c. Eight of the Chiefs of the College are to be called Elects, who from among themselves shall chuse a President yearly: And if any shall practice Physick in the said City, or within seven Miles of it, without the Licence of the said College under their Seal, he shall forfeit 5 l. Also Persons practising Physick in other Parts of England, are to have Letters testimonial from the President and three Elects, unless they be graduate Physicians of Oxford, or Cambridge, &c. The Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 10. ordains, that four Physicians, (called Censors) shall be yearly chosen by the College of Physicians, to search Apothecaries Wares, and have an Oath given them for that Purpose by the President; Apothecaries denying them Entrance into their Houses, &c. incur a Forfeiture of 5 l. And the Physicians refusing to make the said Search, are liable to a Penalty of 40 s. And every Member of the College of Physicians, is authorized to practise Surgery in London or elsewhere. Persons having a Knowledge and Experience in Herbs and Roots, may practise and minister to outward Sores or Swellings, any Herbs or Ointments, according to their Skill; and also Drinks for the Stone, Strangury, or Agues, without Licence, or incurring any Penalties by the Statute 32 H. 8. cap. 11. Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 8. Popish Recusants are disabled to practise Physick, or to use the Trade of an Apothecary, &c. under Penalties. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. The four Persons called Censors, annually chosen by the President and College of Physicians, calling to their Assistance the Wardens of the Apothecaries Company in London, or one of them, are empowered to enter into the Houses, Shops, or Warehouses of Apothecaries, &c. and search and examine Medicines, and to burn or destroy those that are defective or decayed, or not fit for Use; but subject to appeal to the College of Physicians, &c. 10 Geo. 1. c. 20. In the Case of Dr. Bonham, 7 Jac. 1. is shewn the Power of the College of Physicians, in punishing Persons for practising Physick without Licence: They imprisoned the Doctor for practising without a Licence; but it was adjudged that they could not lawfully do it, for in such Case they had no Power by the Statute to commit, but they ought to sue for the Penalty of 5 l. per Month, quintam, &c. But in Case of Male Practice, the Censors have Power to commit a Person; for they may in such Case fine and imprison by their Charter, and they are Judges of Record, and not liable to an Action for what they do by Virtue of their Judicial Power. 8 Rep. 107 Cartbrw's Rep. 494. Apothecaries taking upon them to administer Physick, without the Advice of a Doctor, has been adjudged Practising of Physick within the Statutes; the proper Business of an Apothecary being to prepare the Prescriptions of the Doctor: In this Case the Practice of Physick was said to consist in judging of the Disease and Constitution of the Patient; and of the fittest and properest Remedy for the Distemper; and in directing or ordering the Application of the Remedy to the Diseased: And so it was resolved, though no Fee was given the Apothecary. Mish. 2 Ann. B. R. 2 Salk. 451. But this Judgment was afterwards reversed in the House of Lords. Mod. Caf. 44. It has been holden, that if a Person not duly authorized to be a Physician or Surgeon, undertakes a Cure, and the Patient dies under his Hands, he is guilty of Felony; but 'tis said not to be excluded the Benefit of Clergy. 1 Hawk. P. C. 87.

be for ever deprived of the Exertise of Pilotage; and if he doth it designedly; he shall be punished with Death. Lex Mercat. 70, 71. The Laws of Oleron ordain, That if any Pilot shall designedly misguide a Ship, that it may be cast away, he shall be put to a rigorous and unmerciful Death, and hung in Chains: And if the Lord of the Place where a Ship shall be thus lost, shall abet such Villains in Order to have a Share in the Wreck, he shall be apprehended, and all his Goods forfeited for the Satisfaction of the Persons suffering; and his Person shall be fastened to a Stake in the Midst of his own Mansion, which being fired on the four Corners thereof, it shall be burnt to the Ground, and he with it. Leg. Ol. cap. 25. And by the Laws of Oleron, if the Fault of a Pilot, be so notorious, that the Ship's Crew see an apparent Wreck, they may lead him to the Hatches, and strike off his Head; but the Common Law denies this hasty Execution: An ignorant Pilot is sentenced to pass thrice under the Ship's Keel, by the Laws of Denmark. Lex Mercat. 70. Masters of Ships shall not oblige Pilots to pass through dangerous Places, or to steer Courses against their Wills; but if there be a Difference in Opinions, the Master may in such Case be governed by the Advice of the most expert Mariners. Ibid. Before the Ship arrives at her Place or Bed, while she is under the Charge of the Pilot, if she or her Goods perish, or be spoiled, the Pilot shall make good the same: But after the Ship is brought to the Harbour, then the Master is to take the Charge of her, and answer all Damages, except that of the Act of God, &c. Leg. Ol. cap. 23. In Charter-parties of Affreightment, the Master generally covenants to find a Pilot, and the Merchant to pay him: And in Case the Ship shall miscarry through the Insufficiency of the Pilot, the Merchant may charge either the Master, or the Pilot; and if he charges the Master, such Master must have his Remedy against the Pilot. Lex Mercat. 70. Piquant, A French Word for Sharp, made use of to express Malice or Rancour against any one. Law Fr. Dic.

Pirates, (Pirata) Are common Sea Rovers, without any fix'd Place of Residence, who acknowledge no Sovereign and no Law, and support themselves by Pillage and Depredations at Sea: But there are Instances wherein the Word Pirata has been formerly taken for a Sea Captain. Spelm. Pirates are Enemies to all; for which Reason neither Faith nor Oath is to be kept with them: They are denied Succour by the Laws of Nations; and by the Civil Law, a Ransom promised to a Pirate, if not complied with, creates no Wrong; for the Law of Arms is not communicated to such, neither are they capable of enjoying that Privilege, which lawful Enemies are entitled to in the Caption of another. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Comp 183. If a Pirate enters a Port or Haven, and assaults and robs a Merchant Ship at Anchor there; this is not Piracy, because it is not done upon the High Sea; but it is a Robbery at the Common Law, the Act being infra Corpus Comitatus: And if the Crime be committed either super Altum mare, or in great Rivers within the Realm, which are looked upon as common Highways, there it is Piracy. Sir Fra. Moor 756. And it has been held, that Piracy being an Offence by the Civil Law only, shall not be included in a Statute speaking generally of Felonies, as to Benefit of Clergy, &c. which shall be construed only of those Felonies which are such by our Law; as those Piracies which are committed in a Port or Creek, within the Body of a County. 2 Hawk. P. C. 345. If a Ship be riding at Anchor at Sea, and the Mariners Part in their Ship-Boat, and the Rest on Shore, so that none are left in the Ship; and a Pirate shall attack her, and commit a Robbery, the same is Piracy. 14 Ed. 3. And where a Pirate assaults a Ship, and only takes away some of the Men, in order to the Selling them for Slaves; this is Piracy: And if a Pirate shall make an Attack on a Ship, and the Matter for the Redemption is compelled to give his Oath to pay a certain Sum of Money, though there be no Taking, the same is Piracy by the Marine Law; but by the Common Law there must be an actual Taking, as in Case of Robbery on the Highway. Lex Mercat. 185. But the Taking by a Ship at Sea, in great Necessity, of Victuals, Cables, Ropes, &c. out of another Ship, is no Piracy; if that other Ship can spare them, and paying or giving Security therefore. Ibid. 183. A Pirate takes Goods upon the Sea, and sells them, the Property is not thereby altered, no more than if a Thief upon the Land had stolen and sold them. 27 Ed. 3. cap. 13. Godb. 193. Yet by the Laws of England, if a Man commits a Piracy upon the Subjects of any other Prince, and brings the Goods into England and sells them in a Market-overt, the same shall be binding and the Owners be concluded. Hob. 79. When Goods are taken by a Pirate, and afterwards the Pirate making an Attack upon another Ship, is conquered and taken by the other, by the Law Marine the Admiral may make Restitution of the Goods to the Owners, if they are Fellow Subjects of the Captor's, or belong to any State in Amity with his Sovereign, on paying the Costs and Charges, and making the Captor an equitable Consideration for his Service. Lex Mercat. 184. If a Pirate at Sea assault a Ship, and in the Engagement kills a Person in the other Ship, by the Common Law all the Persons on board the Pirate Ship are Principals in the Murder, although none enter the other Ship; but by the Marine Law, they who gave the Wound only shall be Principals, and the Rest Accessaries, if the Parties can be known. 28 Eliz. Yelv. 134. It has been holden, that there cannot be an Accessary of Piracy, by the Law of this Realm; but if it happens, that there is an Accessary upon the Sea, such Accessary may be punished by the Civil Law, before the Lord Admiral: And it was made a Doubt, whether one, who was an Accessary at Land to a Felony at Sea, were triable by the Admiral, within the Purview of 28 Hen. 8. Though this is settled by 11 & 12 W. 3. which provides that Accessaries to Piracy, before or after, shall be inquired of, tried and adjudged according to the said Statute. 2 Hawk. 222. In Case the Subjects of a Prince in Enmity with the Crown of England, enter themselves Sailors on Board an English Pirate, and a Robbery is committed by them, who are afterwards taken; it is Felony in the English, but not in the Strangers: But in ancient Times it was Petit Treason in the English, and Felony in the Strangers: And if any Englishman commits Piracy upon the Subjects of any Prince or State in Amity with the Crown of England, they are within the Stat. 28 H. 8. If the Subjects of any Nation or Kingdom in Amity with England, shall commit a Piracy on the Ships or Goods of the English, the same is Felony, and punishable by this Statute: And Piracy committed by the Subjects of France, or of any other Country in Friendship with us, upon the British Seas, is properly punishable by the Crown of England only. Lex Mercat. 186, 187. A Piracy is attempted on the Ocean, if the Pirates are overcome, the Takers may immediately inflict a Punishment, by hanging them up at the Main-yard End; though this is understood where no legal Judgment may be obtained: And hence it is, that if a Ship shall be on a Voyage to any Part of America, or the Plantations there, on a Discovery of those Parts; and in her Way she is attacked by a Pirate, but in the Attempt the Pirate is overcome; the Pirates may be forthwith executed, without any Solemnity of Condemnation, by the Marine Law. Ibid. 184. By Stat. 28 Hen. 8. cap. 15. all Robberies and Felonies committed by Pirates at Sea, &c. shall be enquired of, heard and determined in any County of England, by the King's Commission, as if the Offences had been committed on Land; and such Commission shall be directed to the Lord Admiral, &c. and three or four other Persons, as shall be named by the Lord Chancellor, who shall hear and determine such Offences after the common Course of the Laws of the Kingdom used for Felonies and Robberies, &c. and award Judgment and Execution against Persons indicted on the Statute, as against Felons for any Felony done upon the Land; and the Offenders shall suffer such Pains of Death, Loss of Lands and Goods, as if they had been Attainted of such Offence committed on Land, &c. This Statute doth not alter the Offence of Piracy, but leaves it as it was before, viz. Felony only by the Civil Law; but giveth a Trial according to the Common Law, and inflicts Pains of Death, &c. as if the Offenders had been convicted of any Felony done upon the Land. 3 Inst. 112. H. P. C. 77. And no Attainder for this Offence corrupts the Blood, the Statute mentioning only that the Offender shall suffer such Pains of Death, Loss of Lands, &c. as if he were attainted of a Felony at Common Law; but says not, that the Blood shall be corrupted. 3 Inst. 112. Likewise the Offender is to be tried on the Statute, to forfeit his Lands, &c. which are not forfeited by the Civil Law. 1 Lill. Abr. The Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. cap. 7. enacts, That all Piracies, Felonies and Robberies committed in or upon the Sea, or in any Haven, &c. where the Admiral hath Jurisdiction, may be tried at Sea or upon the Land, in any of his Majesty's Islands, Plantations, &c. abroad, appointed for that Purpose, by Commission, under the Great Seal, or Seal of the Admiralty, directed to such Commissioners as the King shall think fit: who may commit the Offenders, and call a Court of Admiralty, consisting of seven Persons at least; or for Want of seven, any three of the Commissioners may call others; and the Persons so assembled may proceed according to the Course of the Admiralty, pass Sentence of Death, and order Execution of the Criminals, &c. And Commissions for Trial of the said Offences within the Jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, shall be directed to the Warden of the said Cinque Ports, and the Trial to be by the Inhabitants of the same Ports. And by the said Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. if any natural-born Subjects or Denizens of England, shall commit Piracy against any of his Majesty's Subjects at Sea, under Colour of any Commission from any foreign Prince, they shall be adjudged Pirates: If any Master of a Ship or Seaman give up his Ship, &c. to Pirates, or combine to yield up or run away with any Ship; or any Seaman shall lay violent Hands on his Commander, or endeavour a Revolt in the Ship, he shall be adjudged a Pirate, and suffer accordingly; also if any Person shall discover a Combination for running away with a Ship, he shall be intitled to a Reward of 10 l. for every Vessel of 100 Tons, and 15 l. if above: And all Persons who shall set forth any Pirate, or be assisting to those committing Piracy; or that shall conceal such Pirates, or receive any Vessel or Goods piratically taken, shall be deemed accessory to the Piracy, and suffer as Principals. The 6 Geo. 1. makes the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. perpetual: And by 8 Geo. 1. c. 24. Masters of Ships trading with Pirates, or furnishing them with Stores, &c. and Persons corresponding with Pirates, are declared guilty of Piracy; and shall be tried according to the Statutes 28 Hen. 8. and 11 & 12 W. 3. and suffer Death, forfeit Lands, &c. Ships fitted out with Design to trade with Pirates, and the Goods shall be forfeited: And Masters of Ships, and Seamen of Ships carrying Guns, being attacked by Pirates, if they do not defend their Ships, shall forfeit their Wages, and be imprisoned six Months; but Seamen wounded in the Defence of Ships against Pirates, shall be admitted into Greenwich Hospital, &c. When an English Ship shall have been defended by Fight against Pirates, and any of the Officers or Seamen shall be killed or wounded, the Judge of the Admiralty, or Mayor or chief Officer of any Port, assisted by four Merchants, may by Process levy a Sum not exceeding 2 per Cent. of the Value of the Ship and Goods defended, to be distributed among the Officers and Seamen, or the Widows and Children of the Persons killed. Lex Mercat. 186. Pirates are always excepted in general Pardons: And the Indictment for Piracy must alledge the Fact to be done upon the Sea; and have both the Words Felonice and Piraticæ, &c. By the Stat. 18 Geo. 2. c. 30. All Subjects, who during any War, shall commit Hostilities upon the Sea against any of his Majesty's Subjects by Colour of any Commission from the Enemy, or adhere, or any Ways give Aid to the Enemy upon the Sea, may be tried as Pirates, Felons and Robbers, in the Court of Admiralty, on Shipboard or on Land, and being convicted, shall suffer Death, &c. as other Pirates, &c. by the Stat. 11 W. 3. But Persons convicted on this Act, shall not be tried for the same Crime as for High-Treason; but if not tried on this Act, may be tried for High-Treason on the Stat. 28 H. 8.

Pirates Goods. In the Patent to the Admiral he has granted to him Bona Piratarum: The proper Goods of Pirates only pass by this Grant; and not piratical Goods. So it is of a Grant de bonis Felonum, the Grantee shall not have Goods stolen, but the true and rightful Owner. But the King shall have piratical Goods, if the Owner be not known. 10 Rep. 109. Dyer 269. Jenk. Cent. 325.

Piscary, (Piscaria, vel Privilegium Piscandi) Is a Right or Liberty of Fishing in the Waters of another Person: And there are three Sorts of Piscaries, Libera Piscaria; Separalis Piscaria; and Communis Piscaria. See Fishing, and Common of Piscary.

Piscenarius, Is used in old Records for a Fishmonger. Pat. 1. Ed. 3.

Pit, Is a Hole wherein the Scots used to drown Women Thieves; and to say condemned to the Pit, is as when we say condemned to the Gallows. Skene.

Pitching-pence, Is that Money, commonly a Peny, which is paid for Pitching, or setting down every Bag of Corn, or Pack of Goods, in a Fair or Market.

Placard, (Fr. Plaquart, Dutch Placcaert) Hath several Significations: In France, it is a Table, wherein Laws, Orders, &c. are written and hung up; and in Holland, it is an Edict or Proclamation; also it signifies a Writing of safe Conduct; with us it is little used; but it is mentioned as a Licence to use certain Games, &c. in the Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. cap. 7.

Place, (Locus) Where a Fact was committed, is to be alledged in Appeals of Death, Indictments, &c. And Place is considerable in Pleadings, in some Cases: Where the Law doth require a Thing to be set down in a Place certain, the Party must in his Pleading say, it was done there. Co. Litt. 282. When one Thing doth come in the Place of another, it shall be said to be of the same Nature; as in Case of an Exchange, &c. Shep. Epit. 700. See Local.

Placita, Is a Word often mentioned in our Histories, and Law Books: At first it signified the publick Assemblies of all Degrees of Men where the King presided, and they usually consulted upon the great Affairs of the Kingdom, and these were called Generalia Placita, because Generalitas universonum majorum tam Clericorum quam Laicorum ibidem convenibat: And this was the Custom in our neighbouring Nation of France, as well as here, as we are told by Bertinian, in his Annals of France, in the Year 767. Some of our Historians, as Simon of Durham, and others, who wrote above 300 Years afterwards, tell us, that those Assemblies were held in the open Fields; and that the Placita Generalia, and Curia Regis, were what we now call a Parliament: It is true, the Lords Courts were so called, viz. Placita Generalia, but often Curie generales, because all their Tenants and Vassals were bound to appear there. The Word Placita was likewise sometimes applied to Penalties, Fines, Mulcts, or Emendations, according to the Black Book in the Exchequer, Lib. 2. Tit. 13. And hence is the old Custom, Comes habet tertium denarium Placitorum. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 12. It is now taken for Pleadings or Debates, and Trials at Law.

Plague. Mayors, Bailiffs, Head Officers of Corporations, and Justices of Peace, have Power to tax Inhabitants, Houses and Lands, &c. within their Precincts, for the Relief of Persons infected with the Plague; and Justices of the County may tax Persons within five Miles round, on a Parish's Inability; the Tax to be levied by Distress and Sale of Goods, or in Default thereof by Imprisonment: Infected Persons going abroad, after commanded to keep House for avoiding further Infection, may be resisted by Watchmen, &c. and punished as Vagrants, if they have no Sores upon them; and if they

they have infectious Sores on them, it is Felony; Justices of Peace, &c. are to appoint Searchers, Examiners, and Buriers of the Dead, in Places infected, and administer Oaths to them for the Performance of their Duties, &c. Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 31. Some Places in the Baltick being infected with the Plague, in the Reign of Queen Anne, an Act was made for obliging Ships coming from thence to perform their Quarantine during the Infection in Foreign Parts; and Masters of Ships coming on Shore, during the Quarantine, are to forfeit their Ships, &c. And others directed to take Care of the Quarantine, permitting any to come on Shore, shall forfeit 100*l.* 9 Ann. cap. 2. During the late Reign that Marseilles in France was infected, a Statute was made with further Provisions for the Preventing of Infection: By this Act, Ships coming into Ports, are to perform Quarantine; and Persons quitting Ships before performed, shall incur the Forfeiture of 200*l.* Goods after Quarantine performed are to be aired; and Ships infected, to be burnt: His Majesty may make Orders concerning Quarantine; and, in Time of Infection here, cause Lazarets to be provided for the Sick, and Lines and Trenches to be cast up about Places, &c. And infected Persons were to be removed from their Hooves to such Lazarets; and escaping from thence, or out of the Lines of Places, to be guilty of Felony: Watches to be appointed by Justices of Peace, to keep People within the Lines, &c. 7 Geo. 1. cap. 3. And by a subsequent Act, the King is enabled to prohibit Commerce with any Countries infected, by Proclamation; Persons trading contrary to the Proclamation, their Goods and Ships shall be forfeited and Officers of Ports may resist the Entrance of Ships, by firing of Guns, &c. Persons going to Places infected, incur a Premunire; and coming from such Places, shall be adjudged guilty of Felony 8 Geo. 1. cap. 8. The Clauses in the Act 7 Geo. 1. relating to Removal of Persons infected to Lazarets, and making Lines about Towns, &c. are repealed by 8 Geo. 1. cap. 10. And these last Acts, are since expired: But further Provision is made for performing Quarantine, by 1 Geo. 2. cap. 17. And against exporting Goods to any Places infected, or importing any Merchandize from thence, &c. by Stat. 6 Geo. 2. cap. 34.

Plaint, (Fr. Plainte, Lat. Querela) Is the Exhibiting any Action, real or personal, in Writing; and the Party making his Plaint is called the Plaintiff. Kitch. 231. A Plaint in an inferior Court is the Entry of an Action, after this Manner: A. B. complains against C. D. of a Plea of Trespass, &c. and there are Pledges of Prosecuting, that is to say, John Doe and Richard Roe. The first Process in an inferior Court is a Plaint, which is in the Nature of an Original Writ, because therein is briefly set forth the Plaintiff's Cause of Action; and upon this Plaint there may issue a Pone, till the Return of a Nihil, upon which a Capias will not lie against the Body of the Defendant. 2 Lill. Abr. 294. Where a Plaint is levied in an inferior Court, the Defendant must be first distrained for Non-appearance, by something of small Value; and then if he doth not appear, a farther Distress is to be taken to a greater Value, and so on; if all his Goods are distrained upon the first Distress, Attachment may be issued out of B. R. against the Officers, &c. Ibid. A Plaintiff in an Affise may abridge his Plaint of any Part whereupon a Bar is pleaded. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 8. See County-Court.

Plaint In a Superior Court, is said to be the Cause for which the Plaintiff doth complain against the Defendant, and for which he doth obtain the King's Writ: For as the King denies his Writ to none, if there be Cause to grant it; so he grants not his Writ to any, without there be Cause alledged for it. 2 Lill. 294.

Plantation, (Plantatio, Colonia) Is a Place whither People are sent to dwell; or a Company of People transplanted from one Place to another, with an Allowance of Land for their Tillage. Litt. Dig. All Wastes, which the Natives of any Country make no Use of, nor can receive any Damage by their being in the Hands of others, may lawfully be possessed by Planters: If a Nation or People should happen to be expelled out of their own Land, they may seek void Places in some other Country, and there may justly plant; and the immediate possessing such Plantations creates a Right against all Persons but he that hath Empire there. Lex Mercat. 156. And where Persons having arrived in any Territories and planted there, if before they can reap the Fruits of their Labour the Necessities of human Life are wanting, by the Laws of Nature they may force a Subsistence from a Neighbour Planter; and the Reason is this, that a Subsistence belongs to every Man, unless he has merited to lose the Life which he seeks to preserve. Ibid. Our Plantations abroad are chiefly Islands in America, over which there are particular Governors; and the Islands of Jamaica and Barbadoes, with some others, are very populous, and much frequented by unfortunate Persons, who have so great Privileges and Advantages in Trade, that by their Industry and Application, a present Misfortune is oftentimes attended with a future Happiness, by accumulating great Wealth from the Products of these foreign Colonies. Geograph. Epitom. 228. The English Plantations contain Jamaica, Barbadoes, Virginia, Maryland, New England, New-York, Carolina, Bermudas, and the Leeward Islands, &c. And there is lately a Settlement in America much encouraged, called Georgia, under the Management of divers Trustees, &c. The Plantation Islands being gotten by Conquest, or by some of the King's Subjects going in Search of some Prize, and planting themselves there, the King is not restrained by the Laws of England to govern them by any particular Laws, but may govern them by what Law he will: But it has been adjudged, That the Laws and Customs by which the People of any Island or Plantation were governed before the Conquest thereof, do bind them until new Laws are given; for there is a Necessity that the former Laws should be in Force till new are obtained, and even then some of their old Customs may remain, as they do in Barbadoes, &c. If an uninhabited Country be newly found out by English Subjects, all the Laws of the Kingdom of England are immediately in Force there. 2 Salk. 411. 3 Mod. 159. 4 Mod. Rep. 225, 226. All that are appointed Governors of the Plantations, shall, before their Entrance into their Government, take an Oath to do their utmost to put the Laws in Force in the said Plantations; and upon Complaint to the King, or such as he shall appoint, that such Governors have been wittingly negligent therein, the Governors so offending shall be removed, &c. 12 Car. 2. c. 18. 7 & 8 W. 3. And by the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 12. If any Governor, Deputy-Governor, or Commander in Chief of any Plantation or Colony within his Majesty's Dominions beyond the Seas, shall oppress any of his Majesty's Subjects within their respective Governments, or be guilty of any other Crime or Misdemeanor, contrary to the Laws of this Realm, or those in Force within their Governments; such Oppressions, &c. shall be inquired of, heard and determined in the Court of King's Bench in England, or before such Commissioners, and in such County of this Realm, as the King shall appoint, and by good and lawful Men of such County; and the like Punishments shall be inflicted as are usual for such Offences here in England. The Courts of Justice abroad, cannot transmit a Matter or Cause to the King and Council here for Difficulty, but are to determine the Right, and give Judgment one Way or other. But on an Appeal brought in the Plantations, the Party appealing must procure the Proceedings to be transmitted, and proceed within a Year after the Appeal, allowed there, or it shall be dismissed with Coits. 2 Ld. Raym. 1447. All Laws, Usages or Customs in Practice in any of the Plantations, which are repugnant to the Laws made in this Kingdom, are declared null and void. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 22. By the same Statute, all Places of Truik in the Courts of Law, or relating to the Treasury, in any Island, Colony or Plantation, belonging to England, shall be in the Hands of the Native-born Subject of England, Ireland, or of the said Island; also Tracts of Land on the Continent of America, held by Charter or Letters Patent, shall not at any Time be aliened or sold to any other than the Natural-born Subjects of England, Ireland, &c. without the King's Licence. Stat. Ibid. No Alien shall be a Merchant or Factor in any of the Territories and Plantations belonging to England, in Asia, Africa or America, on Pain to lose all his Goods, one Third to the King, another Third to the Governor of the Plantation, and the other Third to any Person suing in any of the King's Courts there. 12 Car. 2. And no Governor abroad shall be a Factor or Agent under the Penalty of 500*l.* &c. 8 & 9 W. 3. Governors of the Plantations are not to suffer any Foreign-built Ship or Vessel to load or unload Goods, till a Certificate is produced, that the Owner or Owners are not Aliens, and Examination is made: And no Sugars, Tobacco, Ginger, Indico, &c. of the Growth of any English Plantations in America, shall be transported to any Place but to some English Plantation, or to England, Ireland, &c. on Pain of Forfeiture and the Ship, one Moiety to the King, and the other to him that will seize and sue for the same. 12 Car. 2. cap. 18. For every Vessel which sets out from England or Ireland for any of the said Plantations, Bond shall be given, with one Surety, to the chief Officers of the Custom-house of the Place whence she sails, of 1000*l.* if the Ship be under 100 Tuns, and of 2000*l.* Penalty if of greater Burthen; that if the said Vessel load any of the said Commodities at such Plantations, it shall bring them to some Port of England, &c. And for all Ships coming from any other Ports to those Plantations, the Governors, before the Ship be permitted to load, shall take such Bond that it shall carry the Merchandize to some other English Plantations, or to England or Ireland; and every Ship taking on board any of the aforesaid Goods before such Bond given, or Certificate thereof, &c. shall be forfeited; and the said Governors shall twice in every Year return true Copies of such Bonds to the chief Officers of the Customs in London, &c. Ibid. If any Vessel shall take on board any of the Commodities aforesaid, at any of the said English Plantations, before Bond be given, as directed by 12 Car. 2. or Certificate produced from the Officers of some Custom-house in England, &c. that such Bond hath been there given; or shall carry the said Goods to any Place, contrary to the Tenor of such Bonds, the same shall be forfeited, with the Ship and all her Furniture, Guns, Ammunition, &c. one Moiety to the King, and the other Moiety to him that will sue for the same in any of the said Plantations, or in the Court of the High Admiral of England, or of any Vice-Admiral, or any Court of Record in England. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 26. But these Penalties seem to be taken off by the Stat. 25 Car. 2. c. 7. which ordains, that if any Ship or Vessel shall come to any of his Majesty's Plantations to ship any Sugar, Tobacco, &c. and Bond shall not be first given to bring the same to England, there shall be answered to the King several Duties before Lading thereof, and under such Penalties as for Non payment or Defrauding the King of his Customs in England. Goods are to be imported and exported from and to the Plantations in Ships built in England or Ireland, or the said Plantations; and navigated with the Master and three Fourths of the Mariners of the said Places, on Pain of forfeiting Ship and Goods, &c. And all Ships, lading or unlading any Goods at any of the Plantations in America, and the Masters and Commanders thereof shall be subject to the same Rules, Visitations, Searches, Penalties, and Forfeitures, as Ships and their Ladings are liable to in England; and the Officers for collecting the Customs there, shall have the like Powers as the Officers of the Customs in this Kingdom; and Persons assisting in Concealments, shall be subject to the like Penalties, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 22. Persons serving on Board; or retained to serve on Board any Trading Ships, in any Part of the Plantations of America, or any Persons being on Shore there, may not be impressed by any Ships of War; unless such Persons shall be Deserters from such Ships, on the Penalty of 20*l.* Stat. 6 Ann. In Actions depending in the Plantations, Debts may be proved here on Oath before Mayors of Towns, &c. and certified abroad: And Lands, Houses, Negroes, &c. in Plantations, shall be liable to satisfy all Debts and be Assets, as Real Estates are here, and Personal Estates there. 5 Geo. 2. cap. 7. A Duty is laid on Rum, Molasses and Sugar of foreign Plantations, imported into any British Plantations in America; and no Sugars, Rum, or Spirits of America, may be imported in Ireland, but what are loaden in Great Britain, in Ships lawfully navigated, on Pain of Forfeiture, &c. Stat. 6 Geo. 2. c. 13. The Duties payable here on importing refined Sugar, &c. from the Plantations, to be repaid on Exportation out of the Kingdom. Ibid. Any of his Majesty's Subjects, in Ships built in Great Britain, may carry Rice from the Province of Carolina in America, directly to any Part of Europe southward of Cape Finestre, without going to any other Plantations, &c. being licensed by the Commissioners of the Customs; and thereupon shall be allowed Half Subsidy. 8 Geo. 2. c. 19. And Persons residing here, and in the Sugar Colonies abroad, may in Ships built in this Kingdom load in the said Colonies, any Sugars of the Growth and Manufacture of the Plantations, and carry them to any foreign Part of Europe; on taking out a Licence therefore, and so as they do not take in Tobacco, or other enumerated Goods; or Sugars, not being the Product of his Majesty's Subjects, upon Pain of Forfeiture, and the Vessel, &c. And when any Ship hath delivered her Lading in foreign Parts, she is to return to Great Britain, and having other Goods on Board, they are there to be entred at the Custom-house and Landed, &c. Stat. 12 Geo. 2. c. 30. Every Master of a Ship carrying Merchandizes to or from the Plantations in America, shall upon Oath before the Governor or Collectors of the Customs there, give a true Account of the Name and Burthen of the Ship, and of the Place from whence she came; and depose that it is the same Ship, described in the Certificate, and registred to be built in Great Britain, &c. which he believes to belong wholly to British Subjects, and that no Foreigner has any Share therein to his Knowledge, &c. And if such Proof be not made, the Vessel and Goods will be forfeited. 15 Geo. 2. cap. 31. Rum or Spirits imported from the British Sugar Plantations, on Entry may be landed, and put into Warehouses, provided by the Importers, they first giving Bond for paying the Duty within six Months, if the same be sold, or at that Time on Delivery of the Goods, &c. by 15 Geo. 2. c. 25. Persons born in the Plantations are accounted Subjects; and by a late Statute, such Foreigners as have inhabited for seven Years or more in our Plantations, shall be Playhouse. Playhouses were originally instituted with a Design of recommending Virtue to the Imitation of the People, and exposing Vice and Follies and therefore are not in their own Nature Nufances: But it hath been holden, that a common Playhouse may be a Nufance, if it draw together great Numbers of Coaches, &c. as prove generally inconvenient to the Places adjacent. 5 Mod. 142. If any Persons shall in Plays, &c. jestingly or profanely use the Name of God, they shall forfeit 10*l.* Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 21. And Players speaking any Thing in Derogation of Religion, &c. are liable to Forfeitures and Imprisonment. 1 Eliz. Also acting Plays or Interludes on a Sunday, is subject to Penalties, by 1 Car. 1. cap. 1. No Person shall act any new Play, or Addition to an old one, &c. unless a true Copy thereof, signed by the Master of the Playhouse, be sent to the Lord Chamberlain fourteen Days before acted; who may prohibit the representing any Stage-Play: And Persons acting contrary to such Prohibition, shall forfeit 50*l.* and their Licences, &c. Stat. 10 Geo. 2. c. 28. And by this Statute, no Licence is to be given to act Plays, but in the City and Liberties of Westminster, or Places of his Majesty's Residence. Ibid.

Plea, (Placitum) Is that which either Party alleges for himself in Court, in a Cause there depending to be tried: And Pleading in a large Sense, contains all the Matters which come after the Declaration, as well on the Defendant's as the Plaintiff's Side, till Issue is joined; but is commonly taken for the Defendant's Answer to the Plaintiff's Declaration. Pleas are divided into Pleas of the Crown, and Common Pleas; Pleas of the Crown are all Suits in the King's Name, for Offences committed against his Crown and Dignity, and also against the Peace, as Treasons, Felonies, Maihem, &c. And Common Pleas are those that are agitated between common Persons, in Civil Cases: And Pleas may be farther divided into as many Branches as Action; for they signify all one. S. P. C. cap. 7. 4 Inst. 10. A Plea to the Action is that which goes to the Merits of the Cause or Action; and is General to the Declaration, or a Special Plea: A General Plea in Debt or Contract, is He owes nothing: In Debt on Bond, 'Tis not his Deed, or He paid it at the Day; in Action of the Case upon a Promise, He hath not promised; in Trespass upon the Case, Not guilty; in Covenant, Performance of Covenants, &c. A Special Plea contains the Matter at large, concluding to the Declaration or Action; and Special Pleas are many, as by Duresis and Per Minas, and in Justification, that in Assault and Battery, the Plaintiff struck the first Blow, &c. In Waste, on Nul Waste pleaded, the Defendant cannot plead justifiable Waste; but he may give in Evidence, Lightning, Enemies, &c. to prove it to be no Waste: He is to confess the Fact, and plead specially in these Cases. Finch 362, 378. 1 Inst. 282, 372. Special Pleas in Answer to the Plaintiff's Declaration, are of two Kinds; Pleas in Bar, and in Abatement; and every Plea must be pleaded either in Bar to the Action brought, or in Abatement of the Writ upon which the Action is framed, or it is but a Discourse, and not a Plea. A General Plea is drawn on a little Piece of Two-penny stamp'd Paper, without Counsel's Hand, only the Defendant's Attorney's Name is to it; and he is to pay the Plaintiff's Attorney for entering it: Special Pleas are drawn up in Form, setting forth the Matter pleaded, &c. and must be signed by Counsel, or they will not be received: A Foreign Plea is to be ingrossed in Parchment, and signed by Counsel, and be put in upon the Oath of the Defendant, that the Plea is true. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. pag. 80. And when a Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff answers the Defendant's Plea, which is called a Replication; and the Defendant answers the Plaintiff's Replication, by Rejoinder; which the Plaintiff may answer by Surrejoinder; and sometimes, though seldom, Pleadings come to Rebutter, in answer to the Surrejoinder; and Surrebutter. 1 Infl. 303. In good Order of Pleading, a Person ought to plead, 1st, To the Jurisdiction of the Court. 2^{dly}, To the Person of the Plaintiff, and next of the Defendant. 3^{dly}, To the Writ. 4^{thly}, To the Action of the Writ. 5^{thly}, To the Count or Declaration. 6^{thly}, To the Action itself in Bar thereof: A Plea to the Jurisdiction is called a foreign Plea, because it alledges that the Matter ought to be tried in another Court, &c. Pleas to the Person have been formerly six, viz. Villenage, Outlawry, Excommunication, the Party an Alien, out of Protection, and professed in Religion; but the last is now no Plea. The Plea to the Writ, &c. is for Variance between the Writ and Record, Death of Parties, Misnomer, Jointenancy, &c. and may be to the Writ and Bill, or Count together. Pleas to the Count or Declaration are Variance between the Writ and the Count, Specialty or Record, Incertainty, &c. and all these are properly Pleas in Abatement. Plea to the Action of the Writ is where one pleadeth such Matter which sheweth the Plaintiff had no Cause to have the Writ brought. And a Plea in Bar to the Action itself, is when the Defendant pleadeth a Plea which is sufficient to overthrow the Action of the Plaintiff. Kitch. 95. Litt. 196. Pleas in Bar, such as a Release, the Statute of Limitations, Agreement with Satisfaction, &c. destroys the Plaintiff's Action for ever: But Pleas in Abatement are temporary and dilatory, and do not destroy the Action, only stop the Cause for a while, till the Defect is removed; as where there is some Fault in the Writ or Declaration, Misnomer of the Defendant, where the Plaintiff is excommunicate, &c. A Plea to the Jurisdiction, of Misnomer, or any other Plea in Abatement, cannot be pleaded after an Imparlance; though a Plea in Bar may, because that goes to destroy the Action. 2 Lutw. 1174. Pleas in Bar may come after a Continuance, or general Imparlance; but if such Plea be first pleaded, the Defendant shall not be admitted afterwards to plead in Abatement of the Writ, which is allowed to be good by Pleading in Bar to the Action: Yet Matter of Record may be shewn in Arrest of Judgment, and thereby the Writ be abated. Hob. 280, 281. By Imparlance a Writ or Bill is admitted to be good, so that after it Plea in Abatement ought not to be received; but if it be accepted, and the Plaintiff doth demur to it, the Demurrer is good: After a Defendant hath pleaded in Abatement, and before he pleads directly in Bar, he may demur to the Declaration of the Plaintiff; as he may where he is advised that the Declaration is insufficient, &c. Pract. Solic. 235, 236. It has been resolv'd, That where a Plea is in Abatement, if it be of Necessity that the Defendant must disclose Matter of Bar, he shall have his Election to take it either by Way of Bar or Abatement. 2 Mod. 65. If the Defendant can have no Advantage by Pleading in Abatement, or by Demurring in Law, he may afterwards plead in Bar; and before he pleads any special Matter in Bar, he may plead in general, viz. A Release or Defeasance; Acceptance of other Things; Tender of Amends; Concord or Accord; Arbitrament; Auterfoits Bar by former Judgment; the Statute of Limitation of Actions; Disability of the Plaintiff; Privilege of the Defendant, or other Matter; for several Matters pleadable in Abatement, may be pleaded in Bar. Pract. Attorn. 1 Edit. 82. Also he may plead another Action depending of the same Nature, for the same Thing, &c. and if a Person mistaking his first Action, bring another Action without discontinuing the First, this Plea may be pleaded. 1 Salk. 392. There is likewise a Plea puis Darrain Continuance, where the Defendant hath pleaded a Plea, and before Trial there happens some new Matter, which will avoid the Action: It may be pleaded after Issue joined, at any Time before the Verdict; but after Verdict, and before Day in Bank, there is no Day to plead it; so that the Remedy is by Audita Querela. Cro. Jac. 646. A Defendant in any Suit, &c. with Leave, may plead several Matters; but if any such Matter be excepted to, and found insufficient, Costs shall be given: And no dilatory Plea shall be allowed in any Court of Record, unless the Truth of it be proved by Affidavit; or some probable Matter be shewn. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. When a Declaration, or Bar, are defective in Circumstances of Time, Place, &c. this may be helped by the Pleading of the adverse Party to it; but not if it be insufficient in Matter. 2 Ventr. 222. 1 Danv. Abr. 156. If the Defendant pleads a dilatory and frivolous Plea, to hinder the Plaintiff from going to Trial; the Court, on Motion, will order the Defendant to plead such a Plea as he shall stand to, or to accept of a Demurrer to his dilatory Plea, on Arguing whereof, if the Plea be not good, the Court will not after permit him to amend it; and when a dilatory Plea in Abatement is over-ruled, there shall be a Respondas Ouster, except an Issue be joined on it. 6 Mod. 102. And if a Plea in Bar of the Action is over-ruled, Judgment shall be given against the Defendant. Lutw. 42. Where it is doubtful between the Parties, whether a Plea be good or not, it cannot be determined by the Court on Motion, but there ought to be a Demurrer upon the Plea; and on Arguing thereof, the Court shall judge of the Plea whether good or bad: And no Advantage can be had of double Pleading, without special Demurrer. 2 Lill. Abr. 310. Lutw. 422. But though the Court is to judge of Pleadings, they will not direct any Person how to plead, notwithstanding the Matter be difficult; for the Parties must plead at their Peril, and Counsel are to advise, &c. If the Plaintiff's Attorney will consent, the Defendant may waive his Plea pleaded, without moving the Court; but if he will not consent, it cannot be done without moving the Court. Trin. 16; 1. A Defendant may waive his Special Plea, and plead the general Issue, if there be no Joinder in Demurrer. 2 Salk. The Defendant, before Joinder in Demurrer, may amend his Plea; and so after Joinder in Demurrer, before argued: And where a Defendant has demurred, and the Plaintiff joined; the Court will oftentimes allow him to withdraw his Demurrer, and plead to the Action, if the Plaintiff hath not been put by a Trial. Practif. Solic. 303. A Defendant had Leave to plead de novo in four Days, within which Time he ought to have pleaded in Chief; but instead of that he pleaded an Outlawry of the Plaintiff, &c. and thereupon the Plaintiff signed Judgment for Want of a good Plea: But on Payment of Costs, &c. and pleading to Issue immediately, the Judgment was set aside. Trin. 10 Geo. 1. B. R. Mod. Cas. in L. and E. 289. A Plea may be amended, if it be but in Paper, and not entered, paying Costs: If after the Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff alters his Declaration, claration, the Defendant may alter his Plea. 2 Lill. 322. Pleas, &c. in English, may be amended in Paper, or on Record, and even after Judgment, on Payment of Costs, &c. by Stat. 4 Geo 2 Falshood in a Defendant's Plea, if it be not hurtful to the Plaintiff, nor beneficial to the Defendant, it doth no Injury; as it doth where detrimental to the Plaintiff, &c. Ibid. 297. Though if an Attorney pleads a false Plea by Deceit, it is against his Oath, and he may be fined. 1 Salk 515. Concerning Pleas in general; all Pleas are to be succinct, without unnecessary Repetitions, and be direct and pertinent to the Case, not by Way of Argument or Rehearsal; and the Plea of every Man shall be taken most strongly against himself. 2 Lill. 304. The Plea must directly answer the Charge in the Plaintiff's Declaration, or it will not be good. 1 Danv. Abr. 235. If it doth not answer all the Matter contained in the Declaration, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment as for Want of a Plea. 1 Lew. 16. A Defendant pleads that he did not receive 80 l. but doth not say or any Part thereof; and the Plea was adjudged ill, for he might receive 79 l. and yet not the whole, &c. 2 Mod. Rep. 146. And in pleading a Tender, at the Putting in of the Plea, the Money is to be brought into Court, or the Plea will not be accepted, but the Plaintiff shall sign Judgment. 2 Lill. Abr. 308. But when Judgment in Ejectment is signed for Want of a Plea, if Possession be not delivered, a Judge before the Assises may compel the Plaintiff to accept of a Plea. 2 Salk. 516. If a Thing is shewed in Pleading, and it is not afterwards traversed or averred specially to the contrary, it will be taken to be confessed: Though the Confession of one Defendant in his Plea, shall not prejudice another. Plowd. 48. Hob. 64. A Release pleaded to an Action of Trespass, without shewing when it was made, shall be taken before the Trespass done: And a Plea of Discharge or giving Notice, &c. must shew how given. 10 Rep. 40. Plowd. 128. Dyer 41. Every Man must plead such Plea as is proper for him; but that need not be pleaded on one Side, that will come properly on the other. Hob. 3, 78, 162. Pleadings which amount to no more than the general Issue, are not to be allowed, but the general Issue shall be entered; and where the Defendant pleads the general Issue, he ought to plead so that the whole Matter in Question may be tried. 2 Lill. 302. 2 Nels. Abr. 1246. 1 Salk. 394. If the Defendant is not constrained to plead a special Plea, he may plead the general Issue proper to the Action brought, and give the special Matter in Evidence: And in many Cases general Pleadings are permitted, to avoid Tedioufness and Multiplicity, and the Particular shall come on the other Side; as in Case of a Condition to perform all Covenants in an Indenture, &c. but where a Thing rests in a Man's own Notice, he must plead it particularly. 1 Inst. 303. 8 Rep. 133. 2 Danv. Abr. 249. 2 Nels. 1249. If a Party pleading derives an Estate to another, under which he doth not claim any Thing, there general Pleading is sufficient, because he hath no Means to know another Man's Title; but 'tis otherwise where he himself claims under it. Carters 209. General Estates in Fee simple may be generally alledged; Estates in Tail, and particular Estates, must be shewed. A Plea of Conveyance of Lands, &c. inter alia, where the Conveyance contains more than relates to the Matter of the Plea, is good. 1 Roll. Rep. 72. Bonds and Deeds are to be pleaded with a Proferet hic in Curia, &c. Ibid. 1261. If one comes in by Act of Law, the general Allegation will suffice; and Things Spiritual, or where the Plea consists of Matter infinite, may be generally pleaded: All necessary Circumstances implied by the Law, need not be expressed in the Plea; but when any special or substantial Matter is alledged, ed, it should be specially answered; and so Matters of Record, where they are the Foundation of the Suit, or Substance of the Plea. 10 Rep. 94. 3 Cro. 749. Plowd. 65. That which is alledged by Way of Inducement to the Substance of the Matter, needs not be certainly alledged as the Substance itself. Plowd. 81. He that pleadeth in the Negative, is not bound to plead exactly as he who pleads in the Affirmative: And that which a Man cannot have certain Knowledge of, he is not bound certainly to plead. Plowd. 33, 80, 126, 129. Every Affirmative in Pleading, ought to be answered with an express Negative; and if a Person be named to be Dwelling at A. 'tis no Plea to say, that he is an Inhabitant at some other Place; unless it conclude in the Negative and not at A. 1 Inst. 126. 19 Hen. 6. 1. It is a Rule in Pleading, That when a Man pleads special Matter, and concludes generally, he thereby waves the special Matter. Furress. Rep. 53. Pleas that are too general are not good. 1 Lutw. 239. 2 Salk. 521. And every Plea ought to be single and certain; and not be double, or contain a Multitude of distinct Matter to one and the same Thing, whereto several Answers are required, which will not be allowed; nor where the Defendant pleads two Matters, each being a sufficient Bar to the Action, unless one depends upon the other, or the Defendant cannot come at the one without shewing the other, when it is good. 11 Rep. 52. 1 Vent. 48, 272. 2 Nels. Abr. 1254. A double Plea will not be good; for where there is double Matter, no certain Issue can be taken: But a Plea is not double which contains divers Matters, if it would not have answered the whole Declaration without alledging all those Matters in it, and which are necessary in the Defendant's just Defence. 2 Lill. Abr. 300. Where the Matter is indifferent to be well or ill, and the Party pleads over, the Court will intend it well. Mod. Caf. 136. If there be a Repugnancy in pleading, it is Error. 2 And. 182. Jenk. Cent. 21. And a Man shall not take Advantage of his own Wrong, by Pleading, &c. Cro. Jac. 588. A Man cannot plead any Thing afterwards which he might have pleaded at first. Ibid. 318. Though Surplusage shall never make the Plea vicious, but where it is contrary to the Matter before. Raym. 8. The Court never orders a Defendant to plead peremptorily, till all the Rules are out: And where the Plaintiff amends and gives an Imparlance, there shall be new Rules given to plead, but not if there is no Imparlance. 2 Salk. 517. In the Court of C. B. if the Defendant doth not plead on Rule to answer, before the Rule is expired, the Plaintiff's Attorney may afterwards enter up Judgment by Nil dicit. Pract. Selic. 303. If a Copy of the Plaintiff's Declaration be delivered to the Defendant's Attorney before the Effoin Day of the Term, he may be compelled to plead that Term, or Judgment shall be entered against him: By the usual Course, the Defendant is to answer the same Term in which he appears, if it be an issuable Term, and the Writ is returnable at the Beginning thereof; but generally a Defendant hath Time to plead till the next Term. Pract. Attorn. Edit. 1. By an Order of Court, reciting that by the former Practice Defendants have usually been allowed eight Days Time to plead; it was ordered, that four Days only should be allowed such Defendants from the Time of giving any Rules. Ord. Trin. 1727. And on Process returnable the first or second Returns of Terms; the Defendant is to plead in four Days, if he lives within twenty Miles of London, and eight Days if farther off, after Delivery of the Declaration, with Notice to plead, &c. or on Default, the Plaintiff may sign his Judgment. Ord. Trin. 5 Geo. 1. On there being special Pleadings in any Action, the Secondary will give Rules to reply; and if the Defendant come to issue, or there be a Demurrer, the Pleas are to be given to the Clerk of the Papers, who gives Rule for the Defendant to rejoin, &c. Special Pleas are left with one of the Clerks of the Papers, and the Plaintiff's Attorney is to take a Copy thereof from him, for which he pays 6 d. per Sheet, and put in his Replication; and then he carries the Declaration to him, who will make up the Paper-Book, and write a Rule on the Side: This Paper-Book is to be delivered to the Defendant's Attorney, and he must pay for entering his Warrant of Attorney, and 10 d. a Folio for his Pleadings, &c. And if the Defendant doth not receive the Paper-Book, and return it to the Attorney for the Plaintiff, on his calling for it to be entered in four Days; then a Non Prof. may be entered for Want of a Plea. See 6 Mod. 22. When a Matter is expressly pleaded by one Party in the Affirmative, which is expressly pleaded to and denied by the other Party, the next Thing is to be an Issue in order to Trial, that they may not plead in infinitum. Raym. 199. If a Plea to the Plaintiff's Writ upon Issue joined, be found for the Defendant, the Writ shall abate: And if to the Person, Action, or Jurisdiction, it be found for the Plaintiff, he shall recover the Thing in Demand. Jenk. Cent. 306. The Law requires in every Plea two Things, viz. Matter sufficient; and that it be express'd according to the Form of the Law. Hob. 164. But it is said a Man is not bound to one Form of Pleading, so he plead the Substance of the Matter. Plowd. 435. The old Way of Pleading a Record was to begin at the Original, and not omit any Continuance, &c. And there is a Diversity where a Judgment is several, and when 'tis entire; for if forty Acres of Land are recovered, here a Plea of Recovery of twenty Acres is ill; but it should be pleaded of the forty Acres, whereof twenty are Parcel. Comber. 253. All Pleas are to be in English, and not in Latin, by the late Statute: Each Plea is to have its proper Conclusion; and regularly all Pleas that are affirmative conclude, And this he is ready to verify, &c. A Plea in Abatement begins, That the Defendant ought not to answer to the Bill, &c. and concludes to the Declaration thus: Whereupon he prays Judgment of the Bill, or Declaration aforesaid; and that the Bill be quash'd, &c. In a Plea in Bar, the Defendant in the Beginning says, That the Plaintiff ought not to have or maintain his Action against him; and concludes to the Action, viz. He prays Judgment if the Plaintiff ought to have or maintain his Action against him, &c. A Plea of a Record ought to conclude, And this he is ready to verify by the Record, &c. Pract. Solic. 236. 2 Nels. 1269. 'Tis said that the Conclusion makes the Plea; for if it begins in Bar, and concludes in Abatement, it is a Plea in Abatement. 1 Ld. Raym. 337.

Form of a Plea, That the Defendant owes nothing, in Debt.

AND the said C. D. comes and defends the Force and Injury and Damages, &c. vobis, &c. And saith That the said A. B. ought not to have or maintain his Action aforesaid against him; because he saith, that he doth not owe to the said A. the said Sum of Ten Pounds, or any Part thereof, in Manner and Form as the said A. above complains against him; and of this he puts himself upon his Country, &c.

A Plea of Misnomer, in Abatement, and Replication.

AND the said C. by T. B. his Attorney, comes and defends the Force and Injury above laid to his Charge; and prays Judgment of the said Bill, or saith, that he ought not to be compelled to answer to the Bill aforesaid, because he saith, that he the said C. is not the same Person, &c. and is called and known, or was baptized by the Name of, &c. And by the same Name and Surname from the Time of his Nativity hitherto hath always been called and known, and not by the Name of C. D. &c. as in the Bill is above supposed, or he is named: And this he is ready to verify; wherefore he prays Judgment of the said Bill, and that the same may be quashed, &c.

(Repl.) And the said A. saith, That notwithstanding any Thing by the said C. above in Pleading alledged, his said Bill ought not to be quashed; because he saith, that the said C. is named and called, and on the Day of exhibiting the said Bill, was named and called, as well by the Name of C. D. as by the Name of, &c. And he prays that this may be inquired of by the Country.

A Plea in Bar of an Action, with Replication and Rejoinder.

AND the said C. by, &c. his Attorney, comes and defends the Force, Injury and Damages, and whatsoever else he ought to defend, when and where the Court will take the same into Consideration, and saith, that the said A. ought not to have or maintain his said Action thereon against him; because he saith, That after the said Promise and Assumption in Form aforesaid made, and before the Exhibiting the said Bill of the said A. that is to say, On the Day, and in the Year, &c. at M. aforesaid in the County aforesaid, he the said C. well and truly paid to the said A. the said Twenty Pounds, according to his Promise and Assumption aforesaid: And this he is ready to verify; wherefore he prays Judgment, if the said A. ought to have or maintain his said Action against him.

(Repl.) And the said A. saith, that notwithstanding any Thing above pleaded by the said C. be the said D. ought not to be precluded from having his said Action against the said C. because he says that the said C. did not pay to him the said A. the said Twenty Pounds, in Manner and Form as the said C. hath above by his Plea alledged; and he prays that this may be inquired of by the Country.

(Rejoind.) And the said C. as formerly saith, That he paid the said A. the said Twenty Pounds, on the Day and in the Year aforesaid, at the Place aforesaid, &c. as he hath before alledged; and of this he puts himself upon his Country; and the said A. does likewise the same, &c.

Pleas in Criminal Cases. One indicted of Felony, &c. ought not to be allow'd to plead to the Indictment, 'till he holds up his Hand at the Bar; which is in Nature of an Appearance, &c. A Prisoner on his Arraignment may plead the general Issue, or in Abatement, &c. or demur to the Indictment; and he may plead in Bar, Anterfois Acquit, Anterfois Convict before Judgment, Anterfois Attaint, &c. vin. That he was heretofore acquitted, convicted, or attainted of the same Felony. H. P. C. 228. 3 Inst. 213, 214. A Criminal may also plead a Pardon, or Benefit of Clergy; though this last is not usually pleaded until he has otherwise pleaded before. Vide Anterfois Acquit.

Pleas of the Sword, Were the Pleas of the Dignity of the Earl of Chester; signifying Sovereign Authority. King Will. 1. gave the Earldom of Chester to his Half-Brother Hugh Lupus, Ancestor to Ranulph, the third Earl of Chester; Teneat ita libere per Gladium, sicut ipse Rex Willielmus tenuit Angliam per Coronam: And Earl Ranulph, Anno 2 Hen. 3. granted to his Barons of Cheeshire, a Charter of Liberties, Exceptis Placitis ad Gladium, &c. Rot. Pat. 3 Ed. 4. According to the Grant of Will. 1. in all Indictments for Felony, Murders, &c. in that County Palatine, the

Plēbania, Plebanalis Ecclesia, a Mother Church having one or more subordinate Chapels. Bhust.

Plēbanus, A Rural Dean, because the Deaneries were commonly affix'd to the Plēbania, or chief Mother Church within such a District, at first commonly of ten Parishes: But it is inferred from divers Authorities, that Plēbanus was not the usual Title of every Rural Dean; but only of such a Parish Priest in a large Mother-Church, exempt from the Jurisdiction of the Ordinary, who had the Authority of a Rural Dean committed to him by the Archbishop, to whom the Church was immediately subject. Wharton Angl. Sacr. Pa. 1. pag. 569. Reg. Eccl. Christ. Cantuar. MS.

Plēbiscitum, A Law or Statute made by the joint Consent of the People or Commons without the Senate. Litt. Dist.

Pledge, (Lat. Plagus, Fr. Pleige, i. e. Fidejussor) A Surety that undertakes for another Man in Action of Trespas, &c. Pledges are Bail to Actions; also upon suing out some original Writs it is thus inferred, viz. Si A. B. fecerit te securam de Clamore suo Prosequendo tunc pone per vadios & salvos Plegios C. D. & E. F. de, &c. quod sit, &c. Or the Pledges are generally John Doe and Richard Roe. 2 Lill. Abr. 329 Those that bail or redeem any Thing but the Body of a Man, are called Pledges: And Pledges are usually found for the Demandants in Real Actions, and Plaintiffs in Personal Actions. Ibid. The Reason of finding these Pledges was, that the Plaintiff should prosecute his Suit with Effect to Judgment, and not put the Defendant to unnecessary Trouble and Charge; for if he were nonsuited at the Trial, the Entry of the Judgment upon it was thus. Ideo Considerat. est quod præd. Quæ. & Pleg. sui de Prosequend. sint inde in Misericordia, &c. The Plaintiff's Pledges that he shall prosecute his Suit may be entered at any Time pending the Action; and the Putting in of Pledges is now but a meer formal Thing; yet if the Pledges be not entered at all, it is Error, because the Law directs the Plaintiff to find Pledges. Trin. 22 Car. B. R. In the Return of a Veniis facias, the Omission of the Returning of the Pledges is but Matter of Form, and not like unto where Pledges are omitted upon an original Writ; wherefore it has been adjudged to be help'd by the Statutes of Wesail. 2 Nels. Abr. 944. Want of Pledges hath been held to be Substance; but it is aided by the Statute of 4 & 5 Ann. unless set forth particularly for Cause upon a Deturrier. 2 Lill. 39. 2 Lill. Abr. 329. The Pledges, John Doe, &c. are entered by the Defendant; on his being arrested, and giving common Bail for his Appearance, &c.

Pledges of Goods For Money, &c. See Pawns. And there is a Pledge in Law; where the Law without any special Agreement between Parties doth enable a Man to keep Goods in Nature of a Distress, &c. 2 Shep. Abr. 442.

Pledgery, (Fr. Pleigerie, Lat. Plegium) Signifies Suretyship, an Undertaking or Answering for: And the Appellant shall require the Constable and Marshal to deliver his Pledges, and discharge them of their Pledgery, after that he is come into the Lists, &c. Orig. Jur. ex Cod. MS. in Bibl. Seldeniana.

Plegis Acquietandis, Is a Writ that lies for a Surety, against him for whom he is Surety, if he pay not the Money at the Day. F. N. B. 197. If the Party who becomes Surety be compelled to pay the Money, &c. he shall have this Writ against the Person who ought to have paid the same: And if a Man be Surety for another to pay a Sum of Money, so long as the Principal Debtor hath any Thing, and is sufficient, his Sureties shall not be distrained by the Statute of Magna Charta; if they are distrained by the Sheriff, &c. they shall have a special Writ upon the Statute to discharge them. Magna Chart. 9 H. 3. c. 8. But if the Plaintiff sue the Sureties in C. B. where the Principal is sufficient to pay the Debt, whether the Sureties may plead that and aver that the principal Debtor is sufficient to pay it; or whether they shall have a Writ to the Sheriff not to distrain in such a Case, hath been made a Question. New Nat. Br. 306. It was adjudged Pascb. 43 Ed. 3. that the Writ de Plegis acquietandis lieth without any Specialty shewed thereof: As it has been held, that a Man shall have an Action of Debt against him who becometh Pledge for another upon his Promise to pay the Money, without any Writing made of it. New Nat. Br. 270, 304.

Plena forisfactura, A Forfeiture of all that one hath, &c. See Forfeiture.

Plenary, Is a Term used in Ecclesiastical Affairs, where a Church is full of an Incumbent. A Clerk inducted may plead his Patron's Title; and being instituted by the Space of Six Months, his Patron may plead Plenary against all common Persons. Plowd. 501. Institution by Six Months, before a Writ of Quare impedit brought, is a good Plenary against a common Person; but Plenary is no Plea against the King, 'till six Months after Induction. 1 Inst. 119, 344. Plenary for six Months is not generally pleadable against the King, because he may bring Quare Impedit at any Time, and Nullum Tempus occurrit Regi: Though if a Title devolves to the King by Lapse, and the Patron presents his Clerk by Usurpation, who is instituted and inducted, and enjoys the Benefice for Six Months, this is such a Plenary as deprives the King of his Presentation. 2 Inst. 361. And Plenary by six Months after Institution is a good Plea against the Queen Consort; although she claims the Benefice of the King's Endowment. Wood's Inst. 160. Upon Collation of a Bishop by Lapse, Plenary is not pleadable; for the Collation doth not make a Plenary, by Reason the Bishop would be Judge in his own Cause: The Bishop must certify whether the Church is full, or not; and his Collation is interpreted to be no more than to supply the Cure 'till the Patron doth present; and 'tis for this Cause a Plenary by Collation cannot be pleaded against the right Patron: But by Collation, Plenary may be a Bar to any Lapse of the Archbishop, and to the King, though 'tis no Bar to the right Patron. 6 Rep. 50. 1 Inst. 344. 2 Cro. 207. Plenary or not shall be tried by the Bishop's Certificate, being acquired by Institution, which is a Spiritual Act; but in a Quare Impedit, the Plenary must be tried by a Jury. 6 Rep. 49. By the Common Law, where a Person is presented, instituted and inducted to a Church, the Church is full, though the Person presented be a Layman; and shall not be void, but from the Time of the Deprivation of the Incumbent for his Incapacity. Count. Perf. Compan. 99. Avoidance is contrary to Plenary; as where there is a Want of a lawful Incumbent, &c.

Plene administrabit, Is a Plea pleaded by an Executor or Administrator, where they have administered the Deceased's Estate faithfully and justly before the Action brought against them. On Plene administravit pleaded by an Executor, if it be proved that he hath Goods in his Hands which were the Testator's, he may give in Evidence that he hath paid to the Value of his own Money, and need not plead it specially; for when an Executor before the Action, hath paid the Money in equal Degree with that demanded by the Plaintiff, he may plead fully administered generally, and give the Special Matter in Evidence. 2 Lill. Abr. 330. And where a Testator or Intestate was indebted to the Executor or Administrator, upon Bond, they may plead Plene administravit, and give their own Bonds in Evidence against any other Bond; so likewise upon an Indebitatus, having the Privilege of paying themselves first. Ibid. Plene administravit is no Plea where an Executor, &c. is sued in the Debet and Detinet, because he is charged for his own Occupation. 1 Mod. 185. And if Plene Administravit be pleaded, omitting the Words, And that he hath not any Goods or Chattels of the Testator, nor had on the Day of exhibiting the Bill aforesaid, or at any Time after, &c. it is naught on a Demurrer, and not helped by Verdict. Cro. Jac. 132. 3 Lev. 28. Where the Executor, &c. is to shew specially, how he hath administered the Goods, vide Aleyn 48. See Executors.

Plight, Is an old English Word, used sometimes for the Estate, with the Condition and Quality of the Land. 1 Inst. 221.

Plimouth, The Mayor and Commonalty of Plimouth, were empowered by Statute to dig a Trench six or seven Foot broad, through all the Land lying between the Town and the River New, to convey the Water thither; paying the Owners of the Ground, so much as two Justices of Peace shall appoint; but not through any Garden, or to prejudice any Mill, &c. 27 Eliz. c. 20.

Plonkets, A Kind of coarse Woolen Cloth. Stat. 1 R. 3. c. 8.

Plow-alms, (Elemosyna aratralis) Was anciently 1 d. paid to the Church for every Plowland. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 256.

Plow-bote, A Right of Tenants to take Wood to repair Ploughs, Carts and Harrows; and for making Rakes, Forks, &c.

Plow-land, Is the same with a Hide of Land; and a Hide or Plow-land, it is said, do not contain any certain Quantity of Acres; But a Plough land, in respect of Repairing the Highway is settled at 50 l. a Year, by the Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 29.

Plow-Silver, In former Times was Money paid by some Tenants, in lieu of Service to plough the Lord's Lands. W. Jones Rep. 280. See Socage.

Pluralities, (Pluralitas) Signifies the Plural Number; mostly applied to such Clergymen who have more Benefices than one: And Selden mentions Triplalities and Quadriplalities, where one Parson hath three or four Livings. Seld. Tit. Hon. 687. Plurality of Livings is where the same Person obtains two or more Spiritual Preferments, with Cure of Souls; in which Case the first is void ipso facto, and the Patron may present to it, if the Clerk be not qualified by Dispensation, &c. for the Law enjoins Residence, and it is impossible that the same Person can reside in two Places at the same Time. Coun. Pars. Compan. 94. By the Canon Law, no Ecclesiastical Person can hold two Benefices with Cure simul & semel, but that upon taking the second Benefice, the first is void: But the Pope by Usurpation did dispense with that Law; and at first every Bishop had Power to grant Dispensations for Pluralities, till it was abrogated by a General Council, held Anno 1273, and this Constitution was received till the Statute 21 H. 8. c. 13. Morr 119. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1271. The Stat. 21 H. 8. ordains, that if any Parson having one Benefice with Cure, of the Yearly Value of 8 l. or above, in the King's Books, accepts of another Benefice with Cure, and is instituted and inducted, then the first shall be void: So that there may be a Plurality within the Statute; and a Plurality by the Canon Law. 2 Lutw. 1306. The Power of granting Dispensations to hold two Benefices with Cure, &c. is vested in the King by the aforesaid Statute: And it has been adjudged, that a Dispensation is not necessary for a Plurality; where the King presents his Chaplain to a second Benefice; for such a Presentment imports a Dispensation, which the King hath Power to grant as supreme Ordinary; but if such a Chaplain be presented to a second Benefice by a Subject, he must have a Dispensation before he is instituted to it. 1 Salk. 161. The Archbishop's Dispensation and King's Confirmation, regularly are necessary to hold Pluralities: And the Statute 21 H. 8. ought to be construed strictly, because it introduces Non-Residence, and Plurality of Benefices against the Common Law. Fank. Cent. 270. A Man by Dispensation may hold as many Benefices, without Cure, of whatsoever Value, as he can get; and likewise so many with Cure as he can get; all of them, for all but the last being under the Value of 8 l. per Ann. in the King's Books; if the Person to be dispensed withal, be not incapable thereof: Yet if a Dispensation is made to hold three Benefices with Cure, whereof the first is of the yearly Value of 8 l. the Dispensation is void, unless it be in Case of the King's Chaplains, &c. who may hold three Benefices with Cure, above the Value of 8 l. a Year, where one of them is in the King's Gift. Hob. 148. If there be two Parsons of one Church, and each Parson hath the entire Cure of the Parish, and their Benefices be severally of the Value of 8 l. per Ann. if one dies and the other succeeds, this is a Plurality within the Statute. Cro. Car. 456. And though the Act mentions Instituted and Inducted, when one is Instituted into the second Church, the Dispensation to hold two Benefices comes too late, though he be afterwards Inducted; for by Institution, the Church is full of the Incumbent. 4 Rep. 79. By the Statute, if the first Benefice be of the Value of 8 l. a Year, or more, by the Acceptance of a second, it is actually void, to all Intents: But Benefices under that Value, being not within the Statute, are only avoidable by accepting a second, and not void on such Plurality, without a declaratory Sentence, &c. Mallon & Imped. 104. In these Cases it hath been held, that the Value of Livings to make Pluralities shall be determined by the King's Books in the First-Fruits Office: Though the Court hath been divided, whether the Value should be taken as it was in the King's Books, or according to the true Value of the Living. 2 Lutw. 1301. 2 Nelf. 1271. No Deanery shall be taken by our Law to be a Benefice with Cure, to need Dispensation on having another Benefice, &c. 21 H. 8. 1 Leon. 316. And a Parsonage and Vicarage make not a Plurality, but are only one Cure; the Vicarage being endowed out of the Parsonage. 2 Cro. 691. Parsons may purchase a Licence or Dispensation to take and keep two or more Benefices with Cure, according to the Directions and Qualifications in the said Statute 21 H. 8. c. 13. And in some Cases, Parsons may hold Pluralities, without being retained as Chaplains, &c. pursuant to that Statute, viz. by Birth, as being the Son or Brother of a Lord; by University Degree, where a Man is Doctor of Divinity, Law, &c. or by Office or Employment, as a Bishop. Stat. 26 H. 8. But when a Parson is made a Bishop, his former Qualification to hold Plurality of Livings is void. Hob. 158. See Chaplain.

Pocket of Wool, Is a Quantity of Wool containing Half a Sack. 3 Inst. 96.

Poison, The Killing a Person by Poisoning, has been held more criminal than any other Murder, because of its Secrecy, which prevents all Defence against it; whereas most open Murders give the Party Party killed some Opportunity of Resistance: And for this Reason Offenders guilty of Poisoning any Person, were anciently judged to a severer Punishment than other Offenders. In this Kingdom Poisoning Persons was formerly a Kind of Treason; punished by Boiling to Death. 22 H. 8. c. 9. 3 Nels. Abr. 363. And at this Day, to poison any one wilfully, is Murder and Felony, if the Party die in a Year; and the Aiders and Abettors, &c. shall suffer Death. Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. If a Man persuade another to drink a poisonous Liquor, under the Notion of a Medicine, who afterwards drinks it in his Absence; or if A. intending to poison B. put Poison into a Thing, and deliver it to C. who knows nothing of the Matter, to be by him delivered to B. and C. innocently delivers it accordingly in the Absence of A. In this Case the Procurer of the Felony is as much a Principal as if he had been present when it was done. 2 Howk. P. C. 313. And so likewise all those seem to be who are present when the Poison was infused, and pivy and consenting to the Design: But Persons who only abet their Crime by Command, Counsel, &c. and are absent when the Poison was infused, are Accessories only. Ibid.

Dict.* It is a Course taken by those who adventure Goods or Merchandizes to Sea, that they, unwilling to hazard the Whole, do give unto some other, called an Insurer, a certain Rate or proportionate Sum of so much per Cent. to secure the safe Arrival of the Ship and Goods, &c. at the Place agreed upon; so that if the Ship and Merchandize do miscarry, the Insurer maketh good to the Adventurer so much as he promised to secure; but if the Ship arrive safely, he gaineth that clearly which the Merchant compoundeth to pay him: And for the more equal Dealing between the Insurer and the Insured in this Case, there was a Clerk or Officer ordained by Statute to set down in Writing the Sum of their Agreement, which is subscribed or under-written by the Insurer; and this was called Policy, to prevent any Difference that might after happen between them. Stat. 43 Elix. cap. 12. and 14 Car. 2. cap. 23. See Insurance.

Poor, (Pauper) A poor Person is such as is a Burden to and Charge upon a Parish. The Poor our Law takes Notice of, are of three Kinds, 1st, Poor by Impotency and Defect; as the Aged or Decrepit, Fatherless and Motherless, Poor under Sickness, and Persons that are Idiots, Lunaticks, Lame, Blind, &c. these the Overseers of the Poor are to provide for. 2^{dly}, Poor by Casualty; such as Housekeepers decay'd or ruin'd by Fire, Water, Robbery, &c. or by Losses in Trade; Poor Persons overcharged with Children, Labourers that are disabled, and these, having Ability, are to be set to work, but if not able to work, they are to be relieved with Money. 3^{dly}, Poor by Prodigality and Debauchery, also called Tbristless Poor; as idle slothful Persons, Pilferers, Vagabonds, Strumpets, &c. which are to be sent to the House of Correction, and be put to hard Labour, to maintain themselves; or Work is to be provided for them, that they do not perish for Want; and if they become impotent by Sickness, or if their Work will not maintain them, there must be an Allowance by the Overseers of the Poor for their Support. Dalt. cb. 73. sect. 35. Before the Reign of Queen Elizabeth we had no such Thing as settled Laws for the Relief of the Poor; for as History tells us, our Abbies and Monasteries, assisted with the Benevolence and ancient Hospitality of Lords of Manors, till the Time of the Reformation, were a sufficient Provision for the Poor of this Kingdom: But I find, by the Statute 23 Ed. 3. c. 7. Relief was to be given to those that could not Labour: The 2 H. 5. c. 1. ordained, that Hospitals founded for impotent Poor, were to be visited. And by 27 H. 8. c. 25. Governors of Counties, Cities, Towns, &c. were obliged to keep aged Poor and impotent Persons; and compel those that were able, to work and go to Service: And then in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, several particular Laws were enacted for the Relief of the Poor, appointing Collectors and Overseers, &c. For by the 5 Eliz. c. 3. Relief of Parishes is to be gathered by Collectors, and weekly distributed to the Poor; and none shall be permitted to beg openly, &c. And the 43 Eliz. c. 2. enacts, That the Churchwardens of every Parish, and two or three House-keepers, shall be nominated yearly in Easter Week, or within one Month after, by Two or more Justices of the Peace of the County, dwelling near the Parish under their Hands and Seals, to be Overseers of the Poor; and they with the Consent of Two such Justices, shall set to work the Children of those Persons who are not able to maintain them, and all Persons who have no Means to maintain themselves, or use no Trade to get their Living; and shall raise weekly, or otherwise, by a Tax, on every Inhabitant and Occupier of Lands, &c. such a Sum as they shall think fit for Purchasing a Stock of Flax, Hemp and Wool, to set the Poor on Work; and such Sums as shall be necessary for the Relief of the Lame,

Old, Blind and Impotent, and for putting out poor Children Apprentices, &c. And the said Overseers so nominated and appointed, shall meet once a Month at least in their Parish-Church, having no just Excuse therein to be allow'd of by two Justices, upon a Sunday after Evening Service, and there take Order in the Premises; which Overseers, within four Days after the End of their Year, are to yield a true Account to two Justices, of all Money by them received, or what is assess'd and not received; what Poor they have relieved, and Stock they or the Poor have in their Hands; and of all other Things concerning their Office, and deliver what shall be in their Hands to the new Overseers, or on Refusal, shall be committed to Gaol till they account and pay over the Money, &c. And now their Accounts shall not be allowed until they have accounted for Burials in Woollen, and of Persons interred contrary to the Statute 30 Car. 2. If the Inhabitants of any Parish are not able to raise Money for the Relief of their Poor, then two Justices of the Peace may tax any other Parishes within the Hundred; and if the Hundred be not thought able, the Justices at their Quarter-Sessions may rate any other Parish in the County; the Sums assess'd to be levied by Warrant of two Justices, by Distress and Sale of Goods, and in Default thereof, the Justices may commit the Parties till paid; and the said Justices may commit Persons not setting themselves to work, according to Appointment, &c. The Churchwardens and Overseers, by the Assent of two Justices, may bind poor Boys Apprentices until the Age of twenty-four Years, and every Girl till the Age of twenty-one Years, or till she marry: And Churchwardens and Overseers, with the Assistance of the Justices, may oblige all Persons of Ability, as Gentlemen, Clergymen, Yeomen and Tradesmen, (such as Bakers, Brewers, Carpenters, Masons, Weavers, Tailors, &c.) to take such poor Apprentices, either with Money, or without: Also Apprentices may be placed to Farmers, who shall receive them for Husbandry; and single Men, Widows, &c. for Housewifery. And the Overseers, &c. by Leave of Lords of Manors, may build Dwelling-houses on the Waste for the impotent Poor, and place Inmates, or more Families than one in them; the said Houses to be built at the Charge of the Parish, Hundred or County, to be tax'd as aforesaid: And the Father and Grandfather, Mother and Grandmother, and Children of every poor impotent Person, being able, shall relieve such Poor, in such Manner, and according to such Rates as the Justices of Peace at their Sessions shall assess, under the Penalty of 20s. a Month for every Failure: And Mayors, and other Head Officers of Corporations, being Justices of Peace within their Precincts, shall have the same Power as Justices of Peace of the County, to execute this Act; and no other Justices shall intermeddle there; also every Alderman of London may execute so much of the Statute as is appointed to be done by one or two Justices of Peace of any County: Where any Parish extends into more Counties than one; or lies Part within a Corporation and Part without, the Justices and Head Officers shall act only in that Part of the said Parish as lies within their Limits; but the Churchwardens and Overseers of such Parishes as extend into several Limits shall, without dividing themselves, jointly execute their Office, and exhibit one Account to the Head Officer of the Corporation, and another to two Justices of Peace as aforesaid. And whete in any Place there shall be no Overseers yearly appointed, every Justice of the Division where such Default shall happen, and every Mayor and Head Officer of a Corporation, &c. shall forfeit 5 l. to the Use of the Poor, leviable on their Goods by Warrant from the Quarter-Sessions. The 3 Car. 1. cap. 4. ordains, That the Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, mentioned mentioned in the 43 Eliz. may, with the Consent of two or more Justices of Peace, or of one Justice where there shall be no more, set up any Trade or Occupation for Employing or better Relief of the Poor of their Parishes. By the 14 Car. 2. c. 12. Persons coming to settle in a Parish, and renting a Tenement under the Value of 10*l.* a Year, on Complaint by the Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor to a Justice of Peace within forty Days, may be removed to the Parish where last legally settled for forty Days, &c. by Order of two Justices; unless they give Security to indemnify the Parish, to be allowed by the said Justices: But Persons may go into another Parish to Harvest-work, &c. by Certificate from the Minister, Churchwardens and Overseers, that they have a Dwelling in the Parish they came from; and such Persons are to return to their Parishes when their Work is finished, and shall not be accounted settled where they sojourn, &c. And by this Statute, a Corporation or Work-house was to be in the Cities of London and Westminster, and the Towns and Places within the Bills of Mortality, governed by Presidents, &c. as a Stock for which Justices in their Sessions might tax and assess the Inhabitants in their Divisions and Parishes, not exceeding a Year's Rate usually made for Relief of the Poor. The Act 14 Car. 2. (except what relates to the Incorporation of Work-houses within the Weekly Bills of Mortality) is continued by 1 Jac. 2. c. 17. And the forty Days to make a Settlement was to commence from the Delivery of Notice to the Churchwardens. And by 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11. it is enacted, that the forty Days intended to make a Settlement by the Act 13 & 14 Car. 2. shall be accounted from the Publication of Notice in Writing in the Church, of any Person's coming to inhabit in any Parish; and Churchwardens and Overseers neglecting to publish such Notice the next Sunday after received, or to register the same, shall forfeit 40*s.* to the Party grieved: But Persons coming into a Parish, and executing for themselves any Publick annual Office during one Year; or who shall be charged and pay publick Taxes to the said Parish; they shall be deemed a legal Settlement, without Notice: And if any unmarried Person, not having a Child or Children, shall be hired into any Service for one Year, such Service shall be a Settlement; and being bound Apprentice, and inhabiting in any Parish, such Binding and Habitation shall make a Settlement, without Notice. Persons removed by Warrant or Order of two Justices, are to be received by the Churchwardens and Overseers whither sent, on Pain of forfeiting 5*l.* to the Poor of the Parish from whence conveyed, to be levied by Distress and Sale by Warrant from one Justice; and for Want of Distress to be committed to Gaol for forty Days; but Persons aggrieved may appeal to the next Quarter-Sessions of the County, &c. And there shall be kept in every Parish a Book, wherein the Names of all Persons that receive Relief shall be register'd, and the Occasion; and the Parishioners are to meet at a Vestry yearly in Easter Week, or oftner, when the Book shall be examined, by calling over the Persons, and inquiring into the Reasons of their taking Relief, and then a new List shall be made of such Persons as they think fit to allow and receive Collections; and no other Persons shall receive Collection, unless by Authority under the Hand of one Justice, or by Order of Justices in their Sessions, &c. The Statute 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 30. gives Leave to poor Persons to remove to other Parishes for Work and the better Maintenance of their Families, by Certificate from the Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, under Hand and Seal, attested by two Witnesses, and allowed and subscribed by two Justices of Peace, owning and acknowledging them to be Parishioners legally settled at the Place from whence they came;

which Certificate shall oblige the said Parish or Place to receive and provide for them and their Families, whenever they become chargeable to, or ask Relief of the Parish to which they remove and the Certificate is given; and then, and not before, such Persons and their Children, (though born in that Parish, not having acquired a legal Settlement) shall be removed back to, and settled in the Parish from whence such Certificate was brought: Poor receiving Relief of any Parish, upon the Shoulder of the right Sleeve of their Coats, are to wear a Badge or Mark, with a large Letter P. and the first Letter of the Name of the Parish whereof they are Inhabitants, cut either in Red or Blue Cloth; and such Poor neglecting or refusing to wear such Badge, any Justice of Peace may punish them, by Ordering their Allowance to be abridged or withdrawn, or committing them to the House of Correction, there to be whipp'd and kept to hard Labour; and if any Churchwarden or Overseer shall relieve any poor Person not wearing a Badge, he shall forfeit 20*s.* one Half to the Informer, and the other to the Poor. By 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 11. No Person coming into any Parish by Certificate, shall gain a legal Settlement there, unless he bona fide take a Lease or Tenement of 10*l.* per Annum, or execute some Annual Office in such Parish. And the 12 Ann. c. 18. which makes the 13 & 14 Car. 2. perpetual, (excepting what concerns Corporations) declares, that no Apprentice or hired Servant to Persons coming into a Parish by Means of a Certificate, shall acquire a Settlement in such Parish, except the Matter be afterwards legally settled. The Stat. 2 Ann. c. 6. impowers Justices of Peace, &c. and Churchwardens and Overseers, with Consent of two Justices, to place out poor Boys, of Parents chargeable to the Parish, Apprentice to the Sea Service, and the Churchwardens and Overseers are to pay to the Master with a Boy 2*l.* 10*s.* for Cloathing and Bedding, which shall be allowed in their Accounts; and these Apprentices are to be conveyed to the respective Ports to their Masters by the Overseers, and the Charges born as is provided for Vagrants; and the Indenture to be sent to the Collectors of the Customs of such Ports, &c. The 5 Geo. 1. cap. 8. provides, that Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, where any Wife or Children are left upon the Parish, by Persons who have Estates, &c. which might keep them, by Warrant from two Justices of Peace, may seize so much of the Goods and Chattels, and receive so much of the Rents of the Husband or Father, as the Justices shall order for the Keeping of such Wife or Children, which Order of the Justices is to be confirmed at the next Quarter Sessions, and then the Goods and Chattels may be disposed of; and the Overseer, &c. shall be accountable to the Sessions. And the Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 7. enacts, that no Justice of Peace shall order Relief to any poor Person till Oath be made of reasonable Cause, and that such Person had been refused Relief by the Overseers of the Poor of his Parish, &c. and until the Justice had summoned the Overseers to shew Cause why Relief should not be given; and Persons to whom any Justice shall order Relief shall be register'd in the Parish Books as other Poor, and the Churchwardens and Overseers are not to bring to the Parish Account any Money given to Poor, (unless on sudden and emergent Occasions) that are not register'd, on Pain of 5*l.* Penalty, to be levied by Distress and Sale, by Warrant from two Justices, and applied to the Use of the Poor: Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, with Consent of a Majority of the Parishioners, at a Vestry, or other publick Meeting, may purchase or hire Houses, and contract with Persons for the Lodging, Maintaining and Employing of poor Persons desiring Relief; and take the Benefit of their Work for their better Maintenance; and poor Persons refusing to be so lodged and kept, shall be struck out of the Parish-Books, and not be intitled to any Collection; and where any Parish, &c. shall be too small to purchase or hire Houses, two Parishes, with Consent as aforesaid, and Approbation of a Justice of Peace, may unite in doing thereof; and the Poor may be also lodged and maintained in other Parishes by Churchwardens and Overseers, &c. But no poor Persons, or their Apprentices, or Children, shall gain a Settlement in such Parishes: No Person shall be deemed to have acquired a Settlement in any Parish; by Virtue of any Purchase of an Estate under 30*l.* Value, for any longer Time than such Person shall inhabit in the Estate purchased; and Persons taxed or assessed on the Scavenger's Rates, or to the Highways, and who shall pay such Rates, shall not thereby gain any legal Settlement in a Parish: And in Case of Appeals from Orders for Removal of Poor, none shall be proceeded upon in the Quarter-Sessions, unless reasonable Notice be given; and if the Justices determine in Favour of the Appellant, he shall be awarded the Expences employed in Relief of the poor Person, between the Time of the Removal and Determination of the Appeal, to be recovered by Distress, &c. by Order of the Justices, as Costs and Charges, by 9*W.* 3. c. 30. The Witnesses to Certificates acknowledging any poor Persons to be legally settled in a Parish, are to make Proof on Oath of the Execution thereof before the Justices of Peace directed to allow of the same; and then the Certificates shall be allowed and taken as Evidence in all Courts, &c. And when Overseers of the Poor of any Parish remove back any Certificate Persons, becoming chargeable, to the Parish to which they belong, they shall be reimbursed the Charges in maintaining and removing such Persons, being ascertained by a Justice of Peace, by the Overseers of the Poor of the Parish to which removed, leviable by Distress and Sale of Goods, &c. Stat. 3 Geo. 2. c. 29. See 6*Geo. 2. c. 31.* Every Parish is to keep their own Poor, by the 43 Eliz. And if any Poor demand Relief, that are not settled in a Parish; they ought to be removed to their proper Parishes, and there be relieved. Dalt. 73. The Overseers may Licence poor Persons to beg for Alms in their own Parishes; and if any Inhabitants relieve Poor at their Doors, not being of their own Parish, and having such a Licence, they shall forfeit 10*s.* Dalt. 157. And in present Emergencies, Overseers are to provide for Poor, and it is Discretionary to give them Money, or Victuals, &c. Style 246. 1 Keb. 366. If Justices of Peace in Sessions, &c. make Orders for Maintenance of Persons who are not impotent, but able to work, or having any Thing to live upon; those Orders are against Law. Dalt. 166. A Father has been ordered to make an Allowance to his Son's Wife, while his Son was beyond Sea: And if the Father of Children leaves the Parish, and there is a Grandfather to be found; this Grandfather, if he be of Ability, is chargeable with keeping the Children, and not the Parish. 2 Bullst. 2. Lill 333. A Father-in-Law, or a Grandfather-in-Law, married to the Mother or Grandmother of Children, of Ability to keep them, is within the Stat. 43 Eliz. Style 283. A Husband marrying a Grandmother, having an Estate with her sufficient, shall be chargeable to the Relief and Maintenance of a poor Grandchild, during the Life of the Grandmother; but after her Death he is under no Obligation to do it: And where a Grandmother is unable to relieve her Grandchildren, and marries with a Man of Ability, he is not to be charged to maintain his Wife's Grandchildren; also if the Husband, after Marriage, becomes to be of Ability, the Grandmother, at the Time of the Marriage, having nothing, he shall not be bound to keep the Children. 2 Bullst. 345. A Person was ordered by Justices in Sessions to pay so much a Week towards the Support and Maintenance of his Father, till that Court should order the contrary; and it was held good; and if an Estate happen to fall to the Father, the Justices might be applied to: Otherwise if a Time was limited. 2 Salk. 534. Rates and Assessments for providing for and relieving of the Poor of Parishes, made by the Overseers of the Poor, are usually approved by the Inhabitants, and to be allowed by the Justices: And not only Lands, Houses, &c. but Tithes, and any Thing from whence an annual Profit arises, may be taxed towards the Poor's Rate. 2 Bullst. Also all Persons, the Clergy not exempted, must contribute to the Relief of the Poor. 2 Keb. 251. Persons are to be taxed according to the visible Estate they have in the Parish; and this Tax may be u. on Lands or Goods; and when charged on Goods, they are rated according to the usual Value of Lands, *viz. 100*l. Stock of Goods at 5*l. per Annum.* A Person who hath Lands in his Occupation, and a Stock of Goods and Wares besides, as a Tradesman, Draper, Grocer, &c. may be taxed for both; but not for such Stock or Goods with which he uses to manure his Lands, nor for the Profits of Lands for which he hath been already taxed as Occupier, though for other Stock and Personal Estate he is chargeable. 2 Salk. The Farmer or Occupier is to be charged to the Poor's Rate, and not the Landlord, who shall not be taxed for his Rent, for then the Land would pay twice; though if he be possessed of Personal Estate, he may be taxed for that: And for Personal Estate, the Party must be charged only in that Place where the Goods are at the Time of the Assessment; if he hath not Goods or Personal Estate where he is assessed, to the Value he is charged, and is distrained, he may have Action of Trespass. Read. Stat. Vol. 5. pag. 21. If an House originally entire, become several and distinct, by dividing it into Apartments, so as the Inhabitants have no Communication one with another, it is severally rateable: But if an Inhabitant of a separate Part of the House, goes away and leaves the Owner in Possession of the other Part, both Parts make now but one Tenement, for which the Owner is rateable to the Poor, &c. Mod. Ca. 214. The most reasonable and the common Way of taxing Lands for Relief of the Poor is by a Pound Rate; and if the Overseers make an unequal Rate, they may be indicted and fined for it. 1 Keb. 173. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor of a Parish, made a Rate for the Relief of the Poor, which was confirmed by two Justices of Peace; but all was rated upon the Real Estates, and none on the Personal, and therefore upon Appeal to the Sessions the Rate was quashed, and the Overseers, &c. ordered to make a new Rate upon the Real and Personal Estates; which they afterwards did, but with a very great Inequality on the Real Estates; whereupon several Persons appeal'd again, and this Rate was likewise vacated: In B. R. it was objected, that the Sessions had no Power to vacate whole Rates; but adjudged that they may quash whole Rates, and refer it to the Churchwardens and Overseers to make new Rates, or they may make a new Rate themselves. 2 Salk. 483. Churchwardens and Overseers may not tax particular Persons, and not the whole Parish; but the Justices may tax particular Persons, and need not assess the whole Parish, which is to contribute to the Poor of another: Or the Justices may assess the Parish in a certain Sum, and leave it to the Parish Officers to collect and levy the same of particular Persons. 2 Bullst. 352. 2 Salk. 480. It has been held, that Justices cannot make a standing Rate; because by Statute the Rate must be equal, which a standing Rate cannot be, for Lands may be improved every Year, and the Rate should be altered as Circumstances alter. 2 Salk. 526. A Rate should be made every Month, which the Justices are to approve; and if they refuse, a Mandamus may be had: And it hath been resolved, that a Tenant could not be rated for a whole Quarter, by Reason the Statute directs Rates to be assessed Monthly, and otherwise a Man cannot remove in the Middle of a Quarter but he will be twice rated; and where there is a Custom to rate Quarterly, a Distress cannot be taken of any one before the Quarter is ended, nor then without special Warrant on Purpose. Ibid. 532. But it is said, that the constant Usage has been, to Distrain before the End of the Quarter, and that to avoid Mischief, if the Party should remove out of the Parish and County before the Quarter. Mod. Caf. 214, 215. A Mandamus to make a Rate to reimburse an Overseer Money laid out is not good; for the Court of B. R. cannot order such a Rate, but only to raise Money for Relief of the Poor: And an Overseer is not bound to lay out Money till he has it; and if he doth he must make a new Rate for Relief of the Poor, &c. Ibid. 531. It is said by Holt C. J. that not only a Rate may be made, but Churchwardens and Overseers, with the Confirmation of the Justices of Peace, may order a Sum of Money to be levied for the Relief the Poor, without the Concurrence of the Parishioners. 2 Ld. Raym. 1013. And by a Justice's Warrant, Constable, &c. may levy the Poor's Rate on a Man's Goods in another Parish, where he hath no Chattels on the Land in the Parish where he is rated. 1 Raym. 735. Justices of Peace refusing to sign a Poor Rate, a Rule was made in B. R. for them to sign it, or shew Cause, &c. and no good Cause being shewn, a peremptory Rule was made for them to sign it, or that an Attachment should go. Sid. 377. 5 Mod. 275. A Mandamus was issued to Justices of Peace, and the Overseers of the Poor, to give an Account of Money by them received for the Relief of the Poor; who returned, that they had given an Account of the Money, and that they had disposed several Sums in a particular Manner, setting forth, &c. And it was held, that the Mandamus was ill, for Want of Suggesting that the ordinary Remedy could not be had. 5 Mod. 420. If Overseers make a false Account, they may be indicted. Dalt. 154. But where Overseers of the Poor refused to Account, &c. and they were indicted for the same; an Objection was made that the Indictment would not lie, because another Remedy was provided by the Statute. 3 Salk. 187. And where an Account of Overseers was allow'd by two Justices, and the Parish appeal'd from this Allowance to the Quarter Sessions, and they disallow'd the Account, and ordered the Overseer to pay, &c. for not doing which, they committed him: it was resolved, that the Justices of Peace at the Sessions upon the Appeal, must execute their Judgment in the same Manner as the two Justices might do, who must first send their Process to distrain, and on Return that there is no Distress, then commit the Overseer. Mich. 4 Ann. B. R. 2 Salk. 533. Church wardens and Overseers, for every Neglect and Default in executing their Offices relating to Poor, forfeit 20 s. to the Use of the Poor of the Parish: And there are Penalties and Forfeitures for Offences, given by many Statutes to the Poor, for their further Maintenance, which are to be paid to Churchwardens and Overseers, &c. and by them to be accounted for; and these are concerning Alehouses, Drunkenness, Customs, Excise, unlawful Gaming, Destroying the Game, Hedge-breakers, Sabbath-breaking, Swearing, Scavengers, unlawful Weights and Measures, &c. &c. Poor Laws. Vide Justices of Peace.

Poor settled in Parishes. Settlements of Poor are gained three Ways: By Inheritance; as when a Child claims a Settlement in a Parish, because his Father was there settled: By being born in a Parish; and by Commorancy. As to the First of these, if the Father has a legal Settlement, the Child is settled where the Father is: And if the Father have no legal Settlement, the Child regularly gains a Settlement in the Parish where born. 2 Bull. 351. But this Settlement by Birth may be defeated several Ways; 1st, If the Parent is removed by an illegal Order; and from the Order an Appeal is duly made, pending which the Child is born; in this Case on quashing the Order, the Child shall be sent back with the Mother. 2 By Practice; if a Woman near her Time is clandestinely sent to another Parish, and there delivered. 3. If a Woman with Child be sent to the House of Correction, and is there delivered, the Child shall not gain a Settlement by its Birth in the Parish where the House of Correction is; but in the Parish where the Mother dwelt when sent to the House of Correction, as the Place where she had otherwise probably been delivered. 2 Bull. 358, 381. 1 Salk. 121. If a travelling Woman, having a small Sucking Child, shall be apprehended for Felony, and be sent to the Gaol, and afterwards arraigned and hanged, this Child is to be sent to the Place of its Birth, there to be settled and maintained, if the same be known; but otherwise it must be sent to the Town where the Mother was apprehended: And Children born in common Gaols, their Parents being Prisoners, are to be maintained at the Charge of the County. Dalt. 157. If a Man and his Family be illegally thrust out of a Parish, and during that Time he shall have a Child born; he must be returned to the Place where he was legally settled, and the Child with him: And Persons, whose Interest in Houses or Land is determined, cannot be put out of the Town where they were legally settled; nor can they be sent to the Place of their Birth, or last Habitation, but according as they are able or impotent shall be set to work, or relieved in the Town where so settled; though if they wander and beg, then they may be taken up and sent to the Place of their Birth. Dalt. 158, 166. Bastard Children gain a Settlement by their Birth; but it has been usual for preventing any Charge to the Parish, if a single Woman with Child come into a Parish, by a Justice's Warrant to remove her to the Place of her last legal Settlement: Bastards of Vagrants must be with the Mother while Nurse-Children until seven Years of Age; and then be sent to the Parish where born. Ibid. Till seven Years of Age, Children are accounted Nurse Children; yet afterwards they must have Maintenance from the Parishes where they themselves were settled: If a poor Man settled at A. marries a poor Woman who is settled at B. and has Children by a former Husband, the Wife shall be removed with him to A. and the Children under seven Years old shall be removed, but only for Nurture; so that they shall be kept at the Charge of the Parish from whence they are removed: But the Children above seven Years of Age are not removeable. 2 Salk. 470, 482. Generally a Wife is to be sent to, and settled with the Husband, though he be but an Inmate or Servant; as all Children are generally to be sent to, and settled with the Parents: But if a Man hireth a House in A. and being there with his Wife and Children, he shall afterwards bind himself a Servant to one in B. his Wife and Children are not to be sent to B. but are to remain still at A. where they were once settled. Dalt. 166. Though it hath been adjudged, where a Man served and had Board Wages, and lay out of his Master's House in another Parish, he gained a Settlement in the Parish where he lived and served, and not in the Parish where he lay. Pasch.

11 Geo. 1. Mod. Caf. in L. & E. 370. A Man and his Wife settled at one Parish, came privately into another Parish, and there a Child was born; the Father died in the King's Service; the Question was, Who should keep the Child: Per Holt Ch. Just. The Death of the Father doth not alter the Child's Settlement; which must be settled where the Father was last settled as well as the Mother. Comberb. 380. Settlement gained by Commorancy, is where a Person continues in some other Place than that in which he was before legally settled; and such Continuation makes a Settlement: Formerly, every one who was settled as a Native, Householder, Apprentice, or Servant, for a Month, without a just Complaint made to remove them, were lawfully settled. Dalt. But since, this Month has been enlarged to forty Days, where a Person shall come into a Parish, and Rent a Tenement under 10 l. per Annum, by the Statutes 13 & 14 Car. 2. 3 W. & M. And by Statute, Renting 10 l. a Year; Executing a publick Office in the Parish on a Man's own Account; Paying a Share to the Parish Taxes, as Church or Poor Rates, &c. Living as a hired Servant for a Year in the Parish, being unmarried, &c. and Serving or being bound as an Apprentice in a Parish, all make a legal Settlement: So that a Person being settled by any such Means, and not having acquired a Settlement elsewhere, if he falls into Poverty, shall be intitled to Relief from the Parish where he last gained such Settlement; and where he is settled his Family must follow him. Wood's Inst. 94. It has been held, in Respect to a Settlement within the Statute 13 & 14 Car. 2. That coming into a Parish publicly, taking a House, and being rated to the Poor on the Parish Book is sufficient Notice; the Statute being made against private and clandestine Removals, and not publick ones, which the Parish can take Notice of it self. Stow. 12. A Person rented a House of 3 l. per Annum in a Town, and his Landlord paid the Taxes; and whilst he lived in the Parish, he took his Freedom of the Corporation, and voted as a Freeman at the Election of Bailiffs, &c. And it was adjudged, that since the explanatory Act of 3 & 4 W. 3. nothing makes a Settlement that is not within the Words of the Statute, which implies a Negative to any Thing else not contained in it; and that as to his Voting, it doth not imply a Settlement, for 'tis an Act which relates to the corporate Body, and not to the Parish. 2 Salk. 534. A Man rents two Tenements of 5 l. per Annum each, he thereby gains a Settlement; but if he Rent a Piece of Land of 10 l. a Year, and there is no House belonging to it, it is otherwise. Hill. 1710. If one Rents a House of 10 l. per Annum, by continuing therein forty Days, he gains a Settlement, within the Meaning of 13 & 14 Car. 2. By Parker, C. J. Renting a Water mill of 10 l. per Annum, &c. makes a Settlement; for a Mill is a Tenement. 2 Salk. 536. But no Settlement can be legal in any Parish, when the Residence of the Party is obscure and uncertain, as coming now and then, and lying in Barns, Outhouses, &c. or where the Party is under Disturbance by Officers. 3 S. & 4 W. & M. A poor Man appointed to be a Parish Clerk, and executing the Office a Year, has been adjudg'd to make a good Settlement; and 'tis not material whether he came in by Appointment of the Parson, or by the Election of the Parishioners; for he is in for Life; and this is Executing a Publick annual Office and Charge within the Meaning of the Statute 3 & 4 W. 3. 2 Salk. 536. A Servant was hired first from Lady Day to Michaelmas, and from thence to Lady Day following; and this was resolved to be a good Settlement, for there was a Hiring for a Year: But it must be one intire Hiring, and one intire Service (though different Times are mentioned) for one whole Year, that must make a Settlement according to the Statute. Hill. 10 W. 3. A Servant being hired at A. for a Year, his Master lives there Half a Year, and then at B. another Half Year; adjudg'd the Servant is settled in the last Place, for the Statute doth not tie the Service down to one Place. Though if a poor Man be hired for a Year, to serve in a Boat which plies between one Place and another; by this Service, he gains no Settlement. Pasch. 4 Geo. 2. Fitzgib. 255. An unmarried Person, hired as a Servant for a Year, married before the Year was expired; and it was held, that he could not be removed, and that upon performing his Service he would gain a Settlement. 2 Salk. 527. A Man hired a Maid Servant for a Year; but she falling sick, her Master turned her out of his Service; The Servant in her Passage to the Place of her Nativity, begged for Relief, and she was sent as a Vagrant to the Parish where she was born; whereupon she was sent back by that Parish, to the Parish where she was an hired Servant; but by Order of Sessions she was settled at the Place of her Birth: This was removed by Certiorari into B. R. and the Court determined the Settlement to be at the Parish where she was an hired Servant, and not where she was born. Styl. 168. A Person is a Lodger in any Parish, his Servant acquires a Settlement: If a Servant continues in the Service of a Visitor in a Parish, he gains a Settlement there; and is not removable, unless the Parish shew that he was brought or came thither on Purpose that he might have such Settlement: And though a Master or Mistress are only Visitors, and no Lodgers, yet their Servants may be said to be hired in every Parish where they serve. Mod. Caf. in L. & E. 50, 51. If an Apprentice be bound to one who is a Lodger only in a Parish, and hath no Settlement; resolved that the Apprentice is well settled there, although the Master is not, nor doth his Settlement depend upon his Master, as that of a Wife on her Husband. Ca. Parish of St. Brides. Where an Apprentice continues forty Days in the Service of his Master, there it is said, he will have a Settlement: And where ever any Person serves the last forty Days of his Apprenticeship, that is the Place of his last legal Settlement. Hill. 4 Ann. An Apprentice bound to a Master living in one Parish, and serving some Part of his Apprenticeship there, was by Agreement turned over to another Master in another Parish; and this was held a good Settlement in that Parish where he last served, for it shall be intended it was but a Continuance of his Apprenticeship upon that Agreement. Mod. C. in L. & E. 469. A Person served an Apprenticeship in a Parish, where he married and had several Children; his Wife dying, he married another Woman, who had a Term for Years in another Parish, to which Place he removed, and resided there for a Year; afterwards he returned to the first Parish, was rated to the Poor, lived there two Years, and then he died: In a short Space after his Death, his Widow and Children were removed, by an Order of two Justices to the other Parish where he had lived a Year; but upon Appeal to this Order at the Sessions, the Sessions adjudged them to be Inhabitants settled in the first Parish. Mich. 3 Jac. 2. Where a Man lives in a Parish, and hath Lands of his own there, or in Right of his Wife, this will make a Settlement; but if he hath Land in one Parish, and lives in another, the Land will not make a Settlement of him in that Parish where it lies and he doth not live. 2 Salk. 524. If a Man be settled where he will, he cannot, though likely to become chargeable to the Parish where he goes to reside in, be removed from thence, if he have any Estate there. 5 Mod. 416. But see Stat. 9 Geo. 1. supra. Some Years ago, a Man who was not legally settled in a Parish, but had lived there some Time, procured a Certificate, cate, by Virtue of which he went into another Parish; afterwards being poor, the Parish from whence he came took him again; and upon Enquiry found, that he was never lawfully settled with them, but had gained a Settlement in another Place, before they gave this Certificate; and thither they removed him by Order: The Parish to which he was removed appealed, because those who had given the Certificate, had owned him to be an Inhabitant settled with them; but the Certificate was held only to be an Evidence of a Settlement, and thereupon the first Order was confirmed. Trin. 2 Ann. 2 Salk. 530. It has been since adjudged, That a Certificate concludes the Parish giving it, not only against the Parish to which it is given, but as to all other Parishes. Ibid. The Law unsettles none who are lawfully settled, nor permits it to be done. If one had but hired a House, the Law unsettles not such Person; and if any shall by indirect Means hinder a poor Man from hiring a House, he may be indicted; also it is finable to remove any out of the Parish who ought not to be put out, and the Persons removed may be sent back. Dalt. 98. And if a Parish will have a Man born in A. but settled with them, to go and wander and beg in B. that he may be sent to A. and he doth so, he shall be sent back to the Parish from whence he came. Ibid. But when two Justices of Peace of one County, send a poor Person to a Parish in another County, two Justices of the County whither such Person is sent, cannot make an Order to remove him back again, or to send him to any other Place; the Town to which such Person was sent, hath no other Remedy than by Appeal to the Sessions of that County from whence the Party was sent. 2 Salk. 488. A Settlement by Order of Sessions upon an Appeal is good and binding; but if it doth not appear that the Cause came before the Justices in Sessions by Way of Appeal, it may be quashed; for without that they have no Jurisdiction: If a poor Family, after Order of Sessions for their Removal on Appeal, return to the Parish from whence they were removed, the Sessions must see their Order of Settlement obeyed; though if such poor Family go into another Parish not concerned in the Appeal, two Justices of Peace ought by an Original Order to remove them to the Parish where they were settled by the Sessions Order. 2 Salk. 481, 482, 489. The Sessions having made an Original Order for Removal of a poor Person to a third Parish, after an Order of two Justices, it was quashed upon Motion: And adjudged, that the Sessions could only confirm, or reverse the Order of Settlement of the two Justices; and thereupon a new Order might be made by two Justices for Removal to the third Parish, &c. 2 Salk. 475. A general Order to remove a Man and his Family is not good; it must be particular, for some of the Family may be chargeable, and others not: And where Justices make such Orders of Settlement, it must appear, that the Parties are likely to become chargeable; and that the Person removed is removable; and contain an Adjudication of the last legal Settlement of the Party, &c. 2 Salk. 485, 491. 5 Mod. 149, 321. And according to the Opinion of the Lord Chief Justice Holt, the most regular Way to proceed on the Statute 14 Car. 2. in removing of a poor Person, is for the Justices of Peace to make a Record of the Adjudication of the last Settlement, and the Complaint of the Churchwardens and Overseers, and upon that to make a Warrant or Order under their Hands and Seals to the Churchwardens, &c. to convey the Persons to the Parish to which they ought to be sent, and to deliver in the Record at the next Sessions, to be kept among the Records; and this Record may be removed by Cartiorari. 1 Salk. 406. But on a Motion in B. R. to set aside an Order for the Setting a poor Person in a Parish, sent thither by Warrant of two Justices, and confirmed in the Sessions, upon an Appeal: The Court refused to enter into the Merits of the Cause; the Order of Sessions being in this Case final, unless it be made appear that there is Error in the Form of Proceeding. Pasch. 29 Car. 2. Ventr. 310. And it is a standing Rule in the Court of King's Bench, That if upon an Appeal, the Order of two Justices is either affirmed or quashed, upon the Merits of the Case, in relation to Settlements, it shall be conclusive between the two Parishes. Pasch. 10 Ann. The Order of two Justices not appealed from, binds the Parish upon which it is made, till a new Settlement is gained: An Order reversed is final only between the Parties; but an Order confirmed, &c. is final to all the World. 2 Salk. 472, 492. A poor Person himself, as well as the Parish, may appeal from an Order of Removal, though it has been objected that Appeal is only given to the Parish aggrieved. Cartwright's Rep. 223. And where a poor Person is visited with Sickness, he ought not to be removed from the Parish where he is, farther to endanger his Health; and if two Justices grant an Order to remove him, it is a Misdemeanor in the Justices. Mod. Caf. in L. & E. 326. On Appeals to Justices in Sessions, they are to cause Defects in Form in Orders, to be rectified without Charge, and then to proceed, &c. 5 Geo. 2. c. 19. By Law, the Place that the Poor were last legally settled at, is the Place that is to provide for them. Trin. 5 Ann. B. R. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 3. The Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor are to give public Notice in Church, of every Rate allowed for the Relief of the Poor the next Sunday after it has been allowed, or the Rate shall be void, and permit every Inhabitant to inspect the same, paying 1 s. and to have Copies thereof, paying 6 d. for every 24 Names, under the Penalty of 20 l. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 5. If a Woman wandering and begging, be delivered of a Child in a Parish to which she does not belong, she may be committed to the House of Correction till the next Sessions, where the Justices may order her to be whipp'd, and detained in the House of Correction not exceeding six Months. The Churchwardens of the Place where she shall be delivered to be repaid all Charges by the Treasurer of the County, and the Settlement of the Mother shall be deemed the Settlement of the Child, though it be a Bastard. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 38. The Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor shall yearly, within 14 Days after other Overseers shall be nominated, deliver to such succeeding Overseers an Account of all Sums received, or rated and not received by them, and of all Goods in their Hands, and Monies paid by them, and of all other Things concerning their Office, which Account shall be verified by Oath. Any Person assessed may inspect such Account paying 6 d. and have Copies paying 6 d. for every 300 Words. Person not accounting, &c. as aforesaid, may be committed until he shall. If an Overseer dies, removes, or becomes insolvent before the Expiration of his Office, two Justices may appoint another in his Room. If any Overseer removes, he shall before his Removal account as aforesaid, under the same Penalty. And if any Overseer dies, his Executors shall within forty Days deliver over all Things belonging to his Office, and pay what due, previous to other Debts. No Distress for Money justly due for Relief of the Poor shall be deemed unlawful, or the Party a Trespasser, on Account of any Defect or Want of Form in the Warrant, for Appointment of such Overseer, or in the Rate or Warrant of Distress; nor shall the Party be deemed a Trespasser ab initio, on Account of any Irregularity afterwards done by the Party. And no Plaintiff shall recover for any such Irregularity, if Tender of Amends be made before the Action brought. Succeeding Overseers may levy Arrears to reimburse former Overseers. If any Person remove out of a Parish, and another comes to occupy the House, &c. he left, the Person removing, and the Person coming in, shall be liable to pay to the Rate assessed, in Proportion to the Time he occupied the same. Fair Copies of all Rates for the Poor, shall be entered in a Book within 14 Days after all Appeals determined, and all Persons assessed shall have Access to them. See Vagrants.

Form of an Appointment of Overseers of the Poor.

WE A. B. and C. D. Esqrs; two of his Majesty's Justices of Peace for the County of, &c. do hereby nominate and appoint E. F. and G. H. &c. to be Overseers of the Poor of the Parish of, &c. in the said County, for the Year ensuing, according to the Direction of the Statute in that Case made. Given, &c.

A Justice's Warrant to relieve a poor Person, on the Statute 9 Geo. 1.

WHEREAS Complaint has been made unto me, That A. B. of your Parish, Labourer, is very Poor and Impotent: And the said A. B. hath made Oath before me, That by Reason of Age and Sickness, he is utterly disabled to provide for himself and his Family, so that they must inevitably perish, unless timely relieved; and that he had applied to, &c. Overseers of the Poor of your Parish, and been refused Relief by them; and the said Overseers, &c. having been also summoned to shew Cause why Relief should not be given, and assigned none: These are therefore to require you to pay to the said A. B. the Sum of 2 s. per Week, for and towards the Support and Maintenance of the said A. B. and his Family, until the said A. B. shall be better able to provide for the same, or until you shall be ordered to the contrary. Given under my Hand and Seal, &c.

Form of an Order to remove a Person to his Place of Settlement.

WHEREAS it appears to us T. G. and J. L. Esqrs; two of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of, &c. (one whereof of the Quorum) on the Complaint of N. O. P. R. S. T. &c. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor of the Parish of, &c. in the County aforesaid, That B. A. being on, &c. last settled in the Parish of, &c. in the County of S. is now come into the Parish of, &c. aforesaid, to endeavour to obtain a Settlement in the said Parish, not having done any Act as the Law requires to make him a Parishioner there, whereby he is likely to become chargeable to the Parish of, &c. aforesaid: And whereas it appears by the Oath of, &c. that the said B. A. was last legally settled at the Parish of, &c. which we do adjudge accordingly: Now we the aforesaid Justices, do hereby order you the Constable of, &c. to remove and convey the said B. A. from the said Parish of, &c. unto the aforesaid Parish of, &c. the Place of his last legal Settlement, and to deliver him to the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor there, or some or one of them; hereby also requiring you the said Church-wardens and Overseers of the said Parish of, &c. to receive the said B. Pope, (Papa) Was anciently applied to some Clergymen in the Greek Church; but by Usage is particularly appropriated in the Latin Church to the Bishop of Rome, who is called the Pope; and formerly had great Authority here. As to the Incroachments of the See of Rome, it is said to be the general Opinion, That Christianity was first planted in this Island by some of the Eastern Church; which is very probable from the ancient Britains observing Easter always on the fourteenth Day of the Month, according to the Custom of the East: But the Saxons being converted about the Year 600, by Persons sent from Rome, and wholly devoted to the Interest thereof, it could not be expected that such an Opportunity of enlarging the Jurisdiction of that See; should be wholly neglected; and yet there are few Instances of the Papal Power in England before the Norman Conquest, though four or five Persons were made Bishops by the Pope at the first Conversion; and there was an Instance or two of Appeals to Rome, &c. But the Pope having favoured and supported William the First, in his Invasion of this Kingdom, made that a Handle for enlarging his Incroachments; and in this King's Reign, began to send his Legates hither; and after he prevailed with King Hen. 1. to give up the Donation of Bishopricks; and in the Time of King Stephen, gained the Prerogative of Appeals; and in the Reign of King Hen. 2. he exempted all Clerks from the secular Power: Indeed this King did at first strenuously withstand those Innovations; but upon the Death of Becket, who for having violently opposed the King, was slain by some of his Servants, the Pope got such an Advantage over the King, that he was never able to execute the Laws he had made: And not long after this, by a general Excommunication of the King and People, for several Years, because they would not suffer an Archbishop to be imposed on them, King John was reduced to such Straits, that he surrendered his Kingdoms to the Pope, to receive them again, and hold them of him under the Rent of a thousand Marks: And in the following Reign of King Hen. 3. partly from the Profits of our best Church Benefices, which were generally given to Italians, and others residing at the Court of Rome, and partly from the Taxes imposed by the Pope, there went yearly out of the Kingdom Seventy Thousand Pounds Sterling, a very great Sum in those Days: The Nation being thus burdened and under a Necessity, was obliged to provide for the Prerogative of the Prince, and the Liberties of the People, by many strict Laws. And hence in the Reign of King Edw. 1. it was declared in Parliament, That the Pope's taking upon him to dispose of English Benefices to Aliens, was an Incroachment not to be endured; and this was followed with the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. called the Statute of Provisors, against Popish Bulls, and disturbing any Patron to present to a Benefice, &c. The 12, 13 and 16 R. 2. the Stat. 2 H. 4. and 6, 7 & 9 ejusdem; the 3 H. 5. 23 & 28 Hen. 8. &c. And Maintaining by Writing, Preaching, &c. the Pope's Power here in England, is made a Præmunire upon the first Conviction; and High Treason upon the second. 5 Eliz. In the Construction of which Statute, it has been held, That he who knowing the Contents of a Popish Book, written beyond Sea, brings it over, and secretly sells it, or secretly conveys it to a Friend; or having read the Book, or heard of its Contents, doth after in Discourse allow it to be good, &c. is in Danger of the Statute; but not he who having heard thereof, buys and reads the same. Selden's Janus Anglor. Davis's Rep. 90, &c. Dyer 282. 2 Inst. 580. See Bull and Præmunire.

Popery. There are several Statutes made against Persons perverting or withdrawing others to Popery.

Popery, and the being perverted to the Romish Religion, which was made Treason by 23 Eliz. and 3 Jac. 1. But if any one reconciled to the See of Rome beyond the Seas, return into the Realm, and submit himself, &c. and take the Oaths within six Days, he is to be excused. 3 Jac. 1. c. 4.

Popular Action, Is an Action given in general, to any one who will sue for a Penalty on the Breach of some Penal Law. Actions Popular, which may be brought before Justices of Assize, &c. are to be generally prosecuted in the Counties where the Offences were done. And Popular Actions, where the King only hath the Penalty or Forfeiture, are to be commenced in two Years; and where an Informer hath a Part, in one Year, &c. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 4. 31 Eliz. cap. 5. Vide Information.

Porcary, (Porcaria) Signifies a Swines-Sty, according to Fleta and Domesday.

The Ports we have in England, are London, Ipswich, Yarmouth, Lynn, Boston, Hull, Newcastle, Berwick, Carlisle, Chester, Milford, Cardiff, Gloucester, Bristol, Bridgewater, Plymouth, Exeter, Poole, Southampton, Chichester and Swanwich; all which are declared lawful Ports, & infra Corpus Comitatus: And to their Ports, there are certain Members belonging, and a great Number of Creeks, where commonly Officers are placed, by Way of Prevention of Frauds in the Customs; but they are not lawful Places of Exportation or Importation, without particular Licence from the Port, or Member under which they are placed. Lex Mercat. 132. See the Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 11.

Porter, Is an Officer of the Courts of Justice; but a Porter in the general Signification, is a Carrier of Things from Place to Place, &c.

Porterage, A Kind of Duty paid at the Custom-houses to those who attend the Water-side, and belong to the Package Office, and these Porters have Tables set up ascertaining their Dues for Landing of Strangers Goods, and for Shipping out the same. Mercb. Dict.

Portgreve or Portrebe, (Portus praefectus) Is a Chief Magistrate in certain Maritime Towns; and as Camden says, the Chief Magistrate of London was anciently so called, as appears by a Charter of King Will. 1. called the Conqueror, to the same City, in these Words—William King Greets William Bishop, and Godfrey Portgreve, and all the Burgeis within London, French and English: And I grant you, That I will that you be all your Law worth that ye were in Edward's Days the King: And I will that each Child be his Fader's Eyes, and I will not suffer that any Man you any wrongys Beed. And God you kepe. Ex libro peruetusto. Instead of this Portgreve, the succeeding Kings by Charter ordained two Bailiffs; and afterwards a Mayor, for their yearly Magistrate. *Camd. Portiforium, The Ecclesiastical Ensign or Banner, provided of old in all Cathedral and most Parochial Churches, to be solemnly carried in the Front of any Procession, &c.

Portion, Is that Part or Share of a Person's Estate, which is given or left to a Child. And if a Term of Years settled to raise a Daughter's Portion, is so short that the ordinary Profits of the Land are not sufficient to do it; the Court of Chancery may order Timber to be felled, &c. to make up the Money at the Time appointed. Preced. Canc. 27. A Sale of Lands has been also decreed, for Payment of Portions devised at a certain Time, out of the Rents and Profits, where they were not judged sufficient for raising the Money; although the Land subject to the Portions, was given to several others in Remainder. Ibid. 396. Where a Portion was devised by Will to a Daughter, to be raised out of a real and personal Estate, and paid at her Age of twenty-one Years, without saying or Marriage; the Daughter married, and died under Age: It was here said, that the Portion was then due and payable, Marriage being the Cause of Daughters Portions. Ibid. 109. But see 267, 268. 'Tis held that a Husband must make a suitable Provision for his Wife, when he sues for her Portion in Equity. 2 Vern. 494. If any Child shall marry under the Age of Twenty-one, without Consent of the Father or Mother; or any Man-Child shall be a Thief, common Whore-hunter or Gamester; or a Woman Child commit Whoredom, &c. they are barred to demand their Portions, by the Custom of the City of London: This is by an Act of Common Council 5 Edw. 6. but it is not observed. Cit. Lib. 132. See Chilren.

Portioner, (Portionarius) Where a Parsonage is served by two, or sometimes three Ministers alternately, the Ministers are called Portioners; because they have but their Portion or Proportion of the Tithes or Profits of the Living: And Portion is that Allowance which a Vicar commonly has out of a Rectory or Impropriation. 27 H. 8. cap. 28.

Portmen. The twelve Burgeses of Ipswich, are so denominated: So also are the Inhabitants of the Cinque Ports. Camd.

Portmote, (From Portus & gemot, conventus) Is a Court kept in Haven Towns or Ports; and is called the Portmote Court. 43 Eliz. cap. 15. — Curia Portmutorium est Curia in Civitate Cestriae coram Majoribus in Aula Motorum tenenda. Pl. in liti. Ibid. 14 Hen. 7. The Portmote, or Portmannimote, i. e. Portmen's Court, is said to be held not only in Port-Towns, as generally rendered; but in Inland Towns, the Word Port in Saxon signifying the same with City.

Portsale, Is a publick Sale of Goods to the highest Bidder; or of Fish presently, upon its Arrival in the Port or Haven. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 7.

Portsmouth. Lands to be purchased by Commissioners for enlarging and strengthening the Fortifications at Portsmouth, &c. by the Statutes 7 Ann. c. 26. and 8 Ann. c. 21.

Portokene, (From the Sax. Port, i. e. Civitas, & oca, Jurisditio) The Suburbs or Liberty of a City. King Hen. 3. granted by Charter to the City of London—Quietantiam Murdri, &c. infra urbem & in Portokene, viz. within the Walls of the City, and the Liberties without the Walls. Placit. Temp. Ed. 1.

Portuos or Porthole, Was what we now call a Breviary, and reckoned among Books prohibited by the Stat. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 10.

Power Comitatus, The Power of the County, according to Lambard, contains the Aid and Attendance of all Knights, Gentlemen, Yeomen, Labourers, Servants, Apprentices, and of other young Men above the Age of Fifteen, within the County; because all of that Age are bound to have Harnes, by the Statute of Winchester: But Ecclesiastical Persons, and such as are decrepit, or labour under any Infirmity, are not compellable to attend, Persons able to travel being required to be assitant in this Service; which is used where a Riot is committed, a Possession is kept upon a Forcible Entry, or any Force or Rescue made contrary to the Commandment of the King's Writ, or in Opposition to the Execution of Justice. Stat. 2 Hen. 5. cap. 8. Sheriffs of Counties are to be assiting to Justices of Peace in the suppressing of Riots, &c. and raise the Power Comitatus, by charging any Number of Men to attend for that Purpose, who may take with them such Weapons as shall be necessary to enable them to do it; and they may justify the Beating, Wounding, and even Killing of such Rioters as shall resist, or refuse to surrender themselves; and Persons refusing refusing to assist the Sheriffs or Justices of Peace herein, may be fined and imprisoned. 17 R. 2. cap. 8. 13 Hen. 4. cap. 7. 2 Hen. 5. cap. 8. Lamb. 313, 318, Crompt. 62. Dalt. cap. 46. 2 Inst. 193. Justices of Peace, having a just Cause to fear a violent Resistance, may raise the Posse in order to remove a Force in making an Entry into or detaining of Lands: And a Sheriff, if Need be, may raise the Power of the County to assist him in the Execution of a Precept of Restitution; and therefore if he make a Return thereto, that he could not make a Restitution by reason of Resistance, he shall be amerced. 1 Hawk. P. C. 152, 156. Also it is the Duty of a Sheriff, or other Minister of Justice, having the Execution of the King's Writs, and being resisted in endeavouring to execute the same, to raise such a Power as may effectually enable them to quell any such Resistance; though it is said not to be lawful for them to raise a Force for the Execution of a Civil Process, unless they find a Resistance. 2 Inst. 193. 3 Inst. 161. It is lawful for a Sheriff, Constable, or other Peace-Officer, or for a private Person, to assemble a competent Number of People, and sufficient Power to suppress Rebels, Enemies, Rioters, &c. But herein there must be great Caution, lest under a Pretence of keeping the Peace, they cause a greater Breach of it; and Sheriffs, Justices of Peace, &c. are punishable for using any needless Violence, or alarming the Country in these Cases, without just Grounds. 1 Hawk. P. C. 156, 161.

Posse, Is an infinitive Mood, but used substantively for a Possibility; as we say, such a Thing is in posse, that is, it may possibly be. See in esse.

Possessio fratris, Signifies in the Law where a Man hath a Son and a Daughter by one Woman or Venter, and a Son by another Venter, and dies, if the first Son enters and dies without Issue, the Daughter shall have the Land as Heir to her Brother, although the second Son by the second Venter is Heir to the Father: But if the eldest Son dies without Issue, not having made an actual Entry and Seisin, the younger Brother by the second Wife, as Heir to the Father, shall enjoy the Estate; and not the Sister. 1 Inst. 11, 15. Lands are settled on a Man, and the Heirs of his Body, and he hath Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Woman, and a Son by another, and dieth; and then the eldest Son dies before any Entry made on the Lands either by his own Act, or by the Possession of another, the younger Brother shall inherit, he claiming as Heir of the Body of the Father, and not generally, as Heir to his Brother; yet if the elder Brother enter, and by his own Act hath gained the Possession; or if the Lands were leased for Years, or in the Hands of a Guardian, there the Possession of the Lessee or Guardian doth vest the Fee in the elder Brother, and then upon his Death the Sister shall inherit as Heir to her Brother, for there is Possessio fratris. 3 Rep. 42. There can be no Possessio fratris of a Dignity; in such Case the younger Brother is Haeres Natus: The Lord Grey being created a Baron to him and his Heirs, had Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another; and after his Death, the eldest being possessed of the Barony, and dying without Issue, it was adjudged, that the younger Brother, and not the Sister should have it. Cro. Car. 437. 2 Nels. Abr. 923.

Possession, (Possessio, quasi Pedis positio) Is either actual, where a Person actually enters into Lands or Tenements descended or conveyed to him; or in Law, when Lands, &c. are descended to a Man, and he hath not actually entered into them: Also before, or until an Office is found of Lands escheated to the King by Attainder, he hath only a Possession in Law. Brañ. lib. 2. cap. 17. Long Possession beyond the Memory of Man, establishes a Right; but if by the Knowledge of Man, or Proof of Record, &c. the contrary is made out, though it exceeds the Memory of Man, this shall be construed within Memory. 1 Inst. 115. A long Possession the Law favours, as an Argument of Right, although no Deed can be shewn; rather than an ancient Deed, without Possession. 1 Inst. 6. Continued quiet Possession is a violent Presumption of a good Title: And where two Persons enter into, and claim the same Land, the Possession will be always adjudged in him who has Right, &c. 2 Inst. 256, 323. He that is out of Possession of Lands, if he brings his Action, must make a good Title: And to recover any Thing from another, it is not sufficient to destroy the Title of him in Possession; but you must prove your own better than his. Vaugh. 8, 58, 60. But in Action against a Person for digging of Coney-Boroughs in a Common, &c. it was held, that the Action being grounded on the Possession of the Tenement, to which the Common belonged, the Plaintiff need not shew a Title; and in this Case the Defendant may be a Stranger; besides the Title is not traversable, but ought to be given in Evidence upon the Trial of the Issue. Trin. 8 W. 3. 3 Salk. 12. A Defendant in Trespas, &c. for taking Cattle Damage-feasant, has been allowed to justify the Taking on his Possession, without shewing his Title; the Matter of Justification being collateral to the Title of the Land. 2 Mod. 70. 3 Salk. 220. Though in such a Case, on its being insisted, that there was the same Reason for justifying upon a Possession, as there was for maintaining an Action upon a bare Possession; it hath been adjudged, that a Justification on a Possession only, is not good; for a Possession may not be but by Contract, but a Seisin may be by Right or Wrong. Hill. 2 & 3 Jac. 2. In Replevin, if the Defendant had the Possession, it is a good Bar against the Plaintiff if he has no Title; but there cannot be a Return, unless he shews a Property in the Goods. Pasch. 2 Ann. Action of the Case lies for shooting at and frightening away Ducks from a Decoy Pond, which is in the Plaintiff's Possession, without shewing that he had any Property in them. 3 Salk. 9. A Man upon a Lease and Release of Lands, &c. is in Possession to all Intents, except bringing Trespas, which cannot be without an Entry, Pedis positio. 2 Lill. Abr. 335. And to make Possession good on Entry, the former Possessor and his Servants, &c. are to be removed from the Land; and if Possession be lost by Entry of another, it must be regained by Re-entry, &c. Pasch. 1650. A Person in Possession may bring an Action, for Loss of his Shade, Shelter, Fruit, when Trees are injured; and he in Reversion, for spoiling the Trees. 3 Lev. 209. One in Defence of his lawful Possession, may assemble his Friends to resist those that threaten to make an unlawful Entry into a House, &c. 5 Rep. 91. There is an Unity of Possession, when by Purchase the Seignior and Tenancy, become in one Man's Possession. Kirck. 134.

Possibilitas, Is taken in the Saxon Laws for an Act wilfully done; and Impossibilitas, for a Thing done against one's Will. Leg. Alfred. cap. 28.

Possibilitas, In our Law is defined to be an uncertain Thing, which may or may not happen. 2 Lill. Abr. 336. And it is either near or remote; as for Instance: Where an Estate is limited to one, after the Death of another, this is a near Possibility; but that one Man shall be married to a Woman, and then that she shall die, and he be married to another; this is a remote or extraordinary Possibility: And the Law doth not regard a remote Possibility, that is never like to be. 15 H. 7. 10. Hardr. 417. 2 Rep. 50. A Possibility cannot be granted over; no Possibility, Right, or Chose in Action, &c. may be granted or assigned to a Stranger. 4 Rep. 66. 10 Rep. 48. A Lease was made to Husband and Wife of a Term of Years, for their Lives, Remainder to the Executors of the Survivor; the Husband granted the Term, and and it was adjudged, that it should not bind the Wife, the Husband having only a Possibility to have it, if he survived his Wife, and no Interest till then. Hill. 17 Eliz. 2. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1274. If Husband and Wife are Tenants in Special Tail, and the Husband only levies a Fine of the Lands, &c. the Wife's Estate is turned into a Possibility, and only reducible by Entry, if she survive. Hob. 257. Where a Lease is made for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. this is good; for by common Possibility J. S. may die during the Life of Tenant for Life. 2 H. 7. 13. 3 Slep. Abr. 36. A Man made a Lease to his Brother for Life, and that if he married, and his Wife should survive, then she should have it for her Life; the Lessee before he married, made a Feoffment of the Lands to another, and afterwards the Lessor levied a Fine to him; then the Lessee married, and died, and his Wife survived: And it was held, that the Remainder to the Wife for Life was gone by this Feoffment, and the Possibility of her having it was included in the Fine, which is likewise barred. Moor 554. A Testator possessed of a Lease for Years, devised the Profits thereof to W. R. for Life, Remainder to another; and afterwards the Devisee for Life entered with the Assent of the Executor, and then he in Remainder for Life assigned all his Interest to another, and after the Devisee for Life died; it was resolved, that this Assignment was void, because whilst the Devisee for Life was living, he in Remainder had only a Possibility to have the Term, for the Devisee for Life had an Interest in it sub modo, and might have survived the whole Term. 4 Rep. 64. The Devisee of the Possibility of a Term is void; as where a Term is devised to A. for Life, Remainder to B. and B. devises this Remainder to C. and dies; and then A. dies; this Devise to C. is void, and the Executors of B. shall have it. 3 Lev. 427. A Possibility founded on a Trust, differs from a mere Possibility; the first may be devised, but the other cannot. Moor 808. 2 Nelf. 1275.

Post, A swift or speedy Messenger to carry Letters, &c. And the Post Office is of the greatest Consequence to this Kingdom, being a Country of Trade. The first Law that introduced this very great Convenience, was made in the Reign of King Car. 2. By the 12 Car. 2. cap. 35. a General Letter or Post-Office was erected, under the Management of a Postmaster General, &c. And the Rates for Carriage of Letters was 2d. for a single Letter of a Sheet, not exceeding eighty Miles; two Sheets 4d. Packets 8d. per Ounce; and above eighty Miles 3d. not exceeding a Sheet, &c. The 1 W. & M. was made for erecting a Post-Office in Scotland: And by 9 Ann. cap. 10. the Post-Office of England and Scotland are united; and the Price of Postage of Letters is increased to 3d. for a single Letter from any Places not distant above eighty Miles from London, and 6d. for a double Letter, and so proportionably for Packets of Letters; and for Packets of Writs, Deeds, &c. 12d. per Ounce; single Letters above eighty Miles from London 4d. and for double Letters 8d. and for other Things 1s. 4d. per Ounce: Single Letters to and from Edinburgh, or to and from Dublin 6d. double Letters 12d. and Parcels 2s. per Ounce, &c. And by this Statute, the Rates of Letters from London to France, Spain, Flanders, Holland, &c. are appointed: And the Postmaster is not only to continue constant Posts to all Places on the Post Roads; but may erect cross Stages, keep Packet-Boats, &c. for the Conveyance of Letters; and no Person but the Postmaster or his Deputies, shall receive, take or carry Letters, or set up any Foot-Post, &c. under certain Penalties; nor shall Carriers carry Letters, except such as concern Goods sent by them: Opening, Delaying, or Detaining Letters, by Officers of the Post Office; unless by Warrant from a Secretary of State, or the Party to whom directed refuses to pay the Postage, or where the Letter is returned for Want of true Direction, incurs a Penalty of 20l. Money due for Postage of Letters, not exceeding 5l. shall be recovered before two Justices of Peace, on Complaint, and Summons of the Party, by Distress, &c. as small Tithes; and shall be paid before any Debt due to a private Person Stat. 9 Ann. If several Letters are writ by the General Post on one Piece of Paper, or any Bill of Exchange, &c. shall be writ in the same Piece of Paper with a Letter, they shall be charged as so many distinct Letters, and pay accordingly: But this is not to extend to Bills, Accounts, &c. sent by Merchants beyond Sea. 6 Geo. 1. cap. 21. A Person having inclosed Exchequer Bills in a Letter sent by the Post, which were lost, the Owner brought an Action on the Case against the Postmaster; and by three Judges it was held, that the Action did not lie, because the Office is for Intelligence only; and it is impossible the Postmaster General, who is to execute this Office in such distant Places, by so many several Hands, should be able to secure every Thing, and for that this is not a Conveyance for Treasure: But the Lord Chief Justice Holt was of a contrary Opinion; he considered this as a Letter lost in the Office, not on the Road, and held that the Postmaster General is liable, the whole Care being committed to him, and the Law makes the Officer answerable for himself and his Deputies; he has a Reward, which is the Reason why Innkeepers, Carriers, &c. are liable for Goods lost; and where a Man takes upon him a publick Employment, he is bound to serve the Publick, or Action lies against him, &c. Pasch. 12 W. 3. B. R. 1 Salk. 17. The Post-Office in London is managed by the Postmaster, and other Officers to the Number of Seventy-seven; one of which is called the Court Post, constituted by Patent for Life, with a handsome Salary: And the Postmaster General has under him One hundred eighty-two Deputy Postmasters in England and Scotland, most of them keeping regular Offices in their Stages, and Sub Postmasters in their Branches. The Conveyance of Post Letters extends to every considerable Market-Town, and is so expeditious, that every twenty four Hours the Post goes Six score Miles; and the Post Days to send Letters from London to any Part of England and Scotland, are Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and the Returns Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; but to Wales and Ireland, the Post goes only twice a Week, Tuesdays and Saturdays, and returns from Wales every Monday and Friday; but from Ireland the Return is uncertain, &c. See Master of the Posts.

Penny-Post. Letters or Parcels, not exceeding sixteen Ounces Weight, or ten Pounds Value, are conveyed daily by the Penny Post, to and from all Places within the Bills of Mortality, and ten Miles Distance from the General Post Office, for 1d. each Packet, Letter, &c. Stat. 9 Ann. c. 10. And several General Offices are kept at convenient Distances from one another, to receive and take in Penny-Post Letters every Day, Sundays excepted: Also Letters that come from all Parts by the General Post, directed to Persons in any Country-Towns to which the Penny Post goes, are delivered by the Messengers thereof the same Day they come to London; and the Answers are carried every Post Night to the General Post-Office in Lombard-street, being left at the Receiving Houses. Penny-Post Men carrying Letters to Towns and Places out of the Cities of London and Westminster, or Borough of Southwark, and the Suburbs thereof, may demand and take 1d. at Delivery for every Letter, over and above the Penny paid on putting the Letters into the Penny Post Office; except Letters passing by the General Post, &c. Stat. 4 Geo. 2. c. 33.

Post Conquestum, Were Words inserted in the King's Title, by King Edw. 1. and constantly used in the Time of King Ed. 3. Claus. 2 Ed. 3.

Post Diem, Is where a Writ is returned after the Day assigned, for which the Custos Brevium hath a Fee of 4 d. whereas he hath nothing if it be returned at the Day.

Post-Disseisin, Is a Writ that lies for him who having recovered Lands or Tenements by Præcipe quod reddat, on Default or Reddition, is again disseised by the former Disseisor; then he shall have this Writ, and recover double Damages, and the Party shall be punished by Imprisonment, &c. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 26. Reg. Orig. 208. F. N. 190. The Writ of Post-Disseisin ought to be brought by the Parties who first recovered, or some of them, and of the same Land which was recovered, or Part thereof, and against those or some of them, against whom the Recovery was: But if a Man recover by a Præcipe quod reddat, and after he is disseised by him against whom he recovered, and the Disseisor makes a Feoffment, and takes back an Estate to him and another, a Post-Disseisin may be had against him and his Jointenant; and if he that loseth the Land by Default, &c. do after disseise him who recovered, and make a Feoffment to another Person, he that recover'd shall have this Writ against the Disseisor, although he be not Tenant of the Land; for in a Writ of Post-Disseisin, the Demandant shall not have Judgment to recover the Land; but the Sheriff shall restore the Plaintiff to his Possession, if the Disseisin be found, and take the Defendant and keep him in Prison. New Nat. Br. 423. And the Defendant is not to be delivered out of Prison, until he hath paid a Fine to the King, and without the King's special Command, upon a Certiorari to remove the Record into B. R. whereupon a Writ shall go to the Sheriff to deliver him. Ibid. Nontenure is no Plea in a Post-Disseisin, for the Defendant ought to answer the Disseisin, &c.

B. R.* Although the Verdict given be prejudicial to the Plaintiff, he ought to bring in the Postea; for he must abide by the Trial. There is no general Rule of Court for the Clerk of Assise, &c. to bring in the Postea into the Court of B. R. by a Precise Time; but if it be not returned in convenient Time, the Court may be moved at the Side Bar for a Rule to bring it in speedily. 2 Lill. 337. If the Clerk of Assise hath mistaken in drawing up the Postea, he may amend it by his Notes, before it is filed; and the Return of a Postea hath been amended by the Memory of a Judge, who tried the Cause. Cr. Car. 338.

Posteriority, (Posterioritas) Signifies the Being or Coming after, and is a Word of Comparison and Relation in Tenures, the Correlative whereof is Priority: As a Man holding Lands or Tenements of two Lords, holds of his ancients Lord by Priority, and of his latter Lord by Posteriority. Staudf. Pirrog. 10, 11. 2 Inst. 392.

Post-fine, Is a Duty to the King for a Fine formerly acknowledged in his Court, paid by the Cognisee after the Fine is fully passed, and it is so much, and Half so much as was paid to the King for the Pre-fine, collected by the Sheriff of the County where the Land lies of which the Fine was levied, to be answered by him into the Exchequer. And Posthumous Children are enabled to take Estates by Remainder in Settlements, as if born in their Father's Life time, though no Estate be limited to Trustees to preserve them till they come in esse. 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 16. See in Ventre sa mere.

Postnatus, Is a Word that signifieth the second Son, or one born afterwards; often mentioned in Bracton, Glanville, Fleta, and other ancient Law-Writers: And as to Postnati and Antenati, it was by all the Judges solemnly adjudged, that those who after the Discent of the Crown of England to King Jam. 1. were born in Scotland, were not Aliens here in England: But the Antenati, or those born in Scotland, before the said Discent, were Aliens here, in respect of the Time of their Birth. 6 Jac. 7 Rep. Calvin's Case. Children of Persons attainted of Treason, born after the King's Pardon, may inherit Lands; though not those born before, &c. 1 Inst. 391.

Postulation, (Postulatio) Signifies a Request, Suit or Petition. Formerly when a Bishop was translated from one Bishoprick to another, he was not elected to the new See; for the Canon Law is Electus non potest Eligi; and the Pretence was, that he was married to the first Church, which Marriage could not be dissolved but by the Pope; thereupon he was petitioned, and he consenting to the Petition, the Bishop was translated, and this was said to be by Postulation: But being an Usurpation and against our Law, it was restrained by the Stat. 16 R. 2. and 9 H. 4. c. 8. Since which Translations of Bishops have been by Election, and not by Postulation. 1 Jones 160. 1 Salk. 137. Postulations were made upon the unanimous Voting any Person to a Dignity or Office; of which he was not capable by the ordinary Canons or Statutes, without special Dispensation: And by the ancient Customs, an Election could be made by a Majority of Votes; but a Postulation must have been Nemine Contradicente.

Pot, An Head Piece for War, mentioned in the Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 6.

Pound, (Parcus) Is generally any Place inclos'd, to keep in Beasts; but especially a Place of Strength to keep Cattle that are distrained, or put in for any Trespas done by them, until they are replevied or redeemed. In this Signification, it is called Pound overt, and Pound covert; a Pound overt is an open Pound, usually built on the Lord's Waste, and which he provides for the Use of himself and his Tenants, and is also called called the Lord's or the Common Pound; and a Backside, Yard, &c. whereto the Owner of the Beasts impounded may come to give them Meat, without Offence, is a Pound overt: And a Pound covert is a close Place, as the Owner of the Cattle cannot come to for the Purpose aforesaid, without giving Offence; such as a House, &c. Kitch. 144. Terms de Ley 483. 1 Inst. 96. There is a Difference between a common Pound, an open Pound, and a close Pound, as to Cattle impounded: For where Cattle are kept in a common Pound, no Notice is necessary to the Owner to feed them; but if they are put into any other open Place, it is otherwise, Notice is to be given; and if Beasts are impounded in a Pound Close, in Part of the Distrainer's House, &c. he is to feed them, at his Peril. 1 Inst. 47. A common Pound belongs to a Township, Lordship or Village; and there ought to be such a Pound in every Parish, kept in Repair by them who have used to do it Time out of Mind; The Oversight whereof, and want of it, is to be by the Steward in the Lect, where any Default herein is punishable. Dyer 288. Noy 52. See Distrs.

Pound-breach. If a Distress be taken, and impounded, though without just Cause, the Owner cannot break the Pound, and take away the Distress; if he doth, the Party distraining may have his Action, and retake the Distress where-ever he finds it: And for Pound breaches, &c. Action of the Case lies, whereon treble Damages may be recovered. 1 Inst. 161. 2 W. & M. c. 5. Also Pound-breaches, may be inquired of in the Sheriff's Turn; as they are common Grievances, in Contempt of the Authority of the Law. 2 Hawk. P. C. 67.

Poundage, Is a Subsidy or Duty granted to the King of 12 d. in the Pound on all Goods and Merchandizes exported and imported. Stat. 1 & 2 Ed. 6. c. 13. 1 Jac. 1. c. 33. 12 Car. c. 4. See Customs.

Pound in Honey, (From the Sax. Pund, i. e. Pondus) Is Twenty Shillings: In the Time of the Saxons it consisted of 240 Pence, as it doth now; and 240 of those Pence weighed a Pound, but 720 scarce weigh so much at this Day. Lambard 219.

Power, Is an Authority which one Man gives to another to Act for him; and it is sometimes a Reservation which a Person makes in a Conveyance for himself to do some Acts, i. e. to make Leases, or the like. 2 Lill. Abr. 339. And Powers are either Appendants, or Collateral; the one is where a Man devises Lands for Life, with a Power for the Devisee to make a Jointure, &c. and the other is when he devises to his Executor to sell, &c. In the first Case, the Power is annexed to the Estate, and derived out of it; but in the other Case, 'tis collateral to it. 3 Salk. 276. A Feoffment, Fine or Recovery, will destroy a Power coupled with an Interest to the Party himself; though not a collateral Power: As for Instance; Lands are devised to W. R. in Tail, Remainder over, with a Power given to him to make a Jointure to a second Wife, &c. The Tenant in Tail, in the Life-time of his first Wife, suffered a common Recovery to the Use of himself and his Heirs; then his Wife died, and he married a second Wife, and covenanted to stand seized to the Use of himself, and his Wife for their Lives, &c. Adjudged, that this Power then created, was to be executed out of the Estate tail, which was now destroyed by suffering the Recovery, and by Consequence the Power to make a Jointure was destroyed. 2 Lev. 58, 60. A single Lady made a Settlement of her Estate for Life, Remainder in Tail, with a Power to make Leases (being sole) for three Lives; afterwards she married, and she and her Husband made a Lease, &c. And it was held that this Lease was void, being not pursuant to the Power; for the Lease of the Husband and Wife is the Lease of the Husband; and the Difference betwixt a naked Power and a Power which arises from an Interest, is, That if a Woman hath only a naked or bare Power, as by a Will to sell Lands, she may sell, though she marry, because this is not a Power created by herself out of any Interest; but where a Power is reserved upon a Settlement, she must execute it pursuant to that Power, when it was at first reserved. Chanc. Rep. 18. 3 Salk. 273. It is said, if a Man hath a Power to make a Lease for three Lives or Twenty one Years, he cannot make a Lease for Ninety-nine Years, if three Persons live so long: But if he hath a Power to make a Lease, Proviso that it doth not exceed three Lives, &c. he may make a Lease for Ninety-nine Years if three live so long. 4 Rep. 70. A Power ought to be exactly and strictly executed. 6 Rep. 33. But a Power may be well executed, though there be no Recital of the Power in the Deed for the Execution thereof. 1 Lev. 150. And a Power hath been decreed in Equity, though not pursued strictly. Chanc. 253, 264. Yet it hath been held that a Power not well executed in Law, shall not be made good in Equity. 1 Lev. 241. A Power to sell Lands, is subject to the Rules of Equity. Chanc. Rep. 281. Powers ought to be construed according to the Intent of the Parties; and a bare Power is not assignable over. 5 Mod. 379. 2 Mod. 318. Where Attornies have Power to make Leases for Years, they must make them in the Name of him who gave the Authority. 9 Rep. 76. And the Lease ought to run thus: This Indenture made, &c. between A. B. and C. D. of the one Part, and E. F. of the other Part, Whereas the said A. B. by a Writing or Letter of Attorney under his Hand and Seal duly executed, dated, &c. among other Things therein mentioned, did authorize the said C. D. in the Name of him the said A. B. and on his Behalf, to seal and execute Leases of such Parts of his Lands, Tenements, &c. as he thought fit to be leased: Witnesseth that in consideration of, &c. he the said A. B. by his Attorney C. D. hath demised and granted, Habend', &c. yielding and paying to the said A. B. &c. And the said E. F. covenants with the said A. B. his Heirs, &c. And the said A. B. by the said C. D. his said Attorney doth covenant, &c. 2 Lill. 340. See Letter of Attorney.

Præmittum, A Reward or Recompence; among Merchants it is used for that Sum of Money, which the Injured gives to the Injurer, for insuring the safe Return of any Ship or Merchandize. Stat. 19 Car. 1. cap. 1.

Præmunire, Is taken either for a Writ so called, from the Words therein Præmunire facias, or Præmunere facias, &c. signifying to forewarn or bid the Offender take heed; or it is the Offence on which the Writ is granted. The Church of Rome, under Pretence of her Supremacy, formerly carried Things to that Height in this Kingdom, that King Ed. 3. in the 27th Year of his Reign made a Statute against those that drew the King's People out of the Realm, to answer and sue for Things belonging to the King's Court; which greatly restrained this Liberty of the Pope: But notwithstanding, he still adventured to continue his Mandates and Bulls, infomuch that King Rich. 2. made several Statutes against them, but most expressly that of 16 R. 2. cap. 5. commonly called the Statute of Præmunire, which ordains the Punishment of this Offence, viz. The Offenders are to be out of the King's Protection, forfeit their Lands and Goods, and be imprisoned and ransomed at the King's Pleasure, &c. and if the Offenders are not to be found, they shall be outlawed. After him King Hen. 4. in like Manner aggrieved at other Abuses not remedied by former Statutes, in the second Year of his Reign added certain new Cases, laying upon the Offenders the same Punishment; as likewise did 3 Hen. 5. cap. 4. And by the 24 Hen. 8. cap. 12. to appeal to Rome from any of the King's Courts is made a Præmunire. So if any Dean and Chapter refuse to elect a Bishop named by the King, or any Archbishop or Bishop to confirm him, &c. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 20. Refusing the Oath of Supremacy is a Præmunire: And affirming the Authority of the Pope; or contributing to the Maintenance of a Popish Seminary, is the same Offence. 1 Eliz. c. 1. 13 Eliz. c. 1. and 27 Eliz. cap. 2. To refuse the Oath of Allegiance, upon Tender, incur a Præmunire. 3 Jac. 1. cap. 4. Affirming that both or either Houses of Parliament, have a Legislative Power without the King, is made a Præmunire. 13 Car. 2. cap. 1. The Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance prescribed in former Acts are abrogated, and new Oaths substituted by 1 W. & M. c. 8 which to refuse upon Tender, makes one liable to the Penalty of a Præmunire: And Counsellors, Attornies, Solicitors, Proctors, &c. practising as such in any Court without taking the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and subscribing the Declaration, incur a Præmunire, by the Statute 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 24. If any shall maliciously and directly, by Preaching, or advisedly Speaking, affirm that the pretended Prince of Wales hath any Title to the Crown, or that the King with Authority of Parliament, cannot by Law limit the same, &c. it is a Præmunire. 1 & 2 Ann. cap. 17. 4 Ann. c. 8. And so in divers other Cases; and most of these latter Statutes refer the Punishment to the Stat. 16 R. 2. On the Statutes 27 Ed. 3. and 16 R. 2. making it a Præmunire to sue or pursue Causes out of the Realm, in the Court of Rome or elsewhere, or in any other Court, to defeat the Judgments given in the King's Courts; it has been formerly holden, by the Words alibi, &c. That Suits in Equity brought to relieve against a Judgment given at Law, as of the Court of Chancery in the Proceeding in Course of Equity, which is no Court of Record; Suits in the Admiralty, or in the Courts of the Constable and Marshal; and Ecclesiastical Courts, for Matters belonging to the Cognizance of the Common Law, are within the Statute: And he that procures one to sue to the Court Christian, in a Temporal Cause, shall forfeit as much as he that sueth as Principal, and is in equal Degree of Præmunire. 3 Inst. 121. 2 Inst. 601, &c. But it is agreed at this Day, that no such Suit in Equity seeking Relief after Judgment at Law, &c. is within the Intention of the said Statutes. 1 Hawk. P. C. 51. The Writ of Præmunire runs Contra Coronam & Dignitatem Regis; and it hath been held by all the Judges, that when an Ecclesiastical Judge doth usurp upon the Temporal Laws, which are the Birthright of the Subject, he draweth the Matter ad aliud Examen, and therein he offends contra Coronam & Dignitatem, &c. 12 Rep. 50. A Prohibition was granted against a Prior, for that the King having recovered against him in a Quare Impedit, he sent his Brother with an Appeal to Rome, and sued there to avoid the Judgment; upon Not guilty pleaded, it was found against the Defendant, and thereupon the King prayed Judgment upon the Stat. 27 Ed. 3. as in Case of a Præmunire; but it was adjudged, that he should not have such Judgment, because the Suit was not brought according to the Statute, but by a Writ of Prohibition at Common Law. 9 Rep. 71. And yet it hath been resolved, That a Statute, by appointing that an Offender shall incur the Penalty and Danger mentioned in the 16 R. 2. of Præmunire, does not confine the Protection for the Offence to the particular Process thereby given. 4 Ven. 173. A Præmunire lieth as well for the Party grieved, as for the King, and both may join in one Writ. 3 Inst. 125. Decret. 83. But where the Attorney General prosecuted a Præmunire for the Queen and R. B. against the Dean of Christchurch in Oxford, and others, and afterwards afterwards withdrew his Suit: It was held, that by this Means the Party grieved could not proceed, because the principal Matter of the Premunire was the Putting the Defendants out of the King's Protection, &c. and the Damages to the Party are but accessory; so that the Principal being released, the Damages are so likewise. 1 Leon. 290. In Prosecutions on the Stat. 1 Eliz. and 3 Jac. 1. for refusing the Oaths of Allegiance, &c. the Trial must be by a Jury of the County wherein the Oaths were refused; though the Statute authorizes an Indictment by a Jury of the County where the Court sits: And any Misrecital of the very Words of the Oath, in an Indictment for not taking it, is erroneous; but the Tenour of the Oath is as much as if it were verbatim. Dyer 234. Raym. 212, 374. The Lord Vaux was indicted for refusing to take the Oath of Allegiance, being lawfully tendered to him, and he being about 18 Years old; this was certified into B. R. under the Hands of several of the Privy Council; and he being brought into Court, and the Oath read to him, he prayed to have Counsel; but it was denied; and being pres'd to plead to the Indictment, he confessed it, and thereupon had Judgment of Premunire, viz. To be out of the King's Protection, to forfeit his Lands, Tenements, Goods, and Chartels to the King, and to be imprisoned during Life. 1 Bull. 197. A. being indicted upon the Statute 1 Eliz. for aiding B. knowing him to be a principal Maintainer of the Authority of the See of Rome; which Offence in the said Statute has the Words, upon purpose and to the Intent to extol the Power of that See: And because these Words were omitted in the Indictment, it was adjudged insufficient by all the Judges; for they make the Offence, as to the Forfeiture of Premunire. Jenk. Cent. 243. The Forfeiture of Lands to the King in a Premunire, is understood of Lands in Fee only for ever; and of Lands in Tail but during Life, or of such Estate as one may lawfully forfeit. 1 Inst. 130. 3 Inst. 125. Tenant in Tail is attainted in a Premunire, he shall forfeit his Lands only during Life; and afterwards the Issue in Tail shall inherit. 11 Rep. 56. A Person being seized in Fee of Lands, was indicted for a Premunire upon the Stat. 13 Eliz. but before Conviction he made an Entail of his Lands; and it was adjudged, that the Attainder shall relate to the Time of the Offence, and that was before he entailed the Lands, and not the Time of the Judgment, which was afterwards; and the Freehold being in him at the Time of the Attainder, shall not be devested without an Inquisition, under the Great Seal. Cro. Car. 123, 172. It is said the Statute of Premunire doth not extend to the Forfeiture of Rents, Annuities, Fairs, &c. or any other Hereditaments that are not within the Word Terre. 3 Inst. 126. This Suit need not be by original Writ in B. R. for if the Defendant be in Custodia Marisballi, the Suit may be against him by Bill; and the Defendants cannot be sued in any other Court, when they are in Custodia Marisbal. And if a Defendant come not at the Day, &c. or if he appears and pleads, and the Issue be found against him, or he demurs in Law, &c. Judgment shall be given, that he shall be out of Protection, &c. 3 Inst. 124. So odious was this Offence of Premunire, that a Man attainted of the same, being out of the King's Protection, might be slain by any Person; because it was provided by Law, that a Man might do to him as to the King's Enemy, and any Man may lawfully kill an Enemy: But this Severity and Inhumanity is restrained and provided against by Stat. 5 Eliz. Though no Person attainted of Premunire can bring an Action for any Injury whatsoever; and no one knowing him to be guilty, can with Safety give him Aid, Comfort, or Relief. 1 Inst. 130. 1 Harok. 55. The Laws making Offences to be Premunire, it has been observed are so very severe, that they are seldom put in Execution: And notwithstanding the Statutes, the King may protect and pardon an Offender; for this Protection is given him by the Law of Nature. 2 Bull. 299. A Premunire is said to be a Defence of the Crown, and the Laws of the Land, from the Tyranny and Oppression of the Pope's Jurisdiction, &c. See 1 ops.

If any Person licensed to preach, refuses to conform to the Laws Ecclesiastical, after Admonition, the Licence of every such Preacher shall be void: And if any Parson shall preach Doctrine contrary to the Word of God, or the Articles of Religion, Notice is to be given of it to the Bishop by the Church-wardens, &c. So likewise of Matters of Contention and impugning the Doctrine of other Preachers in the same Church; in which Case, the Preacher is not to be suffered to preach except he faithfully promise to forbear all such Matter of Contention in the Church, until the Bishop hath taken farther Order therein. Can. 53, 54. No Minister shall preach or administer the Sacrament in any private House, unless in Times of Necessity, as in Case of Sickness, &c. upon Pain of Suspension for the first Offence, and Excommunication for the Second; which last Punishment is also inflicted on such Ministers as meet in private Houses, to consult upon any Matter tending to the Impeaching the Doctrine of the Church of England. Can. 71, &c.

Prebend, (Præbenda) Is the Portion which every Prebendary of a Cathedral Church receives, in Right of his Place for his Maintenance; as Canonica Portio is properly used for that Share, which every Canon receiveth yearly out of the Common Stock of the Church. And Præbenda is a several Benefice rising from some Temporal Land, or some Church, appropriated towards the Maintenance of a Clerk, or Member of a Collegiate Church, and is commonly named of the Place whence the Profit arises. Præbenda, strictly taken, is that Maintenance which daily præbetur to another; but now it signifies the Rents and Profits belonging to the Church, divided into those Portions called Præbenda, and is a Right of Receiving the Profits for the Duty perform'd in the Church, sufficient for the Support of the Parson in that Divine Office where he resides. Decret. Tit. De Præbend. The Spirituality and Temporality make a Præbend, but the Spirituality is the highest, and most worthy; and a Person is not a complete Præbend, to make any Grant, &c. before Installation and Induction. Dyer 221. Præbends are distinguished into those which are called Simple and Dignitary: A Simple Præbend hath no more than the Revenue for its Support; but a Præbend with Dignity hath always a Jurisdiction annexed, and for this Reason the Præbendary is styled a Dignitary, and his Jurisdiction is gained by Prescription: And Præbends are some of them donative; and some are in the Gift of Laymen, but in such Case they must present the Præbendary to the Bishop, and the Dean and Chapter inducts him, and places him in a Stall in the Cathedral Church, and then he is said to have Locum in Choro; at Westminster the King collates by Patent, and by Virtue thereof the Præbendary takes Possession, without Institution or Induction. 2 Roll. Abr. 356. As a Præbend is a Benefice without Cure, &c. a Præbend and a Parochial Benefice are not incompatible Promotions; for one Man may have both without any Avoidance of the First: But though Præbendaries are such as have no Cure of Souls, yet there is a sacred Charge incumbent upon them in those Cathedrals where they are resident, and they are obliged to Preaching by the Canons of the Church; and it is not lawful for a Præbendary to possess two Præbends in one and the same Collegiate Church. Roll. Abr. 361. Præbendaries are said to have an Estate in Fee-simple in Right of their Churches, as well as Bishops of their Bishopricks, Deans of their Deaneries, &c.

Præbendary, (Præbendarius) Is he that hath such a Præbend; so called, not as is said by some Writers, a Præbendo auxilium & consilium Episcopo, &c. but from Receiving the Præbend: And if a Manor be the Body of a Præbend, and is evicted by Title paramount; yet the Præbendary is not destroyed. 3 Co. Rep. 75. There is a Golden Præbendary of Hereford, otherwise termed Præbendarius Episcopi, who is one of the twenty-eight minor Præbendaries there, and has ex Officio the first Canon's Place that falls; he was anciently Confessarius of the Cathedral Church, and to the Bishop, and had the Offerings at the Altar, whereby, in respect of the Gold commonly given there, he had the Name of Golden Præbendary. Blount.

Præcaris, Days Work that the Tenants of some Manors are bound to give the Lord in Harvest; which in some Places are called Bind-Days.

Præcedence Of the Nobility. Vide Stat. 31 H. 8. c. 10.

Præcedents, Are Examples or Authorities to follow, in Judgments and Determinations in the Courts of Justice. Præcedents have always been greatly regarded by the Judges and Sages of the Law; The Præcedents of the Courts are said to be the Laws of the Courts; and the Court will not reverse a judgment, contrary to many Præcedents. 4 Rep. 93. Cro.

Eliz. 65. 2 Lill. Abr. 344. But now Præcedents are not considerable; Præcedents without judicial Decision upon Argument, are of no Moment; and an extrajudicial Opinion given in or out of Court, is no good Præcedent. Vaugb. 169. 382, 399, 429. It has been held, that there can be no Præcedent in Matters of Equity, as Equity is universal Truth; but according to the Lord Keeper Bridgman, Præcedents are necessary in Equity to find out the Reasons thereof for a Guide; and besides the Authority of those that made them, it is to be supposed they did it upon great Consideration, and it would be strange to set aside what has been the Course for a long Series of Time; therefore Præcedents were order'd. 1 Mod. 307. And says Hale Ch. Baron, If a Man doubt whether a Case be equitable, or no, in Prudence he will determine as the Præcedents have been; especially if made by Men of good Authority and Learning. Ibid. Præcedents must be shewed by Plaintiffs in Actions, for the Court to go against what is generally held. 1 Keb. 47. And where Præcedents are alledged contrary to the Opinion of the Court, Day may be given to produce and shew them. Mod. Caf. 199. Præcedents in some Cases may make an Act good, which otherwise would be void in Strictness of Law: And though the Forms of Writs ought not to be altered, yet Præcedents and constant Usage must be observed. Yenk. Cont. 162, 172. If there be a special Cause to alter an ancient Præcedent of a Writ, by Reason of any new Statute, &c. the Curstors are not to keep to the old Form, but to alter it as the Case requires; to prevent Abatement of Writs, and Vexation to the People. Trin. 1650. See Innovation.

Præceptantium, Is where a Suit is continued by the Prayer, or Assent of both Parties. 13 E. 1. c. 27.

Præceptum, (Præceptum) Is generally taken for a Commandment in Writing sent out by a Justice of Peace, &c. for the Bringing of a Person or Records before him; of which divers are mentioned in the Table of the Register judicial.

Præcontract, Is a Contract made before another Contract; chiefly applicable to Contracts of Marriage. 3 E. 6. c. 23.

Prædial Tithes, (Decime Prædiales) Are those which are paid of Things arising and growing from the Ground only; as Corn, Hay, Herbs, &c. 2 Ed. 6. c. 13.

Præemption, (Præemptio) Signifies the first Buying of a Thing; and it was a Privilege allow'd the King's Purveyor, to have the Choice and first Buying of Corn, and other Provisions for the King's House. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Prælate (Prælati) We commonly understand to be an Archbishop or Bishop. It is a Bishop, or one who hath a Dignity in the Church: And the learned Spelman saith Prelati Ecclesie vocantur non solum superiores, ut Episcopi, sed etiam inferiores, ut Archiepiscopi, Presbyteri, &c. Spelma.

Præmisses, Is that Part in the Beginning of a Deed whose Office is to express the Grantor and Grantee, and the Land or Thing granted. 5 Rep. 55. See Deed.

Præsent, (Fr. Præsent, l. e. Accipere) Is the Power or Right of Taking a Thing before it is offered; as it lies in Render, but not in Præsent, &c. 1 Rep.

Præsent de Baron, Signifieth literally to take an Husband; and it is used for an Exception to disable a Woman from pursuing an Appeal of Murder, against one who killed her former Husband. 8 P. C. lib. 3. c. 59.

Præsentid, (Præsentid) Forthought; as præsentid Malice is Malitia Præcogitata, which makes Killing Murderous: And when a Man is slain upon a sudden Quarrel, if there were Malice præsentid fortwixt tween the Parties, it is Murder, or as it is called by the Statute prepenſed Murder. 12 H. 7. c. 7. 3 Inlt. 51. See Murder.

Prerogative, (Prærogativa Regis, from Præ ante, & Rogate, to ask or Demand) Is that Power, Pre-eminence, or Privilege which the King hath and claimeth over and beyond other Persons, and above the ordinary Course of the Common Law, in Right of his Crown: Set forth in the Statute called Prærogativa Regis. 17 Ed. 2. c. 1. and other Statutes. See King.

Prerogative of the Bishop of Canterbury or York, (Prærogativa Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis five Eboracensis) Is an especial Pre-eminence that these Sees have in certain Cases above the other Bishops within their Province. De Antiq. Britan. Eccl. cap. 8. pag. 25.

This Prerogative of the Archbishop of Canterbury, consists in visiting the whole Province; the assembling of Synods, and supplying Defects of inferior Bishops, &c. And he hath an extraordinary Power, of Calling Persons, in any Cause belonging to Spiritual Jurisdiction, out of any Part of his Province, though not appeal'd, &c. which is now limited by 23 H. 8. c. 9. Vide Archiepiscop.

Prerogative Court, (Curta Prærogativa Archiepiscopi Cant.) The Court wherein all Wills are proved and Administrations granted, that belong to the Archbishop by his Prerogative; that is, in Cases where the Deceased had Goods of any considerable Value out of the Diocese, wherein he died within the Archbishop's Province, and that Value is usually 5*l.* and above. And if any Contention arise between two or more, touching any such Will or Administration, the Cause is properly to be debated and decided in this Court; the Judge whereof is termed Judex Curie Prærogativæ Cantuariensis, the Judge of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. Not only all Causes of Instance for proving or revoking such Wills as aforesaid, and for granting or revoking such Administrations; but also Causes concerning Accounts upon the same, and Legacies bequeathed in such Wills are to be tried in the Prerogative Court: Though of late such Legacies are suffered by this Court to be sued for in the inferior Ecclesiastical Court, under whose Jurisdiction the Executor dwells. 1 Ventr. 233. Wood's Inst. 502. Appeal lies from this Court to the King in Chancery; who appoints Delegates, &c. 25 Hen. 8. c. 19. Though if the Delegates revoke a Will, &c. they cannot grant Letters of Administration; for their Power is to hear and determine the Appeal. 2 Bullst. 2. Roll. Abr. 233. The Archbishop hath Probate of every Bishop's Testament, &c. though he hath not Bona Notabilia out of the Diocese: So where a Person dies beyond Sea. 4 Inst. 335. Vide Bona Notabilia.

Prerogative Court of York. The Archbishop of York hath the like Court, but inferior to that of Canterbury in Power and Profit; which is called his Exchequer.

Presbyter, A Priest; and Elder, or honourable Person. Isidore, lib. 7.

Presbyterium, A Presbytery; or that Part of the Church where Divine Offices are performed, applied to the Choir or Chancel, because it was the Place appropriated to the Bishop, Priests and other Clergy, while the Laity were confined to the Body of the Church. Mon. Ang. Tom. 1. pag. 243.

Presbyterian, A Sectarist or Dissenter from the Church: 13 Car. 2.

Prescription, (Præscriptio) Is a Title acquired by Use and Time, and allowed by the Law; as when a Man claims any Thing because he, his Ancestors, or they whose Estate he hath, have had or used it all the Time, whereof no Memory is to the contrary: Or it is where for Continuance of Time, ultra Memoriam Hominis, a particular Person hath a particular Right against another. Kitch. 104. 1 Inst. 114. 4 Rep. 32. Prescriptions are properly Personal, and therefore are always alledged in the Person of him who prescribes, viz. That he, his Ancestors, or all those whose Estate he hath, &c. or of a Body Politick or Corporation, they and their Predecessors, &c. Also a Parson may prescribe, quod ipse & prædecessores sui, and all they whose Estate, &c. for there is a perpetual Estate, and a perpetual Succession, and the Successor hath the very same Estate which his Predecessor had, as that continues, though the Person alters, like the Case of the Ancestor and the Heir. 3 Salk. 279. There is a Difference between Prescription, Custom and Usage: Prescription hath Respect to a certain Person, who by Intendment may have Continuance for ever; as for Instance; he and all they whose Estate he hath in such a Thing, this is a Prescription: But Custom is local, and always applied to a certain Place, as Time out of Mind there has been such a Custom in such a Place, &c. And Prescription belongeth to one or a few only; but Custom is common to all: Now Usage differs from both, for that may be either to Persons or Places; as to Inhabitants of a Town, to have a Way, &c. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1277. A Custom and Prescription are in the Right; Usage is in Possession; And a Prescription that is good for the Matter and Substance of the Thing, yet may be bad by the Manner of laying and setting it forth; but where that which is claimed as a Custom, in or for many, will be good, that regularly will be so when claimed by Prescription for one. Godb. 54. Prescription is to be Time out Mind; though it is not the Length of Time, that begets the Right of Prescription, nothing being done by Time, although every Thing is done in Time, but it is a Presumption in Law, that a Possession cannot continue so long quiet and not interrupted, if it was against Right, or injurious to another. 3 Salk. 278. A Prescription cannot be annexed to any Thing but an Estate in Fee, which must be set forth; but it is always applied to incorporeal Inheritances. One cannot make Title to Land by Prescription; but only to Rent, or Profit out of Land. 2 Mod. 318. 4 Rep. 31. A Person may make Title by Prescription, to an Office, a Fair, Market, Toll, Way, Water, Rent, Common, Park, Warren, Franchise, Court Leet, Waifs, Estrays, &c. But nothing may be prescribed, which cannot be raised by Grant at this Day, and a Prescription must not be laid in an Uncertainty; no Person can prescribe against an Act of Parliament, or against the King where he hath a certain Estate and Interest, against the Publick Good, Religion, &c. Nor can one Prescription be pleaded against another, unless the First is answered or traversed; or where one may stand with the other. Lutw. 381. Raym. 232. 2 Roll. Ab. 264. 2 Inst. 167. 7 Rep. 28. Cro. Car. 432: 1 Bullst. 115. 2 Lill. 346. Tenants in Fee-simple are to prescribe in their own Name, and Tenants for Life, or Years, &c. though they may not prescribe in their own Names, yet they may in the Name of him who hath Fee: And where a Person would have a Thing that lies in Grant by Prescription, he must prescribe in himself and his Ancestors, whose Heir he is by Descent; not in himself, and those whose Estate, &c. (unless the Que Estate is but a Conveyance to the Thing claimed by Prescription); for he cannot have their Estate that lies in Grant without Deed, which ought to be shewed to the Court. 1 Inst. 113. Wood's Inst. 297. A Copyholder, by Reason of the Benefit of his Tenure, cannot lay a Prescription in himself and his Ancestors; but he may prescribe in the Name of the Lord of the Manor, that the Lord and his Ancestors have had Common, &c. for themselves and Tenants, &c. And this serves where Persons cannot prescribe in their own Name, or of any certain Person: Pari-fishers cannot generally prescribe, but they may alledge a Custom; and Inhabitants may prescribe in a Matter of Easement, Way to a Church, Burying Place, &c. 2 Saund. 325. 1 Lev. 253. Cro. Eliz. 441. Cro. Car. 419. 2 Roll. 290. To lay a Prescription for Common, a Man must shew, that he and his Ancestors, or all those whose Estate he hath, have Time out of Mind of Man had and used to have Common of Pasture in such a Place, being the Land of another, &c. And as a Prescription is a Title or Claim of a real Interest or Profit in the Land of another Person, it must be pleaded according to certain Rules; and they are not like Customs or improper Prescriptions, that are by Way of Discharge, or for Easements, or for Matters of personal Exemption or Privilege. Wood's Inst. 298, 299. A Prescription may be laid in several Persons, where it tends only to Matters of Easement or Discharge; though not where it goes to Matter of Interest or Profit in alieno solo, for that is a Title, and the Title of one doth not concern the other; therefore several Men having several Estates, cannot join in making a Prescription. 1 Mod. 74. 3 Mod. 250. The Word Easement is a Genus to several Species of Liberties, which one may have in the Soil of another, without claiming any Interest in the Land itself; but where the Thing was set forth in a Prescription to catch Fish in the Water of another Man, &c. and no Instance could be given of a Prescription for such a Liberty by the Word Easement, a Rule was made to set the Prescription right, and to try the Merits. 4 Mod. 362. In Trespafs for breaking the Plaintiff's Close, the Defendant prescribed, that the Inhabitants of such a Place, Time out of Mind, had used to dance there, at all Times of the Year, for their Recreation, and so justified; and Issue being taken upon this Prescription, the Defendant had a Verdict; it was objected against it, that a Prescription to dance in the Freehold of another, and spoil his Grass was ill, especially as laid in the Defendant's Plea, viz. At all Times of the Year, and not at seasonable Times, and for all the Inhabitants; who though they may prescribe in Easements which are necessary, as a Way to a Church, &c. they cannot in Easements for Pleasure only: But adjudged, that the Prescription is good, Issue being taken upon it, and found for the Defendant; although it might have been ill on a Demurrer. 1 Lev. 175. 2 Nels. 1280. A Custom that the Farmers of such a Farm have always found Ale, &c. to such a Value at Perambulations, was held naught; because it is no more than a Prescription in Occupiers, which is not good in Matter to charge the Land. 2 Lev. 164. Prescription by the Inhabitants of a Parish to dig Gravel in such a Pit, which was the Soil of W. R. it was doubted whether this was good, or not, though it was to repair the Highway; but the Inhabitants may prescribe for a Way, and by Consequence for necessary Materials to repair it. 2 Lutw. 1346. A Defendant pleaded, that within such a Parish, all Occupiers of a certain Close habent, & habere consueverunt, a Way leading over the Plaintiff's Close, to the Defendant's House; this was held to be ill, for it is not like a Prescription to a Way to the Church or Market, which are necessary, & pro bono publico. 2 Ventr. 186. Where a Man prescribes for a Way to such a Close, he must shew what Interest he hath in the Close: Aliter if he prescribes for a Way to such a Field; because that may be a common Field by Inteadment. Latch 160. The Plaintiff declared, that the Occupiers of the adjoining Field have, Time out of Mind, repaired the Fences, which being out of Repair, his the Plaintiff's Beasts escaped out of his own Ground, and fell into a Pit; it is good, without shewing any Estate in the Occupiers, but it had not been so if the Defendant had prescribed. 1 Ventr. 264. Prescription, &c. to take Underwood growing on the Lands of another, to make Hedges, is not good. 1 Leon. 313. A Man may claim a Fold-course, and exclude the Owner of the Soil by Prescription. 1 Saund. 153. But a Diversity has been taken where a Prescription takes away the whole Interest of the Owner of the Land; and where a particular Profit is restrained: In one Case it is good, and in the other it is void. 1 Lev. 11. If a Person prescribes for Common Appurtenant, it is ill, unless it be for Cattle Levant & Couchant, &c. And the Reason is, because by such a Prescription the Party claims only some Part of the Pasture, and the Quantum is ascertained by the Levancy and Couchancy, the Rest being left for the Owner of the Soil; and therefore if he who thus prescribes, should put in more Cattle than are Levant and Couchant on his Tenement, he is a Trespasser. Noy 145. 2 Saund. 324. In a Prescription to have Common, the Jury found it to be Paying every Year a Penny: Here the Prescription is intire, whereof the Payment of one Penny is Parcel; which ought to be intirely alledged in the Prescription in the Plea, or it will not be good. Cro. Eliz. 563, 564. But where the Payment is collateral from the Prescription, a Prescription may be good without alledging it. Cro. Eliz. 405. Upon the Pleadings in a Cause, it was a Question, Whether a Toll, independent of Markets and Fairs, might be claimed by Prescription, without shewing that the Subject hath some Benefit; and some Arguments were brought for it, from an Authority in Dyer 352. Though by Holt Ch. Just. this Prescription cannot be good, because there was no Recompence for it; and every Prescription to charge the Subject with a Duty, must import some Benefit to him who pays it; or else some Reason must be shewed why the Duty is claimed. 4 Mod. 319. A Court Leet is derived out of the Hundred; and if a Man claims a Title to the Leet, he may prescribe that he and his Ancestors, and all those whose Estate he hath in the Hundred, Time out of Mind had a Leet. 1 Inst. 125. There may be a Prescription for a Court to hold Pleas of all Actions, and for any Sum or Damage, and it will be good. Jenk. Cens. 327. If a Court held by Prescription is granted and confirmed by the King's Letters Patent; this doth not destroy the Prescription, but it is said the Court may be held by Prescription as before. 2 Roll. Abr. 271. And a Grant may enure as a Confirmation of a Prescription; and the Prescription continue unaltered by a new Charter, &c. where the Charter is not contrary to the Prescription. Moor 818, 830. But in some Cases it is intended, that a Prescription shall begin by Grant; and as to Prescriptions in general, the Law supposes a Descent, or Purchase originally. Cro. Eliz. 709. 1 Inst. 113. Every Prescription is taken strictly: And a Man ought not to prescribe to that which the Law of common Right gives. 3 Leon. 13. Noy 20. A Prescription must have a lawful Commencement, and peaceable Possession and Time are inseparably incident to it. 1 Inst. 113. Though a Title gained by Custom or Prescription, will not be lost by Interruption of the Possession for ten or twenty Years; but it may be lost by Interruption in the Right. 1 Inst. 114. 2 Inst. 653. Prescription at Common Law, is Time out of Memory of Man; and by Statute, where a certain Time is limited, as from the Reign of Rich. 1, &c. Co. Litt. 115. Prescriptions for repairing Highways, see Highways.

Prescriptions against Statutes and Statutes. The 7 Hen. 8. ordains, That four Years being past after the Offences committed, provided against by this Statute, no Suit can be commenced. By 31 Eliz. cap. 5. all Actions, &c. brought upon Statutes, the Penalty whereof belongs to the King, shall be brought brought within two Years after the Offence done, or shall be void. And the Stat. 23 Eliz. cap. 1. enacts, that Offences comprised in that Statute, &c. are inquirable and determinable before Justices of Peace and Assize, within a Year and a Day after the Offence, &c. so that whosoever offendeth against any of these Statutes and escapes unquestioned for four Years, Two, or one Year, may be said to prescribe against the Actions and Punishments ordained by those Statutes: And there are other Statutes which have the like Appointments or Limitations of Time, whence may arise the like Prescription and Bar. 4 Rep. 84. 2 Inst. 652. Vide Adim.

Prescription by the Ecclesiastical Law, as to Tithes, &c. See Modus Decimandi.

Presence. Sometimes the Presence of a Superior Magistrate, takes away the Power of an Inferior. 9 Rep. 118. And the Presence of one may serve for all the rest of the Peeples or Grants, &c. 3 Rep. 26. When Presence of a Man, in the Place where an Offence is done, may make him guilty, vide Necessary.

Presentation, (Presentatio) Is properly the Act of a Patron, offering his Clerk to the Bishop of the Diocese, to be instituted in a Church or Benefice of his Gift, which is void. 2 Lill. Abr. 351. Anciently the Presentation to all Churches was said to be in the Bishop of common Right, till since it has been indulged to the Laity, to encourage them to build and endow Churches; and now if the Patron neglects to present to the Church, then this Right returns to the Bishop by Lapse, &c. 1 Nels. Abr. An Alien born cannot present to a Benefice in his own Right; for if he purchase an Advowson, and the Church becomes void, the King shall present after Office found that the Patron is an Alien. 2 Nels. 1290. And by Statute no Alien shall purchase a Benefice in this Realm; nor occupy the same, without the King's Licence, on Pain of a Præsumptio. 7 R. 2. cap. 12. Papists are disabled to present to Benefices, and the Universities are to present, &c. But a Papish Recusant may grant away his Patronage to another, who may make Presentation, where there is no Fraud. Stat. 3. Jac. 1. 1 W. & M. 1 Jon. 19. All Persons that have Ability to purchase or grant, have likewise Ability to present to vacant Benefices: But a Dean and Chapter cannot present the Dean; nor may a Clergyman who is Patron present himself, though he may say to be admitted by the Ordinary, and the Admission shall be good. An Infant may present of whatsoever Age, because Guardians have not Power to do it in Right of the Heir; a Guardian in Socage cannot present to a Church, by the Law he being not to meddle with any Thing but for what he may Account, which he cannot do for a Presentation, by Reason he is to take Nothing for it: If a Feme Covert hath Title to present, the Presentation ought to be in the Name of both Husband and Wife, and not be by her alone; or he may present in his own Name during the Coverture: Coparceners are but as one Patron, and ought to agree in the Presentation of one Person; if they cannot agree, the Eldest shall present first alone, and the Bishop is obliged to admit her Clerk, and afterwards the others in their Order shall prefer their Clerks: Jointenants and Tenants in Common must regularly join in Presentation, and if either present alone, the Bishop may refuse his Clerk, as he may also the Clerk presented by the major Part of them; but if there are two Jointenants of the next Avoidance, one of them may present the other, and two Jointenants may present a Third; but not a Stranger: The next Presentation was granted to four Persons, & coram quilibet conjunctim & divisim, &c. And the Church becoming void, one of the Grantees alone presented one of the others; and it was adjudged; that this Presen- tation by one was good: When an aggregate Corporation presents, it must be under their common Seal, and by the true Name of their Corporation: The King may present by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, and by these Words, vis. Damus & concedimus; for this amounts to a Warrant for the Bishop to admit the Clerk; it is said the King may present by Word, or in Writing under any Seal, who cannot do any other legal Act but by Matter of Record; and in the Opinion of some, the King may present to a Church by his Letter sent to the Ordinary to institute and induct such a One his Clerk to the Living; but the most secure Way is to have a Presentation under the Great Seal: If a Rector is made Bishop, the King shall present to the Rectory, unless he grant to the Bishop before he is consecrated, a Dispensation to hold it with his Bishoprick; and if an Incumbent of a Church is made a Bishop, and the King presents or grants that he shall hold the Church in Commendam, which is quasi a Presentation, a Grantee of the next Avoidance or Presentation hath lost it, the King having the next Presentation: If the King do present to a Church by Lapse, where he ought to present Pleno jure, and as Patron of the Church, such a Presentation is not good; for the King is deceived in his Grant, by mistaking his Title, which may be prejudicial to him, the Presenting by Lapse intulding only that Presentation: The Lord Chancellor presents to the King's Benefices under 201. &c. 2 Roll Abr. 354. 3 Inst. 156. 1 Inst. 186. 2 Nels. Abr. 1288, 1290. 2 Lill. 351. The King may repeal a Presentation, before his Clerk is inducted; and this he may do by granting the Presentation to another, which without any farther Signification of his Mind is a Revocation of the first Presentation. Dyer 293, 360. A Patron may revoke his Presentation before Institution, but not afterwards; a Presentation being no more than a Power given to the Ordinary to admit the Clerk, and if the Patron die before Induction, his Presentation is determined. But this was in the Case of the King; for in the Case of a common Person, if he die after Institution, and before Induction, the Presentation is not determined by his Death. Latch 191. Dyer 348. If two Patrons present their Clerks to a Church, the Bishop is to determine who shall be admitted by a Jus Patronatus, &c. And two Patrons pretending a Title to present, one of them presented W. R. but the Bishop refused Institution; whereupon he sued in the Court of Audience of the Archbishop, and had an Inhibition to that Bishop, and upon that Suit he obtained an Inhibition by the Archbishop, on which he was inducted; afterwards the Bishop who was inhibited, granted Institution upon the Presentation of the other Patron, and his Clerk was likewise inducted; and thereupon W. R. who had been instituted and inducted before, on a Motion procured a Prohibition, because by the first Induction the Incumbency was determined: So that quoad the Incumbency, the Prohibition was granted, but not as to the Contempt of the Ordinary after he had been inhibited. Moor 499. The Father was incumbent, and after his Death the Patron presented his Son, who was refused by the Bishop, because by the Canon Law Filius non potest succedere patri in eadem Ecclesia, and the Patron presented another Person; then the Son who was first presented, obtained a Dispensation non obstantes the Canon; but the Ordinary admitted the second Presentus, who was also instituted and inducted; thereupon the Son sued him and the Bishop in the Spiritual Court, but a Prohibition was granted. Latch 191. A Clerk may be refused by the Bishop, if the Patron is excommunicate; or if the Clerk is not Persona Idonea, which includes Ability of Learning, and Honesty in Conversation, &c. But in a Quere Impedit brought against the Bishop for Refusal of a Clerk, he must shew the Cause

Cause of his Refusal specially and directly; and because the Clerk is of ill Life, or a Schismatick in general, is not sufficient, without shewing what Crimes, or Sort of Schism he has been guilty of: And the Temporal Court then will judge whether the Cause be just or not; and if the Party denies the same, the Court may write to the Metropolitan to examine the Matter, and certify; and though the Matter be of a Spiritual Nature, it shall be tried by a Jury: For whether the Cause be Temporal or Spiritual, the Examination of the Bishop concludes not the Clerk; he is Judge of the Ability, but not the ultimate Judge: But in Case of Refusal for Insufficiency in Learning, it hath been adjudged, that the Ordinary is not accountable to any Temporal Judge; and that in Literatura minus sufficiens, &c. is a good Plea, without setting forth the Kind of Learning, or Degrees of it. 5 Rep. 58. 2 Inst. 631. 3 Lev. 311. Sboru. 88. Wood's Inst. 32, 33. That the Presentee has a Benefice already, is no good Cause of Refusal, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 355. If the Bishop refuses to admit the Clerk presented, he must give Notice of his Refusal, with the Cause of it forthwith; and on such Notice the Patron must present another Clerk, within six Months from the Avoidance, if he thinks the Objection against his first Clerk contains sufficient Causes of Refusal; but if not, he may bring his Quare Impedit against the Bishop. 2 Roll. Abr. 364. And where a Church becomes void by Deprivation by the Canon Law, or Resignation, the Patron must have Notice from the Ordinary, to present another Person: But if the Church becomes void by the Act of God, as Death of the Incumbent; or by Creation, or Cession, &c. the Patron is bound to take Notice himself of the Avoidance, and to present, &c. Wood's Inst. 154. If a Defendant, or any Stranger, presents a Clerk pending a Quare Impedit, and afterwards the Plaintiff obtains a Verdict and Judgment, he cannot by Virtue of that Judgment remove him who was thus presented; but he is to bring a Scire facias against him to shew Cause Quare Executionem non habet; and then if it be found that he had no Title, he shall be removed: Now the Way to prevent such a Presentation, is to take out a Ne admittas to the Bishop; and then the Writ Quare Incumbavit lies, by Virtue whereof the Incumbent shall be removed, and put to his Quare Impedit, let his Title be what it will; but if a Ne admittas be not taken out, and another Incumbent should come in by good Title pendente lite, he shall hold it. Sid. 93. 2 Cro. 93. A Man must set forth a Presentation in himself, or those under whom he claims, in a Quare Impedit; and it ought to be alledged in him that hath the Inheritance: And when six Months pass hanging the Writ, &c. by the Disturbance of any one, so that the Bishop hath a Right to present by Lapse, Damages shall be recovered by two Years Value of the Church, if the Person lose his Presentation; and if he recovers his Presentation within the six Months, Damages to Half a Year's Value, &c. 2 Inst. 362. Vaugh. 7, 57. Cro. Eliz. 518. 13 Ed. 1. c. 5. Where a Person gets the Fee to his Presentation, which is his Title, he must in his Declaration alledge the Presentation to be Tempore pacis, or it may be intended to be Tempore belli, and then it is no Title; but where the bare Presentation is not his Title, but only in Pursuance of a former Right, in such Case he may alledge it generally: As for Instance; where he declares that A. B. was seized of the Manor of D. as of Fee, to which an Advowson was appendant, and that being so seized he presented W. R. and afterwards granted the next Avoidance to the Plaintiff; this is good, for here the Plaintiff shews a precedent Right, and doth not make the Presentation itself his Title. 1 Mod. 130. 2 Mod. 183. 3 Salk. 280. If a Church becomes void in the Lifetime of a Bishop, he cannot devise the next Presentation; but if the Bishop, or any Incumbent of a Church, hath the Advowson in Fee, and then either of them devise, that upon the next Avoidance his Executor shall present; this is good, though they devise the Inheritance to another. Dyer 285. When a Bishop hath a Presentation in Right of his Bishoprick, and dies, his Executor, nor Heir, shall not have the void Turn; but the King, in whose Hands are the Temporalities, and he hath a Right to present upon an Avoidance after the Seizure, on the Death of the Bishop: Though where an Incumbent was seized of the Advowson in Fee, and died, upon a Question who should present, either his Heir or Executor, the Advowson not descending to the Heir till after the Death of his Ancestor, and immediately upon his Death the Church was void, and therefore that Avoidance was vested in the Executor; it was adjudged, that the Heir shall present, because the Descent to him, and the Avoidance to the Executor, happened at one and the same Instant, and where two Titles concur in an Instant, the Elder Title shall be preferred. 3 Lev. 47. A Grant was made of the next Presentation to a Church, the Grantee died, and then the Church became void; and it was held, that the Executor of the Grantee shall have the Presentation as a Chattel. Glanvil, lib. 6. c. 7. 2 Nels. Abr. 1286. But in Quare Impedit, the Defendant pleaded, that the Patron granted the next Presentation to B. B. who died, and made his Executor, who presented the Defendant; Issue was taken upon Non concessit, and the Jury found, that the Patron granted the Presentation to B. B. during his Life, and that he died before the Church became void; adjudged that this was not an absolute Grant of the next Presentation, but restrained during the Life of the Grantee; wherefore it shall not go to the Executor, unless the Church become void in the Life-time of the Testator. Cro. Car. 363. A Tenant in Tail of an Advowson and his Son and Heir joined in a Grant of the next Presentation, the Tenant in Tail died; this Grant was held void as to the Son and Heir, because he had nothing in the Advowson at the Time that he joined with his Father in the Grant. Hob. 45. By Last Will and Testament, the Right of Presenting to the next Avoidance, may be devised to any Person; and by Deed the next Avoidance of a Church may be granted, where the Church is then full; also whilst a Church is void, the next Avoidance that shall happen, or the Inheritance of the Advowson may be granted away, and by Deed or Grant, the Right of Presenting will pass: But the void Turn itself is not grantable by any common Person, though it may be granted by the King, and be good; for that it is a meer Spiritual Thing annexed to the Person of the Patron, and during the Time of the Vacation it is a Thing in Right and in Action, the Fruit and Execution of the Advowson, not the Advowson itself. 2 Cro. 371. Clergym. Law 154. As a void Turn is not grantable; so if Two have a Grant made to them of a next Avoidance, and after the Church is void, one doth release all his Right and Title which he had in the Advowson and Presentation to his Companion, who presents to the Church, this Presentation is void; because after the Avoidance, the Interest was attached in both, and both had a Power to present, which could no more be released by one to the other, than it could be granted in that Manner, being but a Right, and not a Chattel in Possession: But a Release in this Case may be good, if it be made before the Church is void, and the Party to whom made may present, &c. 1 And. 223. 3 Cro. 173. Moor 467. If a Presentation itself bears Date whilst the Church is full of another Clerk, it is void: And where two or more have a Title to present, by Turns, one of them

presents, and his Clerk is admitted, instituted and inducted, and is afterwards deprived for some Crime; he shall not present again, but that Presentation shall serve his Turn: Though where the Admission and Institution of his Clerk is void, there the Turn shall not be served; as if after Induction he neglects to read the thirty-nine Articles, &c. his Institution is void by the Stat. 13 Elix. and the Patron may present again. F. N. B. 33. 5 Rep. 102. The Right of Presenting to a Church, may pass from one seized of the same, by the Patron's acknowledging of a Statute, &c. which being extended, if the Church doth become void, during the Conuſee's Estate, the Conuſee may present. Owen 49. Every Church-Living is to be given and received by Presentation, Collation, &c. And where-ever a Writ of Quare Impedit, or Right of Advowſon will lie for any Man on a Disturbance; there he hath a Right to the Presentation for that Time at least. 1 Sbrp. Abr. 240, 241. Where the Patron of a Church, hath an Estate in the Manor or other Thing to which it is appendant, or has it in Groſs for Life or Years only; if the Church becomes void during his Estate, he may present to it: Or he may grant the next Avoidance to another for a Term, and this will be good, if it happen in the Time. But if one be diſſeiſed of his Manor, and the Diſſeiſer die ſeiſed, and after the Church become void; in this Caſe the Diſſeiſee cannot present till he hath recontinued the Manor, but before the Dying ſeiſed he might do it. Co. Litt. 120. 8 Rep. 145. Dyer 29. Plowd. 500. A Presentation to a Church by a Perſon who had not Right, at Common Law, did put the rightful Patron out of Poſſeſſion, and oblige him to bring the Writ of Right of Advowſon, &c. And Presentment by Uſurpation, and Admission upon it, doth gain the Fee to the Preſentor till he be evicted by Action. 6 Rep. 30. 1 And. 300. Yelv. 91. One may not make a Deputy to present for him: And yet a Presentation by a Proctor, is ſaid to be good, as if done by the Party himſelf. F. N. B. 35. If a Man do present to any Church in Time of War, the Law hath ſuch Regard to the original Act, viz. the Presentation, that all which follows thereon ſhall be void. 6 Ed. 3. 41. 2 Co. Rep. 93. Where a common Perſon is Patron, he may present to a Church by Parol; as well as by writing to the Biſhop. Co. Litt. 120. A Presentation doth not carry with it the Formality of a Deed; but is in the Nature of a Letter Miſſive, by which the Clerk is offered to the Biſhop; and it paſſeth no Intereſt, as a Grant doth, being no more than a Recommendation of a Clerk to the Ordinary to be admitted. Young Clergyman's Lawyer 17, 18. But where a Plaintiff declared upon a Grant of the next Presentation, and on Oyer of the Deed it appeared to be only a Letter written by the Patron to the Father of the Plaintiff, that he had given his Son the next Presentation; adjudged, that it would not paſs by ſuch Letter, without a formal Deed. Owen 47.

Form of a Presentation to a Benefice.

A Grant of the next Presentation to a Church.

TO all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, A. B. of, &c. Eſq; the true and undoubted Patron of the Rectory or Parish Church of D. in the County and Diocese of, &c. ſendeth Greeting. Know ye, that the ſaid A. B. for divers good Cauſes and Conſiderations himſelves moving, hath given, granted and confirmed, and by theſe Preſents, doth for him and his Heirs, give, grant and confirm unto C. D. of, &c. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, the ſiſt and next Advowſon, Presentation, free Diſpoſition and Right of Patronage, of and to the Parſonage, Rectory, or Parish Church of D. aforeſaid, with all its Appurtenances, with full Power and Authority to and for the ſaid C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, to present a learned and fit Perſon to the ſaid Parſonage, Rectory, or Parish Church, with all its Rights and Appurtenances, whenſoever the ſame ſhall ſiſt and next happen to become void, by the Death, Reſignation, Ceſſion, or Deprivation of E. F. the preſent Incumbent, or otherwiſe howſoever; and to do and perform all and every other Acts and Things whatſoever, in order to the ſame, in as full and ample Manner, to all Intents and Purpoſes, as the ſaid A. B. or his Heirs might, or hereafter could have done, if this preſent Grant had not been made. In Witneſs, &c.

Right of Presentation may be forfeited in ſeveral Caſes: As by Attainder of the Patron, or by Outlawry, and then the King ſhall present; and if the Outlawry be reverted, where the Advowſon is forfeited by the Outlawry, and the Church becomes void after, the Presentation is veſted in the Crown; but if at the Time of the Outlawry the Church was void, then the Presentation is forfeited as a Chattel, and upon reverſing the ſame, the Party ſhall be reſtored to it. By Appropriation without Licence from the Crown, Right of Presentation may be forfeited; though the Inheritance in this Caſe is not forfeited, only the King ſhall have the Presentation in Nature of a Diſtreſs, till the Party hath paid a Fine for his Contempt. By Alienation in Fee of the Advowſon, by a Grantee for Life of the next Avoidance, a Presentation is forfeited; and after ſuch Alienation the Grantor may present, but then he muſt enter for the Forfeiture of the Grantee in the Life-time of the Incumbent, to determine his Estate before the Presentation veſts in him on the Incumbent's Death. And by Simony it may be likewise forfeited and loſt, where any Perſon for Money, &c. ſhall present any one to a Benefice. Mcor 269. Plowd. 299. 2 Roll. Abr. 352. Stat. 31 Elix. See Advowſon, Patron, Simony, &c.

Preſentee, The Clerk presented to a Church by the Patron. In our Statutes there is Mention of the King's Preſentee, that is he whom the King preſents to a Benefice. 13 R. 2. c. 1.

Preſentia, Preſents, ſo called, becauſe they are given Preſenti: And they differ from Munera, which are Gifts ſent to the Perſon. Matt. Pariſ. Anno 1170.

Preſentment, Is a meer Denunciation of Jurors, or ſome Officers, &c. (without any Information) of an Offence inquirable in the Court whereunto it is presented. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. c. 5. Or Preſentment ment is an Information made by the Jury in a Court, before a Judge who hath Authority to punish any Offence done contrary to the Law: It is that which a Grand Jury finds and presents to the Court, without any Bill or Indictment delivered; and it is afterwards reduced into the Form of an Indictment. 2 Inst. 739. The Presentment is drawn up in English by the Jury, in a short Note, for Instructions to draw the Indictment by; and differs from an Indictment, in that an Indictment is drawn up at large in Latin, and brought ingrossed to the Grand Jury to find. 2 Lill. Abr. 353. There are Presentments of Justices of Peace in their Sessions, of Offences against Statutes, in order to their Punishment in superior Courts; and Presentments taken before Commissioners of Sewers, &c. But a Presentment of Commissioners of Sewers was quashed, because it did not appear in the Presentment by what Authority the Commissioners did sit who took the Presentment, or that any of them were of the Quorum, as directed by Statute. Hill. 1649. And Presentments are made in Courts Leet and Courts Baron, before the Stewards thereof; and in the latter of Surrenders, Grants, &c. Also by Constables, Church-wardens, Surveyors of the Highways, &c. of Things belonging to their Offices.

President, (Præses) Is used for the King's Lieutenant in any Province, as President of Wales, &c.

President of the Council, Relates to the Function of the Person, and is the Fourth great Officer of State: He is as ancient as the Reign of King John; and hath sometimes been called Principalis Consiliarius, and other Times Capitalis Consiliarius. The Office of President of the Council was ever granted by Letters Patent under the Great Seal durante beneplacito; and this Officer is to attend upon the King, to propose Business at the Council Table, and report to his Majesty the Transactions there: Also he may associate the Lord Chancellor, Treasurer, and Privy Seal, at naming of Sheriffs; and all other Acts limited by any Statute, to be done by them. 21 H. 8. c. 20.

President of the Weavers. There is Mention of a President of Weavers of Kidderminster-Stuff. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 1.

Pressing, for Sea-Service: In Time of War, the King has Power to impress Seamen; though he ought not to imprison them. Comber. 340. But Watermen withdrawing themselves during the Time of Pressing, shall be liable to Imprisonment, &c. Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. Where a Man receives Press Money to serve the King, and is deliver'd over to a Captain; (not common Press-Masters) if he runs away without Licence, it is Felony having Benefit of Clergy, by the 7 Hen. 7. cap. 1. Hale's Hist. P. C. 678. A late Statute has ordain'd, that every Person who serves in any Merchant Ship belonging to the Subjects of Great Britain, being Fifty-five Years of Age, or under Eighteen; and also every Foreigner in such Ships shall be privileged from being press'd into his Majesty's Service; and all others of any Age, for the Space of two Years after their first going to Sea; but Apprentices are thus exempted three Years. Stat. 13 Geo. 2. cap. 17. See Navy.

Prestation-Money, (Præstatio, a Performing or Paying) Is a Sum of Money paid by Archdeacons, and other Clergymen, yearly to their Bishop, pro ex- teriori Jurisdictione. And Præstatio was anciently used for other Payments; and sometimes for Purveyance. — Et quieti facta a Præstatione Muragii, &c. Chart. Hen. 7.

Presumption, (Præsumptio) Signifies an Opinion or Belief of a Thing; and is of three Sorts: 1. Violent Presumption, which is many Times plena Probatio; as if one be found to be killed in a House, and a Man is observed to come out of that House with a bloody Sword or Knife, no other Person being at that Time in the House; this is a violent Presumption, that that Man was the Murderer, and passeth for Proof. 2. Probable Presumption, which is of some Weight, though it hath but a small Effect. 3. Light Presumption, Levis seu Temeraria, which proveth nothing at all. 1 Inst. 6. If all the Witnesses to a Charter of Feoffment or other Deed be dead, then violent Presumption, which stands for a Proof, is continual and quiet Possession: If a Defendant pleads Payment to a Bond, and it appears that the Debt is of very long standing by the Bond, and it hath not been demanded, nor Interest paid for many Years, it shall be presumed that the Money is paid, though the Plaintiff hath the Bond in his Custody: Also if a Rent be behind and in Arrear for twenty Years, and the Landlord gives a Receipt for the last Year that is due, all the Rest is presumed to be paid, &c. 1 Inst. 6, 373. Wood's Inst. 599. Where diverse Houses are let to a Man by one Lease, the Court will presume that the Lessee is in Possession of them all, if he be in Possession of any one of them, and the contrary doth not appear to the Court: And so in other Cases, though Presumption is what may be doubted of, yet it shall be accounted Truth, if the contrary be not proved. 2 Lill. Abr. 354. But no Presumptions ought to be admitted against the Presumptions of Law, and a Wrong shall never be presumed. 1 Inst. 232, 373.

Presumptio, Was anciently taken for Intrusion, or the unlawful Seizing of any Thing. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 11.

Prentender. The pretended Prince of Wales is attainted by Statute 13 Will. 3. cap. 3. And the Lord Treasurer, &c. out of the Money granted by Parliament is impowered to give 100,000 l. Reward to any one that shall seize the Prentender, when he shall land or attempt to land in England, &c. 1 Geo. 1.

Pretended Right, (Jus Præsumsum) Is where one is in Possession of Land, and another who is out of Possession claims and sues for it; here the pretended Right or Title is said to be in him who so claims and sues for the same. Blount. See Mod. Cas. 302.

Præmium Sepulchri, Is applied to those Goods which accrue to the Church when a Corps is buried. Irish Can. Lib. 19. c. 6.

Price. Things are to be sold at reasonable Prices: And Justices in Corporations, &c. may set the Price of Victuals and other Things, by Statute 23 Ed. 3. c. 6. 3 H. 8. c. 8.

Præde-gavel, (From Prid, the last Syllable of Lamprid, and Gavel, a Rent or Tribute) In the Manor of Rodeley in the County of Gloucester is a Rent paid to this Day to the Lord, by certain Tenants, in Duty and Acknowledgment to him for their Liberty and Privilege of Fishing for Lampreys or Lamprids in the River Severn. Tayl. Hist. Gavelk. 112.

Prædicts, In general Signification are any Ministers of a Church; but in our Law, this Word is particularly used for Ministers of the Church of Rome. Priests saying Mass shall forfeit 200 Markes, by Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 1. And Persons apprehending a Romish Priest, saying Mass, shall have 100 l. from the Sheriff of the County, to be paid within four Months after Conviction of the Offence, &c. And such such Priests, &c. keeping Schools, are liable to perpetual Imprisonment. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 4. See Yoflin.

Portage, Is a Duty at the Water-side, due to the Master and Mariners of a Ship; to the Master for the Use of his Cables and Ropes, to discharge the Goods of the Merchant, and to the Mariners for Loading and Unloading of the Ship or Vessel in any Port or Haven; it is usually about 12 d. per Tun, or Six pence per Pack or Bale, according to Custom. Merch. DiB.

Primæcius, The first of any Degree of Men; and the Nobility of England were anciently called Primæcius totius Angliæ. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 838.

Primier Seign, (Prima Seign) The first Possession. It was a Branch of the King's Royal Prerogative, whereby he had the first Possession or Profits for a Year of all Lands and Tenements holden of him in Capite, whereof his Tenant died seized in Fee, his Heir being then at full Age; and this the King formerly took, until the Heir, if he were of Age, did his Homage, and if under Age till he were so: But since the Taking away of the Tenure in Capite by Statute, all Charges of Primier Seign are of Consequence taken away also. Staudf. Prærog. 11. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Primier Serjeant, Is the King's first Serjeant at Law.

Primo Beneficio, The first Benefice in the King's Gift, &c. See Beneficio.

Primogeniture, (Primogenitura) Is the Title of an elder Brother, in Right of his Birth: The Reason of which is, Qui prior est Tempore, Potior est Jure. Co. Litt. And according to Dodderidge, it was anciently ordained, that all Knights Fees should come to the eldest Son by Succession of Heritage, that he succeeding his Ancestors in the whole Inheritance, might be the better enabled to maintain the Wars against the King's Enemies, and for Defence of the Realm: And that the Socage Tenure should be partible among the Male Children, to enable them to increase into many Families for the better Furtherance and Maintenance of Husbandry. Leg. Alfred. Dodd. Treat. Nobil. 119.

Prince, (Princeps) Is sometimes taken at large for the King himself; but more properly for the King's eldest Son, who is called Prince of Wales. It is said by some Writers, that the King's eldest Son is Prince of Wales by Nativity; but others say, the eldest Son of our King is born Duke of Cornwall, and afterwards he is created Prince of Wales, though from the Day of his Birth he is stiled Prince of Wales, a Title originally given by King Edward 1. And all his Titles are, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, and Earl of Chester. Before Edward 2. who was the first Prince of Wales, and born at Carnarvan in that Principality, (his Mother being sent there big with Child by King Edw. 1. to appease the Tumultuous Spirits of the Welshmen) the eldest Son of the King was called Lord Prince; but Prince was a Name of Dignity long before that Time in England. Staudf. Prærog. 75: As Duke of Cornwall, and likewise Earl of Chester, the Prince of Wales is to appoint the Sheriffs, and other Officers in those Counties, by 1 Geo. 2. c. 5. The Prince of Wales, besides the Principality of Wales, Duchy of Cornwall, &c. has also a Revenue, settled upon him by Parliament; for by Statute, his late Majesty was empowered to grant to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales his Son, now King, an Annuity of 100,000 l. per Annum, payable out of the Post-Office and Excise Duties, &c. 1 Geo. 1. cap. 22. And the present King is enabled by Letters Patent, &c. to grant the Duke of Cumberland an Annuity of 15,000 l. per Ann. to commence from his Majesty's Death, payable to the Duke and the Heir of his Body in Tail, and charged on the Post-Office Revenues, &c. but so as not to be aliened or incumber'd by him. Stat. 12 Geo. 2. c. 15.

Princess. The King was also enabled to grant to the Princess of Wales, the late Queen, an Annuity of 50,000 l. a Year, after the Prince's Death, out of the abovesaid Duties; and to grant to her Royal Highness Somerset-house Palace, &c. 1 Geo. 1. The like Annuity of 50,000 l. a Year, is settled on the present Princess of Wales, in Case she survives his Royal Highness the Prince, to be paid Quarterly free from Taxes and other Charges. 10 Geo. 2. c. 29. Also the King may grant one Annuity of 24,000 l. per Annum to the Princesses Amelia, Carolina, Mar, and Louisa among them all; and upon the Death or any of them, or Marriage and Payment of 40,000 l. Portion, her Title to the Annuity to cease, and go to the others, by 12 Geo. 2. cap. 15. See 13 Geo. 2. c. 13.

Prince and Princess of Orange. A Bill lately passed in Parliament, for Naturalizing his Highness William Prince of Orange, without receiving the Sacrament, or taking the Oaths, &c. Whereupon he was declared to be a Natural-born Subject of this Kingdom, as if born within the same, by 7 Geo. 2. c. 3 & 4. The Sum of 80,000 l. for the Portion of the Princess Royal, on her Marriage with the Prince of Orange, was granted out of the Money arising by Sale of Lands in the Island of St. Christopher's. 6 Geo. 2. c. 25. And the King is empowered to grant to the Princess Royal an Annuity of 5000 l. per Ann. for her separate Use. Stat. 7 Geo. 2. cap. 13.

Principal, (Principalium) Is variously used in our Law; as an Heir-Lome, the best Beast, best Bed, Table, &c. which pass to the eldest Child, and are not subject to Partition, are called Principals: And the chief Person in the Ins of Chancery is called Principal of the House.

Principal and Accessary. The Principal is the Person who actually commits any Crime; and the Accessary is he who is assisting to him in the Doing thereof. 2 Lill. Abr. 355. And if one do wilfully hold a Man in his Arms, whilst another kills him, he is a Principal. 9 Rep. 67. A Man is present, and moves a Person to kill another, who doth so; by this he is as much a Principal as he that killeth the Person: And all those who come in Company in any Place or Assembly, where any Murder, Robbery, or Felony is committed, if they come there for that Cause, are Principals, although they do nothing. Staudf. P. C. cap. 45. Fitz. Coron. 314, 350. Poult. 138. But if one happen to be present when another is killed, or a Felony done, and he came not in Company of the Felons, nor is of their Confederacy; he will not be a Principal or Accessary. Fitz. Coron. 314, 395. No Man can regularly be a Principal in Felony, without being present, unless it be in Case of wilful Poisoning, wherein if the Persons intended or any others take the Poison in the Absence of him that lays it, he is a Principal. Hale's Hist. P. C. 615. In the highest Offences, as in Treasons, &c. all are Principals; and so in the lowest, such as Riots, Forcible Entries, and other Trespases; in these Cases, there are no Accessaries. 1 Inst. 71. By the Common Law, if a Principal be pardoned before Judgment, or hath his Clergy, the Accessary may not be tried; but if it be after Attainder, the Accessary shall be arraigned: And where the Principal dies before attained, or is acquitted by Verdict, &c. the Accessary shall be discharged: Also if the Principal appears not, though the Accessary may be put to answer, he shall not be tried till the Principal is attained, &c. 4 Rep. 43.

H. P. C. 47. Dalr. 339. But this is altered by Stat. 1 Ann. cap. 9. See Attorney.

Printing. By Statute, the Printing, Selling, or Buying popish or superstitious Books, &c. is liable to Penalties and Forfeitures. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. None shall print heretical or seditious Pamphlets, or tending to the Scandal of the Government, &c. nor print any Books, unless entered in the Register at Stationers Hall and licensed; Books of Law, by the Allowance of the Lord Chancellor, Chief Justice, &c. of Divinity, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, &c. and History, by a Secretary of State: And Printers are to shew the Names of Authors, if required: The Number of Printing Presses is limited; and no Person shall print beyond Sea, or use Presses in Vaults, without Notice, &c. And Messengers, by Warrant of a Secretary of State, may search for and seize seditious Books. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 33. This particular Statute made for regulating Printing, was revived and continued by 4 & 5 W. & M. &c. but is now expired. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Chancellor, Bishop of London, and Chief Justices, &c. on Complaint, have Power to reform unreasonable Prices of Books: Nine Copies of Books printed entered at Stationers Hall, are to be delivered for the Use of publick Libraries: Authors of Books already printed, and the Copies not transferred, and Bookellers who have already purchased, are to have the sole Right of printing Books for twenty-one Years; and Authors of Books not yet printed, shall have such Right for fourteen Years: And when the Copies are transferred, after the End of fourteen Years, the Right of Printing, &c. is to return to the Authors for the like Term: Other Persons reprinting, or importing any Book printed, within those Times, without Consent, shall forfeit the Books to the Proprietor, and 1*d.* for every Sheet in Possession, the Book being entered in the Register of the Stationers Company. 8 Ann. c. 19. By the new Act, Persons that import Books reprinted in any other Country, are to forfeit them, and also 5*l.* and double the Value of every Book imported; but this shall not extend to such Books, as have not been printed in twenty Years, nor hinder the importing any Book reprinted abroad among other Tracts, &c. And so much of the Statute 8 Ann. for Encouragement of Learning, as empowers the Archbishop and Lord Chancellor, &c. to settle the Price of any Books, is repealed. 12 Geo. 2. c. 36. There are certain Stamp-Duties payable for Pamphlets and Books under such and such Sizes, for every Sheet in one printed Copy, &c. And Printers or Publishers are to put their Names thereto, under the Penalty of 20*l.* &c. Stat. 10 Ann. c. 19. By the Stat. 20 Geo. 2. c. 47. So much of the Stat. 12 Geo. 2. c. 36. as relates to the prohibiting the Importation of Books reprinted abroad, and first composed or written and printed in Great Britain, is continued until 29 Sept. 1754. Vide Libel.

Prior, He who was first in Dignity next to the Abbot, or the Chief of a Convent, &c. And there was a Lord Prior of St. John's of Jerusalem. 26 H. 8. cap. 2.

Priors Aliens, (Priores Alieni) Were certain religious Men, born in France and Normandy, Governors of religious Houses erected for Outlandish Men here in England; but they were suppressed by King Henry 5. and afterwards their Livings were given to other Monasteries and Houses of Learning, and especially towards the erecting of those two famous Colleges, called the King's Colleges, at Cambridge and Eaton. 2 Inst. 584.

Priors perpetual, And Datary and Removable, are mentioned in the Statutes 9 R. cap. 4. and 1 Ed. 4. cap. 1.

Priusque, (Prioritas) Is an Antiquity of Tenure, in Comparison of another less ancient. Old Nat. Br. 94. And we read that the Lord of the Priory shall have the Custody of the Body, &c. Crompt. Jurisd. 120. See Posteriority.

Priusque of Debts and Suits. A Prior Suit depending may be pleaded in Abatement of a subsequent Action or Prosecution. A Prior Mortgage ought to be first paid off; and Debts first due should be first satisfied; for as the first Creditor advances his Money before his Debtor is incumbered, it is but reasonable he should be paid his Debt before the Discharge of the subsequent Incumbrances: But Debts first due must likewise be first prosecuted; otherwise in some Cases Priority will not be allowed. Comp. Attorn. 120. There is no Priority of Time in Judgments; for the Judgment first executed shall be first paid.

Prisage, (Prisagium) Is that Part and Share which belongs to the King, or Admiral, out of such Merchandizes as are taken at Sea by Way of lawful Prize, which is usually a tenth Part. — Prisagium est jus Prisas capiendi, &c. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 5. And Prisage of Wines is an ancient Duty or Custom on Wines, payable at certain Ports, except London, Southampton, &c. It is where the King claims out of every Ship or Vessel laden with Wines, containing twenty Tons or more, two Tons of Wine, the one before, the other behind the Mast, at his Prior, which is twenty Shillings for each Ton; but this varies according to the Custom of Places; and at Boston every Bark laden with ten Tons of Wine, or above, pays Prisage: This Word is almost out of Use, being now called Butlerage, because the King's chief Butler receives it. 1 Hen. 8. cap. 5. 4 Inst. 30. Caldrop's Rep. 20.

Prise, (Captio, Prada, from the Fr. Prendre) Signifies a Prey or Booty taken from an Enemy in Time of War, &c. If Ships are laden with contraband Goods, both Ship and Goods may be taken as Prize; and Powder, Shot, Guns, Swords, and all other Instruments and Provisions of Armature for Sea or Land, bound for an Enemy from a neutral Nation, &c. shall be taken as Prize; so also Money, Corn, Victuals, &c. in Time of Necessity. Lex Mercat. 178. Whether a Ship be Prize or not, shall be tried in the Admiralty, and no Prohibition shall be granted: And if a Suit be commenced between the Captor of a Prize and a Claimant, and a Decree is obtained either for or against the Claimer; on giving Security, such Sentence or Decree shall be put in Execution, notwithstanding any Appeal, &c. 1 Sid. 320. 2 Keb. 158. During the late War with France, all Vessels with their Ladings, taken as Prize, were to be brought into some Port, and put into the Possession of the Commissioners of Prizes, and after adjudged Prize, to be sold by the said Commissioners, and the Product distributed amongst the Captors, &c. But where Vessels were taken in Ports or Havens, they were adjudged a Perquisite of the Admiralty, and the Captors to have what should be thought fit; and if any English Vessels seized by the French as Prize, should be retaken, they were to be returned, paying an eighth Part of the Value for Salvage. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 25. Prize Goods imported shall be subject to the same Duties and Customs as other Goods and Merchandizes. 9 Ann. c. 27. See Privateers.

Priso, Is used for a Prisoner taken in War. Howden, pag. 541.

Prison, (Prisona) Is a Place of Confinement for the safe Custody of Persons, in order to their answering any Action, Civil or Criminal: And it has been observed, that this Salva Custodia must be only Custodia; for Carcer ad Homines custodiendos, non ad Puniendo dari debet. Co. Litt. lib. 3. cap. 7. Any Place

Place where a Man is restrained of his Liberty, is a Prison. And when any one is arrested on Process, he is to be committed to Prison, or be bound in Recognizance with Sureties, or give Bail, according to the Nature of the Case, to appear at a Day in Court, and answer what is alleged against him. Dalt. 421. If one is brought before a Justice of Peace for Suspicion of Felony, where a Felony has been committed, the Justice may send him to Prison, or bail him; and if no Felony be done, he hath Power to discharge him. H. P. C. 98. But when a Person is committed to Prison for Treason, or Felony, he cannot regularly be discharged from Prison, till indicted, and acquitted, &c. Though one taken and committed to Prison in a Civil Cause, may be released and set at Liberty by the Plaintiff in the Suit. 3 Inst. 209. H. P. C. 94. But see Habeas Corpus, &c. Vide Gaol.

Prison-breaking, By my Lord Hale, is not only where a Felon is formally committed to Gaol by Militiam; but if he be put in the Stocks, or kept in the Constable's House, &c. and he break Prison, it is Felony. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 610. And if A. arrest B. for Suspicion, and carry him to the common Gaol, and there deliver him; if he breaks Prison, and be indicted upon it, there must be an Averment in the Indictment, that there was a Felony done, and that A. having probable Cause did suspect B. and arrested and committed him, and that he broke the Prison, all which must be proved upon the Evidence: But where a Felon is taken by Capias, and committed, and break Prison, there needs no such Averment, &c. because all appears by Matter of Record. 2 Co. Inst. 590. Hale's Hist. P. C. 610. The Felony of Breach of Prison is within Clergy, though the Offence for which the Party was committed be excluded Clergy. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 612. See Escape.

Prisoner, (Prisonarius, Fr. Prisonnier) Signifies one that is confined in Prison, on an Action, or upon Commandment: And a Man may be a Prisoner upon Matter of Record, or of Faith; a Prisoner on Matter of Record, is he who being present in Court, is by the Court committed to Prison; and the other is upon an Arrest, be it by the Sheriff, Constable, &c. Staudf. P. C. 34, 35. A Prisoner for the King may not be charged in an Action at the Suit of the Subject, without Leave of the Court. 1 Lev. 125, 146. The Court of King's Bench hath Power to send for a Prisoner out of the Marshalsea Court, by Rule of Court, and need not issue an Habeas Corpus, as that Prison belongs to this Court; but they cannot send for a Prisoner out of any other Prison, without Writ of Habeas Corpus. Mich. 1650. Every Judge of B. R. may remit Prisoners, with their Indictments, to the Places where the Offences wherewith they are charged were committed; and a Prisoner for Debt may be removed from the Fleet to the King's Bench, and thence to the Marshalsea, on something charged against him in the Habeas Corpus or Return, or on bringing him into Court. Dyer 275. 2 Lill. Abr. 357. Prisoners in the King's Bench and Fleet Prisons, on maine Process, &c. are to be actually confined within the said Prisons, or the Rules of the same, till they are discharged; and the Profits of the Marshal's and Warden's Places are liable to Sequestration for Payment of Debt on Judgment, upon an Escape, besides the common Remedy: And Judgment may be signed against a Prisoner in the Fleet, in a Personal Action, entering a Declaration, and leaving a Copy thereof with the Prisoner, &c. after a Rule to plead, to be out at eight Days, &c. Prisoners in the King's Bench are not to pay above 2s. 6d. per Week Chamber-Rent, on Pain of Keepers taking more, to forfeit 20l. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 7. And Prisoners in the aforesaid Prisons, going at large, may be taken up on an Escape Warrant. 1 Ann. cap. 6. But Prisoners may go out of the Rules, on a Day Rule of Court, about their Business, so as they do not go into the Country, or to Plays, Diversions, &c. Tris. & Ann. B. R. 2 Lill. 366. A Person in Execution in the King's Bench Prison, was put in Irons by the Marshal; and the Court ordered the Marshal to keep his Prisoner according to Law: Though they said he might justify putting him in Irons, if he feared an Escape, or if the Prisoner was unruly. Mich. 1 Ann. Farrest. Rep. 52. In the second Year of King Geo. 2. Sir William Rich being laid in Irons in the Fleet Prison, had his Irons taken off by Order of the House of Commons; who thereupon began an Inquiry into the Conduct of Gaolers to Prisoners, &c.

Prisoners discharged. The 22 & 23 Car. 2. 2 W. & M. and 7 & 8 W. 3. 1 Ann., and 6 and 11 Geo. 1. were made for releasing, by Justices of Peace in their Sessions, &c. of poor Prisoners for Debt, actually in Custody, making Oath that they had no Effects of the Value of 10l. &c. and who owed not above 100l. to any one Person; and by the 7 & 8 W. 3. the Prisoners discharged under forty Years of Age, were to lift themselves in the King's Service during the War against France. A Defendant was taken by Process of the Court of B. R. and pray'd the Benefit of being discharged upon Common Bail, according to the Statute for discharging poor Prisoners; shewing the Certificate of the Gaoler, and the Adjudication of the Justices of Peace, &c. And it was held, that the Justices had no Authority, unless the Defendant was in Custody on such a Day; for a bare being within the Rules will not be sufficient; and this Court will examine the Truth of it, notwithstanding the Certificate, and Adjudication. Mich. 5 Ann. 3 Salk. 330. One being indebted on a Bond of 100l. conditioned to pay 90l. and Interest on such a Day, was arrested, and discharged by the Justices, upon the Statute of poor Prisoners: But per Curiam, there being 20l. due for Interest, at the Time that Statute was made, by Consequence the Defendant owed at that Time more than 100l. and therefore the Justices could not lawfully discharge him; so their Order was made void. Ibid. And if a Prisoner for debt is discharged by Justices of Peace, as a poor Prisoner on the Statutes for Relief of such, where the Debt is above 100l. &c. and they have no Power to discharge him; this hath been adjudg'd an Escape. 1 Salk. 273. Where a Mandamus has been granted to Justices of the Peace having Power, to give Judgment upon the Statute for releasing poor Prisoners, see Comb. 203. A late Statute was made for discharging all Poor Prisoners (in Prison at such a Time) for Debts under 500l. And Creditors for that Sum opposing the Discharge of any Person, are to allow the Prisoner a Weekly Maintenance of 3s. 6d. per Week, and on Non-payment for six Weeks, he shall be discharged on Application to the Justices, &c. But Prisoners must give Notice to their Creditors, and deliver in Schedules of all their Estates on Oath, which are to be divided amongst the Creditors; and if any Prisoner forswear himself, he shall be guilty of Felony, &c. And Debts from the Prisoner and Judgments had, to stand good against his Lands and Goods, which he may have hereafter, and Creditors may take out a new Execution, though not charge his Person, &c. Stat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 20. And by another late Act, Prisoners seized of an Estate-Tail in Freehold Lands, &c. (which Intail they can defeat) claiming Benefit by this Statute, shall be deemed seized in Fee-simple, as if a Fine had been levied thereof, &c. and so delivered up to the Creditors: And every Assignee of Copyhold Estates of Prisoners, may compound with the Lord of the Manor of whom held, for the usual Fine on Surrender; and then the Lord, at the next Court, shall grant to the Assignee the Copyhold Estate, during the Term or Interest assign'd, and admit him Tenant, &c. Stat. 10 Geo. 2. c. 26. Also in a further Statute there is a Clause, that every Prisoner for Debt committed since the 1st of January 1730. and continued in Prison, may be compelled to deliver up his Effects, in the Form prescribed, on Request of any Creditor, at whose Suit he has been in Custody. 11 Geo. 2. cap. 9. By the last Statute, for discharging Prisoners, they are to deliver up all their Goods and Effects, and which shall be assigned to such of their Creditors as the major Part shall appoint, &c. whereupon the Prisoners may be discharged, if they do not owe more than 500*l.* to one Person, &c. On Assignment of a Prisoner's Estate, all Powers of Leasing Lands are vested in the Assignees, to be executed for the Benefit of the Creditors: But where any Rent, not exceeding two Years, is due from any Prisoner, his Goods liable to be distrained, shall not be assigned for Creditors, till the Landlord is first paid such Rent, &c. Stat. 16 Geo. 2. cap. 17. By the Stat. 21 Geo. 2. c. 33. every Person petitioning for the Benefit of the Stat. 2 Geo. 2. shall in his Petition not only set forth an Account of all the Real and Personal Estate he was intitled to, at the Time of the Petition, but that he was intitled to at the Time of his first Imprisonment, and take the Oath by this Statute directed. See Execution.

Privateers, Are a Kind of private Men of War, the Persons concerned wherein administer at their own Costs a Part of a War, by fitting out these Ships of Force, and providing them with all military Stores; and they have, instead of Pay, Leave granted them to keep what they can take from the Enemy, allowing the Admiral his Share, &c. Privateers may not attempt any Thing against the Laws of Nations; as to assault an Enemy in a Port or Haven, under the Protection of any Prince or Republick, whether he be Friend, Ally, or Neuter; for the Peace of such Places must be inviolably kept; and therefore by a Treaty made by King William and the States of Holland, before a Commission shall be granted to any Privateer, the Commander is to give Security if the Ship be not above 150 Tons, in 1500*l.* and if the Ship exceeds that Burden, in 3000*l.* that they will make Satisfaction for all Damages which they shall commit in their Courses at Sea, contrary to the Treaties with that State; upon Pain of forfeiting their Commissions, and the Ship is made liable. Lex Mercat. or Mercb. Compan. 177, 178. Besides these private Commissions, there are special Commissions for Privateers, granted to Commanders of Ships, &c. that take Pay, who are under a Marine Discipline; and if they do not obey their Orders, they may be punished with Death: And the Wars in later Ages, have given Occasion to Princes to issue these Commissions, to annoy the Enemies in their Commerce, and hinder such Supplies as might strengthen them, or lengthen out the War; and likewise to prevent the Separation of Ships of greater Force from their Fleets or Squadrons. Ibid. By Statute, Ships taken in the late War by Privateers, were to be divided into five Parts; four Parts whereof to go to the Persons interested in the Privateer, and the Fifth to his Majesty: And as a farther Encouragement, Privateers, &c. destroying any French Man of War, or Privateer, should receive for every Piece of Ordnance in the Ship so taken 10*l.* Reward, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. By a particular Statute lately made, the Lord Admiral, or Commissioners of the Admiralty, may grant Commissions to Commanders of Privateers, for the taking Ships and Merchandise, &c. which being adjudg'd Prize, and the Tenth Part paid to the Admiral, &c. shall wholly belong to the Owners of the Privateers and the Captors, in Proportions agreed upon between themselves; and the Officers and Seamen of Ships of War, are to have the sole Property of all Ships they take, to be divided as his Majesty shall order by Proclamation: Also if any Ships belonging to the English be taken by the Enemy, and afterwards retaken by any of our Men of War or Privateers, they are to be restored to the Owners, on paying an eighth Part of the Value, in lieu of Salvage, after having been in the Enemy's Possession 24 Hours; and if above that Time, paying further to a Moiety, &c. And by this Act, Ships of War or Privateers, taking any Ship of War or Privateer of the Enemy, the Officers and Seamen shall be paid by the Treasures of the Navy 5*l.* for every Man that was on Board such Ship at the Beginning of the Engagement. Stat. 13 Geo. 2. c. 4.

Privation, (Privatio) A Taking away or Withdrawing; most commonly applied to a Bishop or Rector of a Church, when by Death or other Act they are deprived of their Preferments: It seems to be an Abbreviation of the Word Deprivation. Co. Litt. 329.

Privatus, Signifies a Friend or Familiar; by Blount.

Privement essent, Is where a Woman is with Child by her Husband; but not quick with Child. Wood's Inst. 662.

Privies, (From the Fr. Prive, i. e. Familiaris) Are those that are Partakers, or have an Interest in any Action or Thing, or any Relation to another: As every Heir in Tail is privy to recover the Land entailed, &c. Old Nat. Br. 117. And there are five several Kinds of Privies, viz. Privies in Blood, such as the Heir to the Ancestor; Privies in Representation, as Executors or Administrators to the Deceased; Privies in Estate, between Donor and Donee, Lessor and Lessee, &c. Privies in respect of Contract; and Privies on Account of Estate and Contract together. 3 Rep. 23, 123. 4 Rep. 123. Latch 260. If a Fine be levied, the Heirs of him that levied it, are termed Privies. If a Lessor grants his Reversion, the Grantee and Lessee are Privies in Estate: And Privies in Contract extend only to the Persons of the Lessor and Lessee; and where the Lessee assigns all his Interest, here the Lessor and Lessee remain privy in Contract, but not in Estate, which is removed by the Assignment. 3 Rep. 23. Privies in Respect of Estate and Contract appears, where the Lessee assigns his Interest, but the Contract between the Lessor and Lessee as to Action of Debt continues, the Lessor not having accepted of the Assignee. 3 Lev. 295. But where there are Privies in Contract, and this Privy is alter'd by Assignment of an Executor, &c. before any Rent due, and after the Privy of Estate by the Assignment of the Executor's Assignee, nothing remains whereby to maintain any Action. Latch 260. There are likewise Privies in Deed, or in Law; where the Deed makes the Relation; or the Law implies it, in Case of Escheats to the Lord, &c. And only Parties and Privies shall take Advantage of Conditions of Entry on Lands, &c. 1 Inst. 516.

Privilege, (Privilegium) Is defined to be a private or particular Law, whereby a private Person or Corporation is exempted from the Rigour of the Common Law; or it is some Benefit or Advantage granted or allowed to any Persons contrary to the Course of Law, and is sometimes used for a Place that hath a special Immunity: A Privilege is therefore Personal, or Real; Personal, as of Members of Parliament, and of Convocation, and their menial Servants, not to be arrested in the Time of Parliament or Convocation, nor for certain Days before or after; Peters, Ambassadors and their Servants, &c. Real, that which is granted to a Place, as to the King's Palaces, the Courts at Westminster, the Universities, &c. that their Members or Officers must be sued within their Precincts or Courts, and not not in other Courts. Cowel. 2 Roll. Abr. 272. Finch 321. Also the Counties Palatine, Cinque Ports, and many Cities and Towns, &c. have Privileges as to Pleas, that none shall be compelled to appear or answer out of their Jurisdiction. 4 Inst. 212. Crompt. Jurisd. 137. The King's Servants are privileged from Arrests; for that the King shall not be deprived of them, without Leave. Raym. 152. And the Queen's Servants are the King's, and his Chamberlain may privilege them. 2 Keb. 455. A Member of Parliament is privileged, as well in his Lands and Goods, as in his Person; because being disturb'd in any of them, he is hinder'd in serving of the Commonwealth, which is to be preferr'd before all private Interests. 2 Lill. Abr. 370. The Lord Mayor of London is privileged from all Actions, that he may not be hindered in the Government of the City: And so is an Alderman from serving Offices, &c. Ibid. Cro. Car. 585. Privileges are of Parliament; of Courts, and their Officers and Suitors; and of Attornies, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 368. According to Holt Chief Justice, Privilege is either of Court or of Process; as in the Court of Common Pleas, every Person who belongs to that Court, such as Attornies, and their Clerks, &c. shall have the Privilege of being sued there, and not elsewhere; and this is the Privilege of the Court: But none shall be allowed the Privilege of Process but those who are the Officers of the Court, and are supposed to be always attending therein. 3 Salk. 283. And there are two Kinds of Privileges in the Court of C. B. the one is of the Officers of the Court, to be sued there by Bill; and the other of the Clerks to be sued there by Original. Ibid. In the Court of Exchequer there are three Sorts of Persons who are privileged, i. e. Debtors to the King, Accountants, and Officers; against the first of these Persons, any Man who has a Privilege in another Court, as an Officer or Attorney thereof, shall have his Privilege; for the Privilege of a Person as Debtor, is but a general Privilege: But if an Accountant begin his Suit here, he hath in such Case a special Privilege, and no other Privilege shall be allowed against him, because of his Attendance to pass his Account, in which the King hath a particular Concern; and it is the same in an Officer of the Court, who commences a Suit here, no Privilege shall prevail against him: Though where the Account is closed and reduced to a Debt, there the Accountant hath only the general Privilege as Debtor; and the like of a Servant to an Officer or Minister of the Court, he has no Privilege against a privileged Person elsewhere. Hardr. 267, 507. By Hale Chief Baron, a general Privilege of a Person as a Member of the University, or a Clerk in Chancery, doth not take away the particular Privilege of the Court of Exchequer, where the Person is Debtor and Accountant to the King. Ibid. 189. But one who was Receiver General of the Revenues of the Crown in W. being sued in the Common Pleas, brought a Writ of Privilege out of the Exchequer, and it was disallowed by the Court. Dyer 328. 2 Nels. Abr. 1296. And the King's Debtors shall not be privileged by Parliament. Stat. 12 W. 3. In the Exchequer it hath been held, that there are two Ways of pleading Privilege: one is, if the Party is an Officer on Record, to go to Trial, and at the Trial to produce the Record; and if he is no Officer, but Attendant on the Court, that must be tried by a Jury: The other Way is, if he be an Officer on Record, then to produce a Writ of Privilege, at the Time of the Plea pleaded, upon which there can be no Issue joined; and being otherwise pleaded, &c. Judgment may be given to answer over. Mod. Caf. 305. Writ of Privilege lies for an Officer of the Courts at Westminster, that is sued in any other Court than where he attends, to remove the Cause to his own Court. 2 Inst. 551. Stat. 18 Ed. 3. A Defendant pleaded his Privilege, that he was an Attorney of C. B. and upon Demurrer to his Plea, it was objected, that it ought to be concluded with a Profert hic in Curia the Writ of Privilege testifying him to be an Attorney, which is true, and that he ought to have said prout patet per Recordum; but that must be in such Case where he sets forth the Writ, and he may plead Privilege upon the Writ, or Exemplification of the Record of his Admission, or without it. 2 Salk. 545. If Privilege of an Attorney be pleaded with a Writ, the Defendant cannot be denied to be an Attorney; if without, he may, and then a Certiorari shall be awarded to certify whether he be an Attorney or not. Ibid. By Order of the Court of C. B. the Clerk of the Warrants is to certify that an Attorney's Name is upon the Roll of Attornies, before he shall have a Writ of Privilege; and Writs of Privilege are to be signed by the Clerk of the Warrants, to shew the Person is an Attorney of the Court, or they shall not be allowed. Trin. 29 Car. 2. Trin. 9 W. 3. And to save Arrest upon Process, an Attorney must deliver his Writ of Privilege to the Sheriff, and allow it with him; otherwise the Sheriff will not discharge him upon the Writ of Privilege, unless it be on Process issuing out of an inferior Court, but he must plead his Privilege sub pede sigilli. Pract. Solic. 322. Privilege is not to be pleaded in the Negative; as that an Attorney or Clerk, ought not to be sued elsewhere but in such a Court, without saying it is usual for them to be sued there, &c. and it should not be pleaded too general. 2 Sid. 164. But see 2 Salk. 543. In Trespass against an Attorney of C. B. he pleaded his Privilege per Attornatum, to which Plea the Plaintiff demurred; because he ought to have pleaded it in Person, and pleading by Attorney destroys the very Reason of his Privilege, which is his Attending the Court in Person; but the Plea was adjudged good, for he may be sick, or have Business in another Court to attend. Style 413. But an Information being brought against a Custos Brevium of B. R. for several Abuses in his Office, he insisted not to appear in Person, but by Attorney; and it was ruled that he should appear in Person, because he is an Officer of the Court, and is presumed to be always present; and if he doth not appear, Judgment shall be given against him without any other Process. Sid. 134. Privilege has been allowed for a Clerk in the Office of Custos Brevium, and a Writ of Privilege signed by the Justices of C. B. to exempt him from being arrested or pressed, &c. It being the Custom and Privilege of that Court, that the Attornies and Clerks shall not be pressed, nor chose in any Office, sine voluntate, but ought to attend the Service of the Court. Cro. Car. 8. Though it is said an Attorney shall not be excused by Privilege from Offices which may be executed by Deputy; only those which require personal Duty, as that of Church-warden, Constable, &c. March 30. 2 Lill. Abr. 374. A Filizer's Clerk claimed to be privileged in B. R. but was denied it; for though the Master may be privileged, the Court takes no Notice of the Servant, he having no necessary Dependence on the Court. Mich. 23 Car. And Privilege extends only to such Attornies, &c. who have an immediate Dependence on the Court; and not to their Servants: It hath been held, that although an Attorney doth not practise, he shall have Privilege so long as he continues an Attorney upon Record. Lutw. 1667. Attornies or Filizers of the Common Pleas, if sued in B. R. may plead their Privilege, because they owe a personal Attendance to that Court: But a Serjeant at Law being sued in the Court of B. R. cannot plead Privilege of C. B. for he may sign Pleas, be of Counsel, and Practice in other Courts in Westminster-Hall, and is not confined to Practice in the C. B. though if he is sued in any inferior Court, he shall have his Privilege. 2 Lev. 129. 1 Mod. 298. And yet formerly a Serjeant at Law claiming his Privilege to be sued in the Court of C. B. had his Privilege allowed; so a Serjeant's Clerk. Trin. 6 Ed. 6. and 28 Hen. 8. Dyer 24. Cro. Car. 59. A Barrister at Law, attending on the Court, ought to have Privilege to be sued in all transitory Actions in Middlesex: And an Attorney of C. B. &c. may chuse whether he will sue or be sued out of the County of Middlesex; because his Attendance is always supposed to be there. 2 Lill. 370. Where an Attorney is sued as Executor or Administrator, he shall not be allowed his Privilege; nor in a joint Action, with another not privileged; though if the Action may be severed, the Want of Privilege of one shall not take away the Privilege of the other. 1 Salk. 2, 245. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1295. Privilege shall not be allowed to a Man, where his Wife is joined in the Action with him: The Wife of an Attorney of B. R. if she be arrested, shall not have Privilege; but her Husband is to put in Bail for her, or for Want thereof she is to be committed to Prison; for the Husband is privileged only in Regard of his personal Attendance upon the Court, and his Privilege is annexed to his Person, and concerns not his Wife. Noy 68. 2 Lill. Abr. 371. An Attorney of the Common Pleas was indebted to A. B. who was indebted to C. D. who according to the Custom of London attached the Money in the Attorney's Hands; and he brought a Writ of Privilege, which was allowed by the Court, because the Attorney was not indebted to C. D. but only by Custom; and the Privileges of those attending the Courts at Westminster, shall not be impeach'd by any Custom whatsoever. 2 Leon. 156. But where Money was attached in London, in the Hands of an Attorney of B. R. it was held, he shall not have his Writ of Privilege, because the Plaintiff cannot follow his Attachment against him in the King's Bench, but only in the Court of London; and if this Court should stay Proceedings there, then there would be a Failure of Justice. 2 Lill. Abr. 371, 372. One that hath a Suit depending in B. R. &c. is privileged from being arrested in coming to the Court from his House or Lodging, to follow his Cause, and also in going back again directly to his House or Lodging; and if he be arrested in so doing, the Court upon Motion made to inform them of it, will set the Party at Liberty, and punish the Person that arrested him, if he knew the other had a Suit depending here, and came hither to attend it. 2 Lill. 371. One that was coming to the Court of King's Bench to attend upon his Cause, was arrested as he was coming, and forced to put in Bail; and on Motion, making it appear to the Court, he and his Bail were both discharged; and the Party that arrested him had been also punished, had he not alleged that he knew not that the Party arrested came about his Business depending in the Court. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. An Action of Assault, &c. was brought in the Common Pleas, and the Parties were at Issue, and after the Trial, when the Jury went out to consider of their Verdict, the Defendant in this Action arrested the Plaintiff by Process out of B. R. for an Assault made before that Time on him; and this appearing to the Court, they order'd him to release the Party from the Arrest, and they set a Fine upon him for the Contempt, which he immediately paid in Court: And the Court declared, that the Suitors ought safely to come and go, by the Privilege of the Court, without Vexation elsewhere. Goldf. 33. One arrested in Westminster-Hall sedente Curia, may be discharged upon Motion, if the Arrest was on Mefne Process; but not if he was taken in Execution, though even in that Case, the Officer is punishable per Curiam. Bull. 85. Where a Man is arrested in an inferior Court, coming to Westminster upon a Suit brought for or against him, he shall have the Privilege to be discharged from the Suit below: But this ought to appear by the Examination of the Party. Jenk. Cent. 172. And if the Defendant be in Execution in any such inferior Court, and he had Cause of Privilege at that Time; if the Writ of Privilege be delivered before it, he shall be discharged: 'Tis otherwise if not delivered till after the Execution. Ibid. Privilege of the Court was prayed to protect a Witness from being arrested in coming to and going from the Court, which was granted. Hill. 1655. 2 Lill. 370. In Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, no Privilege shall be allowed; nor on an Indictment, &c. It has been adjudged, that where Proceedings are merely at the Suit of the King, as upon Indictments or Informations brought by the Attorney General, in such Cases Privilege shall not be allowed; but where the Proceedings are at the Suit of the King and the Party, as in Case of a common Informer, &c. there the Defendant may have his Privilege. 1 Lutw. 193. If a privileged Person in one Court, do sue a privileged Person in another, in a Civil Action, the Person sued shall not have his Privilege. 2 Leon. 41. 2 Lill. Abr. 368. A privileged Person shall not be generally allowed his Privilege upon Motion; but he must plead it, and on Pleading it shall be allowed. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. But there is no Need to plead the Privilege of the Exchequer; for it shall be granted upon producing the Red Book of the Exchequer by a Baron of the Court. 1 Lutw. 46. And of later Times, the Party hath been admitted to Privilege upon Prayer to the Court. 2 Lill. 370. By some Opinions, Privilege may be allowed, after Bail put in; and not after Impar lance: By others, that Privilege of Attornies may not be pleaded after Bail given in, which allows the Jurisdiction. &c. 3 Lev. 343. 1 Salk. 1, 2. To sue an Attorney privileged, or any Clerk or Officer of the Court of B. R. they are not to be arrested, but be proceeded against as follows: A Declaration is to be filed against the Party privileged, and a Copy of it delivered to him, and then Rules given in order for his Plea; and the Declaration and Rules being delivered and served in Time, he will be obliged to plead the same Term; and if he do not appear and plead, after called in Court, &c. he may be forjudged the Court: If such Attorney, Clerk or Officer be Plaintiff, and his Declaration is delivered, and the Rules given in Time, the Defendant is to plead the same Term, and cannot imparl over to the next; which ought to be remember'd, for fear of Executions when not thought of. Pract. Solic. 259, 260. In B. R. where an Attorney is Plaintiff, he cannot by his Privilege have special Bail where other Persons cannot have it; except it be for Fees, as a Minister of the Court, in which Case he may. In the Court of C. B. if an Attorney is Defendant in any Suit, it is not required that he shall give in Bail; and by giving Bail, he waves his Privilege: Yet by the Usage of the Court, on Attachment at the Suit of an Attorney Plaintiff, though the Debt be but 40*s.* special Bail shall be given. Ibid. 260, 323. A Bill must be filed, though an Attorney agrees to appear and dispense with it; but it may in such Case be filed afterwards: And a Bill cannot be filed against a Person privileged in Vacation, for then he is not present in Court. Hill. and Pasch. 9 W. 3. B. R. If without filing a Declaration, an Action is brought against an Attorney, &c. he may bring Attachment of Privilege, and supersede the Action.

A Bill filed against a Member of Parliament, &c. having Privilege.

A. B. complains of C. D. Esq. &c. the said C. D. having Privilege of Parliament; for that, to wit, That whereas the said A. the Day, &c. in the Year of the Reign, &c. at Westminster in the County of M. aforesaid, accounted with the said C. of and concerning divers Sums of Money, before that Time due and owing by the said C. to the said A. and then being in Arrear and unpaid; and upon that Account, the said C. was then and there found in Arrears to the said A. in sixty-five Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain; and being so found in Arrear, the said C. afterwards, that is to say, the same Day of, &c. in the Year aforesaid, at Westminster aforesaid, in Consideration thereof did undertake, and to the said A. then and there faithfully promise, that he the said C. would well and truly pay and content to the said A. the said sixty five Pounds, when after he should be thereto required: And also whereas afterwards, that is to say, the Day of, &c. in the Year, &c. at W. aforesaid, he the said C. was indebted to the said A. in three hundred Pounds of like lawful Money of Great Britain, for so much Money of the said A. before that Time had and received by the said C. to the Use of the said A. And being so indebted, he the said C. afterwards, that is to say, the same Day and Year last aforesaid, at, &c. aforesaid, in Consideration thereof undertook, and to the said A. then and there faithfully promised, that he the said C. would well and truly pay the said three hundred Pounds to the said A. whenever after he should be thereunto required, &c. Nevertheless the said C. not regarding his said several Promises and Undertakings, made in Manner as above, but contriving and fraudulently intending, craftily and subtilly to deceive and defraud the said A. in this particular, hath not paid the said A. the said several Sums of Money, or any Part thereof, nor in any Manner made him Satisfaction for the same, although the said C. was thereto required by the said A. afterwards, to wit, on the Day of, &c. in the Year, &c. above-mentioned, and often after, at W. aforesaid; but he the said C. hath hitherto refused, and still doth refuse so to do, to the Damage of the said A. five hundred Pounds; and therefore he brings his Suit, &c. And thereupon the same A. prays the Process of the Lord the King to be thereof made according to the Form of the Statute in such Case made and provided; and it is granted to him, &c.

Form of the Writ of Summons thereon.

G EORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of M. Greeting: We command you, that you summon C. D. (having Privilege of Parliament) that he be before us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. next after, &c. to answer to A. B. of a Plea of Debt, or Trespass upon the Case, as reasonably shewn may be, that he ought to answer; and have you there this Writ. Witness, &c.

Form of a Writ of Attachment of Privilege.

G EORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of S. Greeting: We command you, that you attach A. B. and C. D. if they are to be found in your Bailiwick, and safely keep them, so that you have their Bodies before us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. next after, &c. to answer to E. F. Gentleman, one of the Clerks of Edward Ventris, Esq; our chief Clerk, assigned to inrol Pleas in our Court before us, according to the Liberties and Privileges of such chief Clerk and his Clerks, used and approved of in the same Court, from the Time whereof the Memory of Man is not to the contrary; in an Action of Trespass, &c. And have you there this Writ. Witness, &c.

Privileged Places. A Person was arrested in the Temple, and upon a Motion to set it aside, it was insisted for him, that the Temple is privileged from Arrests by the King's Grant; for which the Authority of Stow's Chronicle and Dugdale were alledged: But by Holt Chief Justice, if the King hath made any such Grant to that Society, 'tis void in Law, they having no Court of Justice within themselves: 'Tis true the Temple is extraparochial, and not within any Parish, nor in the City, so as to come within the Customs of the City, but 'tis within the County of the City; and White Friars is within the Jurisdiction of the City: Yet the Court inclined not to countenance Arrests in the Temple, especially in Term-Time; though they would not set aside this Arrest, so the Defendant was held to special Bail. 9 W. 3. B. R. 3 Salk. 285. By an Act made 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 26. for preventing the many ill Practices used in privileged Places to defraud Persons of their Debts; the pretended Privileges of White Fryars, the Savoy, Salisbury Court, Ram Alley, Mitre Court, Fuller's Rents, Baldwin's Gardens, Montague Close, the Minorities, Mint, Clink, or Deadman's Place, are taken away. And the Sheriffs of London or their Officers are enabled to take the Posses Comitatus, and such other Power as shall be requisite, and enter such privileged Places to make any Arrest on legal Process, and in Case of Refusal, to break open Doors; and if such Sheriff, Bailiff, &c. shall neglect with such Force to use their best Endeavours for executing any Process, they shall forfeit to the Plaintiff 100 l. to be recovered in any of the Courts at Westminster; and if any Person doth resist the Officers in executing any Process, or any who shall be aiding and assisting to them, he shall forfeit 50 l. suffer Imprisonment, and be set in the Pillory, as the Court of Assises, Gaol-Delivery, &c. shall think fit: Persons rescuing any one arrested in the aforesaid pretended privileged Places, are to forfeit to the Plaintiff in the Action 500 l. On Non-payment whereof, within one Month after recovered in the Courts at Westminster, and Judgment signed, they shall be transported to the Plantations for seven Years; and returning within that Term, be adjudged guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy; also Harbourers and Concealers of such Rescuers knowingly, are liable to Transportation, unless they pay the Plaintiff his Debt for which the Action was brought, with full Costs, &c. The Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 28. enacts, That if any Person within the Place commonly called Suffolk Place, or the Mint, in the Parish of St. George in the County of Surry, or the pretended Limits thereof, shall wilfully obstruct or oppose any Persons in the Serving or Executing any Writ, or legal Process, Rule or Order of Court, or Warrant of any Justice of Peace, &c. or assault or abuse any Person, serving or executing the same, whereby he shall receive Damage or bodily Hurt, the Person offending shall be deem'd Guilty of Felony, and be transported to the Plantations, by such Ways, and for such Time, and under such Pains, as Felons in other Cases: And upon Complaint to three Justices of Peace, &c. by any Person who shall have a Debt owing from any one who resides in the Mint, having a legal Process taken out for Recovery thereof, if the Debt be above 50 l. on Oath thereof, the Justices are empowered to issue their Warrant to the Sheriff of Surry, to raise the Posses, and to enter the said pretended privileged Place and arrest the Party, &c. And the Sheriff neglecting or refusing, incurs a Forfeiture of 200 l. Persons resisting the Sheriff, &c. or making a Res-

cous of a Prisoner; or harbouring or concealing any Prisoner so taken, or Person that rescued him; or who shall exercise any unlawful Jurisdiction, or make or execute any pretended Ordinance for supporting any pretended Privilege, &c. within the said Place, for hindering the due Execution of legal Process; every such Offender shall be guilty of Felony, and be transported: And Persons in Vizards or Disguises, opposing the Execution of any Process in the Mint, or abetting any Riot or Tumult there, shall be adjudged guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy, &c. Persons apprehending any Offender, and prosecuting him to Conviction; or an Offender out of Prison, discovering and convicting two of his Accomplices, are entitled to a Reward of 40 l. The Rewards and Charge of raising the Posse for enforcing this Act, are to be paid by the Sheriff, and allowed in his Accounts, or repaid by the Treasury, &c. And by this Statute the Minters residing in the Mint, not owing more than 50 l. to any one Creditor, delivering up their Effects upon Oath, for the Benefit of their Creditors, on Petition, and Notice to Creditors, &c. were to be discharged by the Justices in their Quarter-Sessions.

Privy Council, (Consilium Regis, Privatum Consilium) Is a most honourable Assembly of the King and Privy Counsellors in the King's Court or Palace, for Matters of State. 4 Inst. 53. The King sits himself in Council, and appoints Privy Counsellors without Patent or Grant, by putting them on the List, and on their Removal striking them out, which he may do as he pleases: They take an Oath to the King, justly to advise him, to keep Secrecy, &c. Their Number at the first Institution was Twelve; but at this Time is without Limitation, at the King's Will: Next to the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal sits in Council, the Secretaries of State, and many other Lords and Gentlemen: And in all Debates of the Council, the Lowest delivers his Opinion first, and the King declares his Judgment last; and thereby the Matter of Debate is determined. 4 Inst. 55. Sir Edward Coke has these notable Conclusions, with Respect to the Proceedings of the Privy Council, viz. That it is consistent with Safety, for a Privy Counsellor to give the King Council when demanded; and that the Truest and best Council is ever given to a Prince, when the Question is so evenly stated and propounded, as the Counsellor cannot discern which way the King himself inclines; that Resolution should never precede Deliberation, nor Execution go before Resolution; and when upon Debate and Deliberation, any Matter is well resolved by the Council, a Change of it upon some private Information is neither safe nor honourable. 4 Inst. The Court of Privy Council is of great Antiquity: The Way of Government in England, it is said, was originally by the King and his Privy Council; though at present the King and Privy Council, only intermeddle in Matters of Complaint on sudden Emergencies; their constant Business being to consult for the Publick Good, Honour and Welfare of the Realm, in Affairs of State. 4 Inst. 53. The Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, have oftentimes transmitted Matters of high Concern to the King and his Privy Council: And Acts of the Privy Council, whether Orders or Proclamations, were heretofore of very great Authority in England; and in the Reign of King Hen. 8. that King procured an Act of Parliament to be made, that with the Advice of his Privy Council, he might set forth Proclamations, which should have the Force of Acts of Parliament; but that Statute was repealed in the Reign of King Ed. 6. Though Acts of the Privy Council still continued of great Authority until the Reigns of King Charles the First and Second: And by these were Controversies sometimes determined touching Lands and Rights between Party and Party; as well as the Suspension of Penal Laws, &c. But this seemed to be contrary to the 25 Ed. 3. cap. 4. And by Stat. 16 Car. 1. cap. 10. it is declared, that neither the King, nor the Privy Council, have Authority by Petition, Bill, &c. to determine or dispose of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments or Goods and Chattels of any Subject. The King with the Advice of his Council, publishes Proclamations binding to the Subject; but they are to be consonant to, and in Execution of the Laws of the Land: It is in the Power of the Privy Council, to inquire into Crimes against the Government, and they may commit Persons for Treason, and other Offences against the State, in order for their Trial in some of the other Courts; and any one or two of the Privy Council may lawfully do it: But they take Cognizance of no private Matters that may be determined by the ordinary Laws in other Courts; yet the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Plantations are in many Respects subject to the Controul, and under the Direction of the Privy Council of Great Britain; and Law-Controversies among the Subjects of Jersey and Guernsey, &c. are determined by the Privy Council. 3 Inst. 182. 4 Inst. 53. Wood's Inst. 458. By Stat. 33 Hen. 8. cap. 23. Persons examined by the Privy Council, on Treasons, Murders, &c. done within or without the Realm, may be tried before Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer appointed by the King in any County of England: This Statute, as far as it relates to Treason committed within the Kingdom, is repealed by 1 & 2 P. & M. cap. 10. If a Person be killed beyond Sea, out of the Realm, the Fact may be examined by the Privy Council, and the Offender tried according to the aforesaid Statute. Conspiracy by the King's Servants, against the Life of a Privy Counsellor, &c. is Felony. 3 Hen. 7. cap. 14. And Persons attempting to kill, or unlawfully assault any Privy Counsellor, when in the Execution of his Office, are guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy, by the Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 16. And anciently if one did strike another Person in the House of a Privy Counsellor, or in his Presence, the Party offending was to be fined. 4 Inst. 53. No Person born out of the King's Dominions, except of English Parents, shall be of the Privy Council. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. There is to be but one Privy Council in Great Britain: And the Privy Council is not dissolved by the Death of the King; but to continue for six Months, &c. 6 Ann. cap. 6, 7.

Privy Seal, (Privatum Sigillum) Is a Seal that the King useth to such Grants or Things, as pass the Great Seal. 2 Inst. 554. First they pass the Privy Signet, then the Privy Seal, and lastly the Great Seal of England; and the Clerks of the Privy Signet-Office write out such Grants, Patents, &c. as pass the Sign Manual, which being transcribed and sealed with the Signet, is a Warrant to the Privy Seal, as the Privy Seal is a Warrant to the Great Seal. Wood's Inst. 457. How the King's Grants, Writings, and Leases, shall pass the three Seals, viz. the Privy Signet, the Privy Seal, and the Great Seal; and the Duties of the Clerks of the Privy Signet, and Privy Seal, and what Fees shall be paid to them, and many Articles concerning the Passing of the King's Grants, &c. are mentioned in the Statute 27 H. 8. cap. 11. No Protection can be granted under the Privy Seal, but under the Great Seal: But a Warrant of the King under the Privy Seal to issue Money out of his Coffers, is sufficient: though not under the Privy Signet. 2 Inst. 555. 2 Rep. 17. 2 Roll. Abr. 183. And the Privy Seal is sometimes used in Things of less Consequence, that never pass the Great Seal; as to discharge a Recognizance, Debt, &c. But no Writs shall pass under under the Privy Seal, which touch the Common Law. 2 Inst. 555. And Matters of the Privy Seal are not iffuable, or returnable in any Court, &c. 3 Nelf. Abr. 211. See Keeper of the Privy Seal.

Prison, Was the Name of the Seal of King Arthur, on which the Virgin Mary was engraved. Geoff. of Monm. lib. 7. cap. 2.

Pro, Is a Preposition, signifying for, or in respect of a Thing; as Pro Confilio, &c. And in Law, Pro in the Grant of an Annuity pro Confilio, shewing the Cause of the Grant amounts to a Condition: But in a Feoffment, or Lease for Life, &c. it is the Consideration, and doth not amount to a Condition; and the Reason of the Difference is, because the State of the Land by the Feoffment is executed, and the Grant of the Annuity is executory. Plowd. 412. Wood's Inst. 231.

Probart, In the Laws of Cannus, was used for to claim a Thing as a Man's own. Leg. Cannul. cap. 44.

Probate of Testaments, (Probatio Testametarum) Is the Exhibiting and Proving Last Wills and Testaments before the Ecclesiastical Judge, delegated by the Bishop, who is Ordinary of the Place where the Party dies: And if all the Deceased's Goods, Chattels and Debts owing to him, were in the same Diocese, then the Bishop of the Diocese, &c. hath the Probate of the Testament; but if the Goods and Chattels were dispersed in divers Dioceses, so that there were any Thing out of the Diocese where the Party lived, to make what is called Bona Notabilia, then the Archbishop of Canterbury or York, is the Ordinary to make Probate by his Prerogative. Blount. The Probate of a Will is usually made in the Spiritual Court, and this is done by granting Letters Testamentary to an Executor under the Seal of the Court, by which the Executor is enabled to bring any Action, &c. And if such Letters Testamentary are granted to the Party who exhibits the Will, merely upon his Oath, by swearing that he believeth it to be the Last Will of the Deceased; this is called Proving it in common Form, and such a Probate may be controverted at any Time: If the Executor, besides his own Oath, produces Witnesses to prove it to be the Last Will of the Deceased, and this in the Presence of the Parties who claim any Interest, or in their Absence, if summoned and they do not appear; this is termed a Probate per Testes, which cannot be questioned after thirty Years. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1301. Upon an Issue whether the Deceased made an Executor or no, the Probate of the Will was adjudged to be good Proof. 2 Lill. Abr. 375. And where a Probate of a Will is produced in Evidence at a Trial, the Defendant cannot say that the Will was forged, or that the Testator was Non compos Mentis, because it is directly against the Seal of the Ordinary in a Matter where he had a proper Jurisdiction; but the Defendant may give in Evidence that the Seal itself was forged, or that the Testator had Bona Notabilia, or he may be relieved on Appeal. 1 Lev. 235. Raym. 405. As the Judge of the Spiritual Court only can determine the Validity of Wills for Things Personal; therefore the Probate of such a Will, is undeniable Evidence to a Jury, and it may not be controverted at Common Law. 1 Ld. Raym. 262. A Probate, according to Holt Chief Justice, is Evidence of a Will only as to Chattels: But if a Will of Lands be lost, it shall be allowed for such a Will concerning Lands. Ibid. 731, 735. When Probate is to be granted of a Will, wherein a Legacy is interlined in a different Hand, and supposed to be forged, the Executor has no Remedy but in the Spiritual Court; where the Will ought to be proved, with a special Reservation as to that Clause. 1 Peer Will. 388. Notwithstanding Appeal from a Will, a Person is complete Executor by the Probate; though the Probate may be traversed, if an Executor Plaintiff do not conclude with a Profert bic in Curia, or the Defendant may demand Oyer of the Will. 3 Bull. 72. An Executor being made by the Act of the Party deceased himself, therefore the Law intitles him to the Probate of the Will; and the Probate cannot be revoked or altered, which would in Effect make a new Will; yet it may be suspended by an Appeal: But if Administration be granted to one, this is by the Act of the Court; and if he afterwards become Bankrupt, &c. the Administration may be repealed. 1 Roll. Rep. 226. Obow. 293. 1 Salk. 36. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1302. By the Statute 21 Hen. 8. cap. 5. it is ordained, that on Probate of Wills, &c. 6 d. and no more shall be taken by the Register, where the Goods of the Deceased do not exceed five Pounds Value; and when the Goods of the Deceased are above the Value of 5 l. and under 40 l. the Fee to the Judge shall be 2 s. 6 d. and to the Register 1 s. and if the Goods exceed 40 l. in Value, the Judge's Fee is 2 s. 6 d. and to the Register 2 s. 6 d. but this he may refuse, and take a Penny for every ten Lines of the Will, &c. And if the Officer takes more than his due Fees, he shall forfeit 10 l. to be divided between the King and the Party grieved. But it hath been held on this Statute, that a Transcript of the Will must be brought to the Register ready ingrossed, and with Wax to be sealed, so that the Register, &c. may have nothing to do but to annex the Probate to it; and then no Fee shall be taken for such Transcript. 4 Inst. 336. Co. Ent. 166. The Power of granting Probates and Administrations of the Goods of Persons dying, for Wages or Work done in the King's Docks and Yards, shall be in the Ordinary of the Diocese where the Person dieth, or in him to whom Power is given by such Ordinary, exclusive of the Prerogative Court, &c. Probatos, Is an Accuser, or Approver; or one who undertakes to prove a Crime charged upon another. Fleta. lib. 2. cap. 52.

Procedendo, Is a Writ which lieth where an Action is removed out of an Inferior Court, to a Superior Court, as the Chancery, King's Bench, or Common Pleas, by Habeas Corpus, Certiorari, or Writ of Privilege; to send down the Cause to the Court from whence removed, to proceed upon it, it not appearing to the higher Court that the Suggestion is sufficiently proved. F. N. B. 153. 5 Rep. 63. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 23. And if the Party who sues out a Habeas Corpus, or Certiorari, doth not put in good Bail in Time, (where good Bail is required) then there goes this Writ to the inferior Court to proceed non obstante the Habeas Corpus, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 376. If a Certiorari or Habeas Corpus, to remove a Cause, be returned before a Judge, the Judge will give a Rule thereupon to put in good Bail by such a Day, which if the Defendant, upon serving his Attorney with a Copy of the Rule, doth not do, then the Judge will sign a Warrant for a Procedendo, to remove the Cause back again where the Action was first laid: Also if Bail be put in at the Time, and do not prove good, the Judge will grant a Rule for better Bail to be put in by such a Day, or else to justify the Bail already put in; which if the Defendant doth not do, the Judge will then likewise grant a Warrant for a Procedendo. 2 Lill. 377. Where Bail put in on Removal of a Cause into B. R. is disallowed by the Court, if the Defendant upon a Rule for that Purpose, and Notice given, refuse to put in better Bail, such as the Court shall approve of, a Procedendo may be granted; for Disallowing of the Bail makes the Defendant to be in the same Condition as if he had put in no Bail, and until the

the Bail is put in and filed, the Court is not possessed of the Cause so as to proceed in it. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. After a Record returned, and the Defendant hath filed Bail in B. R. on a Cause's being removed, a Procedendo ought not to be granted; because by giving and filing Bail in this Court, the Bail below is discharged. Sid. 313. 2 Nels. Abr. 1304. And it hath been held, that by the Common Law if a Certiorari be once filed, the Proceedings below can never be revived by any Procedendo. Hill. 6 Geo. 2. Hawk. P. C. 294. When a Cause by the Custom of London is actionable, and will not bear an Action at the Common Law, if upon a Habeas Corpus or Certiorari, brought to remove such Cause into the Court of B. R. it doth so appear to the Court; the Court will grant a Procedendo to authorise the Court of London to proceed in the Matter; otherwise the Party that brought the Action would be without Remedy. 2 Lill. Abr. 376. This Writ of Procedendo is called a Procedendo in Loquela.

Procedendo on Aid Prayer. If a Man Pray in Aid of the King, in a real Action, and the Aid be granted; it shall be awarded that he sue to the King in the Chancery, and the Justices in the Common Pleas shall stay until the Writ of Procedendo in Loquela come unto them: And if it appear to the Judges by Pleading or shewing of the Party, that the King hath Interest in the Land, or shall lose Rent or Service, &c. there the Court ought to stay until they have from the King a Procedendo in Loquela: And then they may proceed in the Plea, until they come to give Judgment; when the Justices ought not to proceed to Judgment, without a Writ for that Purpose. New Nat. Br. 342. So in a personal Action, if the Defendant Pray in Aid of the King, the Judges are not to proceed until they receive a Procedendo in Loquela. And though they may then proceed and try the Issue joined, they shall not give Judgment until a Writ comes to them to proceed to Judgment. Ibid.

Procedendo ad Judicium, Lies where the Judges of any Court delay the Party, Plaintiff or Defendant, and will not give Judgment in the Cause, when they ought to do it. Wood's Inst. 570. If Verdict pass for the Plaintiff in Assise of Novel Disseisin before the Justices of Assise, and before they give Judgment, by a new Commission, new Justices are made; the Plaintiff in the Assise may sue forth a Certiorari directed to the other Justices to remove the Record before the new Justices; and another Writ to the new Justices to receive and inspect the Record, and then proceed to Judgment, &c. New Nat. Brev. 342, 343. Where the Authority of Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, &c. is suspended by Writ of Superseas; their Power may be restored by a Writ of Procedendo. Regist. 124. 12 Aff. 21. H. P. C. 162.

Processus, (Processus, à Procedendo ab initio usque ad finem) Is so called, because it proceeds or goes out, upon former Matter, either original or judicial; and hath two Significations: First, it is largely taken for all the Proceedings in any Action, real or personal, civil or criminal, from the Beginning to the End: Secondly, we call that the Processus by which a Man is called into any Temporal Court, because it is the Beginning or principal Part thereof, by which the rest is directed; or if taken strictly, it is the Proceeding, after the Original, before Judgment. Briton. 138. Lamb. lib. 4. Crompt. 133. 8 Rep. 157. Processus are General, or Special; and special Processus is that which is especially appointed for any Offence, &c. by Statute: And there is a very great Diversity of Processus. F. N. B. Processus to call Persons into Court, &c. must be in the Name of the King; and if it issue from the Court of King's Bench, it ought to be under the Teste of the Chief Justice, or of the senior Judge of the Court, if there be no Chief Justice; and if it issue from any other Court, it is to be under the Teste of the first in Commission, &c. Dalt. ch. 132. Finch 436. Cro. Car. 393. No Processus shall regularly issue in the King's Name and by his Writ, to apprehend a Felon or other Malefactor, unless there be an Indictment or Matter of Record in the Court, upon which the Writ issues. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 575. All legal Proceedings take Commencement by original Writ, Indictment, or Information; or in B. R. by Bill of Middlesex, or Latitat, which is the original Processus of this Court; and is in Nature of an Original to cause Appearance. 2 Lill. Abr. 377. There is no Need of Processus upon an Indictment, &c. where the Defendant is present in Court; only where he is absent. 2 Hawk. 281. The Processus on Indictments of Capias, &c. is appointed by the 25 Edw. 3. and 8 Hen. 6. In Actions of the Case; and Writs of Annuity and Covenant, by Stat. 19 Hen. 7. 23 Hen. 8. And no Writ, Processus, &c. shall be discontinued by the King's Death. 4 & 5 W. & M. 1 Ann. If Processus is awarded out of a Court which hath not Jurisdiction of the principal Cause, it is coram non Judice and void: And the Sheriff executing it will be a Trespasser. 2 Leon. 89. Proceedings in the Superior and Inferior Courts must be regularly and formally entered, according to the legal Course; or they may be reversed for Error in B. R. 2 Lill. 379. Anciently all Law Proceedings and Pleadings, &c. were in French: Though by Statutes since made, it was enacted, that they should be pleaded and answered in English, and entered and inrolled in Latin. 36 Ed. 3. c. 15. 22 Car. 2. c. 3. The old Entries of the Law Proceedings in French was required by Will. 1. called the Conqueror, it being a Language which he himself knew; and the Use of Latin, is said to be introduc'd by the Clergy, when the Bishops and other Spiritual Persons were Judges, and chief Officers of our Courts; and this they did, as knowing whatever Alteration there were in national Languages, the Latin would be generally understood. Yet some give another Reason for it, that it was done to keep the People in Ignorance, and to have in their own Power only the Interpretation of the Laws. Fortescue 100. By a late Statute, all Proceedings in the Courts of Justice in England, and in the Court of Exchequer in Scotland, viz. all Writs, and Processus thereon, Pleadings, Indictments, Informations, Presentments, Inquisitions, Verdicts, Records, Judgments, Commissions, Pardons, Statutes, Bonds, Rolls, Entries, Fines and Recoveries, Proceedings of Courts-Leet and Courts-Baron, &c. shall be in the English Tongue, and not in Latin or French; and be written in a common Ingrossing Hand, not Court Hand, in Words at length, &c. on Pain of forfeiting the Sum of 50 l. And Mistakes, Errors in Form, and Mistakes of Clerkship, may be amended before or after Judgment: Also the Statutes of Jeofails shall extend to all Forms, and Proceedings in English, except in criminal Cases. But this Statute extendeth not to the Court of Admiralty, as to certifying any Proceedings beyond the Seas, &c. which may be in Latin as formerly. Stat. 4 Geo. 2. cap. 26. And in the Court of Receipt of the Exchequer in England, Officers and Clerks may carry on their Business in their usual Course; also Writs, Processus, Pleadings, &c. may be written expressing Numbers by Figures, and with usual Abbreviations in English; and Names of Writs, &c. to be expressed in the same Language as hath been commonly used, by 6 Geo. 2. c. 6. 14.

Procession. In Cathedral and Conventual Churches, the Members had their stated Processions, wherein they walked in their most ornamental Habits, with

Musick

Musick before them, singing of Hymns, and other suitable Solemnity: And in every Parish, there was a customary annual Procession of the Parish Priest, the Patron of the Church, with the chief Flag, or holy Banner, and the other Parishioners, to take a Circuit round the Limits of the Parish or Manor, and pray for a Blessing on the Fruits of the Earth; to which we owe our present Custom of Parambulation, which in most Places is still called Processioning and going in Procession, though we have lost the Order and Devotion, as well as Pomp and Superstition of it.

Processum continuando, Is a Writ for the Continuance of Process, after the Death of the Chief Justice, or other Justices in the Commission of Oyer and Terminer. Reg. Orig. 128.

Prochein Amy, (Proximus Amicus) Is used in Law for him that is the next Friend, or next of Kin to a Child in his Nonage, and in that Respect is allowed to deal for the Infant in the Management of his Affairs; as to be his Guardian if he holds Lands in Socage, and in the Redress of any Wrong done to him. Stat. Westm. 1. cap. 48. Westm. 2. cap. 15. 2 Inst. 261. And Prochein Amy is commonly taken for Guardian in Socage; but otherwise it is he that appears in Court for an Infant who sees any Action, and aids the Infant in Pursuit of his Action: For to sue; an Infant may not make an Attorney, but the Court will admit the next Friend of the Infant Plaintiff; and a Guardian for an Infant Defendant: If no Guardian is appointed by the Father, &c. of an Infant, the Courtes of the Court of B. R. hath been to allow one of the Officers of the Court to be Prochein Amy to the Infant to sue. Terms de Ley 493. 2 Lill. Abr. 52. It hath been held, that a Guardian and Prochein Amy, are distinct, though either of them may be admitted for the Plaintiff being an Infant. Prochein Amy was never before the Statute Westm. 1. and was appointed in Case of Necessity, where an Infant was to sue his Guardian, or the Guardian would not sue for him; for which Reason he may be admitted to sue by Prochein Amy, when he is to demand or gain any Thing. 2 Nels. Abr. 997. The Plaintiff Infant may sue per Guardianum, or per Proximum Amicum ad prosequendum; and if the Admission is to sue per Guardianum, when it should be per Proximum Amicum, it will be well enough, there being many Precedents both Ways: But if he is sued, it must be per Guardianum. Cro. Car. 86, 115. Hut. 92. If an Infant be disturbed by the Chief Lord, so that he cannot bring Affise, his Prochein Amy shall be admitted. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 48. So where the Infant is Eloined, &c. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 15. See Infant.

Prochein Avoidance, Is nothing but a Power to Present a Minister to a Church when it shall become void: As where one hath Presented a Clerk to a Church, and then grants the next Avoidance to another, &c. See Avoidance.

Proclamation, (Proclamatio) Is a Notice publicly given of any Thing, whereof the King thinks fit to advertise his Subjects: As that if a Man do not surrender himself, at such a Time, he shall be esteemed a Rebel; or to forbid or command a Thing; and it is a Branch of the King's Prerogative, by which he may do many Things alone. 7 R. 2. cap. 6. 3 Inst. 162. S bep. Epit. 819. And in this Sense, none may make any Proclamation without the King's Authority; except Mayors, or such like Governors of Towns, &c. by Custom or Privilege. Crompt. Jurisd. 41. By the Stat. 31 Hen. 8. cap. 8. The King's Proclamation was to be of the same Effect as an Act of Parliament; not to prejudice Life, Liberty, &c. and Contemners of it to be adjudged Traytors. The King may make a Proclamation to his Subjects, Quoad terrorem Populi, and put them in Fear of his Displeasure; but not upon any other certain Pain, as Forfeiture of their Lands or Goods, or to undergo the Penalty of a Fine and Imprisonment, &c. Dalif. 20. 2 Lill. Abr. 381, 382. Yet the King by his Proclamation may inhibit his Subjects that they go not out of the Realm, without License; and if the Subject act contrary thereunto, for this Contempt he shall be fined to the King. 12 & 13 Eliz. Dyer 296. There are Proclamations of divers Kinds; and a Proclamation is to be pleaded under the Great Seal, without which it doth not bind, &c. Cro. Car. 130. Vide King, and Privy Council.

Proclamation of Courts, Is used particularly in the Beginning or Calling of a Court, and at the Discharge or Adjourning thereof; for the Attendance of Persons, and Dispatch of Business incident thereto: And before a Parliament is dissolved, &c. Publick Proclamation is to be made, that if any Person hath any Petition, he shall come in and be heard. Lex Constitus. 156. At the latter End of the Affises, there is usually Proclamation made, that no more Records of Nisi Prius, shall be put in to be tried at that Affise; after which they will not be received, and all Persons who have not then put in their Records of Nisi Prius may depart, and are bound to give no longer Attendance at that Affise. Pafib. 1652. 2 Lill. Abr. 381. Proclamation is made in Courts Baron, for Persons to come in and claim vacant Copyholds, of which the Tenants died seised since the last Courts; and the Lord may seise a Copyhold, if the Heir come not in to be admitted upon Proclamation, &c. 1 Lev. 63.

Proclamation of Exigents. On awarding an Exigent, in order to Outlawry, a Writ of Proclamation issues to the Sheriff of the County where the Party dwells, to make three Proclamations for the Defendant to yield himself, or be outlawed. Stat. 6 Hen. 8. cap. 4. 31 Eliz. cap. 3. 4 & 5 Will. & Mar.

Proclamation of a Fine. When any Fine of Land is passed, Proclamation is solemnly made thereof in the Court of Common Pleas where levied, after the Ingrossing it; and Transcripts are also sent to the Justices of Affise, and Justices of the Peace of the County in which the Lands lie, to be openly proclaimed there. 1 R. 3. cap. 7.

Proclamation of Nuisances. By Statute, Proclamation is to be made against Nuisances, and for the Removal of them, &c. 12 R. 2.

Proclamation of Rebellion, Is a Writ, whereby a Man, not appearing upon a Subpoena, or an Attachment in the Chancery, is reputed and declared a Rebel, if he render not himself by a Day assigned. See Commission of Rebellion.

Proclamation of Recusants. There is a Proclamation of Recusants, by which they shall be convicted, on Non appearance at the Affises. 29 Eliz. 3 Jac. 1.

Proclamation of Statutes, Is for their better Observance, and that the People may avoid the Penalties thereof.

Pro confesso, Is where a Bill is exhibited in the Chancery, to which the Defendant appears, and is afterwards in Contempt for not answering; when the Matter contained in the Bill shall be taken as if it were confessed by the Defendant. Terms de Ley 494. If a Defendant is in Custody for Contempt in not answering the Complainant's Bill, upon a Habeas Corpus, which is granted by Order of Court, to bring him to the Bar, the Court assigns him a Day to answer; and the Day being expired, and no Answer put in, a second Habeas Corpus is issued, and the Party being brought into Court a further Day is assigned; by which Day, if he answer not, the Bill upon the Plaintiff's Motion shall be taken Pro confesso, unless Cause be shewed by a Day; and for Want of such Cause shewed on Motion, the Substance

stance of the Bill shall be decreed to the Plaintiff. Hill. 1662. Also after a fourth insufficient Answer made to the Bill of the Complainant, the Matter of the Bill not sufficiently answered unto by the Defendant shall be taken Pro confesso, and decreed accordingly.

Proctor, (Procurator) Is he who undertakes to manage another Man's Cause, in any Court of the Civil or Ecclesiastical Law, for his Fee: Qui aliena negotia gerenda suscipit.

Proctors of the Clergy, (Procuratores Cleri) Are those who are chosen and appointed to appear for Cathedral or other Collegiate Churches; as also for the common Clergy of every Diocese, to sit in the Convocation House in the Time of Parliament. On every new Parliament the King directeth his Writ to the Archbishop of each Province, for the Summoning of all Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, &c. to the Convocation, and generally of all the Clergy of his Province, assigning them the Time and Place in the Writ; then the Archbishop of Canterbury, upon his Writ received, according to Custom directeth his Letters to the Bishop of London, as his provincial Dean, first citing him peremptorily, and then willing him to cite in like Manner, all the Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, &c. and generally all the Clergy of his Province to the Place, and against the Day prefixed in the Writ; but directeth withal, that one Proctor be sent for every Cathedral or Collegiate Church, and two Proctors for the Body of the inferior Clergy of each Diocese; and by Virtue of these Letters authentically sealed, the said Bishop of London directeth his like Letters severally to the Bishop of every Diocese of the Province, citing them in like Sort, and willing them not only to appear, but also to admonish the said Deans and Archdeacons personally to appear; and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the common Clergy of the Diocese to send their Proctors to the Place at the Day appointed; and also willet them to certify to the Archbishop the Names of all and every Person so warned by them, in a Schedule annexed to their Letter certificatory: Then the Bishops proceed accordingly, and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the Body of the Clergy make choice of their Proctors; which being done and certified to the Bishop, he returneth all at the Day. Cowel.

Procurations, (Procuraciones) Are certain Sums of Money which Parish Priests pay yearly to the Bishop or Archdeacon, ratione Visitationis: They were anciently paid in necessary Victuals for the Visitor and his Attendants; but afterwards turned into Money: And Complaints were often made of the excessive Charges of the Procurations, which were prohibited by several Councils and Bulls; and that of Clement the Fourth is very particular, wherein Mention is made that the Archdeacon of Richmond, visiting the Diocese, travelled with one Hundred and three Horses, twenty-one Dogs, and three Hawks, to the great Oppression of religious Houses, &c. These are also called Proxies; and it is said there are three Sorts of Procurations, or Proxies; Ratione visitationis, Consuetudinis, & Paſſi; and that the first is of Ecclesiastical Cognisance, but the two last are triable at Law. Hardr. 180. A Libel was brought in the Spiritual Court for Procurations by the Archdeacon of York; setting forth, that for ten or twenty Years, &c. there had been due and paid to him so much yearly by a Parson and his Predecessors; who suggested for a Prohibition, that the Duty had been payable, but denied the Prescription, and that the Ecclesiastical Court cannot try Prescriptions; but it was adjudged, that Procurations are payable of common Right, as Tithes are, and no Action will lie for the same at Common Law; if he had denied the Quantum, then a Prohibition might go. Raym. 360. See Stat. 34 Hen. 8. cap. 19.

Procurator, Is one who hath a Charge committed to him by any Person; in which general Signification it hath been applied to a Vicar or Lieutenant, who acts instead of another; and we read of Procurator Regni, and Procurator Reipublicæ, which is a publick Magistrate: Also Proxies of Lords in Parliament are in our Law-Books called Procuratores; the Bishops are sometimes termed Procuratores Ecclesiarum; and the Advocates of religious Houses, who were to solicit the Interests, and plead the Causes of the Societies, were denominated Procuratores Monasterii; and from this Word comes the common Word Proctor. It is likewise used for him that gathers the Fruits of a Benefice for another Man; and Procuracy for the Writing or Instrument whereby he is authorized. 3 R. 2. c. 3.

Procurus, Signifies the Genealogy of a Man. Matt. Paris. Anno 1130.

Proves Homines, Is a Title often given in our old Books to the Barons of the Realm, or other military Tenants, that were summoned to the King's Council, and were no more than Discreti & fideles Homines, who according to their Prudence and Knowledge were to give their Counsel and Advice.

Proditorie, A Word necessary in Indictments of Treason. 2 Hawk. P. C. 224.

Profaneness, (Qu. procal à sano) Is a Disrespect paid to the Name of God, and to Things and Persons consecrated to him. Wood's Inst. 396. And Profaneness is punishable by divers Statutes; as for reviling the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, profanely using the Name of God in Plays, &c. Profaning the Lord's Day, Curfing and Swearing, &c. 1 Ed. 6. c. 1. 1 Eliz. c. 1. 3 Jac. 1. c. 21. 1 Car. 1. c. 1. 13 Car. 2. c. 9. 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 11.

Profer, (Proferum, vel Proferum, from the Fr. Proferer, i. e. Producere) Is the Time appointed for the Accounts of Sheriffs, and other Officers in the Exchequer, which is twice in the Year. Stat. 51 H. 3. As to the Profers of Sheriffs, though the certain Debt of the Sheriff could not be known before the Finishing of his Account; yet it seems there was anciently an Estimate made of what his constant Charge of the annual Revenue amounted to, according to a Medium, which was paid into the Exchequer at the Return of the Writ of Summons of the Pipe; and the Sums so paid were and are to this Day called Profer Vicecomitis: But although these Profers are paid, if upon the Conclusion of the Sheriff's Accounts, and after the Allowances and Discharges had by him, it appears that there is a Surplusage, or that he is charged with more than he could receive, he hath his Profers paid or allowed to him again. Hale's Sber. Account 52. There is a Writ, De Attornato Vicecomitis pro Profro faciundo. Reg. Orig. 139. And we read of Profers in the Statute 32 Hen. 8. cap. 21. in which Place Profer signifies the Offer and Endeavour to proceed in an Action. See Briton, cap. 28. and Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 38.

Profer the Half-Mark, That is to Offer or tender the Half-Mark. Vide Half-Mark.

Profert in Curia, Is where the Plaintiff in an Action declares upon a Deed, or the Defendant pleads a Deed, he must do it with a Profert in Curia, to the End that the other Party may at his own Charges have a Copy of it, and until then he is not obliged to answer it. 2 Lill. Abr. 382. And if a Man pleads by Virtue of an Indenture, which is lost, on Affidavit made thereof, the Court will compel the Plaintiff to shew the Counterpart, that the Defendant may plead thereto; or will grant an Imparlance. Cr. Jac. 429. When he who is Party or Privy in Estate or Interest, or who justifies in the Right of him who is Party or Privy, pleads a Deed; notwithstanding the

the Party privy claims but Part of the original Estate, yet he must shew the original Deed. 10 Rep. 92, 93. But where a Man is a Stranger to a Deed, and claims nothing in it, &c. there he may plead the Patent or Deed, without a Profert in Curia. Ibid. A Man may claim under a Deed of Uses, without shewing it; because the Deed doth not belong to him, though he claims by it, but the Covenanter's, and he hath no Means to obtain it; and for that it is an Estate executed by the Statute of Uses, so as the Party is in by Law, like unto Tenant in Dower, or by Statute, &c. who may have a Rent charge extended, and need not shew the Deed. Cro. Car. 442. And in Things executed, or Estates determined, there need not be any Profert in Curia. 3 Lev. 204. Also an Assignee of Commissioners of Bankrupts, need not shew the Bond to the Bankrupt, because he comes in by Act of Law, &c. Cro. Car. 209. By Statute, no Advantage or Exceptions shall be taken for Want of a Profert in Curia; but the Court shall give Judgment according to the very Right of the Cause, without regarding any such Omission and Defect, except the same be specially and particularly set down, and shewn for Cause of Demurrer. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. Where a Deed is pleaded and shewn in Court, the Deed in Judgment of Law remains in Court all the Term in which it is shewn; and if it be not denied, then at the End of the Term it is delivered to the Party whose it is: And if it be denied, it shall still remain in Court, for if it be found Non est factum, it shall be damned. 3 Rep. 74, 75, 47. See Monstrans de fait, and Oyer, &c.

Profession, (Professio) Is used particularly for the Entering into any Religious Order, &c. By which a Monk offered himself to God, by a Vow of three Things, viz. Obedience, Chastity, and Poverty, which he promised constantly to observe; and this was called Sanctæ Religionis Professio, and the Monk a Religious professus. New Book Entr. And in our Law, this Entering into Religion, whereby a Man is shut up from all the common Offices of Life, is termed a Civil Death.

Profits. A Devise of the Profits of Lands, is a Devise of the Land itself. Dyer 210. A Husband devised the Profits of his Lands to his Wife, until his Son came of Age, this was held to be a Devise of the Lands until that Time: Though if the Land were devised to the Son, and that his Mother should take the Profits of it until he come of Age, &c. this would give the Mother only an Authority, and not an Interest. 2 Leon. 221. By Devise of Profits, the Lands usually pass; unless there are other Words to shew the Intention of the Testator. Moor 753, 758. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1031.

Programma, In the old Saxon signifies a Letter sealed with the King's Seal. Spec. Sax. lib. 3. Art. 34.

Prohibition, (Prohibitio) Is a Writ issuing out of the Chancery, King's Bench, or Common Pleas, to forbid the Spiritual Court, Admiralty Court, &c. to proceed in a Cause there depending, upon suggesting that the Cognisance thereof belongs not to the said Courts, but to the Common Law Courts. F. N. B. 39, 40, &c. Or it may prohibit the Judges of any Temporal Court, from proceeding in any Cause out of their Jurisdictions: And the King's Courts, that may award Prohibitions, being informed by the Plaintiff or Defendant, or by any Stranger, that any Court Temporal or Ecclesiastical do hold Plea where they have no Jurisdiction, may lawfully prohibit that Court, as well after Judgment as before. 2 Inst. 229, 601, 602. 4 Rep. 127. Finch 450. This Writ is directed not only to the Judge, but the Parties; and if the Judge of the inferior Court, or the Party, proceeds notwithstanding the Prohibition, an Attachment may be had against them, or Action of the Case: But on a Prohibition in the Spiritual Court, the Party may appear, and take a Declaration upon the Suggestion, and go to Trial; and if thereupon it be found against the Plaintiff in the Prohibition, a Writ of Consultation shall be awarded, with Costs. 2 Lill. Abr. 384. Wood's Inst. 570. 8 & 9 W. 3. A Prohibition is generally a proper Remedy where a Court exceeds its Jurisdiction; and Prohibitions are granted either pro defectu Jurisdictionis, or pro defectu Trinationis: In a Prohibition, upon Motion for a Consultation, it was insisted, that it ought not to be granted without pleading or demurring to the Prohibition; but it was held, that anciently in B. R. there were no Declarations or Demurrers upon Prohibitions, and therefore Consultations were granted upon Motions. 1 Vent. 180. 3 Salk. 287. In Cases of Prohibitions, where they were granted upon a Motion, the ancient Course was, that the Party prohibited sued out a Scire facias, Quare Consultatio non debet concedi post Prohibitionem, in which Writ the Suggestion was recited, and also the Prohibition granted thereon ad Damnum of the Party: Afterwards this Practice was altered, and the Course came to be thus, (viz.) upon granting a Prohibition to the Plaintiff, the Court bound him in a Recognisance to prosecute an Attachment of Contempt against the Defendant for suing in the Spiritual Court, &c. after a Prohibition granted, and then to declare upon the Prohibition; so that he who was the Defendant in that Court, now becomes Plaintiff in the Court above. Plowd. 472. 3 Salk. 289. If any Matter appears in the Declaration in an inferior Court, which sheweth that the Cause of Action did not arise infra Jurisdictionem; or the Subject Matter be not proper for the Judgment of such Court; or if the Defendant who intended to plead to the Jurisdiction is prevented by any Artifice, or his Plea be not accepted or is over-ruled, in all these Cases a Prohibition will lie at any Time: But not after the Defendant hath admitted the Jurisdiction by pleading to the Action, &c. 2 Mod. 273. A Prohibition lies in all Causes wherein a Habeas Corpus doth lie at Common Law; but it is most commonly granted to the Spiritual Courts, where a Cause belongs to the Temporal Jurisdiction: And the Court ought not to deny a Person a Prohibition that prays it, if there be Cause therefore; the Granting Prohibitions being not a discretionary Act of the Court, but ex merito Justitiæ; though a Prohibition will not be granted on Motion the last Day of the Term, but sometimes in such a Case, a Rule has been made to stay Proceedings until next Term. 2 Lill. Abr. 385, 388. Raym. 4, 92. Prohibition may be granted to the Court of the Earl Marshal, by the Courts of Common Law, if it exceedeth its Jurisdiction; and it hath been strongly insisted on, that the Court of the Constable and Marshal may also be prohibited, but there having been no Court holden before the Constable and Marshal for many Years past, little is mentioned in our Books on that Head. 2 Hawck. P. C. 14. The Court of B. R. may by the Common Law grant a Prohibition to the Court of Admiralty, to stay their Proceedings, if they hold Plea of any Matter which the Jurisdiction of their Court doth not extend to: And the Defendant in the Court of Admiralty may have a Prohibition, after he hath pleaded, although he cannot have it to an inferior Court; for an inferior Court doth not draw the Matter in Question ad aliud Examen, but doth proceed therein according to the Common Law; but the Court of Admiralty doth draw the Matter ad aliud Examen, that is to try it by the Civil Law; and therefore, and that the Common Law may not be injured, this Court will use their Authority at any Time to stay Proceedings in the Admiralty, though the Defendant by his incautious Pleading hath allowed their Jurisdiction

Trin. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 387. Upon a Suggestion that the Admiralty holds Plea upon a Promise, &c. made infra Corpus Comitatus, which is not triable there, but at Common Law, a Prohibition lies; but the Surmise and Suggestion must be absolute and certain, that a Promise was actually made infra Corp. Comitatus. for upon an uncertain Suggestion no Prohibition can be granted, and no Issue can be taken upon it though it should be false. 2 Lill. 384. If the Court of Admiralty proceeds in any Matter, which is not Maritime, although the Thing were done upon the Sea, the Court of B. R. will grant a Prohibition; the Admiralty having Jurisdiction only in Maritime Causes, viz. such as concern Sea Affairs, and not of all Matters done at Sea, as of Contracts, &c. Ibid. 378. Prohibition doth not lie to the Admiralty to stop Proceedings on a Bond made beyond Sea, sued there; nor for a Suit for Mariners Wages, &c. and a Prohibition lies not to that Court in Cases of Felony which are to be tried there. 3 Leon. 514. 3 Lev. 60. 2 Lill. 389. Prohibitions may be granted to the Prerogative Court, to hinder them from granting Letters of Administration contrary to Law; or to prevent any other Proceedings, which are not agreeable to the Common Law. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. But if the Ecclesiastical or Spiritual Courts proceed wholly on their own Canons, they shall not be prohibited by the Common Law; for they shall be presumed to be the best Judges of their own Laws: Though if they proceed upon Temporal Matter, or act in Derogation of the Common Law, by questioning a Matter not triable by them, &c. Prohibition shall be granted. 2 Roll Rep. 439. 1 Bull. 159. Where the Ecclesiastical Court hath the sole Cognizance of a Cause, their Proceedings are not examinable at Common Law, though erroneous; and no Prohibition will lie, but an Appeal to the Delegates. March 92. But of Things whereof our Law, and the Ecclesiastical Law, take Cognizance, the Judges are only to rely on our Law; and not on the Ecclesiastical Law. Ibid. 84. If a Matter is properly determinable in the Spiritual Court, and they make an erroneous Decree, B. R. will not grant a Prohibition; though if they decree a Matter which they have no Jurisdiction of, this Court will grant a Prohibition to annul the Sentence. 2 Lill. 386. A Prohibition may be granted to the Spiritual Court, after Sentence given in a Cause in that Court; but the Court applied to, will not do it until they have heard Counsel on both Sides, although before Sentence they grant it upon a bare Suggestion of the Party, if the Matter suggested will bear it; for a Sentence in an Ecclesiastical Court is in the Nature of a Judgment given at the Common Law, and presumed to be given upon mature Deliberation; wherefore their Sentence is not to be made void but by good Advice. Ibid. 388. A Libel was exhibited in the Prerogative Court for a Legacy, and a Prohibition prayed, for that the Party lived out of the Diocese, &c. upon the Stat. 23 H. 8. But because the Will was proved in that Court, and the Suit was there, and Sentence given for the Legacy, and upon an Appeal to the Delegates that Sentence was affirmed, and Execution granted thereon; it was held too late for a Prohibition. Cro. Car. 69. Though it has been adjudged, that it is never too late to move B. R. for a Prohibition in a Case where the Spiritual Court had no original Jurisdiction. Mod. Ca. 252. 1 Mod. 273. By Holt Chief Justice, if an Action is commenced in an inferior Court, which hath no Jurisdiction of the Cause; a Prohibition will not lie after Sentence. 3 Salk. 288. No Prohibition shall be allowed after a Consultation duly granted, by the Stat. 50 Edw. 3. cap. 4. which ordains, that but one Prohibition shall lie in one Cause: A Consultation being once granted, there shall be no new Prohibition upon the same Libel; unless it is apparent that the Consultation was unduly obtained, when it is otherwise. 1 Lew. 130. It is a Rule; that a Prohibition shall not be granted where the Proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Court are not against the Law of the Land, nor the Liberty of the Subject. Cro. Jac. 431. If a Suit is for a Pension, it being merely Spiritual, no Prohibition shall be granted. Cro. Jac. 666. But where Property, or the Freehold of an Office, &c. comes in Question, a Prohibition shall go to the Spiritual Court. 4 Leon. 261. Raym. 88. And so where a Custom is alleged in the Ecclesiastical Court: Though a bare Prescription is not sufficient for a Prohibition, except it concerns a Layman; for it was never granted, where a Person claimed a Pension by Prescription. 2 Lev. 103. Salk. 350. If in suing for Tithes, &c. the Boundaries of Parishes come in Question, Prohibition lies; because the Bounds of Parishes are triable at Common Law. 1 Cro. 228. Though a Prohibition was denied, where the Bounds of two Villis in the same Parish were contested. 1 Lev. 78. And it hath been adjudged, that where a Thing triable at Law is collateral to the Complaint in a Libel, and of which the Spiritual Court have original Jurisdiction, they shall not be prohibited; as where the Libel is for the Tithes of such a Close, here they have an original Jurisdiction of the Cause, viz. for Tithes; then the Defendant pleads that it is not his Close, but the Close of another Person; this is triable at Law, but being collateral to the original Cause, it shall be tried in the Spiritual Court. Sid. 89. 3 Nelf. Abr. 12. A Libel was for Tithes; the Defendant pleaded an Award, and prayed a Prohibition for that an Award is Matter triable at Law; but a Prohibition was denied: And it is the same if a Suit is for a Legacy, and the Defendant suggests Payment for a Prohibition, or if an Acquittance is pleaded, no Prohibition shall go; because where the Spiritual Court hath a Jurisdiction of the original Matter, if any subsequent Matter should arise, and which is triable at Law, that shall not deprive the Spiritual Court of their Jurisdiction; though if that Court shall adjudge otherwise upon an Acquittance, or an Award, than according to the Common Law, in such Case a Prohibition may be had. 1 Roll. Rep. 12. Moor 413. Ecclesiastical Courts, when the principal Cause is of Ecclesiastical Cognizance, may try Matters triable at Law, which come in incidentally: And it has been ruled, that where a Thing incident to a Suit in the Spiritual Court is of a Temporal Nature, they must try it in the same Manner in that Court, as it would have been tried at Law, or a Prohibition will be granted; but if the Matter incident is of a Spiritual Nature, they are to try it according to their own Law; for Instance, if they require two Witnesses to the Proof of a Revocation of a Will, a Prohibition will not lie, because such Proof is required at Law; but if they require two Witnesses to prove a Release, or refuse to admit the Proof of one Witness to the Payment of a Legacy, &c. a Prohibition may be granted. 2 Lev. 64. Serm. 158. 172. 3 Salk. 288. And if the Spiritual Court refuses a proper Plea to a Libel, &c. the Refusal is a temporal Injury, for which Prohibition lieth. Hob. 307. Cro. Eliz. 655. No Prohibition will lie in a Suit for any Legacy; where it is pretended that the Testator was an Idiot, or Non Compos Mentis. Jenk. Cent. 305. Where Articles ex Officio are exhibited against any one in the Spiritual Court for criminal Matters, and the Party is required to answer upon Oath, he may plead Non tenetur responderi, and if they will proceed, a Prohibition shall be awarded; but not if the Articles are for civil Matters, and they refuse such Plea. Sid. 374. 3 Nelf. Abr. 8. Adjudged, that a Refusal of the Copy of the Libel; or where the Libel against the Defendant in the Spiritual Court is no general, these are good Causes for a Prohibition. Horb. 364. It is always granted for denying a Copy of the Libel.

Libel, because the Party ought to know whether the Matter is within the Jurisdiction or not, and how to answer. 1 Roll. Rep. 337. 2 Salk. 553. If a Man promise another 10 l. if he will marry his Daughter; if he marry the Daughter, and the other will not pay the Money, he shall not libel for the same in the Spiritual Court; if he doth Prohibition will lie: But if he promise one with his Daughter in Marriage 10 l. &c. if he doth marry the Daughter, and he do not pay the Money, he may sue for it in the Spiritual Court, because it concerns Matrimony. 22 Edw. 3. lib. Aff. And if a Person gives Goods in Marriage with his Daughter, and afterwards they are divorced, the Wife may sue in the Spiritual Court for the Goods, and no Prohibition lieth thereof. 13 Hen. 3. Prohibitions concerning Marriages, and to dissolve a Marriage, &c. 2 Lutw. 1059, 1075. A Parson grants to one by Deed, that he shall be discharged of Tithes of his Lands, and afterwards he sueth in the Spiritual Court for the Tithes, &c. it is said that the Party sued shall not have a Prohibition, for he may suggest this Matter in the Spiritual Court, to discharge him of the Tithes: But if it were upon a Composition made before Time of Memory, and now the Parson sues for the Tithes of those Lands, there he shall have a Prohibition against the Parson, &c. Mich. 8 Ed. 4. 14. In a Suggestion for a Prohibition to the Ecclesiastical Court in a Cause of Tithes, and other Spiritual Profits, the Suggestion must be made good to the Court by two sufficient Witnesses, within six Months after such Prohibition granted; provided the Suggestion doth not contain a Negative. 2 Ed. 3. E. 6. c. 13. 2 Inf. 662. If any Contention be in the Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Court between two Incumbents, who claim by divers Patrons; a Prohibition lieth, if the Suit concerns the fourth Part or more: But if it be for less, Prohibition doth not lie. Jenk. Cent. 108. By the Statute Articuli Cleri, for Tithes, (if the Right ariseth not from the Rights of Patronage, &c.) Oblations, Mortuaries, Commutation of corporal Penance for Money, Defamation, &c. no Prohibition shall be granted. 9 Ed. 2. 2 Inf. 619. 4 Rep. 20. And see 2 Lutw. 1043, 1057, 1066, &c. Before the Reign of King Charles 1. many Prohibitions were granted for defamatory Words, in calling Women Whores, &c. but since such Prohibitions have been denied, the Spiritual Court having a Jurisdiction in Cases of Whoredom, they shall not be prohibited. 1 Mod. 21. Jones 246. Cro. Car. 229. No Prohibition will lie at the Common Law upon a Suit in the Spiritual Court for the Word Whore, because it is of Ecclesiastical Cognifance. 2 Lev. 63. But by the Custom of London, it is actionable to call a Woman Whore; and therefore where the Libel is for that Word there, a Prohibition will be granted. 2 Lutw. 1039. Stile 69, 229, 245. A Prohibition was moved for to stay a Suit for these Words, You were such a one's Whore, before he married you; and on a Suggestion that the Plaintiff gave the Defendant provoking Language, calling him Rogue, &c. but the Prohibition was denied, the Provocation being no Bar to the Suit in the Spiritual Court, though it might be of Mitigation of Damages in an Action at Common Law. 3 Lev. 137. A Person called a Woman Bitch, Whore, and an old Bawd, and on a Libel in the Spiritual Court, a Prohibition was granted; because some of the Words are punishable at Common Law, and some in the Spiritual Court; and if a Prohibition should not be granted, the Plaintiff might be doubly vexed. 3 Mod. 74. On a Libel for calling a Woman Bawd, it was held, this being an Offence of a mixed Nature, and punishable either at Common Law, or in the Spiritual Court; if the Suit is commenced in that Court, a Prohibition shall not go, because the Prosecutor hath determined her Election in which Court to sue;

but if it had been for keeping a Bawdy-House, which is an Offence that may be prosecuted in a Leet, a Prohibition shall go. W. Jones 246. Palm. 379, 521. 3 Nels. Abr. 2. Libel for these Words, You are a Rogue, Rascal, and Son of a Whore; and the Suggestion for a Prohibition was, that they were Words of Heat and Passion; but a Prohibition was not allowed; for the Words import that his Mother is a Whore, and he a Bastard, and so both are scandalized, and this is an Ecclesiastical Scandal. 3 Lev. 119. One called another Whoremaster; on a Libel, &c. it was urged, that this was a Word of Passion, and not defamatory; but adjudged it is the same as calling a Woman Whore, which is an Ecclesiastical Slander. 2 Salk. 692. Prohibition will not lie upon a Suit in the Spiritual Court by Husband and Wife, for calling the Husband Cuckold; for the Words charge the Wife with Incontinence, and for that Reason she shall have this Suit in the Ecclesiastical Court, to punish the Defamation that subjects her to Penance in the Spiritual Court: But if the Husband had sued solely, then a Prohibition might be granted; because he doth not incur such Danger by speaking of the Words. 2 Lev. 66. 2 Lill. 391. And yet it hath been ruled, where Husband and Wife libelled in the Spiritual Court for calling the Husband Cuckold, that a Prohibition shall go; and that they cannot both sue in that Court for that Word. Hill. 13 W. 3. 3 Salk. 288. And to call a Man Cuckold, hath been resolved not to be an Ecclesiastical Scandal, but that Wittall is; for that implies his Knowledge and Consent to the Adultery of his Wife. 2 Salk. 692. These Words were spoken of a Parson, he is a lying Fellow, and has lain with all the Women at H. &c. a Prohibition was refused; for these Words are scandalous, being spoken of a Parson, though not actionable at Law. 3 Lev. 18. But to say of a Parson; He hath no Sense, he is a Dunce, Blockhead, &c. Prohibition hath been granted; because a Parson is not punishable in the Spiritual Court for being a Blockhead. 2 Salk. 693. So for calling a Parson Fool, &c. in a Thing which doth not concern his Profession. 2 Lev. 41. And where a Suit is in the Spiritual Court for Defamation, the Matter ought to be entirely of Ecclesiastical Cognifance; otherwise a Prohibition will lie. 4 Rep. 20. Moor 873. In an extraordinary Case, a Suit being brought for Defamation in the Spiritual Court, of which they had Cognifance, notwithstanding an Action at Law was commenced for Special Damage, occasioned by speaking the same Words; a Prohibition was denied. 2 Lil. Raym. 1101. If one call another Drunkard, this may be punished in the Temporal Courts, and a Prohibition shall be granted. Cro. Car. 285. 2 Roll. 296. 3 Salk. 288. If a Man sue another Person in the County-Court for Debt, &c. amounting to the Sum of 40 l. or above, the Party shall have a Prohibition to the Sheriff, that he do not hold Plea thereof, &c. 2 Lev. 230. New Nat. 103. A Suggestion for Prohibition begins, Be it remember'd, that on the Day, &c. comes before our Sovereign Lord the King at Westminster, C. D. in his proper Person, and gives this Court here to understand and be informed, That where-as A. B. &c. (setting forth the Complaint and Proceeding in the other Court, contrary to the Laws and Customs of the Kingdom) Wherefore the said C. imploring the Aid of this honourable Court, before the King himself, prayeth to be relieved, and that he may have his Majesty's Writ of Prohibition, directed to the Judge of the said Court, &c. to prohibit him and them from taking any further Cognifance of the said Plea before them, touching or concerning the Premises: And it is granted to him accordingly, &c. And the common Form of a Prohibition runs thus: George the Second, &c. To A. B. &c. Greeting: We prohibit you, that you hold not Plea in the Court, &c. of, &c. where- of C. D. complains, that E. F. draws him into Plea before you, &c. And to the Party himself; We prohibit or forbid you E. F. that you follow not the Plea in the Court of, &c. whereof C. D. complains, that you draw him into the Court, &c.

Prohibitio de vasto dicta Parti, A Writ judicial directed to the Tenant, prohibiting him from making Waste upon the Land in Controversy, during the Suit. Reg. Judic. 21. And it hath been adjudged, that a Prohibition shall be granted to any one who commits Waste, either in the House or Buildings of the Incumbent of a Spiritual Living; or that cuts down any Trees on the Glebe, or doth any other Waste. Moor 917. 3 Nelf. Abr. 5.

Prohibito, for undivided, is taken in Law for a Possession or Occupation of Lands or Tenements belonging to two or more Persons, whereof none knows his several Portion; as Coparceners before Partition. Bract. lib. 5.

Proles (Lat.) In English Progeny, are such Issue as proceed from a lawful Marriage; though if the Word be used at large, it may denote others.

Prolocutor of the Convocation, (Prolocutor Domus Convocationis) Is an Officer chosen by Persons Ecclesiastical, publicly assembled in Convocation by Virtue of the King's Writ at every Parliament: And there are two Prolocutors, one of the Higher House of Convocation, and the other of the Lower House; the latter of which is chosen by the Lower House, and presented to the Bishops of the Higher House as their Prolocutor, that is the Person by whom the Lower House of Convocation intend to deliver their Resolutions to the Upper House, and have their own House especially ordered and governed: His Office is to cause the Clerk to call the Names of such as are of that House, when he sees Cause; to read all Things proposed, gather Suffrages, &c.

Promise, (Promissio) Is when upon a valuable Consideration, Persons bind themselves by Words to do or perform such a Thing as is agreed on; upon which Action may be brought: And a Promise against a Promise made at one and the same Time, is a sufficient Ground for an Action. Cro. Eliz. 543. 703. 848. If Promises are Excutory on both Sides, Performances need not be averred; because it is the Counter-Promise, and not the Performance that raises the Consideration. 4 Mod. 189. Where a Promise is made to do a Thing, and there is no Breach of it, the same may be discharged by Parol; but if it be once broken, it cannot be discharged without Release in Writing, being then a Debt. 1 Mod. Rep. 206. 2 Mod. 44. And when an Action is grounded on a Promise, Payment or some other legal Discharge must be pleaded. 1 Mod. 210. If a Promise be to pay a Sum of Money, by several monthly Payments, the Promise being intire, a Breach of Payment of the first Month, is a Breach of the whole Promise. 2 Rel. Rep. 47. See Mutual Promise, Assumpsit, and Action on the Case.

Promoters, (Promotores) Are those who in popular and penal Actions prosecute Offenders, in their Name and the King's, as Informers do, having Part of the Fines or Penalties for their Reward: They belonged chiefly to the Exchequer and King's Bench; and Sir Edward Coke calls them Turbidum hominum genus. 3 Inst. 191.

Promulge a Law, (Promulgare Legem) Is to declare, publish, and proclaim a Law to the People; and so Promulged, Promulgatus, signifies published, or proclaimed. 6 H. 8. c. 4.

Proof, (Probatio) Is the Trial or making out of any Thing, by a Jury, Witnesses, &c. And Bracton says, there is Probatio duplex, viz. Viva voce. by Witnesses; and Probatio mortua, by Deeds, Writings, &c. Proof, according to Lilly, is either in giving of Evidence to a Jury upon a Trial, or else upon Interrogatories, or by Copies of Records, or Exemplifications of them. 2 Lill. Abr. 393. Though where a Man speaks generally of Proof, it shall be intended of Proof by a Jury; which in the strict Signification is legal Proof. 3 Bull. 56. The Condition of a Bond was to pay Money as an Apprentice should mispend, upon Proof made by the Confession of the Apprentice or otherwise; and it was held, that although generally Proof shall be intended to be made at a Trial by the Jury, in this Case it being referred to the Confession of the Party, it is sufficient if he confess it under his Hand. a Cro. 381. 3 Nelf. Abr. 15. It hath been insisted upon; that the Law knows no other Proof but before a Jury in a judicial Way, and that which is on Record; but if the Proof is modified by the Agreement of the Parties, that it shall be in such a Manner, or before such a Person, that Modification which allows another Manner of Proof shall be observed, and prevail against the legal Construction of the Word Proof. Sid. 313. 2 Lutw. 436. Where in Agreements, &c. required to be proved, no particular Form is directed how the Proof shall be made, the Plaintiff may bring his Action, and aver that the Thing was done; and the Defendant may take Issue that it was not done, and then the Plaintiff must prove the Doing it. Broun. 57. 33. Cro. Eliz. 205. Cro. Jac. 232. A Plaintiff said that a Wager was won by Deceit; the Defendant replied, give me a Shilling, and if you can prove that it was won by me by Deceit, I will give you five Pounds; and in an Action on the Case brought against the Defendant upon his Promise to pay the five Pounds, the Plaintiff alledged in factis that he had got the Wager by Deceit; and it was adjudged, that he need not make any other Proof of it, but in this Action. 3 Bull. 56. Cro. Eliz. 205. In Articles the Parties bound themselves in the Penalty of 100 l. &c. to be paid upon due Proof of a Breach; Proof at the Trial will maintain the Action. Lutw. 441. And Proof may be in the Action, in several other Cases. Cro. Jac. 188, 488. Proof by Witnesses, &c. See Evidence.

Pro partibus Liberandis, Is an ancient Writ for the Partition of Lands between Co-heirs. Reg. Orig. 316.

Property, (Proprietas) Is the highest Right a Man hath or can have to any Thing; being used for that Right that one hath to Lands or Tenements, Goods, or Chattels, which no way depends upon another Man's Curtesy; and was first introduced, that every Man might know what was his own. Stud. Compan. 159. Before the Flind, there was no such Thing as particular Property, but an universal Right instead of it; every Man might then take to his Use what he pleased, and what he had so possess'd himself of, another could not, without manifest Injury, take away from him: But upon the Increase of People, Trade and Industry, Property was gained by Purchase, and other lawful Means; for the securing whereof, proper Laws were ordained. Lex Mercat. 2. Property in Lands and Tenements at this Day, is acquired either by Entry, Discent by Law, or by Conveyance; and in Goods and Chattels, it may be gained a great many Ways, though it is usually by Deed of Gift, or Bargain and Sale. 2 Lill. Abr. 400. And for preserving Men's Properties our Law hath these Rules, 1st, That no Man is to deprive another of his Property, or disturb him in enjoying it. 2^{dly}, Every Person is bound to take due Care of his own Property, so as the Neglect thereof may not injure his Neighbour. 3^{dly}, All Persons must so use their Right, that they do not, in the Manner of doing it, damage their Neighbour's Property. Mod. Entr. Engl. 229. There are likewise three

Sorts

Sorts of Properties, viz. Property absolute; Property qualified; and Property possessory: And an absolute Proprietor hath an absolute Power to dispose of his Estate as he pleases, subject to the Laws of the Land. The Husband hath a qualified Property in his Wife's Land, real Chattels and Debts; but in her Chattels personal, he hath an absolute Property. Plowd. 5. Every Owner of Goods, &c. hath a general Property in them: Tho' a Legatee of Goods hath no Property in the Goods given him by Will until actually delivered him by the Executors, so that he hath the Possession. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. And though by a bare Agreement, a Bargain and Sale of Goods may be so far perfected, without Delivery or Payment of Money, that the Parties may have an Action of the Case for Non performance, yet no Property vests until there is a Delivery; and therefore it is said if a second Buyer gets a Delivery, he has the better Title. 3 Salk. 61, 62. But if one Covenant with me, that if I pay him so much Money such a Day, I shall have his Goods in such a Place, and I pay him the Money: This is a good Sale, and by it I have the Property of the Goods. 27 H. 8. 16. Property is of Things in Possession, or Action: In Possession, it is generally, when no other can have them from the Owner, or with him, without his Act or Default; or specially when some other hath an Interest with him, or where there is a Property also in another, as well as in the Owner; as by Bailment, Delivery of Things to a Carrier, or to an Innkeeper, where Goods are pawned or pledged, distrained, or leased out for a Term, &c. And Property in Action, is when one hath an Interest to sue at Law for the Things themselves, or for Damages for them; as for Debts, Wrongs, &c. and all these Things, in Possession, or Action, one may have in his own Right, or in the Right of another, as Executor. Wood's Inst. 314. A Person hath such a special Property in Goods delivered to him to keep, that he may maintain Actions against Strangers, that take them out of his Possession: It is the same of Things delivered to a Carrier; and when Goods are pawned, &c. Hill. 22 Car. 2. Lill. Abr. 400, 401. An Executor or Administrator, hath the Property of the Goods of the Deceased: But a Servant hath neither General or Special Property in his Master's Goods; and therefore to take them from his Master, may be Trespass or Felony, as the Case is. Goldsb. 72. If a Man hires a Horse for a particular Time to ride such a Journey, he hath a special Property in the Horse during that Time against all Men, even against the right Owner; against whom he may have an Action if he disturbs him in the Possession. Cro. Eliz. 236. But it hath been adjudged, that if a Man deliver Goods, &c. to another to keep for a certain Time, and then to redeliver them to the Owner; if he to whom they were delivered doth sell them in open Market, before the Day appointed for the Re delivery, the Owner may seize them wherever he finds them, because the general Property was always in him, and not altered by the Sale. Mich. 7 Jac. Godb. 160. 3 Nels. Abr. 18. And if one delivers a Horse, or other Cattle, or Goods, to another to keep, and he kills the Horse, or spoils the Goods, Action of Trespass lies against him; for by the Killing or Spoiling, the Property is destroyed. 5 Rep. 13. If a Swarm of Bees light on a Tree, they are not the Owner's of the Tree till covered with his Hive; no more than Hawks that have made their Nests there, &c. But their young ones will be his Property, and for them he may have an Action of Trespass. Doct. & Stud. c. 5. Co. Litt. 145. A Man's Geese, &c. fly away out of Sight, wherever they go, he hath still a Property in them: And it is said, that whilst a Person's Hawk is in Flight of a Partridge, or his Hounds in Pursuit of a Hare, &c. in these Cases, he hath a Kind of Pro- perty in the wild Creature. Staundf. lib. 1. c. 16. 3 Skep. Abr. 111. Wild Beasts, Deer, Hares, Conies, &c. though they belong to a Man upon Account of his Game and Pleasure, none can have an absolute real Property in; but if they are inclosed and made Tame, there may be a qualified and possessory Property in them. One may have absolute Property in Things of a base Nature, as Mastiff Dogs, Hounds, Spaniels, &c. but not in Things Feræ Nature, unless when dead. Dalt. 371. Finch 176. 11 Rep. 50. Raym. 16. Property in Lands, Goods and Chattels, may be forfeited or lost, by Treason, Felony, Flight, Outlawry; also of Goods by their becoming Deodand, Waif, Eitray, &c. Bac. Elem. 77, 78.

Property in Highways, &c. He that hath the Land that lies on both Sides of the Highway, hath the Property of the Soil of the Highway in him, notwithstanding the King hath the Privilege for his People to pass through it at their Pleasures; for the Law presumes that the Way was at first taken out of the Lands of the Party that owns the Lands lying upon both Sides of the Way: And divers Lords of Manors do claim the Soil as Part of their Waste. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 400. If the Sea, or a River, by violent Incurfion carries away the Soil of Ground in so great a Quantity, that he that had the Property in the Soil, can know where his Land is, he shall have his Land; but if his Soil or Land be insensibly, or by little and little, wasted by the Sea or River, he must lose his Property, because he cannot prove which is his Land. Pasch. 1650. A Tenant hath by Law only a special Property in the Trees on the Lands demised, so long as they remain Part of the Freehold; for as soon as they are severed, his Property is gone. 11 Rep. 82.

Property altered. A Man borrows, or finds my Goods, or if he take them from me; neither of these Acts will alter the Property. Bro. Propert. 27. If one having taken away Corn of another, make it into Malt; turn Plate into Money, or Timber into a House or Building, &c. the Property of them is altered. Doddridge Law 132, 133. And where Goods are generally sold in a Market overt, for valuable Consideration, and without Fraud, it alters the Property thereof. 5 Co. Rep. 83. To alter or transfer Men's Properties is lawful; but to violate Property is never lawful, Property being a sacred Thing which ought not to be violated. And every Man (if he hath not forfeited it) hath a Property and Right allowed him by the Law, to defend his Life, Liberty, and Estate; and if either be violated, it gives an Action to redress the Injury, and punish the Wrong doer. 2 Lill. Abr. 400.

Prophecies, (Prophetia) Are in our Statutes taken for Foretellings of Things to come, in hidden mysterious Speeches; whereby great Commotions have been often caused in this Kingdom, and Attempts made by those to whom such Speeches promised good Success, though the Words were mystically framed, and pointed only to the Cognifance, Arms, or some other Quality of the Parties: But these for Distinction sake, are called False or Phantastical Prophecies. 3 Ed. 6. c. 15. False Prophecies, (where Persons pretend extraordinary Commissions from God) to raise Jealousies in the People, or terrify them with impending Judgments, &c. are punishable at Common Law, as Impositions: And by Statute 5 Eliz. c. 15. None shall publish or set forth any false Prophecy, with an Intent to raise Sedition, on Pain of 10 l. for the first Offence, and a Year's Imprisonment; and for the second Offence to forfeit all his Goods and Chattels, and suffer Imprisonment during Life: The Prosecution to be within six Months. 3 Inst. 128, 129. To prophecy when the King shall die, hath been antiently held to be Treason. Roll. Rep. 88.

Propounders, Are mentioned with Monopolists and Projectors; and signify the same as Monopolists 3 Inst.

Proprietary, (Proprietarius) Was heretofore commonly applied to him that had the Profits of an Ecclesiastical Benefice to himself and his Heirs or Successors; as in Times past Abbots and Priors had, to them and their Successors. And Proprietarii Monachi were those Monks who had any Goods or Substance of their own. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. pag. 307.

Proprietate probanda, Is a Writ to the Sheriff to inquire of the Property of Goods distrained, when the Defendant claimeth Property upon a Replevin sued; for the Sheriff cannot proceed till that Matter is decided by Writ; and if it is found for the Plaintiff, then the Sheriff is to make Replevin; but if for the Defendant, he can proceed no further. F. N. B. 77. Finch 316, 450. Inst. 145.

Pro rata, Is as much as pro proportione; as Jointenants, &c. are to pay Pro rata, i. e. in Proportion to their Estates. 16 Car. 2. c. 6.

Prorogare, (Prorogare) Signifies to prolong, or put off to another Day. 6 Hen. 8. c. 8. Prorogation of the Parliament, and Adjournment were anciently used as Synonyma's; but of late there hath been a Distinction, a Prorogation making a Session, and an Adjournment only a Continuance. Vide Parliament.

Protection, (Proteccio) Is generally taken for that Benefit and Safety which every Subject hath by the King's Laws; every Man who is a loyal Subject is in the King's Protection; and in this Sense to be out of the King's Protection, is to be excluded the Benefit of the Laws. 25 Edw. 3. c. 22. In a special Signification, a Protection of the King is an Act of Grace, by Writ issued out of the Chancery, which lies where a Man will pass over the Sea in the King's Service; and by this Writ (when allowed in Court) he shall be quit of all Manner of Suits between him and any other Person, except Affises of Novel Disseisin, Affise of Darrein Presentment, Attaints, &c. until his Return into England. 2 Lill. Abr. 398. Protection is an Immunity granted by the King to a certain Person, to be free from Suits at Law for a certain Time, and for some reasonable Cause; and 'tis a Branch of the King's Prerogative so to do: There are two Sorts of these Protections; one is cum Clausula volumus; and of that Protection there are three Particulars; one is called Quia profecturus, and is for him who is going beyond Sea in the King's Service; another is Quia moraturus, which is for him who is already abroad in the King's Service, as an Ambassador, &c. And another is for the King's Debtor, that he be not sued till the King's Debt is satisfied: And the other Sort of Protection is cum Clausula volumus, &c. which is granted to a Spiritual Corporation, that their Goods or Chattels be not taken by the Officers of the King, for the King's Service; it may likewise be granted to a Spiritual Person single, or to a Temporal Person. Reg. Orig. 23. 3 Nels. Abr. 20. On a Person's going over Sea, in the Service of the King, Writ of Protection shall issue, to be quit of Suits till he returns; and then a Resummons may be had against him: But one may proceed against the Defendant having such Protection, until he comes and shews his Protection in Court, and hath it allowed; when his Plea or Suit shall go sine die; though if after it appears that the Party who hath the Protection, goes not about the Business for which the Protection was granted, the Plaintiff may have a Repeal thereof, &c. Terms de Ley 496. 2 Lill. Abr. 398. A Protection is to be made for one Year, and may be renewed from Year to Year; but if it be made for two or three Years, the Justices will not allow the same: And if the King grant a Protection to his Debtor, that he be not sued till his Debt is paid; on these Protections none shall be delayed; the Party is to answer and go to Judgment, and Execution shall be stayed. 1 Inst. 130. 25 Ed. 3. The King granted a Protection to one of his Debtors; and upon a Demurrer it was alledged, that by the Statute 25 Edw. 3. c. 19. Protections of this Kind are expressly, that none shall be delayed upon them; but the Party shall answer and proceed to Judgment, and Execution shall stay: And the Court ordered, that when it came to Execution they would advise; so a Respondeas Ouster was awarded. Cro. Jac. 477. In all Protections there ought to be a Cause shewn for granting them: If obtained pending the Suit, they are naught; and a Person giving Bail to an Action on Arrest, 'tis said may not plead his Protection; one may not be discharged out of Prison to which he is committed in Execution, by Protection to serve the King, &c. Nor will a Protection be allowed where a Person is taken on a Capias Utlagatum, after Judgment; for though the Capias Utlagatum is at the King's Suit in the first Place, it is in the second Degree for the Subject. Latch 197. 1 Leon. 185. Dyer 162. Hob. 115. But in Action on Assumpsit, a Protection under the Great Seal was brought into Court, for that the Defendant was in the Wars in Flanders, &c. and it was allowed though after an Exigent. 3 Lev. 332. The Plaintiff in an Action cannot cast a Protection; for the Protection is for the Defendant, and shall be always for him, if it be not in special Cases where the Plaintiff becomes Defendant. New Nat. Br. 62. And no Protection shall be allowed against the King. 1 Inst. 131. A Protection to save a Default, is not good for any Place within the Kingdom of England: And regularly it lies only where the Defendant or Tenant is demandable; for the Protection is to excuse his Default, which cannot be made when he is not demanded. Jenk. Cent. 66, 94. There are many Kinds of Protections; but they are rarely used, being often ousted by Act of Parliament. Wood's Inst. 571. When the King grants a Protection, the Writ thereupon in some Cases has been as follows.

A Writ of Protection by the King.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To all and singular Sheriffs, &c. and others, who shall see or bear our present Letters, Greeting. Know you, that we have taken into our special Protection A. B. and all his Servants, Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels in, &c. in the County of S. and in, &c. And also all his Writings whatsoever: Therefore we command you that you protect and defend the said A. B. and his Servants, Lands, Tenements, &c. aforesaid, not doing to him or them, or any of them, or permitting to be done to them, any Injury, Damage or Violence, on Pain of grievous Forfeiture, &c. In Testimony of which, &c. for one Year to endure. In Witness, &c.

Protections of Parliament. Peers, and Members of Parliament, &c. by their Privilege, may protect their Menial Servants, and those actually employ'd by them in Service; but by a late Order, this extends not to others, on written Protections. One Cater, Gentleman to the Earl of Suffolk, was by Order of the House of Lords committed to Newgate, on Proof of his being guilty of procuring and selling written Protections, from and in the Name of that Peer, to several Persons, to the great Damage of their Creditors, and in Breach of the Orders of that House; and being charged with other Crimes, reflecting on the House of Peers, he was sentenced to pay a Fine, and to stand in the Pillory, &c. Mod. Cas. in L. & E. 341. See Privilege.

Protection

Protection of the Courts at Westminster. The Protection of the Court of B. R. is allowed for any Person who attends his own Business in this Court, or by Virtue of any Subpoena; but this is more properly Privilege.

Proteccionibus, The Statute of allowing a Challenge to be entered against a Proteccion, &c. 33 Edw. 1.

Protest, (Protestari) Hath two divers Applications; one by Way of Caution, to call Witness, as it were, openly to affirm, that a Man doth not yield his Consent to any Act which may be prejudicial to him, or but conditionally; or that he doth not agree to the Proceedings of a Judge, in a Court wherein his Jurisdiction is doubtful, &c. The other is by Way of Complaint, to protest a Man's Bill of Exchange, refused Acceptance of Payment; which is necessary to recover Damages, &c. See Bill of Exchange.

Protestando, Is a Word made use of to avoid double Pleading in Actions; it prevents the Party that makes it from being concluded by the Plea he is about to make, that Issue cannot be joined upon it; and it is also a Form of Pleading, where one will not directly affirm or deny any Thing alledged by another or himself: In the first Case, it is where a Man pleadeth a Thing which he dares not affirm, or that he cannot plead for Fear of Making his Plea double; as in Title to Land by two Descents, the Defendant must plead one of them, and put the Word Protestando instead of dicit, as to the other, that such a one died seized, &c. And in the last Case, when one is to answer to two Matters, and by the Law he ought to plead but to one; then in the Beginning of the Plea he may say Protestando, that such Matter is not true, and add to his Plea, Pro Placito dicit; and so he may take Issue upon the other Part of the Matter. Plowd. 276. Finch 359. Praesif. Attorn. 1st Edit. pag. 83. A Protestando must not be repugnant, &c. And effectual Matters in Bar ought not to be taken in a Plea by Protestation: A Protestando is sometimes thus: Protestando non Cognoscendo such and such Things, Pro Placito in hac parte dicit, &c.

Protestant Dissenters, Exempt from Penalties, &c. See Dissenters.

Prothonotary, (Protonotarius, vel Primus Notarius) Is a Chief Officer or Clerk of the Common Pleas and King's Bench; and for the first named Court there are three Prothonotaries, and the other hath but one: He of the King's Bench records all Actions Civil; as the Clerk of the Crown Office doth all Criminal Causes in that Court: Those of the Common Pleas, since the Order 14 Jac. 1. upon an Agreement entered into between the Prothonotaries and Filixers of that Court, do enter and enrol all Manner of Declarations, Pleadings, Assises, Judgments, and Actions: They make out all judicial Writs except Writs of Habeas Corpus, and Distingas Jurator, (for which there is a particular Office erected, called the Habeas Corpora Office;) Also Writs of Execution, and of Seisin, of Privilege for removing Causes from inferior Courts, Writs of Procedendo, Scire facias's in all Cases, and Writs to inquire of Damages; and all Process upon Prohibitions, on Writs of Audita Querela, False Judgment, &c. They likewise enter Recognizances acknowledged in that Court; and all Common Recoveries; and make Exemplifications of Records, &c. 5 H. 4. cap. 14.

Prothoforarius, Was he whom our ancient Kings made Chief of Windsor Forest, to hear all Causes; a Kind of Lord Chief Justice in Eyre. Camd. Britan. 213.

Proctor, Anno 28 Edw. 1. and 5 Hen. 4. See Procurator.

Province, (Provincia) Signifies an out Country, govern'd by a Deputy or Lieutenant. Litt. Dist. It was used among the Romans for a Country, without the Limits of Italy, gained to their Subjection by the Sword; whereupon that Part of France next the Alps was so called by them, and still retains the Name. But with us, a Province is most usually taken for the Circuit of an Archbishop's Jurisdiction; as the Province of Canterbury, and that of York: Yet it is mentioned in some of our Statutes, for several Parts of the Realm; and sometimes for a County. 32 H. 8. c. 23.

Provincial, (Provincialis) Of or belonging to a Province; also a chief Governor of a Religious Order; as of Friars, &c. Stat. 4 H. 4. c. 17.

Provisio, (Provisio) By the old Laws of England, as well as the Canon Law, is the Providing a Bishop, or any other Ecclesiastical Person, with a Living, by the Pope, before the Incumbent is dead: It is also called Gratia expectativa, or Mandatum de providendo; the great Abuse whereof heretofore in this Kingdom, occasioned divers Statutes to prevent it. 35 Ed. 3. c. 22. 37 & 38 Ed. 3. 2, 3 & 7 R. 2.

Provisiones. The Decrees which were made in a Parliament at Oxford, Anno 1258. are termed Provisiones. Contin. Matt. Paris.

Provisio, Is a Condition inserted into any Deed, on the Performance whereof the Validity of the Deed depends; and sometimes it is only a Covenant, secundum subjectam Materiam. 2 Rep. 70. 2 Lill. Abr. 399. The Word Provisio is generally taken for a Condition; but it differs from it in several Respects; for a Condition is usually created by the Grantor or Lessor, but a Provisio by the Grantee or Lessee; there is likewise a Difference in placing the Provisio, as if immediately after the Habendum, the next Covenant is that the Lessee shall repair, provided always that the Lessor shall find Timber, this is no Condition; nor is it a Condition, if it comes among other Covenants after the Habendum, and is created by the Words of the Lessee, as if the Lessor covenants to scour the Ditches, Provisio that the Lessee carry away the Soil, &c. 3 Nels. Abr. 21. It hath been held, that the Law hath not appointed any proper Place in a Deed to insert a Provisio; but that when it doth not depend on any other Sentence, but stands originally by itself, and when it is created by the Words of the Grantor, &c. and is restrictive or compulsory, to enforce the Grantee to do some Act, in such Case the Word Provisio makes a Condition, though 'tis intermixed with other Covenants, and doth not immediately follow the Habendum. 2 Rep. 70. A Provisio always implies a Condition, if there be no Words subsequent which may change it into a Covenant: Also it is a Rule in Provisoes, that where the Provisio is that the Lessee, &c. shall do, or not do a Thing, and no Penalty is added to it; this is a Condition, or 'tis void; but if a Penalty be annexed, it is otherwise. Cro. Eliz. 242. 1 Lev. 155. And where a Provisio is a Condition, it ought to do the Office of a Condition, i. e. make the Estate conditional, and shall have Reference to the Estate, and be annexed to it; but shall not make it void without Entry, as a Limitation will: A Lease was made for Years, rendering Rent at such a Day, Provisio if the Rent be arrear for one Month after, the Lease to be void: the Question was, whether this was a Condition or Limitation; for if it was a Condition, then the Lease is not determined without Entry; adjudged, that it was a Limitation, though the Words were conditional, because it appeared by the Lease itself that it was the express Agreement of the Parties that the Lease should be void upon Non payment of the Rent; and it shall be void without Entry. Moor 291. 1 Nels. Abr. 22, 26. If a Provisio be the mutual Words of both Parties to the Deed, it amounts to a Covenant: And a Provisio by Way of Agreement to pay, is a Covenant, and an Action well lies upon it. 2 Rep. 72. The Plaintiff convey'd an Office to the Defendant, dant, Proviso that out of the first Profits he pay the Plaintiff 500*l.* And it was resolved, that an Action of Covenant lay on this Proviso; for 'tis not by Way of Condition or Defeasance, but in Nature of a Covenant to pay the Money. 1 Lev. 155. But a Defendant in Consideration of 400*l.* granted his Lands to the Plaintiff for ninety-nine Years. Proviso if he pay so much yearly during the Life of S. T. &c. or 400*l.* within two Years after his Death, then the Grant to be void, and there was a Bond for Performance of Covenants; in Action of Debt brought upon this Bond, it was adjudg'd, that there being no exprefs Covenant to pay the Money, there could be no Breach assigned on this Proviso. 2 Mod. 36. In Articles of Agreement to make a Lease, Proviso that the Lessee should pay so much Rent, &c. although there be no special Words of Reservation of Rent, the Proviso is a good Reservation. Cro. Eliz. 486. And Proviso with Words of Grant added to it, may make a Grant, and not a Condition. Moor 174. Yet in the Case of a Lease for Life, Proviso if the Lessee died before the End of Sixty Years, that his Executors should enjoy it for so many Years as would make up the said Sixty Years; it was held, that by this Proviso the Lessee had no Estate for Years, nor his Executors any Remainder of a Term, because nothing was limited thereby to the Lessee for Life as a Remainder, to him and his Executors. 1 And. 19. When Uses are raised by Covenant, in Consideration of paternal Love to Children, &c. and after in the same Indenture, there is a Proviso to make Leases, without any particular Consideration, it is void; though such a Proviso might be good, if the Uses were created by Fine, Recovery, &c. because of the Transmutation of the Estate; and for that in this Case Uses arise without Consideration. 1 Rep. 176. Moor 144. 1 Lev. 30. 2 Lill. Abr. 402. In a Deed, a Proviso, that if the Son disturb the other Uses, &c. that then a Term granted to him, and the Uses to the Heirs of his Body, shall be void; this Proviso is sufficient to cease the other Uses, on Disturbance. 8 Rep. 90, 91. But a Proviso to make an Estate, limited to one and the Heirs Males of his Body, to cease as if he was naturally dead, on his Attempting any Act by which the Limitation of the Land, or any Estate in Tail, should be undone, barred, &c. hath been adjudged not good; because the Estate tail is not determined by the Death of Tenant in Tail, but by his dying without Issue Male. Dyer 351. 1 Rep. 83. A Testator devised his Lands to one and the Heirs Males of his Body, Proviso that if he attempt to alien, then his Estate to cease, and remain to another; the Proviso is void. 1 Vent. 521. A Proviso that would take away the Whole Effect of a Grant, as not to receive the Profits of Lands granted, &c. is void; and so is a Proviso that is repugnant to the exprefs Words of the Grant: In a Will, a Testator made another his Executor, provided he did not administer his Estate; adjudged this Proviso is void for Repugnancy. Cro. Eliz. 107. Dyer 3. And if a Proviso is good at first, and afterwards it happens, that there is no other Remedy but that which was restrained; the Remedy shall be had, notwithstanding the Restraint. Wood's Inst. 231. Where a Proviso is Parcel of, or abridgeth a Covenant, it makes an Exception; when 'tis annexed to an Exception in a Deed, 'tis an Explanation; and where added at the End of any Covenant, there it extends only to defeat that Covenant. 4 Leon. 72, 73. Moor 105, 471. See Deed.

Proviso, concerning Matters judicial, is where the Plaintiff in an Action desists in Prosecuting his Suit, and doth not bring it to Trial in convenient Time; the Defendant in such Case may take out the Venire facias to the Sheriff, which hath in it these Words, Proviso quod, &c. To the End, that if the Plaintiff take out any Writ to that Purpose, the Sheriff shall summon but one Jury upon them both; and this is called going to Trial by Proviso. Old Nat. Br. 159. By the standing Rules of the Court of B. R. if a Plaintiff will not enter his Issue, the Defendant may by Rule compel him to enter it; and if 'tis entered, and he will not carry down the Cause to Trial, the Defendant may carry it down by Proviso. 3 Salk. 362. See Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 32. Process may be taken out by the Defendant in Criminal Cases by Proviso in Appeals, in the same Manner as in other Actions, on the Default of the Appellant; but not in Indictments, nor in Actions where the King is sole Party; and it hath been questioned, whether there can be any such Process in Informations Qui tam. 2 Hawk. 407, 408.

Provisor, Is taken for him that hath the Care of providing Things necessary; but more especially in our Law it signifies one that formerly sued to the Court of Rome for a Provision. Stat. 25 Ed. 3.

Provisor Monasterii, The Treasurer or Steward of a Religious House. Covvel.

Provisor Vitualium, The King's Purveyor, who provided for the Accommodations of his Court.

Provoocation, To make Killing a Person Manslaughter, &c. See Murder.

Provoost Marshal, In this Kingdom is an Officer of the King's Navy, who hath the Charge of Prisoners taken at Sea; And is sometimes used for like Purpose at Land. 13 Car. 2. cap. 9.

Proxies, Are Persons appointed instead of others, to represent them. Every Peer of the Realm called to Parliament, hath the Privilege of constituting a Proxy to vote for him in his Absence, upon a lawful Occasion; but such Proxies are to be entered in Person, and sometimes Proxies have been denied by the King; particularly Anno 6, 27 & 39 Edw. 3. Marriage Contracts have been often made by Proxy, &c.

Proxies, Also are annual Payments made by Parochial Clergy to the Bishop, &c. on Visitations. See Procurations.

Pryk, Is a Kind of Service or Tenure; and according to Blount, signifies an old-fashion'd Spur, with one Point only, which the Tenant holding Land by this Tenure, was to find for the King.—Per servitium inveniendi unum Equum, unum Saccum & unum Pryk in Guerra Wallie. 1 R. 2. And in the Time of K. Hen. 8. Light Horsemen in War were called Prickers; because they used such Spurs or Pryks, to make their Horses go with Speed.

Puberty, (Pubertas) The ripe Age, of fourteen in Men and twelve in Women, when they are fit for Marriage: But as to Crimes and Punishments, it is the Age of 14 Years, in both the Male and Female Sex, and not before. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 18.

Publication, Is used of Depositions of Witnesses in a Cause in Chancery, in order to the Hearing, and Rules may be given to pass Publication; which is a Power to shew the Depositions openly, and to give out Copies of them, &c. There is also a Publication of a Will, which is a Solemnity requisite to the Making thereof, by declaring it to be the Last Will of the Testator, in the Presence of such a Number of Witnesses; and a Will which hath been made many Years, may be New published with Additions, and that makes it equivalent to a new Will. 3 Nels. Abr. 27. Publication of Libels. Vide Libels.

Publick Accounts. Commissioners are to Enquire of the Accounts of Sheriffs, Customers, and other the King's Officers, after passed in the Exchequer, and if detected of any Fraud, they shall pay treble Damages, by Stat. 6 H. 8. c. 3. And all the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, which any Accountant hath, shall for the Payment of Debts to the Crown, be liable and put in Execution in like Manner as if he had stood bound by Writing Obligatory, having the Effect of a Statute Staple, &c. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 4. And there have been several Statutes for taking the Public Accounts of the Kingdom, and examining and determining the Debts due to the Army and Navy; Also Corruptions in the Management of the King's Treasure, &c. empowering Commissioners for that Purpose, who were to give an Account of their Proceedings to the King and Parliament. Publick Faith, (Fides Publica) In the Reign of King Charles 1. was a Pretence or Cheat, to raise Money of the seduced People, upon what was termed the Publick Faith of the Nation, to make War against the King about the Year 1642. Stat. 17 Car. 1 c. 18.

Punishment, (Pœna) Is the Penalty of Transgressing the Laws: And as Debts are discharged to private Persons by Payment; so Obligations to the Publick, for disturbing Society, are discharged when the Offender undergoes the Punishment inflicted for his Offence. Kings, and such as have equal Power with them, have a Right to require Punishment for Injuries committed against themselves or their Subjects, upon the Violation of National Law; though the Right of inflicting Punishments to provide for the Safety of Society, was originally (before Commonwealths were erected and Courts of Justice ordained) in the Hand of every Man being equal to, and independant of others; but since, it has resided in the Hands of the highest Powers, as Subjection to others hath taken away that primitive Right: However, this Power and natural Right of punishing an Equal, still remains in those Places where the People are not subject to some Form of Government. Grot. de Jure Belli, lib. 2. cap. 21. The Punishment of Offences are many and various, adapted to the several Degrees of Crimes, and the Countries wherein committed; and in England are Beheading, Hanging, Imprisonment, Fine, Amercement, &c.

Purchase, (Acquisitum, Perquisitum, Purchasum) Signifies the Buying or Acquisition of Lands, or Tenements with Money, or by Deed or Agreement; and not obtaining it by Descent, or hereditary Right: And Conjunctum Perquisitum is where two or more Persons join in the Purchase. Litt. 12. Reg. Orig. 147. One cometh in by Purchase when he comes to Lands by legal Conveyance, and he hath a lawful Estate: And a Purchase is always intended by Title, either for some Consideration, or by Gift; (For a Gift is in Law a Purchase) whereas Descent from an Ancestor cometh of Course by Act of Law: Also all Contracts are comprehended under this Word Purchase. 1 Inst. 18. Doct. & Stud. chap. 24. Purchase in Opposition to Descent is taken largely; If an Estate come to a Man from his Ancestors without Writing, that is a Descent: But where a Person takes any Thing from an Ancestor, or others, by Deed, Will, or Gift, and not as Heir at Law; that is a Purchase. 2 Lill. Abr. 403. When an Estate doth originally vest in the Heir, and never was nor could be in the Ancestor; such Heir shall take by way of Purchase: And when the Thing might have vested in his Ancestor, though it be first in the Heir, and not in him at all; the Heir shall have it in Nature of Descent. 1 Rep. 95, 106. An Heir takes an Estate by Will, in another Manner than the Common Law would have given it; there he takes by Purchase, and not Descent; but then he must be the right Heir. 2 Lev. 79. None can generally take as Heir by Purchase, which is not a right Heir; nor by Descent, where the Estate was never executed in the Ancestor: By Hale Ch. Just a special Heir may take as such, by special Limitation, and the Law takes Notice of him. Id. The Word Heir will not serve for a Name of Purchase, if he be not right and lawful Heir; but Son, or reputed Son or Daughter will. Jenk. Cent. 203. In a new created Estate to right Heirs, they must of Consequence take by Purchase. 4 Mod. 380. At Common Law a Man could not make his own right Heir take by Purchase, without Departing with the whole Fee simple; but now by Way of Use he may: And where a Remainder of an Estate-tail was vested in a Person as a Purchaser, it was held that the Estate should go on in a Course of Descent. 1 Mod. 226. 3 Salk. 292, 293. If the Father devises Lands to his eldest Son, upon Condition; the Son shall be in by Purchase, not by Descent. Cro. Car. 161. And there is this Difference between Purchase and Descent of Lands; if a Person takes by Purchase, a Fine, &c. may be no Bar. 3 Nell. Abr. 30. Where the Heir takes Land by Will with a Charge, he doth not take by Descent, but by Purchase; and the Land is no Affets. 2 Mod. 286. And if a Power of Entry for a Condition broken descend, and a Daughter enter; she is in as a Purchaser, and the Son born after shall not have it. 1 Rep. 99. 1 Inst. 76. Every common Purchaser of Land ought at his Peril to take Notice of the Estates and Charges, which are upon the Land he purchases; for the Law presumes that no Man will purchase Lands without Advice of Counsel. 2 Leon. 89. 2 Lill. Abr. 403. But there are several Statutes which guard against fraudulent Incumbrances; as the 27 Elix. cap. 4. enacts, that Conveyances of Lands made to defraud a Purchaser, shall be void: The 29 Car. 2. cap. 3. makes Judgments of Lands good against Purchasers bona fide, only from the Time of Signing by the Judges, &c. And no Judgment shall affect Purchasers of Lands, &c. till docketted. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 20. Chancery will relieve the Purchaser of a Term, against a dormant Title, when Money hath been laid out upon Improvements. 2 Lev. 152. A Man contracted for the Purchase of Lands, but before the Conveyance was made, he died, having devised the Land, &c. and it was held the Devise was good; because the Vendor, after the Contract, stood Trustee for the Vendee. 3 Salk. 85. And if a Man covenant on a Purchase to pay another such a Sum of Money, he making him an Estate in such Land; if the other tender him a Feoffment, and offer to make Livery and Seisin, &c. he may bring an Action for the Money, as if he had actually made a Title. 1 Vent. 148. Natural Persons, incorporate Persons, sole or aggregate, deaf, dumb and blind Persons, Minors, and all reasonable Creatures may purchase, except in some Cases; but some have Capacity to purchase, and not to hold, as Aliens, Felons, &c. and others have Ability to hold, or not to hold upon a Purchase, at the Election of themselves or others, as Infants, and Feme Coverts. 1 Inst. 2, 3. 11 Rep. 77. 7 Rep. 17. See Descent, Heir, &c.

Purchase and Value of Land. Lands are purchased at divers Rates in this Kingdom: according to their Situation, &c. An Estate of Fee-simple in Lands, is usually valued in the Country at twenty Years Purchase. Lands near London yield about twenty-five Years Purchase; and in Wales, not above eighteen or nineteen. The Fee of Tithes of perpetual Advowsons is worth about twenty-two Years Purchase: And Fee-farm Rents issuing out of Lands, and the Fee of Ground Rents, are rated at twenty-four or twenty-five Years Purchase. The Fee of Houses in London sells for seventeen or eighteen Years Purchase, if in good Repair, and the Ground Rents are not high; otherwise for less: Houses not in London, but well situated, without any Lands to them, are sold for fifteen or sixteen Years Purchase: For a Lease of a House for thirty Years, about eight Years Purchase is given in London; and for one and twenty Years about six Years Value. A Freehold Lease for three Lives absolute, or a Copyhold Estate for the like Term, where the Quit-Rents and Heriots reserved are not higher than usual, is rated at fourteen Years Purchase; for the first Life eight, for the second four, and two for the third Life; or seven, five and two. A Chattel Lease for three Lives, thirteen Years Purchase. The Exchanging one Life for another is generally one Year's Purchase; but if a sickly Life be exchanged for a healthy one, two or three Years Purchase. A Widowhood in a Copyhold, after the Death of the Husband a third Life, is valued at one Year's Purchase. The Fee in Reversion after Lives, is worth nine, seven, and five Years Purchase, after one, two or three Lives; and more where there is Timber, or the Estate improveable. Land. Purch. Comp. 1, 2, 3, 4, &c.

Purgation, (Purgatio) Is the Clearing a Man's Self of a Crime, whereof he is publickly suspected, and accused before a Judge: Of which there was formerly great Use in England. And Purgation is either Canonica, or Vulgaris; Canonical Purgation is that which is prescribed by the Canon Law, the Form whereof used in the Spiritual Court, is that the Person suspected take his Oath, that he is clear of the Fact objected against him, and bringing his honest Neighbours with him to make Oath, that they believe he swears truly: The Vulgar Purgation, according to the ancient Manner, was by Fire or Water Ordeal, or by Combat, practised by Infidels as well as Christians, till abolished by Canon. Staudf. P. C. lib. 2. cap. 48. Stat. Westm. 1. cap. 2. Purgation is one of the Punishments of the Ecclesiastical Courts; but the Stat. 13 Car. 2. cap. 12. having taken away the Oath ex Officio, of Persons accusing or Purging themselves, &c. some maintain that all the Proceedings of Purgation upon common Fame do fall too; though others say, there is still a legal Purgation left, but not canonical. Wood's Inst. 506, 507. Vide Clergy, &c.

Purificatio Beate Mariæ Virginis, Mentioned in the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 21. See Candlemas.

Purlieu, or Purlieu, (From the Fr. Pur, i. e. purus, & Lieu, locus) Is all that Ground near any Forest, which being added to the ancient Forests by King Hen. 2. Ricb. 1. and King John, was afterwards disafforested and severed by the Stat. Charta de Foresta, and the Perambulations and Grants thereupon, by King Hen. 3. so that it became Purlieu, viz. pure and free from the Laws and Ordinances of the Forest. Manwood's For. Laws, par. 2. cap. 20. Our Ancestors called this Ground Purlieu, purum Locum, because it was exempted from that Servitude which was formerly laid upon it: And whereas Manwood and Crompton call it Pouvallee, we may derive it from Pur, purus, & Allee, Ambulatio, because he that walketh or courseth within that Circuit, is not liable to the Laws or Penalties incurred by them which hunt within the Forest Precincts; but Pouvallee is said to be properly the Perambulation whereby the Purlieu is disafforested. Stat. 33 Edw. 1. 4 Inst. 304. The Owners of Grounds within the Purlieu by Disafforestation, may sell Timber, convert Pastures into arable, &c. inclose them with any Kind of Inclosure; erect Edifices, and dispose of the same as if they had never been afforested; and a Purlieu-Man may as lawfully hunt to all Intents within the Purlieu, as any Man may in his own Grounds that were never afforested: He may keep his Dogs within the Purlieu unexpeditated; and the Wild Beasts do belong to the Purlieu man ratione soli, so long as they remain in his Grounds, and he may kill them. 4 Inst. 303. If the Purlieu-Man chase the Beast with Grey-hounds, and they fly towards the Forest for Safety, he may pursue them to the Bounds of the Forest, and if he then do his Endeavour to call back and take off his Dogs from the Pursuit, although the Dogs follow the Chase in the Forest, and kill the King's Deer there; this is no Offence, so as he enter not in the Forest, nor meddle with the Deer so killed: And if the Dogs fasten upon the Deer, before he recover the Forest, and the Deer drag the Dogs into the Forest, in such Case the Purlieu-Man may follow his Dogs and take the Deer. 4 Inst. 303, 304. But in the Case of Sir Richard Weston, Attorney General, it was said, that there was no Purlieu in Law to hunt; that it cannot be by Prescription, and there is nothing in Statutes as to Hunting; and therefore Purlieu Men may only keep out the Deer, but cannot kill them, though they be in their Ground. 1 Jones Rep. 278. See Moor 706, 987. And notwithstanding Purlieus are absolutely disafforested, it hath been permitted, that the Ranger of the Forest shall, as often as the Wild Beasts of the Forest range into the Purlieu, with his Hounds recharge them back into the Forest. 4 Inst.

Purlieu-men, Are those that have Ground within the Purlieu, and being able to dispend forty Shillings a Year Freehold; who, upon these two Points, are licensed to hunt in their own Purlieus, observing what is required. Manw. For. Laws 151, 157, 180, 186.

Purparty, (Fr. Pour part, i. e. pro parte) Is that Part or Share of an Estate, first held in Common by Parceners, which is by Partition allotted to any of them: To make Purparty is to divide and sever the Lands that fall to Parceners, which till Partition they held jointly, and pro Indiviso. Old Nat. Br. 11.

Purpresture, (Purprestura, from the Fr. Pourpris, an Inclosure) Is when any Thing is done to the Nuisance of the King's Demesnes, or the Highways, &c. by Inclosure, or Buildings; endeavouring to make that Private which ought to be Publick. Glanvill, lib. 9. cap. 11. 1 Inst. 38, 272. And when a Man takes to himself, or incroaches any Thing which he ought not, whether it be in Lands, Franchise, or Jurisdiction, it is a Purpresture, and some Writers mention three Sorts of Purprestures; one against the King, the Second against the Lord of the Fee, and the Third against a Neighbour. Kitch. 10. 2 Inst. 38. Purpresture in a Forest is every Incroachment made therein, by Building, Inclosing, or Using any Liberty, without lawful Warrant to do the same: And if any Inclosures are made in Forests, they may be laid open, &c. Manwood, cap. 10. Cro. Jac. 156. By Statute, Purprestures or Urnpations upon the King, shall be resealed; and if any complain thereof, he may be heard, and have Right done him. 4 Edw. 1. cap. 4. Purprestures and Incroachments are to be inquired of in the Sheriff's Tourn. Dalt. Sher. 393.

Those that are used in Martial Affairs, are called Pursuivants at Arms; whereof there are four of special Name among the Heralds: And Stow, speaking of the Death of the tyrannical King Ricb. 3. hath these remarkable Words; His Body was naked to the Skin, not so much as a Ray about him, and he was trussed behind a Pursuivant at Arms, like a Hog, or a Calf, &c. The rest of these Pursuivants are used upon Messages in Time of Peace, and especially in Matters concerning Jurisdiction. 24 H. 8. c. 13.

Purveyance, (Fr. Pourveyance, from Pourvoir, providere) Is the Providing of Corn, Fuel, Victuals, and other Necessaries for the King's House: And Purveyor is an Officer of the King or Queen, that provides such Corn, Victuals, &c. 2 Inst. 543. Formerly the King's Court was supplied with Necessaries from the Demesnes of the Crown, which were manured for that Purpose; but this Method being found to be troublesome, was by Degrees disused, and afterwards the King appointed Officers to buy in provisions for his Household, who were Purveyors, and claimed divers Privileges by the Prerogative of the Crown. They are mentioned in Magna Charta, cap. 22. and other subsequent Statutes: But misbehaving themselves, several Offences of Purveyors were made Felonies; as if they took Things above the Value of 12 d. against the Will of the Owner, without Warrant, or such Appraisement as was directed, or without paying for them, &c. 28 Ed. 1. c. 2. 5 Ed. 3. c. 2. 36 Ed. 3. c. 2, 3, &c. Though these Laws having not sufficiently provided against the Oppressions of Persons employed for making Provisions for the King's Household, Carriages, and other Purveyance; and the People of many Countries having been obliged to submit to sundry Rates and Taxes, and Compositions, to redeem themselves from such Vexations and Oppressions, as it is recited by the 12 Car. 2. cap. 24. it was enacted by that Statute, that from thenceforth no Sum or Sums of Money, or other Thing, shall be taken, raised, rated, imposed, or levied, for or in Regard of any Provision, Carriages, or Purveyance for his Majesty, his Heirs or Successors: And by the said Statute it is ordained, that no Person, by any Warrant or Commission from the King, &c. shall, by Colour of Buying or making Provision or Purveyance for his Majesty, or any King or Queen of England, or for their Household, take any Timber, Cattle, Corn, Grain, Malt, Hay, Straw, Victuals, Carriages, or other Things, of any of the Subjects of his Majesty, his Heirs or Successors, without the full and free Consent of the Owner or Owners thereof, had and obtained without Menace or Force; nor shall require any to find Horses, Oxen, Carts, or Carriages, for the carrying the Goods of his Majesty, &c. without such Consent: And no Pre-emption shall be allowed or claimed in Behalf of his Majesty, in Markets, &c. but they shall be free to all the Subjects to sell, notwithstanding any Pretence of Purveyance; and if any shall make Provision or Purveyance, or impress Carriages, contrary to this Statute, the Justices of Peace are to commit the Offenders to Gaol till the next Sessions, when they shall be indicted, and proceeded against for the same, &c. Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24. par. 13 & 14. This absolute and universal Restraint of all Kinds of Purveyance, having been found inconvenient, it was enacted by 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 20. That the Officers of the Navy, &c. may press Carriages for the Use of his Majesty's Navy and Ordnance, according to the Regulations prescribed by that Statute, as at so much per Mile; and the like was provided by 1 Jac. 2. cap. 10. in Respect to the King's Royal Progresses, &c.

Putage, (Putagium) Fornicatio ex parte Famine: quasi puttam agere à Gall. Putte. i. e. Meretrix. Amongst our Ancestors this Crime was esteemed very heinous; for if any Heir Female under Guardianship, were guilty of it, she forfeited her Part to the other Coheirs; or if she were a sole Heiress, the Lord of the Fee had her Lands by Escheat. Spelm. Glaw. lib. 7. c. 12.

In former Days it was the Custom for People to visit their Mother-Church on Midlent Sunday, and to make their Offerings at the High Altar; as the like Devotion was again observed in Whitsun-Week: But as the Processions and Oblations at Whitsontide were sometimes commuted into a rated Payment of Pentecostals; so the Lent or Easter Offerings were changed into a Customary Rate called Quadragesimalia, and Denarii Quadragesimalis, also Lectare Jerusalem.

In a Clausum fregit such a Day, the Defendant pleads the Plaintiff's Licence to him to enter on the same Day, and that virtus inde he entered; he need not say Que est eadem Transgressio: So in Trespas for taking of Goods; if the Defendant justifies the same Day and Place: And in Trespas and Battery, if the Defendant justifies that the same Day and Place the Plaintiff assaulted him, and that what Damages happened to him was of his own Wrong; this is good without Que est eadem Transgressio, &c. though he doth not directly answer the Assault laid by the Plaintiff; but where he justifies at another Day, or at other Place, then he ought to say, Que est eadem. 21 Hen. 7. pl. 2. A Fact laid to be Nov. 1. and a Justification Nov. 2. Que est eadem is well enough without a Traverse, the Day not being material; but it had been naught, if the Day had been material. 1 Lev. 241. If a Trespas is alledged 10 Nov. and Justification the 11 Nov. and there be an Averment of Que est eadem, it is here held good without making any Traverse. Lutw. 1457. Where a Defendant justifies disso Tempore in the Plaintiff's Declaration, he hath no Occasion to say Que est eadem Transgressio; because he agrees with the Plaintiff in the Time and Place mentioned in his Declaration, and gives an Answer to it. And the 8 Geo. 1. cap. 6. authorizes the Affirmation of the Quakers with the Words, I do promise and sincerely declare in the Presence of you, &c. without laying in the Presence of God; but false and corrupt Affirming, incurs the Pains and Penalties of wilful Perjury. Quakers refusing to pay Tithes, or Church-Rates, Justices of Peace are to determine them, and order Costs, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. 1 Geo. 1. And Quakers may be committed to Prison for Non-payment of Tithes, upon the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 20. which is not repealed by the 7 & 8 W. 3. that gives another Remedy. 1 Ld. Raym. 323. If a Man retains any Person to do Work or other Thing for him; as a Taylor to make a Garment, a Carrier to carry Goods, &c. without any certain Agreement; in such Case, the Law implies that he shall pay for the same, as much as they are worth, and shall be reasonably demanded; for which Quantum meruit may be brought: And if one sue another upon a Promise to satisfy him for Work done, &c. he must shew and aver in his Declaration how much he deserved for his Work. Comp. Attorn. A Plaintiff declared, that the Defendant, in Consideration that the Plaintiff had found him sufficient Meat, Drink, Washing and Lodging, for several Months last past, promised to pay him as much as he should deserve, and averred that he deserved so much; upon Non Assumpsit pleaded, the Plaintiff had a Verdict; but it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Declaration was short and uncertain, as to the Time and Number of Months: Though the Declaration was held good, and the Plaintiff had Judgment. Mich. 12 W. 3. B. R. 2 Salk. 557. Where the Word Quantum was omitted in the Declaration, Tantum hath been adjudged sufficient, viz. The Defendant promised to pay so much as he deserved; and Meruisse signifies as much as ipse Meruisse: Also on several Counts, Quantum habere meruit was construed to be Quantum habere meruerit, to make the Parties mean somewhat, as it was plain they did, though this was contrary to the Grammatical Construction; and the Court held that they must take the Words of the Declaration, to be the very Words of the Promise, &c. Pasch. and Hill. 4 Ann. B. R. In a Quantum Meruit, bringing Money

Money into Court was denied. Hill. 8 Will. 3 B. R. But it was allowed, ex motu Magistri Raymond, Pasch. 5 Ann. 2 Salk. 597.

Quantum valebat, Is where Goods and Wares sold are delivered by a Tradesman at no certain Price, or to be paid for them as much as they are worth in general; then Quantum valebat lies, and the Plaintiff is to aver them to be worth so much: So where the Law obliges one to furnish another with Goods or Provisions, as an Inn keeper his Guests, &c. *Præf. Quare ejecit infra Terminum, Is a Writ that lies for a Lessee, where he is cast out of his Farm before his Term is expired, against a Feoffee of the Lands, or the Lessor that eject him; and the Effect of it is to recover his Term again, and his Damages. Reg. Orig. 227. F. N. B. 197. New Nat. Br. 439. It is said this Writ was devised for the following Cause: If a Man make a Lease of Land for Years, and after he ousts his Lessee, and then makes a Feoffment of the Land unto a Stranger in Fee; now the Lessee cannot have a Writ of Ejectione firma against the Feoffee, because he did not put him out, and in that Case the Lessee hath no other Remedy but to enter again into the Land; and if the Feoffee do then put him out, the Lessee may bring Ejectione firma Vi & Armis; but before Entry made by the Lessee, he had no Remedy against the Feoffee: And therefore, by the Equity of the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 24. which enacts, that where it shall happen in one Case, a Writ is found, and in the like Case falling under the same Law, and wanting the same Remedy, &c. it is not so, the Clerks of the Chancery are to agree upon a proper Writ, &c. By Reason of that Statute, was this Writ devised. New Nat. Br. 439. And if a Person lease Lands for Years, and the Lessor doth suffer a Recovery to be had against him upon a feigned Title, and the Recoverer entereth; the Lessee shall have his Writ of Quare ejecit infra Terminum, &c. And the Words of the Writ are, Occasione cuius Venditionis; and yet the same is not properly a Sale, but those Words are only of Form. Ibid. It is in the Election of the Lessee, or if he grants over his Term, the second Lessee, to sue a Writ of Ejectione firma, or a Quare ejecit infra termin. against the Lessor, or his Heir, or against the Lord by Escheat, &c. if they put the Termor out of his Term. 19 Hen. 6.

Quare Impedit, Is a Writ lying for him who hath purchased an Advowson, against a Person that disturbs him in his Right of Advowson by Presenting a Clerk thereto, when the Church is void. F. N. B. 32. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 5. It differs from Affise of Darrein Presentment (or Ullime Presentationis) because that lies where a Man or his Ancestors, under whom he claims, have formerly presented to the Church; and this is for him that is the Purchaser himself: But in both these, the Plaintiff recovers the Presentation and Damages; though in the Writ of Darrein Presentment, &c. he recovers only the Presentation, not the Title to the Advowson, as he doth in a Quare Impedit; for which Reason that Affise is seldom brought, and for that the Proceedings in it are very tedious: And where a Man may have Affise of Darrein Presentment, he may have Quare Impedit. 2 Inst. 356. 3 Nels. Abr. 31. The Writ Quare Impedit is to be brought in Six Months after the Avoidance; and by it a Patron may be relieved, not only on his Presentation to a Church, but to a Chapel, Prebend, Vicarage, &c. And this Writ lies of a Donative, and the special Matter is to be set forth in the Declaration: It also lieth for a Deanery by the King, although it be elective; and for an Archdeaconry, but not for a meer Office of the Church.

1 Inst. 344. 1 Leon. 205. And the Chapter may have a Quare Impedit against the Dean, of their several Possessions. 40 Ed. 3. 48. If the Quare Impedit be for a Donative, the Writ shall be Quare Impedit to present to the Donative; if of a Parsonage, then it is Quare Impedit Presentare ad Ecclesiam; if to a Vacarage, it is ad Vicariam; if to a Prebend, ad Præbendam, &c. 3 Nels. Abr. 35. If a Bishop be disturbed to collate, where he ought to make Collation, he may have a Writ Quare Impedit, and the Writ shall be quod permittat ipsam Presentare, &c. and he shall count upon the Collation: And if the King be disturbed in his Collation by Letters Patent, he shall have Quare Impedit. &c. New Nat. Br. 73. A Grantee of a next Avoidance may bring this Writ against the Patron who granted the Avoidance. 39 Hen. 6. It may be brought by Executors, for a Disturbance in vita Testatoris; and Executors being disturbed in their Presentation, may bring Quare Impedit as well as their Testator might. Owen 99. Lutw. 1. Husband and Wife jointly, or the Husband alone without his Wife may have the Writ Quare Impedit; and if a Man who hath an Advowson in Right of his Wife, be disturbed in his Presentation, and dies, the Wife shall bring it on that Disturbance. 14 Hen. 4. 5 Rep. 97. The Heir shall not have Quare Impedit, for a Disturbance tempore patris; nor can he have Execution upon a Recovery by the Ancestor. Br. 2 Imp. pl. 7, 9. But by Statute 13 Ed. 1. c. 5. Usurpation of Churches during Wardship, particular Estates or Vacancy, &c. shall not bar an Heir at full Age, Reversioner in Possession, or a Spiritual Person in Succession, from having a Writ possessory of Quare Impedit, &c. as the Ancestor or Predecessor might have had, if such Usurpation had been in their Time: And the same Form of Pleading shall be had in Darrein Presentment, and Quare Impedit. Where Partition is made upon Record, to present by Turns, the Coparcener that is disturbed shall not be put to a Quare Impedit; but may have Remedy upon the Roll, by Scire facias: It is otherwise on an Agreement to present. Stat. ibid. 22 Ed. 4. 8. If Tenant in Tail suffers an Usurpation, and dies, and six Months pass, the Issue in Tail cannot bring Quare Impedit; but at the next Avoidance he may have it within the six Months. 46 Affise 4. This Writ is all in the Possession; and the Presentment of Grantee of the next Avoidance is a good Title for the Grantor and Patron in Fee to bring it; and likewise for his Heir, and other Grantees. 9 Hen. 7. 23. 5 Rep. 97. Presentment alleged in Lessee for Life, or Years, or it is said in Tenant at Will, is sufficient in Quare Impedit: So of Tenant in Dower, or by the Curtesy; also of Tenants by Statute Merchant, Staple or Elegit, &c. 21 Ed. 4. 2, 5. Co. Rep. 97. Malory's 2. Imped. 155. It supposes both a Possession and a Right; and a Plaintiff must alledge a Presentation in himself, or in those under whom he claims; unless it be in Case of Lapse, &c. In the Declaration of the Plaintiff, it is not sufficient for him to alledge, that he, or such a Person from whom he claims, were seized of the Advowson of the Church, but he must alledge a Presentation made by one of them; for if he doth not, the Defendant may demur to the Declaration: And the Reason of this is, that the Defendant, by joining the last Presentation to his own Title, is to make appear, that he hath a Right to present now as well as then. Cre. Elix. 518. 5 Rep. 97. Vaugh. 57. The Writ must be brought in that County where the Church is; the Patron and Incumbent are to be named in it, the one as he may be dispossessed of his Patronage, and the other of his Presentation; and it is usual likewise to make the Bishop a Defendant, to prevent a Lapse, where the Church is void, pendente lite: Quare Impedit will not lie against the Ordinary and Incumbent, without naming the Patron; because at Common Law the Incumbent could not plead any Thing which concerned the Right of Patronage, and therefore it is unreasonable that he alone should be named in the Writ who could not defend the Patronage; but the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. c. 7. enables him to plead against the King, and to defend his Incumbency, although he claims nothing in the Patronage; and by that Statute he shall plead against any common Person; though with this Difference, that when the Inheritance of the Patron is to be devested by a Judgment in a Quare Impedit, there he must be named in the Writ; but where the next Presentation only is to be recovered, he need not be named: Yet where the King presents without a Title, and his Clerk is inducted, the Quare Impedit is to be against the Ordinary and Incumbent; for it will not lie against the King; but if he is Plaintiff, the Writ may be brought against the Patron alone, without naming the Incumbent. 7 Rep. 25. 2 Cro. 650. Palm. 306. If the Church be full of a Presentation, so that there is no Danger of Lapse, the Bishop need not be named in a Quare Impedit; but it is otherwise where it stands upon a Disturbance only: And though this Writ will lie against a Patron alone; yet in a common Case, where any Clerk is presented and inducted, the Incumbent shall not be removed, without naming him also. Hob. 320. Glis. & Guss. 235. Jenk. Cent. 200. The only Plea which the Bishop hath by the Common Law on a Quare Impedit is, that he claimeth nothing but as ordinary; he could not counterplead the Patron's Title, or any Thing to the Right of Patronage, nor could the Incumbent counterplead such Title, till the said Stat. 25 Ed. 3. by which both the Bishop and the Incumbent may counterplead the Title of the Patron; the one, when he collates by Lapse, or makes Title himself to the Patronage; and the other being Persona impersonata, may plead his Patron's Title, and counterplead the Title of the Plaintiff: And it has been adjudged, that the Incumbent cannot plead to the Title of the Parsonage, without shewing that he is Persona impersonata of the Presentation of the Patron, W. Jones 4. March 159. 3 Nels. Abr. 38. In a Quare Impedit, though it was found that the Church was full of another, who was a Stranger to the Writ, and it did not appear whether he came in by a better Title than that which was found for the Plaintiff; it was held, that the Plaintiff might have a general Writ to the Bishop, which he is bound by Law to execute, or shall be amerced, &c. and he cannot return that the Church is full of another; for no Issue can be joined between the Bishop and the Plaintiff, because he has no Day in Court. 6 Rep. 51. 3 Leon. 136. But where a Plaintiff recovered an Advowson in Ejectment, and thereupon had a Writ to the Bishop, there being another Incumbent in the Church, who was not a Party to the Action; adjudged that this Writ would not lie without a Scire facias to the Incumbent. Sid. 93. If it appears in a Quare Impedit, either in Pleading, or by Confession of the Parties, that neither of them have a Title, but that it is in the King; the Court may award a Writ to the Bishop for the King, to remove the Incumbent, and admit idoneam Personam ad Presentationem Regis; but this must be when his Title is very plain. Hob. 126, 163. 1 Leon. 323. In Quare Impedit, the Plaintiff and Defendant are both Actors, so that the Defendant may have a Writ to the Bishop, as well as the Plaintiff; but not without a Title appearing to the Court; wherefore if the Defendant never appears, the Plaintiff must make out a Title for Form-sake, and so must the Defendant if the Plaintiff be nonsuited. Hob. 163. If the Plaintiff, after Appearance, in a Quare Impedit be nonsuited, it is peremptory; because the Defendant upon a Title made, whereby he becomes Actor, shall have a Writ to the Bishop: And it is the same in Case of a Discontinuance. 7 Rep. 27. It is the Nature of a Quare Impedit to be final, either upon a Discontinuance or Nonsuit; and a Man cannot have two Suits for the same Thing in this Case against one Person, though he may have several *Quare Impedit*s against several Persons. 7 Rep. 27. Hob. 137. The Parson, Patron, and Ordinary are sued; the Ordinary disclaims, and the Parson loseth by Default; the Plaintiff shall have Judgment to recover his Presentation, and a Writ issue to the Bishop, &c. with a Cessat executio, until the Plea is determined between the Plaintiff and Patron. Vaughn 6. Several were Plaintiffs in a Quare Impedit, the Defendant pleaded the Release of one of them pending the Writ; and it was resolved, that this Release shall only bar him who made it, and that the Writ shall stand good for the Rest. 5 Rep. 97. In a Quare Impedit against the Archbishop, the Bishop, and three Defendants; the Archbishop pleaded that he claimed nothing but as Metropolitan; and the Bishop pleaded that he claimed nothing but as Ordinary; and the three Defendants made a Title; but there was a Verdict against them: It was a Question, Whether the Writ of Execution should be awarded to the Archbishop, or the Bishop; and it was held, that where neither of them are Parties in Interest, it may be directed to either; but if the Bishop is Party in Interest, it must be directed to the Archbishop. 6 Rep. 48. 3 Bulst. 174. And if the Bishop of Canterbury be Plaintiff in a Quare Impedit, the Writ must be directed to the Archbishop of York, &c. Show. 329. If the Defendant pleads Ne disturba, which is in Effect the General Issue in a Quare Impedit, this will be only a Defence of the Wrong with which he stands charged, and is so far from controverting the Plaintiff's Title, that it as it were confesses it; and the Plaintiff may presently pray a Writ to the Bishop, or maintain the Disturbance in order to recover Damages. Hob. 163. There must be a Disturbance to maintain this Action: In a Quare Impedit, the Patron declared upon a Disturbance of him to present 1 November; the Incumbent pleaded, that 1 May next after, the Presentation devolved upon the Queen by Lapse, and she presented him to the Church, &c. And upon Demurrer the Plea was held ill; because the Defendant had not confessed and avoided, nor traversed the Disturbance, set forth in the Declaration: And though by the Demurrer the Queen's Title was confessed, it appearing that it was already executed, and the Defendant having lost his Incumbency by ill Pleading, the Writ shall not be awarded to the Bishop for the Queen to present again, but for the Patron. 1 Leon. 194. In all *Quare Impedit*s, the Defendant may traverse the Presentation alledged by the Plaintiff, if the Matter of Fact will bear it; but the Defendant must not deny the Presentation alledged, where there was a Presentation. Vaughn. 16, 17. And if a Presentment is alledged in the Grantor and Grantee, the Presentment in the Grantor is only traversable; for that is the Principal. Cro. Eliz. 518. The Courts at Westminster are very cautious not to abate the Writ of Quare Impedit, for any Want of Form, &c. yet if the Bishop against whom the Writ is brought, or any of the Defendants are misnamed, it is good Cause of Abatement: If the Patron be not named in the Writ, it may be pleaded in Abatement; though the Death of the Patron pending the Writ doth not abate it, if the Quare Impedit is brought against the Bishop, Patron, and Incumbent: And if the Incumbent dies, pending the Writ, and a Disturber should present again, and die, Quare Impedit would lie upon the first Disturbance by Journis Accounts; but the first Writ is abated by the Plaintiff's Death; also if the Plaintiff bring a new Writ

Writ within fifteen Days after the Abatement, that shall be a Continuance of the first Writ, and prevent the Defendant's taking any Advantage: But if the Writ abate for any Fault in the Declaration, the Defendant shall have a Writ to the Bishop to admit his Clerk; and so he shall if Judgment is given upon a Demurrer, &c. Cro. Eliz. 324. Cro. Car. 651. 7 Rep. 57. Dyer 240. In a Plea of Quare Impedit, Days are given from 15 to 16, or from three Weeks to three Weeks, according to the Distance of Place: And if the Disturber come not in on the great Distress, a Writ is to be sent to the Bishop, that he claim not to the Prejudice of the Plaintiff for that Time; and upon Recovery, Judgment is to be given to the Party to recover the Presentation and Advowson. Stat. 52 H. 3. c. 12. 2 Roll. Abr. 377. And Damages are given in a Quare Impedit, by the Stat. of Westm. 2. c. 5. though Damages shall not be had against the Bishop, where he claims nothing but as ordinary, and is no Disturber. 3 Lev. 59. Before this Statute no Damages were allowed on a Quare Impedit; and the King hath none at this Day, for although he declares Ad damnum, &c. he is not within that Statute; because by his Prerogative he cannot lose his Presentation. 6 Rep. 52. If a Plaintiff hath a Verdict, and the Church is found to be vacant, the Patron may have the Fruits of his Presentation, and so not be intitled to Damages; in which Case, a Remittitur de damnis is entered. 3 Lev. 59. There are two Judgments in a Quare Impedit, viz. That the Plaintiff shall have a Writ to the Bishop; and this is the final Judgment, that goes to the Right between the Parties, and is the Judgment at Common Law: And Judgment for Damages, since the Stat. of West. 2. after the Points of the Writ are inquired into; which Judgment is not to be given but at the Instance of the Party. 1 Mod. 254. 255. The Points to be inquired of, where the Jury find for the Plaintiff, &c. are, of whom, and upon whose Presentation the Church is full; how long since it was void; the yearly Value of the Church, &c. which being found, Damages are to be given accordingly. 6 Rep. 51. No Costs are recoverable in Quare Impedit, because of the great Damages given by the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 5. which ordains, that when six Months pass hanging a Quare Impedit, &c. so that the Bishop presents by Lapse, the Patron shall recover Damages to two Years Value of the Church; otherwise to have only Half a Year's Value. See 10 Rep. 56. Where Judgment is given to have a Writ to the Bishop in Quare Impedit; it shall not be reversed upon a Writ of Error brought on the whole Judgment, though the Judgment by the Statute for Damages be erroneous and reversed. 5 Co. Rep. 58, 59. A Quare Impedit was brought against two, one of them cast an Escoin, and idem dies datus est to the other, &c. Then an Attachment issued against them for not appearing at the Day, and Process continued to the Grand Cape; which being returned, and the Parties not appearing, it was ruled that final Judgment should be entered according to the Stat. 52 H. 3. But on Motion to discharge this Rule, because the Defendants were not summoned either upon the Attachment or grand Distress, the Summoners being only the feigned Names of John Doe and Richard Roe, the Judgment was set aside; for the Design of the Statute was to have Process duly executed, and that must be with Notice, &c. And where the Right is for ever concluded, this being so fatal, the Process must never be suffered to be a Thing of Course. 1 Mod. 248. A Writ of Quare Impedit is had against two Persons; one doth not appear at the Grand Distress; the other pleads in Bar; there shall be a Writ to the Bishop for the Plaintiff, without his making any Title, by Stat. Marlb. cap. 12. And if the Bar pleaded by the other Defendant be found for him, he shall also have a Writ to the Bishop; and these two Persons being admitted, instituted and inducted upon the two Writs, shall try their Right in an Assise, or Trespass. Tenk. Cent. 95. Though where two Defendants in a Quare Impedit plead several Bars, and one of them is found against the Plaintiff, and the other with him; he shall not have his Writ to the Bishop. If there are many Defendants, pleading several Pleas; the Plaintiff shall not have Judgment before all the Pleas are tried; for though some be for the Plaintiff, others may be found against him, and he cannot have Judgment without good Title. F. N. B. 30. Hob. 70. When one recovers in a Quare Impedit against an Incumbent, the Incumbent is so removed by the Judgment, that the Recoverer may present without any Thing farther; but the Incumbent continues Incumbent de facto; till such Presentation is made: And if the Plaintiff in this Suit be instituted upon a Writ to the Bishop, the Defendant cannot appeal; if he doth, a Prohibition lies; because in this Case, the Bishop acts as the King's Minister, and not as a Judge. 2 Roll. Abr. 365. 1 Roll. Rep. 62. If one brings a Quare Impedit against the Patron and Incumbent of a Church within six Months, and recovers after the six Months, he shall remove the Incumbent, if named in the Writ. 2 Roll. Abr. 373. And the King cannot remove an Incumbent, presented, instituted and inducted, although upon a Usurpation, but by Quare Impedit in a judicial Way. 2 Cro. 385. If a Man at this Day, by the King's Licence, creates a Church which shall be presentable, if he be disturbed to present to it, he may have a Quare Impedit without alledging a Presentation in any Person: But anciently it was held he might not, because he could not alledge a Presentation. 20 Ed. 4. 14. *Mallery's Q. Form of the Writ of Quare Impedit.

GEORGE the Second, &c. to the Sheriff of W. Greeting: Command B. Bishop of S. and A. B. that they justly and without Delay, permit C. D. of &c. to present a fit Person to the Church of H. which is void, and belongeth to his Gift, as he saith; and wherof the said C. complains, that the said B. Bishop and A. him unjustly disturb therein: And if they shall not so do, and the said C. gives you Security, &c. then do you summon by good Summoners the said Bishop and the said A. that they be before our Justices at Westminster, &c. to shew Cause why they will not do it: And have you there, &c.

Form of a Declaration, Plea, and Judgment, &c. in Quare Impedit.

Wils. ff. Bishop of Salisbury and A. B. Clerk, were summoned to answer to C. D. Esq. of a Plea, or in an Action, that they permit him to present a fit Parson to the Vicarage of the Church of H. which is vacant, and belongs to his Gift, &c. And wherupon the said C. D. by &c. his Attorney saith or declares, that wheretas one E. F. was seised of the Rectory of H. in the County aforesaid, wherunto the Advowson of the Vicarage of the Church aforesaid doth belong, in his Demesne as of a Fee and Right; and being so seised thereof, the said E. F. afterwards, to wit, the Day of, &c. in the Year of the Reign, &c. at H. aforesaid, by his certain Deed in Writing, which the said C. D. with the Seal of the said E. sealed, here brings into this Court, the Date wherof is the same Day and Year, granted to the said C. and one W. M. the Rectory aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, wherunto the Advowson, &c. amongst other Things; To have and to hold to the said C. and W. and the Heirs of the said C. for ever: By Virtue of which Grants the said C. and W. were seised of the Rectory aforesaid, with the

the Appurtenances, whereto, &c. in their Demise, to wit, the said C. as of Fee and Right, and of the said W. as of Freehold for Term of his Life; and the said C. and W. being so thereof seised, afterwards the Vicarage of the said Church became vacant, by the Death or Resignation of, &c. the last Incumbent, and yet is void: And for that Reason, it now belongs to the said C. to present a fit Parson to the said Vicarage; and the said Bishop and A. unjustly binder, or disturb him therein, wherupon he declares, that he is injured and endamaged to the Value of 100 l. and thereof he brings his Suit, &c. And the said B. Bishop of S. and A. B. Clerk, by, &c. their Attorney, come and defend the Force and Injury when, &c. And the said A. B. pleads, &c. And the said Bishop and A. B. further plead, that the said C. D. ought not to have his said Action against them, because they say that the said Vicarage of the said Church of H. became vacant by the Death of the said, &c. on the Day, &c. in the Year of our Lord, &c. on which Day the said Bishop collated the said Church so vacant, to the said A. B. for that the six Months after the Avoidance of the said Church were fully elapsed, so that the Right of Collating was devolved to the Bishop as Ordinary of that Place, as it was lawful for him to do; and this they are ready to verify; wherfore they pray Judgment, whether the said C. D. ought to have his said Action against them, &c. And the said C. D. replies, that he ought not by any Thing above alleged, to be precluded or barred from his said Action; because he saith, &c. (Here setting forth a Presentment of one G. H. and the Bishop's Refusal to admit him, &c. wheron they are at Issue, and a Verdict for the Plaintiff) That the Bishop did totally refuse to admit and institute him, and that the Church is full of the said A. B. by the Collation of the said Bishop of S. and that the said Church is, and at the Time, &c. was of the yearly Value of, &c. Therefore it is adjudged, that the said C. D. do recover against the said Bishop of S. and A. B. his Presentment of the Vicarage of the Church aforesaid, and his Damages, to the Value of the Church for Half a Year, which amount to, &c. assessed by the said Jury in the Manner aforesaid; and let him have a Writ to the Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, and Metropolitan of that Place, because the said Bishop of S. is a Party, &c. (and for that the said A. B. is admitted, instituted and inducted into the same Church by the said Bishop) to remove the said A. B. from that Church, and that he admit a fit Parson thereto, on the Presentment of the said C. D. and be the said Bishop and A. B. amerced, &c.

Quare Incumbavit, A Writ that lieth against the Bishop, who within six Months after the Vacation of a Benefice, consents it upon his Clerk, whilst two others are contending at Law for the Right of Presentation. Reg. Orig. 32. Or it is a Writ brought after a Recovery in a Quare Impedit, or Assise of Darrein Presentment, against the Bishop that thus admits a Clerk, notwithstanding the Writ Ne admittas served on him: For if the Bishop doth incumber the Church before a Ne admittas is issued, then the Party shall have a Quare Impedit; as the Ordinary can have no Notice till the Ne Admittas. F. N. B. 32, 33. Wood's Inst. 571. And if a Man hath a Writ of Rights of Advowson depending between him and another, and the Church is void pendant the Writ, the Plaintiff shall not have a Quare Incumb. or Ne admittas, although the Bishop incumber the Church; because the Plaintiff shall not recover the Presentment upon this Writ, but the Advowson: And where he hath Title to present, he may do it; and have Quare Impedit, if he be disturbed. New Nat. Br. 108, 109. If the Bishop delay the true Patron in his Presentation, and the Patron sues a Quare Impedit, he may thereupon have a Ne Admittas; and if the Bishop after the Receipt of such Writ, admit the Clerk of any other Person without a Verdict in a Jure Patronatus, the true Patron shall have Quare Incumbavit against the Bishop, and thereby recover the Presentment with Damages: Also a Writ is to be directed to the Bishop to disincumber the Church. F. N. B. 37. This Writ may be brought after the six Months; and if the Plaintiff be Nonfuit in a Quare Incumbavit, he may have another Writ, and vary for his first Declaration, &c. Ibid. 48. After a Ne Admittas delivered, if the six Months pass, the Bishop may present his Clerk for Lapse, and shall not be charged by the Writ of Quare Incumbavit for the Presentation; but he cannot admit the Clerk of the other Man, for that would be against the Writ Ne Admittas delivered to him. F. N. B. 48. If the Bishop does incumber the Church, where there is no Dispute about it, yet this Writ Quare Incumbavit lies; but according to the best Opinions there ought to be a Suit depending, though there is no actual Recovery: 18 E. 3. 17. Fitz. 2. Imped. 3. The Writ is to summon the Bishop, to be before the Justices, &c. to shew Cause why he hath incumbered the said Church, to the great Damage and Injury of the Plaintiff A. and contrary to the Laws and Customs of the Kingdom, &c.

But if the Party on whom such a Rule is made, shew to the Court a reasonable Cause against such Prosecution; as against a Quo Warranto Information, that his Right in the Franchise in Question hath been already determined on a Mandamus; or been acquiesced in many Years; or that it depends on the Right of others which hath not been tried; or that the Franchise no way concerns the Publick, but is wholly of private Nature, &c. the Court will not generally grant the Information. 2 Hawk. P. C. 262, 263. A Quo Warranto was brought for Vexation, on Forty-eight Points; and the Court on Motion, ordered that the Prosecutor should wave that Quo Warranto, and bring a new one, and therein insist only upon three Points; but that he might proceed to Trial upon his new Quo Warranto, in such Time as he might have done upon the old. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 414. A Quo Warranto requires to know of the Defendant by what Authority he claims the Liberties, and charges him with the wrongful Usurpation of them: In a Quo Warranto to shew by what Authority a Person claimed to have a Court-Leet, and alledging farther quod usurpavit Libertatem sine aliqua concessione, &c. the Defendant pleaded Non usurpavit; and it was objected that this was no good Plea, for that the Answer to a Quo Warranto is either to claim or disclaim; but the better Opinion was, that by this Plea the Defendant had answered the Usurpation, though it did not shew by what Title he had claimed. Godb. 91. In Quo Warranto for using a Fair and Market, and taking Toll, Issue was taken, whether they had Toll by Prescription, or not; and it was found that they had; and it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that here was a Discontinuance, because there was no Issue as to the other Liberties claimed: But it was held, they were too soon to make this Objection, and that there can be no Discontinuance against the King before Judgment; for by Virtue of his Prerogative, the Attorney General may proceed to take Issue upon the Rest, or may enter a Nolle Prosequi; but if he will not proceed, the Court may make a Rule on him ad replicandum, and then there may be a special Entry made of it. Hardres 504. 3 Nels. Abr. 43. A Motion was made for an Information in Nature of a Quo Warranto, against a Mayor and Aldermen, to shew by what Authority they admitted Persons to be Freemen of the Corporation, who did not inhabit in the Borough: The Motion was said to be in Behalf of the Freemen, who by this Means were encroached upon; and an Information was granted, there being no other Way to try it, nor to redress the Parties concerned. 1 Salk. 374. Quo Warranto Information may be brought against a Person voting in the Election of a Mayor, or other Chief Magistrate of a Corporation, that hath no Right to do it, upon Affidavit made that the Defendant voted in such an Election, and that the Deponent the Prosecutor believes he had no Right to do it, &c. And by Stat. 9 Ann. c. 20. If any Person shall usurp, intrude into, or unlawfully hold or execute the Office of a Mayor, Bailiff, or other Office in any Town Corporate or Place in England, the proper Officer of the Court of King's Bench, &c. may exhibit Informations in the Nature of a Quo Warranto, at the Relation of any Person desiring to prosecute, who shall be mentioned therein to be the Relator against such Usurper, and proceed as usual; and if the Right of divers Persons may properly be determined in one Information, one Information shall serve, and the Defendants shall appear and plead as of the same Term, &c. the Information is filed, unless the Court give further Time; and the Prosecutor shall proceed with all convenient Speed: And if the Defendants be found guilty of an Usurpation, &c. the said Courts may as well give Judgment of Ouster, as fine the Defendants; and also give Judgment that the Relator shall recover his Costs: And if Judgment be given against the Relator, the Defendants shall have Costs to be levied by Capias ad Satisfaciend. Fieri facias, &c. In a Quo Warranto, the Judgment is final, because that is a Writ of Right; but Judgment on Information, in Nature of a Quo Warranto, is not conclusive: The Proceedings in one are Summons, and Judgment that the Liberties be seized, if the Defendant doth not appear; but in the other the Prosecutor is a Venire facias and Disfringas. Sid. 86. Kelw. 139, &c. 3 Nels. Abr. 43. Upon Quo Warranto, when the Liberties are seized quousque, &c. and they do not replevy them, the Court is, that Judgment final be given, Nisi they plead within such a Time. Cambrbach 18, 19. Where ever Judgment is given for the King on a Quo Warranto, for Liberties usurped, the Judgment is Quod extinguatur, and that the Usurpers Libertatis, &c. nullatenus intromittant; and in such Case the Writ must be brought against particular Persons: But where the Quo Warranto is for a Liberty claimed by a Corporation, there it is to be brought against the Body Politick; and the Liberties may be seized, but the Corporation still subsists, and is not dissolved without Cause of Forfeiture. 4 Mod. 52, 58. A Judgment of Seizure cannot be proper where a Thing is dissolved: And by the Judgment in the Quo Warranto against the City of London, which was quod Libertatis & Franchisae capiuntur & seifantur in manus Regis, the Corporation was not dissolved; for it implied that they were not extinguished. Ibid. It has been observ'd, that frequent and violent Prosecutions on Quo Warranto's in Behalf of the Crown, have been fatal to both King and People.

Lit.* 190. And the Word Rapuit is ſo appropriated by Law to this Offence, that it cannot be expreſſed by any other; even the Words Carnaliter Cognovit, &c. without it, will not be ſufficient. 1 Inst. 124. 2 Inst. 180. There muſt be Penetration and Emiſſion, to make this Crime; and it is ſaid Emiſſion may be Evidence prima facie of Penetration, tho' not full Evidence: If there be no Penetration and Emiſſion, an Attempt to raviſh a Woman, though it be never ſo outrageous, will be an Aſſault only. 1 Hawk. P. C. 108. It was a Queſtion before 18 Eliz. c. 7. whether a Rape could be committed on the Body of a Child of the Age of ſix or ſeven Years; and a Perſon being indicted for the Rape of a Girl of ſeven Years old, although he was found guilty, the Court doubted whether a Child of that Age could be raviſhed; if ſhe had been nine Years old ſhe might, for at that Age ſhe may be endowed. Dyer 304. By the Stat. 18 Eliz. whoſoever ſhall carnally know and abuſe any Woman Child under the Age of ten Years, he ſhall ſuffer as a Felon, without Benefit of Clergy: And upon an Indictment for this Offence, it is no way material whether ſuch Child conſented, or were forced; but it muſt be proved that the Offender entered her Body, &c. 3 Cro. 332. Dalt. 393. In Rapes, it is no Excuse or Mitigation of the Crime, that the Woman at laſt yielded to the Violence, and conſented either after the Fact or before, if ſuch her Conſent was forced by Fear of Death or of Durels; or that ſhe was a common Strumpet, for ſhe is ſtill under the Protection of the Law, and may be forced: But it was antiently held to be no Rape to force a Man's own Concubine; and 'tis ſaid by ſome to be Evidence of a Woman's Conſent, that ſhe was a common Whore. 1 Hawk. 108. 1 Inst. 123. Alſo formerly it was adjudged not to be a Rape to force a Woman, who conceived at the Time; becauſe if ſhe had not conſented, ſhe could not have conceived: Though this Opinion hath been ſince queſtion'd, by Reaſon the previous Violence is no way extenuated by ſuch a ſubſequent Conſent; and if it were neceſſary to ſhew that the Woman did not conceive, to make the Crime, the Offender could not be tried till ſuch Time as it might appear whether ſhe did or not. 2 Inst. 190. The ſooner Complaint is made of a Rape the better: In Scotland it ought to be complained of the ſame Day or Night it is committed; and our Law mentions forty Days: It is a ſtrong Prefumption againſt a Woman, that she made no Complaint in a reasonable Time after the Fact. 1 Inst. 123. 7 Inst. 59. H. P. C. 117. On a Bill of Conspiracy, &c. where a Defendant did not indict the Plaintiff for a Rape, in a short Time after the Injury supposed to be done, but concealed it for Half a Year, and then would have preferred an Indictment against him; this was resolved to be malicious, and that there not being Recens prosecutio argued a Consent. 3 Nels. Abr. 45. A Woman ravish'd may prosecute, and be a Witness in her own Cause. 3 Rep. 37. Yet a Woman's positive Oath of a Rape, without concurring Circumstances, is seldom credited: If a Man can prove himself to be in another Place, or in other Company, at the Time she charges him with the Fact, this will overthrow her Oath; so if she is wrong in the Description of the Place, or swears the Fact to be committed in a Place whereto it was impossible the Man could have Access at that Time; as if the Room was lock'd up, and the Key in the Custody of another Person, &c. Aiders and Abettors in committing a Rape, may be indicted as principal Felons, whether Men or Women; and the Lord Audley was indicted and executed as a Principal, for assisting his Servant to ravish his own Wife, who was admitted a Witness against him. Dalt. 107. State Trials, Vol. 1. p. 265. By Hale C. J. A Party ravish'd may give Evidence upon Oath; but the Credibility of her Testimony, and how far she is to be believed, must be left to the Jury, being more or less credible according to the Circumstances of Fact, and Signs of the Injury, which are many; and tho' Rape is a most detestable Crime, it is an Accusation easily made, and hard to be proved, but harder to be defended by the Man accused, altho' ever so innocent: And there are several Instances of Rapes fully proved, but have after been discovered to be malicious Contrivances. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 633, 635. Of old Time, Rape was Felony, and punished with Death; especially if the Party ravish'd were a Virgin, unless such Virgin would accept of the Offender for her Husband, in which Case she might save his Life; by marrying him; for if she demanded him for her Husband before Judgment passed, he escaped Punishment; but by the Stat. Westm. 2. her Election is taken away: Afterwards it was looked upon as a great Misdemeanor only, and not Felony, but dreadfully punished, viz. by the Loss of Eyes and Privy Members; and by the Statute of Westm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 13. it was reduced to Trespas, subjecting the Offender to two Years Imprisonment, and a Fine at the King's Will: But the Stat. Westm. 2. c. 34. made it Felony again; and it is excluded from the Benefit of the Clergy, by 18 Elix. Rape was excepted out of the general Pardon, 2 W. & M. c. 10, &c. See Appeal of Rape.
8 D that

Rationabilis parte Bonorum, Is a Writ that lies for the Wife, after the Death of her Husband, against the Executors of the Husband denying her the third Part of his Goods after Debts and Funeral Charges paid. F. N. B. 222. And it appears by Glanville, that by the Common Law of England, the Goods of the Deceased, his Debts first paid, shall be divided into three Parts; one Part for the Wife, another Part for his Children, and the Third to the Executors: And this Writ may be brought by the Children, as well as the Wife. Reg. Orig. 142. But it seems to be used only where the Custom of the Country serves for it; and the Writs in the Register rehearse the Customs of the Counties, &c. New Nat. Br. 270, 271. Br.* calls it a Kind of Justicies, that may be removed by a Pone out of the County-Court into the Common Pleas. F. N. B. 128. Reg. Orig. 157. New Book Entries.

Rationale, A Priest's Garment, worn by the Pope and Bishops, as a Token of the highest Virtue, Quae gratia & Ratione perficitur. See Pecorale.

Ravage, (From the Fr. Ravager) Is Spoil or Destruction by Enemies. - Law Fr. Dist.

Ravishment, (Fr. Ravissement, i. e. Diraptio, raptio) Signifies an unlawful Taking away either of a Woman, or an Heir in Ward; and sometimes it is used in the same Sense with Rape.

Ravishment de gard, Was a Writ that lay for the Guardian by Knights-Service, or in Socage, against a Person who took from him the Body of his Ward. F. N. B. 140. By the Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. this Writ is taken away, as to Lands, held by Knights-Service, &c. but not where there is Guardian in Socage, or appointed by Will: And the Mayor and Aldermen Rasure, Of a Deed, so as to alter it in a material Part, without the Privity of the Party bound by it, &c. will make the same void: And if it be razed in the Date, after the Delivery, it is said it goes through the Whole. 5 Rep. 23, 119. Rasure, &c. is most suspicious, when it is in a Deed poll, that there is but one Part of the Deed, and it makes to the Advantage of him to whom made. And where a Deed by Rasure, Addition or Alteration becomes no Deed, the Defendant may plead Non est factum to it. Ibid.

Reafforested, Is where a Forest which had been disafforested is again made Forest; as the Forest of Dean is by Stat. 20 Car. 2. c. 3.

Realty, Is an Abstract of Real, as distinguished from Personalty.

Reapitler, Was Money paid by Tenants for Exemption from the Duty of Reaping for the Lord. Cartular. S. Edmundi MS. fol 316. See Rippers.

Reason, It has been observ'd, is the very Life of the Law; and that what is contrary to it, is unlawful: When the Reason of the Law once ceases, the Law itself generally ceases; because Reason is the Foundation of all our Laws. Co. Litt. 97, 183. If Maxims of Law admit of any Difference, those are to be preferred which carry with them the more perfect and excellent Reason. Ibid.

Reasonable Aid, Was a duty claimed by the Lord of the Fee of his Tenants holding by Knights Service to marry his Daughter, &c. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 24. See the Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24.

Orig. 35.* A Cause discontinued, or put without Day, cannot be revived without Reattachment or Re-summions; which if they are special, may revive the whole Proceedings; but if general, the original Record only. 2 Hawk. 300. And on a Reattachment, the Defendant is to plead de novo, &c. See Day.

Rebellion, (Rebellio) Among the Romans, was where those who had been formerly overcome in Battle, and yielded to their Subjection, made a second Resistance: But with us it is generally used for the Taking up of Arms traiterously against the King, whether by natural Subjects, or others when once subdued; and the Word Rebel is sometimes applied to him that willfully breaks a Law; likewise to a Villein disobeying his Lord. Stat. 25 Ed. 3. cap. 6. 1 R. 2. c. 6. There is a Difference in our Law between Enemies and Rebels; for Enemies are those that are out of the King's Allegiance; and therefore Subjects of the King, either in open War, or Rebellion, are not the King's Enemies, but Traitors. And David Prince of Wales, who levied War against K. Ed. 1. because he was within the Allegiance of the King, had Sentence pronounced against him as a Traitor and Rebel. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 16. Private Persons may arm themselves to suppress Rebels, Enemies, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 136.

destroy the Deer in any Park, or any Warren of Conies, Dove-houses, or Fish in Ponds; or any House, Barns, Mills, or Bays; or to burn Stacks of Corn; or abate Rents, or Prices of Victuals, &c. Stat. 1 Mar. cap. 12. 1 Ed. 6. See Assembly unlawful.

Rebinare, Was to give a second Stirring or Ploughing to Arable Land that lay fallow, to prepare it for sowing Wheat, &c. or to plough the Ground a third Time for that Purpose. — Tempus Rebinandi erit post Festum Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptistæ cum terra pullulaverit post carnem. Fleta, lib. 3. c. 73.

Rebutter, (From the Fr. Bouter, i. e. Repellere, to put back or bar) Is the Answer of the Defendant in a Cause to the Plaintiff's Surrejoinder: And the Plaintiff's Answer to the Defendant's Rebutter is called a Sur-rebutter; but 'tis very rarely that the Parties go so far in Pleading. Pract. Attorn. Edit. 1. pag. 86. Rebutter is also where a Man by Deed or Fine grants to Warranty any Land or Hereditament to another; and the Person making the Warranty or his Heir, sues him to whom the Warranty is made, or his Heir or Assignee, for the same Thing; if he who is so sued, plead the Deed or Fine with Warranty, and pray Judgment if the Plaintiff shall be received to demand the Thing which he ought to warrant to the Party, against the Warranty in the Deed, &c. this is called a Rebutter. Terms de Ley 511. And if I grant to a Tenant to hold without Impeachment of Waste, and afterwards implead him for Waste done, he may debar me of this Action by shewing my Grant; which is Rebutter. Co. Entr. 284. 1 Inst. 365.

Recaption, (Recaptio) Signifies the Taking a second Distress of one formerly distrained, during the Plea grounded on the former Distress; and it is a Writ to recover Damages for him whose Goods being distrained for Rent, or Service, &c. are distrained again for the same Cause, hanging the Plea in the County-Court, or before the Justices. F. N. B. 71, 72. Stat. 47 Ed. 3. cap. 7. And a Recaption lieth where the Lord distrains other Cattle of the Tenant than he first distrained, as well as if he had distrained the same Cattle again, if it be for one and the same Cause; but 19 E. 3. Issue was taken whether the Cattle were other Cattle of the Plaintiff, &c. New Nat. Br. 161. If the Lord distrain the Cattle of a Stranger for the same Rent, and not his Cattle who was first distrained; neither the Stranger, nor the Party first distrained, shall have the Writ of Recaption: And if the Lord distrain for Rent or Service, and afterwards the Lord's Bailiff takes a Distress on the same Tenant for the same Rent or Service, pending the Plea; the Tenant shall not have a Recaption against the Lord, or against the Bailiff, although the Bailiff maketh Cognizance in Right of the Lord, &c. for it may be the Lord had no Notice of that Distress, or the Bailiff had not Notice of the Distress took by the Lord; though in such Case, Action of Trespas lies; and if the Lord agree to the Distress taken by his Servant or Bailiff, the Tenant may have this Writ against the Lord. Ibid. 159. A Man is distrained within a Liberty, and sues a Replevin there by Plaint or Writ, and pendant that Plaint in the Liberty he is distrained again for the same Cause, by the Person who distrained before; he shall not upon that Distress bring a Writ of Recaption, because the Plaint is not pendant in the County Court before the Sheriff, nor in C. B. before the Justices: But if the Plaint be removed by Pone or Recordare out of the Liberty before the Justices, then the Party distrained may have a Recaption, &c. And if a Person be convicted before the Sheriff in a Writ of Recaption, he shall not only render Damages to the Party, but be amerced for the Contempt; and by the Justices be fined. 39 Ed. 3. For Damage-feasant Beasts may be distrained as often as they shall be found upon the Land; because every Time is for a new Trespas and a new Wrong, and no Recaption lies.

Receiver,

Receiver, (Receptor) Is by us, as with the Civilians, commonly used in the evil Part, for such as receive stolen Goods, &c. And the Receiving a Felon, and Concealing him and his Offence, makes a Person accessory to the Felony. 2 Inst. 183. But a Receiver of a Felon, &c. must have Notice of the Felony either expressly or implied, which is to be expressly charged in the Indictment; and the Felony must be compleat at the Time of the Receipt, and not become so afterwards by Matter subsequent: If a Person knowing of one to have been guilty of Felony, barely receive him and permit him to escape, without giving him any Advice, Assistance or Encouragement, it is a high Misdemeanor, but no capital Offence; and a Wife, in Regard to the Duty and Love which she owes her Husband, may receive him when he hath committed Felony; but no other Relation will exempt the Receiver of a Felon from Punishment. S. P. C. 41. H. P. C. 218, 219. 2 Harw. P. C. 122, 319, 320. By Statute, if any Person shall receive or buy knowingly any stolen Goods, or conceal Felons knowing of the Felony, he shall be accessory to the Felony, and suffer Death as a Felon. Stat. 5 Ann. c. 31. Such Receivers, &c. may be transported, by 4 Geo. 1. c. 11.

Receiver, Annexed to other Words, as Receiver of Rents, signifies an Officer belonging to the King, or other great Personage. Comp. Jurisd. 18. See Accomp.

Receiver of the Fines, Is an Officer who receives the Money of all such as compound with the King upon Original Writs sued out of the Chancery. West. Symb. par. 2. sect. 106. Stat. 1 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Receiver General of the Dutchy of Lancaster, An Officer of the Dutchy Court, that gathers in and collects all the Revenues, Fines, Forfeitures and Assessments, within the said Dutchy, or what else is there to be received arising from the Profits of the Dutchy Lands, &c. 39 Eliz. cap. 7.

Receiver General of the Muster-Rolls, Is mentioned in the Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 4.

Receivers General of the Revenue. The Receivers of the Revenues, are within three Months to pay in their Receipts, on Pain of Forfeiture of Place, &c. 34 & 35 Hen. 8. cap. 2. Also Receivers are to be bound with Sureties for true accounting, and to render Accounts yearly, &c. under Penalties. 7 Ed. 6. c. 1. Receivers of the Revenue Actions may be brought against, and not to be staid by Privilege of Parliament. 2 Ann. cap. 18. And Process shall issue out of the Exchequer against Receivers General of Taxes in Arrear, to finish their Accounts; and they are charged with an Interest, as Damages at the Rate of 10*l. per Cent.* till the Balance is paid, by Stat. 1 Geo. 1. c. 36. If a Receiver General be robbed, Oath is to be made by three in Company, to recover the Money, &c. 6 Geo. 1.

Receiver General of the Court of Wards and Liberties, Was an Officer belonging to that Court; but that Court being taken away by the Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24. this Officer is of Course out of Doors.

Recital, (Recitatio) Is the Rehearal or making Mention in a Deed or Writing of something which has been done before. 2 Lill. Abr. 416. A Recital is not conclusive, because it is no direct Affirmation; and by feign'd Recitals in a true Deed, Men might make what Titles they pleas'd, since false Recitals are not punishable. 1 Inst. 352. 2 Lev. 108. Wood's Inst. 225. If a Person by Deed of Assignment recite that he is possessed of an Interest in certain Lands, and assign it over by the Deed, and become bound by Bond to perform all the Agreements in the Deed; if he is not possessed of such Interest, the Condition is broken; and though a Recital of itself is nothing, yet being joined and considered with the rest of the Deed, it is material. 1 Leon. 112. And where it is but a Recital, that before the Indenture the Parties were agreed to do such a Thing, 'tis a Covenant; and the Deed itself confirms it. 3 Keb. 466. The Recital of one Lease in another, is not a sufficient Proof that there was such a Lease as is recited. Vaugh. 74. But the Recital of a Lease in a Deed of Release, is good Evidence of a Lease against the Relessor and those that claim under him. Mod. Ca. 44. A new reversionary Lease shall commence from the Delivery, where an old Lease is recited, and there is none, &c. Dyer 93. 6 Rep. 36. A. recites that he hath nothing in such Lands, and in Truth he has an Estate there, and makes a Lease to B. for Years: The Recital is void, and the Lease good. Jenk. Cent. 255. In this Case if the Recital were true, the Lease would not bind. Ibid.

Recluse, (Reclusus) Is he who being entered into a religious Order, is shut up, and stirs not out of the House or Cloyster. Litt. 92.

Recognition, (Recognitio) Signifies an Acknowledgment; and it is the Title of the first Chapter of the Stat. 1 Jac. 1. whereby the Parliament acknowledged the Crown of England, on the Death of Queen Elizabeth, rightfully to have descended to King James.

Recognitione adnullenda per Vim & Duritiam facta, Is a Writ to the Justices of C. B. for the Sending a Record touching a Recognizance; which the Recognizor suggests was acknowledged by Force and Durety; that if it so appear, the Recognizance may be disannulled. Reg. Orig. 183.

Recognitors, (Recognitores) Are the Jury impanelled upon an Affise, so called, because they acknowledge a Disseisin by their Verdict. Brañ. lib. 5.

Recognizance, (Fr. Reconnaissance, i. e. Recognitio, Obligatio) Is a Bond or Obligation of Record, acknowledged to the King, &c. And of Recognizances some are for Debt, some for Bail; and others to appear at the Sessions or Affises to prosecute Felons, and to be of Good Behaviour, &c. For Debt, or Bail, they are taken or acknowledged before the Judges, a Master in Chancery, &c. And to appear at the Affise, or Sessions, they may be taken by Justices of Peace; which Recognizances are to be returned by the Justices to the Sessions, or an Information lies against them. 2 Lill. Abr. 417. When a Recognizance of the Peace is made, the Condition is to be read to the Parties bound, calling them by their Names thus: You A. B. do acknowledge to owe unto our Sovereign Lord King George, &c. And then it is to be ingrossed on Parchment, and the Justice is to subscribe it. Dalt. 479, 480. In these Recognizances, the Principal is bound in double the Sum of the Sureties; and the usual Number of Sureties are Two, and the usual Penalty 40*l.* at least; though if the Party be a very dangerous Person, a Justice may insist upon a Recognizance of 100*l.* Penalty. Style 322. Recognizances in general are of several Sorts; one is founded on the Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 6. By which Statute, the Chief Justices of the King's Bench, and Common Pleas in Term-Time, or in their Absence out of the Term, the Mayor of the Staple at Westminster, and the Recorder of London jointly, have Power to take Recognizances for the Payment of Debts in this Form, Noverins. Universi per presentes nos A. B. & C. D. teneri & firmiter obligari E. F. in centum libris, &c. They are to be sealed with the Seal of the Cognizor, and of the King, appointed for that Purpose, and the Seal of one of the Chief Justices, &c. And the Recognizees, their Executors and Administrators shall have the like Process and Execution against the Recognizors, as upon Obligations of Statute-staple. 2 Inst. 678. The Execution upon a Recognizance or Statute, pursuant to the Stat. 23 Hen. 8. is called an Extent; and the Body of the Cognizor, (if he be a Layman) and all his Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, into whose Hands soever they come, are liable to the Extent: Goods (not of other Persons in his Possession) and Chattels, as Leases for Years, Cattle,

Cattle, &c. that are in his own Hands, and not sold bona fide and for valuable Consideration, are also subject to the Extent. 3 Rep. 13. But the Land is not the Debtor, but the Body; and Land is liable only in Respect that it was in the Hands of the Cognisor at the Time of the Acknowledgment of the Recognizance, or after; and the Person is charged, but the Lands chargeable only. Plowd. 72. Lands held in Tail shall be chargeable only during Life, and not affect the Issue in Tail; unless a Recovery be passed, when it is as Fee-simple Land: Copyhold Lands are subject to the Extent, only during the Life of the Cognisor: The Lands a Man hath in Right of his Wife, shall be chargeable but during the Lives of the Husband and Wife together; and Lands which the Cognisor hath in Jointenancy with another, are liable to Execution during the Life of the Cognisor, and no longer; for after his Death, if no Execution was sued in his Life, the surviving Jointenant shall have all; but if the Cognisor survive, all is liable. 2 Inst. 673. If two or more join in the Recognizance, &c. the Lands of all ought equally to be charged: And where a Cognisor, after he hath entered into a Recognizance or Statute, doth convey away his Lands to divers Persons, and the Cognissee sues Execution upon the Lands of some of them, and not all: In this Case he or they whose Lands are taken in Execution, may by Audita Querela or Scire facias have Contribution from the rest, and have all the Lands equally and proportionably extended. 3 Rep. 14. Plowd. 72. But the Cognisor, or his Heirs, when he sells Part of his Lands, and keeps the Remainder, shall not have any Contribution from a Purchaser, if his Land only is put in Execution. Ibid. If there be a Recognizance, and after a Statute enter'd into by one Man to two others; his Lands may be extended pro rata, and so taken in Execution. Yelv. 12. This Kind of Recognizance may be used for Payment of Debts; or to strengthen other Assurance. Wood 288. If a Recognizance is to pay 100*l.* at five several Days, viz. 20*l.* on each Day, immediately after the first Failure of Payment, the Cognissee may have Execution by Elegit upon the Recognizance for the 20*l.* and shall not stay till the last Day of Payment is past; for this is in the Nature of several Judgments. 1 Inst. 292. 2 Inst. 395, 471. When no Time is limited in a Statute or Recognizance for the Payment of the Money, it is due presently; as in Case of a Bond. Law Secur. 61. A Recognizance for Money lent, though it is not a perfect Record until entered upon the Roll; yet when entered, it is a Recognizance from the first Acknowledgment, and binds Persons and Lands from that Time. Hob. 196. But by Stat. 29 Car. 2. cap. 3. no Recognizance shall bind Lands in the Hands of Purchasers for valuable Consideration, but from the Time of Inrollment, which is to be set down in the Margin of the Roll: And Recognizances, &c. in the Counties of York and Middlesex, shall not bind Lands unless registered. 2, 5, 6 & 7 Ann. Also the Clerk of the Recognizances is to keep three several Rolls for the entering of Recognizances taken by the Chief Justices, &c. and the Persons before whom the Recognizances are taken, and the Parties acknowledging are to sign their Names to the Roll, as well as to the Recognizance. 8 Geo. 1. cap. 25. To make a good Recognizance or Obligation of Record, the Form prescribed must be pursued; and therefore they may not be acknowledged before any others, besides the Persons appointed by the Statutes: And the substantial Forms of the Statute are to be observed herein. But a Recognizance may be taken by the Judges in any Part of England. Dyer 221. Hob. 195. Recognizances and Statutes, are like to Judgments; and the Cognissee shall have the same Things in Execution, as after Judgment in B. R. or C. B. The Body of the Cognisor himself, but not of his Heir, or Executor, &c. may be taken, though there be Lands, Goods and Chattels to satisfy the Debt: And if a Cognisor is taken by the Sheriff, and he let him go; yet his Lands and Goods shall be liable. 12 Rep. 1, 2. Plowd. 62. 1 And. 273. By Recognizances of Debt, and Bail, the Body and Lands are bound; though some Opinions are, that the Lands of Bail are bound from the Time of the Recognizance entered into; and some, that they are not bound but from the Recovery of the Judgment against the Principal. 2 Leon. 84. Cro. Jac. 272, 449. In the Court of B. R. all Recognizances are enter'd as taken in Court; but in C. B. they enter them specially where taken, and their Recognizances bind from the Time of the Entry: In C. B. a Scire facias may be brought on their Recognizances either in London or Middlesex; on those in B. R. in the County of Middlesex only. 2 Salk. 659. 3 Nels. Abr. 46. A Recognizance of Bail in C. B. is entered specially; the Bail are bound to pay a certain Sum of Money, if the Party condemned doth not pay the Condemnation, or render his Body to Prison: And in B. R. Recognizances are entered generally; that if the Party be condemned in the Suit or Action he shall render his Body to Prison, or pay the Condemnation-Money, or the Bail shall do it for him. Pafcb. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 417. It was formerly a Question whether a Capias ad satisfaciend. would lie upon a Recognizance taken in Chancery; but adjudged, that immediately after the Recognizance is acknowledged, it is a Judgment on Record; and then by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. cap. 17. a Capias ad satisfaciend. will lie, it being a Debt on Record. 2 Bull. 62. If a Recognizance be made before a Master in Chancery for a Debt; or to perform an Order or Decree of the Court; if the Condition be not performed, an Extent shall issue; or a Scire facias is the proper Process, for the Cognisor to shew what he can say why Execution should not be had against him; upon which and a Scire fac. or two Nibils return'd, and a Judgment thereupon, the proper Execution is an Elegit, &c. Cro. Jac. 3. Where a Man is bound by Recognizance in the Chancery, and the Cognisor hath certain Indentures of Defeasance; if the Cognissee will sue Execution on the Recognizance, the Cognisor may come into the Chancery, and shew the Indentures of Defeasance, and that he is ready to perform them, and thereon he shall have a Scire facias against the Cognissee, returnable at a certain Day; and in the same Writ, he shall have a Superfedas to the Sheriff not to make Execution in the mean Time. New Nat. Br. 589. If a Person is bound in a Recognizance in Chancery, or other Court of Record, and afterwards the Cognissee dieth; his Executors may sue forth an Elegit, to have Execution of the Lands of the Cognisor: And if the Sheriff return that the Cognisor is dead, then a special Scire facias shall go against the Heir of the Cognisor, and those who are Tenants of the Lands which he had at the Day of the Recognizance enter'd into. Ibid. 590. One of the best Securities we have for a Debt is the Recognizance in Chancery, acknowledged before a Master of that Court; which is to be signed by such Master, and afterwards inrolled: And the King may by his Commission give Authority to one to receive a Recognizance of another Man, and to return the same into Chancery; and on such a Recognizance, if the Cognisor do not pay the Debt at the Day, the Cognissee shall have an Elegit on the Consuance so taken, as if it were taken in the Chancery. Pract. Solic. 131. New Nat. Br. 589. In Case Lands are mortgaged, without giving Notice of a Recognizance formerly had, if the Recognizance be not paid off and vacated in Six Months, the Mortgagor shall forfeit his Equity of Redemption, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 16. Recognizances may be discharged by Defeasance on Condition, upon Performance of such Condition; by Release; Payment of the Money; Delivery up of the Recognizance, &c.

Esquire, one of the Justices of our said Lord the King, assigned to keep the Peace in the said County, and acknowledged themselves to be indebted to our said Sovereign Lord the King, that is to say, the said A. RECORD, (Recordum, from the Lat. Recordari, to remember) Signifies a Memorial or Remembrance, or an authentick Testimony in Writing, contained in Rolls of Parchment, and preserved in a Court of Record. Britton, c. 27. It is a Writing in Parchment, wherein are inrolled Pleas of Land, or Common Pleas, and criminal Proceedings in Courts of Record; and Records are restrained to such Courts only, and do not extend to the Rolls of inferior Courts, the Regitries of Proceedings whereof are not properly called Records. 1 Inst. 260. 2 Lill. Abr. 418. And there are said to be three Kinds of Records, viz. A Record judicial, as an Attainder, &c. a Record ministerial upon Oath, being an Office or Inquisition found; and a Record made by Conveyance and Consent, as a Fine, or a Deed inrolled. 4 Rep. 54. But it has been held, that a Deed inrolled, or a Decree in Chancery inrolled, are not Records, but a Deed and a Decree recorded; and there is a Difference between a Record and a Thing recorded. 2 Lill. 421. Records being the Rolls or Memorials of the Judges, import in themselves such incontrollable Verity, that they admit of no Proof or Averment to the contrary, insomuch that they are to be tried only by themselves; for otherwise there would be no End of Controversies: But during the Term wherein any judicial Act is done, the Roll is alterable in that Term, as the Judges shall direct; when the Term is past, then the Record admitteth of no Alteration, or Proof that it is false in any Instance. 1 Inst. 260. 4 Rep. 52. A Matter of Record is to be proved by the Record itself, and not by Evidence, because no Issue can be joined upon it to be tried by a Jury like to Matters of Fact; and the Credit of a Record is greater than the Testimony of Witnesses. 21 Car. B. R. Tho' where Matter of Record is mix'd with Matter of Fact, it shall be tried by a Jury. Hob. 124. A Man cannot regularly aver against a Record; yet a Jury shall not be estopped by a Record to find the Truth of the Fact: And it was adjudged by the Court, that upon Evidence, 'tis at the Discretion of the Court to permit any Matter to be shewn to prove a Record. 1 Vent. 362. Allen 18. 3 Nels. Abr. 48, 49. A Record may be contradictory in Appearance, and yet be good: And tho' it hath apparent Falshood in it, 'tis not to be denied; but a Record may in some Cases be avoided by Matter in Fact. Style's Reg. 281. Co. Litt. 3 Cro. 329. Hutt. 20. The Judges cannot judge of a Record given in Evidence, if the Record be not exemplified under Seal: But a Jury may find a Record although it be not so, if they have a Copy prov'd to them, or other Matter given in Evidence sufficient to induce them to believe that there was such a Record. 2 Lill. Abr. 421. By Statute, Judges may reform Defects in any Record, or Process, or Variance between Records, &c. And a Record exemplified or inrolled, may be amended for Variation from the Exemplification. Stat. 8 H. 6. A Record of an Issue made up ready for Trial of a Cause, on Motion and Leave of Court, may be amended so as not to deface the Record; and notwithstanding it be entered for Trial, on paying Costs to the Defendant: But the Court will not give Leave to amend it, if it may not be done without defacing or much altering the Record. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 420. The Court of B. R. will amend a Record removed thither out of C. B. and also Records removed out of inferior Courts, as to Faults and Mispriptions of Clerks, which are adjudged amendable by the Statutes of Jeofails; though formerly B. R. would not not amend Records out of inferior Courts, but the Law in this Case is now altered by the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. 2 Lill. Abr. 421, 422. If the Transcript of a Record be false, the Court of B. R. will, upon Motion, order a Certiorari to an inferior Court, to certify how the Record is below; and if it be upon a Writ of Error out of the Common Pleas, they will grant a Rule to bring the Record out of C. B. into this Court, and then order the Transcript to be amended in Court, according to the Roll in C. B. And a Record cannot be amended without a Rule of the Court, grounded upon a Motion. Ibid. Where a Record is so drawn, that the Words may receive a double Construction, one to make the Record good, and another to make it erroneous, the Court will interpret the Words that Way which will make the Record good, as being most for the Advancement of Justice: So if a Letter of a Word in a Record be doubtful, that it may be taken for one Letter or another, the Court will construe it to be that Letter that is for upholding the Record. Hill. 21 Car. B. R. See 1 Cro. 161. 2 Cro. 119, 153, 244, &c. A Record that is rased, if legible, remains a good Record notwithstanding the Rasure; but he that rased it is not to go unpunished for his Offence. Mich. 1649. And in Case of a Rasure in a Judgment, done by Practice to hinder Execution, the Record hath been ordered to be amended, and a special Entry thereof to be made; but though the Record by this Means be made perfect, the Offender may be indicted for Felony; for not only such an Alteration whereby a Judgment is actually reversed, but also such whereby it is reversible, whether it be or be not afterwards amended by the Court, is within the Act 8 H. 6. c. 12. making it Felony to take away, or avoid any Record, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 81. 1 Hawk. P. C. 113. The Court will not supply a Blank left in a Record, to make it perfect, when before it was defective; as this would be to make a Record, which is not the Office of the Court to do, but to judge of them. 2 Lill. Abr. 420. If a subsequent Record hath any Relation to one that is precedent; in such Case it must appear in Pleading, &c. to be the same without any Variation. 3 Lutw. 905. Where Records are pleaded, they must be shewed; and one may not plead any Record, if it be not in the same Court where it remaineth, unless he shew it under the Great Seal of England, if denied: Acts of Record must be specially pleaded. Bro. ca. 20. 2 Cro. 560. 10 Rep. 92. 5 Rep. 218. Style 22. And Records are to be pleaded entire, and not Part of them, with an inter alia referring to the Record; and so should a special Verdict find a Record, unless a Judgment be pleaded, or you declare upon a Judgment in a superior Court, when the Plaintiff may say recuperavit generally; but not in an inferior Court, for there all the Proceedings must be set forth particularly. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. When a Record is pleaded, it is to conclude prout patet per Recordum, or the other Side may answer Nul tiel Record; but this being only Matter of Form, may be sometimes helped by a general Demurrer; and Writs are Matter of Record, but they need not be so pleaded. 1 Salk. 1. 1 Lew. 211. 3 Nels. Abr. 49. If a Record is to be read in Court, the Counsel at the Bar must open the Effect of it, after read by the Clerk of the Court, by Custom and Practice; though the Court may suffer it to be read afterwards if they please; and after Reading, &c. it is then by Rule of Court ordered to be set down for a Consilium. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 421. Records certified out of inferior Courts, on Writs of Error, and the Judgments on such Records are to be entered in B. R. for until then the Records are not perfected: And if a Record once comes into B. R. by Writ of Error, it never goes out again; but a Transcript of it may go to the House of Lords, upon a Writ of Error there. 2 Lill. 422. Writ of Error removes the Record; but the Original is no Part of it. Yenk. Cent. 164. A Record cannot be removed by Writ of Error, until the Judgment in that Record is entered; And when and how a Record may be removed; and where and how remanded, 2 Cro. 206. 2 Brownl. 145. Attornies are to enter the whole Record upon the Roll, after a Cause is tried, before the next Term after the Trial, on Pain of 20 s. That the Record may be spoken to the next Term, if there be Cause, and the Client not be delayed. Hill. 1649. Justices of Assise, Gaol Delivery, &c. are to send all their Records and Processes determined to the Exchequer at Michaelmas in every Year; and the Treasurer and Chamberlains, on Sight of the Commissions of such Justices, are to receive the same Records, &c. under their Seals, and keep them in the Treasury. Stat. 9 Ed. 3. c. 5. Record of a Cause made up for Trial, see Trial.

Recordare facias Loquelam, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff to remove a Cause depending in an inferior Court, to the King's Bench or Common Pleas, and it is called a Recordare, because it commands the Sheriff to make a Record of the Proceedings in the County-Court, and then to send up the Cause. F. M. B. 71. 2 Inst. 339. This Writ is in the Nature of a Certiorari; on which the Plaintiff may remove the Plaintiff, in the County Court, without Cause; but the Defendant cannot remove it without Cause shewn in the Writ, as upon a Plea of Freehold, &c. If the Plaintiff is in another Court, neither the Plaintiff or Defendant can remove it without Cause. Wood's Inst. 572. If a Plea is discontinued in the County, the Plaintiff or Defendant may remove the Plaintiff into the Common Pleas or King's Bench by Recordare, and it shall be good, and the Plaintiff may declare upon the same, and the Court hold Plea thereof. New Nat. Br. 158. The Form of this Writ in the Register is, Et Recordum illud babeas, &c. But in a Recordare to remove a Record out of the Court of ancient Demesne, the Writ shall say Loquelam & Processum, &c. And there is a Writ to call a Record, &c. to an higher Court at Westminster, called Recordo & Processu mittendis. Tab. Reg. Orig. By the usual Writ Recordare; The Sheriff is commanded in his full Court, to cause to be recorded the Plea which is in the said Court between A. and B. of, &c. And have that Record before the Justices at Westminster the Day, &c. under the Seals, &c. And to the said Parties appoint the same Day, that they be then there to proceed in that Plea, as shall be just, &c.

Recorder, (Recordator) Is a Person whom the Mayor and other Magistrates of any City or Town Corporate, having Jurisdiction, and a Court of Record within their Precincts by the King's Grant, do associate unto them for their better Direction in Matters of Justice, and Proceedings according to Law: And therefore he is, for the most part, a Counsellor or other Person well versed and experienced in the Law. The Recorder of London, is one of the Justices of Oyer and Terminer; and a Justice of Peace of the Quorum, for putting the Laws in Execution for Preservation of the Peace and Government of the City: And being the Mouth of the said City, he learnedly delivers the Sentences and Judgments of the Courts therein; and also certifies and records the City Customs, &c. Chart. K. Charles 2. 1 Inst. 288. He is chosen by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen; and attends the Business of the City, on any Warning by the Lord Mayor, &c. Recovery, (Recuperatio, from the Fr. Recouvrer, i. e. Recuperare) In a legal Acceptation, signifies an Obtaining any Thing by Judgment or Trial at Law: And there is a true Recovery, and a feigned one. A true Recovery is an actual or real Recovery of a Thing, injuriously taken away or detained, or the Value thereof, by Judgment in the ordinary Course; as if a Man sue for Land or any other Thing moveable or immoveable, and have a Verdict and Judgment for him. Co. Litt. 154. A feigned Recovery, which is the Recovery intended here, is a formal Act by Consent, used for the better Assurance of Lands and Tenements, &c. It is a feigned Suit and Judgment upon a real Action brought in the Common Pleas Court, by one against another that is seized of the Freehold, to cut off and destroy Estates-Tail, Remainders and Reversions, and to bar the former Owners thereof. 1 Inst. 154. Acom. Comu. 1 Vol. 108. And it is called a Common Recovery, because it is a common Path to that End for which it was ordained, viz. to cut off Estates-Tail, &c. Also it is by Custom become a Common Conveyance of Lands; and is much favoured by the Law, many of the Inheritances of the Kingdom depending upon these Assurances. 5 Rep. 40, 41. This Recovery, it is said, was introduced in the Time of Hen. 8. But some Authors mention it to be used much earlier; and was framed by the Wisdom and Policy of our Law, whereby tho' there be a Judgment of a Court, it is not in an adversary Manner, but by the Consent and Permission of the Parties; which is the Reason we generally say, that a Recovery is to be suffered: But though this Judgment is fictitious as to any actual Litigation upon which it is had; yet it is given on a real Writ brought, and is a Judgment according to the Rules of the Common Law. Jenk. Cent. 250, 257. 1 Rep. 131. Attorn. Compan. 291. And Common Recoveries suppose a Recompense in Value, to all Persons that lost the Estate, which has been held to be the principal Cause why they bar; and being become the common Assurances of the Nation, shall not be taken so strictly as real Recoveries are. 2 Lill. Abr. 423. The Force and Effect of a Recovery, is to destroy all Estates in Remainder, &c. and Incumbrances derived out of them, that one may sell, give or devise the Estate in Fee, or in what Manner he pleases; and the Recompense adjudged over shall go in Succession of the Estate, as the Land lost should have done, and then it would not be reasonable for the Heir, &c. to have the Land and Recompense in Value also; therefore he loseth the Land, and must trust to the Recompense. 1 Rep. 62. 3 Rep. 61. 6 Rep. 42. This supposed Recompense is the Reason why a Common Recovery is a Bar to all that are in Remainder or Reversion, as well as the Issues in Tail; whereas a Fine bars only the Heirs in Tail, and not those in Remainder or Reversion, unless upon Non-claim in due Time. Wood's Inst. 252. A late Author says, the Recompense in Value, is the true Reason for barring the Issue in Tail, on suffering a common Recovery; but not so of the Remainders, &c. to which the Recompense does not extend: And that a Recovery by Tenant in Tail, bars the Estate Tail, and all Remainders and Reversions thereon expectant; because at Common Law, that which is now a Tail Estate, was a Conditional Fee; and no Remainder could come after it, for a Fee by the Rules of Law cannot be created on a Fee. Pigot's Com. Recov. 13, 21. And a Recovery disaffirms all Title of him against whom it is had; and this so strongly, that if there be three or four Discents after 'tis suffered, yet the Recoverer may enter, for the Recovery binds the Blood, and disapproves the Title. Ibid. 18. It is also said by the same Author, that the Use of Common Recoveries, is to reduce Estates to that Purity and Condition they were in by the Common Law, and avoid many Inconveniences; without which a Tenant in Tail cannot make a Jointure on his Wife, nor any Provision for Children, or even for paying his Debts, &c. Pigot 20. A Common Recovery is the best Assurance (except an Act of Parliament) that a Man can have; and it may be had of such Things, for the most part, as pass by a Fine: An Use may be raised upon a Re- covery, as well as on a Fine, &c. and the same Rules are generally to be observed and followed for the guiding and directing the Uses of a Recovery, as are observed for the Guidance and Direction of a Fine. West. Symb. sect. 2, 3. 1 Rep. 15. There must be three Persons at least to make a Common Recovery, i. e. a Recoverer, a Recoveree, and a Vouchee; the Recoverer is the Plaintiff or Demandant, that brings the Writ of Entry sur Disseisin, &c. The Recoveree is the Defendant or Tenant of the Land, against whom Writ is brought, and he must be perfect Tenant of the Freehold; and the Vouchee is he to whom the Defendant or Tenant voucheth or calls to Warranty of the Land in Demand, either to defend the Right, or yield him other Lands in Value according to a supposed Agreement. 1 Inst. 101. Now to suffer a Recovery, the Tenant of the Freehold agrees with the Demandant (usually some Friend) that he shall bring his Action real against him, as though he the Demandant had good Right to the Land, and the Tenant no Right of Entry to the same, but on a Disseisin which a Stranger, one Hugh Hunt a fictitious Disfeisor, had unjustly made; though the Demandant never had Possession thereof, nor the Stranger: The Tenant appearing to the Writ vouches to Warranty A. B. the Crier of the Court, or the Bag-bearer of Writs to the Custos Brevium, who is called the common Vouchee, and is supposed to warrant the Title; this Vouchee appears, as though he would defend the Title, and the Demandant exhibits a Declaration against him, who thereupon prays a Day to make his Defence; but on the Day given by the Court he makes Default, and the Plaintiff or Demandant hath Judgment to recover the Land against the Defendant or Tenant in Tail, and he to recover in Value against the common Vouchee; whereupon issues a Writ of Seisin for the Possession of the Lands, &c. Yet this Recovery in Value is only imaginary, because the common Vouchee hath no Lands to render in Value; though it is taken for a Bar of the Tail for ever, and is said to be good in Conscience as well as Law, notwithstanding the Stat. Westm. 1. cap. 2. wherein it is provided, that the Will of the Donor shall be observed. Dr. & Stud. cap. 26. 10 Rep. 37, 38. 1 Inst. 224. To every Recovery there must be a good Tenant to the Praecept, or it will be void. 2 Lill. Abr. 425. If the Tenant in Tail be not in Possession, this Tenant is to be made by Lease and Release, Bargain and Sale inrolled, Fine, &c. so as he may thereby become Tenant in Possession of the Freehold. And if the Tenant to the Praecept gains a Freehold before Judgment, it is sufficient: Also where a Praecept was made by a Fine, and a Common Recovery suffered, and afterwards in a Writ of Error that Fine was reversed; although this was assigned for Error to reverse the Recovery, it was adjudged that the Recovery was good, for there was a Tenant to the Praecept at that Time. 2 Salk. 568. There is no Occasion of setting forth a Lease and Release to make a Tenant to the Praecept, because where a Man claims under a common Recovery it shall be intended that there was a good Tenant to the Praecept till the contrary is shewn; and rather than the Recovery shall fail, they shall be intended to be Tenants to the Praecept by Disseisin, especially if it is alledged in the Pleadings that they are Tenants liberi Tenementi. 3 Rep. 59. 2 Mod. 70. Adiunct tenens is a sufficient Averment in the Pleading a Common Recovery; but it is not so when in the same Sentence a Matter is set forth which is contradictory and inconsistent with it. 1 Mod. 418. A Defendant pleaded a Title under a Common Recovery, in which he set forth the Lease and Release to make the Tenant to the Praecept, the Writ of Entry, and the particular Proceedings upon it, the Judgment, Writ of Seisin, &c. And it was a Question, whether it might have been pleaded in a shorter Manner,

(viz.) That A. was Demandant in the Writ of Entry, and B. and C. Tenants; that the said Tenants vouched to Warranty L. D. and he vouched the Common Vouchee; and thereon Taliter processum fuit, that Judgment was given for the Demandant to recover against the Tenants, and that they should recover against L. D. ad valentiam, and that he should recover against the Common Vouchee. 2 Introy. 1539. In such short Pleading it is necessary to shew that the Recovery was executed, either by Entry, or by Return of the Writ of Seisin; for till then the Estate is not altered. 1 Jones 10. 3 Nelf. Abr. 57. A Deed and the Recovery make but one Conveyance: When precedent Indentures are made, and afterwards a Recovery is suffered, no Averment can be taken by Parol that the Recovery was to other Uses than those in the Indenture; though nothing vests till the Recovery is had: Upon an Indenture subsequent, an Averment may be taken, that other Uses than in the Indenture were declared and limited before and at the Time of the Recovery. 9 Rep. 10. 1 Mod. 250. If the Uses of a Recovery are declared by a Deed bearing Date afterwards, there a Stranger shall be admitted to plead other Uses before the Deed; but an Heir at Law shall not. 2 Lill. Abr. 428. Formerly it was doubted, whether Declarations of Fines and Recoveries after had and levied were good in Law, the Stat. 29 Car. 2. of Frauds and Perjuries, requiring Writing to pass Estates at the very Time of the Conveyance: But now all Declarations of Uses, of Fines or Recoveries, by any Deed made by the Party who is by Law enabled to declare such Use, after the suffering such Recovery, &c. shall be good and effectual in Law. 4 S. 5 Ann. c. 16. A Common Recovery is either with single, double, or treble Voucher; in the Recovery with single Voucher, the Writ of Entry is to be brought against Tenant in Tail in Possession, and he is to vouch the common Vouchee: In a Recovery with double or treble Voucher, the Estate must be discontinued by Fine, Feoffment, Lease and Release, &c. and a Tenant made of the Freehold of the Land; and then the Writ is to be brought against that Tenant, the Conufee, Feoffee, &c. and he is to vouch the Tenant in Tail, and he the common Vouchee, &c. And this Recovery with double Voucher, is the most common and safest Way of Proceeding. 1 Inst. 102. 372. Wood's Inst. 251. The Recovery with single Voucher bars the Tenant in Tail, and his Heirs only, of such Estate-tail which is in his Possession, with the Remainder depending upon it, and the Reversion expectant, which others have; and of all Leases and Incumbrances derived out of such Remainder or Reversion: A Recovery with double Voucher bars the first Voucher and his Heirs of every such Estate as at any Time was in him, or any of his Ancestors, whose Heir he is of such Estate; and all others of Right to Remainders and Reversions, dependant and expectant upon the same, and all Leases and Incumbrances derived out of them; and it will also be a Bar of the Estate whereof the Tenant was then seised in Reversion or Remainder, &c. The Recovery with treble Voucher is to make a perpetual Bar of the Estate of the Tenant, and of every such Estate of Inheritance as at any Time had been in the first or second Vouchee, or their Ancestors, whose Heirs they are of such Estate; and as well of every Reversion thereon dependant, as of all Leases, Estates, Charges, and Incumbrances derived out of any such Reversion or Remainder. 3 Rep. 5. 10 Rep. 37. 2 Roll. Abr. 204. Noy 81, 82. A Tenant in Tail cannot be restrained from suffering a Common Recovery. 10 Rep. 38, 41. If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder or Reversion in Fee; and Tenant for Life is impleaded by Agreement, and vouches Tenant in Tail, and he vouches over the common Vouchee;

this shall bar the Remainder and Reversion in Fee; though he in Remainder or Reversion did never assent to the Recovery: And if Tenant for Life surrender to him in Remainder in Tail, he may bind the Remainder and Reversion expectant upon his Estate. 1 Rep. 15. 3 Rep. 60. 1 Inst. 362. But if Tenant for Life alone suffer a Recovery, without the Assent of him in Remainder, the Recovery will be void: And if a Recovery be had against Tenant for Life, and a Remainder-man in Tail, (not being vouched by Tenant for Life) and they vouch the common Vouchee; the Recovery thus suffered doth not bar the Intail, nor the Remainder over, neither are the Issue in Tail barred by it. Cro. Eliz. 670. If Tenant for Life suffers a common Recovery by Consent and Covin between such Tenant and the Recoveror; this is a Forfeiture of his Estate, and he in the Reversion may enter presently: And all Recoveries had by Agreement of the Parties by Covin, against Tenants in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, Tenants by the Curtesy, or for Term of Life or Lives, &c. shall be void against them in Remainder or Reversion, and their Heirs, &c. Wood's Inst. 251. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 8. This Statute extendeth not to any Recovery, except it be by Agreement and Covin; and it was never the Intent of the Act to extend to such a Recovery in which a Tenant in Tail was vouched. 1 Rep. 15. Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder in Fee; the Tenant for Life suffered a common Recovery, in which the Issue in Tail was vouched, &c. And it was objected, that the Remainder-man in Fee was not barred by this Recovery, because the Statute 14 Eliz. enacts, That Recoveries suffered by Tenant for Life, shall be void against those in Reversion or Remainder; and the Proviso in that Statute extends to bind only those in Remainder who assent to the Record; but as the Tenant in Tail was vouched in this Recovery, it was adjudged, that he in Remainder in Fee was barred, as he would have been if the Tenant in Tail had been the first Tenant to the Proviso, instead of the Tenant for Life; which Judgment was affirmed in Error in the Exchequer Chamber. Moor 690. A Father devised his Lands to his Son B. for Life, and after his Decease, to the Issue of his Body, &c. And for Want of such Issue, Remainder over; B. suffered a common Recovery; and as to the Estate that B. had, two Judges held, he had only an Estate for Life, because such an Estate was expressly devised to him; but Hale Chief Justice held, that he had an Estate tail by Implication, and by Consequence the Recovery was well suffered; for the Words Issue of his Body, and these which follow, viz. For want of such Issue, make an Estate-tail by Implication; though Judgment was given according to the Opinion of the Judges, which was afterwards reversed in the Exchequer Chamber, on the Opinion of the Chief Justice. 2 Lev. 58. 1 Vent. 214, 225. 3 Salk. 296. A Man made a Feoffment in Fee, to the Use of himself for Life, after to his eldest Son in Tail, Remainder to his right Heirs, he not having then any Son: Afterwards he suffered a Recovery, had Issue a Son, who died in the Life of his Father, leaving a Son, and after he himself died; and it was held, that the Son and Heir of the Son should not avoid this Recovery by 32 Hen. 8. for there was not any Remainder in him at the Time of such Recovery. 3 Shep. Abr. 139. If Land be given to A. in Tail, with Remainders to divers others in Tail, &c. and A. doth make a Deed of Feoffment; and a Writ of Entry is brought against the Feoffee, who vouches B. the second Remainder-man in Tail, and he doth vouch the common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and Bar to the second Estate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reversions depending thereon: But the first Estate which A. hath is not barred by it. Ibid. 140. The Recovery of Tenant in Tail, after a Fine levied, and Render in Fee, is no Bar to him in Remainder; for by the Render a new Estate is gained, and the Recompence shall not go to the ancient Remainder. 1 Cro. 828. Tenant for Life, with Remainder over, vouched a Stranger; the Demandant recovered against the Tenant, and the Tenant over in Value: And it was held, that this should bind the Remainder. But it hath been adjudged otherwise in such a Case; unless he doth vouch the Donor, or his Heir, who is privy, &c. Bro. ca. 91. Jenk. Cont. 251. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Fee, and he in Remainder is attaint of Treason; a Recovery in his Life-time, in which he is Tenant or Vouchee, doth not bar the King of his Remainder: So if he die, and the Heir of his Body is vouched, because the Tail doth not descend upon him. Ibid. A Recovery had against Tenant in Tail of the King's Gift, the Reversion or Remainder being in the King, shall not be a Bar; nor shall the Remainder or Reversion, which at the Time of the Recovery is in the King, be barred by a Recovery. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 20. But by the Stat. 34 H. 8. the Estate-tail is not preserved, where a Reversion or Remainder is in the King, except it was created by the Crown, and not where it was made by a common Person; for before that Statute a common Recovery barred an Estate-tail made by the King. Dyer 32. 2 Rep. 15. A Feme Covert, with her Husband, is bound by a Recovery; but as in a Fine she ought to be examined. 3 Cro. 307. It is not absolutely necessary for the Judges to examine a Feme Covert, per Rolfe Ch. Just. when she joins with her Husband to suffer a Recovery of her own Lands; it shall be supposed she doth it freely and voluntarily: But it is prudential to do it, because it may happen that the Feme may be brought to it by Fraud or Force. 2 Lill. Abr. 424. The Case upon a Special Verdict in Ejectment was: There was Tenant for Life, Remainder to Husband and Wife, and their Heirs, and the Husband and Wife suffered a Recovery; it was objected, that the Heirs of the Wife were not barred by this Recovery, by Reason she was not Tenant to the Praecipe; neither did it appear that she was examined; but it was resolved, that she is concluded to speak against this Recovery, as she joined with her Husband in it, and the Recovery is perfect, and the being Party and privy to the Recovery, her Heirs shall be bound thereby. Style 319. Husband and Wife, Jointenants for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, Remainder to A. B. in Tail, the Husband alone suffered a Recovery; and it was held a Bar only as to a Moiety of the Lands, for by the Recovery the Jointure was severed, and the other Moiety was the Freehold of the Wife, so that the Recovery could not bar the Estate-tail or Remainder, as to that Moiety. 3 Rep. 3, 4, 5. Moor 210. 4 Leon. 93, 222. But when the Husband and Wife have not a joint Estate of Inheritance, and they join in a Fine to make a Tenant to the Praecipe, and the Recovery is suffered by the Husband alone; that shall be a good Bar to the Remainder. 3 Rep. 6. A Husband and Wife, Tenants in special Tail, Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder to C. in Fee; the Husband alone levied a Fine to D. and died, leaving Issue; the Wife entered, she is in of her Estate tail; and though the Issue in Tail were barred by the Fine, yet by her Entry B. and C. are remitted to their several Remainders; and if she suffers a Recovery, which she lawfully may, because she hath the whole Estate-tail, those Remainders are barred. Hob. 259. 3 Nels. Abr. 55. An Infant it hath been held, cannot suffer a Common Recovery by Guardian; though if he obtains a Privy Seal for that Purpose, he himself may. 10 Rep. 43. Hob. 196. If an Infant suffers a Recovery by his Guardian, with Privy Seal, 'tis here said it may be avoidable for Error; and the Judges do not permit it to pass, but when it will be an Advantage to the Infant. 1 Ld.

Raym. 113. But a Guardian was allowed by Order of the Court to an Infant, that a Recovery might be suffered against him as Vouchee; and he was brought into Court, and vouched, and his Guardian appeared and vouched the common Vouchee. Cro. Eliz. 172, 471. Hob. 197. And adjudged, that a Common Recovery suffered by an Infant by Guardian, shall bind him; and when the Vouchee in a Common Recovery is within Age, the Infancy must be tried by Inspection, &c. Cro. Car. 307. 1 Sid. 322. 1 Inf. 380. Mortgagees cannot suffer a Recovery; nor can Tenant for Years levy a Recovery, for Want of a Freehold. Wood's Inf. 251. Where an Estate-tail is barred by a Recovery, all Things depending upon it are barred, as well as the Estate itself; but nothing which is collateral: And therefore a Recovery will not bar the Right of a Mortgagee, unless he is vouched, &c. 3 Salk. 297. And if Tenant for Life, with Power to make a Jointure on his Wife, suffers a Common Recovery, his Power is extinguished: Though it is otherwise where a Power is collateral; as for Instance, where an Executor has Power to sell. Ibid. Tenant in Tail mortgages for Years, and afterwards marries, and suffers a Recovery for his Wife's Jointure; this Recovery shall enure to make good the Mortgage, though designed only for the Marriage-Settlement: And so it is in the Case of a Judgment; for a Recovery shall make good all his precedent Acts. Chan. Rep. 120. 2 Lill. Abr. 425. If there be a Limitation of Uses upon Condition, and the Cestuy que Use suffers a Recovery, that will not destroy the Condition, the Estate being charged with it; and the Recoveror can only have the Estate, as he that suffered the Recovery had it. 1 Mod. 109. A Tenant in Tail grants a Rent-Charge, and suffers a Recovery, the Recovery shall not avoid the Rent-Charge; though it doth a Reversion: Because the Estate of him that suffers the Recovery is charged with the Rent. 1 Mod. 109. 1 Cro. 598. If he in Remainder grants a Rent-Charge, a Recovery suffered by Tenant in Tail shall bar it; for the Recoveror comes in, in the Continuance of that Estate which is not subject to the Rent, but is above all those Charges. 1 Mod. 109. Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail, he in Remainder granted a Rent-Charge, and the Tenant in Tail suffered a Common Recovery, and died without Issue; it was adjudged, that it shall bind not only the Remainders, and all Charges made by them, but also the Reversioners and all Grants by them. 1 Rep. 62. A is Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder to C. in Fee; and B. or the other in Remainder makes a Lease of the Land, or grants a Rent-Charge out of it, enters into a Statute, or the like; or if he grant the Remainder or Reversion upon Condition: And after A. suffers a Common Recovery of the Lands, and afterwards dies without Issue; in this Case, the Recoveror shall hold the Land discharged of all these Estates and Charges in Remainder. 5 Rep. 41. 2 Bulst. 235. 3 Shep. Abr. 136. But if A. himself make a Lease, enter into a Statute, &c. and then suffer a Recovery, it shall not avoid, but affirm and make good the Lease and Charge; and where it was before voidable by the Issue in Tail, or him in Remainder or Reversion, it will now be good against them all; and the Person recovering shall hold the Lands as charged by the Tenant in Tail. Ibid. If Tenant in Tail mortgages the Land, or confesses a Judgment, and afterwards suffers a Recovery to any particular collateral Purpose; that Recovery shall enure to make good all his precedent Acts and Incumbrances. 1 Chan. Caf. 720. Recoverors, &c. may distrain for Rents and Services, and have Actions of Debt for Rent, and of Waste, &c. as those against whom the Recovery was had; and Termors for Years are to enjoy their Terms against such Recoverors, their Heirs and Assigns, according to their Leases. Stat. 7 H. 8. c. 4. 21 H. 8. A Lease

A Lease for Years made by him who after suffers a Recovery, is good, and shall not be defeated by the Recovery; but otherwise where the Recovery is by a good Title. 2 Leas. 65. It was a Doubt by 9 Elin. that if there was a Tenant in Tail, Remainder for Years, and Tenant in Tail suffers a Recovery, whether the Lease for Years be barred, or no? Because it was said that no Recompence can go to this, being a Chattel: But it was ruled, that this Lease should be barred, and that so the constant Experience had been. 2 Lev. 30. 1 Mod. 110. A Recovery bars only where there is a Privy in Law; as the Issue of a Tenant in Tail, and he in Remainder, Reversion, &c. Carter 53. Strangers are not barred by a Recovery and Nonclaim, as they are in a Fine. 3 Rep. 5. Nor shall a Recovery bar the Heir, who claims as a Purchaser, and not by Descent; or where there is an executory Estate, which depends upon Contingencies; but it will bar a contingent Remainder. Lutw. 1224. 3 Salk. 297. The Testator had Issue three Sons, A. B. and C. and devised his Lands to B. his second Son, paying so much to C. and if B. died without Issue, living A. then to A. upon the like Condition; B. suffered a Recovery, and it was held that this Recovery should not bar A. because he had only a Possibility to have the Estate if he survived B. dying without Issue, which cannot be touched by a Recovery. 2 Cro. 590. A common Recovery is adjudg'd to be no Bar of a Remainder created in a Settlement, as a Security for raising Money; for though Remainders are barred by a Recovery, here the Persons to whom the Land was limited, were but in Nature of Trustees after Money raised for those in Remainder. Preced. Canc. 435. Yet where a Cestui que Trust in Tail in Possession under the Trustee, who has the Freehold, suffers a Recovery; in which he himself is Tenant, and so no good Tenant to the Præcipe; this shall bar the Remainder in Fee of the Trust, and Equity will supply that Defect. 2 Chan. Caf. 63. See Preced. Canc. 228. Recoveries are now declared valid in Law, without Conveyances from Lessees to make Tenants to the Writs of Entry, &c. and shall be as effectual as if a good Estate of Freehold was granted to any Tenant to such Writs: But they are not so, unless the Persons intituled to the first Estates, have lawfully conveyed an Estate for Life at least, to the Tenants to any Writ aforesaid. 14 Geo. 2. c. 20. Purchasers of Lands, where Recoveries are necessary, and all that claim under them, having been in Possession twenty Years, may produce Deeds making a Tenant for suffering any Recovery, and declaring the Uses, which shall be allowed to be Evidence that the same was duly perfected, though it be not regularly entered on Record, &c. Stat. Ibid. And after twenty Years, all common Recoveries shall be good and valid, if it appears there was a Tenant to the Writs, and the Persons joining therein had an Estate sufficient to suffer them, notwithstanding the Deeds thereof are lost. Ibid. A Party who suffered a Recovery, died the first Day of Michaelmas-Term, between Five and Six in the Morning, upon which Day the Recovery was suffered; and adjudged good. 1 Rep. 93, &c. 2 Lill. 425. And most Errors in a Recovery are amendable by the Court the first Term after the Recovery had: But for gross Error in the Proceedings in Matter of Substance, a Recovery may be avoided by Writ of Error; as when an Infant, or Feme Covert without her Husband, suffers a Recovery, &c. and it may be also avoided by Pleading, that it was by Covin against Tenant for Life to disinheret him in Reversion; or that he against whom the Writ is brought is no Tenant of the Freehold by Right or Wrong; or he that hath the Estate is neither Party nor Privy to the Recovery; or because another hath some Estate in the Thing whereof the Recovery is had, &c. Also by Motion to the Court, and praying a Vacat of the Judgment, a Recovery may be falsified and avoided. 8 Rep. 162. 1 Inst. 104. Recoveries shall be adjudged void as any other Conveyance, if suffered by Fraud to deceive Purchasers, &c. And to suffer a Recovery in another Person's Name, not Privy or Consenting to the same, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 26. Where a Recovery is avoidable, for any Causes; it must be avoided by him whom it doth concern, that is bound thereby; and should have the Land, if the same had not been. As where an erroneous Recovery is suffered by Tenant in Tail; the Issues in Tail, or the next in Remainder, &c. must defeat it: And if the Land be recovered against a Disseisor, the Disseisee shall avoid it, &c. But a Recovery shall bind every one that cannot falsify the same. 5 Rep. 39. 1 Rep. 62. Plowd. 415. 2 Cro. 591. Common Recoveries are suffered in the Common Pleas by the Tenants and Vouchers personally in Court, or by Attornies; and sometimes by Attorney in the Country on a Dedimus Possitatem, or Commission out of Chancery: They may be suffered at the Affices and Great Sessions in Wales; and in the Counties Palatine of Lancaster, Chester and Durham. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 16. 27 Elin. c. 9. Also in the Court of Hustings of the City of London. Privil. London. 92. And Recoveries may be had in a Court-Baron, by Custom. Kitch. 176. In C. B. the Præcipe, naming the Demandant and the Tenant, the Quantity and Quality of Land, &c. is delivered to one of the Serjeants at the Bar, who will count upon it; and then the Prothonotary marks it, after which it is carried to the Curstor of the County, and he makes out the Writ of Entry, &c. and the Recovery is passed through the several Offices. Clerk's Remembr. 212, 213.

Entry of a Recovery with single Voucher.

South'ton, ff. C. D. Esquire, in his proper Person, demandeth against A. B. Gentleman, one Messuage, two Gardens, one Hundred Acres of Land, fifty Acres of Pasture, &c. with the Appurtenances in E. as his Right of Inheritance; and into which the said A. hath no Entry, but after a Disseisin, &c. And whereupon he declares, that he was seised of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, in his Demesne, as of a Fee and Right, in Time of Peace, in the Time of our Lord the King that now is; by taking the Profits to the Value, &c. and into which, &c. And thereof he bringeth his Suit, &c. And the said A. B. in his proper Person cometh and defendeth his Right, when, &c. and thereupon voucheth J. M. to Warranty, who is present here in Court in his proper Person; and freely Warranteth to him the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, &c. And hereupon the said C. demandeth against the said J. Tenant, by his Warranty, the said Tenement with the Appurtenances in Manner aforesaid, &c. And whereupon he saith, that he was seised of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, in his Demesne, as of Fee and Right in Time of Peace, in the Time of our Lord the King, that now is, by taking the Profits thereof to the Value, &c. into which, &c. and thereof he bringeth his Suit, &c. And the said J. the Tenant, by his own Warranty defendeth his Right, when, &c. and saith, that the said Hugh Hunt did not Disseise the said C. of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, as the said C. by his Writ and Declaration aforesaid doth above suppose: And thereof he putteth himself upon the Country, &c. And the said C. thereupon craveth Leave to imparle, and he hath it, &c. And afterwards the said C. cometh again here into Court, this same Term, in his proper Person; and the said J. although solemnly called, cometh not, but departed in Contempt of the Court, and maketh Default: Therefore it is adjudged, that the said C. do recover his Seisin against the said A. of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances; and that the said A. have of the Land of the said J. to the Value, &c. and the said J. in Mercy, &c. And thereupon the said C. prays a Writ of our Lord the King, to be directed to the Sheriff of the County aforesaid, to cause full Seisin of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, to be delivered to him; and it is granted to him, returnable the Day, &c. At which Day the said C. cometh here into Court, in his proper Person; and the Sheriff (namely J. S. Esquire) now returneth, that he by Virtue of the said Writ to him directed, on the Day of, &c. last past, caused full Seisin of the said Tenement, with the Appurtenances, to be delivered to the said C. as by the said Writ he was commanded, &c.

Recoupe, (From the Fr. Recouper) Signifies the keeping back and stopping of something which is due, and in our Law we use it for to Defalk or Discount; as if a Person hath a Rent of ten Pounds out of certain Lands, and he disseises the Tenant of the Land, in an Affise brought by the Disseisee, if he recover the Land and Damages, the Disseisor shall recoupe the Rent due in the Damages: So of a Rent Charge issuing out of Land, paid by the said Tenant to another, &c. he may recoupe the same. Terms de Ley. Dyer 2. And an Inn-keeper may keep back and detain his Guest's Horse, &c. till he pay for his Entertainment: But a Man that receives another's Cattle to Pasturage, it is said may not do so, unless it be agreed between them at first. 1 Cro. 196, 197.

Restatio, Claim of Right, or an Appeal to the Law for Recovery thereof.

Restitudo, Right or Justice; and sometimes it signifies legal Dues, a Tribute or Payment. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 30. Si quis Dei Restitudines per vim deforceat, emendet, &c. viz. If any one doth violently detain the Rights of God, (i. e. Tithes and Oblations) let him be fined or amerced, to make full Satisfaction. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 6.

Resto, Is used for a Writ of Right, which is of so high a Nature, that whereas other Writs in Real Actions are only to recover the Possession of the Lands, &c. in Question; this aims to recover the Seisin, and the Property, and thereby both the Rights of Possession and Property are tried together. 1 Inst. 158. It hath two Species; Writ of Right Patent, and Writ of Right Close: The first is so called, because it is sent open, and is the highest Writ of all others, lying for him that hath a Fee simple in the Lands or Tenements sued for, against Tenant of the Freehold at least, and in no other Case. F. N. B. 1, 2, &c. But this Writ of Right Patent seems to be extended farther than originally intended; for a Writ of Right of Dower, which lies for Tenant in Dower, is Patent, as appears by Fitzherb. Nat. Br. 7. And the like may be said in some other Cases. Table Reg. Orig. Also there is a special Writ of Right Patent in London, otherwise termed a Writ of Right according to the Custom, which lieth of Lands or Tenements within the City, &c. And the Writ of Right Patent is likewise called Breve magnum de Resto. Reg. Orig. 9. Fleta, lib. 5. c. 32. A Writ of Right Close is brought where one holds Lands and Tenements by Charter in Ancient Demesne, in Fee simple, Fee tail, or for Term of Life, or in Dower, and is disseised; and is directed to the Bailiff of the King's Mansors, or to the Lord of Ancient Demesne, if the Manor is in the Hands of a Subject, commanding him to do Right in his Court: This Writ is also called Breve parvum de Resto. F. N. B. 13. Reg. Orig. 9. Britton, cap. 120. And he who holds Lands in Ancient Demesne by Court-Roll, if he be ousted, shall not have the Writ of Right Close, but is to sue by Bill in the Lord's Court, &c. If a Person seised in Fee simple dies seised of such Estate, and a Stranger doth abate and enter into the Land, and deforce the Heir; the Heir may sue a Writ of Right Patent against the Tenant of the Freehold of the same Land, or an Affise of Mortdancesor. 11 Aff. 17.

And in a Writ of Right Patent, the Demandant is to count of his own Seisin, or of the Seisin of his Ancestors; if one bring the Writ as Heir unto an Ancestor, he must lay the Seisin and Esplees as in Pertinency of the Profits of the Lands in his Ancestors; and where it is brought by a Bishop or Body Politick, Seisin of the Esplees is to be laid in themselves, or in their Predecessors. New Nat. Br. 10. Where a Writ of Right Close is directed unto the Lord of whom the Lands are holden, and he will not hold his Court to proceed upon it, a Writ shall issue requiring him to hold his Court, &c. And if the Lord hold his Court, but will not do the Demandant Right, or delay it, the Plea may be removed by the Writ called Tolt into the County-Court of the Sheriff; and from thence by Recordari into the Common Pleas. Ibid. 6, 7. Glawvil seems to make every Writ, whereby a Man sues for any Thing due unto him, a Writ of Right. Glawv. cap. 10, 11, 12.

Form of a Writ of Right Patent.

G E O R G E the Second, &c. To A. Lord B. &c.
Greeting: We command you, that without Delay you do full Right to C. D. of, &c. of one Messuage, and twenty Acres of Land, with the Appurtenances, in, &c. which he claims to hold of you by free Service, &c. of which E. F. deforces him, &c. that no more Clamour thereof we may bear for Defect of Right. Witnesses, &c.

Writ of Right may be had after an Affise, Writ of Entry for Disseisin, &c. or other Real Action, where the Demandant is barred by Action tried; and so if he lose by Default in a Writ of Right, before the Mife is joined, &c. But if a Person once loseth his Cause upon a Writ of Right by Trial and Judgment, &c. he is without Remedy, and shall be finally concluded. New Nat. Br. 12.

Resto de Advocatione Ecclesie, Is a Writ lying where a Man hath Right of Advowson, and the Parson of the Church dying, a Stranger presents his Clerk to the Church, the Party that hath Right not having brought his Action of Quare Impedit nor Darrein Presentment, but suffered the Stranger to usurp upon him: And it lieth only where an Advowson is claimed in Fee to him and his Heirs. F. N. B. 30. 4 Ed. 3. cap. 18.

Resto de Dote, A Writ of Right of Dower, which lies for a Woman that has received Part of her Dower, and demands the Residue against the Heir of the Husband, or his Guardian. F. N. B. 7, 8, 147. 1 Inst. 32, 38.

Resto de Dote unde nihil habet, Is where the Wife hath received no Part of her Dower; as in Case a Man having Lands or Tenements, hath made no Assurance of any Part thereof to his Wife, so that she is driven to sue for her Thirds against the Heir, &c. F. N. B. 6. 20 H. 3. c. 1.

Resto quando Dominus remittit, Is a Writ that lieth where Lands or Tenements in the Signiory of any Lord, are in Demand by a Writ of Right; if the Lord in such Case holdeth no Court at the Prayer of the Demandant or Tenant, but sends to the King's Court his Writ to put the Cause thither for that Time, (saying to him at other Times the Right of his Signiory) then this Writ shall issue out for the other Party, and hath its Name from the Words therein contained. F. N. B. 16.

Resto de Rationabili parte, A Writ lying between Privies in Blood, as Brothers in Gavelkind, Sisters, and other Coparceners, for Land in Fee simple. If these be two Sisters, and the Ancestor dieth seised of Land in Fee, and one of the Sisters enters into the Whole, and deforces the other Sister, she who is deforced shall have the Writ of Right de Rationabili parte: And if where there are two Sisters, after the Death of the Ancestor they enter and occupy in common as Coparceners, and then one of them deforce the other to occupy that which is appendant or appurtenant to the Messuage, &c. which they have in Coparcenary; she that is deforced shall have this Writ. Also if the Ancestor were disseised of Lands, and dieth, and one Sister entereth into the Whole Land, and deforceth her Sister, she shall have the Writ against her other Sister: For it lieth as well upon a Dying seised of the Ancestor, if one Sister enter upon all, as where the Ancestor, doth not die seised; and it is a Writ of Right Patent, &c. P. N. B. 9. New Nat. Br. 19, 20. In this Writ the Demand shall be of a certain Portion of Land, to hold in Severalty; and Voucher and View do not lie in it, because of the Privy of Blood; but in a Rationabili parte the View was granted, 15 H. 5. for that the Ancestor did not die seised, &c. The Process in the Writ, after removing into C. B. is Summons, Grand Cape, and Petit Cape, &c. Ibid.

Writto sur Disclaimcr, Is a Writ that lies where the Lord, in the Court of Common Pleas, avows upon his Tenant, and the Tenant disclaims to hold of him; upon which Disclaimer the Lord shall have this Writ; and if he avers and proves that the Land is holden of him, he shall recover the Land for ever: This Writ is grounded on the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 2. Old Nat. Br. 150.

Wretor, (Lat.) Signifies a Governor; and Rector Ecclesie parochialis, Is he that hath the Charge or Cure of a Parish Church. It has been held, that Rector Ecclesie is one who hath a Parsonage where there is a Vicarage endowed. And when Dioceses were divided into Parishes in this Kingdom, the Clergy who had the Charge in those Places were called Rectors; and afterwards when their Rectories were appropriated to Monasteries, &c. the Monks kept the great Tithes; but the Bishops were to take Care that the Rector's Place should be supplied by another, to whom he was to allow the small Tithes for his Maintenance, and this was the Vicar. Cout. Parf. Comp. 75.—Rector tantum jus in Ecclesia parochiali habet, quantum Praelatus in Ecclesia Collegiata.

Wretory, (Rectoria) Is taken pro integra Ecclesia parochiali, cum omnibus suis juribus, pradiis, decimis aliisque proventuum Speciebus. Spelm. Also the Word Rectoria hath been often applied to the Rector's Mansion or Parsonage House. Paroch. Antiq. 549. See Parsonage.

Wretum, Essé ad Retum in Curia Domini, is the same with Stare ad Rectum. Leg. H. 1. c. 43.

Recusants, Are such as adhere to the Pope as Supreme Head of the Church, and who refuse or deny Supremacy to the King. At the Reformation, those were deem'd Recusants who disputed the Authority of the Crown in Causes Ecclesiastical, and denied the King's Supremacy; but the Acts of Parliament made against Recusants, particularly the 35 Eliz. describe a Recusant to be one that does not repair to some Church or Chapel, or usual Place of Common Prayer, to hear Divine Services: Afterwards the Receiving the Sacrament of the Church was made a farther Test of Conformity: And by the 25 & 30 Car. 2. a Declaration against Transubstantiation was required, to distinguish Papists and Popish Recusants from Protestants: At this Day all Persons are judged Popish Recusants convicted, who refuse the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, or Abjuration; and are liable to suffer and forfeit accordingly, viz. they incur a Præmunire, whereupon they forfeit all their Goods and Chattels, with their Lands, &c. Read Stat. 4 Vol. pag. 315. Recusants convicted, above the Age of sixteen Years, are to go to their Place of Abode or Settlement, and not travel above five Miles from thence, without Licence from the King, three of the Privy Council, or four Justices of the Peace, with the Assent of the Bishop of the Diocese, or the Lieutenant, or a Deputy Lieutenant of the County, on Pain of forfeiting their Goods, &c. And not having Lands worth twenty Marks per Ann. or Goods to the Value of 40*l.* if they do not make the Submission of Conformity mentioned in 35 Eliz. cap. 2. being required by a Justice of Peace, they may be compelled to abjure the Realm; which Abjuration must be certified to the next Assizes; and it is Felony if they do not depart within the Time limited by the Justices, or departing and returning again without the King's Licence: But if any Person offending against that Act, shall before Conviction, come to some Parish Church on a Sunday, and make a publick Declaration of his Conformity, he shall be discharged from all Penalties, &c. though if such Offender afterwards relapse, and become a Recusant again, he shall lose the Benefit he might otherwise have had upon his Submission: And Recusants required by Process to make their Appearance, shall not incur any Forfeiture for travelling on such Occasions. 35 Eliz. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. As to the Licensing a Recusant to travel, the Bishop, Lieutenant, or Deputy Lieutenant, who gives his Assent to it, must be a distinct Person from the Justices of Peace that gave the Licence; and therefore if one and the same Person be a Justice of Peace, and Deputy Lieutenant, he cannot act in both Capacities; but if he sign and seal the Licence as a Justice of Peace, the Assent of some other Deputy Lieutenant, &c. must be had: And it is a good Exception to a Licence by four Justices, that no particular Cause of the Recusant's travelling is expressed in it. Cro. Jac. 352. Caswell 210. A Person was indicted for Recusancy, but conformed before Conviction: And so again the second Time, and was indicted a third Time for a Relapse; and on Motion, that it might be certified into the Exchequer, because by the Stat. 35 Eliz. he is to lose all the Benefit which he was to have by his former Conformity, the Relapse was certified accordingly. 1 Bull. 133. Justices of Peace in their Sessions are to cause Proclamation to be made, that Popish Recusants shall render themselves to the Sheriff or Bailiff of the Liberty where they are, before the next Assizes or Sessions, &c. And if they do not, the Default being recorded, shall be taken as a sufficient Conviction. 3 Jac. 1. c. 4. And Constables and Church-wardens of every Parish, or one of them, or if there be none such, the Constables of the Hundred there, are to present once a Year at the Quarter-Sessions such Recusants as shall absent from the Church for a Month together; the Forfeiture of which is 20*l.* per Month, &c. Stat. Ibid. If a Recusant shall conform, and not receive the Sacrament once a Year at least; he shall forfeit for the first Year 20*l.* for the second 40*l.* and for every Default after 60*l.* And if after he hath once received it, he make Default therein by the Space of one Year, he shall forfeit 60*l.* to be recovered at the Quarter-Sessions by Indictment, and divided between the King and the Prosecutor: But the Husband is not chargeable with the Offence of the Wife; nor the Wife for the Husband after his Death. Ibid. It hath been adjudged, that a Writ of Error will not lie on a Conviction of a Recusant, for not rendering himself to the Sheriff, &c. because the Conviction is no Judgment, but the Statute gives Process upon it for the Forfeiture: So that if there be any Faults in it, the same is to be qualified in the Exchequer, the Party first conforming Reym. 433. An Information tamquam was brought against a Defendant, setting forth that before and on such a Day he was a Recusant convicted, and that afterwards he conformed, &c. and for three Years after had not received the Sacrament, and so demanded 60*l.* for every Year: Upon Not guilty pleaded, the Plaintiff had a Verdict; and thereupon it was moved that the Information was uncertain, because neither the Time was alledged, nor how, or in what Court, nor before whom the Conviction was; and the Informer demands the Penalty for three Years, when by Statute no Informer can demand a Penalty upon the Penal Law, but by an Information exhibited within a Year after the Offence: But it was resolved, that the first Exception had been good on a Demurrer; but the Defendant having pleaded Not guilty, all the Circumstances of his Conviction were admitted, and that nothing remained to be tried but the Fact: And as for the second Exception, it was good against the Informer for his Part, but should not prejudice the King. 2 Cro. 365. 3 Nels. Abr. 52. The Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 1. gives several Remedies against Recusants; one for the King alone, and there the Prosecution must be by Indictment in B. R. The other for a common Person, and that is to be by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint or Information: And the 28 Eliz. c. 6. was made for the Benefit of the Crown upon Indictments, and doth not extend to Informations; therefore such Informations may be brought in any Court of Record. Hob. 204. Where the Defendant is indicted on the Statute of Recusancy, Conformity is a good Plea; but not if an Action of Debt be brought. 1 Mod. 213. But vide 2 Show. 332. A Recusant certified into the Court of King's Bench, according to the 23 Eliz. shall give Security for his good Behaviour, &c. 2 Bullst. 155. See Papists.

Red Book of the Exchequer, (Liber rubens Saccarii) Is an ancient Record, wherein are registred the Names of those that held Lands per Baroniam in King Henry the 2d's Time. Ryley 667. It is a Manuscript Volume of several Miscellany Treatises in the Keeping of the King's Remembrancer in his Office in the Exchequer: and hath some Things (as the Number of the Hides of Land in many of our Counties, &c.) relating to the Times before the Conquest. There is likewise an exact Collection of the Escuages under King Hen. 1. Rich. 2. and King John; and the Ceremonies used at the Coronation of Queen Eleanor, Wife to King Hen. the 3d, &c.

Reddendum, Is used substantively for the Clause in a Lease, whereby the Rent is referred to the Lessor; and anciently Corn, Flesh, Fish, and other Victuals, were for the most part referred on Leases. 2 Rep. 72. Wood's Inst. 226. In Debt for Rent, the Plaintiff declared upon a Lease made 25 August 11 W. 3. of a Messuage, &c. for seven Years, to commence from the 24th Day of June before; Reddendum Quarterly at Michaelmas, St. Thomas's Day, Lady Day, and Midsummer, three Pounds ten Shillings, the first Payment to be made at Michaelmas then next; and assigned for Breach that fourteen Pounds of the said Rent was in Arrear for one Year ending 24 December, Anno 13 Will. And upon Demurrer to this Declaration, it was objected that on this Lease there was no Year could be ended on the 24th of December, but on St. Thomas's Day, according to the Reddendum; which was held to be true, because where special Days are limited in the Reddendum, the Rent must be computed from those Days, and not according to the Habendum; and that the Rent is never computed from the Habendum, but when the Reddendum is general, i. e. paying Quarterly so much; so the Plaintiff had Leave to discontinue, &c. 1 Salk. 141. See Deed and Reservation.

Reddit se, Is where a Man procures Bail for himself to an Action in any Court at Law; if the Party bailed at any Time before the Return of the second Scire facias against the Bail, renders himself in Discharge of his Bail, they are thereby discharged. 2 Lill. Abr. 430. A Capias ad satisfaciend. was returned Non est inventus against the Principal, and one Scire Fac' and a Nichil; and upon the second Scire Fac. he rendered himself, and was received: But if there had been a Scire facti and Judgment thereupon, he had come too late. Cro. Jac. 109. If a Defendant renders himself to the Marshal of B. R. upon any Action in that Court, in Discharge of his Bail, the Defendant's Attorney is forthwith to give Notice of such Render to the Plaintiff's Attorney, and shall make Oath of the Notice, &c. And a Reddit se will not discharge the Bail, unless the Attorney who is concerned for the Defendant or his Bail, enters it in the Marshal's Book; and having given Notice thereof to the Attorney for the Plaintiff, brings the Bail Piece to the Secondary, who upon producing of a Note from the Marshal or his Clerk, that the Defendant is in Custody, will discharge it; and until this is done, the Plaintiff may notwithstanding proceed to Judgment and Execution against the Bail; for until the Bail Piece is discharged, there is a Record still remaining in Court against them. 15 Car. 2. 2 Lill. 431. A Reddit se of the Principal, in Discharge of the Bail, is no Plea in a Writ of Error; for the Recognizance is not to render the Body, but to pay the Debt; adjudged 3 Jac. 1. c. 8. Vide Bail.

Redditarius, A Renter; and Redditarium hath been used for a Rental of a Manor, or other Estate. Cartular. Abbat. Glasston. MS. 92.

Reddition, (Redditio) A Surrendring or Restoring; being also a judicial Confession and Acknowledgment that the Land or Thing in Demand belongs to the Demandant, and not to the Person so surrendring. Stat. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 24.

Redemise, Is a Regranting of Lands demised or leased. See Demise and Redemise.

Redemption, (Redemptio) A Ransom, or Comutation; and by the old Saxon Laws, a Man convicted of a Crime paid such a Fine, according to the Estimation of his Head, pro Redemptione sua.

Redevable, (from the Sax. Redevair, debere) signifies bound or obliged to another, for some Benefit received. Blount.

Redisseisin, (Redisseisina) Is a Disseisin made by him, who once before was found and adjudged to have disseised the same Man of his Lands or Tenements; for which there lies a special Writ called a Writ of Redisseisin. Old Nat. Br. 106. F. N. B. 188. The Writ of Redisseisin lieth where a Person doth recover by Assise of Novel Disseisin any Lands, Rent, or Common, &c. and is put in Possession thereof by Verdict and Judgment, and afterwards he is disseised of the same by him by whom he was disseised before. Statute of Merton, c. 3. New Nat. Br. 417. Also this Writ lies against him who committed the Redisseisin, and another who was not Disseisor, if he be Tenant of the Land; and if a Man do recover by Redisseisin, and after he is disseised again by the Person who made the first Redisseisin, he shall have a new Writ of Redisseisin; and so one Redisseisin after another, every Time he is redisseised. Ibid. 418, 420. And the Redisseisin being found on the Sheriff's Inquisition, the Party who did it is to be committed to Prison, and the Lands re-seised; and he who recovereth in Redisseisin, shall have double Damages, &c. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 26. The Punishment for Redisseisin see in the Statute 52 H. 3. c. 8. If a Plaintiff be re disseised of Parcel of the Tenement formerly recovered, he shall have a Redisseisin: And when Coparceners be disseised, and recover in an Affise, if after they make Partition and are severally disseised, they may bring several Writs of Redisseisin, &c. Co. Lit. 154. A Recovery in Affise of Novel Disseisin is against two Disseisors, and one of them disseises the Plaintiff again, he may have a Redisseisin against him: But where the Recovery is against a Woman in an Affise, and she taketh Husband, and both of them disseise the Plaintiff, he shall not have this Writ; because the Husband is alius, and not the same first Disseisor. Ibid. And if in a Writ of Right, &c. the Demandant makes his Protestation to see in the Nature of Affise, and after is re-disseised; he shall not have a Writ of Redisseisin, the first Recovery not being by Writ of Affise of Novel Disseisin. 2 Inst. See Post-Disseisin.

Redubbers, Are those that buy stolen Cloth, and turn it into some other Colour or Fashion, that it may not be known again. Britton, cap. 29. 3 Inst. 134.

Re-entry, (from the Fr. Rentrer, i. e. rursus intrare) Is the Resuming or Retaking a Possession lawfully had; as if a Man makes a Lease of Lands, &c. to another, he thereby quits the Possession; and if he covenants with the Lessee, that for Non-payment of the Rent at the Day, it shall be lawful for him to re-enter; this is as much as if he conditioned to take again the Land into his own Hands, and to recover the Possession by his own Act, without the Assistance of the Law. But Words in a Deed give no Re-entry, if a Clause of Re-entry be not added. Wood's Inst. 140. One may reserve a Rent on Condition in a Feoffment, Lease, &c. That if the Rent is behind he shall re-enter, and hold the Lands till he is satisfied, or paid the Rent in Arrear; and in this Case if the Rent is behind, he may re-enter; though when the Feoffee, &c. pays or tenders on the Land all the Arrears, he may enter again. Litt. 327. 1 Inst. 203. And the Feoffor, &c. hath only an Interest, and not the Freehold, to take the Profits in the Nature of a Distress: Here the Profits shall not go in Part of Satisfaction of the Rent; but 'tis otherwise if the Feoffor was to hold the Land till he was paid by the Profits thereof. Ibid. All Persons that would re-enter upon their Tenants for Non-payment of Rent, are to make a Demand of the Rent; and to prevent the Re-entry, Tenants are to tender their Rent, &c. 1 Inst. 201. If there is a Lease for Years, rendering Rent with Condition, That if the Lessee assigns his Term, the Lessor may re-enter; and the Lessee assigneth, and the Lessor receiveth the Rent of the Assignee, not knowing or hearing of the Assignment, he may re-enter notwithstanding the Acceptance of the Rent. 3 Rep. 65. 1 Cro. 553. A Feoffment may be made upon Condition, That if the Feoffor pay to the Feoffee, &c. a certain Sum of Money at a Day to come, then the Feoffor to re-enter, &c. Litt. 322.

Re-exchange, Is the like Sum of Money payable by the Drawer of a Bill of Exchange which is returned Protested, for the Exchange of the Sum mentioned in the Bill back again to the Place whence it was drawn. Lex Mercat. 98.

reave, take away, or rob. Leg. H. 1. c. 83.

Refectory, (Refectorium) Is that Place in Monasteries where the Monks used to eat: So the Halls in Colleges and Inns of Courts, wherein the Scholars and Students eat and refresh themselves, may properly be called Refectories. Cowel.

Reference, In the Acceptation of Law is, where a Matter is referred by the Court of Chancery to a Master, and by the Courts at Law to a Prothonotary or Secondary, to examine and report to the Court. 2 Lill. Abr. 432. In Chancery, by Order of Court, Irregularities, Exceptions, Matters of Account, &c. are referred to the Examination of a Master of that Court. In the Court of B. R. Matters concerning the due Proceedings, or undue Proceedings in a Cause, by either of the Parties, are proper Matters of Reference under the Secondary, and for him in some ordinary Cases to compose the Differences betwixt them; and in others to make his Report how the Matters do stand, that the Court may settle the Differences according to their Rules and Orders. Pafb. 1650. If a Matter in Difference between the Plaintiff and Defendant be referred to the Secondary, and one of the Parties will not attend at the Time appointed, after Notice thereof given, to hear the Business referred; the other Party may proceed in the Reference alone, and get the Secondary to make his Report without hearing of the Party not attending. 2 Lill. 432. See Report.

Referendary, (Referendarius) Is an Officer abroad, of the same Nature as Masters of Request were to the King among us: The Referendaries being those who exhibit the Petitions of the People to the King, and acquaint the Judges with his Commands. And there was such an Officer in the Time of the English Saxons here, viz. Ego Augemundus Referendarius approbavi, &c. And we read of a Referendarius Angliae. Spelm.

Refusal, Is where one hath by Law a Right and Power of having or doing something of Advantage to him, and he refuseth it. An Executor may refuse an Executorship; but the Refusal ought to be before the Ordinary: If an Executor be summoned to accept or refuse the Executorship, and he doth not appear upon the Summons and prove the Will, the Court may grant Administration, &c. which shall be good in Law till such Executor hath proved the Will; but no Man can be compelled to take upon him the Executorship, unless he hath intermeddled with the Estate. 1 Leon. 154. Cro. Eliz. 858. Where there are several Executors, and they all refuse, none of them shall administer afterwards; but if there is a Refusal by one, and the other proves the Will, the Refusing Executor may administer when he will, during the Life of his Co-executor. 1 Rep. 28. 1 Nelf. Abr. 63. There is a Difference where there is but one Executor, and where there are more Executors than one, as to Refusal of an Executorship; for if there is but one, and in such Case he administers, he cannot refuse afterwards; and if once he refuse he cannot administer afterwards: As for Instance; the Testator being possessed of Lands, &c. for a Term of Years, devised the same to the Lord Chief Justice Calline, and made him Executor, and died: Afterwards the Executor wrote a Letter to the Judge of the Prerogative Court, intimating that he could not attend the Executorship, and desiring him to grant Administration to the next of Kin to the Deceased, which was done accordingly; and after this the Executor entered on the Lands, and granted the Term to another; but it was adjudged void, because the Letter which he wrote was a sufficient Refusal; and he may not once refuse, and afterwards take upon him the Executorship. Moor 272. An Executor, after a Caveat entered against the Will, took the usual Oath of an Executor, and afterwards refused to prove the Will; and it was held, that having taken the Oath of Executor, the Court could not admit him to refuse afterwards, wards, but ought to grant Probate to him notwithstanding the Caveat, on another's Contesting for the Administration, &c. 1 Ventr. 335. There is a Refusal of a Clerk presented to a Chur. b. for Illiterature, &c. And if a Bishop once refuses a Clerk for Insufficiency, he cannot accept of him afterwards, if a new Clerk is presented. 5 Rep. 58. 1 Cro. 27. In Actions of Trover and Conversion, a Demand of the Goods and Refusal to deliver them, must be proved, &c. 10 Rep. 56. 1 Darw. Abr. 20.

The King by his Prerogative ought to have every Whale cast on Shore in all Places within this Realm, (except granted to Subjects by Special Words) as a Royal Fish: And 'tis said the King himself shall have the Head and Body to make Oil and other Things; and the Queen the Tail to make Whale-Bones for her Royal Vestments. Pat. 1 Edw. 1. Stat. 17 Edw. 5. cap. 1. 1 Eliz. cap. 5.

Also the Crown, the Scepter, four several Swords, the Globe, and other such like Things, used at the Coronation of our Kings, are called Regalia. Stat. 13 Eliz. cap. 16. And Regalia is sometimes taken for the Dignity and Prerogative of the King. Likewise Regalia is applied to those Rights, which the Church enjoys by the Grants and Concessions of Kings: And sometimes to the Patrimony of the Church; and those Lands and Hereditaments that have been given by our Kings thereto. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 231.

Regardant, (Fr. i. e. Seeing, Marking, or Vigilant) As a Villein Regardant, was one who had the Charge to do all base Services within the Manor, and to see the same freed of Annoyances; and therefore called Regardant to the Manor. Co. Litt. 120.

Aspectus*) Signifies generally any Care, or looking on; and in a special Signification is used only in Matters of the Forest, and there two Ways, one for the Office of the Regarder, the other for the Compass of Ground belonging to the Regarder's Charge, which is the whole Forest, viz. All that Ground which is Parcel of the Forest; for there may be Woods within the Limits of the Forest, that are no Part thereof, and those are without the Regard. Cromp. Jurisd. 175, 199. Manw. par. 2. cap. 7.

Regarder, (Regardator, Fr. Regardeur, Spectator) Is the Officer of the King's Forest, who is sworn to make the Regard of it, as has been used in ancient Time; and to view and inquire of all Offences of the Forest, as well of Vert as of Venison; and of Concealments of any Offences or Defaults of the Foresters, and all other Officers of the King's Forest, relating to the Execution of their Offices, &c. Cromp. Jurisd. 153. Manwood. This Officer was ordained in the Beginning of the Reign of King Hen. 2. And the Regarders of the Forest must make their Regard, before any General Sessions of the Forest, or Justice Seat can be holden; when the Regarder is to go through the Forest, and every Bailiwick, to see and inquire of the Trespases therein; ad videndum, ad inquirendum, ad imbrevidandum, ad Certifiandum, &c. Manw. part 1. pag. 194. A Regarder may be made either by the King's Letters Patent; or by any of the Justices of the Forest, at the General Eyre, or such Times as the Regard is to be made, &c. Manw.

Rege inconsulto, Is a Writ issued from the King to the Judges not to proceed in a Cause which may prejudice the King, until he is advised. K. James 1st granted the Office of Superfedas in C. B. to one Mitchel, and thereupon Brownlow, chief Prothonotary, brought an Affise against him; and the Defendant Mitchel obtained the King's Writ to the Judges, reciting the Grant of this Office, commanding them not to proceed Rege inconsulto: And it was argued against the Writ, that the Court might proceed, because the Writ doth not mention that the King had a Title to the Thing in Demand, nor any Prejudice which might happen to the King if they should proceed: The Cause was compromised. Moor 844. A Rege inconsulto may be awarded, not only for the Party to the Plea, but upon Suggestion of a Stranger, on Cause shewn that the King may be prejudiced by the Proceeding, &c. Jenk. Cent. 97.

Register, (Registrarius) Is an Officer that writes and keeps a Registry. And Register is the Name of a Book, wherein are entered and set down most of the Forms of Writs Original and Judicial used at Common Law, called the Register of Writs: Sir Edward Coke affirms, That this Register is one of the most antient Books of the Common Law. *Co. These Parish Registers are to be subscribed by the Minister and Church-wardens; and the Names of the Persons, shall be transmitted yearly to the Bishop, &c.

Registry, (Registrum, from the old Fr. Gister, i. e. in Leco Reponere) Is properly the same with Repository; and the Office Books, and Rolls wherein the Proceedings of the Chancery, or any Spiritual Court are recorded, &c. are called by this Name.

Registry of Deeds. The Registering of Deeds and Incumbrances is a great Security of Titles to Purchasers of Lands and Mortgagees; and some Laws have been made requiring the same. By the 2 Ann. cap. 4. A Registry is to be kept of all Deeds and Conveyances affecting Lands executed in the West-Riding of Yorkshire; and a publick Office erected for that Purpose; and the Register is to be chosen by Freeholders having 100*l. per Annum, &c.* The 6 Ann. cap. 35. ordains, that a Memorial and Registry of all Deeds, Conveyances, Wills, &c. which affect any Lands or Tenements, shall be made in the East-Riding of the County of York; and the Register is to be sworn by the Justices in Quarter-Sessions, and every Leaf of his Book signed by two Justices. By 7 Ann. cap. 20. A Memorial and Registry is to be made of all Deeds and Conveyances, and of all Wills whereby Lands are affected, &c. in the County of Middlesex, in like Manner as in the West and East-Ridings of Yorkshire. And by these Statutes, Deeds, Conveyances and Wills, shall be void against subsequent Purchasers or Mortgagees, unless registered before the Conveyances ances under which they claim: Also no Judgment, Statute, or Recognisance, shall bind any Lands in those Counties, but from the Time a Memorial thereof shall be entered at the Register's Office; but the Acts do not extend to Copyhold Estates, Leases at a Rack-Rent, or to any Leases, not exceeding 21 Years, where the Possession goes with the Lease; nor to any Chambers in the Inns of Court. By the 8 Geo. 2. c. 6. A Registry shall be of all Deeds made in the North Riding of the County of York: The Deeds and Conveyances registered to be in Parchment, under the Hand and Seal of some of the Grantors, or Grantees, &c. attested by two Witnesses, who shall on Oath prove the Signing and Sealing of the Memorial and Execution of the Deeds. Memorials of Wills, must be registered within six Months after the Death of the Testator; the Register neglecting his Duty, or guilty of fraudulent Practices, shall forfeit his Office, and pay treble Damages; and Persons counterfeiting any Memorial, &c. be liable to the common Penalties of Forgery.

Regius Professor, Is a Reader of Lectures in the Universities, founded by the King: King Hen. 8. was the Founder of five Lectures in each University of Oxford and Cambridge, viz. of Divinity, Greek, Hebrew, Law and Physick, the Readers of which are called in the University Statutes Regii Professores.

Regni Populi, A Name given to the People of Surrey and Suffex, and on the Sea-Coasts of Hampshire. Blount.

Regnum Ecclesiasticum. In some Countries formerly, the Clergy held there was a double supreme Power, or two Kingdoms in every Kingdom; the one a Regnum Ecclesiasticum, absolute and independent upon any but the Pope over Ecclesiastical Men and Causes, exempt from the secular Magistrate; and the other a Regnum Seculare, of the King or Civil Magistrate, which had Subordination and Subjection to the Ecclesiastical Kingdom: But these Usurpations and Absurdities, were exterminated here by King H. 8. 2 Hale's Hist. P. C. 324.

Regrator, (Regratarius, Fr. Regrateur, Signifies him that buys and sells any Wares or Victuals in the same Market or Fair: And by Statute, Regrators are particularly described to be those who buy or get into their Hands in Fairs or Markets, any Grain, Fish, Butter, Cheese, Sheep, Lambs, Calves, Swine, Pigs, Geese, Capons, Hens, Chickens, Pigeons, Conies, or other dead Victuals whatsoever, brought to a Fair or Market to be sold there, and do sell the same again in the same Fair, Market, or Place, or in some other within four Miles thereof. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. 13 Eliz. cap. 25. Regrating is a Kind of Huckstry, by which Victuals are made dearer; for every Seller will gain something, which must of Consequence enhance the Price. 3 Inst. 195. And in ancient Time, both the Ingrasser and Regrator were comprehended under the Word Forestaller. Ibid. Regrators are punishable by Loss and Forfeiture of Goods, and Imprisonment, in Proportion to the first, second, or third Offence, &c. Vide Forestaller.

Regula, The Book of Rules, Orders or Statutes in a Religious Convent. Regulars are Monks or Canons, who profess to live under some Rule of Obedience.

Regulus, Is a Word often mentioned in the Councils of the English Saxon Kings, and used for Comes; as the Subregulus was the Viccomes: Offa Rex Merciorum, Urbredus Regulus, & Aldredus Subregulus W. &c.

Rehabere facias seiscnam, Quando Viccomes liberavit seiscnam de majore parte, quam deberet, is a judicial Writ; of which there is another of the same Name and Nature. Reg. Judic. 13, 51, 54.

Rehabilitatſon, (Rehabilitatio) A Restoring to former Ability; and is one of those Exactions claimed by the Pope heretofore in England, by his Bull or Brief, for re enabling a Spiritual Person to exercise his Function who had been disabled. Stat. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 21.

Reif, (Sax. Refan, i. e. Spoliare) In our old Laws signifies Robbery. Cowel.

Rejoinder, (Rejoindio) Is where the Defendant in any Action makes Answer to the Plaintiff's Replication: It is an Exception or Answer thereto, and it ought to be a sufficient Answer to the Replication, and follow and enforce the Matter of the Bar pleaded. 2 Lill. Abr. 433. The Defendant is not to rejoin upon such Words as are not contained in the Declaration, or Replication; and if the Defendant do in his Rejoinder depart from his Plea pleaded in Bar, the Rejoinder is not good, because this is uncertain, and to say and unsay, which the Law doth not allow. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. It is observed, that in many Cases, if the Plaintiff in his Replication alledges any new Matter, the Defendant may there make a new Answer in the Rejoinder; though if the Defendant pleads a general Plea, he shall not commonly make that good afterwards, by a particular Thing in his Rejoinder. 5 Hen. 7. 19. Raym. 22. Where a Replication is pleaded, which is issuable, the Clerk of the Papers when he makes up the Paper Book, doth of Course make up the Rejoinder, and joins the Issue in it; and if the Rejoinder be issuable, he hath the Making up of the Surrejoinder to it, and the Issue thereupon. 2 Lill. 433. See Departure.

Relation, (Relatio) Is where, in Consideration of Law, two different Times or other Things are accounted as one; and by some Act done the Thing subsequent is said to take Effect by Relation from the Time preceding: As if one deliver a Writing to another, to be delivered to a third Person, as the Deed of him who made it, when such third Person hath paid a Sum of Money; now when the Money is paid, and the Writing delivered, this shall be taken as the Deed of him who made and delivered it, at the Time of its first Delivery, to which it has Relation; and so Things relating to a Time long before, shall be as if they were done at that Time. Terms de Ley 515. Skep. Epit. 837. This Device is most commonly to help Acts in Law, and make a Thing take Effect; and shall relate to the same Thing, the same Intent, and between the same Parties only; and it shall never do a Wrong, or lay a Charge upon a Person that is no Party. 1 Inst. 190. 1 Rep. 99. Plowd. 188. And when the Execution of a Thing is done, it hath Relation to the Thing executory, and makes all but one Act or Record, although performed at several Times. 1 Rep. 199. A Judgment had in full Term shall have Relation to the first Day of the Term, which is the Effoin-Day; but this must be understood of a Judgment given after Appearance; and if it be upon Default, then the Quartus dies post is the Day. Cro. Car. 73. 1 Bull. 33. Judgments shall have Relation to the first Day of the Term, as if given on that very Day, unless there is a Memorandum to the contrary; as where there is a Continuance till another Day in the same Term. 3 Salk. 212. A Verdict was given in a Cause for the Plaintiff, and there was a Motion in Arrest of Judgment within four Days; the Court took Time to advise, and in four Days afterwards the Plaintiff died: It was adjudged, that the Favour of the Court shall not prejudice the Party, for the Judgment ought to have been given after the first four Days; and though it is given after the Death of the Party, it shall have Relation to the Time when it ought to have been given. 1 Leon. 187. Rule was had for Judgment, and two Days after the Plaintiff tiff died; yet the Judgment was entered, because it shall have Relation to the Day when the Rule was given, which was when the Plaintiff was alive. Poph. 132. Judgment against an Heir upon the Obligation of his Ancestor, shall have Relation to the Time of the Writ first purchased; and from that Time it will avoid all Alienations made by the Heir. 3 Cro. 102. And if one be Bail for a Defendant, and before Judgment he Leaves his Lands; they shall be liable to the Bail, and Judgment by Relation. Poph. 132, 112. The Defendant in a Suit after the Teste of the Fieri facias, but before the Sheriff had executed it, sold the Goods, and delivered them to the Buyer; and it was resolved, that the Sheriff might take them in Execution in the Hands of the Buyer; for when such Execution is made, it shall have Relation to the Teste of the Fi. Fa. 1 Leon. 304. Sale of Goods of a Bankrupt, by Commissioners, shall have Relation to the first Act of Bankruptcy; and be good, notwithstanding the Bankrupt sells them afterwards. 1 Jac. 1. cap. 15. Wood's Inst. 311. And if a Man buys Cattle in a Market that are stolen, and selleth them out of the Market, though the Cattle are afterwards brought into the Market, and the second Bargain confirmed, and Money paid, &c. this Bargain will not be good; for it shall have Relation to the Beginning, which was unlawful. Dyer 99. Fines being but common Assurances, shall be guided by the Indentures precedent; and the Execution thereof shall have Relation to the original Act. 2 Cro. 110. A Bargain and Sale was made to A. B. and before it was inrolled, the same Bargainor levied a Fine to the Bargainee, and afterwards and within the six Months the Deed was inrolled; adjudged that the Bargainee was in by the Fine, and not by the Deed inrolled, because though the Inrollment shall have Relation to the Delivery of the Deed, that is only to protect the Lands from all Incumbrances to be made by the Bargainor to others after the Deed, and before the Inrollment, but not to defeat any lawful Estate made by him before. 4 Rep. 70. After an Indenture of Bargain and Sale is inrolled, according to the Statute, it relates to the Delivery; nothing passes till Inrollment, but then it relates. 3 Nels. Abr. 68. One made a Lease for Years, rendering Rent at certain Feasts, he in Reversion bargained and sold the Land to a Stranger, who gave Notice to the Lessee; and the Day of Payment coming, he paid the Rent to the Bargainor, and then the Deed was inrolled: It was held, that the Bargainee should not have this Rent by Relation. Hugh's Abr. 1644. If an Infant or Feme Covert, disagree to a Feoffment to them made, when they are of Age, or discover; it shall relate as to this Purpose, to discharge them of Damages from the Time. 3 Rep. 29. Co. Litt. 310. But generally in Cases at Common Law, there is no Relation; as between the Feoffment of Lands and Livery and Seisin; or between the Grant of a Reversion and the Attornment, which is only the Assent of the particular Tenant, and shall not relate to the Grant. Ibid. Though if one distrains for Rent as Bailiff, when in Truth he is not; if he in whose Name he took the Distress will afterwards assent to it, he shall not be a Trespasser, for the Assent shall have Relation to the Time of the Distress taken. 2 Leon. 196. Letters of Administration relate to the Death of the Intestate, and not to the Time when they were granted. Style 341. And when the Wife is indowed of Lands by the Heir, she shall be in immediately from the Husband by Relation. 36 H. 6. 7. It is a Rule in Pleadings, Grants, &c. Ad proximum antecedens fiat Relatio; but that Rule has an Exception, (vis.) nisi impedit sententia: And it hath been held that this Rule hath many Restrictions, i. e. Fiat Relatio, so as there is no Absurdity or Incongruity; and therefore it is always secundum subjectam materiam. Hard. 77. 3

Salk. 199. A Person granted Totam illam pertinent Decimarum in B. with all other his Tithes in B. then or late in Occupations of J. C. here the Words in Occupations of J. C. have Relation to the whole Sentence, and not only to the precedent Words, with all other his Tithes, because the Pronoun illam relates as well to the Tenure of the Tithes, as to the Place where they arise. 4 Rep. 34. In Debt upon Bond conditioned that if J. M. died before Midsummer Day, without Issue Male of her Body then living, that in such Case the Bond should be void: The Defendant pleaded that before Midsummer Day, she did die without Issue Male then living; and the Question was, Whether the Adverb then should relate to Midsummer Day, or to the Death of J. M. And it was agreed, that it might relate to either; but because it happened in Fact that she had a Son living at her Death, which Son died before Midsummer Day, therefore the Words then living shall relate to that Day, and not her Death; and because it is most beneficial to the Obligor, that it should be so. Dyer 17. 3 Nels. Abr. 65.

Relator, (Lat.) A Rehearer, or Teller; also applied to an Informer. Stat. 9 Ann. c. 20. See Quo Warrants.

Release, (Relaxatio) Is an Instrument, whereby Estates, Rights, Titles, Entries, Actions, and other Things are extinguished or abridged, and sometimes transferred and enlarged. West's Symb. par. 1. hb. 2. Generally it is a giving up or discharging of the Right or Action which any Man hath or claimeth against another, or his Lands, &c. and is usually made by the Words, Have Remised, Released, and Quit-claimed, or other Words to the like Purpose: He that releaseth is the Releaser, and he to whom the Release is made is called the Released. Litt. 445. 1 Inst. 264. Releases are of two Kinds, viz. a Release as to Lands, (called Lease and Release) and of Goods and Chattels; and a Release of Actions, whether Real, Personal or Mixed. Litt. 492. And they are also either in Fact expressed, or implied in Law; In Fact or expressed, is that which the very Words expressly declare, and the Act of the Party releasing by Deed: In Law or implied, is that Release which the Law maketh, and which acquits by Way of Consequent or Intendment of Law, and is sometimes by Writing, and sometimes without. 1 Inst. 264. Perkins 71. And a Release in Law, shall be more favourably regarded, according to the Intent of the Parties, than Release in Deed. When an Obligee or Creditor, makes the Obligor or Debtor his Executor, who accepts thereof; this is a Release in Law by Writing: But if an Obligor is made Administrator to the Obligee, this is no Release in Law; and when he is made Executor, though this is a Release in Law of the Action, the Duty remains, and it shall be Assets in his Hands. 8 Rep. 136. If a Feme Obligee or Creditor takes the Obligor or Debtor to Husband, it is a Release in Law without Writing; but not if a Feme Executrix takes the Debtor to Husband, for that would be a Wrong to the Dead. Ibid. If a Charge or Duty grow by Record, the Release must be upon Record; and if by Deed, the Release is to be by Deed. 1 Inst. 298. And it is to be observed, That no Right passeth by Release, but the Right which the Releaser had at the Time of the Release made; if he has no Right, the Release is void. Litt. 446, 450. Rights and Titles to Goods, Chattels, Actions, Real and Personal, &c. may be released: Also Conditions annexed to Estates, Powers of Revocation of Utes, Warranties, Covenants, Rents, Services, Commons, and other Profits to be taken out of Lands, may be discharged and extinguished by Release. 1 Rep. 112. 2 Rep. 51. 10 Rep. 48. A Condition cannot be released upon Condition; but the Release will be good, and the Condition void. 1 Inst. 237, 265. A Man may not release a Personal Thing, as an Obligation, upon a Condition subsequent; because a Personal Thing once suspended, is extinguished for ever. 1 Roll. Abr. 412, 490. If a Person releases upon Condition, the Condition is void; but a Release may be delivered as an Escrow, to be a Man's Deed when such a Thing is performed, which makes it in the Nature of a Condition. Keilw. 88. A Release of an Action or Right cannot be for a Time: It will enure for ever, if made but for an Hour. 1 Inst. 274. Litt. 467. A Duty certain may be released before the Day of Performance of the Condition; but a Duty uncertain at first, upon a Condition precedent to be made certain afterwards, being in the mean Time but a mere possibility, cannot be released. 5 Rep. 70. 10 Rep. 11. Cro. Eliz. 580. As a Man may release any Debt or Duty to himself; so a Person may release any Thing or Wrong done to his Wife, before or after the Marriage: A Release by the Husband of his Wife's Suit in the Ecclesiastical Court for Defamation, is a good Release as to the Costs, but not as to the Defamation; for the Court may give Sentence that the Defendant shall make a corporal Satisfaction by Penance and Submission, which the Husband cannot release. Cro. Car. 161. If the Wife is Executrix to another, the Husband may release any Debt or Duty due to the Testator; which the Feme Executrix cannot to the Prejudice of her Husband. 5 Rep. 27. A Wife is divorced causa Adulterii, the Husband may release a Duty to the Wife. Cro. Eliz. 909. Regularly the Release of an Infant is void; yet an Infant Executor may release a Debt duly paid to him as Executor. Ibid. An Executor before Probate of the Will, may release a Debt due to the Testator, because he hath an absolute Interest of the Debt in him. 5 Rep. 27. 9 Rep. 39. If a Man releaseth, and after taketh out Administration, this is no Bar to him; by Reason at the Time of the Release made, he had not so much as a Right of Action in him. 5 Rep. 28. A Merchant of Ireland entered into a Bond there to one in London, which Bond was afterwards brought to London, the Obligee died Intestate in England, and his Son obtained Administration in Ireland, and released the Debt to the Obligor; after this the Widow of the Intestate obtained a Prerogative Administration here, and sued the Obligor, and recovered notwithstanding the Release, the Administration granted to the Releaser being wrong; for it ought to be granted where the Bond was, and not where the Debt began. Dyer 305. Where there are two joint Executors, and one alone doth release a Debt due to the Testator, before Judgment, this will bar the other Executor; but not if the Release is after Judgment. 1 Cro. 648. If divers Persons join in an Action to recover any Personal Thing, of which they are to have the joint Benefit or Interest, there the Release of one of them shall bar all the Rest; as where there are two Plaintiffs in Debt, &c. and one of them doth release to the Defendant, this is also a Bar to the other Plaintiff: But where they are to discharge themselves of a Personal Thing, it is otherwise, for if there is Judgment against three, and they bring a Writ of Error, and the Defendant in Error pleads the Release of one of them, this is no Bar to the other, because they are all compelled by Law to join in a Writ of Error, which is brought not to recover any Personal Thing, but to discharge themselves of a Charge imposed by the Judgment. 6 Rep. 25. A Defendant being in Execution brought a Writ of Error in B. R. and before the Judgment was affirmed, he obtained a Release of all Actions, Debts, Duties, Executions, &c. and afterwards the Judgment was affirmed; and upon a Scire facias against the Bail, they pleaded this Release: It was the Opinion, that both the Debt and Bail were discharged. 2 Bull. 231. But before Judgment given against the Principal, there can be nothing due from the Bail, to be released or barred. 5 Rep. 71. Such a Release before Judgment, is no Bar of Execution against the Bail; for here is no absolute, but a contingent Duty. Goldf. 162. Where two are bound jointly in a Bond or Obligation, and the Obligee releases to one of them, this shall discharge the other; and no Relief shall be had in Equity thereupon. 1 Inst. 232. 1 Cro. 648. A Release by a Lord to one Jointenant shall extend to both of the Jointenants. If two commit a Trespass against a Man, his Release to one of them shall discharge the other; for against joint Trespassers there can be but one Satisfaction. 1 Inst. 232. 2 Roll. Abr. 410. Hob. 66. And when a Promise is of two Parts, a Release of one Part will be a Release of the other Part. 1 Inst. 232. Trover was brought against two, and one pleads a Release, and the other Not guilty; the Jury find him Guilty who pleaded Not guilty, and also the Release for the Party, who pleaded it: The Judgment was thereupon stayed, because a Release to one joint Trespasser is a Release to all the Rest; though they may sever in Pleading, yet one Jury shall assess Damages for all: And the Plaintiff having joined and made him a Defendant with one to whom he had released, the Release shall extend to discharge him who pleaded Not guilty. 1 Lill. Abr. 439. In an Affise by two, the Release of one of the Parties is no Bar for the Lands, nor for the Damages which insue in the Realty. Cro. Eliz. 649. And a Release of an Action by one Churchwarden is not good; nor can both of the Churchwardens release to the Prejudice of the Church. 1 Danv. Abr. 788. A Release of all Manner of Actions, discharges all Real, Personal and mixed Actions, and Causes of Action subsisting at the Time of the Release: And a Release of all Actions Real or Personal, releases mixed Actions; but by a Release of all Actions Real and Personal, a Writ of Error is not released; nor is it a Bar to an Execution, if the Party is not put to a Scire facias; though a Release of all Suits, will be a Bar to an Execution, except in the Case of the King: A Release of all Actions bars only in civil Actions; not in Appeal of Death, &c. Litt. 406. 1 Inst. 285. 4 Rep. 63. 8 Rep. 152. Release of all Actions generally, is better than to say all Actions Real and Personal. 2 Lill. Abr. 437. In Debt for Arrears of an Annuity, the Defendant pleads a Release of all Actions before the Day of Payment; and it was held to be an ill Plea, because a Release cannot discharge a Duty not then in Being. 1 Inst. 292. Cro. Eliz. 897. An Annuity, or Rent payable at a Time to come, cannot be discharged by a Release of all Actions; but one may release the Rent, &c. before the Day, by special Words. Wood's Inst. 278. A Release of all Actions, barreth not a Right, if there be other Means to come at it. 8 Rep. 159. Release of all Quarrels, Controversies, &c. amounts to a Release of all Actions; but if a Man making such a Release, be dispossessed of his Goods, he may take his Goods again, though he has releas'd; for such a Release doth not bar the Right; it is the same Release of all Actions. 1 Inst. 292. 4 Rep. 63. 11 Rep. 82. A Release of all Actions will not discharge a Covenant before broken; before Breach there is not any Duty or Cause of Action: By a Release of all Covenants, a Covenant not broken may be released. 1 Rep. 112. 5 Rep. 71. Upon a Bond for Performance of Covenants, the Obligee before any Breach releases all Covenants, and afterwards a Covenant is broken, the Obligation is not forfeited but discharged. 3 Leon. 105. A Release of all Statutes, discharges all Statutes; Release of Errors, all Writs of Error, &c. 1 Inst. 76. A Defendant pleaded that after a Bond, &c. by him given, the Plaintiff released to him all Errors, and all Actions, Suits, and Writs of Error; and upon Demurrer it was insisted that the Obligation makes the Duty, and the Release of all Actions should be a good Bar; but adjudged that this was a special Release, and extends only to the Errors, and

and that the Debt on the Bond was not released. Hell. 9. 15. 3 Nelf. Abr. 76. By Release of all Debts, Debts upon Specialties, Executions, &c. are discharged; and by Release of all Actions and Duties, a Release which was in Question was held to be released. 1 Inst. 291. Owen 71. A Release of all Dues or Duties, will release personal Actions, and Executions; not bar a Writ of Account, there being nothing certainly due before the Account made: A Release of all Actions will be a good Bar in Account; though a Release of all Accounts, shall be extended only to Account. 8 Rep. 153. 2 Roll. Abr. 404. By Release of all Advantages, it is said Actions of Debt upon Account are discharged. 8 Rep. 150. Release of all Judgments, bars a Man from the Fruit and Effect of any Judgment he hath against the Releasee; and if Execution be not taken out, he is barred of it: Also if the Party be in Execution when this Release is made, he and his Land may be discharged by Audita Querela. 1 Inst. 290. By a Release of all Executions, a Person bars himself of the having, or taking out any Execution upon a Judgment, &c. Litt. Sect. 507. The Release of all Demands is the best Release of all, and the most effectual to bar Actions, Rights, &c. and includes in it most of the others: By this Release, all Rights, and Titles to Lands, Conditions before broken or after, Contracts, Covenants broken, Rents, Annuities and Arrearages of Rents and Annuities, Debts, Duties, Obligations, Recognizances, Statutes, Judgments, Executions, &c. all Manner of Actions Real and Personal, &c. are barred and discharged. Litt. 508. 1 Inst. 291. 5 Rep. 71. 8 Rep. 153. Dyer 56. But a Release of all Demands doth not extend to such Writs, where nothing is demanded; as to bar a Writ of Error, to reverse an Outlawry, &c. 8 Rep. 152. And it hath been resolved, that a Release before any Rent due, of all Demands that the Releasor had or should have against the Releasee, shall not release the accruing Rent not being then due. 1 Inst. 291. 1 Lev. 29. 2 Lev. 210. A Release of all Demands may discharge all Rent actually due, but not the growing Rent afterwards due, and which is incident to the Reversion; and if the Release be pleaded in Bar to the whole Rent, when 'tis good only for Part, the Plea is ill. 2 Salk. 578. In Award, that all Suits should cease, and that the Defendant should pay 10*l.* and the Plaintiff on Payment thereof should release all Demands, &c. It was held, that if the Plaintiff would not receive the 10*l.* because he would not be obliged to release, and the Defendant tendered, and he refused, the Plaintiff was as much obliged to release upon the Tender, as if he had actually received the Money. 1 Salk. 74. 75. One in Consideration that the Plaintiff had lent him 10*l.* and assigned over a Bond to him, and had promised to release him from all Demands; he promised that if the Money was not received upon the Bond, he would at such a Time pay 20*l.* The Plaintiff avers all done on his Part, and that the 20*l.* was not paid: And the Defendant pleads the Release; but it was not good, the Release being Part of the Consideration, without making of which the Plaintiff could not maintain his Action: Also it doth not release what is future. Cro. Jac. 623. 2 Lill. Abr. 439. Release of all Demands doth not avoid Obligations subsequent to the Release; yet where a Man is bound in an Obligation to pay 10*l.* at Michaelmas, a Release of all Actions and Demands before Michaelmas, will be a good Discharge. Litt. 512. Notwithstanding the Plaintiff could not have his Action till after Michaelmas, it is Debitum in presenti, and although solvendum in futuro. Ibid. 5 Rep. 28. If a Man makes a Release of all Demands to the personal Estate of another, this doth not release a Bond; for a Bond is not a Demand to the personal Estate before Judgment and Execution, &c. And there is a Difference between a Release of all Demands to the Person, and the personal Estate. Yelv. 214. 2 Salk. 575. A Release of all Actions and Demands, in Case of Land, releases the Right and Entry: The Release of a Right, or of all Demands, gives a Right; but it supposes him who releases to be out of Possession. And a Release may bar an Action, but give no Right. *Jenk. K NOW all Men by these Presents, That I A. B. of, &c. Have remised, released, and for ever quit-claimed; and by these Presents do for me, my Heirs, Executors and Administrators, remise, release, and for ever quit-claim unto C. D. of, &c. his Heirs, Executors and Administrators, all and all Manner of Action and Actions, Cause and Causes of Action and Actions, Suits, Bills, Bonds, Writings, Obligations, Debts, Dues, Duties, reckonings, Accounts, Sum and Sums of Money, Judgments, Executions, Extents, Quarrels, Controversies, Trespases, Damages and Demands whatsoever, both at Law and in Equity, or otherwise howsoever, which against him the said C. D. I ever had, now have, or which I, my Heirs, Executors and Administrators, shall or may have, claim, challenge challenge or demand, for or by Reason or Means of any Ab, Matter, Cause or Thing, from the Beginning of the World to the Day of the Date of these Presents. In Witnesses, &c.

Relegation, (Relegatio) Signifies a Banishing or Sending away, for a Time only: As Abjuration is a Forswearing the Realm for ever. Co. Lit. 133.

Relief, (Relevium, Relevatio, from the Lat. Relevare) Is a certain Sum of Money that every Freehold Tenant being at full Age payeth unto his Lord at the Death of his Ancestor, on his Entrance upon or taking Possession of the Inheritance; by Payment whereof the Heir relieves, and as it were raiseth up again his Lands, after they were fallen down into his Superior's Hands. 1 Inst. 76. Compl. Cop. Sect. 25. And to explain this Word; first, a feudatory or beneficiary Estate in Lands was granted only for Life; and after the Death of the Tenant it returned to the chief Lord, for which Reason it was called Feudum caducum, viz. fallen to the Lord by the Death of his Tenant; afterwards these feudatory Estates being turned into an Inheritance by the Assent of the chief Lord, when the Possessor of such an Estate died, it was termed Hereditas caduca, i. e. fallen to the Lord, but to whom the Heir having paid a Sum of Money, he did then relevare Hereditatem caducam out of the Lord's Hands, and the Money thus paid was denominated a Relief: But this is understood after the Conquest; for in the Time of the Saxons, there were no Reliefs, but Heriots paid to the Lord at the Death of his Tenant. Blount. We may read in the Laws of Will. 1. called the Conqueror, and of King Hen. 1. that Reliefs were anciently paid by Earls, Barons, &c. yet the Payment was very uncertain, till the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 3. by which it was made certain, viz. it was declared to be the fourth Part of the annual Revenue which was required by Law to support the Dignity of the Person; as the Son of a Knight was to pay for a Relief 5 l. the fourth Part of 20 l. per Ann. a Son of a Baron to pay 100 Marks, the fourth Part of 400 Marks per Ann. the Son of an Earl 100 l. the fourth Part of 400 l. a Year; and of a Duke 200 l. which is the fourth Part of 800 l. per Ann. such Estates being, at that Time, reputed sufficient to support these Dignities; and of others, according to the ancient Custom of Fees. 9 Rep. 122. 3 Nels. Abr. 79, 81. The Heir of every Ancestor who held by Knights Service, was to pay a Relief; and wherever there was a Title of Wardship, there was likewise a Relief to be paid; but the Lands must come to the Heir by Discent, otherwise no Relief was due; for many Bishops and Abbots had Baronies, and yet they paid no Relief, because they came in by Succession, not by Discent. Ibid. A Relief may be due by Tenure; as for Instance; a Man may hold Land of A. B. as of such a Manor by Rent, and a customary Relief of one Year's Value, &c. 3 Bulst. 323. And there is Relief Service, and Relief Custom: The Relief Service is that which is paid upon the Death of any Freeholder: And Relief Custom is that which is paid on the Death or Alienation of a Freeholder, according to the Custom of the Place. Coke's Compl. Cop. Sect. 25. 1 Inst. 83. But Reliefs are more properly divided into a Relief at the Common Law, and by Custom; a Relief being no Service, but an Incident to and the Fruit of it. 2 Lill. Abr. 440. 3 Rep. 60. Reliefs are paid by Freeholders only: In many Places, the Relief is Half a Year's or a Year's Rent and Profit of the Land; and in some, double the Rent of that Year; and for this the Lord may distrain, but cannot have an Action of Debt, tho' his Executors or Administrators may bring an Action of Debt for it, and cannot distrain. 1 Inst. 83. And Debt lies by an Executor against an Executor of an Heir, who was to pay a Relief. Cro. Eliz. 883. Acceptance of the Rent of a new Tenant, is no Bar of a Relief due from a former Tenant. Cro. Eliz. 886. 3 Rep. 66. Moor 643. And an Avowry for a Relief is good, without shewing particularly how due; because a Relief is incident to every Tenure de communi jure, though it is not Parcel of it; and if separated, must be shewn on the other Side. 3 Lev. 145. See Latch 37, 129.

Religion, (Religio, à religando) Signifieth Piety, Devotion, and the Worship of God: And there are many Temporal Laws, made for the Support of Religion. The Law hath so tender a Regard for the Interests of the King and of Religion, that an Indictment will lie for doing any Thing which plainly appears immediately to tend to the Prejudice of either of them; and be good, though it do not expressly complain of it as a common Grievance. 1 Hawk. P. C. 198. Offences tending to subvert all Religion and Morality, which are the Foundation of Government, are punishable by the temporal Judges by Fine and Imprisonment, and also such corporal Punishment as the Court in Discretion shall think fit; and seditious Words, in Derogation of the established Religion, are indictable, as tending to a Breach of the Peace. Ibid. 7. So also prophane Scoffing of the Scripture; Impostures in Religion, &c. By Statute, no Person in Authority to execute Spiritual Jurisdiction, has Power to adjudge any Matters of Religion to be Heresy, but such as have been so adjudged by Canonical Scripture, by one or more of the General Councils, or shall be adjudged by the Parliament with the Assent of the Convocation. 1 Eliz. cap. 1. The 13 Eliz. establishes the Thirtynine Articles of Religion, to be subscribed by the Clergy, &c. But Protestant Dissenters are exempted from subscribing the 34, 35 and 36th Articles, by 1 W. & M. cap. 18. Persons educated in the Christian Religion, who by Writing or Speaking, deny any one of the Persons in the Holy Trinity, to be God; or asserting there are more Gods than one; or who shall deny the Christian Religion to be true; or the Old and New Testament to be writ by Divine Authority, are rendered incapable to hold any Office or Employment; and being convicted of a second Offence, are disabled to prosecute any Action, to be Executor, Guardian, &c. and subject to Imprisonment for three Years: But for the first Offence, the Offender shall be discharged from Penalties, on renouncing his Errors in open Court. 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 32. If any Person shall come into a Church, Chapel, or Congregation for Religion, and disturb the same, or misuse the Teacher, he shall forfeit 20 l. 1 W. & M.

Religious Houses, Are Houses set apart for the Use or Exercise of Religion, and other pious and charitable Uses; as Monasteries, Hospitals, &c.

Religious Men, (Religiosi) Such as enter into some Monastery or Convent, there to live devoutly: And in ancient Deeds of Sale of Land, the Purchasers were often restrained by Covenant from giving or alienating it viris Religiosis, to the End the Land might not fall into Mortmain. Cowel.

Religious Orders, For the Qualification of Clergy. See Ordination.

Relinquishment, Is a forsaking, abandoning, or giving over. It hath been adjudged, that a Person may relinquish an ill Demand in a Declaration, &c. and have Judgment for that which is well demanded. Stile 175. In Assise the Count was of a Messuage, and four Acres of Land in B. and the Jury having a View only of the Land, the Demondant relinquished his Plaint to the House. Dyer 66. But on Assise where the Plaint was for Fifty-three Shillings and Four pence Rent, no Part of that Rent could be relinquished, because a Rent is an entire Thing. Ibid. 61. In a Writ of Annuity, where the Jury found the Arrears, but did not assess Damages or Costs, which could never be supply'd supply'd by a Writ of Enquiry; the Plaintiff was admitted to relinquish and release the Damages, and had Judgment for the Arrears. 11 Rep. 59.

Reliques, (Reliquie) Are some Remainers, such as the Bones, &c. of Saints that are dead, preserved by Persons living, with great Veneration, as sacred Memorials of them: They are forbidden to be used or brought into England, by several Statutes; and Juftices of Peace are empowered to search Houses for Popish Books and Reliques, which when found are to be defaced and burnt, &c. 3 Jac. 1. c. 26.

Remainder, (Remanentia) Is an Estate limited in Lands or Tenements, to be enjoyed after the Estate of another expired; as if one grant Lands for Term of Years, or Life, and afterwards the same to remain to another Person, and his Heirs. Bract. lib. 2. c. 23. 2 Lill. Abr. 441. It is also defined to be the Residue of an Estate in Land, depending upon a particular Estate, and created together with the same; and if a Man seised in Fee, lets Lands or Tenements for Years, the Remainder over to another for Life, in Tail, or in Fee; here is first a particular Estate for Years, created out of a Fee, and afterwards the Residue disposed of which we call a Remainder; though the particular Estate, and all the Remainders, make but one Estate in Law. 1 Inst. 49, 143. Plowd. 25, 35. And where it depends upon a Lease for Life or Years, Livery is to be made on the Lease, or the Remainder will not pass. Ibid. Remainders and Reversions are so called, because they are Estates in Expectancy only; they are a present Interest, yet stand in a Degree removed from the Possession till the particular Estate is determined: And as by a Reversion, after the appointed Term, the Estate returns to the Donor or his Heirs; so by a Remainder, it goes to some third Person or a Stranger. Wood's Inst. 152. Spelm. If a Man make a Lease for Life, with Remainder to his Heirs, or Remainder to himself, and his Heirs, or to himself and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder is void, and his Estate is not altered: But it is otherwise if he convey the Land by Way of Use, with such Limitation; and if he make a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Heirs Male of his Body; this is an Entail executed in him; and so it is if he covenant to stand seised in the same Manner. 1 Vent. 378. 1 Mod. 159. 3 Salk. 292. A Lease was made for Life, and afterwards the Lessor reciting that Lease, demised the Remainder to another; Hubendum the said Remainder, after the Determination of the first Lease, for twenty Years; and it was held, that the Reversion did pass by the Name of the Remainder: And if a Man grants Lands to another Person, and to the Heirs of his Body; and for Want of such Issue, that the Lands shall revert to the Grantor; by these Words the Remainder doth pass. Dyer 46. 3 Nels. Abr. 90. And a Lessor by Deed reciting that A. B. held a Close of him at Will, granted the same Close to him for Life, rendering Rent to the Lessor, and by the same Deed granted the Reversion to another in Fee; adjudged that A. B. had an Estate for Life by way of Confirmation, and that the other had a good Estate in Remainder, but not in Reversion. 1 And. 23. Though an Estate at Will is not such a particular Estate, whereon a Remainder may depend. Wood 150. In Deeds, by limited Remainders, the Reversion may pass: There being a Grandfather, Father, and Son, &c. the Grandfather levied a Fine, to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Father in Tail, and Remainder to the right Heirs of the Grandfather; here the Grandfather had an Estate in Fee, expectant upon the Determination of the Estate-tail, as a Reversion, and not in Remainder. 2 Rep. 91. And a Feoffment was made in Fee by a Man to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder over to the Use of A. B. for Life, Remainder to the right Heirs of the

Feoffor; and it was resolved, that the Fee-simple was in the Feoffor in the Nature of a Reversion, not of a Remainder to his Heirs, as it proceeded from himself, and was his own Act. 1 And. 256. 3 Nels. Abr. 90. The following Rules are to be observed, in the Creation of Remainders: There must be a particular Estate precedent made at the same Time, that the Remainder may depend upon it; and the particular Estate must continue till the Remainder shall vest; the Remainder is to commence in Possession; at the very Time the particular Estate ends, for there must not be a Mean between; and pass out of the Lessor executed or executory at the Time of the Possession taken by the particular Tenant; but it cannot depend upon a Matter ex post facto: Also a Remainder may depend upon a Condition, that is not repugnant or against Law, and then it will pass either executed or executory; the Person to whom the Remainder is limited, is to be capable of it at the Time it was created, or by common Possibility during the particular Estate; and the Thing whereof a Remainder shall be created, must be in esse before and at the Time of the Appointment and Creation thereof. 1 Rep. 66, 129, 130. 2 Rep. 51. 3 Rep. 20. 2 Inst. 378. Noy's Max. 31. But in some Cases, there may be a Remainder, without a particular Estate in esse to support it; as in the Case of an Use in Remainder, by the Statute of Uses 2 Lill. Abr. 443. And if the Remainders are limited by a Devise, they are good without a particular Estate; though not where the Estate passes by Livery and Seisin; for when the particular Estate is defeated, the Livery is gone, and all the Estates which depend upon it. Dyer 126. Plowd. 403. A Remainder must be created with the particular Estate, and be limited for a certain Estate: A Cognitor levied a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, and afterwards to the Use of his two Daughters, till his Son returned from beyond Sea, or came of Age, or died, which should first happen; and then Remainder to his Son, &c. This was a good Remainder, and did not depend upon any Uncertainty, because though his Returning or Coming of Age was uncertain, yet his Death is certain. Cro. Eliz. 269. If a Person hath a Son nine Years old, and make a Lease till his Son come of full Age; and after that, that it shall remain to another in Fee: If he live to his Age, it will be a good Remainder; and otherwise not. 3 Rep. 20. A. seised of Lands makes a Lease for Years to B. Remainder in Tail to C. and Remainder to the right Heirs of B. In this Case B. hath nothing in the Fee: It is a contingent Remainder to the Heirs of B. and if C. dies without Issue in B.'s Life-time, the Remainder is void; for B. during his Life cannot have an Heir. Jenk. Cent. 243. If a Lease be made for Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. who is then living; this Remainder is not good: But if it be a Lease for Life, with such a Remainder, it may be good. Plowd. 83. 1 Rep. 132, 136. A Lease is for Life, with Condition that if the Lessee die, it shall remain over: Or if Lands be given to A. and B. so long as they live jointly together, the Remainder to the right Heirs of him that dieth first; these are good Remainders. Plowd. 25. 1 Inst. 378. A Remainder to the Wife one shall marry, and that shall survive him, is a void Remainder: But where a Lease was made to Husband and Wife for their Lives, Remainder to the Heirs of the Survivor; it was held a good Remainder notwithstanding the Uncertainty, and that the Husband after her Death should recover the Land. Moor. Ca. 750. Godb. 139. If an Estate be made to one and his Heirs, during the Life of W. R. this is a good precedent Estate on which to limit a Remainder: And some Remainders may be good, although the Estates preceding be void and never take Effect. A Use was to a Man's self for Life, the Remainder to his his Executors for Years, Remainder in Tail, and he made no Executor; yet it was adjudged, that the Remainder in Tail was good. Fineb 133. Moor Ca. 686, 244. Where a Lease is granted to a Man during Life, with Remainder to another, and the Lessee for Life waves his Estate; the Remainder will be void. 1 Rep. 110. Though where an Estate could not be waved, because of the Prejudice of the Remainder. See Yenk. Cont. 334. If a Lessor disfeise his Tenant for Life, and after make a new Lease to him, with a Remainder over; the Remainder shall be void; for the Lessee for Life is in of his first Estate, and the last Estate for Life which was the Foundation is gone. Plowd. 25. A Person conveys Lands to the Use of himself for ninety-nine Years, if he lives so long, Remainder to his first, second, or third Son, &c. this Remainder is not good, for Want of a Freehold to support the same; a Freehold being necessary to support every contingent Remainder; and it is against the Rules of Law that such a Remainder can be supported by a Term for Years, or by any Thing less than a Freehold. 2 Lill. 446. Moor 486, 718. 4 Mod. 54. 2 Salk. 679. One may make a Lease for Years to one, so long as he shall live of those Years; Remainder to another for the Rest of the Years: But he cannot give a Term for Years to one for Life; and after the Expiration of the said Term, Remainder to another. 1 Rep. 153. 2 Roll. Abr. 415. Though in a Devise, or Last Will and Testament, a Lease for Years may be given to one for Life, or so long as he shall live; and after to another during the Residue of the Term. 8 Rep. 94. 10 Rep. 47. 1 Roll. Abr. 610. A Rent may be devised to one for Life, with Remainder over. 2 Salk. 577. All contingent Remainders before the Statute 10 & 11 W. 3. were to be supported by particular Estates for Life, &c. and to vest either during such Estates, or at that very Instant when the particular Estates were determined: For if those Estates were determined, before the Contingencies happened, then the Remainders were void. Tenant for Life, made a Feoffment of his Estate, the contingent Remainder was destroyed; but not if the Tenant had been disfeised, because there the particular Estate remains in Right, and may be revested; so that the Remainder is good. 3 Nelf. Abr. 84. 1 Rep. 66, 67. 'Tis held that a Right of Action, will not support a contingent Remainder, but a present Right of Entry will. If there be Tenant for Life with a contingent Remainder, and he makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition; here if the Contingency happens before the Condition is broken, it is gone and destroyed: But if before the happening of the Contingency, the Tenant for Life enters for the Condition broken, the contingent Remainder shall be revived; and the Contingency, if it happen, will then vest. 1 Ld. Raym. 314, 316. A Testator being seized of Lands devised them to H. his Nephew, eldest Son of his Brother R. L. for Life, Remainder to his first Son in Tail, Remainder to R. the second Son of R. L. with several Remainders over: H. entered by Virtue of this Devise, and died before his Son was born, leaving his Wife with Child of a Son, and R. the second Son of R. entered as in Remainder, and about six Months afterwards the Son of H. was born; and adjudged, that this being a contingent Remainder to that Son, who was not born when his Father, who had the particular Estate for Life, died, it was therefore void; and R. being the next in Remainder, and entering before the Son of H. was born, it was vested in him by Purchase; this Judgment was affirmed upon a Writ of Error in B. R. But it was reversed in the House of Lords, for it being a Case arising upon a Will, it shall be construed according to Equity, and agreeable to the Intention of the Testator, which could never be to disinherit the Heir of his Family, upon such a Nicety in the Law. 4 Mod. 282. And because such Cases might often happen, it was enacted by the 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 16. That where any Estate is limited in Remainder, to the Sons or Daughters of any Person, with Remainders over to others, and a Son shall be born after the Decease of his Father, such Son shall take in the same Manner as if born in the Life time of his Father; although no Estate is limited to Trustees after the Father's Decease, to preserve such contingent Remainder to such after-born Son, &c. A Person not in esse at first may take a Remainder by Way of Purchase, if he be in esse before the particular Estate ends; and it is here said, that the Remainder shall be in Abeyance, until the Birth of the Child. 2 Lill. Abr. 404. A Feoffment was made to the Use of Husband and Wife for their Lives, Remainder to the first Son in Tail, Remainder to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, they having then no Son: In this Case, the Husband and Wife are Tenants in Tail; but when a Son is born, then the Estate is opened again, and they are Tenants for Life, Remainder to the Son in Tail, Remainder to them in Tail; and the Reason is, because all these Estates were created by one and the same Conveyance; wherefore the Remainder shall vest in the Husband and Wife till the Contingency happens, when the Estates shall be open and disjoined, to let in the contingent Remainder to the Son, which before were united in the Husband and Wife: But where the Remainder in esse comes to the particular Estate by any Means whatsoever, after the original Conveyance, it is otherwise. 1 Inst. 28. 2 Saund. 385. Tenant for Life, with Remainder to his Wife for Life, Remainder to his first and second Son, &c. in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant for Life, who afterwards committed Treason, and then his Son was born, and the Father was attainted: It was adjudged, that whether the Son was born before or after the Attainder, the contingent Remainder to him was not discharged by the Vesting of the Estate in the Crown, during the Life of the Father; because of the intermediate Estate to the Wife for Life, which supported the Remainder. 2 Salk. 576. Ruled by Hale Chief Justice, that where W. R. is Tenant for Life, Remainder to R. R. for Life, Remainder to C. W. for Life, Remainder to L. L. and the Heirs of his Body: If W. R. and R. R. join in a Fine, the Right of Entry of C. W. preserves the contingent Estate over: And if there be Tenant for Life, Remainder to his first, second and third Sons, the like Remainder to others, and their Sons, &c. one of which hath Issue a Son, and then he and the others join in a Fine to Tenant for Life, who after makes a Feoffment; by this the Remainders are not destroyed, as there is a Son, of one of the Remainder-Men born, who has a Right of Entry left in him, which will support the Remainders. 1 Mod. 92. Contingent Remainders are where the Estate is to take Place upon an uncertain Event; and are presented by making a Feoffment, &c. to the Use of A. B. for Life, Remainder to the Use of the Feoffees, for the Life of A. B. and so on for the contingent Remainders, when he that hath the first Estate cannot destroy the Remainder. 1 Vent. 189. 10 Rep. 85. A contingent Remainder doth not depend upon a Reversion, which comes after; but upon the Estate which precedes it: And may be destroyed by levying a Fine, suffering a Recovery, or otherwise destroying the particular Estate upon which the contingent Estate depends, before the Contingency happens. 2 Lill. 446. Also where the particular Estate is drowned in the Reversion, the contingent Remainder depending upon it is gone. 2 Saund. 382. If Feoffees, who have only an Estate during the Life of a Son, &c. where divers Remainders are limited over, make a Feoffment in Fee to him; by the Feoffment all the future Remainders are destroyed, because the Estate for Life on which they were supported, was forfeited by it. 1 Rep. 120. Land was devised to the Father for Life, Remainder to the next Heir Male of the Father, and to the Heirs Males of his Body; the Father made a Feoffment with Warranty; and it was held, that by the Feoffment of the Tenant for Life, the Remainder was destroyed; for the particular Estate for Life being determined by the Feoffment, by Consequence he in Remainder ought to enter for the Forfeiture; and here the immediate Remainder being limited to the next Heir Male, he could not enter as such, as he cannot be Heir whilst his Father is living. 1 Rep. 66. It has been adjudged, that if an Estate be devised to A. for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. In that Case, if A. dies in B.'s Lifetime, this being a contingent Remainder is void; for that the Fee does not descend during the Life of B. to support such Remainder. 2 Peere Will. 511. There are cross Remainders in Wills and Deeds; as where the Testator deviseth an Estate to two Persons, and that each shall be the other's Heir, &c. but such cross Remainders are seldom or never allowed by Implication: And though they are permitted between two Persons, they are rarely amongst three or more; unless it plainly appears by the Will, that the Testator so intended. 2 Roll. Rep. 281. 3 Nelf. Abr. 98. If a Man devise one Acre of Land to A. the eldest Son, and the Heirs Males of his Body, another Acre to B. the second Son in like Manner, and another Acre to C. the third Son in the same Manner; and if they all die without Issue of their or any of their Bodies, or either of them, Remainder over; here are cross Remainders among all the three Sons, by reason of the Words or any of their Bodies, &c. Dyer 303. 1 Ventr. 224. Three Things one shall have by Remainder, by Conveyance at the Common Law; A Remainder vested; Possession in Law; and Possession in Fact. Plowd. 25. 2 Lill. 445. A Man makes a Conveyance to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the eldest Child; he hath Issue a Daughter, and afterwards a Son; as soon as the Daughter is born, the Remainder is vested in her, and shall not be devested by the Birth of the Son. 2 Leon. 219. In a Limitation of a Remainder, the Word Puer may be construed either a Son or Daughter; but in a Family Settlement it shall be intended a Son, where the Sons are always preferred: And where a Tenant in Tail suffered a Recovery to Uses, with Remainder Seniori Filio of his Body in Tail, &c. and afterwards the same Person and his Wife levied a Fine to Uses, Remainder to the eldest Child of the Husband, Remainder over; after which the Husband had Issue a Daughter, and a Son after that, and then the Father died; adjudged that the Son shall have the Land, and not the Daughter, by reason of the first Limitation. Bendl. 29. Dyer 337. If a Remainder be Seniori puero in Tail, it shall be intended a Son, and not a Daughter, who shall enjoy the Land. Owen 64. T. P. being seised of Land which descended to him as Heir on the Part of his Mother, levied a Fine thereof to A. and B. to the Use of them and their Heirs, in order to make them Tenants of the Præcipe; upon which a common Recovery was had, and the Uses declared to the said T. P. for Life, Remainder to his Wife for Life, Remainder to his first and second Son, &c. in Tail, with Remainder to his own right Heirs; afterwards T. P. and his Wife died without Issue; and in Ejectment the Question was, whether this Limitation of the Remainder to the right Heirs of T. P. did create a new Estate in him descendible to the Heirs general; but it was resolved, that the Remainder shall be to the Heirs of T. P. on the Part of his Mother, according to the ancient Estate and Use which he had before the Fine and Recovery, as it did arise immediately out of the Estate which moved from him. 2 Salk. 590. A Remainder may not be limited after a Fee-simple; because the whole Estate is in the Grantee, &c. and one Fee-simple cannot remain upon another. 1 Plowd. 29. Raym. 29. Tenant in Tail cannot limit a Remainder over by Deed; for an Estate for his own Life, is as long as he can grant: But where there is an Estate tail, with Condition, that if the Tenant in Tail aliens in Fee, Fee-tail, &c. then the Estate to cease, and the Land to remain to another; this is a void Remainder; the Alienation vests the Estate in the Alienee, or the Donor. 2 Rep. 52. 1 Lutw. 832. Wood's Inst. 150. A Proviso will not make a Remainder; but it may determine it. A. leased to B. for Life, Remainder to C. Provided that if A. had a Son who should live to such an Age, then the Estate should remain to his Son in Tail; he had such a Son, and it was held that he should not have the Estate. Cro. Eliz. 360. 2 Lill. Abr. 444. But vide Plowd. 25. He in Remainder of an Estate vested, may grant, or devise the same; and if one in Remainder makes a Lease to commence at a Day to come, and afterwards grants his Estate in Remainder to another, it shall be charged with this Lease in the Hands of the Grantee, although the Lands were never in the Possession of the Grantor. 3 Nelf. Abr. 92. Action of the Case lies for him in Remainder against the Copyholder for Life committing Waste, &c. 3 Lev. 330. A Person in Remainder may have a Writ of Intrusion, if any do intrude after the Death of Tenant for Life: And the Writ Ex gravi Querela lies to execute a Devise in Remainder, after the Death of Tenant in Tail, without Issue. Nat. Br. 441, 453. An Entry is requisite to avoid a Remainder for Life: And a Claim of a Remainder by Force of a Condition, must be upon the Land. 2 Rep. 53. A Bargain and Sale made off from the Land, is not sufficient to make a Claim, and then to pass the Remainder. 2 Rep. 54. A Remainder limited after an Estate which is void, is also void: And where a Limitation is impossible and void, all the Remainders also are void. 1 Saund. 150. 2 Lev. 157. One that takes an Estate by way of Remainder must not be a Party to the Deed: For a Remainder-Man may take though he is not a Party to the Conveyance; but not present Estates. Cro. Eliz. 10. 2 Lill. 444. The most proper Word to create an Estate in Remainder, is the Word Remainder itself; though it may be made and created by other Words. Bro. Remaind. Plowd. 134, 159. And the Tenant for Life and Remainder-Man in Fee, having only one Estate; therefore the Execution of the one's Estate may be that of the other: And hence it is, that which is done by, or to one of them, in many Cases shall bind and advantage the other; as in Case of a Release, &c. 1 Cro. 504. 3 Skep. Abr. 221. If any Persons, for whose Lives any Estates are granted, be absent abroad, and no Proof made of their being living, they shall be accounted as dead, and those in Remainder may move the Lord Chancellor to order Persons to be produced, or enter, &c. Remedy, (Remedium) Is the Action or Means given by Law, for the Recovery of a Right; and whenever the Law giveth any Thing, it gives a Remedy for the same: There is a Maxim, Lex semper dabit Remedium. Stud. Compan. 177, 179. Remedies are favourably extended, and sometimes to be had without Action or applying to the Courts of Justice, viz. by Accord and Agreement of the Parties; by Arbitrament; Retaking.

Remembrancers, (Rememoratores) Formerly called Clerks of the Remembrance, are Officers of the Exchequer; of which there are Three, distinguished by the Names of the King's Remembrancer, the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, and the Remembrancer of First Fruits: Upon whose Charge it lies, to put the Lord Treasurer and the Justice of that Court in Remembrance of such Things as are to be called upon and dealt in for the King's Behoof and Benefit. The King's Remembrancer enters in his Office all Recognizances taken before the Barons for any of the King's Debts, for Appearances, &c. and he takes all Bonds for such Debts, and makes out Procefs for the Breach of them; also he writes Procefs against the Collectors of Customs, Subsidies, Excise, and other publick Payments for their Accounts: All Informations upon penal Statutes are entered and sued in his Office; and he makes the Bills of Composition on penal Laws, and takes the Stallment of Debts: And all Matters upon English Bills in the Exchequer-Chamber remain in the Office of this Remembrancer. He has delivered into his Office the Indentures, Fines, and other Evidences, that concern the Passing any Lands to or from the King. In Craftino animarum yearly he reads in Court the Oath of all the Officers of the Court, when they are admitted. Writs of Prerogative or Privilege, for Officers and Ministers of the Court are made out by him, and so Commissions of Nisi Prius, by the King's Warrant, on Trial of any Matters within his Office at the Assises in the Country; he hath the Entering of Judgments, of Pleas, &c. And all Differences touching Irregularities in Proceedings shall be determined by the King's Remembrancer; who is to settle the same, if he can, and give Costs where he shall find the Fault; but if not, the Court is to determine it, &c. By Order of Court, his Majesty's Remembrancer, or his Deputy, are diligently to attend in Court, and to give an Account touching any Proceedings as they shall be required; and they enter the Rules and Orders of the Court. The Treasurer's Remembrancer issues out Procefs of Fieri facias and Exents, for Debts to the King; and against Sheriffs, Escheators, &c. not accounting, he takes the Accounts of all Sheriffs, and makes the Record, whereby it appears whether Sheriffs and other Accountants pay their Profers due at Easter and Michaelmas; and he makes another Record, whether Sheriffs and other Accountants keep their Days prefixed: There are also brought into his Office all the Accounts of Customers, Controllers, and Accountants, to make Entry thereof on Record. All Estreats of Fines, Issues and Amerciaments, set in any of the Courts at Westminster, or at the Assises or Sessions, are certified into his Office; and by him delivered to the Clerk of the Estreats to make out Procefs upon them; and he may issue Procefses for Discovery of Tenures; and all such Revenue as is due to the Crown by Reason thereof, &c. The Remembrancer of the First Fruits, his Office is to take all Compositions, and Bonds for the Payment of the First-Fruits and Tenths; and he makes Procefs against all such Persons as do not pay the same. Stat. 35 Eliz. cap. 5. 5 R. 2. cap. 14. 37 Ed. 3. cap. 4.

Remitter, (From the Lat. Remittere, to restore or send back) Is where a Man hath two Rights or Titles to Land, and he comes to the Land by the last Title, but that proving defective, he is restored to and judged in by Force of his elder or surer Title, by Operation of Law. Litt. 659. 1 Inst. 347. The Reason of this Invention of the Law, is in Favour of Right; and that Title which is first and most ancient, is always preferred. Dyer 68. Finch's Law 159. In Remitters to restore Rights, the first Interest that works such Remitter, must be a Right, and not a

Title of Entry; and there can be no Remitter before an Entry. 1 Inst. 348. 2 Bull. 29. It is a Rule, that Remitter shall not be, where there is not both an Action and a Right, with a Discent of the Possession of the Estate to the same Party that is to be remitted: Nor may it be, when the Party comes to his last Title by his own Wrong, or any Folly of his own; or on a void Estate. 1 Inst. 347, 353. If Land descend to him that has Right to it before, he shall be remitted to his better and more ancient Title, if he will: And a Remitter must be to a precedent Right; for regularly to every Remitter there are two Incidents, viz. an ancient Right, and a defeasible Estate of Freehold coming together. Doct. & Stud. cap. 9. Wood's Inst. 528. Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and dieth, and his Issue being within Age enters for the Condition broken by Virtue of the Feoffment; he shall be first in as Tenant in Fee-simple, and be remitted as Heir to his Father: But if the Heir be of Age, he shall not be remitted; but is to bring this Writ of Formedon against the Feoffee. 1 Inst. 202, 349. And if Tenant in Tail infeoff his Son or Heir apparent, who is within Age, and after dies, that is a Remitter to the Heir: Though if he were of full Age at the Time of such Feoffment, it is no Remitter, because it was his Folly, that he being of full Age would take such a Feoffment. Litt. 655. If a Husband alien Lands that he hath in Right of his Wife, and after take an Estate again to him and his Wife for their Lives, this is a Remitter to the Wife, for the Alienation is the Act of the Husband, and not of the Woman; yet if the Alienation be by Fine in a Court of Record, such a Taking again afterwards to the Husband and Wife, shall not make the Wife to be in her Remitter, she being excluded by the Fine for ever. Terms de Ley 519. Lands are given to a Man and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies; and after the Husband aliens the Land in Fee, and then takes back an Estate to him, and to his Wife for their Lives; here they will be both of them remitted: But if he take an Estate again to himself for Life; Remitter will not be allowed against his own Alienation. 1 Inst. 354. When the Entry of a Person is lawful, and he takes an Estate in the Land for Life; or in Fee, &c. (except it be by Matter of Record, or otherwise to conclude or estop him) he shall be remitted. 1 Inst. 363. And a Remitter to one in Possession, may be a Remitter to another in Remainder; if the Remainder be not bound, which estops it. Cro. Car. 145. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Fee to A. B. and the Tenant in Tail discontinueth, and takes back an Estate in Fee; and then devises the Lands to his Wife for Life, with Remainder to W. R. for Years, Remainder to the same A. B. in Fee, and dies, and his Wife enters and dies: It has been held, that he in Remainder in Fee may enter and avoid the Term for Years to W. R. because he is remitted to his first Remainder in Fee; and a Remitter avoids a Lease for Years, without Entry. Noy 48. A Father was Tenant for Life, Remainder to his Son for Life, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Body of the Father; he and his Son conveyed the Lands to the Uncle in Fee, who died without Issue, so that the Son who was Heir in Tail to the Father, was now Heir at Law to the Uncle, and the Fee descended on him; the Wife of the Uncle brought Dower, but the Son being remitted to his former Estate, no Dower accrued to the Wife, for the Estate of which she claims Dower is gone. 1 Leon. 37. 9 Rep. 136. Lands were purchased by a Man, and settled upon himself and his Wife in Tail, and they had Issue two Sons; then he made a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Wife for Life, Remainder in Fee to his second Son: The Wife after his Death entered, and made a Feoffment to the Issue of the second

cond Son; and then the eldest Son entered for a Forfeiture, upon the Stat. 11 H. 7. cap. 20. and it was adjudged a Forfeiture, by Reason the Wife having two Titles, one as Tenant in Tail, and the other as Tenant for Life, by her Entry she is remitted to her Estate for Life, so that the Feoffment made by her is a Forfeiture of her Estate. Sid. 63. 3 Nels. Abr. 100. If Land be given to a Woman in Tail, the Remainder to another and a Third in Tail, Remainder to a Fourth in Fee; the Feme takes Husband and he Discontinues the Lands in Fee, and after an Estate is made to the Husband and Wife for their Lives, or other Estate: This is a Remitter to all them in Remainder, and if she die without Issue, they may enter; and so it is of them that have the Reversion after such Entails. Lit. Sect. 673. Where a Person lets Land for Term of Life to another, who granteth it away in Fee; if the Alienee make an Estate to the Lessor, it will be a Remitter to him, because his Entry is lawful. Ibid. 694. If one be disseised, and the Disseisor makes a Feoffment to the Disseisee; in this Case the Disseisee may be remitted to his elder Title, or he may choose to take by the Feoffment; and if it be with Warranty, he may if he will make Use of the Warranty. 1 H. 7. 20. 3 Slep. Abr. 237. Tenant in Tail, hath two Sons, and he leases the Land intailed to his elder Son for Life, the Remainder to his youngest Son; it is no Remitter to the eldest: But if he die without Issue of his Body, the youngest Son shall be remitted. Litt. 682. If Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment to the Use of himself and his Heirs, he shall not be remitted; but his Issue shall. 3 Nels. 100. On Remitter of Issue in Tail, Leases and other Charges on the Lands are avoided. Litt. 659, 660.

Remover, Is where a Suit or Cause is removed out of one Court into another; and for this there are divers Writs and Means. 11 Rep. 41. And Remanding of a Cause, is the sending it back into the same Court, out of which it was called and sent for. Marsh. 106. See Habeas Corpus.

Renant, Or rather Reniant, i. e. Negans, from the Fr. Renier, negare, to deny or refuse. 32 H. 8. cap. 2.

Render, (Fr. Rendre, viz. Reddere) Signifies to yield, give again, or return. This Word is used in the Levying of a Fine, which is either single, where nothing is rendered back by the Cognisee; or double, when it contains a Grant and Render back again of the Land, &c. to the Cognisor. West's Symb. And there are certain Things in a Manor that lie in Prender, that is, which may be taken by the Lord or his Officers when they happen, without any Offer made by the Tenant, such as Escheats, &c. and certain that lie in Render, i. e. must be rendered or answered by the Tenant, as Rents, Heriots, and other Services: Also some Services consist in Seisance; and some in Render. West. Symb. par. 2. Perking's Reserva. 696.

Renegate, or Renegado, which we corruptly call Runnegate, is one who was a Christian, and afterwards negat Christum, and apostatized to Mabometism: This is mentioned in Hoveden by the Name of Renek. Hoved. Anno 1192.

Renegeld, Is a Kind of Rent or Tenure. — Per Renogeld Johannes S. Ar. clamat habere de quilibet Bovata terre infra feudum de A. 1. d. Rot. Plac. in Itin. apud Cestriam, 14 H. 7.

Renovant, (From Renovo) To renew, or make again: The Parson sued one for Tithes, to be paid of Things Renovant, &c. 2 Cro. 430.

Rent, (Redditus) Is a Sum of Money, or other Consideration, issuing yearly out of Lands or Ten-ments. 1 Inst. 141. It must be certain, or that which may be reduced to a Certainty; and regularly it is to be reserved out of a corporal Inheritance, whereunto the Grantor may have Recourse to distrain, and not granted out of a Common, Piscary, &c. or such like incorporeal Inheritances; but as to incorporeal Inheritances, the Reservation may be good by Way of Contract, to have Action of Debt. 1 Inst. 47, 143. A Grant of a Rent out of a Hundred, is void; for the Rent cannot issue out of it, nor doth an Assise lie for it, because it cannot be put in View: And a Fair is but a Franchise, out of which a Rent may not be reserved. 5 Rep. 3, 4. A Rent may be reserved out of a Reversion or Remainder of Lands; for the apparent Possibility that they may come in Possession. Cro. Eliz. 792. But the Profits of the Land, which are the Thing itself may not be reserved as Rent; notwithstanding the Rent be out of the Profits. 1 Inst. 206. One may make a Lease of the Vesture or Herbage of Land, reserving a Rent: Or of a Rectory, with Reservation of Rent out of it. 7 Rep. 18. Rents are to be reserved to the Lessor, or Feoffor, &c. it being a Maxim in Law, that the Rent must be reserved to him from whom the Land moveth. 1 Inst. 143. There are several Kinds of Rents; as a Fee-farm Rent, Quit-Rent, Rack Rent, Old-Rent, and improved Rent, &c. but the common Division of Rents is into three Sorts, viz. Rent-Service, Rent-Charge, and Rent-Seek. Litt. 213. Rent-Service is accompanied with some corporeal Service, as Fealty, &c. and is where upon a Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life, or Years, a Man reserves to himself a certain Rent, whilst the Reversion of the Lands continues in him; this is a most certain Mark to know it to be a Rent-Service; and if this Rent be behind at the Day on which it ought to be paid, the Landlord by the Common Law may distrain for it, without any particular Covenant, &c. If a Person grants all his Term, and there be no Reversion left in the Grantor, he cannot distrain for the Rent; yet Debt will lie for it as a Sum in Gros, where there is no Reversion. 1 Inst. 87, 141, 142. Litt. 213. 2 Lev. 80. And where an annual Sum is appointed to be paid to a Stranger, it is not a Rent but a Sum in Gros. 1 Leon. 362. Rent-Charge is when a Person by Deed maketh over his Estate to another in Fee, or by Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, or a Lease for Life, Remainder over in Fee, or any other Grant where the whole Estate passeth, and by the same Deed reserveth to him and his Heirs a certain Rent; and covenanteth that if the Rent be behind, it shall be lawful for him and his Heirs to distrain, &c. such a Rent is called a Rent-Charge, because the Lands are charged with such Distress by Force of the Deed, and not by the Common Law, as in the Case of a Rent-Service: It must be a Conveyance in Fee, either in Possession or Remainder, or a Grant of the whole Estate, to make a Rent-Charge; for the Reversion is not to be in the Feoffor, as is requisite in the Rent-Service: But if one feised of Land, Grants by Deed an yearly Rent issuing out of it to another Person in Fee, Fee-tail, for Term of Life, or Years, with Clause of Distress, it is a Rent-Charge; also if one feised of Lands in Fee, binds his Goods and Lands for the Payment of an yearly Rent, this is a good Rent-Charge, with Power to distrain: So that a Rent-Charge may be either by Reservation or Grant. Litt. 217, 218. 1 Inst. 143, 144, 147. If a Man hath a Rent-Service or Rent-Charge, and grants it to another by Deed for Life, reserving Rent, it is void; because a Rent cannot be charged with another Rent. Kelw. 161. A Rent-Charge, of what Nature soever it be, is grantable over: And a Rent is not a Thing merely in Action. 1 Inst. 292. 3 Nels. Abr. 111. Lands are charged with a Rent-Charge, and after the Owner of these Lands makes a Lease thereof, and covenants with the

Lessee to save him harmless: If afterwards the Lessee pays the Rent to the Grantee of the Rent-Charge, voluntarily and without Compulsion, per Holt Chief Justice in such Case he pays it in his own Wrong, and must pay it again to the Lessor; though if he is distrained for the Rent-Charge, and his Goods are taken, whereby he is compelled to pay the Rent, it is otherwise, and this is a Breach of the Covenant, and not before. 3 Salk. 109. Rent-Seck, or dry Rent, is where a Man by Deed passeth his Estate to another, and Reserves to him and his Heirs a certain Rent: or granteth a Rent issuing out of his Lands, without any Clause of Distress in the Deed: Now by the Common Law he cannot distrain for this Rent, by Reason he hath not Seisin of the Rent, and no Distress is incident to it, and there being no Reversion or particular Charge to enable him to do it: But if the King hath a Rent-Seck, he may distrain for it. Litt. 217, 233, 235. And a late Act of Parliament gives all Perions the like Remedy for recovering Rent-Seck, Chief Rents, &c. as for Rents reserved on Lease. 4 Geo. 2. An Assise will lie of a Rent-Seck for a Grantee, if he hath had Seisin; but if there had been no Seisin, he was without Remedy: Non-payment of a Rent Seck upon Demand is a Denial in Law, whereof the Grantee may have an Assise; provided he hath had Seisin of the Rent before. Cro. Eliz. 505. 2 Lill. Abr. 449. The Difference between a Rent-Charge and a Rent-Seck is, that there is a Clause of Distress annexed to one, and no such Clause to the other; and therefore the one is a Charge upon the Land, but for the other the Grantee had formerly no Remedy, but to charge the Person of the Grantor in a Writ of Annuity; and he must have Seisin of the Rent, which is to be created by Grant, and not by Devise; also the first Payment that gives Life to the Rent-Seck, ought to be made by the Tenant of the Freehold; likewise he should attorn, or he cannot have Assise. 6 Rep. 56. If a Rent be granted in Fee, with a Clause of Distress only for the Life of the Grantee, there it is a Rent-Charge for his Life, and after his Death his Heirs shall have it as a Rent Seck; though if the Clause of Distress be for Years, then it is a Rent-Seck, as well during his Life as afterwards. 7 Rep. 23. 3 Nels. Abr. 313. If one grant that if A. be not paid 20*l.* a Year for his Life, he shall distrain for it; this is a good Grant of such a Rent during his Life. Co. Litt. 147. To these three Sorts of Rents may be added a Rent reserved upon a Lease at Will, called a Rent distrainable of Common Right: And in Action of Debt for Rent upon a Lease at Will, the Plaintiff must set forth, that the Defendant entered and was possessed, and prove it, because the Rent is due only by the Occupation; but on a Lease for Years, the Rent is due on the Contract; and if the Lessee never enters he must pay the Rent. 1 Inst. 141. 1 Salk. 209. A Man may have a Rent by Prescription; and prescribe that he and his Ancestors have been seised thereof, and used to distrain for it, when in Arrear; and so a Person may make a good Title to a Rent without any Deed. 1 Inst. 144. 6 Rep. 33. And there are Rents, but not properly called so, reserved by Contract or Deed, which creates them with Clause of Distress, without a Tenure, against the natural Course of the Law; though such Rent is rather a Penalty: In all Cases, by late Statutes, a Landlord may distrain for his Rent upon any Contract. 1 Inst. 144, 213. Litt. 345. Wood's Inst. 185, 598. Rent will not be barred by Fine levied by Tenant in Tail; but remains a collateral Charge on the Land. 2 Lev. 30. And where a Donor grants a Rent out of a Reversion, it may not be barred by Recovery against the Tenant in Tail; though if a Man makes a Gift in Tail, reserving a Rent, it may. Cro. Car. 598. If a Lease for Years, or Life, or Gift in Tail, be made to one with Reservation of Rent; and the Lessor or Donor grant the Reversion over generally to another, the Rent passeth to the Grantee, although no Mention be made of it in the Grant; the Rent being incident to the Reversion: But though a Rent be incident to the Reversion, it is not inseparably incident; the Reversion may be granted, so as not to pass the Rent. 1 Inst. 143, 317. Rents may be devised by Will in the same Manner as Lands: A Testator seised of Lands in Fee, made a Lease thereof rendering Rent, and afterwards devised the Rent to another; and adjudged that the Executor, and not the Heir shall have it; because it is but a Chattel in the Devisee. 2 Cro. 144. Dyer 5. A Lease is made for Years of Land in Fee-simple, rendering Rent to the Lessor, his Executors or Assigns, during the Term; the Heir shall have the Rent; it running with the Reversion: And if a Lessor dies before the Day of Payment of Rent, it shall go to his Heir, as incident to the Reversion; but if it becomes due in the Lessor's Life time, it shall go to the Executors. 12 Rep. 36. 10 Rep. 127. Raym. 213. 2 Saund. 367. If the Lessor dies upon the Day of Payment, and the Rent is unpaid, the Heir shall have it; for the Rent is not due till the last Minute of the Day: But if it be paid that Morning before the Lessor dies, his Executor shall retain it against the Heir. 10 Rep. 127. 1 Inst. 212. In what Cases the Rent shall go to Executors, or him in Remainder; on the Lessor for Life's dying, and the Rent not paid before the last Instant of the Day whereon due, see Preced. Canc. 555. One seised of Lands in Fee, makes a Lease of the same Lands for ten Years, yielding to him and his Heirs a yearly Rent of 20*l.* at the Feast of St. Michael, or within one Month after; now if the Lessor dieth between the Feast of St. Michael and the End of the Month, the Rent must be paid to the Heir, and not the Executor; because this was not due until the End of the Month. 10 Rep. 127. 1 Saund. 287. If a Lease is made for Years, paying a yearly Rent at Michaelmas and Lady day, or within twelve Days after, upon Condition that if the Rent be not paid by that Time, next after the said Feasts, or Days of Payment, then the Lease shall be void; in this Case, it is said the Tenant or Lessee hath twelve Days after the twelve Days, to pay the said Rent; for the twelfth Day after the Feasts was a Day of Payment: But if the Clause in the Lease had been, that if the Rent is behind for the Space of twelve Days after either of the said Feast-Days of Payment, the Lease to be void, &c. here the Tenant hath but the twelve Days allowed him. 10 Rep. 129. 4 Rep. 27. A Man seised in Fee of Lands, lets them for Years, and reserves a Rent to himself, not to him and his Heirs, the Rent shall determine by his Death, if he dies within the Term: So if he reserves a Rent to him and his Assigns, the Reservation is good only during his Life. Wood's Inst. 186. Though if he reserves a Rent generally, without shewing to whom it should go, it will go to his Heirs. 1 Inst. 47. 5 Rep. 11. An Heir shall have the Rent, where he is named in the Grant; And if the Rent is reserved to the Lessor, his Heirs and Assigns, the Assigns of the Reversion shall enjoy it, if the Rent is incident to the Inheritance. 2 Cro. 282. Plowd. 167. 1 Inst. 47. Where a Tenant for Life lets a Lease for Years, if he shall so long live, under certain Rent, and the Tenant for Life dieth before a Quarter-Day, or Day of Payment, the Tenant is discharged of the Rent for that Quarter by the Act of God: But this may be guarded against by dividing the Rent, and making it payable weekly, &c. though it be not usually received otherwise than quarterly; or by Covenant in the Lease, to oblige the Tenant to pay the Executors of the Lessor for so much of the Profits as shall be received 'till his Death, if he die before any Day of Payment. 10 Rep. 127, 129. Without this Care, the Tenant might receive the Profits of the Lands and detain the Rent too, by quitting the Estate upon the Death of the Landlord, who did not live till the Rent was due; and thereby barring those in Remainder and Reversion, &c. of the Rent, because he was not their Tenant at the Day of Payment: And this has been often done by the Tenants of Bishops and Parsons, and of Widows endowed, or having Jointures of Lands for Life, &c. The same as to Tenants at Will, where the Landlord dies the Day before the Rent-Day. See Comb. 255. This Law is now altered by Statute; for if any Tenant for Life die on the Day, on which the Rent was made payable, his Executors, &c. may in Action on the Case recover from the Under-Tenants, the Whole, or if he die before such Day, a due Proportion of such Rent: And where Demises are not by Deed, Landlords may recover reasonable Satisfaction, for the Use of what the Tenants held, &c. 11 Geo. 2. If a Rent upon a Lease for Years of Land is reserved and made payable at four Quarter-Days, the Lessor may have Action of Debt after the first Day of Failure; for every Quarter's Rent is a several Debt, and distinct Actions may be brought for each Quarter, and it is not like Debt for Part of the Money on Contract. 5 Rep. 81. 10 Rep. 128. 2 Vent. 129. Thus it is of a Covenant or Promise to pay 100*l.* at five several Days, after the first Default; though if one leaseth a Stock of Cattle, or other personal Goods, and the Rent is to be paid at several Days, the Lessor must stay till all the Days are expired, because it is all but one personal Contract. 4 Rep. 94. 1 Inst. 292. An Action was for one Quarter's Rent, when two Quarters were due, so that the Plaintiff sued for less than was his Due, without shewing how the Rest was satisfied, which it was objected the Law would not allow, has been adjudged good on Demurrer, every Quarter being a several Debt; but not if it appears by the Plaintiff's own shewing that Rent for a whole Year is due, and he brings an Action only for Half a Year, &c. 2 Vent. 129. 3 Nels. Abr. 117. In Debt for Rent, the Plaintiff demands more in his Declaration than is due, he may remit Part, and have Judgment for the Residue. 2 Lill. 449. Action of Debt may be brought for Rent due for a Copyhold and Freehold together. 3 Lev. 39. Cro. Eliz. 851. Also for Rent upon a Lease of Land, and a Flock of Sheep. 3 Lev. 150. Assignee of Rent upon a Lease for Years, shall have Debt for it. 1 Lev. 22. And Covenant for Rent lies against the Lessee after an Assignment, by the Grantee in Reversion; and this, although Notice and Acceptance of the Rent had been pleaded, as it is upon an express Covenant. 3 Lev. 233. A Lessee for Years rendering Rent, assigned his Term in Parcel of the Land, and that Assignee made another Assignment of that Parcel; and it was held, that the Lessor might have an Action of Debt against the first Lessee for the whole Rent, because the Privy of Contract remained between them, and that the Rent should not be apportioned. Dyer 4. 2 Leon. 121. If a Lease be made of three Acres of Land of equal Value, paying such a Rent, and afterwards the Lessor grants the Reversion of one Acre to another; the Grantee shall have the proportionable Rent, for though it is but one Lease and one Rent, yet because the Reversion is severable the Rent shall attend upon it and be likewise severable. 8 Rep. But in a Lease of a Warren which extended into three Villages, where the Lessor granted the Reversion of that Part which lay in one of the Villages to another, and the Lessee attorned; adjudged that the Grantee shall not have any Part of the Rent, nor the Grantor neither, because an intire Contract cannot be apportioned, and therefore the Rent is determined. Moor 115. Action of Debt was brought for Rent on a Lease of three several Acres of Land for three several Terms, paying Rent pro Terminis prædictis. And it was insisted, that the Rent could not issue out of all, because they were several Terms; but the Court ruled, that it was an intire Lease, and that the Rent issued out of all the Lands; and if one of the Terms determines, it shall be paid out of the Residue. Dalif. 139. A Lease is made of Lands, rendering ten Pounds Rent, viz. For five Acres five Pounds, and for other five Acres the like Sum, &c. in this Case it shall be one, and not several Rents. 1 And. 174. But if one grant twenty Pounds a Year out of Land; to hold ten Pounds yearly for thirty Years, and the other ten Pounds thirty-six Years, payable at the Feasts of, &c. they will be several Rents, and a Distress may be for either of them alone. 1 Cro. 109. A Man grants a Rent-Charge to another for Life out of his Lands; if he grant further by the same Deed, that he and his Heirs may distrain in the Land for the same Rent: This will amount to a new Grant of the Rent in Fee-simple. 1 Inst. 148. Where Rent is granted for Life, out of Land in Fee, and a Term for Years; there it shall issue out of the Lands in Fee, not the Term of Years. 7 Rep. 23. The Land in Fee only shall be charged with this Rent; and yet the Person and the other Land are chargeable after a sort for the same. 1 Inst. 47, 146. Plowd. 198. If a Man grant Rent out of his Lands, and says not what Land, nor where; it cannot be a good Grant of the Rent; though it may be good to charge his Person as in an Annuity: So if one grant any Rent out of a Thing not chargeable with a Rent; as a Common, or Franchise, &c. 6 Rep. 58. 10 Rep. 93. But where Lands in general, are charged with a Rent, with Clause in the Deed, That if it be not paid, the Grantee shall distrain for it in the Manor of S. it will charge that Manor, but not any other Lands. 1 Inst. 146. If the Rent be granted out of one Manor, with Power to distrain in another; both the Manors are liable to it. 7 Rep. 23. A Rent reserved out of Land, is of the Nature of the Land: If a Person has a Rent on the Part of his Mother, the Distress and Remedy for it shall go to the Heir on the Part of the Mother, &c. Moor 301. 1 Inst. 142. And if two Coparceners make a Feoffment in Fee, rendering Rent to them and their Heirs, the Rent shall be of the Quality of the Lands, and the Heirs of one and of the other shall inherit. 5 Rep. 8. Yet if there be two Jointenants, and one makes a Lease for Years, rendering Rent; the Lessor dieth, the other shall not have this Rent. 1 Rep. 96. A Rent was reserved on a Lease to be paid at two Feasts, and not paid by what Portions; and yet held good, and that the Lessee should have Liberty to make the Payments by what Portions he pleased. 3 Leon. 322. The Husband after the Wife's Death is liable to pay the Rent in arrear, upon a Lease to the Wife: And any Man who in Right of his Wife, shall have any real Estate in Rents, &c. which shall be due and in Arrear at her Death, may after her Death bring Debt for those Arrears. 1 Lev. 25. 4 Rep. 50. An Action of Debt lies for Rent in arrear upon a Lease for Life, or Years; at Common Law it lay not on Leases for Life, but it may be brought by 8 Ann. cap. 17. If Tenants for Life or Years hold over Lands after the Determination of their Terms, and Demand being made to deliver the Possession, they shall pay double the yearly Value, to be recovered by Action of Debt: And when Half a Year's Rent is due and in arrear from any Tenant, and no sufficient Distress can be had on the Premises, the Landlord may serve a Declaration in Ejectment, and recover Judgment, &c. but the Tenant may file his Bill in Equity, within six Months, to be relieved; though not have an Injunction against the Proceedings at Law, (unless he bring the Money due into Court) and paying the Rent in arrear, and Costs, all Proceeding to cease, &c. by the 4 Geo. 2. cap. 28. If any Tenant, holding Lands, &c. at a Rack Rent, being in arrear one Year's Year's Rent, shall desert and leave the same uncultivated or unoccupied; two Justices of Peace, may at the Request of the Landlord go upon and view the Premises, and fix on the most notorious Part thereof, a Notice in Writing, on what Day (at the Distance of 14 Days) they will take a second View; and if the Tenant, or some Person for him, do not then pay the Rent, and there is no Distress, the Tenant's Lease shall become void: The said two Justices Proceedings to be examined into in a summary Way, by the next Justices of Assise of the County; who if they see Cause may award Restitution and Costs to the Tenant, &c. By this Statute, in Case a Tenant gives Notice of his quitting the Premises, and do not accordingly deliver up Possession, at the Time notified; he is thenceforward to pay double Rent recoverable as single Rent. Stat. 11 Geo. 2. cap. 19. Debt may be brought for Part of Rent due, and a Distress taken for the other Part; so as to make both the Person and Land liable: If Tenant in Fee, or in Tail die, his Executor may have Action of Debt by the Stat. 32 H. 8. for Rent in arrear, or he may distrain; but before this Act, the Executor had no Remedy by the Common Law: So it was in the Case of a Tenant pur auter vie, for his Executor had no Remedy till the Death of Cestuy que vie; and now he may distrain or have an Action of Debt for the Rent arrear. 1 Cro. 471. 3 Salk. 333. If Tenant for Life die, his Executor may bring Action of Debt for the Rent in arrear; and this was his Remedy at Common Law; but a new Remedy is given by this Statute, and that is to distrain: Though if there be a Grantee of a Rent for twenty Years, if he so long live, and there is Rent in arrear, and then the Grantee dies; his Executor cannot distrain for the Arrears within the Statute, but must keep to his Remedy at Common Law. 3 Salk. 304. Where the Lord gained a Rent of the Tenant by Incroachment, upon a Distress taken for it, the Tenant could not help himself in Replevin, before the Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 3. because he could not traverse the Tenure; but was compelled to bring the Writ Ne injuste vexes against the Lord, and there he might traverse the Tenure: Since that Statute, the Lord in his Avowry must alledge Seisin of the Rent for forty Years past; which the Tenant may traverse. 4 Rep. 8. 10 Rep. 88. 9 Rep. 33. In Debt for Rent upon a Lease for Years, the Defendant pleaded an Invasion by Enemies, who drove him and his Cattle from the Lands demised, so that he could not enjoy the same; but it was adjudged against him; for he did not plead that the Army were all Aliens and unknown: And if a Man covenants to pay Rent, and it happens that the Lands are overflowed with Water, he is still chargeable with the Rent, because he might have provided against this Accident by his Contract; and though there was no express Covenant in this Lease to pay the Rent, the Reservation is a Covenant in Law, and a Duty is created by it, and the Law will not protect him against his own Agreement. Style 47. If no Place is appointed for Payment of Rent, the Law appoints it to be upon the Land. 4 Rep. 72. Demand of Rent is also to be on the Land, &c. and to warrant a Distress, the Demand may be at any Time after due; but it is not so for Re-entry. 1 Inst. 201. Dyer 25. Tender of the Rent, which must be the whole Rent due, may be upon any Part of the Lands let. Ibid. Acceptance of Rent, in some Cases, will give Affirmance to a voidable Lease, and bar Entries for Conditions broken, &c. And Rent may be extinguished by Purchase of Parcel of the Land, &c. Vide the Heads.

Rental, A Roll wherein the Rents of a Manor are written and set down, and by which the Lord's Bailiff collects the same: It contains the Lands and Tenements let to each Tenant, and the Names of the Tenants, the several Rents arising, and for what Time, usually a Year. Compl. Court Keep. 475.

Rents of Assise, The certain Rents of Freeholders, and ancient Copyholders, so called, because they were assised, and different from others that were uncertain, paid in Corn, &c. 2 Inst. 19. Rents resolute are such Rents as were anciently payable to the Crown from the Lands of Abbies and Religious Houses; and after the Dissolution of the Abbey Lands which were demised to others, the said Rents were still reserved to the Crown: They are reckoned among the Fee-farm Rents, to be sold by the Stat. 22 Car. 2. cap. 6.

Reparations, A Tenant for Life or Years, may cut down Timber-Trees to make Reparations, although he be not compelled thereto; as where a House is ruinous at the Time of the Lease made, and the Lessee suffers it to fall, he is not bound to rebuild it, and yet if he fell Timber for Reparations he may justify the same. 1 Co. Inst. 54. The Lessee covenants, That from and after the Amendment and Reparation of the Houses by the Lessor, he at his own Charges will keep and leave them in Repair: In this Case the Lessee is not obliged to do it, unless the Lessor first make good the Reparations: And if it be well repaired at first, when the Lease began, and after happen to decay; the Lessor must first repair, before the Lessee is bound to keep it so. 2 Cro. 645. If one covenant for the Reparation of a House, upon Request of the Lessor, and he repair without it; this is no Performance of the Covenant. 2 Leon. cap. 72. See Lease, Covenant, and Waste.

Reparatione facienda, Is a Writ that lies in divers Cases; one whereof is where there are Tenants in Common or Jointenants of a House, &c. which is fallen to Decay, and one of them is willing to repair it, but the others are not: In this Case the Party willing to repair the same, shall have this Writ against the others. F. N. B. 127. And if a Man have a House adjoining to my House, and he suffer his House to lie in Decay to the Annoyance of my House, I may have a Writ against him to repair his House. So if a Person have a Passage over a Bridge, and another ought to repair the Bridge, who suffers it to fall to Decay, &c. New Nat. Br. 281.

Repastum, A Repast or Meal of Meat given to servile Tenants, when they laboured for their Lord. Paroch. Antiq. 401.

Repeal, (From the Fr. Rappel, i. e. Revocatio) Signifies the same with revoke; as the Repealing of a Statute is the Revoking or Disannulling it. Reftal. It is said a Pardon of Felony, &c. may be repealed, upon disproving the Suggestions. 1 Keb. 19. A Deed or Will may not stand good as to Part, and be repealed for the Rest. Style 241. And a Defendant in a Suit cannot repeal or revoke his Warrant of Attorney, given to an Attorney to appear for him, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 452.

Repleader, (Replacitare) Is to plead that again which was once pleaded before. Broke. On an immaterial Issue in a Cause, Repleader may be awarded; and Repleader is to be had where the Pleading hath not brought the Issue in Question, which was to be tried: Also if a Verdict be given where there was no Issue joined, there must be a Repleader to bring the Matter to Trial, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 460. In Debt on a Sheriff's Bond, for the Defendant's Appearance in B. R. upon the Return of the Writ, the Defendant pleaded that he had appeared secundum, &c. and upon this they were at Issue; and there being a Verdict for the Plaintiff, a Repleader was allowed, because the Appearance was not triable by a Jury, but by the Record. 1 Leon. 90. 3 Nels. Abr. 123. It was held by the Court of B. R. that that at Common Law, a Repleader was granted before Trial, because a Verdict did not cure an immaterial Issue; but that now a Repleader ought never to be awarded before Trial, because the Fault in the Issue may be helped by the Statutes of Jeofails: That if a Repleader is denied where it should be granted, or é converso, it is Error; and the Judgment in Repleader is general, (viz.) Quod Partes replacent: They must begin again at the first Fault, which occasioned the immaterial Issue; if the Declaration and the Bar, and the Replication be all ill, they must begin de novo; but if the Bar be good, and the Replication ill, they must begin at the Replication; and no Costs are allowed on either Side; and a Repleader cannot be awarded after a Default. Trin. 2 Ann. 2 Salk. 579. Tho' a Repleader is allowed after a Verdict; it has been adjudged not to be awarded after a Demurrer: (But a Repleader hath formerly been granted after Demurrer, and likewise after the Demurrer argued) and that a Repleader can never be awarded after a Writ of Error; but only after Issue joined, &c. Litch 147. 3 Lev. 440. Mod. ca. 102. See the Form of a Repleader, Lutw. 1622.

Replegiare, Is to redeem a Thing detained or taken by another, by putting in legal Sureties. See Replevin.

Replegiare de averiis, A Writ brought by one whose Cattle are distrained, or put in the Pound upon any Cause by another Person, on Surety given to the Sheriff to prosecute or answer the Action at Law. F. N. B. 68. Reg. Orig. Stat. 7 H. 8. c. 4.

Replevin, (Plevina, Replegiamentum, à Replegiare) Is a Remedy grounded and granted upon a Distress, being a Re-deliverance of the Thing distrained to remain with the first Possessor, on Security or Pledges given by him to try the Right with the Distrainer, and to answer him in a Course of Law. 1 Inst. 145. If one doth distrain another's Cattle or Goods for Rent, or Service, Damage-feasant, &c. the Owner, upon giving Security to the Sheriff that he will pursue his Action against the Party distraining, and return the Cattle or Goods again, if the Taking shall be adjudged lawful, may have a Writ of Replevin or Replegiari facias; whereby the Sheriff is commanded to return the Cattle or Goods to the Owner, till the Right of the Distress is determined: And the Person that is distrained is to be Plaintiff in the Replevin, and the Person distraining the Defendant or Avowant; for his Justification of the Distress is termed an Avowry. 1 Inst. 268. Replevins are by Writ at Common Law; or upon Plaint in the Sheriff's Court by Statute, for the Party's more speedy having again of his Cattle and Goods distrained; and the Sheriff ought to take two Sorts of Pledges, one by the Common Law, viz. Plegii de Prosequendo; and another by the Statute, i. e. Plegii de Retorno Habendo: And Replevin lies either in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, by Writ; also it lieth in the County-Court, and Court Baron by Plaint; and a Hundred Court may hold Plea of Replevins, but they are not to be granted out of Court. 1 Inst. 145. Dyer 246. If the Cattle or Goods are not delivered upon a first Replevin, the Party distrained shall have an Alias and a Pluries Replevin. F. N. B. 69. The Sheriff may act by Virtue of the Writ of Replevin, or ex Officio by Precept to his Bailiff: And the Sheriff may take a Plaint on the Statutes, and make a Replevin presently, and enter it in the County-Court afterwards. 2 Inst. 139. 52 H. 3. c. 21. By the Statute 52 H. 3. If Beasts are taken and wrongfully with-holden, the Sheriff upon Complaint may deliver them, if they were not taken within Liberties: And if within Liberties, and the Bailiffs thereof will not deliver them, the Sheriff shall cause them to be delivered in Replevin. The Stat. Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 2. enacts, That Lords of Hundreds or Courts-Baron, shall have Power to hold Plea of Replevin; and Sheriffs, Bailiffs, &c. are to take Pledges of the Plaintiff to prosecute his Suit, and return the Distress, if it be awarded; or they shall answer the Lord for the Price of the Cattle; and if a Bailiff is not able to restore them, his Superior shall do it. But Stewards of Hundred Courts, and other Courts of Lords of Manors, though they have Power to replevy Goods; that must be by Process of the Court, after Plaint entered therein. Trin. 8 W. 3. B. R. By 1 Pb. & M. c. 12. the Sheriff at his first County-Court, within two Months after he has his Patent, is to depute and proclaim in the Shire Town, Deputies to make Replevins, &c. The 21 H. 8. c. 19. ordains, that upon a Replevin sued, an Avowry may be made by the Lord, or Cognisance and Justification by his Bailiff, &c. on the Land holden of the same Lord, without naming any Person certain to be Tenant thereof; and the like Law is upon every Writ sued of second Deliverance: In a Replevin Damages and Costs are given the Defendant, such as the Plaintiff would have had if he had recovered in the Action, &c. By the 17 Car. 2. cap. 7. in Replevin, &c. if the Plaintiff be nonsuit, the Defendant may make Suggestion in the Nature of an Avowry for Rent; and on Prayer a Writ shall be awarded to the Sheriff to inquire of the Sum in arrear, and the Value of the Distress; and on the Return thereof, the Defendant shall recover the Arrears, or the Value of the Distress with Costs, &c. And by 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. the Plaintiff in a Replevin, with Leave of Court, may plead as many several Matters thereto, as he shall think necessary for his Defence: Provided, if any such Matter upon Demurrer joined shall be judged insufficient, Costs shall be given at the Discretion of the Court; or if a Verdict be found upon any Issue for the Plaintiff or Defendant, Costs shall also be given, unless the Judge certify that the Party had a probable Cause to plead such Matter: These two last Statutes relate to Replevins in the Courts at Westminster. And by the late Act 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. In Replevin Defendants may avow generally, that the Plaintiff, or other Tenant of the Land, &c. whereon the Distress was made, held the same at a certain Rent, during the Time the Rent distrained for incurred; which Rent was then, and still remains due, &c. without setting forth the Landlord's Grant or Title: And if the Plaintiff becomes Nonsuit, &c. the Defendant shall recover double Costs. Sheriffs and other Officers granting Replevins, before the Distress be delivered, shall, in their own Names, take Bond from the Plaintiff, and two Sureties, in double the Value of the Goods distrained, (to be ascertained by Oath of a credible disinterested Witness) to prosecute the Suit with Effect, and without Delay, and return the Goods, in Case a Return be awarded; and such Sheriff, &c. at the Request of the Avowant, shall assign him the Bond by Indorsement, which if forfeited, he may bring an Action, and recover thereupon in his own Name: And the Court where the Action shall be brought, may by a Rule of the same, give Relief to the Parties. The most usual Method to obtain a Replevin is by Plaint: But one cannot claim Property in a Replevin by his Bailiff or Servant, where Replevin is by Plaint in the County-Court; though one may claim Property in a Court of Record, by a Bailiff or Servant. 1 Lev. 90. And the Action of Replevin may be removed out of the County-Court, by Pone, if it was sued out by Writ; and by Recordare, where the Replevin is upon Plaint, returnable into B. R. or C. B. there to be tried. F. N. B. 69, 70. The Plaintiff in Replevin must have a general or special Property in the Goods, for he who claims no Property in the Thing distrained shall not have Replevin; but if the Defendant in the Replevin claims the Property, the Sheriff cannot proceed till it is inquired into and decided before him by the Writ Proprietate Probanda; whereon if found for the Defendant, dant, he can proceed no further, as he may if found for the Plaintiff; though the Plaintiff may afterwards replevy by Writ; and if the Sheriff returns the Property claimed, it shall be put in Issue and tried in C. B. 1 Inst. 145. Finch 316, 317. If any Thing touching the Freehold comes in Question, the Sheriff likewise must proceed no further. Wood's Inst. 553. When a Plea in Replevin is removed into C. B. &c. and the Plaintiff makes Default, or is Nonsuit, before or after Declaration, or Judgment is given against him, the Defendant in Replevin shall have the Writ Retorno Habendo of the Goods taken in Distress; so if he pursue not his Action of Replevin, &c. And the Plea being removed, if the Plaintiff in Replevin is nonsuited before or after Avowry made, the Defendant may again distrain his Cattle for the same Cause he distrained the First; yet the Plaintiff may sue out a Writ of Second Deliverance upon the same Record, which will revive the first Suit: And after this Second Deliverance and Trial thereupon, or if the Plaintiff be again Nonsuit upon a Declaration, then there must be awarded a Retursum irreplegiabile to the Defendant, and then he may make his Avowry, or Plea in Justification of his Distress, to ground a Writ to inquire of Damages; or he may hold the Beasts till he is satisfied. Raym. 33. F. N. B. 72. Wood's Inst. 553. If the Defendant makes Default, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment to recover all in Damages; as well the Value of the Cattle, as Damages for the Taking of them, and his Costs. F. N. B. 69. Mich. 8 H. 8. No Writ of Second Deliverance lies in Replevin after a Judgment upon a Demurrer, or after a Verdict given, but in these Cases the Judgment must be entered with a Return irrepleviable; though on a Nonsuit a Second Deliverance will lie, because there is no Determination of the Matter, and there a Writ of Second Deliverance lieth to bring the Matter in Question: But in the Case of a Demurrer and Verdict, the Matter is determined by Law. Mich. 7 W. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 457. The Plaintiff in a Second Deliverance was nonsuited, and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages awarded, and also a Retorno Habendo, upon which the Sheriff returned Averia Elongata; whereupon a Whitherman was granted, and all the other of the Plaintiff's Cattle were delivered to the Defendant; and some Time after the Plaintiff came into Court, and paid the Damages and Costs, on which the Court granted him a special Writ to restore his Cattle; but there was no Allowance for the keeping of the Cattle, it being intended their Labour was worth the Charges. 3 Leon. 323. Litt. Rep. 54. If Cattle distrained are put into a Castle, the Sheriff must nevertheless make Replevin and Deliverance; and if Occasion be, he may take the Possē or Power of the County with him for that Purpose: And where the Cattle are driven out of the County, &c. so that the Sheriff cannot make Replevin, a Writ of Whitherman shall go to the Sheriff to take so many of the Distrainer's or Defendant's Cattle, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 565. A Defendant in Replevin may plead Property in the Cattle in a Stranger, either in Bar or in Abatement; and where the Plea in Abatement is to the Point of the Action, as Property is, there the Defendant shall have a Return without making an Avowry for it; for whether the Property was in him or a Stranger, he ought to have a Return, because he had the Possession of the Cattle, which were illegally taken from him by the Plaintiff in Replevin: But where the Plea in Abatement is of a collateral Matter, he must make an Avowry to have the Return. 1 Salk. 94. 3 Nels. 129. The General Issue in Replevin is Non Cepit; but the Defendant may plead Property in himself, in Bar or Abatement to the Action; though if he plead Property in a Stranger, he must conclude in Abatement; and 'tis to be observed, that upon the General Issue Property cannot be given in Evidence, therefore it must be pleaded there. Voss.

249. 3 Salk. 307. Replevin was brought for Taking and Detaining a Mare and Colt; the Defendant pleaded Not guilty as to the Taking, infra sex annos ultimo elapsos; and upon Demurrer it was insisted, that the Plea was good, because in Effect 'tis Non Cepit; and if he is not guilty of the Taking, he could not be guilty of the Detaining; and if this Plea be not allowed, the Statute of Limitations can never be a Bar in Replevin; but the Plea was adjudged ill, because it doth not answer the Detaining, and probably the Cattle might be pounded where the Plaintiff could not come to replevy them, which is an illegal Detainer, tho' the taking might be legal. Sid. 81. The Plaintiff is to lay his Replevin in the Detinuit, or Detinet; if in the Detinet, the Plaintiff hath his Goods again, and Damages for the Taking and Detaining; if 'tis brought in the Detinuit, he shall only recover for the wrongful Taking; for that Word being in the preterperfect Tense, implies that the Plaintiff had his Goods again: So that if in Replevin the Writ be in the Detinet, and the Plaintiff declare in the Detinuit, the Declaration is ill, the Variance being material. 2 Lutw. 1147, 1151. A Replevin ought to be certain, in setting forth the Number and Kinds of Cattle distrained, or it will not be good; because if it be uncertain, the Sheriff cannot tell how to make Deliverance of the Cattle, if a Writ be directed to him to do it. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. And in a Declaration in Replevin for Taking of Cattle, if the Time and Place of Taking be not named, the Declaration is naught for Uncertainty: The Declaration must be not only of a Taking in a Vill or Town, but in quodam loco vocat, &c. or the same will not be good on Demurrer; but such a Declaration in Action of Trespass is good. Hob. 16. 3 Salk. 308. In Replevin for Taking several of his Beasts in quibusdam locis called A. and B. upon a Demurrer to this Declaration it was held ill; the Plaintiff ought to shew how many were taken in one Place, and how many in another Place. Litt. 37. And if the Plaintiff alledge two Places, and the Defendant answers only one, it is a Discontinuance. 1 Salk. 94. The Plaintiff in Replevin declared, that the Defendant took his Cattle apud R. omitting the Words in quodam loco ibidem; and on a Demurrer it was ruled, that the Effect of this Suit is the Taking of the Cattle, and not the shewing the Place where they were taken; for the Plaintiff might not know the Place, &c. and in this Action the Avowant is Actor, and best knows where the Cattle were taken, and therefore it ought to be shewed by him. 1 Brownl. 176. 3 Nels. Abr. 125. Count in a Replevin, for Breaking of the Plaintiff's Doors and Locks, and Carrying away his Goods and Cattle; the Defendant avows for a Rent-Charge, and says nothing of the Breaking of the Doors, &c. Per Cur. He need not answer it in this Action; tho' in Action of Trespass he must. Trin. 7 W. 3. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 456. In a Replevin for Taking of four Beasts, the Defendant had Judgment for a Return; and he then surmised that forty Beasts were taken and impounded, and were not all delivered back, and prayed that the Sheriff should make a Deliverance to him of forty, &c. But resolved, that the Plaintiff having declared but of four Beasts taken, and he the Defendant agreed that Four only were taken by Avowing for them, he was therefore without Remedy; Yet he might in his Avowry have shewn that forty Beasts were taken, and have avowed for all, and prayed a Return of all of them, although the Plaintiff had not declared for so many. Cro. Jac. 611. In Replevin, the Avowry was for Rent arrear, and the Avowant had Judgment; and in a Writ of Error brought in B. R. the Error assigned was, that Part of the Rent became due after the Distress taken, viz. the Distress was made three Days before Michaelmas, and the Defendant avowed for Michaelmas Rent; and it was adjudged ill, being for more than was due at th^e

Time of the Distress taken: The Avowant ought to have abated his Avowry quoad the Michaelmas Rent, and taken Judgment for the Rest; but he got the Roll amended in C. B. and so it was here. 2 Salk. 580. If the Jury in trying an Action of Replevin do not inquire as well of the Value of the Cattle distrained for Rent, that they may be sold according to the Statute, as also of the Rent due, there shall be no Writ of Inquiry to supply it. 1 Lev. 255. A Verdict was found in Replevin, Part for the Plaintiff with Damages and Costs; and Part for the Defendant: But in Avowry for Rent, Part was found for the Plaintiff and Damages and Costs, and Part for the Avowant; and it was held, that the finding Damages and Costs for the Plaintiff was void, but that Part being found for the Avowant, he shall have a Return with Damages and Costs. Lutw. 1194. Cro. Jac. 473. It is a proper Conclusion of a Plea in Replevin, &c. to say Unde petit judicium Et return. Averiorum, without saying any Thing of Damages, because they are given by the Statute: And the Defendant must suggest Matter to have a Return, &c. which Suggestion is only to bring his Case within the Statute of Hen. 8. for Damages; for before that Statute at Common Law the Defendant had no Damages; and this Suggestion being for a particular Purpose, is not traversable. 1 Salk. 94. A Second Deliverance may be a Superedeas to the Return. Habend. but 'tis not so to the Writ of Inquiry for Damages; because they are not given for the Thing for which the Defendant avowed, but by Virtue of the Stat. 21 H. 8. as a Recompence to the Avowant for his Expence and Trouble. Ibid. In Action of Replevin, the Defendant avowed for Damage-feasant, and had a Verdict; adjudged, that he shall have a Return. Habend. for the Cattle, and a Capias ad satisfaciend. for the Damages: But if the Party tender the Costs and Damages, the Sheriff ought not afterwards to execute the Return. Habend. And if for Want of such Tender, the Sheriff doth execute it, and after the Costs and Damages are paid, a Writ Si constare poterit, &c. lies, upon suggesting that the Costs are paid, to deliver the Distress, &c. 3 Cro. 162. 3 Salk. 54. If a Man take Cattle for Damage-feasant, and the other tenders Amends, and he refuseth it, &c. on a Replevin sued for the Cattle, Damages shall be recovered by the Plaintiff for the Detaining of them; and not for the Taking, which was lawful. New Nat. Br. 154, 155. And if a Lord distrain his Tenant's Cattle wrongfully, and afterwards the Cattle return back unto the Tenant; the Tenant shall nevertheless have a Replevin against the Lord for those Cattle, and recover Damages for the wrongful Distraining of them; because he cannot have Action of Trespass against his Lord for that Distress. Ibid. In Replevin an Avowry was made for Amercement in a Leet; the Plaintiff traversed that the Defendant was seised of the Manor in Fee: And it was held good. Hughes Abr. 1711. If a Replevin be against two, and one of them avows for Damage-feasant in his several Land, and the other as a Commoner; both Avowries shall abate, and the Plaintiff recover Damages. 5 Rep. 19. Plowd. 10. After Issue in a Replevin, one of the Defendants died; and it was held the Writ was good against the other. 1 Cro. 174. A Replevin is triable by either Plaintiff or Defendant, without Proviso: And if a Man do distrain Cattle in one County, and drive the Cattle into another County, the Party may sue a Replevin in which of the Counties he will; but not in both the Counties. New Nat. Br. 155. Replevin may be had, where Cattle are taken that agist or manure Land; if one distrain a Cow which afterwards hath a Calf, &c. it may be brought for both: Also it lies for Wood cut, and any Goods or Chattels; for generally whatever is distrained, may be replevied: But no Replevin lieth of Goods taken beyond the Seas, though brought afterwards into England. Sbow. 91. A Replevin may not be had against the King, nor where he is Party, or the Taking was in his Right. 3 Hen. 7. An Infant may bring Replevin; and Executors or Administrators shall have it de bonis Testatoris: Husband and Wife shall join in a Replevin, for a Distress on the Wife's Lands; and for Goods and Chattels of the Wife, taken when sole, the Husband alone may have it: If the Beasts of several Men are taken, they must have Replevin severally, and not join; unless they are Jointenant or Tenants in Common. Land Purch. Compan. 174, 175. If a Man whose Goods are distrained thinks himself wronged, and would have the Goods or Cattle restored, he may obtain them by Replevin; but if he be only desirous of a reasonable Satisfaction for them, he may bring an Action of Trespass or Trower, &c. See Avowry.

A Plaint entered in Replevin.

A. B. complains against C. D. of his Beasts unjustly taken, in his House, or his Freehold, in the Parish of, &c.

Pledges, &c.

Form of a Writ of Replevin, or Replegiare de Averiiis.

GEORGE the Second, &c. We Command you, that justly and without Delay you cause to be Replevied to A. B. his Beasts, which C. D. took, and unjustly detaineth, as is said; and after him those do you cause justly to be deduced, &c. That we may hear no more Clamour thereupon for Defect of Justice, &c.

A Count, Avowry and Judgment in Replevin.

A. B. was summoned to answer C. D. of a Plea, wherefore he took the Cattle or Beasts of the said C. and them unjustly detained against Sureties and Pledges, &c. and whereupon the said C. by, &c. his Attorney complains, that the said A. the Day of, &c. in the Year of the Reign, &c. at M. in a certain Place there called, &c. took the Cattle, that is to say, two Horses and one Cow of the said C. and them unjustly detained, against Sureties and Pledges, until such a Day, wherein they were delivered by G. H. Esq; Sheriff of the County aforesaid, or Bailiff of the Lord the King sworn and acknowledged, &c. Whereupon he saith, that he is the worse, and hath Damage to the Value of ten Pounds; and therefore he brings his Suit, &c. And the said A. by his Attorney comes and defends the Force and Injury, when, &c. And well avoweth the Taking of the Cattle aforesaid, in the said Place in which, &c. And justly, because he saith, &c. (Here is to be inserted the Avowry, or Plea that he took not the said Cattle as the said C. by his Declaration supposeth, with the Answer, Replication, Issue and special Verdict). And because the Justices here, will advise themselves of and upon the Premises, before they give Judgment, Day is given to the Parties aforesaid until the Day, &c. to bear their Judgment thereof, because the said Justices are not yet advised, &c. At which Day, here comes as well the said C. as the said A. by their Attornies aforesaid; and upon this the Premises aforesaid being seen, and by the Justices here fully understood: It is considered, that the said C. take nothing by his Writ aforesaid, but be in Mercy for his false Claim, &c. And that the said A. go thereof without Day, &c. and that he have Return of the Cattle aforesaid, to be kept by him irreplegiable for ever. And how, &c. the Sheriff make it here appear in, &c. It is also considered, that the said A. do recover against the said C. his Damages aforesaid, by the Jurors in Form aforesaid assessed; as also, &c. for his Expences and Costs, by the Court here of Increase with his Assent adjudged; which Damages in the whole amount to, &c.

Replevy.

Replevy. Tenants having their Goods taken as a Distress for Rent, are to replevy them in five Days, or they may be appraised and sold, by Stat. 2 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 5. Where any Goods are sold, if Property is claimed in them, and notwithstanding the Party doth replevy, Trespas will lie, &c. Mod. Caf. 69. 2 Lill. 459. To replevy is used for the Bailing a Man. Stat. Westm. 1. c. 11. Vide Homsns Replegiando.

Replevish, Signifies to let one to mainprise upon Surety. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 11.

Replication, (Replicatio) Is an Exception or Answer made by the Plaintiff in a Suit to the Defendant's Plea: And it is also that which the Complainant replies to the Defendant's Answer in Chancery, &c. West's Symb. par. 2. The Replication is to contain Certainty, and not vary from the Declaration, but must pursue and maintain the Cause of the Plaintiff's Action; otherwise it will be a Departure in Pleading, and going to another Matter. 1 Inst. 304. Though as a faulty Bar may be made good by the Replication; so sometimes a Replication is made good by a Rejoinder; but if it wants Substance, a Rejoinder can never help it. 2 Lill. Abr. 462. A Replication being intire, and ill in Part, is ill in the Whole: But if there be three Replications, and one of them is superfluous, and the other Two sufficient, and the Defendant demurs generally, the Plaintiff may have Judgment upon those which are sufficient. 2 Saund. 17. 1 Saund. 338. Where the Defendant pleads in Bar, and the Plaintiff replies insufficiently; if the Defendant demurs specially upon the Replication, and the Bar is insufficient, if the Action be of such a Nature that a Title is set forth in the Declaration or Count, as in a Formedon, &c. Judgment may be given for the Plaintiff upon the insufficient Bar of the Defendant: And where the Title doth not appear till set forth in the Replication, and that is insufficient, there Judgment shall be had for the Defendant for the ill Replication. Godb. 138. 1 Leon. 75. 3 Nels. Abr. 133. If the Bar is naught, and the Replication likewise, the Plaintiff shall never have Judgment: So if there is a Variance between the Declaration and the Replication, though there be a Verdict, &c. Hob. 13. Style 356. And Replications conclude either with hoc paratus est verificare, or to the Country. In Action on a Bond to pay all Sums expended about a certain Business, &c. on the Defendant's pleading he paid all; the Plaintiff replies that he had not, Et hoc paratus, &c. Upon a Demurrer it was held the Plaintiff ought to have concluded to the Country; because there is an Affirmative and Negative, and if he might be admitted to aver his Replication thus, there would be no End in Pleading. Raym. 98. But where new Matter is offered in a Replication, the Plaintiff should aver his Plea, so as to give the Defendant an Opportunity to rejoin. 4 Mod. 285. Lutw. 98.

Report, (From the Lat. Reportare) Is a publick Relation, or bringing again to Memory, of Cases judicially argued, debated, resolved or adjudged in any of the King's Courts of Justice, with the Causes and Reasons of the same as delivered by the Judges. Co. Litt. 293. There are likewise Reports when the Court of Chancery, or other Court, refer the Stating some Case, &c. to a Master of Chancery, or other Referee, his Certificate therein is called a Report: Upon which the Court makes an absolute Order. PraB. Solic. 67. A Master in Chancery, having an Order of Reference, is to issue his Summons for the Parties to attend him at a certain Time and Place; when and where they may come with their Counsel, Clerk or Solicitor, to defend themselves, and maintain or object against his Report or Certificate, &c. And Masters are to draw their Reports briefly and as succinctly as may be, preserving the Matter clearly for the Judgment of the Court; without Recital of the several Points of the Order of Reference, or the Debates of Counsel before them; unless it be in Cases doubtful, when they may shortly represent the Reasons which induce them to what they do. Ibid. Reports and Certificates of Masters in Chancery are to be filed with the Register in four Days after the Making and Signing; and to be confirmed by the Court, to which Exceptions may be made, &c. None shall take any Money for the Report of an Order or Cause referred to them by any Judges, on Pain of 5 l. &c. so as not to prohibit the Clerk from taking 12 d. for the first, and 2 d. for every other Sheet. Stat. 1 Jac. 1. cap. 10. But Masters in Chancery, may take for every Report or Certificate, made on an Order upon Hearing of a Cause 20 s. And for any other Report, &c. made upon Petition or Motion 10 s. And their Clerks shall have 5 s. for writing every Report, by 13 Car. 2. Vide Reference.

Repositio of the Forest, (Repositio Forestae, i. e. A Re putting to) Was a Statute whereby certain Forest Grounds being made Purlieu upon View, were by a second View put to the Forest again. Manw. par. 1.

Repositorium, (Lat.) A Storehouse or Place wherein Things are kept; also a Warehouse. 3 Cro. 555.

Repositus, Signifies any Thing laid up in Secret or Private.

Representation, (Representatio) Is a Personating of another: And there is an Heir by Representation, where a Father dies in the Life of the Grandfather, leaving a Son, who shall inherit his Grandfather's Estate, before the Father's Brother, &c. Bro. Abr. 303. Also Executors represent the Person of the Testator, to receive Money and Assets. Co. Litt. 209.

Representative, A Deputy or Parliament Man. Litt. Dig.

Reprisal, (Reprisale, or Reprisalia) Is the Taking of one Thing in Satisfaction for another, derived from the Fr. Reprise; and is all one in the Common and Civil Law. King Hen. 4. enacted, That Application being made to the Keeper of the Privy Seal, by Persons injured in the Loss of Shipping at Sea contrary to Treaties, &c. on Evidence shewn, he shall sign Letters of Request to demand Restitution and Reparation; which if not made in convenient Time, the Lord Chancellor of England is to grant Letters of Reprisal, to obtain the same by Force, and for the Indemnity of the Persons interested: And this is confirmed by the Stat. 4 H. 5. cap. 7. Also there are two Sorts of Reprisals, Ordinary and Extraordinary; the Ordinary Reprisals are to arrest and take the Goods of Merchant Strangers within the Realm; and the other is for Satisfaction out of the Realm, and is under the Great Seal, &c. Lex Mercat. 120. If any Person shall be killed, wounded, spoiled, or any ways damaged in a hostile Manner, in the Territories of any King or Potentate, to whom Letters of Request are transmitted, and no Satisfaction shall be made, there is no Necessity to resort to the ordinary Prosecution, but Letters of Reprisal shall issue forth; and the Prince against whom the same are issued, is obliged to make Satisfaction out of the Estates of the Persons committing the Injuries; and in Case of a Deficiency there, it will then be adjudged a common Debt on his Country. But where Misfortunes happen to Persons, or their Goods, residing in a Foreign Country in Time of War, Reprisals are not to be granted: In this Case they must be contented to sit down under the Loss, for they are at their Liberty to relinquish the Place on the Approach of the Enemy, when they foresee the Country is subject to Spoil and Devastation; and if they continue, they must partake of the common Calamity. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Campan. 174. 175. Reprisals may be granted on unjust and illegal Prosecutions abroad; where wrong Judgment ment is given in Matters not doubtful, which might have been redress'd either by the ordinary or extraordinary Power of the Country or Place, and which was apparently denied, &c. See Letters of Marque.

Reprises, (Fr. Resumptions, or a Taking back) Is used for Deductions and Payments out of a Manor or Lands, as Rent-Charges, Annuities, &c. And therefore when we speak of the clear yearly Value of a Manor or Estate or Land, we say it is so much per Annum ultra Reprises, besides all Reprises.

Reprivee, (from the Fr. Repris) Signifieth to take back or suspend a Prisoner from the Execution and Proceeding of the Law for that Time. Terms de Ley 527. Every Judge that hath Power to order an Execution, hath Power to grant a Reprivee; and oftentimes Execution is staid upon Condition of Transportation. But no Prisoner convicted of any Felony, for which he cannot have his Clergy, at the Sessions of the Old Bailey for London and Middlesex, &c. ought to be reprived but in open Sessions; and Reprivees are not to be granted otherwise, without the King's express Warrant, not by Order of any Justices of Gaol-Delivery. Kel. 4. 2 Hawk. P. C. 463. Wood's Inst. 662. If a Woman is condemned for Treason or Felony, and she is found by an Inquest or Jury of Matrons impanelled by the Sheriff, &c. to be Quick with Child, Execution shall be respited, and the Woman reprived till her Delivery; though she shall take this Favour but once; and she cannot save herself by this Means from pleading upon her Arraignment, nor from having Judgment pronounced against her on her Conviction. S. P. C. 198. H. P. C. 272. Finch 478. Where 'tis found by a Jury of Women, that a Woman convicted of Felony, is with Child, some Judges have used to command a Respite of her Execution until a convenient Time, i. e. a Month after her Delivery, and then to be executed: But this is irregular, for she may have a Pardon to plead, and therefore ought to be reprived till the next Sessions. 12 Aff. 10. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 368, 369.

Repugnant, (Repugnans) Is what is contrary to any Thing said before: And Repugnancy in Deeds, Grants, Indictments, Verdicts, &c. will make them void, 3 Nels. 135. 2 Hawk. P. C. The Common Law abhors Repugnancies and all Incongruities; but the former Part of a Deed, &c. shall stand, where the latter Part is Repugnant to it. Jenk. Cent. 251, 256.

Reputation, (Reputatio) Is defined by Sir Edw. Coke to be vulgaris Opinio ubi non est veritas; and he tells us, that vulgaris Opinio est duplex, viz. Una orta inter graves & Discretos & quæ vultum veritatis habet; altera orta inter levis & vulgares homines absque specie veritatis. 4 Rep. 104. That is not Reputation which this or that Man says; but that which generally hath been, and many Men have said or thought. 1 Leon. 15. A little Time is sufficient for the gaining of a Reputation, which needs not a very ancient Pedigree to establish it; for general Acceptation will produce a Reputation. 2 Cro. 308. 1 Leon. But it has been held, that common Reputation cannot be intended of an Opinion which is conceived of four or five Years standing; but of long Time. 2 Lill. Abr. 464. And some special Matter must be averred to induce a Reputation. Ibid. Land may be reputed Parcel of a Manor; though not really so. 1 Ventr. 51. 2 Mod. 69. 3 Nels. Abr. 137. And there is a Parish, and Office in Reputation, &c.

Reputation or Fame, Is under the Protection of the Law, as all Persons have an Interest in their good Name; and Scandal and Defamation are injurious to it, though defamatory Words are not actionable, otherwise than as they are a Damage to the Estate of the Person injured. Wood's Inst. 37.

Request, Of Things to be done: Where one is to do a Collateral Thing, agreed on making a Contract, there ought to be a Request to do it. 2 Lill. Abr.

464. If a Duty is due, it is payable without Request: On Promise to pay a Duty precedent on Request, there needs no actual Request; but upon a Promise for a Penalty or Collateral Sum, there should be an actual Request before the Action is brought. Cro. Eliz. 74. 1 Saund. 33. 1 Lev. 289. If a Debt is before a Promise, a Request is not necessary, for then a Request is not any Cause of the Action; though a Promise generally to pay upon Request, the Action arises upon Request and not before. Cro. Jac. 201. 1 Lev. 48. Action of Debt, for Money due on a Bond, may be brought without alleging a special Request; and if the Action is for Debt, not appointed to be paid upon Request, there needs no special Request to be laid in the Declaration; otherwise if it is of a Thing collateral. Cro. Eliz. 229, 523. A Man promises to redeliver upon Request, such Goods as were delivered to him; if an Action of Detinue is brought, the Plaintiff need not allege a special Request, because the Action is for the Thing itself: But if an Action of the Case is had for these Goods, then the Request must be specially alleged; as it is not brought for the Thing itself, but for Damages. Sid. 66. 3 Salk. 309. If a Promise is made to pay Money to the Plaintiff upon Request, no special Request is required: But where there are mutual Promises between two Persons to pay each other Money upon Request, if they do not perform such an Award, the Request is to be specially alleged. And if there is a Promise to pay Money to a Man upon Request, and he dies before any Request made, it shall be paid to his Executors; but not till the Request is made. 3 Salk. 309. 3 Bull. 259. When a Person promises to pay a precedent Duty, the general Allegation Licet sapius requisit is sufficient, because there was a Duty without a Promise: As for Instance; If one buys or borrows a Horse, and promises to pay so much upon Request: But where the Promise is collateral, as to pay the Debt of a Stranger upon Request, &c. the Request is Part of the Agreement, and traversable, there being no Duty before the Promise made; and for that Reason the Request must be specially alleged, for the bringing the Action will not be a sufficient Request. Latch 93. 3 Leon. 200. 1 Saund. 35. 3 Salk. 308. If a Debt or Duty arises either upon Bond or Contract, Licet sapius requisitus is good; contra where it becomes a Duty by the Request itself, when it is to be alleged specially. 3 Nels. Abr. 144. It has been adjudged, that where the Thing is a Duty before any Request made, a Request is only alleged to aggravate Damages, and such Request is not traversable; but if the Request makes the Duty, as in Assumpsit to do such a Thing upon Request, there the Day, &c. of the Request ought to be alleged, because it is traversable. Palm. 389. An Assumpsit to do a Thing upon Request, a Request must be alleged; and a special Request must be laid to be made such a Day, at such a Place; where the Duty is not upon Bond, &c. If a Request is to be specially made, the Day and Year when made should be specially alleged. 1 Lutw. 231. 2 Lill. Abr. 466. Cro. Car. 280. But where a Person is not restrained to make the Request by a Time limited, if made at any Time during his Life, it has been held to be good. Cro. Eliz. 136. And a Request at any other Time than named may be given in Evidence. Sid. 268. A Defendant pleaded the Statute of Limitations in an Action on a Promise to pay so much on Request, &c. And upon Demurrer the Plaintiff had Judgment; for though the Promise was within the Statute, yet the Duty was not, being no Duty till the Request was made, and the Action being then brought within Time after the Breach, 'tis good. Cro. Car. 98. At a Trial the Defendant would have the Plaintiff prove the Request; but it was ruled that he need not; for not being traversed in the Plea, 'tis admitted. 1 Lev. 166. In a special Action on the Case for keeping a Passage stopp'd up, so that the Plaintiff could not come and cleanse his Gutter, &c. after a Verdict for the Plaintiff, it was objected in Arrest of Judgment, that the Plaintiff ought to have set forth a Request to the Defendant to open the Passage; and this was held a good Objection after a Demurrer, but not after a Verdict. 1 Mod. 27. Unreasonable Requests are not regarded in Law; and there is no Difference where a Thing is to be done upon Request, and reasonable Request. Dyer 218. Cro. Car. 176. 3 Nels. Abr. 140. 142.

Requests Court of, The Place where held being anciently called Camera Alba, is taken away by Act of Parliament. See Court of Requests.

Resceit, (Receptio) Is an Admission or Receiving of a third Person to plead his Right in a Cause formerly commenced between two other Persons; as where an Action is brought against Tenant for Life or Years, or any other particular Tenant, and he makes Default, in such Case he in the Reversion may move that he may be received to defend his Right, and to plead with the Demandant: Resceit is likewise applied to the Admittance of a Plea, where the Controversy is between the same two Persons. Broke 205. Co. Litt. 192. Nels. 3 Abr. 146. He in Reversion may come into Court, and pray to be received in a Suit against his particular Tenant; and after such Resceit the Business shall be hastned, as much as may be by the Law, without any Delay of either Side. Stat. 13 R. 2. cap. 17. And 'tis said a Wife shall be received, in Default of her Husband, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 467. But Resceit is admitted only for them who have Estates depending upon particular Estates for Life, Tenants by the Curtesy, or after Possibility, &c. and not for him in Remainder after an Estate-tail, which is perdurable. 1 And. 133. And Husband and Wife were Tenants for Life, Remainder to another in Fee; a Formedon was brought against the Husband, who made Default after Default; and thereupon the Wife prayed that she might be received to defend her Right; but it was denied by the Court; because, if the Defendant should recover against her Husband, it would not bar her Right if she survived him, and therefore it would be to no Purpose. Then he in Remainder prayed to be received, which at first the Court doubted, by Reason if the Husband should recover, he might falsify such Recovery; and because his Estate did not depend upon the Estate of the Husband alone, but upon the Estate of Husband and Wife; but at last he was received. 1 Leon. 86. The Statute of Gloucester enacts, that a Termor may be received to falsify, if he hath a Deed, and comes before Judgment; this is where he in Reversion causeth himself to be impleaded by Collusion, to make the Termor lose his Term, &c. 6 Ed. 1. cap. 11. And if any Stranger come in by a collateral Title, before he is received, he shall find Surety to satisfy the Demandant the Value of the Lands if he recovers from that Time till final Judgment; and the Demandant recovering, he shall be grievously amerced, &c. by Stat. 20 Ed. 1.

Resceit of Homage, (Receptio Homagii) The Lord's receiving Homage of his Tenant, at his Admission to the Land. Kitch. 148.

Rescous, (Rescussus) from the Fr. Rescouffe, i. e. (Liberatio) Is an illegal Taking away and setting at Liberty of a Distress taken; or a Person arrested by Process or Course of Law: And where a Man has taken a Distress, and the Cattle distrained as he is driving them to the Pound happen to go into the House of the Owner; if he that took the Distress demand them of the Owner, and he delivers them not, this is a Rescous in Law. Co. Litt. Also it is used for a Writ which lies for this Fact, called Brevé de Rescussu. F. N. B. 101. Reg Orig. 105. Rescous is a forcible Resistance and a Rescuing of any Thing, or of a Person arrested, and procuring an Escape against Law. 1 Inst. 160. And there must be a Distress, or an Arrest, or there cannot be a Rescous. Wood's Inst. 191. If a Distress is taken without Cause, as where no Rent is due; or if one distrain out of his Fee, or in the Highway; or distrains Averia Caruce, where there is a sufficient Distress besides; or if the Landlord distrains any Thing that is not distrainable, one may make Rescous: And this may be done by the Tenant, when any Thing of his is wrongfully distrained; or by a Stranger, when his Goods are distrained without just Cause, &c. But if the Distress was made upon good Cause, the Owner cannot make Rescous as they are going to the Pound; and notwithstanding the Distress be without Cause, if it be impounded, the Owner cannot break into the Pound to rescue the Distress. 1 Inst. 47, 160. 4 Rep. 11. Where the Owner of the Cattle, before Distress, tenders his Rent, and a Distress is afterwards taken, it is wrongful, and the Tenant may make Rescous; tho' if he tender after the Distress, it is otherwise; he cannot make Rescous, the Taking being lawful. 1 Inst. 160. 2 Inst. 107. 8 Rep. 147. A Tender of Amends to a Bailiff is not good; for he cannot deliver the Distress when once taken. Wood 192. In Rescous, the Plaintiff declared that he had distrained forty Sheep of the Defendant's, and eighty Sheep of another Person's Damage-feasant, and that the Defendant took, chased and rescued all of them; the Defendant justified the putting his forty Sheep in the Place where, &c. having Right of Commun there, and that the Plaintiff de injuria sua propria chased them, and that the Defendant would have taken them from him, but they ran among the other eighty Sheep of the Stranger, and he folded them, and because he could not sever them, he chased them to the Fold, quæ est eadem Rescussio: And upon Demurrer the Plaintiff had Judgment, because, though the Defendant had some Colour to rescue his own Sheep, he had none to rescue the Sheep of the other Person. 2 Cro. 468. Unlawful Rescous of Goods distrained, and Pound-Breaches, incur treble Damages; recoverable by Statute on Action of the Case. 2 W. & M. Goods were levied on a Writ of Fieri facias, and the Sheriff returned that they were rescued from him by A. B. contra voluntatem; adjudged, that no Rescous can be on a Fi. fac. for that lies only on a Capias against the Person himself, and cannot be of Goods seized; but the Party injured may have an Action on the Case against A. B. who made the Rescous. Hatley 145. In Rescous of one arrested, it has been held, that the Plaintiff, at whose Suit an Arrest is made upon mesne Process, may have his Action against the Rescuers; and he cannot bring it against the Sheriff: And where a Person is rescued, taken upon a Capias ad satisfaciend. Action lies for the Plaintiff, as well against the Rescuers as the Sheriff. Cro. Jac. 486. Cro. Car. 109. For a Rescous in Action upon the Case, the Plaintiff alleged, that he recovered against A. B. in Debt, and that he was taken by the Sheriff on a Capias ad satisfaciendum, and the Defendant rescued him; It was adjudged this Action did lie by the Plaintiff against the Defendant; who is not bound up to sue the Sheriff, and he to have his Remedy against the Rescuers: And if the Plaintiff recover, and they are after sued by the Sheriff, this may be pleaded in Bar. Hughes's Abr. 1734, 1736. If a Sheriff return, that the Defendant rescued himself, it is not good: Yet the Defendant shall not take Advantage of his own Wrong. 1 Cro. 174, 185. On Action for an Escape or mesne Process, if the Sheriff pleads a Rescous, it shall be good; but not upon an Execution, where the Sheriff may raise the Posse Comitatus to secure the Prisoner; or when the Prisoner is in Gaol. 2 Lev. 144. 3 Lev. 46. 2 Inst. 105, 8 N 193.

193. But a Sheriff returned a Rescous of the Person whom he had taken by mesne Procels; and it was ruled no good Return, for he might upon that Procels raise the Possio Comitatus. Noy 40. 2 Cro. 419. 3 Nels. Abr. 149. The Sheriff cannot return a Rescous made upon a Special Bailiff, not known to the Country; it ought to be upon the Sheriff's known Bailiff. 2 Lill. Abr. 468. And the Return of a Rescous must be, that the Party was rescued out of the Custody of the Sheriff, and not of the Bailiff; though the Fact was that he was rescued out of the Bailiff's Custody; for the Sheriff is the Officer, and the Bailiff is but his Servant; yet a Return of a Rescous out of the Custody of the Sheriff's Bailiff hath been held sufficient. 1 Lev. 214. 2 Lev. 26. And it hath been resolved, that if an Action on the Case is brought for a Rescous, it is well enough for the Plaintiff to declare secundum veritatem facti; but if the Defendant is indicted, it must be secundum veritatem Legis, viz. That the Prisoner was rescued out of the Custody of the Sheriff. 5 Mod. 216. Rescuers may be indicted, or Action may be brought against them; though if on an Indictment of Rescous, the Place where, and Time when the Rescous was made be not express'd, it is not good. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. The Sheriff returned a Rescous, but did not set forth the Place where it was made; this was held insufficient, though he shewed where the Party was arrested. Dyer 69. Moor 428. See Cro. Jac. 345. And upon a Latitat awarded against a Defendant, the Sheriff returned a Rescous on such a Day, without mentioning any Place, &c. and adjudged a void Return; because it did not appear that the Arrest or Rescous were within his Jurisdiction: But if it had appeared to be done in the County, it shall be intended within his Bailiwick, though within a Liberty in the same County; and in such Case the Rescous had been unlawful. Yelv. 51. An Indictment for a Rescous returned in B. R. ought not to be quashed, although it be erroneous, except the Party that is indicted for it do personally appear in Court; for he cannot in such Case appear by Attorney, the Offence being criminal. 21 Car. B. R. If the Writ upon which a Defendant is arrested be naught, and Rescous is made; there is no Remedy against the Rescuers. 2 Lill. Abr. 468. But if it is alledged that the Party was lawfully arrested, it shall be intended by a good Warrant, though it be not set forth that he was taken by Virtue of any Warrant: And where the Warrant was set forth in Writing, but it was not said sub sigillo sigillat, it was allowed to be good; but in another Case disallowed; because it is no Warrant if not under the Seal of Office. 2 Cro. 472. 3 Nels. Abr. 149. In Case for a Rescous, Holt, Chief Just. doubted whether an Arrest was lawful, being made by the Bailiff's Servant, and not in his Presence; but said the Plaintiff must prove his Cause of Action against the Person arrested and rescued: That he must prove the Writ and Warrant, by producing sworn Copies of them; the Manner of the Arrest, that it may appear to the Court to be legal; and in Point of Damage, he is to prove the Loss of his Debt, viz. that the Party rescued became insolvent, or could not be re-taken. Mod. Ca. 211. Where a Bailiff hath a Warrant to arrest a Man, and is hindered in the Execution of his Office by another; if there is no actual Arrest, it cannot be a Rescous, but it is a great Contempt of the Court. Ibid. Procels of Outlawry lies on the Return of a Rescous; and Peers of the Realm, Spiritual or Temporal, are liable to an Attachment for Rescous, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 302, 152. When a Rescous is made, it must be returned upon the Writ, and then it is proper to move the Court for an Attachment against the Rescuers; and not to grant it on Affidavits: So where the Rescous is returned to the Filizer, and Procels of Outlawry issues, upon which the Rescuers are brought into Court, they shall not be bailed upon Affidavits; but where an Attachment is granted and they are examined on Interrogatories, upon answering them the Rescuers shall be discharged. It is the Course upon the Return of a Rescous, to set four Nobles Fine upon each Rescuer. 2 Salk. 586. The Sheriff having returned a Rescous, as he must on the Writ when the Return thereof is called for; the Parties that made the Rescues are to answer to it; and if it be found against them, they may be fined for it: Or the Party grieved may have the Writ of Rescous against them. 2 Bullf. 137. Rescuing a Prisoner in or before the Courts of Justice at Westminster, is liable to Forfeiture of Lands and Goods, and perpetual Imprisonment. And Rescuing a Felon lawfully arrested for Felony, is Felony in the Rescuers; and so of Treason, &c. S. P. C. 31. H. P. C. 131. 3 Inst. 141.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of M. Greeting: If A. B. shall make you secure, &c. then put C. D. &c. to show why, whereas the said A. B. at, &c. certain Beasts of the said C. D. had taken, and distrained for Rent, &c. And those there according to the Law and Custom of our Kingdom of England, would have Impounded, the said C. D. the Beasts aforesaid with Force of Arms Rescued, and other Enormities there did, to the Contempt of us, and grievous Damage of the said A. B. and against our Peace, &c.

Or put E. F. and G. H. to Answer, &c. why, whereas the said A. B. according to the Duty of his Office, C. D. whom by our Sheriff of the County aforesaid by Writ to him directed, we commanded to be taken, at L. by Virtue of our said Writ had taken, and him to our Prison of, &c. there to abide, would have conveyed, the said E. F. and G. H. him the said C. D. at L. aforesaid, with Force of Arms Rescued, and other Enormities, &c.

Rescussor, The Party that commits such a Rescous. 2 Cro. 419.

Resciser, (Rescistre) Is the Re-taking of Lands into the Hands of the King, where a general Livery or Ouster le main was formerly mis used, contrary to the Order of Law. Staundf. Prærog. 26.

Reservatton, (Reservatio) A Keeping aside, or Providing; as when a Man lets or departs with his Land, but reserves or provides for himself a Rent out of it for his own Livelihood; and sometimes it has the Force of a Saving or Exception. 1 Inst. 143. Exception is always of Part of the Thing granted, and of a Thing in Being: And a Reservatio is of a Thing not in Being, but is newly created out of the Lands or Tenements demised; though Exception and Reservatio have been used promiscuously. 1 Inst. 47. The proper Place for a Reservatio, is next after the Limitation of the Estate; and Reservatio of Rent may be every two, three or more Years; as well as Yearly, Half-yearly, Quarterly, &c. 1 Inst. 47. 8 Rep. 71. It must be out of an House, or Lands; and be made either by the Words Yielding and Paying, &c. or the Word Covenant, which is of both Lessor and Lessee, and therefore makes a Reservatio. Roll Rep. 80. The Reservatio of Rent is good, although it is not reserved by apt and usual Words, if the Words are equivalent. Plowd. 120. 3 Nels. Abr. 150. But Reservatio of a Rent secundum Ratam, is a void Reservatio. 2 Ven. 272. See Reddendu v. Rent, &c.

Resiance, (Resiantia) Signifies a Man's Abode or Continuance; whence comes the Participle Resiant, that is continually dwelling or abiding in any Place; and is all one with Residence; but that Custom ties this only to Persons Ecclesiastical. Old Nat. Br. 85. Kitch. 33.

Residence; (Residentia) Is peculiarly used both in the Canon and Common Law, for the Continuance of a Parson or Vicar upon his Benefice: And personal Residence is required of Ecclesiastical Persons on their Cures, upon Pain of forfeiting 10*l.* for every Month. Stat. 21 H. 8. cap. 13. One of the great Duties incumbent upon Clergymen, is that they be Resident upon their Livings: And on the first Erecting Parochial Churches, every Clergyman was obliged to reside on his Benefice, for Reading of Prayers, Preaching, &c. by the Laws and Canons of the Church; and by Statute, the Parson ought to abide upon his Rectory in the Parsonage-House; for the Statute is intended not only for serving the Cure, and for Hospitality, but to maintain the House in Repair, and prevent Dilapidations: Tho' lawful Imprisonment, Sicknes, &c. being Things of Necessity, are good Cause of Excuse for Absence, and excepted out of the Act by Construction of Law: And it is the same where a Person is employed in some important Business for the Church or King; or he is entertained in the King's Service. 6 Rep. 21. 1 Cro. 580. In an Information on the Statute above-mentioned, it was adjudged that the Parson is to live in his Parsonage House, and not in any other, though in the same Parish: But as by Stat. 13 Eliz. cap. 20 Leases made by Parsons are declared void, where the Parson is absent above eighty Days in any one Year, &c. On this Act a Defendant pleaded to an Agreement for Tithes, that the Parson was absent from his Parsonage by the Space of eighty Days in one Year; and the Jury found that he dwelt in another Town adjoining, and came constantly to his Parish Church four Days in every Week, and there read Divine Service; and it was held, that this was not such an Absence as is intended by the Statute to avoid any Agreement or Lease made by the Parson. 1 Bull. 112. A Person allowed to have two Benefices, may Demise or Lease one of them (on which he is Non-Resident) to his Curate only; but if the Curate leases over, such Lease shall last no longer than during the Curate's Residence, without Absence above forty Days in any one Year. 1 Leon. 100. See 1 Cro. 123. Some Words in the Act 13 Eliz. as to Leases by Parsons not Resident, repealed, vide 14 Eliz. cap. 11. And see Non-Residence.

Residents, Is a Tenant who is bound Residere on his Lord's Land, and not to depart from thence. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 43.

Residuary Legatee, Is he to whom the Residuum of the Estate is left by Will. And such Legatee being made Executor with others, shall retain against the rest: Where there are two Residuary Legatees, and one dies Intestate, his Administrator shall have a Moiety of the Surplus of the Personal Estate of the Testator, contrary to joint Executors, who are not intitled to Moieties; because by making them Residuary Legatees, the Testator intended an equal Share to both: And if a Residuary Legatee die before the Will is proved, his Executor shall have Administration, &c. 6 H. 7. 1 Chan. Rep. 238. Shew. 26. See Executor.

Resignation, (Resignatio) Is the Yielding up a Benefice into the Hands of the Ordinary, called by the Canonists Renunciation; and though it is all one in Nature with the Word Surrender, yet it is by Use restrained to the Yielding up a Spiritual Living to the Bishop, as Surrender is the Giving up of Temporal Land into the Hands of the Lord. And a Resignation may now be made into the Hands of the King as well as the Diocesan, because he has supremam Autoritatem Ecclesiasticam, as the Pope had here in ancient Times; though it has been adjudged that a Resignation ought to be made only to the Bishop of the Diocese, and not to the King;

because the King is not bound to give Notice of the Resignation to the Patron, as the Ordinary is; nor can the King make a Collation himself, without presenting to the Bishop. Plowd. 498. Roll. Abr. 358. Every Parson that resigns a Benefice, must make the Resignation to his Superior; as an Incumbent to the Bishop, a Bishop to the Archbishop, and an Archbishop to the King, as supreme Ordinary; and a Donative is to be resigned to the Patron, and not the Ordinary; for in that Case the Clerk received his Living immediately from the Patron. 1 Rep. 137. A common Benefice is to be resigned to the Ordinary, by whose Admission and Institution the Clerk first came into the Church: And the Resignation must be made to that Ordinary who hath Power of Institution; in whose Discretion it is either to accept or refuse the Resignation; as the Law hath declared him the proper Person to whom it ought to be made, it hath likewise impowered him to judge thereof. 2 Cro. 64, 198. The Instrument of Resignation is to be directed to the Bishop, and when the Bishop hath accepted of it, the Resignation is good, to make void the Church, and not before; unless it be where there is no Cure, when it is good without the Acceptance of the Bishop. A Resignation, may be made before a Publick Notary, but without the Bishop's Acceptation it doth not make the Church void: The Notary can only attest the Resignation, in order to its being presented, &c. Ibid. Before Acceptance of the Resignation by the Bishop, no Presentation can be had to the Church; but as soon as the Acceptance is made, the Patron may present to the Benefice resigned: And when the Clerk is instituted, the Church is full against all Men in Case of a common Person; though before Institution, such Incumbent may make the Church void again by Resignation. Count. Parl. Compan. 106. A Parsonage is not to be granted over by the Incumbent, but it may be resigned; and Resignations are to be absolute, and not conditional; for it is against the Nature of a Resignation to be conditional, being a judicial Act. 3 Nels. Abr. 157. If any Incumbent shall corruptly resign his Benefice, or take any Reward directly or indirectly for resigning the same, he shall forfeit double the Value of the Sum, &c. given, and the Party giving it be incapable to hold the Living. Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 6. But a Man may bind himself by Bond to resign, and it is not unlawful, but may be upon good and valuable Reasons; as where he is obliged to resign if he take a second Benefice, or if he be Non resident by the Space of so many Months, or to resign on Request, if the Patron shall present his Son or Kinsman when he shall be of Age capable to take the Living, &c. Cro. Jac. 249, 274. Though Bonds for Resignation of Benefices have no Encouragement in Chancery; for on such Bonds generally the Incumbent is relieved, and not obliged to resign. 1 Roll. Abr. 443. A Parson's Refusal to pay his Tithes, 'tis said is a Resignation, for which he may be deprived. Owen 5. And where Resignation is actually made de Ecclesia, it extends to all the Lands and Possessions of the Church. Cro. Jac. 63. The usual Words of a Resignation are Renuncio, Cedo, Dimitto, and Resigno; and the Word Resigno is not a proper Term alone. 2 Roll. 350.

Resignation of Offices. If a Man can have no Title to the Profits of an Office, without the Admission or Confirmation of a Superior, there the Resignation of that Office must be to him. 3 Nels. Abr. 158.

Resort, (Resortum) Signifies the Authority or Jurisdiction of a Court: Salvo tamen tam Resorto quam aliis jure nostro, & jure etiam alieno. Spelm. Dernier Resort, the last Refuge.

Respectu computi Utcecomitis habendo, Is a Writ for the Respiting a Sheriff's Account, directed to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer. Reg. Orig. 139.

Respite, (Respectus) A Delay, Forbearance, or Continuation of Time. Glanvil, lib. 12. c. 9.

Respite of Homage, (Respectus Homagii) Is the Forbearance or Delay of Homage, which ought to be performed by Tenants holding by Homage, &c. tho' it had the most frequent Use for such as held in Knights Service and in Capite, who formerly paid into the Exchequer every fifth Term some small Sum of Money to be respited their Homage: But this Charge being incident to and arising from Knights Service, it is taken away by the Statute 12 Car. 2.

Respondens Ouster, To answer over in an Action to the Merits of the Cause, &c. If a Demurrer is joined upon a Plea to the Jurisdiction, Person, or Writ, &c. and it be adjudged against the Defendant, it is a Respondens Ouster. Jenk. Cent. 306. See Judgment.

Respondens Superior. If Sheriffs of London are insufficient, the Mayor and Commonalty must answer for them: And per Insufficiencie del Bailiff d'un Liberty, Respondens Dominus Libertatis. 4 Inst. 114. Stat. 44 Edw. 3. cap. 13. If a Coroner of a County is insufficient, the County as his Superior shall answer for him. Wood's Inst. 83. A Gaoler constitutes another under him, and he permits an Escape, if he be not sufficient, Respondens Superior; and Superior Officers must answer for their Deputies in Civil Actions, if they are insufficient to answer Damages. Dr. & Stud. cap. 24.

Responsalis, (Qui Responsum desert) Is he that appears and answers for another in Court at a Day assigned. Glanvil, lib. 12. cap. 1. And Fleta makes a Difference between Responsalem, Attornatum, and Essoniatorem; and says that Responsalis was for the Tenant, not only to excuse his Absence, but to signify what Trial he meant to undergo, the Combat or the Country. Fleta, lib. 6. cap. 21. This Word is made use of in the Canon Law, & significat procuratorem vel eum qui absentem excusat.

Responsions, (Responsiones) Was applied chiefly by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, to certain Accounts made to them by such as held their Lands, &c. 32 Hen. cap. 24.

Responsum, A Word used for Business: Pope Alexander sent two Persons to King Edw. 1. pro Responsis Ecclesiasticis. Blount.

Restare, i. e. To stay or stop; it is mentioned in Mat. Par. 515.

Restitution, (Restitutio) Is a Restoring any Thing unjustly taken from another: It signifies also the setting him in Possession of Lands or Tenements, who had been unlawfully dispossessed of them. Crompt. Inst. 144. And Restitution is a Writ which lies where a Judgment is reversed, to restore and make good to the Defendant in the Action what he hath lost: The Court which reverses the Judgment, gives upon the Reversal a Judgment for Restitution; whereon a Scire facias quare Restitutionem habere non debet, reciting the Reversal of the Judgment, and the Writ of Execution, &c. must issue forth. 2 Lill. Abr. 472. But the Law doth oftentimes restore the Possession to one without a Writ of Restitution, i. e. by Writ of Habere facias Possessionem, &c. in the common Proceeding of Justice upon a Trial at Law. Ibid. 473. And there is a Restitution of the Possessions of Lands in Cases of forcible Entry; a Restitution of Lands to an Heir, on his Ancestor's being attainted of Treason or Felony; and Restitution of stolen Goods, &c. A Writ of Restitution is not properly to be granted but where the Party cannot be restored by the ordinary Course of Law; and the Nature of it is to restore the Party to the Possession of a Freehold, or other Matter of Profit, from which he is illegally removed; and it extends to Restitution on Mandamus to any Publick Office. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 472, 473. Where a Judgment for Land is reversed in B. R. by Writ of Error, the Court may grant a Writ of Restitution to the Sheriff to put the Party in Possession of the Lands recovered from him by the erroneous Judgment; though there ought to be no Restitution granted of the Possession of Lands, where it cannot be grounded on some Matter of Record appearing to the Court. Hill. 22 Car. And Persons that are to restore, are to be Parties to the Record; or they must be made so by special Scire facias. Cro. Car. 328. 2 Salk. 587. If a Lease is taken in Execution upon a Fieri facias, and sold by the Sheriff, and afterwards the Judgment is reversed; the Restitution must be of the Money for which it was sold, and not the Term. Cro. Jac. 246. Moor 788. But a Sheriff extended Goods and Lands upon an Elegit, and returned that he took a Lease for Years, which he sold and delivered to the Plaintiff as Bona & Cattalla of the Defendant for the Debt, and afterwards the Judgment was reversed for Error; and it was adjudged that the Party shall be restored to the Lease, because the Elegit gave the Sheriff no Authority to sell the Term, and therefore a Writ of Restitution was awarded. Yelv. 179. And there has been in this Case a Distinction made between compulsory and voluntary Acts done in Execution of Justice; where the Sheriff is commanded by the Writ to sell the Goods, and where he is not, when the Goods are to be restored, &c. 8 Rep. 96. If the Plaintiff hath Execution, and the Money is levied and paid, and afterwards the Judgment is reversed, there the Party shall have Restitution without a Scire facias, for it appears on the Record what the Party had lost and paid; but if the Money was only levied, and not paid, then there must be a Scire facias suggesting the Sum levied, &c. And where the Judgment is set aside after Execution for an Irregularity, there needs no Scire facias for Restitution; but an Attachment of Contempt, if upon the Rule for Restitution, the Money is not restored. 2 Salk. 588. In a Scire facias quare Restitutionem, &c. the Defendant pleaded Payment of the Money mentioned in the Scire facias; and it was held to be no Plea. Cro. Car. 328. But now Payment is a good Plea to a Scire facias by the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. 2 Lill. Abr. 479. Upon a Vi Laica removenda a Parson was put out of Possession; and upon a Suggestion thereof, and Affidavit made, Restitution was ordered. Cro. Eliz. 465. The Justices of Peace, before whom an Indictment for forcible Entry is found, must give the Party Restitution of his Lands, &c. who was put out.

out of Possession by Force. Stat. 8 Hen. 6. But where one is indicted for a forcible Entry, and the Party indicted traverses the Indictment, there cannot be Restitution before Trial and a Verdict, and Judgment given for the Party, though the Indictment be erroneous; it being too late to move to quash the Indictment after the Traverse, which puts the Matter upon Trial. 2 Lill. 473, 474. A Person being attainted of Treason, &c. he or his Heirs may be restored to his Lands, &c. by the King's Charter of Pardon; and the Heir by Petition of Right may be restored, if the Ancestor is executed: But Restitution of Blood must be by Act of Parliament; and Restitutions by Parliament are some of Blood only, some of Blood, Honour, Inheritance, &c. 3 Inst. 240. 1 Inst. 8, 391. The King may restore the Party or his Heirs to his Lands, and the Blood, as to all Issue begotten after the Attainder. Ibid. There shall be a Writ of Restitution granted to the Owner of stolen Goods, by the Court where a Felon is tried on Indictment, after the Attainder of the Felon, as in Case of Appeal of Robbery. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 11. And it may be also of Money when the Felon is convicted of the Felony by Reason of the Evidence given by the Party robbed, or by his Procurement, &c. And by this Statute Executors and Administrators shall have Restitution of Goods, and it is said notwithstanding Sale in Market-overt. 2 Inst. 714. 3 Inst. 242. 5 Rep. 109. If Goods stolen are not waived by Flight, or seized for the King, the Party robbed may take his Goods again without prosecuting the Felon; but after seized for the King, they may not be restored without Appeal or Indictment. Kil. 48. 2 Hawk. P. C. 168.

Re-restitution, Is when there hath been a Writ of Restitution before granted: And Restitution is generally Matter of Duty; but Re-restitution is Matter of Grace. Raym. 85. A Writ of Re restitution may be granted upon Motion, if the Court see Cause to grant it. And on Quashing an Indictment of Forcible Entry, the Court of B. R. may grant a Writ of Re-restitution, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 474.

Restitutio Temporalium, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff to restore the Temporaries, or the Barony of a Bishoprick to the Bishop elected and confirmed. F. N. B. 169. 1 Roll. Abr. 880.

Resummons, (Resummonitio) Signifies a second Summons, or calling a Man to answer an Action, where the first Summons is defeated by any Occasion; and when by the Death, &c. of the Judges, they do not come on the Day to which they were continued, for the Trial of Causes, such Causes may be revived or recontinued by Resummons. Vide Reattachment.

Resumption, (Resumptio) Is used particularly for the Taking again into the King's Hands such Lands or Tenements, &c. as before upon false Suggestion he had granted by Letters Patent to any Man. Broke 298. It is said that the King cannot grant a Prerogative of Power so, but that he may resume it; but otherwise it is of a Grant of an Interest. Skinner's Rep. 236. Resumption of Grants is mentioned in the Stat. 31 Hen. 6. cap. 7. and other Statutes.

Retail, To buy by the Great, and sell by Retail or Parcels. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 21.

Retainer, (From the Lat. Retinere) Is a Keeping or Maintaining; as of a Servant, not menial or continually dwelling with the Master, but attending sometimes upon special Occasions. 1 R. 2. cap. 7. See Livery. And Counsellors and Attornies are retained to attend the Causes of their Clients, in the several Courts, &c.

Retaining Fee, Is the first Fee given to any Sergeant or Counsellor at Law, whereby to make him sure that he shall not be on the contrary Side.

Retenementum, Is a Word used for Detaining, With-holding, or Keeping back. And fine ulla retenementum was a usual Expression in old Deeds and Conveyances of Lands. Cowel.

Retrahitus Aquæ, The Ebb or return of a Tide. Plac. 30 Edw. 1.

Retrahit, Is when the Plaintiff cometh in Person in Court where his Action is brought, and saith he will not proceed in it; and this is a Bar to that Action for ever: It is so called, because it is the emphatical Word in the Latin Entry, entered thus, ff. Et præd. Quæ. in propria Persona sua venit & dicit quod ipse placitum suum præd. versus præd. Defendens ulterius Prosequi non vult, sed abinde omnino se Retrahit, &c. A Retrahit must be always in Person; and if it is by Attorney, it is Error. 8 Rep. 58. 3 Salk. 245. As to a Retrahit, it is a Bar to any Action of equal Nature brought for the same Cause or Duty; but a Nonfuit is not. 1 Inst. 208. If the Plaintiff says he will not appear, this is not a Retrahit but Nonfuit: But if the Plaintiff says he will not sue, it is a Retrahit. 2 Davv. Abr. 471. And Retrahit is always on the Part of the Plaintiff or Demandant; and it cannot be before a Declaration, for before the Declaration it is only a Nonfuit. 3 Leon. 47. 2 Lill. Abr. 476. If the Plaintiff enter a Retrahit against one Joint-Trespasser, it is a Release to the other. Cro. Eliz. 762. But if a Retrahit be entered as to one Appellee in Appeal of Murder, the Suit may be continued against the Rest; because the Appellant is to have a several Execution against everyone of them. H. P. C. 190. In a Prohibition by three, a Retrahit of one shall not bar the other two Plaintiffs. Moor 460. Nels. Abr. 165. See Nolle Prosequi.

Rette, (Fr.) A Charge or Accusation. Stat. West. 1. cap. 2.

Return, (Returna, or Retorna, from the Fr. Retour, i. e. Reditio, recursus) Hath divers Applications in our Law; but is most commonly used for the Return of Writs, which is the Certificate of the Sheriff made to the Court of what he hath done touching the Execution of any Writ directed to him; and where a Writ is executed, or the Defendant cannot be found, &c. then this Matter is indoried on the Back of the Writ by the Officer, and delivered into the Court whence the Writ issued, at the Day of the Return thereof in order to be filed. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 39. 2 Lill. Abr. 470. The Name of the Sheriff must always be to the Return of Writs; otherwise it doth not appear how they came into Court: If a Writ be returned by a Person to whom it is not directed, the Return is not good, it being the same as if there were no Return at all upon it. And after a Return is filed it cannot be amended; but before it may. Cro. Eliz. 310. 2 Lill. Abr. 477, 478. If the Sheriff doth not make Return of a Writ, the Court will amerce him; so if he makes an insufficient Return; and if he makes a false Return, the Party grieved may have his Action of the Case against him. Wood's Inst. 71. If a Sheriff return a Vouchee summoned, where in Truth he is dead, and there is no such Person; or in a Præcipe quod reddat that the Tenant is dead, &c. there may be an Averment against such Returns, by the Stat. 14 Ed. 3. c. 8. Jenk. Cent. 121, 122. Some Returns are a kind of Declaration of an Accusation; as the Return of a Rekons, and the like; and these must be certain and perfect, or they will be ill. 11 Rep. 40. Plowd. 63, 117. Kekw. 165. Writs to do Things in Franchises, are directed to and returned by the Sheriff, to whom Bailiffs make their Returns: And an Action will lie against a Sheriff, that takes the Return of one that is no Bailiff, and against him who makes it; and likewise against the Bailiff of a Franchise, for Negligence in Execution, &c. 7 Ed. 4. 14. 12 Ed. 4. 15. Moor, cap. 606. Sheriffs are to accept of Returns of Bailiffs of Liberties, where they are sufficient. 1 Danv. 191. There is a Return of Juria by Sheriffs; and Returns of Commissions, by Commissioners, &c.

Return-Days, Are Days in Term called by that Name; or Days in Bank. See Term.

Returno Habendo, Is a Writ that lies where Cattle are distrained and replevied, and the Person that took the Distress justifies the Taking, and proves it to be lawful; upon which the Cattle are to be returned to him. This Writ also lieth when the Plaintiff in Replevin is removed by Recordare into the King's Bench or Common Pleas, and he whose Cattle are distrained makes Default, and doth not prosecute his Suit. F. N. B. 74.

Returnum Abieriorum, A judicial Writ, the same with Returno Habendo. Reg. Judic. 4.

Returnum irreplegiabile, Is a Writ Judicial, directed to the Sheriff for the final Restitution or Return of Cattle to the Owner when unjustly taken or distrained by another, and so found by Verdict, and it is granted after a Nonsuit in a second Deliverance. Reg. Judic. 27.

Reve, Is the Bailiff of a Franchise or Manor, especially in the West of England. Hence Shire-reve, Church-reve, &c. Kitch. 43. Vide Greve.

Reveland, The Land which in Domesday is said to have been Thaneland, and after converted into Reveland, seems to have been such Lands as being reverted to the King after the Death of his Thane, who had it for Life, was not since granted out to any by the King, but rested in Charge upon the Account of the Reve or Bailiff of the Manor. Spelm. Feuds, cap. 24.

Revels, Signifying with us Sports of Dancing, and Masking, &c. commonly performed by Night. See Master of the Revels.

Revenue, (Fr.) Is properly the yearly Rent that accrues to any Man from his Lands and Possessions; and is generally used for the Revenues or Profits of the Crown. An Act passed for preventing all Doubts and Questions concerning the Collecting the publick Revenue. 1 W. & M. Sess. 2. c. 3.

Reversal, Of a Judgment is the making it void for Error; and when upon the Return of a Writ of Error, it appears that the Judgment is erroneous, then the Court will give Judgment, Quod iudicium revocetur, admittetur & penitus pro nullo habeatur. 2 Lill. Abr. 481. The ancientest Judge of the Court, and in his Absence the next in Seniority to him, doth always pronounce the Reversal of an erroneous Judgment openly in Court, upon the Prayer of the Party; and he according to the ancient Course pronounceth it in French, to this Effect, Pur les Errors evandit, & auter errors manifest in le Record, soit le Judgment Reverse, &c. Trin. 22. Car. B. R. A Reversal of a Judgment may be pronounced conditionally, i. e. That the Judgment is reversed if the Defendant in the Writ of Error doth not shew good Cause to the contrary at an appointed Time; and this is called a Revocetur nisi, and if no Cause be then shewed, it stands reversed without further Motion. 2 Lill. 482. The Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 16. hath provided a new Writ, where Judgment is reversed after a Verdict, or where an Outlawry is reversed, &c. Lutw. 264. Vide Error.

Reversion, (Reversio, from Revertor) Signifies a Returning again; and therefore Reversio terra est tanquam terra revertens in Possessione donatori sive hereditibus suis post donum finitum. 1 Inst. 142. A Reversion hath two Significations; the one is an Estate left, which continues during a particular Estate in Being; and the other is the Returning of the Land after the particular Estate is ended: It is said to be an Interest in the Land, when the Possession shall fall, and so it is commonly taken; or it is when the Estate which was parted with for a Time, ceaseth and is determined in the Persons of the Alienees or Grantees, &c. and returns to the Grantor or Donor, or their Heirs from whence derived. Plowd. 160. 1 Inst. 142. But the usual Definition of a Reversion is, that it is the Residue of an Estate left in the Grantor after a particular Estate granted away, continuing in him that granted the particular Estate; and where the particular Estate is derived out of his Estate: As in a Gift in Tail, the Reversion of the Fee-simple is in the Donor; and in a Lease for Life, or Years, the Reversion is in the Lessor: Also a Reversion takes Place after a Remainder, where a Person makes a Disposition of a less Estate, than that whereof he was seised at the Time of making thereof. 1 Inst. 22, 142. Wood's Inst. 151. When the particular Estate determines, then the Reversion comes into Possession, and before it is separated from it; for he that hath the Possession, cannot have the Reversion, because by uniting them, the one is drowned in the other. 2 Lill. Abr. 484. The Reversion of Land when it falls, is the Land itself; and the Possession of the Tenant, preserves the Reversion of the Lands, with the Rents, &c. in the Donor, or Lessor. 1 Inst. 324. A Reversion of an Estate of Inheritance, may be granted by Bargain and Sale inrolled, Lease and Release, Fine, &c. And by the Grant of Lands, a Reversion will pass; though by the Grant of a Reversion, Land in Possession will not pass. Bridgm. Conveyan. 237. 6 Rep. 36. 5 Rep. 124. 10 Rep. 107. If one have a Reversion in Fee, expectant upon a Lease for Years, he may make a Bargain and Sale of his Reversion for one Year, and then make a Release to the Bargainee in Fee; by which the Reversion in Fee will pass to the Bargainee. 2 Lill. Abr. 483. And a Reversioner may covenant to stand seised of a Reversion to Uses, &c. 11 Rep. 46. Likewise a Reversion may be devised by Will; and a Testator being seised in Fee of Lands which he had in Possession, and of other Lands in Reversion, devised all his Lands for the Payment of his Debts; adjudged, that by the Words all his Lands, the Reversion as well as the Possession passed. 2 And. 59. Cro. Eliz. 159. A Person devised a Manor to A. B. for six Years, and some other Lands to C. D. and his Heirs; and all the Rest of his Lands to his Brother, and the Heirs Male of his Body; and it was held, that these Words, the Rest of the Lands, did not only extend to the Lands which were not devised before, but to the Reversion in Fee of the Manor, after the Determination of the Estate for Years. Allen 28. And by Devise of all Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, undisposed of before in a Will, a Reversion in Fee will pass. 2 Vent. 285. 3 Nels. Abr. 166. One seised of Lands in Fee, devises Part thereof to B. for Life, and after by the same Will gives to C. all his Lands not before particularly disposed of; by this Devise of all Lands, &c. the Reversion of the Part given for Life passes to C. Ruled, on Advice with the Judges. Preced. Canc. 202. There was Lessee for Years, Remainder for Life, Reversion in Fee, the Tenant for Life died, and the Lessee for Years did not attorn to him in the Reversion; yet it was resolved, that it passed without Attornment, and that he might bring an Action of Debt, or avow. Heil. 73. If Tenant for Life, and he in Reversion join in a Lease for Life, or Gift in Tail, rendering Rent; it shall enure, after the Death of Tenant for Life, to him in Reversion. 1 Inst. 214. And if a Reversion be granted to one for Life, and to another in Fee, the Reversion is gone for a Moiety: Also if such Tenant for Life get the Remainder or Reversion of the Land, his Estate for Life is at an End. 3 Rep. 60. The particular Estate for Life or Years, and this Estate in Reversion, are divers and distinct; and therefore Aid may be prayed of him in the Reversion: Yet these Estates have Relation one to another.

other. 3 Shep. Abr. 220. The Copyholder for Life, cannot by Forfeiture or otherwise destroy the Estate in Reversion: And he that hath a Reversion cannot be put out of it, unless the Tenant be ousted of his Possession also. 39 H. 6. Plowd. 162. Yelv. 1. Reversions expectant upon an Estate tail, are not Affests, or of any Account in Law, because they may be cut off by Fine and Recovery; but it is otherwise of a Reversion on an Estate for Life, or Years. 1 Inst. 173. 6 Rep. 38. Wood's Inst. 151. No Lease, Rentcharge, or Estate, &c. made by Tenant in Tail in Remainder, shall charge the Possession of the Reversioner. 2 Lill. 448. But as no Statute hath made any Provision for those who have Remainders or Reversions on any Estate tail, they are barred by a Recovery. 10 Rep. 32. There were no Reversions or Remainders upon Estates in Tail, at Common Law: And by the Common Law, no Grantee of a Reversion could take Advantage of any Condition or Covenant broken by the Lessees of the same Land; but by Statute, Grantees of Reversions may take Advantage of Conditions and Covenants against Lessees of the same Lands, as fully as the Lessors and their Heirs; and Lessees may have the like Remedies against the Grantees of Reversions, &c. 1 Inst. 327. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 34. A Reversioner may bring Action of the Case for spoiling of Trees; for any Injury to his Reversion, he may have this Action; but he cannot have Trespass, which is founded on the Possession. 3 Lev. 209, 233. 3 Cro. 55. He in Reversion shall have a Writ of Entry ad Communiem Legem, where Tenant for Life, &c. aliens the Lands: And Writ of Infrusion, after their Deaths, &c. New Nat. Br. 461. How to plead a Reversion in Fee. 1 Lutw. 1174. The Difference between a Reversion and a Remainder, is that a Remainder is general, and may be to any Man, but he that granteth the Land, for Term of Life or otherwise; and a Reversion is to himself from whom the Conveyance of the Land proceeded, and is commonly perpetual, &c. And Remainder is an Estate, appointed over at the same Time: But the Reversion is not always at the same Time appointed over. See Remainder. Reversions in Offices, vide Office.

Reugia terra, A Ridge or Furrow of arable Land ploughed in a strait Line. Mon. Ang. Tom. 1. pag. 515.

Revisio, (Fr. Reveus) A Bill of Review in Chancery, is where the Cause hath been heard, and the Decree therein is signed; but some Error appears in the Body of the Decree, or new Matter is discovered in Time after the Decree made: Which Bill must be exhibited by Leave of the Court, and is usually done on Oath made of the Discovery of new Matter, which could not be had or used at the Time of the Decree passed; and the Sum of 20*l.* must be deposited in Court, on bringing this Bill, as a Security for Costs and Delay, if the Matter be found against the Party, &c. Ord. in Canc. 69. Pract. Sollic. 121, 122. Where a Decree of Chancery is repugnant, or one Part of it contradicts another, &c. it may be reversed by Bill of Review. Ibid.

Review of Appeal of Delegates, Is a Commission granted by the King, to certain Commissioners, &c. See Appeal to Rome.

Revivor, or Bill of Revivor, Is when a Bill hath been exhibited in the Chancery, against one who answers, and before the Cause is heard, or if heard, and the Decree is not inrolled, either Party dies: In this Case, a Bill of Revivor must be brought, praying the former Proceedings may stand revived, and be put into the same Condition as at the Time of the Abatement. If a Party dieth, a Female Plaintiff marries, or there have been no Proceedings on a Decree, &c. for a Year past, the Decree and Proceedings must be revived by Subpœna Scire facias, or if the Decree be inrolled, by Bill of Revivor: But if the Parties are not Heirs or Executors, &c. to the Party dead, the Decree or Cause is to be revived by original Bill, and not by Subpœna Scire fac. or Bill of Revivor; and a Bill of Revivor lies not upon a Decree of long Standing, but an original Bill is to be preferred. Practif. Sollic. 122.

Reviding, Is a Word metaphorically applied to Actions, Rents, &c. and signifies a Renewing them after they were extinguished. Broks 223.

Revocation, (Revocatio) Signifies the Calling back of a Thing granted; or a Destroying or making void of some Deed that had Existence until the Act of Revocation made it void. 2 Lill. Abr. 485. And a Revocation may be either General, of all Acts and Things done before; or Special, to revoke such a Thing: And where any Deed or Thing is revoked, it is as if it never had been. 5 Rep. 90. Perk. Sect. 105. In voluntary Deeds and Conveyances, there are frequently Provisoes containing Power of Revocation, which being coupled with an Use, and tending to pass by raising of Uses, according to the Stat. H. 8. are allowed to be good, and not repugnant; as where one seised of an Estate in Fee, covenants to stand seised thereof to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his Son in Tail, Remainder over, &c. with Proviso that he may revoke any of the said Uses; now if afterwards he revokes them, he is seised again in Fee, without Entry or Claim: But in Case of a Feoffment or other Conveyance, whereby the Feoffee or Grantee is in by the Common Law, such Proviso would be merely repugnant and void. 1 Inst. 237. Stat. 27 Hen. 8. cap. 10. And voluntary Estates made with Power of Revocation, as to Purchasers, are held in equal Degree with Conveyances made by Fraud and Covin to defraud Purchasers. 27 Eliz. cap. 4. 3 Rep. 82. Uses, and Powers in Contingency and Possibility, by mutual Assent of Parties may be revoked and determined; and as by Indenture they may be raised, so by Proviso or Limitation in the same Indenture, they may be extinguished and destroyed. 10 Rep. 86. And where a Power of Revocation is reserved for a Man to dispose of his own Estate, it shall always have a favourable Construction; but it shall be taken strictly when it is to charge the Estate of another. 2 Vent. 250. When there is a Power to revoke Uses, a new Declaration of Uses is a sufficient Revocation of the former, without any express Disannulling, &c. And limiting new Uses, shews, the Power to alter and determine the former Uses: Also if Power is reserved to a Man to revoke a Deed by Writing, subscribed and sealed in the Presence of two or more credible Witnesses; if he makes his Will in Writing, without making any express Revocation, it will be a good Revocation, and the Will a good Execution of the Power. Hob. 312. Raym. 295. 3 Nels. Abr. 168, 169. Though it hath been held, that all incident Circumstances prescribed by the Proviso or Power of Revocation, as to Subscriptions, Witnesses, &c. ought to be observed. 10 Rep. 143. 6 Rep. 33. 2 Lill. 487. It is said where the Power is only to revoke, when that Power is executed, a Man cannot limit new Uses. 1 Vent. 197. 3 Salk. 316. Yet it hath been decreed, that the Limitation of new Uses is good, where the express Power in the first Deed was only to revoke. 1 Chan. Rep. 242. If a Person make a Feoffment in Fee, or levy a Fine, &c. of the Lands, before the Deed of Revocation is executed; these amount to a Revocation in Law, and extinguish the Power of Revocation. 1 Vent. 371. 1 Rep. 111. Power of Revocation may be released; and where a Man has an entire Power of Revocation, and he suspends or extinguishes it as to Part, he may revoke as to the Residue, if the Conveyance was by Way of Use; but not where a Condition is annexed to the Land. 1 Rep.

174. Moor 615. A Will is revocable; and a last Will revokes the former: Though a new Publication of the first Will, where there are two Wills, it is said may revoke the last. Perk. 479. 2 Sid. 2. See 3 Mod. 207. Wills are to be revoked by some other Will in Writing, signed in the Presence of three Witnesses, or by Cancelling by the Testator, &c. Stat. 29 Car. 2. A Will revoking a former, tho' it must be subscribed by three Witnesses, 'tis said need not be in the Testator's Presence, as the Will of Lands must be, by the Statute. 1 P. Williams 344. If a Person cancels or revokes either the Duplicate or original Will, this avoids both; they being but one Will, and must stand or fall together: But where a Man makes a second Will, and intends that as a Revocation of the first; if it be insufficient, it shall not destroy the first Will though cancelled. 3 Mod. 220, 258. 2 Vern. 741. The Testator is to be of a good disposing Memory when he revokes his Will, as well as when he makes it; he must have Animum Revocandi, as well as Animum Testandi, to make an effectual Revocation. Show 89. Cro. Jac. 497. Hard. 374. 3 Mod. 203. Writings of Revocation are to be taken according to the Subject Matter, viz. where a last Will cannot stand with the First. Ibid. A Testator made his Will, and some Time afterwards made a Feoffment of the Lands in the Will to Uses; and adjudged this was a Revocation of his Will, because a Will cannot take Effect till after his Death. Dyer 74. And a Tenant in Tail made his Will in Writing, which was duly executed; afterwards he made a Bargain and Sale of the same Lands contained in the Will, to make a Tenant to the Præcipe, in Order to suffer a common Recovery, which was done accordingly, and he declared the Uses to himself and his Heirs; by the Bargain and Sale, &c. the Will was revoked. 3 Lev. 108. It hath been admitted to be a settled Rule in Chancery, that where a Testator devises his Land in Fee to one, and after mortgages it in Fee to another, and then dies before the Principal and Interest is paid; this is not a total Revocation of the Will, but only quoad so much for which the Lands were mortgaged, and the Devisee shall have the Equity of Redemption. 1 Salk. 258, 236. Where Lands are devised to one in Fee, and after mortgaged to the same Person, it is Revocation in toto of the Devise; but if the Land be mortgaged to a Stranger, in that Case 'tis otherwise. Preced. Canc. 515. A Man seized of Lands, devises the same in Fee, or for Life, and afterwards makes a Lease thereof to another for Years, it shall not be a Revocation but during the Years: Though in case a Person has devised Lands to one and his Heirs, and after Leases the same to him for a certain Term, to commence after his Death; that is a Revocation of the whole Estate. 1 Roll. Abr. 616. 2 Cro. 49. Right, (Jus) In general Signification, includes not only a Right for which a Writ of Right lies; but also any Title or Claim for which no Action is given by Law but only an Entry. 1 Inst. 265. There is Right of Entry, and of Action, where a Man is put out of his Lands; of Property, when one is disseised, &c. and of Possession: There are also a Present, and future Right; a Jus in Re, which may be granted to a Stranger; and what is called a naked Right, or Jus ad Rem, where an Estate is turned to a Right, on a Discontinuance, &c. Co. Litt. 345. A Right in Writs and Pleadings, is properly in one, when he is ousted of the Possession of his Estate by Disseisin or Wrong, and hath Remedy by Entry, or Action: But Right doth also include an Estate in esse in Conveyances; and therefore if Tenant in Fee simple makes a Lease and Release of all his Right in the Land to another, the whole Estate in Fee passes. Wood's Inst. 115, 116. Sir Edward Coke tells us, That of such a high Estimation is Right, that the Law preserveth it from Death and Destruction; trodden down it may be, but never trodden out: And there is such an extream Enmity between an Estate gained by Wrong and an ancient Right, that the Right cannot possibly incorporate itself with the Estate gained by Wrong, 1 Inst. 279. 8 Rep. 105. 6 Rep. 70. A Right may sometimes sleep, though it never dies; a long Possession exceeding the Memory of Man, will make a Right; and if two Persons are in Possession by divers Titles, the Law will adjudge the Possession in him that hath the Right. *Co. Rights and Liberties. The Declaration of Rights and Liberties against the Conduct of K. James 2d set forth, That he by the Assistance of divers evil Counsellors, did endeavour to subvert the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom; by exercising a Power of dispensing with, and suspending of Laws; by levying Money for the Use of the Crown by Pretence of Prerogative, without Consent of Parliament; by raising and keeping a Standing Army, in Time of Peace; by violating the Freedom of Election of Members to serve in Parliament; by violent Prosecutions in the Court of King's Bench; and causing partial and corrupt Jurors to be returned on Trials; excessive Bail to be taken; and excessive Fines to be imposed; also cruel Punishments inflicted, &c. All which were declared to be illegal, and infringing upon the ancient Rights and Liberties of the People. Stat. 1 W. & M. cap. 2.

Riot, (Riata, Riolum, Fr. Riote) Is where three or more Persons assembled together, do some unlawful Act of a private Nature, with Force and Violence, to the Disturbance of the Peace; as by beating some Person, forcibly Entering into the Houses, or upon the Possession or Lands of another, breaking down Inclosures, &c. 3 Inst. 176. In every Riot, there must be some Intention of Force, or Violence; wherefore Assemblies for Wrestling, Playing at Cudgels, Dancing, &c. are not riotous: And this Force must relate to some private Quarrel only; for if the Intention of such Assemblies is to redress Grievances of a publick Nature, and such Intention is executed, it is a Levying War against the King, and Treason. Dalt. 322. 3 Inst. 9. Kel. 70, 76. There are to be three Persons at the least to make a Riot, and two alone cannot be guilty of it; though two Persons may make a Conspiracy, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 489. If divers Persons assemble together in a peaceable Manner, and after assembled do some deliberate riotous Act; this is a riotous Assembly, notwithstanding they did not at first assemble in a riotous Manner: The riotous Act shall have Relation to their Assembling together, and the Intentions of Persons are best interpreted by their Actions. Ibid. But if Persons on a lawful Meeting, fall out upon a sudden Quarrel, here being no Intention of an unlawful Act, it is no Riot. Dalt. A Number of Persons being met together at a Fair, Market, or Church-Ale, or any other lawful and innocent Occasion, if they happen on a sudden Quarrel to fall together by the Ears, they are not guilty of a Riot, but a sudden Affray only; because the Design of their Meeting was lawful, and the subsequent Breach of the Peace happened unexpectedly: Yet it is said, if Persons innocently assembled together, do afterwards upon a Dispute happening to arise among them, form themselves into Parties, and then make an Affray, they are guilty of a Riot: For upon their Confederating together, with an Intent to break the Peace, they may as properly be said to be assembled together for that Purpose, from the Time of such Confederacy, as if their first coming together, had been upon such a Design. 1 Hawk P. C. 156. 6 Mod. 43. And it is agreed, That if an Assembly of Persons met together on any lawful Occasion, shall on a sudden Proposal go in a Body to pull down a House, or Inclosure, or do any Act of Violence to the Disturbance of the publick Peace, and the same be executed accordingly, the Persons concerned cannot but be Rioters; their Associating themselves together for such a new Purpose, being no way extenuated by their having met at first upon another: And if any Person seeing others actually engaged in a Riot, shall join them, and assist them therein, he is as much a Rioter as if he had at first assembled with them for that that Intent; nor shall his pretending that he came innocently into the Company avail him; for it is impossible to discover whether every particular Person engaged in a Riot was in Truth one of the first Assembly, or had a previous Knowledge of the Design of the Tumult. 1 Hawk. Ibid. On an Indictment for a Riot, it hath been adjudged, that where three or more are assembled lawfully, without any ill Intent, and an Affray happens amongst them, none are guilty but those who are actually concerned in it; but if they were unlawfully assembled, then the Act of one may be imputed to all: That if they are lawfully assembled, and afterwards quarrelling, one of the Company is beaten by the rest, it is no Riot; though if they beat a Stranger, in that very Moment the Quarrel began, they are an unlawfully Assembly: And if such Stranger is beaten by one of the Company, the Concurrence of the Rest is Evidence of their evil Intention, and it is a Riot in all of them. 2 Salk. 595. Any Person may assemble a Number of Men to defend his House against Injury or Violence; and yet if a Man be threatened, that if he comes to such a Place, he shall be beaten, and he thereupon assembles a Company to go thither with him, though it be for the Safety of his Person, this may be deemed a Riot, because of the Danger the Government may be in from such Assemblies; and for that the Law gives him another Remedy, viz. by demanding Surety for the Peace. Broke 1. But every Man in a peaceable Manner may assemble a Company to do any lawful Thing, or to remove any Nuisance; and may for that Purpose enter another Man's Ground: And where a Man had erected a Wear over a common River, and several People assembled with Spades and other Things necessary to remove the said Wear, and made a Trench in his Land that did erect the Wear, to turn the Water so as they might the better take up the said Wear, and did remove the same Nuisance; this was held neither any forcible Entry nor Riot. Bro. 14, 33. Though if in removing such Nuisance, the Persons assembling use any threatening Words, as that they will do it, if they die for it, or the like; or their Behaviour be in apparent Disturbance of the Peace, then it will amount to a Riot; for the Manner of doing a lawful Thing may make it unlawful. Ibid. If one assembles a proper Company to carry away a Piece of Timber, to which he pretends a Right, if the Number be no more than necessary to carry it away, although another Man may have a better Right to the Timber, and this is an unlawful Act, it is no Riot, except there be a Disturbance of the Peace; so that the Doing of an unlawful Act by an Assembly of People, may be so managed as not to be a Riot. 1 Hawk. 157. And Persons assembled together to do any Thing prohibited by Statute, if they peaceably perform the same, cannot be denominated Rioters. 6 Mod. 141. An Indictment against A. B. for that he cum multis aliis at such a Place, &c. did commit a Riot, is good: And several being indicted for a Riot, it was moved, that the Prosecutor might name two or three, and try it against them, and that the Rest might enter into a Rule to plead guilty, if they were found guilty; and a Rule was made accordingly, this being to prevent the Charges in putting them all to plead. Mod. Cas. 212. 3 Salk. 317. If two only are found guilty on an Indictment for a Riot, and the Rest acquitted, all are acquitted; and if a Battery be likewise laid in the Indictment, if it be not laid as a distinct Offence, the Defendants being discharged of the Riot, are also discharged of the Battery. 2 Salk. 593. Upon an Information against several Persons for committing a Riot, and setting up a Bank, &c. the Jury found the Defendants guilty as to setting up the Bank, but quoad the Riot not guilty; and it was held, that by this Verdict the Defendants were acquitted of the Charge in the Information, which was a Riot; for an Action on the Case would lie for erecting the Bank. 3 Mod. 72. The Defendants being found guilty on Information for a Riot, and hindering the Bailiff and Burgeses of a Borough from choosing a Bailiff; Judgment was arrested, because the Information did not set forth that the Defendants were unlawfully assembled, &c. Besides, it did not mention any Right in the Bailiff and Burgeses to meet together to choose a Bailiff, and they might be assembled to do an unlawful Act themselves; and then it is not unlawful in the Defendants to disturb them. 2 Salk. 594. Dyer 68. A Mayor and Aldermen of a Town making a Riot, are punishable in their natural Capacities; but where they have countenanced dangerous Riots within their Precincts, their Liberties have been seized, or the Corporation fined. 3 Cro. 252. Dalt. 204, 326. Women may be punished as Rioters; but Infants under the Age of fourteen Years, are not punishable. Dalt. 325. Wood's Inst. 429. By the Common Law, Riots are punished by Fine and Imprisonment; and if enormous, by Pillory; And by Statute, Justices of the Peace have Power to restrain Rioters, &c. to arrest and imprison them, and cause them to be duly punished. 34 Ed. 3. c. 1. As soon as the Sheriff and other the King's Ministers hear of a Riot, or other Assembly against the Peace, they with the Power of the County shall apprehend such Offenders, and put them in Prison until delivered by Law. 27 R. 2. c. 8. And two or more Justices of the Peace, dwelling near the Place where such Offences shall be committed, together with the Sheriff or Under-Sheriff of the County, shall by the Power of the County, if need be, suppress Riots, Routs, &c. arrest the Offenders, and record what shall be done in their Presence; by which Record the Offenders shall stand convicted, as by Stat. 15 R. 2. in case of Forcible Entries; and if Offenders are departed, the said Justices, &c. shall within a Month after make Inquiry thereof, and hear and determine the same; and if the Truth cannot be found, then within a further Month the Justices and Sheriffs are to certify to the King and Council, &c. on Default whereof, the Justices, &c. shall forfeit 100*l.* 13 H. 4. c. 7. These Statutes are understood of great and notorious Riots: And the Record of the Riot within the View of the Justices, by whom it is recorded, is such a Conviction as cannot be traversed, the Parties being concluded thereby; but they may take Advantage of the Insufficiency of the Record, if the Justices have not pursued the Statute, &c. It is said that the Offenders being convicted upon the Record of their Offence, in the Presence of the Justices, ought to be sent immediately to Gaol, till they pay a Fine assessed by the same Justices; which Fine is to be estreated into the Exchequer; or the Justices may record such Riot, and commit the Offenders, and after certify the Record into B. R. or to the Assises or Sessions: If the Offenders are gone, then the Justices shall inquire by a Jury; and the Riot being found, they are to make a Record of it, and fine them, or receive their Traverse, to be sent by the Justices to the next Quarter-Sessions, or into the King's Bench, to be tried according to Law. Dalt. 200, 201, 202. It hath been adjudged, that where Rioters are convicted upon the View of two Justices, the Sheriff must be a Party to the Inquisition on the Stat. 13 H. 4. But if they disperse themselves before Conviction, the Sheriff need not be a Party; for in such Case the two Justices may make the Inquisition without him; and this is pro Domino Rege: And if the Justices neglect to make an Inquisition within a Month after the Riot, they are liable to the Penalty for not doing it within that Time; but the Lapse of the Month, doth not determine their Authority to make an Inquisition afterwards. 2 Salk. 592. Rioters convicted on View of two Justices, and of the Sheriff of the County, are to be fined by the two Justices Justices and the Sheriff; and if the Sheriff do not join in setting the Fine, it is Error; for the Statute requires that he should be joined with the Justices in the whole Proceedings. Raym. 386. 13 H. 4. c. 7. By the 2 H. 5. c. 8. If the Justices make Default in Inquiring of a Riot; at the Instance of the Party grieved, the King's Commission shall be issued to inquire by sufficient and indifferent Men of the County, at the Discretion of the Chancellor; and the Coroners shall make the Panel of Inquest upon the said Commission, which is returnable into the Chancery, &c. and by this Statute, heinous Riots are to suffer one Year's Imprisonment. The Lord Chancellor having Knowledge of a Riot, may send the King's Writ to the Justices of Peace, and to the Sheriff of the County, &c. requiring them to put the Statute in Execution; and the Chancellor, upon Complaint made, that a dangerous Rioter is fled into Places unknown, and on Suggestion under the Seals of two Justices of Peace and the Sheriff, that the common Fame runneth in the County of the Riot, may award a Capias against the Party, returnable in Chancery upon a certain Day, and afterwards a Writ of Proclamation returnable in the King's Bench, &c. 2 Hen. 5. c. 9. 8 Hen. 6. c. 14. If one Justice of Peace hath Notice of a Riot, he must endeavour to remove it, and may bind the Rioters to the good Behaviour; and if they have no Sureties, or refuse to be bound, he may commit them to Prison. 13 Hen. 4. Mod. Infl. 368. Where Riots are committed, the Sheriff upon a Precept directed to him, is to return twenty-four Persons dwelling within the County to inquire thereof, &c. 19 Hen. 7. c. 13. The Stat. 1 Geo. 1. enacts, That if any Persons to the Number of Twelve or more, unlawfully and riotously assembled against the Peace, being required by a Justice of Peace, Sheriff, or Under-Sheriff, Mayor, or other head Officer of any Town, &c. by Proclamation in the King's Name, to disperse themselves, shall continue together an Hour afterwards, they shall be guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy; and Persons thus assembled and continuing, are to be apprehended and carried before a Justice of Peace, &c. And if in Resistance, the Rioters are killed, the Persons concerned in it shall be indemnified: Persons by Force hindering the Proclamation, it shall be adjudged Felony; and the Offenders nevertheless guilty, if they do not disperse, &c. Rioters demolishing any Church, Chapel, or Dwelling-House, are guilty of Felony; and Inhabitants of Towns and Hundreds are to yield Damages for Rebuilding or Reparation, to be levied and paid in such Manner as Money recovered against the Hundred, by Persons robbing on the Highway, &c. 1 Geo. 1. c. 5. Prosecutions on this Act are to be commenced within one Year after the Offence: And this is the severest Statute that hath been made against Rioters, but it being wholly in the Affirmative, it doth not take away any Authority in the suppressing a Riot by Common Law, or by other Statutes. Wood's Infl. 430. See Rebellious Assembly.

A Record of a Riot on View.

BE it remembered, that on the Day, &c. in the ninth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Second, now King of Great Britain, &c. We A. B. and C. D. Esquires, two of the Justices of our said Lord the King assigned to keep the Peace in the County of, &c. aforesaid, and E. F. Esquire, then Sheriff of the said County, upon the Complaint and humble Supplication of L. B. of, &c. in the County aforesaid, in our own proper Persons went to the Mansion-House of the said L. B. in the Parish, &c. in the County aforesaid; and then and there we saw G. H. of, &c. and J. K. and L. M. of, &c. in the County aforesaid, and other Malefactors and Disturbers of the Peace of our said Lord the King, to Us unknown, to the Number of five Persons, armed with Swords, Staves, &c. unlawfully and riotously assembled at the said House, threatening great Damage to the said L. B. to the Disturbance of the Peace of the said Lord the King, and Terror of his People, against the Form of the Statute, &c. And therefore We the said A. B. and C. D. then and there caused the said G. H. J. K. and L. M. to be arrested, and carried to the next Gaol of our said Lord the King in the County aforesaid, by our View and Record being convicted of the unlawful Assembly, Tumult and Riot aforesaid, there to remain until they have made Fine and Ransom to our said Lord the King for the same. In Witness whereof We have set our Seals to this our present Record, Dated at, &c. aforesaid, the Day and Year above mentioned.

Persons may justify the going of their Servants or Horses upon the Banks of navigable Rivers, for towing of Barges, &c. to whomsoever the Right of the Soil belongs. 1 Ld. Raym. 725.

Roba, A Robe, Coat or Garment; and those who Robas accipiebant of another, are accounted of his Family. Walsingh. 267.

Robbery, (Robberia, or Robaria, derived de la Robe, i. e. Vestis) Is a felonious and violent Assault upon the Person of another, by putting him in Fear, and taking from him his Money or Goods, on the Highway: And it is said to be so called, because a Man was thereby sometimes bereaved of his Robes or Garments; and for that his Money or other Goods being taken from his Person, viz. from or out of some Part of his Garment or Robe. 3 Inst. 68. Though Robbery in a large Sense, is any wrongful Taking away of Goods. 2 Inst. 236. Robbery on the Highway is Felony of Death, though the Sum taken is under Twelve-pence, or be but one Penny; for it may be of any Value; whereas in other Thefts Judgment of Death is only where the Thing stolen is above the Value of 12 d. H. P. C. 73, 74. But there must be something taken; and if any Thing be taken from the Person of another, on the Highway, without putting him in Fear, it is no Robbery, but Felony allowed Clergy; the putting in Fear distinguishing the Robbery from the other stealing from the Person. 3 Inst. 68. H. P. C. 71. Dalt. 364. And if there be only an Attempt to rob, without any Taking, it is not Felony, but a Misdemeanor punishable by Fine and Imprisonment, &c. Wood's Inst. 369. There is a Taking in Deed, and a Taking in Law, in Robberies; as when a Thief only receives Money of a Traveller, who delivers it through Fear; or if he compels him for Fear of Death to swear that he will fetch him a Sum of Money, and he delivers it; this is a Taking in Law, and adjudged a Robbery. 3 Inst. The Robber must be in Possession of a Thing stolen: For Example; If the Bag or Purse of a Man be fastened to his Girdle, and the Thief the more easily to take it do cut the Girdle, whereby it falls to the Ground, it is no Taking by Reason the Robber never had any Possession thereof: But if the Thief take up the Bag or Purse, and in Striving let it fall, though he never take it up again; or if finding little in the Purse, he delivers it with all the Money to the Party again; these are a felonious Taking, because he had it in his Possession; and the Continuance of his Possession is not required by Law. 3 Inst. 69. And where a Man throws his Purse into a Bush, to conceal it from the Robber, who perceiving it, takes it up, this is deemed in Law a Taking from the Person; so if a Man had thrown off his Coat, and whilst it lies in his Presence, a Thief assaults him and takes his Coat, it is a Robbery; and if one endeavouring to make his Escape from a Robber, drops his Hat, and the Thief takes it up, it is a Taking from the Person. Ibid. The Taking away a Horse which a Man is actually riding, is not only Robbery; but if the Horse is standing by him, and be taken away, it is the same; and a Claim of Property, without Colour for it, will not avail: But if any Man leaves his Horse tied, and steps aside; or if a Carrier follows his Horse at a Distance, and they are taken by a Thief, such Taking is not a Taking from the Person, to make it Robbery. Dalt. 364. Pult. 128. If a Person having assaulted me, drives my Cattle in my Presence out of my Pasture; or robs my Servant of my Money before my Face, he may be indicted as having taken such Things from my Person. S. P. C. 27. Style 156. And some have gone so far as to hold, That if a Man meeting another going with his Goods to Market in order to sell them, compel him to sell them against his Will, he is guilty of Robbery. Crompt. 34. 1 Hawk. P. C. 97. If a Thief bids the Party deliver his Money, &c. either with or without a Weapon drawn, and he gives it him; or a Person with Sword or Pistol in his Hand, demands my Money, and afterwards prays Alms, and I give it accordingly; it is a Robbery: For whenever any Person assaults another with Circumstances of Terror that cause him by Reason thereof to part with his Money, the Taking thereof is adjudged Robbery; whether there were any Weapon drawn or not, or the Person assaulted delivered his Money upon the other's Command, or after gave it to him upon his Ceasing to use Force, and begging Alms, &c. 3 Inst. 60. H. P. C. 71, 72. 1 Hawk. 96. And if I am robbed by several in a Gang, and one of them only takes my Money, in this Case in Judgment of Law, every one of the Company shall be said to take it, in respect of that Incouragement which they give to one another through the Hopes of mutual Assistance; and though they miss of their first intended Prize, and one of them afterwards rides from the Rest, and robs another Person in the same Highway without their Knowledge or Consent, out of their View, and returns to them, all are guilty of Robbery, as they came together with an Intent to rob, and to assist one another in so doing. Crompt. 34. 1 And. 116. H. P. C. 72. Five Persons agreed to ride out to rob, but at Hounslow one parted from the Company, and rode away another Road, the other four riding on towards E. about three Miles further, they assaulted a Man, and three of them robbed him; it was resolved, that the Party who rode away from the Rest, was not guilty of the Robbery, though he went out with them upon the same Design, because he left them at H. and fell not in with them, for it may be he repented of what was designed, or at least he pursued it not: But the other four were adjudged guilty, although one of them was not actually present at the Robbery. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 537. A Robbery was committed upon the Thames in a Ship there, on that Side of the River which is in Middlesex, and the Offenders were indicted for it as done in or near the King's Highway, and ousted of their Clergy; for the Thames is in Truth Alia via Regia, the King's High Stream. Ibid. 536. are, a Persona A. B. violenter & felonice Capit & asportavit in magnum Terrorem, &c. And the Robbery must be laid in the Indictment to be done in Alta via Regia; If it be alledged to be done in quadam via Regia pedestri ducent. de London ad Islington, &c. the Offender will not be ousted of his Clergy, because the Words of the Statute to this Purpose are, in or about or near the Highway. 1 Hawk P. C. 97. 2 Hawk. 342. Moor 5. Streets in Cities are Highways, as to Robberies, &c. by a late Statute, 6 Geo. 1. And Persons who with offensive Weapons shall assault, or in a forcible Manner demand Money, &c. of any Person, with an Intent to commit Robbery, shall be guilty of Felony, and be transported for seven Years. Stat. 7 Geo. 2. c. 21.

But

But by Statute it is put upon a Footing with other Felonies, by Making it Felony excluded of Clergy, as most other Felonies are. 2 Inft. 250. And the Statute 23 H. 8. is the only Act which extends to Accessaries to these Robberies; except the Offence amount to Burglary, in which Case Accessaries before are ousted of Clergy, by 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. 2 *Harvk. Sale, (Venditio) Is the Transferring the Property of Goods from one to another, upon valuable Consideration: And if a Bargain is that another shall give me 5 l. for such a Thing, and he gives me Earnest, which I accept, this is a perfect Sale. Wood's Inft. 316. On Sale of Goods, if Earnest be given to the Seller, and Part of them are taken away by the Buyer, he must pay the Residue of the Money upon fetching away the Rest, because no other Time is appointed; and the Earnest given binds the Bargain, and gives the Buyer a Right to demand the Goods; but a Demand without paying the Money is void: And it has been held, that after the Earnest is taken, the Seller cannot dispose of the Goods to another, unless there is some Default in the Buyer; therefore if he doth not take away the Goods and pay the Money, the Seller ought to require him so to do; and then if he doth not do it in convenient Time, the Bargain and Sale is dissolved, and the Seller may dispose of them to any other Person. 1 Salk. 113. A Seller of a Thing is to keep it a reasonable Time, for Delivery: But where no Time is appointed for Delivery of Things sold, or for Payment of the Money, it is generally implied that the Delivery be made immediately, and Payment on the Delivery. 3 Salk. 61. Where one agrees for Wares sold, the Buyer must not carry them away before paid for; except a Day of Payment is allowed him by the Seller. Noy 87. It is said a perfect Bargain and Sale between Parties, will be good, though the Seller knows of an Execution that is against him; and doth sell the Goods to prevent the falling of it upon them. 3 Shep. Abr. 115. A Sale may be of any living or dead Goods in a fair or Market, be they whose they will, or however the Seller come by them; if made with the Cautions required by Law: But if one sell my Goods unduly, I may have them again. Doñ. and Stud. 328. Perk. Sañ. 93. If a Man affirms a Thing sold is of such a Value when it is not, this is not actionable, but if he actually Warrants it, at the Time of the Sale, and not afterwards, it will bear an Action, being Part of the Contract.

Westm. 1. cap. 34.* No Person shall devise or tell any false News, or Lies, of any Lord, Prelate, Officer of the Government, Judge, &c. by which any Slander shall happen to their Persons, or Mischief come to the Kingdom, upon Pain of being imprisoned; and where any one hath told false News or Lies, and cannot produce the Author, he shall suffer Imprisonment, and be punished by the King's Council, &c. 2 R. 2. c. 5. 12 R. 2. c. 11. If the Slander is published in a Libel, the Party may be indicted, fined and imprisoned: But the Action of Scandalum Magnatum is usually brought upon the Stat. 2 R. 2. tam pro Domino Rege, quam pro seipso, in the Name of the King and the Party; the King being concerned in the Credit of great Men, who act by his Authority; so that the Plaintiff recovers Damages upon this Statute for the Wrong, and the Defendant is imprisoned on the Statute of Westm. upon the King's Account. 5 Rep. 125. The Words in these Cases shall be taken in the worst Sense, to preserve the Honour of great Persons: Yet 'tis said a Defendant may justify in Scandalum Magnatum, setting forth the Special Matter. 1 Vent. 60. 1 Lev. 277. 4 Rep. 13, 14. And the Statutes extend only to extrajudicial Slanders, and so it is at Common Law; for though the Charge be false, which is alledged against one in a Court of Justice, no Action de Scandalis Magnat. lieth. 2 Inst. 228. 1 Rel. Abr. 34. Hob. 35. For these Words, I do not know but my Lord of Peterborough sent Gibe to take my Purse; they were held actionable, though there was no positive Charge. 1 Vent. 59. So where a Defendant hearing that his Father's Barns were burnt, said, I cannot imagine who should do it but my Lord Stourton. Moor 142. A Man said of the Earl of Lincoln, That he was a base Earl, and a poultry Lord, and kept none but Rogues and Rascals about him; although the Words were spoken chiefly concerning his Servants, they were adjudged in Contempt of his Honour and Dignity, and actionable. 2 Cro. 195. But where the Defendant said, The Lord Lincoln's Man did, by his Command, take the Goods of a certain Person by a forged Warrant; after a Verdict for the Plaintiff and great Damages, the Judgment was arrested, because it was not averred that the Earl knew the Warrant to be forged. Goldsb. 115. If one says of a Peer, He is an unworthy Person, and acts against Law and Reason; in the Case of the Lord Townshend it was adjudged Action of Scandalum Magnatum lay notwithstanding the Words were general, and charged him with nothing certain: Though Justice Atkins held an Action would not lie for the Words, being of a trivial Nature; and the Statute mentions only great Scandals, whereby Discord might arise, &c. 1 Mod. 232. 2 Mod. 150. 1 Danv. Abr. 165. In this last Case 4000 l. Damages were given; and on a Motion for a new Trial, because of the excessive Damages, it was denied. 1 Nels. Abr. 130. The Defendant being a Parson, spoke the following Words in the Pulpit, The Lord of Leicester is a wicked and cruel Man, and an Enemy to the Reformation; and in an Action of Scandalum Magnatum the Plaintiff had 500 l. Damages. 2 Sid. 21, 30. The Statute of Scandalum Magnatum is a general Law, of which the Court is to take Notice. 4 Rep. 12. And it hath been resolved, that if the Plaintiff recites so much of the Statute in his Declaration as will maintain his Action, though he mistakes the rest, it will not make his Declaration ill: But it being a general Law, it need not be recited. 2 Mod.

Mod. 98. An Action brought upon this Statute, and several particular Objections to the Declaration, with the Answers to them, and Judgment for the Plaintiff, see Cro. Car. 135. Bail to be taken in Action of Scandal. Magnat. Vide 3 Mod. 41.

Scilicet, An Adverb, signifies, that is to say, to wit; and hath been often used in Law Proceedings.

Sir John Hobart in his Exposition of this Word, says it is not a direct and separate Clause, nor a direct and intire Clause, but intermedia; neither is it a substantive Clause of itself, but it is rather to usher in the Sentence of another, and to particularise that which was too general before, or distribute that which was too gross, or to explain what was doubtful and obscure; and it must neither increase nor diminish, for it gives nothing of itself: But it may make a Restriction, where the precedent Words are not so very express, but they may be restrained. Hob. 171, 172. The Word Scilicet in a Declaration, shall not make any Alteration of that which went before. Popb. 201, 204. And yet in some Cases, the Scilicet which introduces a Subsequent, shall not be rejected. 2 Cro. 618.

Scire facias, Is a Writ judicial, most commonly to call a Man to shew Cause to the Court whence it issues, why Execution of a Judgment should not go out. Old. Nat. Br. 151. A Scire facias lieth where Debt and Damages are recovered, and no Execution is sued out within a Year and a Day; then after the Year and Day, the Plaintiff shall have this Writ to summon the Defendant to shew Cause why there should not be Execution sued upon the Judgment against him; and if he can shew no Cause, there is Judgment, Quod habeat Executionem. Terms de Ley 537. 2 Lill. Abr. 497. This Writ was not at the Common Law, but given by the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 45. in personal Actions, when Debt or Damages were recovered: And before, if the Plaintiff had not sued out his Execution in a Year and a Day after his Judgment, he had no Remedy but by new Action of Debt upon his Judgment; but now he hath his Liberty to bring either a Scire facias, or Action of Debt, as he pleases. 2 Inst. 469. By the Statute it is ordained in lieu of a new Original; and therefore Judgment upon the Scire facias shall have the same Effect, as upon that. Comber. 455. At Common Law the Writ of Scire facias lay only on Judgments in Real Actions; though it has been adjudged that it lay also in mixed Actions. 2 Salk. 600. If any of the Writs of Execution, whether in Personal or Real Actions, are not executed within the Year and Day after the Judgment, to obtain Execution, there must be a Scire facias, to shew Cause why the Execution should not be awarded: But if the Plaintiff sueth out any of them within the Year, he may continue them after the Year till he hath Execution, and need not sue out any Scire facias. And a Writ of Error is a Continuance of the Cause, so that no Scire facias is required, though it depend some Years; and because pending the Writ of Error the Plaintiff cannot sue out Execution of the Judgment, but he may after the Affirmation of it, &c. Litt. 505. 1 Inst. 290. 2 Inst. 471. 2 Lill. 500, 504. Where Judgment is had against a Testator, there must issue a Scire facias against the Executor, although within the Year, to shew Cause why Execution should not be had; the like against an Administrator of an Intestate: And so on the Plaintiff's Part, if Heir, Executor, or Administrator; the Person being altered: And if one recovers against a Feme sole, and she is married within the Year and Day, a Scire facias is to go against the Husband. Wood's Inst. 610. When either Plaintiff or Defendant, or one of the Plaintiffs or Defendants dies, Execution may not be sued out upon a Judgment thereupon; in these Cases there is to be a new Judgment to warrant Execution. 2 Lill. Abr. 500. If an Administrator obtains Judgment for a Debt due to the Intestate, by Default or Confession, and the Administrator doth after die Intestate, and Letters of Administration are granted to one de bonis non, &c. of him that first died intestate; this Administrator cannot have a Scire facias to revive the Judgment obtained by the first Administrator of the first Intestate, but he must bring a new Action to recover that Debt; for he is no Ways Party or Privy to the first Judgment, but a meer Stranger to it: But if the Recovery were by Verdict, he may now have a Scire facias upon it, by 17 Car. 2. c. 8. 2 Lill. 505. It hath been used of late to make out a Fieri facias de bonis Testatoris, and also a Scire facias, and a Writ of Inquiry, all in one Writ, against an Executor or Administrator, for the speedier Obtaining of Execution upon a Judgment; though anciently they were distinct Writs or Processes, and to be severally executed. Ibid. 503. One may have a Scire facias to revive an old Judgment upon which no Execution hath been executed, without any Motion, if it be but seven Years past since the Judgment was had; and if it be above seven Years, and under ten Years since the Judgment was given, a Scire facias may be moved for at the Side-bar to revive it: But if it be above ten Years, then a Sci. fac. cannot be had without moving the Court, and a Rule for it; and the Court doth not use to deny it, if moved for. Ibid. 502. 2 Salk. 598. If a Scire facias be taken out to revive an old Judgment of above ten Years standing, without Motion and Leave of the Court, the Sci. fac. is not good, but may be set aside upon a Motion. Triñ. 23 Car. B. R. A Scire facias to revive a Judgment ought not to be granted, till the Record of the Judgment be in Court where the Sci. fac. is moved for. 2 Lill. 498. In a Sci. fa. brought upon a Judgment given in C. B. it is necessary to shew before what Chief Justice by Name the Judgment was had; but it is not necessary to do it in a Scire facias upon a Judgment of B. R. And the Reason is, because the Proceedings are in the Common Pleas coram the Chief Justice & faciis factis; and in the King's Bench they are coram Domino Rege. Ibid. 499. If a Scire facias be sued upon a Judgment in B. R. where the Action is brought by Original; the Plaintiff must alledge a Place where the Court is held, as such a Sci. fac. is returnable Coram nobis ubicunque fuerimus, &c. 'tis otherwise on a Judgment in C. B. because that Court is by Magna Charta confined to a certain Place. 1 Vent. 46. 1 Mod. 19. The Process of Scire facias ought to be in the same Court where the Judgment was given; unless it be upon a Recognizance, on a Statute Merchant, or Staple; for in such Case it may be returnable in Chancery, the Recognizance being before that Court, and they may there judge of it. 2 Bulst. 10. In Debt upon a Recovery in Scire facias, on a Recognizance taken in the Chamber of London; it was not shewed that it was a Court of Record, and that they had been used to take Recognizances: And on Exception taken to it, divers Cases were put, that though the Judgment was void, yet Execution might be by Scire facias. For upon a voidable Judgment a Man shall recover, and may take out Execution; and that it should stand good, until the Judgment were reversed. Godb. 96. After the Removal of a Record by Certiorari into a superior Court, a Scire facias shall issue, &c. And if a Scire facias is brought in B. R. upon a Judgment in an inferior Court, it must appear in the Writ itself, how the Judgment came into B. R. whether by Certiorari, or Writ of Error, because the Execution is different; if it came by Certiorari, the Scire facias is to set forth the same, and the Limits of the inferior Jurisdiction, and pray Execution within those particular Limits; but if it was brought in Writ of Error, that must be shewn in the Scire facias itself likewise, and pray Execution generally. 3 Salk. 320. A Scire facias is in the Nature of an Action, as the Defendant may plead to it: And it ought to be brought in the same County where the original Action was laid; for it must always pursue the first Action. Finch 477. Cro. Jac. 231. As a Scire facias is an Action, it requires a new Warrant of Attorney, and when the Party comes to pray Judgment thereon, he does it by Attorney. 2 Ld. Raym. 1253. And if one doth not proceed upon a Writ of Scire facias within a Year and a Day after it was taken out, he cannot after that Time proceed upon that Writ, which is discontinued; but is to sue out a new Scire facias. 2 Lill. 504. Scire facias may be pleaded to, before Judgment given upon it; afterwards it is too late: Though a Writ of Error may be brought to reverse the Judgment on the Scire facias, if that be not good on which the Judgment was grounded. Ibid. 503. Payment is no Plea at Common Law to a Scire facias upon a Judgment; because it is a Debt upon Record. 3 Lev. 120. But this is altered by the 4 & 5 Ann. Whatever is pleadable to the original Action in Abatement, shall not be pleadable to disable the Plaintiff from having Execution on a Scire facias; because the Defendant had admitted him able to have Judgment. 1 Salk. 2. In Scire facias on a Judgment in Debt, or other Personal Action, the Defendant cannot plead Non-tenure of the Land generally, where it is contrary to the Return of the Sheriff; but he may plead a special Non-tenure: But in a Scire facias to have Execution in a Real Action, the Defendant may plead Non-tenure generally, because the Freehold is in Question, and that is favoured in Law; and the Tertenants may plead there are other Ter-tenants not named, and pray Judgment if they ought to answer quousq; the others are summoned, &c. though it would be otherwise if the Sci. fac. had been against particular Tenants by Name. 2 Salk. 601. On a Sci. fac. to have Execution upon a Judgment in Action of Debt, every Ter-tenant is to be contributory; and therefore one shall not answer, as long as he can shew that another is so, and not warned: Contra in a Scire facias upon a Judgment in a Real Action; for every Tenant is to answer for that which he hath, and one may be contributory, and the other not. 2 Cro. 507. 3 Nels. Abr. 204. There is to be a Scire facias against the Heir and Ter-tenants to reverse a Common Recovery of Lands; the Scire facias is to issue against all the Ter-tenants; for they are to gain or lose by the Judgment in the Recovery. Raym. 16. 3 Mod. 274. A Scire facias to have Execution of a Fine, shall not be sued against Lessee for Years; but against him who hath the Freehold, who may have some Matter to bar the Execution. Cro. Eliz. 471. 2 Brownl. 144. In Ejectment, it was adjudged, that a Scire facias might be brought by the Lessee though he was but nominal, and that it may be had by the Lessor himself; as either of them may have a Writ of Error on the Judgment: And that it might be brought against those who were strangers to the Judgment, and against the Executors of the Defendant, &c. 2 Lutw. 1267. A Defendant being summoned upon a Scire facias, and the Summons returned, if he doth not appear, but lets Judgment go by Default, he is for ever barred. 1 Lev. 41, 42. If the Sheriff hath returned him warned, he shall not have Audita Querela on a Release, &c. for the Defendant might have pleaded the same on the Return of the Scire facias; but if the Sheriff return Nihil, on which an Execution is awarded, he shall have Audita Querela. New Nat. Br. 230. Where the Plaintiff in the Judgment releaseth the Defendant of all Judgments and Executions, &c. the Defendant may upon his Release sue out a Writ of Scire facias against the Plaintiff in the Judgment ad Cognoscendum scriptum suum Relaxationis; and he need not sue out his Audita Querela. Hill. 5 W. & M. B. R. Scire facias may be sued against a Sheriff, for not bringing the Money into Court levied on a Judgment, to shew Cause why Execution should not be had against him for the Sum, with which he had charged himself by the Return of the Writ of Execution. Hutt. 32. If one sues out two Writs of Scire facias, one after the other, where it is upon a Judgment by Bill, there ought to be eight Days between the Teste and Return of the first Sci. fa. and seven Days at least between the Teste and Return of the second Scire facias. And the Teste of the Alias Scire facias is to be the Day of the Return of the First. 3 Ann. B. R. 2 Lill. 503. Costs allowed in Suits on Writs of Scire facias, &c. Vide Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 11.

Form of a Scire facias upon a Judgment in Debt.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of M. Greeting: Whereas A. B. lately in our Court before us at Westminster, by Bill without our Writ, and by a Judgment of the same Court recovered against T. D. of, &c. Three hundred and seven Pounds for a Debt, and seven Shillings for his Damages which he had sustained, as well by Occasion of the detaining the said Debt, as for his Expences and Costs laid out by him about prosecuting his Suit in that Behalf, whereof the said T. is convicted, as appears to us of Record; and now on the Part of the said A. we have received Information in our Court before us, that although Judgment be thereof given, nevertheless Execution for the said Debt and Damages still remains to be made to him; whereupon the said A. hath besought us to provide him a proper Remedy in this Case: And we being desirous that what is Right and Just should be done therein, hereby command you, that by honest and lawful Men of your Bailiwick you cause it to be known to the said T. that he be before us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. to shew if he knows of, or has any Thing to say for himself, why the said A. ought not to have his Execution against him for his said Debt and Damages, according to the Force, Form and Effect of the said Recovery; and further to do and receive what our said Court before us shall then and there consider of in this Particular: And have you there the Names of those by whom you shall so cause it to be known to him, and this Writ. Witness, &c.

Scire facias against Bail, To an Action, is where a Capias ad Satisfac. is sued out and returned Non est Inventus against the Principal, and the Writ filed; after which this Writ is brought to have Execution against the Bail, &c. And if upon the Scire facias, or two Nibils returned, the Bail do not appear, Judgment shall be entered against them. 1 Inst. 290. Lutw. 1273. In C. B. there is but one Scire fac. against the Bail, and upon a Nil returned, there is Execution; but in B. R. there are two Scire facias's and two Nibils, and the first is to be duly returned, before the second sued out; and there must be fifteen Days inclusive between the Teste of the first and the Return of the last. 2 Salk. 599. There must be a particular Warrant of Attorney to a Scire facias against the Bail; for such a Warrant in the principal Action is no Warrant to the Scire facias, because these are distinct Actions; and the particular Warrant is to be entered when the Suit commences, which is when the Writ is returned. 2 Salk. 603. When a Scire facias is brought against the Bail, it must be in ea parte; and where it is brought against the Defendant in the principal Action, it is to be in hac parte. 2 Salk. 599. If Bail are prosecuted on a Scire fac. when a Writ of Error is depending in the Exchequer-Chamber, and the Defendants the Bail will confess Judgment, and enter into a Rule to pay the Debt, or to deliver up the Principal within four Days after the Judgment affirmed; in such Case the Proceedings on the Scire facias shall be stayed. Mod. Cases in L. & E. 130. And if there be no good Judgment against the Principal, Judgment against the Bail by Scire facias may be reversed, &c. 3 Nels. Abr. 190. See Bail.

Scire facias ad audiendum Errorum, On Writs of Error. There are to be fifteen Days between the Teste and Return of every Scire fac. ad audiendum Error. upon a Writ of Error returnable in B. R. And if on the Return of two Nibils, &c. the Defendant in Error doth not appear, it is not then with him as in Case of a Sci. fa. quare Execution non, &c. but the Cause is to be set down to be heard by the Court, and the Plaintiff in Errors shall be heard thereunto ex parte. 2 Lil. Abr. 499. If a Writ of Error is brought in B. R. and the Record brought in, the Defendant appearing may thereupon sue out a Scire facias quare Executionem habere non debet, and an Alias Sci. fac. after that, if there be not a Scire Feci returned on the first Writ; and if the Plaintiff in Error after a Sci. fac. or two Nibils returned, doth not, before the Rule for Judgment upon the Scire fac. is out, appear and assign Errors, or plead to the Scire fac. there will be Judgment against him, Quod habeat Executionem, &c. But the Writ of Error depends still until Judgment is affirmed or reversed, or the Plaintiff in the Errors is nonsuited. Ibid. 502.

Scire facias upon a Recognizance in Chancery, may be sued out to extend Lands, &c. If upon a Scire facias upon a Recognizance in the Chancery, the Record be transmitted into B. R. to try the Issue, and the Plaintiff is nonsuit; he may bring a new Sci. fa. in B. R. upon the Record there. 2 Saund. 27. Where a Statute is acknowledged, and the Cognitor afterwards confesseth a Judgment, and the Land is extended thereon; in this Case the Cognisee shall have a Scire facias to avoid the Extent of the Lands; but if the Judgment be on Goods, it is otherwise. 1 Brownl. 37. 3 Nels. Abr. 186. Sci. fac. lies on Recognizance of the Peace, &c. removed into B. R.

Scire facias to repeal Letters Patent and Grants. A Scire facias to repeal a Patent, must be brought where the Record is, which is in Chancery; and there are to be two of these Writs sued out of the Petty-bag Office directed to the Sheriff of Middlesex, who by a Letter under the Seal of his Office must send Notice to the Corporation or Person whose Concern the Patent is, that there is a Scire facias issued out returnable at such a Time, and remaining with him, for the Revocation of such a Patent, and that if they do not appear thereunto, Judgment will be had against them by Default; and this Letter to be delivered to the Corporation or Person interested in such Patent, by some Person who can make Oath thereof. Dalton's Sheriff. On a Sci. fac. out of Chancery returnable in B. R. to repeal Letters Patent, it was held, that if the Letters Patent are granted to the Prejudice of any Person, as if a Fair is granted to the Damage of the Fair of another, &c. he may have a Scire facias on the Inrollment of such Grant in Chancery, as well as the King in other Cases; but it may be a Question, whether a Scire facias upon a Record in Chancery is returnable in B. R. though after it is made returnable into B. R. that Court, and not the Chancery, hath the Jurisdiction of it. Mod. Caf. 229. In all Cases at Common Law, where the King's Title accrues by a judicial Record, and he grants his Estate over; the Party grieved could not have a Scire facias against the Patentee, but was forced to his Petition to the King; otherwise it is when his Title is by Conveyance on Record, which is not judicial. 4 Rep. 59. The King hath a Right to repeal a Patent by Scire facias, where he was deceived in his Grant, or it is to the Injury of the Subject. 3 Lev. 220. And where a common Person is obliged to bring his Action, there, upon an Inquisition or Office found, the King is put to his Scire facias, &c. 9 Rep. 96.

This Word is used in the Charter of the Forest, cap. 8. — Nullus Forestarius faciat Scotalas, vel Garbas colligat, vel aliquam Collectam faciat, &c. Manwood 216.

Scotland, Is united to England by 5 Ann. In the Reigns of King James 1. and K. Car. 2. Commissioners were appointed to treat with Commissioners of Scotland, concerning an Union. But the bringing about this great Work, was reserved for the Reign of Queen Ann. The 1 Ann. c. 14. ordained Articles to be settled by Commissioners for the Union of the two Kingdoms, &c. and by the 5 Ann. cap. 8. the Union was effected: The Kingdoms united are to be called Great Britain; and the Cross of St. George and St. Andrew to be conjoined; they are to be represented by one Parliament, and sixteen Peers of Scotland, and forty-five Commoners are to be elected for Scotland, and have all the Privileges of Parliament as Peers and Commoners of England: The Subjects of either Kingdom shall have Freedom of Trade, and be liable to the same Customs, and like Laws for publick Government, &c. Kirk-Government of the Church is confirmed; and the Courts of Justice are to remain the same as before the Union, but subject to Regulation: When 1,997,763 l. shall be raised in England on a Land-Tax, Scotland is to be charged with 48,000 l. And Scotland is to have an Equivalent for being charged towards the Payments of the Debts of England, &c. A Court of Exchequer is erected in Scotland, to be a Court of Record, Revenue, and Judicature for ever; and Barons of the said Court to be appointed, who shall be Judges there. Stat. 6 Ann. cap. 26. Peers of Scotland and all Officers Civil and Military, &c. are to take the Oath of Abjuration, &c. By 6 Ann. c. 14. and 7 Ann. cap. 21.

Persons having Lands in Scotland, guilty of High Treason by Corresponding with, Assisting, or remitting Money, &c. to the Pretender, on Conviction, are to be liable to the Pains of Treason; and their Vassals continuing in dutiful Allegiance, shall hold the said Lands of his Majesty in Fee and Heritage for ever, where the Lands were so held of the Crown by the Offender: And Tenants continuing peaceable and occupying Land, are to hold the same two Years Rent-free. 1 Geo. 1. c. 20. Se Defendendo, Is a Plea for him that is charged with the Death of another Person, by alledging that he was driven unto what he did in his own Defence; and the other so assaulting him, that if he had not done as he did, he must have been in Danger of his own Life; which Danger ought to be so great, as that it appears to have been otherwise inevitable. Staudf. P. C. lib. 1. c. 7. Any Person in his Defence may kill another for the Safety of his Life; and where a Man is attacked, a Defence may be made without expecting the first Blow, which may render a Person incapable of making any Defence: But a Defence ought to be always unblamable, not to take Revenge. Bac. Max. 25. If a Man attack another Person on a sudden falling out, and before a Mortal Wound is given, the other flies to the Wall, or some other unpassable Place, to save his Life, and being still pursued kills the Person making the Assault; from the unavoidable Necessity of it, this is Se Defendendo; and so in the like Cases. Brook. 3 Edw. 3. A Flight upon Necessity, to make Killing another Se Defendendo, must not be a feigned one to gain Breath, or Opportunity to fall on afresh; But it must be a flying from the Danger, as far as the Party can, either by Reason of some Wall, Ditch, Company, or the Fierceness of the Assailant will permit. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 483. If A. assault the Master, who flies to avoid Death, and the Servant kills A. in his Master's Defence, it is Homicide Defendendo of the Master; though if he had not been driven to that Extremity, it would have been Manslaughter. Ibid. 484. Plowd. 100. And if I have a Weapon in my Hand, and a Person assaults me, if he runs so hastily after me, that he runneth on my Sword which I hold forth for the Defence of myself, and so is killed, it is Se Defendendo: But if there be any Malice in the Case, or one kill him before he need to do it, the Offence will be of a higher Nature. Fitz. Coron. 284, 286, 307. Poult. 119. There is no express Judgment in Chancery, or Se Defendendo; but the Offender is let to Mainprife to sue out his Pardon; and yet his Goods and Chattels are forfeited: Though where one kills another in his own Defence, upon the Special Matter found, it is said he may be dismissed without any Forfeiture, or Pardon purchased. 2 Inst. 148. 3 Inst. 220. 1 Inst. 391. *H. Seignior, (Fr. Seigneur, i. e. Dominus) Is in general Signification as much as Lord; but particularly used for the Lord of the Fee, or of a Manor, as Seigneur among the Feudists is he who grants a Fee or Benefit out of the Land to another; and the Reason is, because having granted away the Use and Profit of the Land, the Property or Dominium he still retains in himself. Hotom. F. N. B. 23.

Seigniorie, (Dominium) Signifies a Manor or Lordship, and it often occurs in our old Books. Kitch. 80.

Edw. 3.* was eighteen Penny Weight, which then amounted to about 1 s. out of which he sometimes paid 8 d. at others 9 d. to the Master: In the Reign of King Hen. 5. the King's Seigniorage of every Pound of Silver was 15 d. &c. *Stat. 9 Hen. 5. cap. 1. Seisin, (Seisina, Fr. Seisine) In the Common Law signifies Possession. To seise is to take Possession of a Thing; and primer Seisin is the first Possession. Co. Litt. 152. There is a Seisin in Deed or in Fact, and a Seisin in Law; a Seisin in Deed is when an actual Possession is taken; and Seisin in Law is where Lands descend, and one hath not actually entered on them, &c. 1 Inst. 31. Seisin in Law is a Right to Lands and Tenements, though the Owner is by Wrong disseised of them: And he who hath an Hour's actual Possession quietly taken, hath Seisin de droit & de claime, whereof no Man may disseise him, but must be driven to his Action. Perk. 457, 458. A Seisin in Law is sufficient to avow upon; but to the bringing an Affise actual Seisin is required, &c. 4 Rep. 9. Seisin of a superior Service, is Seisin of all inferior Services which are incident thereto: And Seisin of Homage is a Seisin of all other Services, because in the doing thereof the Tenant takes upon himself to do all Services. 4 Rep. 80. 1 Danv. Abr. 647. The Seisin of Rent, or other annual Services, is a sufficient Seisin of casual Services. 4 Rep. 80. But Seisin of one annual Service is not Seisin of another annual Service; as if there be Lord or Tenant by Fealty, ten Shillings Rent, and three Days Work in the Year; in this Case Seisin of the Rent is no Seisin of the Work, nor is Seisin of the Rent Seisin of the Suit of Court, which is annual. 4 Rep. 9. 1 Danv. Abr. 647. 2 Lill. 507. The Seisin of the Father, is not sufficient for the Heir: Though if a Fine be levied to one for Life, the Remainder to another in Tail, and the Tenant for Life takes Seisin of the Services, this will be a good Seisin for him in Remainder; and the Seisin of a Lessee for Years is sufficient for him in Reversion. 2 H. 6. 7. 45 Ed. 3. 26. 1 Danv. 805, 646. Where a Man is seised of a Reversion, depending upon an Estate for Life, the Pleading of it is that he was seised of it ut de feodo, leaving out the Word Dominico; but if it be a Reversion in Fee, expectant upon the Determination of a Lease for Years, there he may plead that he was seised of it in Dominico suo ut de feodo. Dyer 185, 257. Rep. 20, 27. 4 Rep. 62. Seisin is never to be alledged, but where it is traversable; and when a Defendant alledgeth a Seisin in Fee in any one under whom he claims, the Plaintiff cannot alledge a Seisin in another, without traversing, confessing or avoiding of the Seisin alledged by the Defendant. Cro. Eliz. 30. 1 Brown. 170. If a Seisin in Fee is alledged, it shall be intended a lawful Seisin till the contrary appears. 2 Lutw. 1337. But the Party is to shew of what Estate he is seised, &c. 3 Nels. Abr. 215. See Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 2.

Septuagesima, The third Sunday before Quadragesima Sunday in Lent, and is called Septuagesima, because it is about the seventieth Day before Easter; as Sexagesima and Quinquagesima are thus denominated from their being, the one sixty, the other ffty Days before the same Feast, which are all of them Days appropriated by the Church to Acts of Penance and Mortification, preparatory to the Devotion of Lent. From Septuagesima Sunday until the Octaves after Easter, the Solemnizing of Marriage is forbidden by the Canon Law; and the Laws of King Canutus ordained a Vacancy from Judicature, from Septuagesima to Quindena Pasche. See Stat. Westm. 1. c. 51.

Sequeſtration, (Sequeſtratio) Signifies the Separating or setting aside of a Thing in Controversy, from the Possession of both the Parties that contend for it; and it is two-fold, voluntary and necessary; Voluntary, is that which is done by Consent of each Party: Necessary, is what the Judge of his Authority doth, whether the Party will or not. Fortescue, cap. 50. Dyer 232, 256. And there is a Sequeſtration on a Person's standing out all the Processes of Contempt for Non-appearance in Chancery upon a Bill exhibited; so where Obedience is not yielded to a Decree, the Court will grant a Sequeſtration of the Lands of the Party, &c. And a Sequeſtration is also a Kind of Execution for Debt; especially in the Case of a beneficed Clerk, of the Profits of the Benefice, to be paid over to him that had the Judgment, till the Debt is satisfied. 2 Inſt. 472. 2 Roll. Abr. 474. But the most usual Sequeſtration of a Benefice, is upon a Vacancy, for the gathering up the Fruits of the Benefice to the Use of the next Incumbent; and the Profits of the Church being in Abeyance, are to be received by the Churchwardens wardens by Appointment of the Bishop, to make Provision for the Cure during the Vacancy, &c. Stat. 28 H. 8. cap. 11. Sequestration is further the Act of the Ordinary, disposing of the Goods of one that is dead, whose Estate no Man will meddle with.

Sequestration in London, Is made upon an Action of Debt; and the Course of Proceeding in it is thus: The Action being entered, the Officer goes to the Shop or Warehouse of the Defendant, when there is no Body within, and takes a Padlock and hangs it upon the Door, &c. using these Words, viz. I do sequester this Warehouse, and the Goods and Merchandizes therein of the Defendant in the Action, to the Use of the Plaintiff, &c. and so puts on his Seal, and makes Return thereof at the Compter; then four Court Days being past, the next Court after the Plaintiff may have Judgment to open the Doors of the Shop or Warehouse, and to appraise the Goods therein by a Serjeant, who takes a Bill of Appraisement, having two Freeman to appraise them, for which they are to be sworn at the next Court holden for that Compter; and then the Officer puts his Hand to the Bill of Appraisement, and the Court granteth Judgment: Though the Defendant in the Action may put in Bail before Satisfaction, and so dissolve the Sequestration; and after Satisfaction, may put in Bail ad disprobandum debitum, &c. Pract. Solic. 429.

Reg. Judic. 36.

Serement, (Fr.) An Oath, which is to be taken before a Person who hath Power to administer it, or shall be void. 2 Keb. 284. See Oath.

Serjeant or Serjeant, (Lat. Serviens) Is a Word diversly used in our Law, and applied to sundry Offices and Callings. First a Serjeant at Law, (Serviens ad Legem) otherwise called Serjeant Counter or of the Coif, is the highest Degree in the Common Law, as a Doctor is in the Civil Law; but according to Spelman, a Doctor of Law is superior to a Serjeant, for the very Name of a Doctor is Magisterial, but that of a Serjeant is only Ministerial. To these Serjeants, as Men best learned and experienced in the Law and Practice of the Courts, one Court is severd to plead in by themselves, which is that of the Common Pleas, where the Common Law of England is most strictly observed; yet they are not so limited as to be restrained from Pleading in any other Courts, where the Judges (who cannot be such till they have taken the Decree of Serjeant) call them Brothers, and hear them with great Respect; and of which one or more are stiled the King's Serjeants, being commonly chosen out of the rest in respect of their great Learning, to plead for the King in all his Causes, especially upon Indictments for Treason, &c. In other Kingdoms the King's Serjeant is called Advocatus Regius; and here in England, in the Time of King Edw. 6th, Serjeant Benloe wrote himself solus Serviens ad Legem, there being for some Time none but himself; and in Ireland at this Day there is only a King's Serjeant. Serjeants at Law are made by the King's Writ directed unto such as are called, commanding them to take upon them that Degree by a certain Day; and by the Writ or Patent of Creation it appears that the Honour of Serjeant at Law, is a State and Dignity of great Respect: In conferring these Degrees, much Ceremony is used; and the Serjeants chosen hold a sumptuous Feast, like that at a Coronation, which formerly continued several Days; also they make Presents of Gold Rings, to a considerable Value, &c. Fortescue, c. 50. 3 Cro. 1. Dyer 72. 2 Inst. 213, 214. Their Privilege of being impleaded in C. B. &c. Vide Privilege.

Serjeants at Arms, Their Office is to attend the Person of the King; to arrest Persons of Condition offending, and give Attendance on the Lord High Steward of England, sitting in Judgment on any Traitor, &c. There may not be above thirty Serjeants at Arms in the Realm, who shall not oppress the People, in Pain to lose their Offices, and be fined, by the Stat. 13 R. 2. c. 6. And two of them by the King's Allowance, do attend on the two Houses of Parliament; the Office of him in the House of Commons is, the Keeping of the Doors, and the Execution of such Commands touching the Apprehension and taking into Custody of any Offender, as that House shall injoin him. Another of them attends on the Lord Chancellor in the Chancery; and one on the Lord Treasurer of England: Also one upon the Lord Mayor of London on extraordinary Solemnities, &c. They are in the old Books called Virgatores, because they carried Silver Rods gilt with Gold, as they now do Maces, before the King. Stat. 7 Hen. 7. c. 3. Crompt. Jur. 9. Fleta, l. 2. c. 38.

Serjeants of a more inferior Kind are Serjeants of the Mace, whereof there is a great Band in the City of London, and other Corporate Towns, that attend the Mayor or other head Officer, chiefly for Matters of Justice, &c. Kitch. 143. Formerly all the Justices of Eyre had certain Officers attending them called Serjeants, who were in the Nature of Tippaues. Westm. 1. c. 30. And the Word Serjeant is used in Britton for an Officer belonging to the County; which is the same with what Bracton calls Serjeant of the Hundred, being no more than Bailiff of the Hundred. Bract. lib. 5. c. 4. And we read of Serjeants of Manors, of the Peace, &c.

Serjeants of the Household, Are Officers who execute several Functions within the King's Household, mentioned in the Stat. 33 Hen. 8. c. 12.

Serjeanty, (Serjeantia) Signifies in Law a Service, that cannot be due from a Tenant to any Lord but to the King only; and this is either Grand Serjeanty, or Petit; the first is a Tenure whereby one holds his Lands of the King by such Services as he ought to do in Person to the King at his Coronation; and may also concern Matters Military, or Services of Honour in Peace, as to be the King's Butler, Carver, &c. Petit Serjeanty, is where a Man holds Land of the King, to furnish him yearly with some small Thing towards his Wars; and in Effect payable as Rent. Though all Tenures are turned into Socage by the 12 Car. 2. c. 24. Yet the honorary Services of Grand Serjeanty still remain, being therein excepted. Litt. 153, 159. 1 Inst. 105, 108. See Chivalry.

Sermonium, Was an Interlude or historical Play, acted by the inferior Orders of the Clergy, assisted by Youths, in the Body of the Church, suitable to the Solemnity of some high Procession Day; and before the Improvements of the Stage, these ruder Sorts of Performances were even a Part of the unreformed Religion. Collect. Matt. Hutton, Ex Reg. Eccl. Lincoln. MS.

Serples, A Mantle or upper Coat; from the Lat. Superpellicium. Blount.

Serbage, Is when Tenants, besides Payment of a certain Rent, find one or more Workmen for their Lord's Service. 1 R. 2. c. 6. King John brought the Crown of England in Serbage to the See of Rome. 2 Inst. 274.

Servants, Are such as Men of Trades and Professions employ under them, to assist them in their particular Callings; or such Persons as others retain to perform the Work and Business of their Families, which comprehends both Men and Women: And Servants

vants are Menial, or not so; Menial, being Domestic-ticks living within the Walls of the House. Wood's Inst. 51. Every Person under the Age of thirty Years, that has been brought up in Handicraft Trades, and hath not Lands of Inheritance, or for Life, of the yearly Value of forty Shillings, or is not worth ten Pounds in Goods, and so allowed by two Justices of Peace; and not being retained with any Person in Husbandry, or in the said Arts, not being lawfully hired as a Servant with any Nobleman or Gentleman, or having any Farm or other Holding whereupon he may employ his Labour; shall, upon Request made by any Person using the Mystery wherein such Person hath been exercised, be obliged to serve him as a Servant therein, on Pain of Imprisonment. 5 Eliz. c. 4. And by the same Statute, Persons are compellable to serve in Husbandry by the Year, with any Person that keepeth or useth Husbandry, and who will require any proper Person to serve; and the Justices of Peace have Authority herein, and to assess the Wages of such Servants in Husbandry, order Payment, &c. Also two Justices, and Mayors or Head Officers of any City or Town, may appoint any poor Woman of the Age of twelve Years, and under forty unmarried, to go to Service by the Year, &c. for such Wages and in such Manner as they think fit; and if any such Woman shall refuse to go abroad as a Servant, then the said Justices, &c. may commit such Woman until she is bound to serve. Stat. Ibid. If any Master shall give more Wages than assessed by the Justices; or any Servant takes more, or refusing to serve for the Statute Wages, they are punishable; but a Master may reward his Servant as he pleases, so as it be not by way of Contract on the Retainer: And if a Servant depart before the End of the Term, being hired for a Year, without Cause allowed by a Justice; or after his Term is expired, without giving a Quarter's Warning, two Justices may commit him to Prison till he give Security to serve out the Time; or one Justice of Peace may send him to the House of Correction, there to be punished as a disorderly Person. 7 Jac. 1. c. 4. A Master cannot put away a Servant before the End of his Term without some reasonable Cause, to be allowed by one Justice; nor after the End of the Term without a Quarter's Warning given before Witnesses; if a Master discharges a Servant otherwise, he is liable to a Penalty of forty Shillings. 5 Eliz. And where Servants quit their Services, Testimonials are to be given by Constables and two Householdors, &c. declaring their lawful Departure; and a Servant not producing such a Testimonial to the Constable where he designs to dwell, is to be imprisoned till he gets one; and in Default thereof be whipped as a Vagabond; Masters retaining them without such Testimonial, shall forfeit five Pounds. But the Testimonial concerns only Servants in Trades and Husbandry. Stat. Ibid. No Person may retain a Servant for less than a Year, by the ancient Statutes; if one retains a Servant generally, without expressing any Time, the Law construes it for a Year; and where a Servant is hired for a Year, according to the Statute, and the Master dieth within that Time, the Executor must pay the Wages. Dalt. 129. 1 Inst. 42. If a Woman Servant marrieth, she is obliged to serve out her Year; but if a single Woman who is with Child procures herself to be retained with a Master, who knows nothing thereof, this is a good Cause to discharge her from her Service; and so if she be gotten with Child during her Service. Dalt. 92. Revol. Ann. 1633. A Servant retained for a Year, falling sick, ought not to be discharged therefore, or for any Disability by the Act of God; neither may his Wages be abated for those Causes. Dalt. 129. Master and Servant may part by Consent, and then the Allowance of the Discharge by a Justice of Peace is not necessary: And a Master's detaining Wages, not allowing sufficient Meat, &c. or the Master's Wife beating him, are good Causes for a Servant's Departure; but they must be allowed by a Justice. Dalt. If a Master put away his Servant; he must pay him his Wages to the Time he serv'd; though if the Servant go away from his Service before the End of the Time agreed, he shall forfeit all his Wages. Dalt. 129. A Servant is not to depart from his Service; and if he refuseth to do his Business, this is a Departure in Law, although he go not away. Noy's Max. 90. Enticing away a Servant, or retaining and keeping one who departed from his Master without License, knowing him to be a Servant to another, the Master may have Action of the Case against the Person doing it. 2 Lev. 63. Stat. 23 Ed. 3. But if a Man do retain another's Servant, not knowing that he was in the Service of the other, he shall not be punished for so doing, if he do not retain him after Notice of his first Service: And if a Person do retain one to serve him for forty Days, and another doth afterwards retain him to serve for a Year, the first Covenant is avoided, because the Retainer was not according to the Statute. New Nat. Br. 374, 375. A Master is answerable for the Actions and Trespases of his Servant in many Cases; but not for Trespases of Battery, &c. and in criminal Cases, unless done by his Commandment. Noy's Max. 99. And if the Master order his Servant to distrain another Man's Cattle, and after he hath distrained he kills or abuses the Distress, the Master shall not answer it. Noy 111. If a Man has a Servant known to be such, and he send him to Fairs and Markets to buy or sell, his Master shall be charged if the Thing come to his Use; tho' if a Servant makes a Contract in his Master's Name, the Contract will not be binding, unless it were by the Master's Commandment or Assent; and where a Servant borrows Money in his Master's Name, without Order, that does not bind the Master. Doct. & Stud. Dial. 2. c. 42. A Servant buys Things in his own Name, the Master shall not be charged, except the Things bought come to his Use, and he have Notice of it. Kitch. 371. Where a Master always gives his Servant Money, he shall not answer for what the Servant buys on Trust; but if he sends sometimes on Trust, he must answer to his usual Tradesmen for what is so taken up upon Trust by him. Wood's Inst. 56. A Master used to give his Servant Money every Saturday, to defray the Charges of the foregoing Week, and the Servant kept the Money; per Holt Ch. Just. the Master is here chargeable; for the Master at his Peril ought to take Care what Servant he employs; and 'tis more reasonable that he should suffer for the Cheats of his Servants, than Strangers and Tradesmen who do not employ them. 3 Salk. 234. It has been adjudged, that where a Servant usually buys Goods for his Master upon Tick, and takes up Things in his Master's Name, but for his own Use, the Master is liable; but it is not so where the Master usually gives him ready Money: That if the Master gives the Servant Money to buy Goods for him, and he converts the Money to his own Use, and buys the Goods upon Tick, yet the Master is answerable, as the Goods come to his Use; otherwise he is not: Also a Note under the Hand of an Apprentice shall bind his Master, where he is allowed to deliver out Notes, though the Money is never applied to the Master's Use; but if he is not allowed or accustomed to deliver out Notes, his Note shall not bind the Master, if the Money be not applied to the Use of the Master. 3 Salk. 234, 235. The Act of a Servant shall not bind the Master, unless he acts by Authority of his Master; and therefore if a Master sends his Servant to receive Money, and the Servant instead of Money takes a Bill, and the Master as soon as told thereof disagrees, he is not bound by this Payment: But Acquiescence, or any small Matter, will be Proof of his Master's Consent, and that will make the Act of the Servant the Act of his Master. Hill. 2 Ann. B. R. 2 Salk. 442. For what is within the Compass of a Servant's Business, the Master shall be generally chargeable; and also have Advantage of the same against others. Noy's Max. An Assumpsit of the Servant, by Order and Appointment of the Master, shall bind his Master; and a Promise to my Servant is good to me: If my Bailiff buy Cattle to Stock my Ground, I shall be chargeable in Debt for the Money; and if he sell Corn for me, I may have Action in my own Name against the Buyer. Bro. 24. Godb. 360. If one owe me Money, and I send my Servant for it, and he pay it to him; this is a good Payment and Discharge, though the Servant do not bring the same to me: But if I send him not, it is otherwise. Doct. & Stud. 138. A Master sends his Servant with deceitful Wares to Market, and orders him to sell them, but says not to whom, if he sells them, no Action will lie against the Master: Though if he had bid the Servant sell them to such a Man in particular, and he had done so, the Master would be chargeable in Action of the Case. 11 E. 4. Kitch. 185. The Master is liable for the Neglects of his Servant; (tho' not the wilful Wrong) where a Carrier's Servant loses Things delivered to him, the Master must answer it, and Action lies against him; and if Goods be undertaken to be carried safely for Hire, but by Negligence are spoiled, it has been held, that who employs another, is answerable for him, and undertakes for his Care to all that make Use of him. 2 Salk. 440. If a Surgeon undertakes the Cure of a Person, and by sending Medicines by his Servant, the Wound is hurt and made worse, the Patient shall have Action against the Master, and not against the Servant. 18 Hen. 8. And where a Smith's Servant pricks a Horse in shoeing him, the Master shall answer the Damages. Wood's Inst. 56. A Servant casting any Thing into the Highway to the Nuisance of the King's Subjects, the Master shall be charged, &c. Noy's Max. 49. A Master may maintain the Cause of his Servants: He may bring an Action for the Battery of a Servant, whereby he loses his Service, which is to be alleged: And if a Servant is cozened of his Master's Money, the Master may have Action on the Case against the Person that cozened him. 9 Rep. 113. 10 Rep. 130. 1 Roll. Abr. 98. And in Case a Servant give away his Master's Goods, the Master may have Action against the Receiver. Noy's Max. 94. Where a Servant damages Goods of his Master, Action lies against him; and being employed to sell Goods in his Master's Shop, if the Servant carries away and converts them to his own Use, Action of Trespass may be brought by the Master against the Servant; for the Servant cannot meddle with them in any other manner than to sell them. 5 Rep. 14. 1 Leon. 88. Moor 244. But if a Servant be robbed, without his Default, &c. he shall be excused, and allowed it on his Account. 1 Inst. 9. Servants going or making away with, imbeziling or purloining any of their Master's Goods, to the Value of 40s. are guilty of Felony, by the Stat. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 7. and 12 Ann. cap. 7. And assaulting their Masters, they may be bound to the good Behaviour, or be committed to Prison for a Year, &c. 5 Eliz. By the Stat. 20 Geo. 2. c. 19. All Complaints and Disputes between Masters and Servants in Husbandry hired for a Year or longer, or between Masters and Artificers, Handicraftsmen, Miners, Colliers, Keelmen, Pitmen, Glassmen, Potters, and other Labourers employed for any certain Time, shall be heard and determined by a Justice or Justices of the Peace, although no Rate of Wages has been made that Year by the Justices, and may order Payment of so much Wages as to him or them shall seem just, not exceeding 10*l.* to any Servant, nor 5*l.* to any Artificer, &c. and in Case of Non-payment by twenty-one Days, may issue a Warrant to levy the same of the Master's Goods. And upon Complaint on Oath of any Misdemeanor, Mis carriage or Ill-behaviour in any such Servant, Artificer, &c. such Justice or Justices may punish the Offender by Commitment to the House of Correction, there to be corrected and held to hard Labour, not exceeding a Calendar Month; or by abating some Part of his or her Wages, or by discharging such Servant, Artificer, &c. from his or her Service or Employment. And on Complaint upon Oath of any Misusage, Refusal of necessary Provision, Cruelty, or other Ill-treatment to such Servant, Artificer, &c. by any Master, the Justice or Justices may summon the Master to appear before him or them, and upon Proof thereof on Oath to the Satisfaction of such Justice or Justices, he or they may discharge such Servant or Artificer, &c. from his said Service or Employment, such Discharge to be given Gratis. Persons thinking themselves aggrieved by any such Determination, may appeal to the next Sessions of the Peace. But no Certiorari to remove any such Proceedings to any of the Courts at Westminster.

An Agreement between a Master and Servant.

D. into his House and Service, for the Term of one whole Year, from the Date hereof; and provide for the said C. D. shall and will for the Considerations aforesaid, faithfully serve him the said A. B. in the Business and Service of, &c. for and during the said Term of one Year, without absenting from the same, or imbeziling any of the Money or Goods of the said A. B. or any ways disclosing the Secrets of his said Master. In Witness, &c.

Servi, Were Bond-men; and Servi Testamentales, those which we now call Covenant Servants. Leg. Aethelst. The proper Servi were of four Sorts, viz. such as sold themselves for a Livelihood; Debtors that were to be sold for being incapable to pay their Debts; Captives in War, employed as perfect Slaves; Nativi, such as were born Servants, and by Descent belonged to the sole Property of the Lord. And all these had their Persons, their Children and Goods, at the Disposal of their Lords; and were incapable of making any Wills, or giving away any Thing, &c.

Servitium, (Servitium) Is that Duty which the Tenant, by Reason of his Fee or Estate, oweth unto the Lord: Our ancient Law Books make many Divisions of it; as into Personal and Real; Free and Base; Continual or Annual; Casual and Accidental; Intrinsic and Extrinsic, &c. Braet. lib. 2. Brit. cap. 66. 4 Co. Rep. 9. Personal Service, is where something is to be done by the Person of the Tenant, as Homage and Fealty; and Real, was Wards and Marriages, when in Use: Annual and certain Service is Rent, Suit of Court to the Lord, &c. Accidental Services, are Heriots, Reliefs, and the like: And some Services are only for the Lord's Benefit; and some pro bono publico. Co. Copyhold 22. Co. Lit. 222. 22 E. 4. 3. Also Services are said to be in-tire; of Chattels valuable, such as an Ox, or Things pleasurable, as a Hawk, &c. And so are those Personal, and consisting of manual Work, or to exercise some Office, &c. The Statute of Magna Charta ordains, That no Freeman shall sell so much of his Lands, but that of the Residue the Lord may have have his Services. 9 Hen. 3. c. 32. In Feoffments to a Man and his Heirs, the Feoffee shall hold the Land of the Lord by the same Services as the Feoffor, &c. Stat. 18 Ed. 1. And where Services are intire, and cannot be divided; upon the Alienation of Parcel of the Lands by the Tenant, the Services shall be multiplied, and every Alienee render the whole Service; though by the Purchase of Parcel by the Lord, the whole is extinct, except in Case of Fealty, and Heriot Custom. 6 Rep. 1. Wood's Inst. 133.

Service Secular, Signifies worldly Service, contrary to Spiritual and Ecclesiastical. Stat. 1 Edw. 4. cap. 1.

Servitium Forinsecum, A Service which did not belong to the chief Lord, but to the King: It was called Forinsecum and Foraneum, because it was done Foris, vel extra servitium quod fit Domino Capitali: And we find several Grants of Liberties with the Appurtenances, Salvo forensi servitio, &c. in Mon. Servitium Liberum, A Service to be done by feudatory Tenants, who were called Liberi homines, and distinguished from Vassals, as was their Service; for they were not bound to any of the base Services of ploughing the Lord's Land, &c. but were to find a Man and a Horse, or go with the Lord into the Army, or to attend his Court, &c. and sometimes it was called Servitium liberum armorum; as in an old Rental of the Manor of South Malling in Essex, mentioned by Sommer in his Treatise of Gravelking, pag. 56.

Servitium Regale, Royal Service, or the Privileges that within a royal Manor belonged to the Lord of it; which were generally reckoned to be the following, viz. Power of Judicature in Matters of Property; and of Life and Death in Felonies and Murders; Right to Waifs and Estrays; Minting of Money; Assize of Bread and Beer; and Weights and Measures: All which Privileges 'tis said were annexed to some Manors by Grant from the King. And the Justices in Sessions have Power to hear and determine Trespases against the publick Peace, &c. and many Offences by Statute: This Court is held four Times in a Year at some Place within the County, &c. Also besides the General Sessions of the Peace; there are private Sessions held by the Justices, for divers particular Branches of the Business of their Offices. Dalr. Just. 573.

Sessions for ordering Servants, called Statute Sessions, held by Constables of Hundreds, &c. 5 Eliz. See Statutum Sessionem.

Sessions for Weights and Measures. In London four Justices from among the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen, (of which the Mayor or Recorder to be one) may hold a Session to inquire into Offences of selling by false Weights and Measures, contrary to the Statutes; and to receive Indictments, punish the Offenders, &c. Chart. K. Cba. 1.

Settlements of Poor, In Parishes, there are several Statutes relating to, viz. 43 Eliz. cap. 2. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 12. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 30. 12 Ann. c. 18. 9 Geo. 1. c. 7, &c. Vide Poor.

And it lies in Real, as well as personal Actions; and on Writs of Error. F. N. B.

78. 10 Rep. 135. In Writ of Error, if three Defendants in the Action bring Error, and one releases the Errors, he may be summoned and severed, and then the other two shall proceed to reverse the Judgment. 6 Rep. 26. And if in Error where there are several Plaintiffs, one only appears and assigns Errors; this is not good, without summoning and severing the rest. Cro. Eliz. 893. It has been held, that Summons and Severance lies in Partition; yet he who was severed shall have his Part: For Partition must be made of the Whole. Jenk. Cent. 211. And in Case of Jointenants of Lands, by Severance the Prosecution of the Suit is severed, but not the Jointure; for where one alone recovers afterwards, the other may enter into the Moiety recovered. Ibid. 40. Summons and Severance is usually before Appearance; as Nonsuit is after Appearance.

10 Rep. 134. But according to Hale, there are two Sorts of Severances, one when a Plaintiff will not appear; and the other when several Plaintiffs appear, but some will not proceed and prosecute. Hard. 317. 3 Nels. Abr. 255. If a Plaintiff or Defendant on a Writ of Summons and Severance, sued out against him by another, doth not come in upon it, Judgment shall be had ad Prosequendum solum; and this hath been done in B. R. by giving a Rule to appear and come in, 2 Lill. Abr. 539.

Setward,

Steward, A Saxon Word for him who guards the Sea Coasts; it signifies Custos Maris.

Sewer, (Sewera) Is a Fresh-water Trench, or little River, encompassed with Banks on both Sides, to carry the Water into the Sea, and thereby preserve the Land against Inundations, &c. The Kings of England granted Commissions of Sewers long before any Statute was enacted in Parliament for it; and during the Reigns of King Hen. 6. Ed. 4. Hen. 7. several Statutes were made for appointing Commissions of Sewers in all Parts of the Realm where needful; some to endure ten Years, some fifteen Years, and others five Years, &c. with certain Powers to the Commissioners; which Commissions, by the 23 Hen. 8. are to be settled by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Treasurer, and the two Chief Justices, or any three of them, whereof the Lord Chancellor to be one; and are to continue ten Years, unless repealed by a new Commission: And by this Law, the Commissioners Oath is appointed; they are to be qualified as to Estates, by having Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, in Fee or for Life, worth forty Marks per Ann. besides Reprises (except they are resident in and free of a Corporation; and having Moveables worth 100 l.) and if they execute the Commission not being thus qualified or before sworn, they incur a Forfeiture of 40 l. Commissioners that may lawfully act, have an Allowance for their Pains of 4 s. per Diem, and their Clerks 2 s. a Day, out of the Taxes to be laid and levied. 23 Hen. 8. c. 5. The Commissioners of Sewers have Power to make and ordain Laws, but not to continue in Force longer than their Commission by this Statute; and may decree Lands to be sold to levy Charges assessed, upon Non-payment, &c. Stat. Ibid. All Laws, and Ordinances of the Commissioners, are to remain in Force till repealed, notwithstanding the Determination of their Commission; and Clerks of Commissioners of Sewers are to estreat Fines and Penalties imposed by the Commissioners, yearly into the Exchequer, by 13 Eliz. c. 9. The Business of the Commissioners of Sewers is to repair Sea-Banks, and Walls, survey Rivers, publick Streams, Ditches, &c. and make Orders for that Purpose: They have Authority grounded on the Statutes, to inquire of all Nusances, and Offences committed by the Stopping of Rivers, erecting Mills, not repairing of Banks, and Bridges, &c. and to tax and assess all whom it may concern, for the Amending of Defaults, which tend to the Obstruction or Hindrance of the free Passage of the Water through its ancient Courses: And they may arrest Carts and Horses, and take Trees, paying a reasonable Price for them, for Reparations; appoint Workmen, Bailiffs, Surveyors, and other Officers, &c. Terms de Ley 541. 4 Inft. 275. Laws Sew. 86, 96. They proceed by Jury and View, in their Inquiries into Annoyances and Defects of Repairs; and the Jury may amerce for Neglects: Also the Commissioners may punish by Fine for Contempts, and where Officers are negligent in their Duty; though they may not imprison Persons for Disobedience to their Orders. Laws Sew. But they cannot intermeddle where there is not a publick Prejudice; nor can they make a new River: Upon the Statute 23 Hen. 8. of Sewers, the Commissioners decreed, that a new River should be made out of another large River; through the main Land for seven Miles, unto another Part of the old River, and in order to it they laid a Tax of a Sum in gross upon several Towns; adjudged that the Commissioners have no Power to make a new River, or any new Invention to cast out Water, &c. for such Things are to be done in Parliament: But they may order an old Bank to be new made, or alter a Sewer upon any inevitable Necessity; and the Tax of a Sum in gross is not warranted by their Commission, they being to tax every Owner or Possessor of the Lands, according to the Quality of their Lands, Rents, and Number of

Acres, and their respective Portions and Profits, whether of Pasture, Fishing, &c. 10 Rep. 141. Commissioners of Sewers are to tax all equally, who are in Danger to receive any Damage by the Waters, and not only those whose Lands are next adjoining; because the Rage of the Waters may be so great, that the Land contiguous may not be of the Value to make the Banks; and therefore the Stat. 6 H. 6. c. 6. will have all that are in Danger to be contributory. 5 Rep. 100. The Commissioners having made a Rate, according to the Quantity and Quality of the Land, &c. may grant Warrants to distrain for it; or the Land may be decreed to be sold to pay the Rate: But the Decrees of Commissioners of Sewers are to be certified into the Chancery, and have the King's Assent to be binding; and the Commissioners and their Proceedings, are subject to the Jurisdiction of the King's Bench. 23 Hen. 8. 1 Vent. 67. There are several Causes and Considerations for which Persons may be obliged to repair and maintain Sewers; as Frontagers were bound to the Repairs of the Walls, and Banks, &c. by Reason of Frontage, by 37 Lib. Affs. pl. 10. The being Owner of a Bank, Wall, or other Defence, is a sufficient Inducement to impose the Charge of the Repairs thereof upon such Owner. 8 Hen. 7. Prescription and Custom are much of the same Nature, and the Law takes Notice of them in this Case; but Prescription doth not bind a Man to the Repairs, except it be Ratione Terræ. 21 Ed. 4. 38. 19 Hen. 7. By Tenure of Land, a Person may be bound to repair a Wall, Bank, or Defence mentioned in the Statute of Sewers. 12 H. 4. A Man may bind himself and his Heirs by Covenant expressly to repair a Bank, Wall or Sewer, and be good; yet this shall not bind the Heir after his Death, where Assets are not left from the Ancestor, which entered into the Covenant. Callis's Read. The Use of Defences may tie a Man to the Reparation thereof; if one and his Ancestors have had the Use of a River by sailing up and down the same, or have used a Ferry on or over it, &c. Laws Sew. 57. If no Persons or Grounds can be known, which ought to make Repairs by Tenure, Prescription, Custom or otherwise, then the Commissioners are to tax the Level: And by the Laws and Statutes of Sewers, all shall be charged, &c. Ibid. 67, 68. If it is found before Commissioners of Sewers, that such a Person ought to repair a Bank; and this is removed into B. R. the Court will not quash the Inquisition, or grant a new Trial, except he repair it; and if afterwards he is acquitted, he shall be reimbursed. Sid. 78. In Cases of Sewers, the Court of King's Bench inquires into the Nature of the Fact, before they grant a Certiorari to remove Orders; that no Mischief may happen by Inundations in the mean Time, which is a discretionary Execution of their Power. 1 Salk. 146. The Court commonly hears Counsel on both Sides, where Orders of Commissioners of Sewers are removed by Certiorari, before such Orders are filed; for if good, the Court will grant a Procedendo, which cannot be done after they are filed: But now they will file them in any Case, where there is no Danger likely to issue. 1 Salk. 145. If Commissioners of Sewers proceed after a Certiorari delivered out of B. R. Attachment will issue against them, and they may be fined. 3 Nelf. Abr. 218.

The Sea, Creeks and Bays, on the Coasts, are all within the Statutes of Sewers, in Point of Extent; but they and the Shores, and the relinquished Grounds, are out of the Commission of Sewers, to be determined thereby: But Ports and Havens, as well as the Walls and Banks of Waters, are within the Commission of Sewers; and the Shore and Grounds left by the Sea, when they are put in Gainage and made profitable, are then within the Power of the Commission of Sewers: And though before, the Ground left by the Sea, is not as to Defence, within the Commission tion of Sewers; yet a Wall or Bank may be thereon raised, for the Succour of the Country, although not for any private Commodity, the Commission of Sewers aiming at the general Good. Callis's Read. Law. Sew. 31, 32. The Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 14. ordains, That all Ditches, Banks, Bridges, Streams, and Watercourses, within two Miles of London, falling into the Thames, shall be subject to the Commission of Sewers: And the Lord Mayor, &c. is to appoint Persons who have Power of Commissioners of Sewers. 7 Ann. c. 10. Repairs of Sea-Banks in Norfolk, by Order of Justices of Peace as Highways. See Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 24. Breaking down Sea Banks, whereby Lands shall be damaged, is Felony, by the 6 Geo. 2. c. 35. And Persons removing Piles, &c. used to prevent Inundations of Rivers, shall forfeit 20 l. or be sent to the House of Correction for six Months. Stat. 10 Geo. 2. c. 32.

Sheep. By an ancient Statute, no Person shall keep at one Time above Two thousand Sheep; but Lambs are not to be accounted as Sheep till they are a Year old. 25 Hen. 8. c. 13. Persons exporting Sheep, shall forfeit them, and 20 s. for every Sheep, &c. 12 Car. 2. c. 32. And Persons in the Counties of Kent and Suffex, within ten Miles of the Sea, are to give an Account in Writing after Sheep-bearing, of the Number of Fleeces, to the next Officer of the Customs, &c. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 40. By late Statutes, Persons driving away, or stealing Sheep, or other Cattle, or killing them, with an Intent to steal the Carcases, or any Part thereof; and those as assist any one therein, shall be adjudged guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy: And a Reward of 10 l. is ordered to be paid by Sheriffs to any Person who shall apprehend and convict such Offenders, &c. Stat. 14 Geo. 2. c. 6. & 15 Geo. 2. c. 34. See Wool.

Sheriff, So the Body of the Lordship of Cardiff in South Wales is called, excluding the Members of it. Powel's Hist. Wal. 123.

Sheriff, Schirff or Schire-reve, (Vicomes) Sax. Scire gerefa, i. e. Pagi vel Comitatus Præpositus, or rather from the Sax. Schyran, to divide; is the chief Officer under the King in every Shire or County, being so called from the first Division of the Kingdom into Counties. Camb. Brit. 104. And the Sheriff was anciently chosen in the County-Court by the Suffrages of the People, and Knights of Parliament now are; but by Statute, Sheriffs are to be made by the King; and the Lord Chancellor, Treasurer, and Barons of the Exchequer, &c. nominate three Persons yearly in each County, out of which the King chooses one; and he is created by Letters Patent, having besides his Patent of Office, a Writ of Assistance directed to all Bishops, Lords, Knights, Freemen, &c. to be in omnibus quæ ad Officium pertinen. intendentes, auxiliantes, &c. Fortescue. cap. 24. 9 Ed. 2. It is said the King may make and appoint Sheriffs, without an Assembly of the Judges in the Exchequer Crasino animarum, notwithstanding the Statute 9 E. 2. which is only affirmative. Jenk. Cent. 229. Sheriffs are appointed for a Year; but they may be constituted durante beneplacito, though the King cannot restrain any Part of the Sheriff's Power, as to any Town, &c. (unless he make it a County by itself, and appoint a Sheriff there) nor abridge the Sheriff in any Thing incident to his Office: And a Sheriff is a Royal Officer, and takes Place of every Nobleman in the County during the Time he is Sheriff. 4 Rep. 32. 1 Roll. Rep. 27. The Lord Mayor and Citizens of London have the Sheriffalty of London and Middlesex in Fee, by Charter; and two Sheriffs are annually elected by them, for whom they are to be answerable: If one of these Sheriffs dies, the other cannot act till another is made, and there must be two Sheriffs of London, which is a City and County, though they make but one Sheriff of the County of Middlesex: They are several as to Plaints, in their respective Courts. 3 Rep. 72. Show. Rep. 289. A Sheriff at the Entrance into his Sheriffalty, is to go to the Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer, and there enter into a Recognizance with Sureties, with Conditions for Payment of his Proffers or Accounts: Then his Attorney, &c. will write him a Note, signifying that he is chose Sheriff of such a County, and hath entered into Recognizance; which he must deliver to one of the six Clerks in Chancery, to make his Patent by; with the Writ of Assistance, and Writ of Discharge to his Predecessor: And in the next Place the new Sheriff is to go to a Master of Chancery, if he be in London; or if in the Country, to one of the Judges of Assise, or before two Justices of the Peace of the County, Commissioned for that Purpose, or any other Commissioners, and take the Oaths of Supremacy, &c. and also an Oath for the due Execution of his Office, Dalt. Sher. 291. When a Sheriff is chosen, the old Sheriff continues Sheriff of the County till the new one is sworn, which compleats him in his Office: The new Sheriff being elected and sworn, is to deliver the Writ of Discharge to the old Sheriff, who must deliver over all the Prisoners in the Gaol, with all the Writs, &c. by Indenture to the new Sheriff; and until that is done, the Prisoners remain in the Custody of the old Sheriff: But the Office of the old Sheriff ceases, and is at an End when the Writ of Discharge comes to him. Wood's Inf. 70. Poph. 85. A Person in Execution in the Custody of the old Sheriff, not being turned over to the new Sheriff, if he escapes, the old Sheriff, and not the new one, is chargeable: Though where a Sheriff dies in his Office, if any Prisoners escape before another is sworn, this is no Escape against the Sheriff; the Prisoners on the Sheriff's

Death are all in Custodia Legis till there is a new Sheriff; and in these Cases when the new Sheriff is sworn into his Office, he must take Notice of all Persons in Execution, &c. as there is none to make a Delivery of them. 3 Rep. 72, 73. A Sheriff out of his Office may not be fined for any Misdemeanor whilst Sheriff; but the Court may send a Tipstaff for him, or issue forth Process of Distingas nuper vic. to make him appear and answer, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 510. The Sheriff hath a judicial and ministerial Power: His judicial Authority consists in Hearing, Trying, and Determining Causes in his Tourn and County Courts; and in preserving the Peace of the County; for by the Common Law, he is the principal Conservator of the Peace there; and he is to assist the Justices and raise the Posse Comitatus to keep the Peace, &c. He may imprison any one for a Breach of the Peace, or making an Affray in his Presence; and such Persons as he shall apprehend upon Suspicion of Felony, on a Hue and Cry, he is to commit to Gaol. But of his own Authority, he shall not arrest any Man on Suspicion of Felony; except there be a Felony actually done, and he himself have a Suspicion of the Party, &c. And the judicial Authority of the Sheriff as Conservator of the Peace, is seldom used; being commonly executed by the Justices of Peace. 1 Inst. 174. 2 Inst. 193. 2 Roll. 237. The ministerial Power of a Sheriff consisteth in the Execution of Writs and Processes out of the King's Courts; and no Process is to be served but by the Sheriff, wherein he ought not to dispute the Validity of any Writ, but to execute it. 1 Inst. 168. 2 Inst. 452. 5 Rep. 64. He shall not let a Person escape, though taken on an erroneous Process. Cro. Jac. 3. 289. In Cases which concern the King, or where the King is Party, and in criminal Causes, the Sheriff's Officers may break open a Door to execute the Process, (after Demand to open it, signifying the Cause of Coming, and Refusal) though not in a Civil Cause at the Suit of the Subject; unless when an Execution, &c. is once lawfully begun, as where the Out-doors are open, the Sheriff entering may proceed and break open inner Doors. 5 Rep. 91. Palm. 53. A Sheriff may not break a House, nor pull the Latch and open the Door, if it be shut, to execute a Writ; and yet if he so do, and arrest the Party, it is good: But the Sheriff may be punished for the Abuse of his Authority. Hob. 1. Upon an Arrest, his Officers are to shew at whose Suit it is, and out of what Court the Writ issues, and for what Cause, &c. And if the Sheriff do not make a Return of the Writ, or if he imbezils them, or make a false Return, the Sheriff may be amerced by the Court, or the Party may bring Action of the Case against the Sheriff; also Attachment may be had against him for undue Practices in Arrests, &c. 5 Rep. 64. 9 Rep. 168. 10 Rep. 70. Cro. Eliz. 75. 2 Hawk. 142. Besides their ministerial Office to execute the Process of the King's Courts, Sheriffs are to return Juries for Trials in civil and criminal Causes; but where there is Cause of Challenge against the Sheriff, the Coroners are to return Juries; though if there be two Sheriffs, and one of them be challenged, the Venire shall go to the other. 23 Hen. 6. Show. 329. They are to proclaim Statutes; and make Returns of Writs for electing Knights of the Shire, &c. and they shall preserve the Rights of the King within their Counties; collect his Rents, seize Profits of Lands forfeited and Goods of Felons, levy the King's Debts, Fines, Amercements, &c. and be accountable to the King for the Issues and Profits of their Counties; for which they are to give up their Accounts in the Exchequer, &c. And they are to see that Criminals be executed, and observe the Order of Law in putting them to Death. 10 Ed. 1. Doct. & Stud. Dial. 2. cb. 41. The Sheriff hath under him an Under-Sheriff, Bailiffs, Gaoler, &c. for he hath the Custody, Rule, and Charge of common Gaols; and for all these he is answerable: But he may execute his Office himself, without an Under-Sheriff, if he pleases. 4 Inst. 114. The Under-Sheriff is to take the Oaths before he enters on his Office; and then his Power is generally the same with that of the High Sheriff, he acting in his Stead; though all Returns of Writs by the Under-Sheriff are in the Name of the High Sheriff, and the High Sheriff only is sworn to execute the Office of Sheriff, and therefore he must answer for all. 27 Eliz. c. 12. Wood's Inst. 73. And in some particular Cases the High Sheriff is to execute his Office in Person; as on a Writ of Partition, Waste, Redivision, &c. where the Sheriff is commanded to go himself in his own Person. Dalt. Sher. 514. But see Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. An Under-Sheriff is removable by the High-Sheriff at Pleasure; and is but in the Nature of a general Bailiff Errant to the Sheriff in the whole County, as other Bailiffs are over particular Districts. 2 Lill. Abr. 511, 512. He ought always to have his Deputy Attendant in Courts, to receive and execute their Commands, give Account of Business, &c. and is to file a Warrant of Attorney for his High-Sheriff in all the Courts at Westminster, by an Attorney of each Court, or Action will lie upon the Statute Hen. 6. against the High-Sheriff. 2 Lill. 511. An Under-Sheriff may be made by Parol: And in making the Under-Sheriff, the High Sheriff implicitly gives him Power to execute all the ordinary Offices of Sheriff; such as serving Process, Executions, &c. And as the common Offices of the Sheriff, are by Law transferred to the Under-Sheriff; if he be made, provided he shall not serve any Writ of Execution for above 40*l.* this is repugnant and void. Hob. 13. For although a Sheriff may chuse not to make an Under-Sheriff, or may appoint him at Will, &c. Yet he cannot abridge his Power; no more than the King can that of himself. Ibid. Upon every Default in the Execution of his Office, be it by Neglect or Fraud, the High-Sheriff shall be amerced in the Exchequer; but he may not be imprisoned or indicted for the Act of his Under-Sheriff. Latch. 181. Sheriffs are not to take Money or Reward for the Places of Under-Sheriff, Gaoler, Bailiffs, &c. under Penalties. Stat. 5 Ed. 6. cap. 16. 3 Geo. 1. c. 15. And by Statutes, every Sheriff shall abide in proper Person within his Bailiwick; and a Sheriff shall not let his Bailiwick to Farm. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 4. Sheriffs must have sufficient Lands, to answer the King and his People; and shall not continue in their Offices above one Year, on Pain of 200*l.* which also extends to Under-Sheriffs; but they may act longer in other Men's Names; and the Under-Sheriffs of London are excepted. 4 Ed. 3. cap. 9. 14 Ed. 3. cap. 7. 23 Hen. 6. cap. 8. No Sheriff is to act as a Justice of Peace, during his Shrievalty: And no Under-Sheriff shall be Attorney in any of the King's Courts, so long as he bears the Office; though such as are Attornies, may practice in the Name of others. 1 M. cap. 28. 1 Hen. 5. cap. 4. claims any Title to the said Tenement, he must appear within the Year and a Day next following, and satisfy the Lord of the said Rent and Arrears: But if no Appearance be made, and the Rent not paid, the Lord comes again to the Court, and prays that, according to the Custom, the said Tenement be adjudged to him in his Demesne as of Fee, which is done accordingly; so as the Lord hath from thenceforth the said Tenement with the Appurtenances to him and his Heirs: And this Custom is called Shotford; being as much as in French to forclose. *Izack's Antiq. Simony, (Simonia) Is a corrupt Contract for a Presentation to any Benefice of the Church, for Money, Gift, or Reward: It is defined to be, studiosa voluntas emendi vel vendendi aliquid Spirituale aut Spirituali annexum opere subsecuto.—Also venditio rei Sacræ; so called from Simon Magnus. And some Authors mention Simony per munus triplex; as per munus à manu, i. e. by Bribery, where Money is paid down for a Benefice; per munus à lingua, by Favour and Flattery; per munus ab obsequio, i. e. by a sordid Subjection to the Patron, or doing him Services: To which has been added, the making of Presents, without taking any Notice of expecting a Benefice. Against the scandalous Corruption of Simony many Church Canons have been made; particularly in the Time of King Henry 2. a Provincial Canon was made against it by the then Archbishop of Canterbury; and among the Canons of Otobonus, Anno 53 H. 3. there is a severe one on this Head: There are some other general Canons of the Church, requiring an Oath to be administered to Clergymen against Simony; and whereby Simony is punished with Deprivation, Disability, &c. as was that of Dr. Watson, Bishop of St. Davids, for presenting a Parson to a Rectory in his Diocese for Money; and taking several Sums from Persons to admit them into Orders, &c. This Crime of Simony is said to be worse than Felony; and the Abhorrence of the Law to it seems to have arisen from the Canons that had been made against it; for it was not an Offence at Common Law. Moor 564. And it has been held by some of the Fathers to be Heresy, if not the Sin of the Holy Ghost: But neither the Greatness of the Offence, nor the Severity of the Canons (as has been observed) were sufficient to restrain this Evil in the Church; till the Parliament took it into their Care, and Anno 31 Eliz. enacted the following Law, viz. That if any Person for any Sum of Money, Reward, Gift, Profit, or Benefit, or by Reason of any Promise, Agreement, Grant, Bond, Covenant, or other Assurance for any Sum of Money, Reward, Gift, &c. shall present or collate any Person to any Benefice with Cure, Dignity, or Living Ecclesiastical; or give or bestow the same in Respect of any such corrupt Cause or Consideration, every such Presentation, Collation, Gift, and Bestowing, and every Admission and Induction thereupon, shall be utterly void; and the Crown shall present for that Turn: And the Persons that shall give or take any Sum of Money, or shall take or make any such Promise, &c. shall forfeit and lose double the Value of one Year's Profit of every such Benefice; and the Person so corruptly taking any such Benefice, shall from thenceforth be disabled to have and enjoy the same. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. 1 Inst. 120. Generally any Covenant or Agreement, made under any Manner of Consideration whatsoever, to present a Clerk is simoniacal: If one promise to a Clerk, that in Consideration he will marry his Daughter, Kinswoman, &c. he will present him to such a Living when void, or the next good Living that shall fall within his Gift, this has been adjudged a simoniacal Contract: But if a Father, upon the Marriage of his Daughter, covenants to pay a Portion, &c. and there is a distinct Covenant that he will procure the Son in Law to be admitted to such a Benefice upon the next Avoidance, it shall not be intended to be simoniacal; because the Covenant had no Dependence upon the Marriage, being an intire Covenant by itself, and not made in Consideration of Marriage; for if it had, then it would have been Simony; and yet 'tis said it may be made so, by a special Averment, shewing that it was simoniacal. Cro. Car. 425. A Feme Sole was seized of an Advowson, and the Church becoming void, she presented a Parson upon Condition that he would marry her, which he did accordingly; and this was held to be Simony, and that it made the Presentation void; for it was for her Benefit, which is the very Word in the Statute: So if a Patron presents one, on Condition that he shall be a Tutor to his Son, tho' this is not properly a Gift or Reward. Noy 148. If a Patron take Bond of his Presentee to pay a yearly Sum to the Wife of the last Incumbent, for the Maintenance of her and her Children; or pay a yearly Sum to the Son of the last Incumbent, so long as he shall be a Student in the University unpreferred, no Simony will be committed; and this is by an equitable Construction of the Statute against Simony: But if the Money were to be paid to the Son of the Patron, it would be otherwise. Pascb. 2 Jac. 1. Noy 142. A Man may buy the next Turn of a Church, when the Church is full of an Incumbent, who is well in Health, and be no Simony: And if a Father doth purchase the next Avoidance of a Church for his Son, when the Incumbent is sick, with an Intent to present him after the Death of the Incumbent, it is not Simony; because the Father is obliged by Nature to provide for the Son: And therefore it is, that though the Son may not contract for a Benefice, to the Intent that another should present him; yet the Father may contract with an Intention of presenting his Son. 3 Cro. 685. Contracts may be simoniacal, as well before as after the Church is void, in some Cases; for notwithstanding it be lawful for any Person to buy the next next Turn of a Church, when it is full, generally speaking, such Contracts have been sometimes adjudged unlawful: As if a Person seized of an Advowson, grants the next Presentation to another, who enters into Bond to pay him a Sum of Money for it, when the Church shall become void, this is Simony: And if a Church being full of an old sickly Incumbent, a Clerk doth contract with the Patron of the Church for a certain Sum of Money, payable when the Church shall be void, to make a Grant of the next Turn to a Friend of his; and the Friend having such Grant doth present the said Clerk to the said Church, it is Simony. Hob. 105. In a Quare Impedit it was held, that the Grant of the next Avoidance for Money, when the Incumbent was very sick in his Bed and near Death, is Simony. Winch 63. One seized of an Advowson granted the next Avoidance to his second Son, who after his Death corruptly agreed with J. S. to procure him to be presented to the Benefice, and to perfect this, it was agreed that the second Brother should surrender his Grant and Interest to the elder Brother, and he knowing nothing of the first Agreement presented J. S. it was held to be Simony, and all void. Lane 73. But if a Patron of a Church contract with one for Simony, and present another without Simony; this is not within the Statute, for the King to present, &c. Hob. 167. Where a Man agrees to give a Sum of Money to procure him to be presented to a Church, this is Simony: And if an Incumbent make a simoniacal Contract with the Friend, or Wife of the Patron, who knows nothing of it, it will be Simony; also if Strangers make Agreement by Compact betwixt them, without the Privy of the Incumbent or Patron; as if a Friend of the one, give Money to a Relation of the other to procure him to present such a Clerk, it is simoniacal: Though this Judgment hath been opposed, because thereby the Patron's Right may be defeated by Collusion between Strangers. Cro. Car. 330. Cro. Jac. 386. Sid. 329. And if one that hath no Right to present, shall by means of a corrupt Agreement, present a Clerk, who is by his Presentation admitted, instituted and inducted into a Church; this shall not be such an Act of Simony to intitle the King to present: For though the Statute makes all void, an Usurper cannot forfeit the Right of another, in whom there is no Fault. 2 Brownl. 7. 3 Inst. 153. But on a Sale of an Advowson with Covenant to present such a Person as the Bargainee should nominate, the Church at that Time being full by Usurpation, and a Quare Impedit then pendant to remove the Usurper, and by which he was afterwards removed, the Court held this to be Simony; for that the Presentation by Usurpation being avoided, the Church shall be now said to be void from the Death of the last Incumbent. Skinner's Rep. 90. If any Person receives Reward, &c. for any Presentation to a Benefice, although he who is presented know nothing of the Matter, his Presentation, Institution and Induction are void by the Statute 31 Eliz. and the King shall present pro hac vice: The Statute intends to inflict a Punishment upon the Patron, by the Loss of the Presentation, because he was the Author of the Corruption; and likewise upon the Incumbent, by the Loss of his Incumbency, because he came in by such a corrupt Patron. 12 Rep. 101. And it is the corrupt Agreement, by Colour of which the Clerk is instituted and inducted, which makes the Simony; and Notice in this Case is not material, because of the Difficulty of Proving it. 3 Lev. 337. Moor 914. Though the Forfeiture of double Value of the Church is incurred by the corrupt Contract; the Presentation is not forfeited to the King, unless the Clerk be de facto presented or collated upon the same. Count Parf. Compan. 175. The Clerk is disabled to hold the Benefice made void by the Simony; and although he be neither Party nor privy to the simoniacal Contract, and obtain a new Presentation from the King, it hath been resolved, that he is disabled during Life to hold that Living. Cro. Jac. 385. But by my Lord Coke it was adjudged otherwise, that the Clerk presented, not being privy or consenting to the corrupt Agreement, shall not be a disabled Person; and though he loses his Incumbency upon such a Presentation, he may be presented again to the same Benefice. Cro. Jac. 385. 12 Rep. 101. 3 Inst. 154. According to Justice Dodderidge, a Simoniacus is the Person who makes the simoniacal Contract, and he is incapable to hold that Benefice to which he was thus promoted; or to have any other; but simoniace promotus is where a Friend of the Parson gives Money to the Patron or Ordinary for a Presentation or Institution, and the Parson himself doth not know it, who is incapable to hold that Benefice upon the corrupt Promotion; though he may have any other, or even that very Benefice, if afterwards he come lawfully to it, so as the Right of the Patron be not disturbed. 2 Roll. Rep. 465. It hath been held, that where two Parsons agreed to exchange their Livings, and the one promised his Patron, that if he would present the other, with whom he was to exchange his Living, he would make the Patron a Lease of his Tithes at such a Rent; this shall be Simony, although the other be not privy to the Contract. Parf. Coun. 50. And corrupt Resignations of Livings are within the Statute against Simony, as well as Exchanges, &c. Though if a simoniacal Clerk resign, and another is presented and dies; the King hath lost his Presentment. Hob. 167. 1 Brownl. 164. If a Clerk that gets ordained by Simony, obtain any Benefice in seven Years after, it is declared void by the Statute. Hob. Ibid. A Presentation upon a simoniacal Agreement is void to all Manner of Persons who have any Interest in the Benefice: 'Tis void as to the Patron, who is to lose his Presentation, for that is vested in the King, and he may present; it is void as to the Ordinary, by Reason he is bound to admit the King's Presentee; and no Lapse can incur where the Right of Presentation is in the Crown; 'tis void as to the Clerk, without a declaratory Sentence, though he was not privy to it, and he is disabled, &c. And 'tis void as to the Parishioners; for if he sues them for Tithes, they may plead him no Incumbent, and that he hath no Right to the Profits of the Church; all those being due to the Clerk which the King shall present from the Time of the Avoidance. 1 Roll. Rep. 237. And if a Man be presented to a Benefice by Simony, a general Pardon afterwards will not enure to the Settling of him in that Benefice, which was never full because of the Simony; but it may discharge the Punishment of Simony, in Respect of the Forfeiting double Value of the Profits of one Year, &c. Hob. 168. 3 Cro. 685. By the 1 W. & M. c. 16. After the Death of a Person simoniacally promoted to any Benefice, the Offence or Contract of Simony shall not be alleged to the Prejudice of any other Patron innocent of Simony, or of his Clerk; unless the Person simoniacally presented, or his Patron were convicted of such Offence in the Life-time of the simoniacal Person: But if the guilty Patron doth present another Clerk upon the Decease of the former, the Simony upon the first Presentation may be alleged both against the guilty Patron, and his second Clerk, though innocent. Wood's Inst. 157. If any Person shall for any Reward, in his own Name, or the Name of any other Person, take or accept the next Avoidance of, or Presentation to a Benefice with Cure of Souls, and shall be presented thereto, the Presentation shall be void, and such Agreement deemed a simoniacal Contract; and the Crown may present for that Time, &c. by 12 Ann. c. 12. This Act restrains only those, that are to be presented to the Living on the

the next Avoidance upon Purchase, &c. not Laymen, or such of the Clergy as are not to be presented to the Church. Wood's Inst. 150. It originally belongs to the Spiritual Court to determine Simony; and the Stat. 31 Eliz. doth not abrogate the Ecclesiastical Laws concerning it, but only enacts particular Penalties, in more remarkable simoniacal Acts, relating to Benefices, &c. But in those special Cases mentioned in the Statute, they are to be determined in the Temporal Courts. Gibb. Codex 839. The Statute against Simony may be recited in the Declaration against a Simonist; or it may be good without it. 2 Lutw. 1090.

Socage, (Socagium, a Soca, a Plough) A Tenure by which Tenants held their Lands, to plough the Land of their Lords with their own Ploughs, and do other inferior Services of Husbandry at their own Charge: Which slavish Tenure was afterwards, by the mutual Agreement of Lord and Tenant, turned into the Payment of a Sum of Money yearly, and from thence it was called Liberum Socagium; whereas the other was termed Villanum Socagium. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 35. Free Socage was a Tenure of Freehold by a certain Rent for all Services, and to pay upon the Death of the Ancestor a double Rent for a Relief, and to be free from Wardship, &c. And Socage was a Tenure of so large an Extent, that Littleton tells us, all the Lands in England, which were not held in Knights Service, were held in Socage: It seems the Land was divided between these two Tenures; and as they were of different Natures, so the Descent of these Lands was in a different Manner; for the Lands held in Knights Service descended to the eldest Son; but those held in Villano Socagio, equally among all the Sons; and if there was but one Mesuage, the eldest Son was to have it, paying the rest of the Value, &c. Litt. 117. When the Tenant holdeth of the Lord by certain Service, for all Manner of Services, it is Socage; if a Man holds by Fealty only, such Service is Tenure in Socage: And Tenure by Peitit Serjeanty, and

Soldiers. The Military State of England includes the Soldiery by Land and Sea; and it is against our ancient Law to keep up any Army of Soldiers in the Time of Peace. In Time of War particular Orders are made for the Order and Discipline of Officers and Soldiers, which are to be consulted upon all Emergencies; and therefore we are not to expect many standing and perpetual Laws on that Account. Wood's Inst. 45. The chief Statutes relating to the Army, and their Contents, are as follow, viz. By 18 H. 6. Soldiers retained, departing from their Colours, without Licence, are guilty of Felony. The 7 H. 7. cap. 1. and 3 H. 8. cap. 5. enact, That if a Captain shall not have the whole Number of his Soldiers, or not pay them their due Wages, within six Days after he hath received it, he shall forfeit all his Goods and Chattels, and suffer Imprisonment. By the 4 & 5 Pb. & M. c. 3. If any Person being commanded to muster, doth absent himself (having no lawful Excuse) he shall suffer ten Days Imprisonment, or pay a Fine of 40 s. And if any one authorized to levy or muster Soldiers, shall take any Reward to discharge or spare any from the said Service, he shall forfeit ten Times as much as he shall take, &c. The Stat. 1 Jac. 1 cap. 4. ordains, That if any Person go beyond Sea, to serve any foreign Prince, as a Soldier, and he do not take the Oath of Allegiance before he goes, it is Felony; and if he is a Gentleman or Officer, that is going to serve a foreign Prince, he is to be bound with two Sureties not to be reconciled to the See of Rome, &c. or it will be Felony. By 31 Car. 2. c. 1. no Soldiers shall be quartered on any Persons without their Consent; and Inhabitants of Places may refuse to quarter any Soldier, notwithstanding any Order whatsoever. The 4 & 5 W. & M. &c. was made for punishing Mutiny and Desertion, &c. And by 10 & 11 W. 3. Officers and Soldiers may exercise Trades. The 1, 4, 7, 9 & 10, &c. Ann. were made for punishing Mutiny and Desertion of Soldiers, and false Musters; and for better Payment of the Army and Quartets, &c. And the 2 & 3 Ann. gave Powe:

to Justices of Peace to send Warrants for apprehending idle Persons, and to deliver them to Officers to recruit the Army; and during the Wars 40 s. and 4 l. Advance-Money was given to Soldiers voluntarily listing. By the 12 Ann. c. 11. listing Men, or being enlisted for the Service of any foreign Prince as Soldiers, or procuring the same, without the King's Licence, is made High Treason. The 1 Geo. 1. c. 3. enacts, That every Soldier who shall cause a Mutiny, Desert, &c. shall be punished with Death, or otherwise by a Court Martial; and Persons suspected of Desertion are to be taken up by Constables, for whom a Reward is ordered of 20 s. And concealing Deserters, buying their Clothes, &c. incurs a Forfeiture of 5 l. Officers making false Certificates to excuse the Absence of Soldiers from Musters, shall forfeit 50 l. and making false Musters, be cashiered and forfeit 100 l. Commissaries of the Forces are to give Notice to Mayors to be present at Musters; and the Muster-Rolls shall be signed by such Mayors: Soldiers falsely mustered shall be deemed listed Soldiers; and Horses lent to the Persons so mustered to be forfeited: If any Pay-master of the Army detains the Pay ordered for one Month; or any Officer shall refuse to pay his Soldiers, they shall be discharged, and be liable to 100 l. Forfeiture: Officers receiving Subsistence-Money, are to give Notice to Inn-keepers, and pay their Accounts; and Accounts shall be made up between the Paymaster General and Colonels of Regiments, &c. Constables shall quarter Soldiers in Inns, Ale-houses, Victualling-houses, and those selling Brandy, &c. by Retail, (Distillers excepted) and Officers taking Money for excusing Quarterage, shall be cashiered: Justices of Peace are to issue Warrants to Constables to provide Carriages for Baggage, where Soldiers are on the March, and Officers shall pay 1 s. per Mile for Waggon, and 9 d. for Carts; and forcing Horses, &c. from the Owners, is liable to a Forfeiture of 5 l. Soldiers after three Years Service may demand their Discharges; and his Majesty may establish Articles of War, &c. By 1 Geo. 1. c. 34. no listed Soldier is to be allowed to be absent longer than twenty Days in six Months, by any Furlow, except signed by the Officer in Chief; and Soldiers in London shall have no Protection unless they constantly do Duty: Persuading and procuring Soldiers to desert, incurs a Penalty of 40 l. and not paying it, the Offenders are to be committed to Gaol for six Months, and be set on the Pillory; Papists being Soldiers are to renounce their Religion, or be disabled. Star, (Starrum, a Contraction from the Hebr. Sbetar, a Deed or Contract) All the Deeds, Obligations, &c. of the Jews were anciently called Stars, and writ for the most part in Hebrew alone, or in Hebrew or Latin; one of which yet remains in the Treasury of the Exchequer, written in Hebrew, without Points, the Substance whereof is expressed in Latin just under it, like an English Condition under a Latin Obligation: This bears Date in the Reign of King John; and many Stars, as well of Grant and Release, as Obligatory, and by Way of Mortgage, are pleaded and recited at large in the Plea-Rolls. Pascb. 9 Edw. 1.

Star-Chamber, (Camera Stellata, Chambre de Esloicli) Was a Chamber at Westminster so called, because at first all the Roof thereof was decked with gilded Stars. Sir *Tho. Smith de Rep. Starch and Starch-Powder. By a late Act, Starch-makers are to make use of square, or oblong Boxes only, for boxing and draining green Starch, before it is dried in the Stove, under the Penalty of 10 l. and shall give Notice to the Officers for the Duties, when they box and dry their Starch; and not remove the Starch made before it is weighed, and an Account taken thereof, on Pain of forfeiting 50 l. Officers may search for Starch concealed, by Virtue of a Justice's Warrant, and seise the same, &c. A Penalty is likewise inflicted on Makers of Hair-Powder, Perfumers, Peruke-makers, Barbers, &c. mixing any Powder of Alabaster, Chalk, Lime, &c. with Starch-Powder, or making Hair-Powder of any other Materials than Powder of Starch. And Makers of Powder for Hair, are to make Entries of their Workhouses at the Office of Excise; and any Officer may enter Warehouses and Shops, and examine the Powder, which being mixed shall be forfeited, and the Sum of 20 l. Stat. 4 Geo. 2. c. 14.

Statute, (Statutum) Has divers Significations: First, It signifies an Act of Parliament made by the King, and the three Estates of the Realm; and Secondly, it is a short Writing called a Statute-Merchant, or Statute-Staple, which are in the Nature of Bonds, &c. and called Statutes, as they are made according to the Form expressly provided in certain Statutes. 5 H. 4. c. 12. To Statutes enacted in Parliament, there must be the Assent of the King, Lords, and Commons, without which there can be no good Act of Parliament; but there are many Acts in Force, though these three Assents are not mentioned therein, as Dominus Rex statuit in Parlamento, and Dominus Rex in Parlamento suo Statuta edit, and de Communi Concilio Statuit, &c. Plowd. 79. 2 Bull. 186. And Sir Edw. Coke says, that several Statutes are penned like Charters in the King's Name only; though they were made by lawful Authority. 4 Inst. 25. Before the Invention of Printing, all Statutes were proclaimed by the Sheriff in every County, by Virtue of the King's Writ. 2 Inst. 526, 644. Some Statutes are General, and some are Special: And they are called General from the Genus, and Special from the Species; as for Instance; The whole Body of the Spirituality is the Genus, but a Bishop, Dean, and Chapter, &c. is the Species: Therefore Statutes which concern all the Clergy, are general Laws; but those which concern Bishops only are special. 4 Rep. 76. The Statute 21 H. 8. c. 13. which makes the Acceptance of a second Living by Clergymen, an Avoidance of the First, is a general Law, because it concerns all Spiritual Persons. 5 Rep. All Statutes concerning Mysteries and Trades in general, are general or publick Acts; though an Act which relates to one particular Trade is a private Statute. Dyer 75. A Statute which concerns the King is a publick Act; and yet the Stat. 23 Hen. 8. concerning Sheriffs, &c. is a Private Act. Plowd. 38. Dyer 119. 'Tis a Rule in Law, that the Courts at Westminster ought to take Notice of a General Statute, without Pleading it; but they are not bound to take Notice of particular or private Statutes unless they are pleaded. 1 Inst. 98. Statutes against the Power of subsequent Parliaments are not binding; notwithstanding the Statute 42 Ed. 3. c. 3. declares that any Statute made against Magna Charta shall be void: And this is evident, seeing many Parts of Magna Charta have been repealed and altered by subsequent Acts. Read. on Statute Vol. 4. p. 340. And the Law has been mistaken in this Point; for the Statutes which intervene between the 9 H. 3. and 42 E. 3. are not repealed, though they vary from and are contrary to Magna Charta. Jenk. Cent. 2. Statutes continue in Force, although the Records of them are destroyed, by the Injury of Time, &c. But if a Statute is against Reason, or impossible to be performed, it is void. 4 Rep. 76. 2 Inst. 587. Old Statutes must give Place to new, where they are contrary; but when there is a seeming Variance between two Statutes, and no Clause of Non obstante in the latter, such Construction shall be made that both may stand. 11 Rep. 56. Dyer 347. By Repealing of a Repealing Statute, the first Statute is revived: And where one Statute is repealed by another, the Acts done in the mean Time are valid. 4 Vol. Read. Stat. Jenk. Cent. 233. Statutes consist of two Parts, the Words, and the Sense; and 'tis the Office of an Expositor, to put such a Sense on the Words of the Statute, as is agreeable to Equity and right Reason: Equity must necessarily take Place in the Exposition of Statutes; but explanatory Acts are to be construed according to the Words, and not by any Matiner of Intendment; for 'tis incongruous for an Explanation to be explained. Plowd. 363, 465. Cro. Car. 23. The Preamble of a Statute, which is the Beginning thereof, going before, is as it were a Key to the Knowledge of it, and to open the Intent of the Makers of the Act; it shall be deemed true, and therefore good Arguments may be drawn from the same. 1 Inst. 11. It is the most natural and genuine Exposition of a Statute, to construe one Part by another Part of the same Statute, for that best expresses the Meaning of the Makers: The Words of an Act of Parliament are to be taken in a lawful and rightful Sense, and the Construction of Statutes in general must be made in Suppression of the Mischief, and for the Advancement of the Remedy intended by the Statute; but so that no innocent Person, by a literal Construction shall receive any Damage. 1 Inst. 381, 24. The best Way to expound a Statute, is to consider what Answer the Law givers would probably have given to the Question made, if proposed to them. Plowd. 465. 3 Nelf. Abr. 245. In the usual Exposition of Statutes, these Things are to be observed, viz. 1. What was the Common Law before the making of the Statute?

2. The

2. The Mischief and Defect which the Common Law did not provide against. 3. What Remedy the Statute hath appointed to cure this Mischief. 4. The true Reason of the Remedy. 3 Rep. 5. Where a Statute gives a Remedy for any Thing, it shall be presumed there was no Remedy before at Common Law: And the Rules to controule Acts of Parliament, are different from the strict Rules of Common Law; though in the Construction of a Statute, the Reason of the Common Law gives great Light. Raym. 191, 355. 2 Inst. 301. If an Act of Parliament be dubious, long Usage may be good to expound it by; and the Meaning of Things spoken and written, must be as hath been constantly received; but where Usage is against the obvious Meaning of a Statute, by the vulgar and common Acceptation of Words, then it is rather an Oppression than an Exposition of the Statute. Vaugh. 169, 170. A Statute which alters the Common Law, shall not be strained beyond the Words, except in Cases of publick Utility, when the End and Design of the Act appears to be larger than the Words themselves. Ibid. 179. Relative Words in any Statute, may make a Thing pass as well as if particularly expressed: And Cases of the same Nature shall be within the same Remedy. Raym. 54. Such Statutes as are beneficial to the People, shall be expounded largely, and not with Restriction. Style 302. The Exposition of Statutes concerning the Ecclesiastical Courts, belongs to the Common Law Courts: And a Statute made in Imitation of the Common Law, is to be expounded by it. Hob. 83, 97. An Affirmative Act, does not repeal a precedent affirmative Statute. The Affirmative Words of Statutes do not change the Common Law, without Negative Words added therein: And the Statute of Wills, being in the Affirmative, doth not take away the Custom to devise Land in Places where it is. Jenk. Cent. 212. Dyer 155. 1 Inst. 111. If a Statute be made only in Affirmance of the ancient Common Law, and doth not enact any Thing new, but what was before provided for; it is nevertheless a Statute, and may be pleaded: But the Defendant hath a Plea at Common Law. Style's Reg. 301. An Act of Parliament in Affirmance of the Common Law, extends to all Times after, though it mentions only to give Remedy for the present; and where a Thing is granted by Statute, all necessary Incidents are granted with it. 1 Inst. 235. Wherever a Statute gives or provides a Thing, the Common Law supplies all Manner of Requisites. Hard. 62. Every Statute made against an Injury, gives a Remedy by Action, expressly or implicitly. 2 Inst. 55, 74. And besides an Action upon the Statute, as the Subjects private Remedy; the Offender may be punished for Contempt at the King's Suit, by Fine, &c. 2 Co. Inst. 131, 163. Things for Necessity Sake, or to prevent Failure of Justice, are excepted out of Statutes. Ibid. 118. How Statutes are to be recited, and Indictments drawn on them, see Indictment.

Statutes Merchant. A Statute Merchant is a Bond of Record, acknowledged before the Clerk of the Statutes Merchant, and Lord Mayor of the City of London, or two Merchants assigned for that Purpose; and before the Mayors of other Cities and Towns, or the Bailiff of any Borough, &c. sealed with the Seal of the Debtor and the King, upon Condition that if the Obligor pays not the Debt at the Day, Execution may be awarded against his Body, Lands, and Goods, and the Obligee shall hold the Lands to him, his Heirs and Assigns, till the Debt is levied. Terms de Ley 548. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. The Statute of Aton Burnel, 13 Ed. 1. enacts, That the Merchant is to cause his Debtor to come before the Mayor of London,

&c. to acknowledge the Debt due, and Day of Payment; and the Recognizance is to be entered in a Roll: Then the Clerk is to make out a Bill Obligatory, whereunto the Seal of the Debtor shall be affixed, together with the King's Seal, in the Custody of the Mayor, &c. And if the Debtor fail in Payment at the Day, upon Notice thereof to the Mayor and Clerk, they are to cause his Goods and Chattels to be sold by Appraisalment, to satisfy the Creditor what his Debt amounts unto, and the Money without Delay is to be paid to such Creditor; or in Case they cannot sell the Goods, they shall cause so much of the Goods to be delivered to the Creditor as will answer his Debt. If the Debtor have no Goods within the Mayor's Jurisdiction, the Recognizance is to be sent to the Lord Chancellor under the King's Seal, and he shall thereupon direct a Writ to the Sheriff in whose Bailiwick the Goods of the Debtor are, who is to proceed therein as the Mayor might have done if the said Goods had been in his Jurisdiction: And if the Debtor have no Goods whereupon the Debt may be levied, he shall be imprisoned, and there remain until he agree with the Creditor, &c. If the Debtor have Sureties, they shall be proceeded against in like Manner as the Debtor; but so long as the Debt may be levied of the Goods of the Debtor, the Sureties are to be without Damage. Also a Merchant Stranger, to whom a Debt is due by Statute Merchant, shall, besides the Payment of his Debt, be satisfied for his Stay and Detainer from his Business. And by the Statute de Mercatoribus, 13 Ed. 1. the Merchant shall cause his Debtor to appear before the Mayor of the City of London, or other City or Town, and there acknowledge the Debt, &c. by Recognizance, which is to be intolled, the Roll whereof must be double, one Part to remain with the Mayor, and the other with the Clerk appointed by the King; and then one of the Clerks is to write the Obligation, which shall be sealed with the Debtor's Seal and that of the King, &c. If the Debt be not paid at the Day upon the Merchant's Account, the Mayor is to cause the Debtor to be imprisoned, if to be found, and in Prison to remain until he hath agreed the Debt; and if the Debtor cannot be found, the Mayor shall send the Recognizance into the Chancery, from whence a Writ shall issue to the Sheriff of the County where the Debtor is, to arrest his Body, and keep him in Prison till he agree the Debt; and within a Quarter of a Year, his Lands and Goods shall be delivered to him to pay the Debt; but if the Debtor do not satisfy the Debt within that Time, all his Lands and Goods shall be delivered to the Merchant by a reasonable Extent, to hold until the Debt is levied thereby; and in the mean Time he shall remain in Prison; but when the Debt is satisfied, the Body of the Debtor is to be delivered, together with his Lands. If the Sheriff return a Non est Inventus, &c. the Merchant may have Writs to all the Sheriffs where he hath any Land; and they shall deliver all the Goods and Lands of the Debtor by Extent, and the Merchant shall be allowed his Damage, and all reasonable Costs, &c. All the Lands in the Hands of the Debtor, at the Time of the Recognizance acknowledged, are chargeable; though after the Debt is paid, they shall return to the Grantees, if any are granted away, as shall the Rest to the Debtor: The Debtor or his Sureties dying, the Merchant shall not take the Body of the Heir, &c. but shall have his Lands until the Debt is levied. In London, out of the Commonalty, two Merchants are to be chosen and sworn by this Statute; and the Seal shall be opened before them, whereof one Piece is to be delivered to the said Merchants, and the other remain with the Clerk; and before these Merchants, &c. Recognizances may be taken; a Fee of 1 d. per Pound is allowed to the Clerk for fixing the King's Seal; and a Seal is to be provided that shall serve for

for Fairs, &c. but the Statute extends not to Jews. Stat. ibid. Cro. Car. 440, 457. Statutes Merchant were contrived for the Security of Merchants only, to provide a speedy Remedy to recover their Debts; but at this Day they are used by others, who follow not Merchandize, and become one of the common Assurances of the Kingdom. Bridg. 21. Owen 82. And all Obligations made to the King, are of the Nature of these Statutes Merchant. 12 Rep. 2, 3. The Form of a Statute Merchant Bond, according to Fleta, is as follows, viz. — Noverint universi per presentes me A. B. de, &c. Teneri C. D. in centum libr. solvend. eidem C. D. ad festum, &c. Anno Regni Regis, &c. Et nisi fecero, concedo quod currant super me & haeredes meos distractio & poena provisiva in Statuto Domini Regis edit. apud Westm. Datum London, tali die, &c.

Statutes Staple, Are concerning Merchants and Merchandizes of the Staple; and of the same Nature with Statutes Merchant: They are for Debt acknowledged before the Mayor of the Staple, at our chief Cities, &c. in the Presence of one or more of the Constables of the Staple, by Virtue of which the Creditor may forthwith have Execution of the Body, Lands, and Goods of the Debtor, on Non-payment. 4 Inst. 238. The Mayor of the Staple may take Recognizance of a Debt in Presence of the Constables of the Staple; and there shall be a Seal remaining with the Mayor, &c. with which every Obligation upon such Recognizance shall be sealed: And upon such Obligation, after Default of Payment, the Mayor may imprison the Debtor, and attach his Goods, and sell them to satisfy the Creditor; but if the Debtor be not found within the Staple, the Mayor is to certify the Obligation into Chancery, and from thence a Process shall go against the Debtor's Person, his Lands, Goods, and Chattels, as in Case of a Statute Merchant. In every Staple Town there is to be a Mayor and two Constables established to take Recognizances, &c. and when they die, or are changed, others shall be chosen in their Steads, by the Commonality of Merchants; though the Mayor is not to hold over a Year, unless he be again chose, &c. 27 Ed. 3. c. 1. Mayors and Constables of the Staple are to have Conuance of Debts and Contracts touching Merchandize: Officers of the Staple shall be sworn first to the King, and then to the Staple; and the Mayor of the Staple taking Recognizance contrary to the Statute, is to forfeit to the King Half the Sum recognized, &c. Persons suing out a Scire facias in Chancery, to defeat an Execution upon a Statute Staple, must find Security both to the King and Recognizee to prosecute, &c. Stat. 36 Ed. 3. 14 & 15 R. 2. 11 H. 6. A Statute Staple acknowledged before a Mayor only, and no others, was held good, being before the principal Officer; and where it is void as a Statute, it may be good as an Obligation. Hill. 22 Jac. 1. Cro. 461. Debt lies as well upon a Statute Staple, as upon a Bond: And a Statute acknowledged on Lands, is a present Duty, and ought to be satisfied before an Obligation; a Debt due on an Obligation being but a Chose in Action, and recoverable by Law, and not a present Duty by Law, as a Debt upon a Statute, Judgment or Recognizance is, upon which present Execution is to be taken without further Suit. Cro. Eliz. 355, 461, 494. 2 Lill. Abr. 536. But a Judgment in a Court of Record, shall be preferred in Case of Execution before a Statute: Though if one acknowledge a Statute, and afterwards confess Judgment; if the Land be extended thereon, the Cognisee shall have a Scire facias to avoid the Extent upon the Judgment. 6 Rep. 45. 1 Brownl. 37. It is otherwise as to Goods, for there he that comes first, shall be first served. Ibid. The Cognisor of a Statute grants his Estate to the Cognisee; by this the Execution of the Statute will be suspended. 2 Cro. 424. But if the Cognisee before Execution of a Statute, Release to the Cognisor all his Right to the Land; it will not be a Discharge of the whole Execution: For notwithstanding, he may sue Execution of his Body and Goods. 3 Skep. Abr. 326. Upon a Statute Staple, a Capias and Extent of Lands, Goods, and Chattels are contained in one Writ; but it is not so on a Statute Merchant. Jenk. Cent. 163. In Chancery the Proceedings on a Statute Staple, are in the Petty Bag-Office; and Statutes Staple are suable in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, as well as in Chancery. Cro. Eliz. 208. On a Statute's being satisfied, it is to be vacated by entering Satisfaction, &c. Statutes Staple and Statutes Merchant are to be entered within six Months, or shall not be good against Purchasers. 27 Eliz. c. 4. See the Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. for preventing Delays in extending Statutes. Vide Recognizance.

Statutes Merchant and Staple, Tenants thereby. He that is in Possession of Lands on a Statute Merchant or Staple, is called Tenant by Statute Merchant and Statute Staple, during the Time of his Possession: And Creditors shall have Freehold in the Lands of Debtors, and Recovery by Novel Disseisin, if put out; but if Tenant by Statute Merchant, or Statute Staple, hold over his Term, he that hath Right may sue out a Venire facias ad computand', or enter, as upon an Elegit. 27 Edw. 3. &c.

Sterling, (Sterlingum) Was the Epithet for Silver Money current within this Kingdom, and took Name from this; that there was a pure Coin stamped first in England by the Easterlings, or Merchants of East Germany, by the Command of King John; and Hoveden writes it Esterling. Instead of the Pound Sterling, we now say so many Pounds of lawful English Money; but the Word is not wholly disused, for though we ordinarily say lawful Money of England, yet in the Mint they call it Sterling Money; and when it was found convenient in the Fabrication of Monies, to have a certain Quantity of baser Metal to be mixed with the pure Gold and Silver, the Word Sterling was then introduced; and it has ever since been used to denote the certain Proportion or Degree of Fineness, which ought to be retained in the respective Coins. Lound's Essay on Coins 14.

Steward, (Senescallus, compounded of the Sax. Steda, i. e. Room, or Stead, and Weard, a Ward or Keeper) Is as much as to say a Man appointed in my Place or Stead, and hath many Applications, but always denotes an Officer of chief Account within his Jurisdiction. The greatest of these Officers is, The Lord High Steward of England, who anciently had the Supervising and Regulating, next under the King, the

the Administration of Justice, and all other Affairs of the Realm, whether Civil or Military; and the Office was Hereditary, belonging to the Earls of Leicester, till forfeited to King Hen. 3. But the Power of this Officer being very great, of late the Office of High Steward of England hath not been granted to any one, only pro hac vice, either for the Trial of a Peer of the Realm on an Indictment for a Capital Offence; or for the Determination of the Pretensions of those who claim to hold by Grand Serjeanty, to do certain honourable Services to the King at his Coronation, &c. for both which Purposes he holds a Court, and proceeds according to the Laws and Customs of England; and he to whom this Office is granted must be of Nobility and a Lord of Parliament. 4 Inst. 58, 59. Crompt. Jurisd. 84. 13 Hen. 8. 11. 2 Hawk. P. C. 5. Of the nine great Officers of the Crown, the Lord High Steward is the first; but when the special Business for which he is appointed is once ended, his Commission expires. The first Lord High Steward that was created for the Solemnizing of a Coronation, was Thomas, second Son of Hen. 4th; and the first Lord Steward for the Trial of a Peer, was Edward Earl of Devon, on the Arraignment of John Holderness Earl of Huntingdon in the same Reign. Lex Constitution. 170. There is a Lord Steward of the Household, mentioned Stat. 24 H. 8. cap. 13. whose Name was changed to that of Great Master of the Household, Anno 32 H. 8. But this Statute was repealed by 1 Mar. cap. 4. and the Office of Lord Steward of the Household revived. He is the chief Officer of the King's House; he has Authority over all Officers and Servants of the Household, except those belonging to the Chapel, Chamber, and Stable; and the Palace Royal is exempted from all Jurisdiction of any Court, but only of the Lord Steward, or in his Absence, of the Treasurer and Comptroller of the Household, with the Steward of the Marshalsea, who by Virtue of their Offices, without any Commission, hear and determine all Treasons, Murders, Felonies, Breaches of the Peace, &c. committed in the King's Palace: Besides the Treasurer and Comptroller, the Lord Steward hath under him a Cofferer, several Clerks of the Green Cloth, &c. He attends the King's Person at the Beginning of Parliaments; and is a White Staff Officer, which he breaks over the Hearse on the Death of the King, and thereby discharges all Officers under him: Of this Officer's ancient Power, read Fleta, lib. 2. and F. N. B. 241. In the Liberty of Westminster, an Officer is chosen and appointed, called High Steward; and there is a Deputy Steward of Westminster; and the Word Steward is of so great Diversity, that in most Corporations, and all Houses of Honour, an Officer is found of this Name and Authority. Stewards of Manors, see Copyhold.

Stews, (From the Fr. Estuves, i. e. Thermae, Balneum) Are those Places which were permitted in England to Women of professed Incontinency, and that for Hire would prostitute they Bodies to all Comers; so called, because dissolute Persons are wont to prepare themselves for venereous Acts by Bathing: And Hot Baths were by Homer reckoned among the effeminate Sort of Pleasures. These Stews were suppressed by King Hen. 8. about the Year 1546.

In this Writ the 100 l. Law Processes are not to be served on a Sunday, unless it be in Cases of Treason or Felony; or on an Escape, by Virtue of 5 Ann. Sunday is not a Day in Law for Proceedings, Contracts, &c. And hence it is, that a Sale of Goods on this Day in a Market overt is not good: And if any Part of the Proceedings of a Suit in any Court of Justice, be entered and recorded to be done on Sunday, it makes it all void. 2 Inst. 264. 3 Shep. Abr. 181. The Service of a Citation on a Sunday is good, and not restrained by the Stat. 29 Car. 2. And by two Judges, the Delivery of a Declaration upon a Sunday may be well enough, it not being a Process; but Holt C. J. thought it ill, because the Act intended to restrain all Sorts of legal Proceedings. 1 Ld. Raym. 706.

B. 236. Abr. 543. A Writ of Error is said to be in Judgment of Law a Superfedeas, until the Errors are examined, &c. that is to the Execution; not to Action of Debt, on the Judgment at Law: From the Time of the Allowance, a Writ of Error is a Superfedeas; and if the Party had Notice of it before the Allowance, it is a Superfedeas from the Time of such Notice; but this must be where Execution is not executed, or begun to be executed. Cro. Jac. 534. Raym. 100. Mod. Ca. 130. 1 Salk. 321. If before Execution, the Defendant bring a Writ of Error, and the Sheriff will execute a Fieri fac. and levy the Money, the Court will award a Superfedeas, quia erronee emanavit, and to have Restitution of the Money. Stile 414. After an Execution, there was a Superfedeas, quia Executio improvide emanavit, &c. issued; and there being no Clause of Restitution in the Superfedeas, it was insisted that the Execution was executed before the Superfedeas awarded, and that a faulty Superfedeas is no Superfedeas; but the Court ordered another Superfedeas, with a Clause of Restitution. Moor 466. 3 Nels. Abr. 256. The Superfedeas, quia erronee emanavit, lies to restore a Possession, after an Habeas facias seisinam, when sued out erroneously: So of a Superfedeas after Execution upon a Capias ad satisfaciend. if it be immediately delivered to the Sheriff. Jenk. Cent. 58, 92. It appearing upon Affidavit, that there were two Writs of Execution executed upon one Judgment: The Party moved for a Superfedeas, because there cannot be two such Executions, but where the Plaintiff is hindered either by the Death of the Defendant, or by some Act in Law, that he can have no Benefit of the first; and so it was adjudged. Stile 255. A Superfedeas is grantable to a Sheriff to stay the Return of an Habeas Corpora; and if he return it afterwards, and the Parties proceed to Trial 'tis Error; and so are all the Proceedings in an inferior Court, after an Habeas Corpus delivered, unless a Procedendo is awarded, in which Case a Superfedeas is not to be granted. Cro. Car. 43, 350. When a Certiorari is delivered, it is a Superfedeas to inferior Courts below; and being allowed, all their Proceedings afterwards are erroneous; and they may be punished. The Justices &c. to whom a Certiorari is sent, are to issue a Superfedeas to the Sheriff to stop Execution of any Award, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 293. If a Sheriff holds Plea of 40s. Debt in his County Court, the Defendant may sue forth a Superfedeas, that he do not proceed, &c. Or after Judgment he may have a Superfedeas directed to the Sheriff, requiring him not to award Execution upon such Judgment; and upon that an Alias, a Pluries, and an Attachment, &c. New Nat. Br. 432. Superfedeas may be granted by the Court for setting aside an erroneous judicial Process, &c. Also a Prisoner may be discharged by Superfedeas; as a Person is imprisoned by the King's Writ, so he is to be set at Liberty; and a Superfedeas is as good a Cause to discharge a Person, as the first Process is to arrest him. Finch 453. Cro. Jac. 379. If a privileged Person is sued in any Jurisdiction foreign to his Privilege, he may bring his Superfedeas. Vaugh. 155. But a Peer being arrested by a Bill of Middlesex, was ordered to plead his Privilege; and not allowed a Superfedeas. Stile 177. It is false Imprisonment to detain a Man in Custody after a Superfedeas delivered; for the Superfedeas is to be obeyed; and in such Case it is a new Caption without any Cause. 2 Cro. 379. 3 Nels. 256. There is a Superfedeas where an Audita Querela is sued; and out of the Chancery, to set a Person at Liberty taken upon an Exigent, on giving Security to appear, &c. And in Cases of Surety of the Peace and Good Behaviour, where a Person is already bound to the Peace in the Chancery, &c. New Nat. Br. 524, 529. 532.

From of a Writ of Superfedeas.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of M. Greeting: Whereas we lately commanded you by our Writ, that you should take C. D. late of, &c. in your County, if he should be found in your Bailiwick, and safely keep him, so that you might have his Body before us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. next after, &c. then to come, and now last past, to make Satisfaction to A. B. for fifty Pounds, which in our Court before us were awarded to the said A. for his Damages that he had sustained, by Reason of not performing certain Promises and Undertakings, made by the said C. to the said A. at, &c. in your said County, whereof he is convicted: and because it appears to us, that our Writ to take his Body to make Satisfaction, was unduly and clandestinely sued out of our said Court before us: Therefore we command you, that you altogether forbear taking, imprisoning, or any ways molesting the said C. by Reason of the Premises, or in any Manner executing the said Writ and making a Return thereof to us, &c. And if you shall have taken the said C. upon that Occasion, and no other, then do you without Delay discharge him, and permit him to go at large. Witnesses, &c.

Supervisor, (Lat.) A Surveyor or Overseer: And it was formerly and still is a Custom among the better Sort of People, to make a Supervisor of a Will, to supervise and oversee the Executors that they punctually perform the Will of the Testator; but this Office is of late very carelessly executed, so as to be to little Purpose or Use. Supervisor (now Surveyor) of the Highways, is mentioned in the Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 13.

Supplicavit, Is a Writ issuing out of Chancery, for taking Surety of the Peace, when one is in Danger of being hurt in his Body by another; it is directed to the Justices of Peace and Sheriff of the County, and is grounded upon the Stat. 1 Ed. 3. c. 16. which ordains, That certain Persons shall be assigned by the Chancellor to take Care of the Peace, &c. F. N. B. 80, 81. When a Man hath purchased a Writ of Supplicavit, directed to the Justices of the Peace, against any Person, then he, against whom the Writ is sued, may come into the Chancery, and there find Sureties that he will not do Hurt or Damage unto him that sueth the Writ; and upon that he shall have a Writ of Superseatas directed to the Justices, &c. reciting his having found Sureties in Chancery, according to the Writ of Supplicavit; and also reciting that Writ, and the Manner of the Security that he hath found, &c. commanding the Justices, that they cease to arrest him, or to compel him to find Sureties, &c. And if the Party who ought to find Sureties, cannot come into the Chancery to find Sureties, his Friend may sue a Superseatas in Chancery for him; reciting the Writ of Supplicavit, and that such a one and such a one are bound for him in the Chancery in such a Sum, that he shall keep the Peace according to it; and the Writ shall be directed to the Justices, that they take Surety of the Party himself according to the Supplicavit, to keep the Peace, &c. and that they do not arrest him; or if they have arrested him for that Cause, that they deliver him. New Nat. Br. 180. Sometimes the Writ Supplicavit is made returnable into the Chancery at a certain Day; and if so, and the Justices do not certify the Writ, nor the Recognizance, and the Security taken, the Party who sued the Supplicavit shall have a Writ of Certiorari directed unto the Justices of Peace to certify the Writ of Supplicavit, and what they have done thereupon, and the Security found, &c. Ibid. If a Recognizance of the Peace be taken in Pursuance of Writ of Supplicavit, it must be wholly governed by the Directions of such Writ; but if it be taken before a Justice of Peace below, the Recognizance may be at the Discretion of such Justice. Lamb. 100. Dalt. c. 70. To sue the Writ of Supplicavit, the Party that desires it must go before one of the Masters in Chancery, and make Oath that he does not desire the same through any Malice, but for his own Safety; upon which the Master makes out a Warrant, and the Writ is made by it by one of the Clerks in the Six Clerks Office; and when made, the Supplicavit is to be delivered to the Sheriff to have his Warrant thereupon for arresting the Party, &c. and then having sued out a Certiorari, it is to be delivered to them that took Bail thereon; and they are required to certify it, &c. Pract. Solic. 130.

Supremacy, Signifies Sovereign Dominion, Authority and Preheminence, the highest Estate. King Hen. 8. was the first Prince that shook off the Yoke of Rome here in England, and settled the Supremacy in himself, after it had been long held by the Pope. Stat. 25 Hen. 8. c. 12, 20. And by 1 Eliz. c. 1. all Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction was annexed to the Crown; and it was ordained that no foreign Potentate should exercise any Power or Authority in this Kingdom: Also the Oath of Supremacy was appointed, &c. By these Laws, the great Power of Rome was suppressed; and the Act of 1 Eliz. Sir Edward Coke says, was an Act of Restitution of the ancient Jurisdiction Ecclesiastical, which always belonged of Right to the Crown of England; and that it was not introductory of a new Law, but declaratory of the old, and that which was or of Right ought to be by the fundamental Laws of this Realm, Parcel of the King's Jurisdiction; by which Laws, the King as Supream Head, had full and intire Power in all Causes Ecclesiastical as well as Temporal: And as in Temporal Causes, the King doth judge by his Judges in the Courts of Justice, by the Temporal Laws of England; so in Causes Ecclesiastical, they are to be determined by the Judges thereof, according to the King's Ecclesiastical Laws. 5 Rep. 9. Carwrey's Case. And in this Case it was resolved by all the Judges, that by our ancient Laws, this Kingdom is an absolute Empire and Monarchy; consisting of one Head, which is the King, and of a Body Politick, made up of many well agreeing Members, all which the Law divides into two several Parts, the Clergy and the Laity, both of them immediately under God, subject and obedient to the Head. And the Kingly Head of this Politick Body, is furnished with Prerogative and Jurisdiction, to render Justice and Right to every Part and Member of this Body, of what Estate or Degree soever, otherwise he would not be at the Head of the Whole. 5 Co. Rep. 8. There are several Instances of Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction exercised by the King of England in former Ages; and in this Respect the King is said to be Persona mixta & unita cum sacerdotibus. The King is the supreme Ordinary, and by the ancient Laws of the Land, might without any Act of Parliament, make Ordinances for the Government of the Clergy; and if there be a Controversy between spiritual Persons, concerning Jurisdiction, the King is Arbitrator, and 'tis a Right of his Crown to declare their Bounds, &c. Moor 755, 1043. Hob. 17. See Appals to Rome, Pope, and Præmunire.

Sur Cui in vita, Is a Writ that lies for the Heir of a Woman, whose Husband hath aliened her Land in Fee, and she neglected to bring the Writ Cui in vita for Recovery thereof; in this Case, her Heir may bring this Writ against the Tenant after her Decease. F. N. B. 193.

Surety,

Surety, (Vas Fidis) A Bail that undertakes for another Man in a criminal Case, or Action of Trespass, &c. And there is a Surety of the Peace, so called, because the Party that was in Fear is thereby secured, by Bond or Recognizance of the other, and his Bail bound for him. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 2. Vide Good Behaviour.

Surgeon, (Chirurgus) May be deduced from the Fr. Chirurgion, signifying him that dealeth in the mechanical Part of Physick, and the outward Cures performed with the Hand; and therefore is compounded of the two Greek Words Xip, manus, "Εργον, opus, and for this Cause Surgeons are not allowed to administer any inward Medicine. By the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 42. the Barbers and Surgeons of London are incorporated and made one Company; and there shall be chosen yearly four Masters for the said Company, of which two must be expert in Surgery, and the other two in Barbery, who shall have Power to punish and correct all Defaults; and the Company and their Successors are to have the Oversight and Correction as well of Freemen as Foreigners, for such Offences as they shall commit against the good Order of Barbery and Surgery: They shall be exempted from bearing of Arms, serving on Juries, and all Manner of Parish Offices, &c. but are to pay Scot and Lot, and other Charges as formerly; and the said Company shall have free Liberty to take four Persons condemned for Felony, for Anatomies yearly. No Barber in London, or within one Mile thereof shall practise Surgery, letting of Blood, or any other Thing relating thereto, except Drawing of Teeth; nor shall any Person who practises Surgery within those Limits, exercise the Craft of a Barber: Though any Man not being a Barber or Surgeon, may retain in his House as a Servant, a Barber or Surgeon, who may exercise his Art in his Master's House, or elsewhere, &c. All Persons practising Surgery in London, shall have an open Sign in the Street where they dwell, that People may know where to resort to them when wanted: And every Person offending in any of the Articles contained in this Statute shall forfeit 5 l. a Month, one Moiety to the King, and the other to him who will sue for the same, &c. By the Stat. 18 Geo. 2. c. 15. the Surgeons of London, and the Barbers of London are made two separate and distinct Corporations. See Physicians.

Sur iur, i. e. Upon his Oath, according to ancient Laws. Leg. W. 1. c. 16.

Surmise, Is something offered to a Court to move it to grant a Prohibition, Audita Querela, or other Writ grantable thereon; and what shall be allowed to be a good Surmise, or not so, see 2 Cro. 669, 219, 501. Vide Suggestion.

Surplusage, (Fr. Surplus, Lat. Surplusagium, Collarium) Is a Superfluity or Addition more than needful, which sometimes is the Cause that a Writ abates; but in Pleading many Times it is absolutely void, and the Residue of the Plea shall stand good. Brake. Plowd. 63. And on a Writ of Inquiry of Damages in Waste, in which the Sheriff was commanded to go to the Place wasted, and there to inquire of the Waste done and Damages, who returned the Inquisition, without mentioning that he went to the Place wasted: this was held to be Surplusage in the Writ that would not hurt, because by the Plea in the Action the Waste was acknowledged, so that he need not go to the Place wasted to view it. Popb. 24. A Distringas was returnable Tres Trin. Nisi prius venerit Matthæus Hale Mil. Capital. Baro, &c. on such a Day eiusdem Mensis Junii; whereas the Month of June was not mentioned before; and this was moved in Arrest of Judgment as a Discontinuance; but adjudged that the Word eiusdem shall be rejected as Surplusage and void, and then the Word Junii shall be intended June next; as a Covenant to pay Money at Michaelmas, shall be intended Michaelmas next ensuing. Hard. 330. In a Declaration for Debt, upon Demurrer, it was objected against the Declaration, for that the Plaintiff averred the Defendant had not paid præd. sexaginta Libras, &c. when the Word Sexaginta was not before mentioned: And it was resolved that it shall be Surplusage, when 'tis that the Defendant had not paid præd. Libras, which must be the Pounds for which the Plaintiff had declared. 1 Lutw. 445. Cro. Eliz. 647. 3 Nels. Abr. 262. A Plaintiff being right named through all the Proceedings, but in the last Place, where it was said that a Capias Utlagatum was prosecuted against prædict. Johannem Fowler, and his true Name was George: It was ruled that the Word Johannus shall be Surplusage and be rejected; and then the Plea will be, that a Capias Utlagatum was prosecuted against prædict. Fowler. 2 Lutw. 919. 1 Lev. 428. If a Jury find the Substance of the Issue before them to be tried, other superfluous Matter is but Surplusage. 6 Rep. 46. And where a Verdict or Judgment is complete, if there be any other Matter repugnant or uncertain, &c. it shall be rejected as Surplus. 3 Nels. 262. 2 Hawk. P. C. 441. See Pleading.

Surplusage of Accounts, Signifies a greater Disbursement than the Charge of the Accountant amounts unto. In another Sense, Surplusage is the Remainder or Overplus of Money left. Litt. Diç.

Surrebutter, A second Rebutter; or more properly it is the Replication or Answer of the Plaintiff to the Defendant's Rebutter. See Rebutter.

Surrejoinder, Is a second Defence of the Plaintiff's Declaration in a Cause, and answers the Rejoinder of the Defendant. West. Symb. par. 2. As a Rejoinder is the Defendant's Answer to the Replication of the Plaintiff; so a Surrejoinder is the Plaintiff's Answer to the Defendant's Rejoinder. Wood's Inst. 586. Where a Plaintiff in his Surrejoinder, is to conclude to the Country, and not with an Averment. See Raym. 94. After Rejoinder and Surrejoinder, and Rebutter, &c. there may be a Demurrer. Pract. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 86.

Surrender, (Sursum Redditio) Is a Deed or Instrument testifying that the particular Tenant for Life or Years, of Lands and Tenements, doth yield up his Estate to him that hath the immediate Estate in Remainder or Reversion, that he may have the present Possession thereof; and wherein the Estate for Life or Years may merge or drown by the mutual Agreement of the Parties. Co. Litt. 337. And of Surrenders there are three Kinds; a Surrender properly taken at Common Law; a Surrender of Copyhold or Customary Estates; and a Surrender improperly taken, as of a Deed, a Patent, Rent newly created, &c. The Surrender at Common Law is the usual Surrender, and is of two Sorts, viz. A Surrender in Deed, or by express Words in Writing; where the Words of the Lessee to the Lessor prove a sufficient Assent to give him his Estate back again: And a Surrender in Law, being that which is wrought by Operation of Law, and not actual; as if Lessee for Life or Years, take a new Lease of the same Land during their Term; this will be a Surrender in Law of the first Lease. 1 Inst. 338. 5 Rep. 11. Perk. 601. And in some Cases a Surrender in Law is of greater Force than a Surrender in Deed; for if a Man makes a Lease for Years to begin at a Day to come, this future Interest cannot be surrendered by Deed, because there is no Reversion wherein it may drown; but if the Lessee before the Day, take a new Lease of the same Land, it is a good Surrender in Law of the former Lease: And this Surrender in Law, by taking a new Lease, holds good, though the second Lease is for a less Term than the First; and 'tis said, though the second Lease is a voidable Lease, &c. 5 Rep. 11. 6 Rep. 69. 10 Rep. 67. 1 Inst. 218. Cro. Eliz. 873. If Lessee for Life do accept of a Lease for Years, this is a Surrender in Law of his Lease for Life; if it should be otherwise, the Lease for Years would be made to no Purpose, and both the Leases cannot stand together in one Person. 2 Lill. Abr.

544. Lessee for twenty-one Years takes a Lease of the same Lands for forty Years, to commence after the Death of A. B. it is not any present Surrender of the first Term; but if A. B. dies within the Term it is. 4 Leon. 83. A Lessee for Years took a second Lease to commence at Michaelmas next; adjudged this was an immediate Surrender in Law of the first, and that the Lessor might enter and take the Profits from the Time of the Acceptance of the second Lease, until Michaelmas following. Cro. Eliz. 605. If the Lessor make, and Lessee accept a new Lease, and it is but upon Condition; this shall be a Surrender in Law: And if an Assignee of Tenant for Years take a new Lease, &c. the first Lease will be by Law surrendered. 1 Inst. 218, 338. If a Woman Lessee for Years marries, and afterwards she takes a new Lease for Life without her Husband, this is a Surrender and Extinguishment of the Term; but if the Husband disagree, then 'tis revived: Though if the new Lease had been made to the Husband and Wife, then by the Acceptance thereof, the first Lease had been gone. Hutt. 7. A Lessor takes the Lessee to Wife, the Term is not drowned or surrendered; but he is possessed of the Term in her Right, during the Coverture. Wood's Inst. 285. A Surrender may be of any Thing grantable, either absolute or conditional; and may be made to an Use, being a Conveyance tied and charged with the Limitation of a Use: But it may not be of an Estate in Fee; nor of Rights or Titles only to other Estates for Life or Years; or for Part of such an Estate; nor may one Termor regularly surrender to another Termor; nor can a Tenant at Will surrender any more than he can grant. Perk. 615. Noy's Max. 73. Cro. Eliz. 688. 1 Leon. 303. Where Things will not pass by Surrender, the Deed may enure to other Purposes, and take effect by way of Grant, having sufficient Words. Perk. 624, 588. And a Surrender may be made by these Words: Hath surrendered, granted, yielded up and confirmed, &c. To the making of a good Surrender in Deed of Lands, the following Things are requisite; the Surrenderor is to be a Person able to grant and make a Surrender, and the Surrenderee a Person able to receive and take it; the Surrenderor must have an Estate in Possession of the Thing surrendered, and not a future Right; and the Surrender is to be made to him that hath the next Estate in Remainder or Reversion, without any Estate coming between; the Surrenderee must have a higher or greater Estate in his own Right, and not in the Right of his Wife, &c. in the Thing surrendered, than the Surrenderor hath, so that the Estate of the Surrenderor may be drowned therein; (for if Lessee for Life surrender to him in Remainder for Years, &c. it is a void Surrender) there is to be a Privity of Estate between the Surrenderor and Surrenderee; and the Surrenderee must be sole seised of his Estate in Remainder or Reversion, and not in Jointenancy; and the Surrenderee agree to the Surrender, &c. 1 Inst. 338. Perk. 584, 588. 2 Roll. Abr. 494. Noy's Max. 73. A Man who hath a Fee-simple Estate cannot surrender it, because it can't be drowned in another Estate. 12 H. 4. 21. And if a Lease be made for Life or Years to A. the Remainder for Life to B. Remainder in Fee-tail to C. and the first Tenant surrenders to C. this will not take Effect as a Surrender, by Reason of the intervening Estate. Dyer 112. The Lessee for Life or Years, may surrender to him that is next in Remainder in Fee-simple or Fee-tail: And if Lessee for Life surrenders his Estate to one in Remainder, that is Tenant for his own Life; it is a good Surrender, for a Man's Estate for his own Life in Judgment of Law, is greater than that for another's. And where an Estate is surrendered for Life, there needs no Livery and Seisin, as in a Grant. 1 Inst. 338. Dyer 251, 280. Yet in some Cases an Estate, &c. may have Continuance, though it be surrendered; as where Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, and after doth surrender, the Term for Years doth continue; and so of a Rent-Charge granted by such Lessee, &c. Bro. 47. 1 Inst. 338. If the Lessee for Years rendering Rent, surrenders his Estate to the Lessor, hereby the Rent is extinct: But if the Rent were granted away before the Surrender, it would be otherwise. 8 Rep. 145. Bro. Surrend. 42. Tenant for Life is disseised, or for Years ousted, and before Entry, or Possession gained, he surrenders to him in Reversion; this Surrender is void: And yet if Lessee for Years, after his Term is begun, before he enters, and when no body doth keep from him the Profits, surrenders, it will be good. Perk. Sect. 600. If there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder for Life, Remainder in Fee; the Lessee for Years may surrender to the Lessee during Life, and so may he to him in the Remainder in Fee: But if there is Tenant for Life, the Remainder for Life, and such Remainder in Fee; here the second Tenant for Life cannot surrender to him in Remainder. Ibid. 605. In Case of Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life, Reversion in Fee; it was a Question formerly, whether the Remainder-man for Life, by and with the Consent of the Tenant for Life, could surrender to him in Reversion without Deed, only by coming on the Land and saying, that he did surrender to him in Reversion; the Court were divided; but two Judges held, that if Tenant for Life and he in Remainder for Life, surrendered to the Reversioner, it should pass as several Surrenders, viz. First of him in Remainder to the Tenant for Life, and then by the Tenant for Life to him in Reversion. Poph. 137. If Tenant for Life grant his Estate to him in Reversion, this is a Surrender; and it must be pleaded according to the Operation he hath in Law, or it will not be good. 4 Mod. 151. Though if Lessee for Life or Years, grant their Estates to him in Remainder or Reversion and a Stranger; it shall enure as a Surrender of the one Half to him in Reversion, and as a Grant of the other Moiety to the Stranger. 1 Inst. 335. And by Statute, no Estates of Freehold, or of Terms for Years, shall be granted or surrendered but by Deed in Writing, signed by the Parties, or unless by Operation in Law, &c. 29 Car. 2. c. 2. See Leases, and 4 Geo. 2. Surrenders of Copyhold Estates, see Copyhold.

Form of a Surrender of Lands held for Term of Years.

TO all People to whom these Presents shall come, A. B. of, &c. sendeth Greeting: Whereas the said A. B. is possessed of and interested in one Messuage or Tenement called D. and all those Lands containing, &c. situate, lying and being in, &c. for the Remainder of a certain Term of twenty-one Years, the Reversion whereof doth belong to C. D. of, &c. Now know ye, That the said A. B. for and in Consideration of the Sum of, &c. to him in Hand paid by the said C. D. the Receipt whereof the said A. B. doth hereby confess and acknowledge: He the said A. B. hath surrendered and yielded up, and by these Presents doth surrender and yield up the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, all the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Premises above mentioned, and all the Estate, Right, Title, Interest, Term of Years, Claim and Demand whatsoever of him the said A. B. of, in and to the said Premises, and every Part thereof, with the Appurtenances; so that neither he the said A. B. his Executors, Administrators, or Assigns, or any of them, shall or may have, Claim, Challenge or Demand the said Premises, or any Part thereof, or any Estate, Right, Title or Interest, of in and to the same, but shall at Times hereafter, of and from all Right, Title and Interest, of and in the said Premises, and every Part thereof, be barred and for ever excluded by these Presents: And the said A. B. for himself, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, doth covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns, that he the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns, shall and may at all Times hereafter peaceably and quietly enter into, have, hold, occupy, possess, and enjoy, all and singular the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Premises abovementioned, and every Part thereof, with the Appurtenances, without the Let, Trouble, Hindrance, Molestation, Interruption or Denial of him the said A. B. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, or of any other Person or Persons whatsoever, claiming, or to claim, by from, or under him. In Witness, &c.

Surrender of Letters Patent, and Offices. A Surrender may be made of Letters Patent to the King, to the End he may grant the Estate to whom he pleases, &c. and a second Patent for Years, to the same Person, for the same Thing, is a Surrender in Law of the first Patent. 10 Rep. 66. Letters Patent for Years were delivered into Chancery to be cancelled, and new Letters Patent made for Years; but the first were not cancelled: It was held that the second were good, because they were a Surrender in Law of the first, and the not cancelling was the Fault of the Chancery, which ought to have done it. 10 Rep. 66, 67. 2 Lill. Abr. 545. If an Officer for Life accepts of another Grant of the same Office, it is in Law a Surrender of the first Grant: But if such an Officer takes another Grant of the same Office to himself and another, it may be otherwise. 1 Ventr. 297. 3 Cro. 198. See Dyer 167, 198. Godb. 415.

Suruse, (Superfusa) A Word specially used in the Castle of Dover, for Penalties and Forfeitures laid upon those that pay not the Duties or Rent of Castleward, at their Days limited. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 40. It probably comes from the Fr. Surfist, i. e. forborne or neglected. Brit. 52. And Bracton hath it so in a general Signification. Bract. lib. 5.

Survey, Is to measure, lay out, or particularly describe a Manor, or Estate in Lands; and to ascertain not only the Bounds and Royalties thereof, but the Tenure of the respective Tenants, the Rent and Value of the same, &c. In this last Signification, which is according to our Law, it is also understood to be a Court; for on the Falling of an Estate to a new Lord, consisting of Manors, where there are Tenants by Lease, and Copyholders, a Court of Survey is generally held; and sometimes at other Times, to apprise the Lord of the present Terms and Interests of the Tenants, and as a Direction on making further Grants, as well as in Order to Improvements, &c. See my Comp. Court Keep.

A Rent may be suspended by Unity for a Time; and if a Lessor doth any Thing which amounts to an Entry on the Land, tho' he presently depart, yet the Possession is in him sufficient to suspend the Rent, until the Lessee do some Act which amounts to a Re entry. Vangb. 39. 1 Leon. 110. Swearing, (Imprecatio) Is an Offence against God and Religion, and a Sin of all others, the most extravagant and unaccountable, as having no Benefit or Advantage attending it. There are several good Laws and Statutes for punishing this Crime: The 21 Jac. 1. c. 20. enacts, That if any Person shall profanely swear or curse in the Presence of a Justice of Peace, or the same shall be proved before a Justice, he shall forfeit 1 s. for every Offence, to the Use of the Poor, to be levied by Distress; and for Want of a Distress, the Offender to be set in the Stocks, &c. Every Day-Labourer, Common Soldier, Common Sailor and Common Seaman 1 s. Every other Person under the Degree of a Gentleman 2 s. Every Person of or above the Degree of a Gentleman 5 s. a second Offence double, and every other Offence treble. If the Offence be committed in the Hearing of a Magistrate, he may convict without further Proof. If the Offence be committed in the Hearing of a Constable, if the Offender be unknown to him, he shall secure him and carry him before a Justice of Peace; but if the Offender be known to the Constable, he shall make Information against him before a Justice of Peace. On Information a Justice is to Order the Offender to appear, and if on Conviction he do not pay or give Security for the Penalty, he shall be sent to the House of Correction for 10 Days; or being a Common Soldier or Sailor, be set in the Stocks. On Default of Duty, Justices to forfeit 5 l. and Constables 40 s. All Convictions are to be wrote on Parchment, and returned to the next Sessions. A Conviction on the Statute 6 Q. 7 W. 3. against profane Swearing, not setting forth that the Defendant was not a Servant, Labourer, &c. and the Oaths, that the Court might judge of the Nature of them, for these Reasons the same was Quashed; though the Counsel for the Plaintiff insisted that the Information was good; for if the Defendant was a Servant, &c. he ought to have given it in Evidence at the Trial. Mich. 8 Geo. 1. Mod. Cas. in L. & E. 58, 59.

Sworn Brothers, (Frates Jurati) Persons who by mutual Oath, covenanted to share each other's Fortune.

Fortune: And formerly in any notable Expedition, to invade and conquer an Enemy's Country, it was the Custom for the more eminent Soldiers to engage themselves, by reciprocal Oaths to share the Reward of their Service; so in the Expedition of William Duke of Normandy into England, Robert de Oily, and Roger de Furry, were sworn Brothers and Copartners in the Estate, which the Conqueror allotted them.

Robertus de Oileio & Rogerus de Iverio Fratres jurati, & per Fidem & Sacramentum Confederati venerunt ad Conquestum Anglia. Paroch. Antiq. 57. This Practice gave Occasion to our Proverb of Sworn Brothers, or Brethren in Iniquity; because of their dividing Plunder and Spoil.

And our Saxon Kings usually called a Synod or mixed Council, consisting of Ecclesiasticks and the Nobility, three Times a Year; which is said to have been the same with our Parliament.

Synodal, (Synodale) Is a Tribute or Payment in Money, paid to the Bishop or Archdeacon, by the inferior Clergy, at Easter Visitation; and it is called Synodale or Synodaticum, quia in Synodo frequentius dabatur. Right. Clerg. 59. They are likewise termed Synodics, in the Stat. 34 Hen. 8. cap. 16. And sometimes Synodale is used for the Synod itself; and Synodals Provincial, the Canons or Constitutions of a Provincial Synod. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 19.

Synodales Testes, Were the urban and rural Deans, whose Office at first was to inform of and attest the Disorders of the Clergy and People in the Episcopal Synod; and for which a solemn Oath was given them to make their Presentments, &c. But when they sunk in their Authority, the Synodical Witnesses were a Sort of impelled Grand Jury, composed of a Priest and two or three Laymen of every Parish, for the Informing of or Presenting Offenders; and at length two principal Persons for each Diocese were annually chosen, till by Degrees this Office of Inquest and Information was devolved upon the Church-wardens. Paroch. Antiq. 649.

Tail, (Fr. Taille, from Tailler, to cut or limit, Lat. Feodum Taliatum) Is a limited Fee, opposed to Fee-simple: It is that Inheritance whereof a Man is seized to him and the Heirs of his Body begotten or to be begotten: And he that giveth the Lands in Tail, is called the Donor, and he to whom the Gift is made, the Donee. Litt. 18. All Estates of Inheritance were originally Fee simple by the Common Law; but by the Statute de Donis Conditionalibus the Inheritance was divided, and a particular Estate created by Statute in the Donee, which is what is called an Estate-tail, i. e. an Estate cut and divided from the Fee-simple; which Estate is to return to the Donor or his Heirs, after the Determination of the the Tail. 3 Nels. Abr. 266. Before the Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. If Lands were given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, it was interpreted to be a Fee-simple presently by the Gift, upon Condition that he had Issue; and if he had Issue, the Condition was supposed to be performed for three Purposes, viz. to alien and disinherit the Issue; and by the Alienation to bar the Donor or his Heirs of all Possibility of the Reversion; to forfeit the Estate for Treason or Felony; and to charge it with Rent, &c. But by this Statute, the Will and Intention of the Donor is to be observed; as that the Tenant in Tail shall not alien after Issue had or before, or forfeit or Charge the Lands longer than for his own Life, &c. and the Estate shall remain to the Issue of the Donee, or to the Donor or his Heirs where there is no Issue; so that whereas the Donee had a Fee-simple before, now he has but an Estate-tail, and the Donor a Reversion in Fee expectant upon that Estate tail. Co. Litt. 19. In this Manner it continued some Time, though daily Experience shewed that much Mischief had crept into the Law by intailed Inheritances, as Frauds to Creditors, &c. and Sons became disobedient when they found they could not be disinherited; wherefore the Judges found out a Way to bar an Estate-tail, with Remainders over, by a feigned Recovery. Ann. 12 Ed. 4. And since by a Fine to bar the Issue, by 4 Hen. 7. cap. 20. and 32 Hen. 8. cap. 36. And for that Owners of Land held in Tail were less fearful to commit Treason on Account of the easy Forfeiture; therefore the Stat. 26 Hen. 8. cap. 13. was made; and because men that had intailed Lands, could not make Improvements, their Estate being only for Life; for this Reason the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 18. gave them Power to make Leases for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, &c. And notwithstanding the many Mischiefs and Inconveniences arising from intailed Estates, and the Statutes before mentioned, and Fines and Recoveries to dock Intails; there are Methods observed in Settlements to limit Estates that no Law or Statute can reach or alter them, except a particular Act is made for that Purpose. Wood's Inst. 122. The Statute de bonis creates no Intail, but of such an Estate which was Fee-simple at the Common Law; and descendible as a Fee-simple. 1 Inst. 19. Lands of Inheritance, and all Inheritances favouring of the Realty, may be intailed; so Rents, Profits, Offices, Dignities, &c. which concern Lands, or certain Places: But if the Grant of an Inheritance be merely personal, or exercised with Chancels only; it cannot be intailed. 4 Inst. 87. 7 Rep. A Grant of an Annuity, to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, is void: And a Lease for Years to a Person and the Heirs of his Body, is also void; though an Assignment may be made of a Lease for Years, in Trust to permit the Issue in Tail to receive the Profits; which is in Effect an Estate-tail. 10 Rep. 87. Estates-tail of Lands, are General, or Special; General Tail is where Lands or Tenements are given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body begotten; or to a Woman and the Heirs of her Body begotten: In this Case, it is called a general Tail, because whatever Woman the Man taketh to Wife, the Issue may inherit the Lands; and whatsoever Man the Woman takes to Husband, the Issue may inherit; or if she have divers Husbards, and have Issue by every of them, they shall inherit one after another, as Heir of her Body: Special Tail is when Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten; in which Case, no other Persons can inherit but the Issue that are begotten by him on that partic'lar Wife; and it is called Special Tail, for that if the Wife die, and the Husband marries a second Wife, by whom he hath Issue, such Issue has no Benefit, as they have by the general Tail. Litt. 14, 16. Co. Litt. 19, 20. If Lands are given to the Husband and Wife; and to the Heirs of their Bodies, both of them have an Estate in special Tail; by Reason of the Word Heirs, for the Inheritance, is not limited to one more than the other: Where Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Man; the Husband hath an Estate in general Tail, and the Wife an Estate for Life; as the Word Heirs relates generally to the Body of the Husband: And if the Estate is made to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Wife by the Husband begotten; there the Wife hath an Estate in special Tail, and the Husband for Term of Life only; because the Word Heirs hath Relation to the Body of the Wife, to be begotten by that particular Husband: If an Estate be limited to a Man's Heirs which he shall beget on his Wife, it creates a special Tail in the Husband; but the Wife will be intitled to nothing, &c. Litt. 26, 28. Co. Litt. 22, 26. Lands given to a Man and Woman unmarried, and to the Heirs of their Bodies, will be an Estate in special Tail; for they may marry. 1 Inst. 25. 10 Rep. 50. And though Lands are given to a married Man and another Man's Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, it may be a good Estate tail, for the Possibility of their Intermarrying. 15 Hen. 7. A general Tail, and a special Tail, may not be created at one and the same Time; if they are, the General, which is greater, will frustrate the Special. 1 Inst. 28. There are other Estates-tail within the Equity of the Statute; as if Lands are given to a Man and his Heirs Males or Females, of his Body begotten, the Issue Male or Female shall only inherit according to the Limitation: By Virtue of the Statute, here the Daughter may be Heir by Descent, though there be a Son: But in Case of a Purchase, there cannot be an Heir Female where there is a Son, who is right Heir at Law. 1 Inst. 24, 164. And whoever will make Claim, as Heir per formam doni to an Estate tail, must make his Descent by such Heirs to whom it is limited; if it is to Heirs Males of the Body, there the Pedigree is to be derived by Heirs Males; and if it be to Heirs Females, he must derive it by Heirs Females one after another. 1 Inst. 376. If a Gift is to one, and the Heirs Males of his Body, and he hath Issue a Daughter, who hath a Son, and dies; in this Case the Son shall not inherit the Estate-tail, for he cannot make his Descent by Heirs Males. Ibid. And where there is no Heir to take according to the Gift; as when Issues fail, the Land shall revert to the Donor or descend to him that is to have it after the Estate-tail is spent. 1 Inst. 25. It is the Word Body, or other Words amounting to it, make the Entail: And a Gift to the Heirs Male, or Heirs Female, without any Thing further, is a Fee-simple Estate, because it is not limited of what Body: And hence a Coporation cannot be seized in Tail. 1 Inst. 13, 20, 27. In a Devise or last Will, an Estate-tail may be created without the Word Body; also begotten shall be supplied and necessarily intended. Noy's Max. 101. 1 Inst. 26. If one gives Lands to a Man and his Issue, or Children of his Body, without the Words, his Heirs, to convey the Inheritance, he has but an Estate for Life: Though such Words may be good enough to convey the Inheritance in a Will; as Estates tail by Devise are always more favoured in Law, than Estates tail created by Deeds. 1 Inst. 20. It has been held, that if the Word Issue is a Limitation, 'tis an Intail; but if it 'tis by Way of Description who shall take, 'tis only an Estate for Life. Mod. Caf. in L. 263. The Word Heirs is necessary to create an Estate-tail and Inheritance by Deed; and where an Use was limited to A. B. and to his Heirs Males, lawfully to be begotten; these last Words imply that it must be Heirs Males of his Body, because no other Heir Male can inherit by Virtue of his Grant, but such such who are lawfully begotten by the Grantor. 7 Rep. 41. If a Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Heirs Males of his Body, this is an Estate-tail executed in him; and so it is if he covenanted to stand seized in the same Manner. 1 Mod. 159. By a Marriage Settlement and Fine levied, &c. to the Use of Husband and Wife, for their joint Lives; Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of the Wife by the Husband to be begotten, Remainder (the Wife surviving the Husband) to her for Life, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband; this was held to be an Estate-tail, executed in the Wife. Raym. 127. 3 Salk. 338. Land is conveyed to the Use of a Man and his Wife for their Lives, and after to their next Issue Male in Tail, then to the Use of the Husband and Wife, and of the Heirs of their Bodies begotten, they having no Male Issue; by this Husband and Wife are Tenants in Special Tail executed, and when they have Issue Male, they will be Tenants for Life, Remainder to their Son in Tail, the Remainder to them in Special Tail. 1 Inst. 28. Where a Person having an Estate in Fee, conveys it by Lease and Release to the Use of himself for Life, with Remainder to Trustees for their Lives, and Remainder to the Heirs of his Body; he hath an Estate-tail in him; but he is only Tenant for Life in Possession: It would be otherwise, if there had been no intermediate Estate in the Trustees for their Lives. 2 Ld. Raym. 855. A Man seized of Land in Fee, makes a Gift of it in Tail, or Lease for Life, Remainder to the right Heirs Males of the Body of the Donor; this Remainder it is said will be a Fee-simple, and not an Estate-tail. Dyer 156. If the Gift or Grant of the Land be to J. S. and his Heirs, To hold to him and the Heirs of his Body, &c. here he will have an Estate in Tail, and a Fee-simple upon it. Litt. ch. 2. 1 Inst. 21. Lands are given to two Brothers, &c. and to the Heirs of their Bodies begotten; during their Lives they shall have joint Estates, so that the Survivor will have all for his Life; and after their Deaths, their Heirs have Estates in general Tail, by Moieties in common one with another. 1 Inst. 25. 1 Rep. 140. When a Remainder is limited to two, and the Heirs Male of their Bodies, they have not joint but several Estates-tail: And between Baron and Feme, 'tis said several Moieties may be of an Estate-tail, as well as of a Fee-simple. Cro. Eliz. 220. Moor 228. 2 Lill. Abr. 551. A Feoffment was made to the Use of the Feoffor for Life, Remainder to W. R. his Son and his Heirs; and for Want of Issue of him, Remainder to the Right Heirs of the Feoffor; adjudged W. R. hath only an Estate in Tail; for though the first Words of the Sentence, viz. to his Son and his Heirs, make a Fee-simple, the subsequent Words in the same Sentence, i. e. and for Want of Issue of him, make an Estate-tail by qualifying and abridging the same. 5 Mod. 266. 3 Salk. 337. Feoffment to the Use of a Man's Self; and afterwards he made his Will, by which he devised that the Feoffees should make an Estate to all his Sons, except to Henry; and if all his Sons died without Issue, Remainder to a Stranger: It was held, that because Henry was not excepted in this last Clause, he had an Estate-tail. Heil. 57. Though an Estate-tail is created by the Words Dying without Issue, &c. yet where the Limitation is to a Son upon a Dying without Issue, in the Life-time of another, there it will be otherwise. Dyer 334. If a Person gives Lands to A. for Life, and after his Death without Issue, then to another Person; though here is an express Estate for Life given to A. the subsequent Words make an Estate-tail: But where Lands are devised to A. during Life, the Remainder to Trustees, Remainder to his first Son, &c. and if A. dies without Issue, then, &c. The Limitation upon the Devisee's Death, 'tis said will not give an Estate in Tail to A. but it shall be here intended, that if he died without having a Son. 1 P. Williams 605. A Father having two Sons, devised his Lands to his youngest Son, and if he died without Heirs, then to his eldest Son and his Heirs; the youngest Son had an Estate-tail, because the Devise to him, and if he died without Heirs, is the same as if the Testator had devised it in these Words, (viz.) If he die without Heirs of his Body; for otherwise the Remainder limited to the eldest Son had been void, as the youngest Son cannot die without Heirs, so long as the Eldest is living. 1 Rel. Abr. 836. In Ejectment the Case was, the Father having three Sons, devised his Lands to his second Son, and his Heirs for ever; and for Want of such Heirs, then to the right Heirs of the Father; then the Father died, and his second Son entered, and died without Issue, living the eldest Son: It was resolved, that the second Son had but an Estate-tail, and that the Devise over by these Words, and for Want of such Heirs, is void in Point of Limitation, for the Testator's Intent was that the Lands should descend from himself, and not from his second Son; and the Words, Want of such Heirs, could import no other than Want of Issue, &c. so that the eldest Son takes by Descent in this Case, and not by the Will. 1 Salk. 233. A Person devised Land to his Wife for Life, Remainder to his Son, and his Heirs for ever; and if he died without Heirs, the same to remain to his two Daughters: In this Case it was held in Equity, that the Rule is, where a Remainder over is to one, who may be the Devisee's Heir at Law, such Limitation will be good, and the first construed an Estate-tail; for the Generality of the Word Heirs, shall be restrained to Heirs of the Body, since the Testator could not but know that the Devisee would not die without an Heir, while the Remainder Man, or any of his Issue continued: But where the second Limitation is to a Stranger, 'tis merely void, and the first is a Fee-simple. Talbot's Chan. Caf. 2. An Estate-tail cannot merge by the Accession of the Fee-simple to it: But it has been adjudged, that two Fees immediately expectant upon one another, (as where a Man is Tenant in Tail, and Remainder in Fee to the Tenant in Tail) cannot subsist in the same Person; and the Statute of Westm. having made Estates-tail a Kind of particular Estates, they must like all other such Estates be subject to Mesger and Extinguishment, when united with the absolute Fee. 8 Rep. 74. 1 Salk. 338. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail, and Tenant in Tail enfeoff the Reversioner in Fee; it is a Discontinuance: And Tenants in Tail can make no greater Estate than for their own Lives; unless it be by Lease, &c. according to the Stat. 32 H. 8. 1 Rep. 140. If Tenant in Tail Bargain and Sell Lands to another and his Heirs, or make a Lease and Release to the Use of himself for Life, with Remainder over to another, &c. These Estates may be avoided by Entry of the Issue in Tail. Farrers. Mod. Ca. 23, 28. Estates-tail are usually created upon Settlements: Though an Agreement to intail, is no Intail; for no Agreement shall bind the Issue in Tail, where there is a first Intail, without a Fine. Chan. Rep. 236. It is incident to an Estate-tail, to be disposable of Waste; that the Wife of the Donee shall be endowed; and if the Husband of a Feme Donee, be Tenant by the Curtesy; and that the Tenant in Tail may suffer a common Recovery, &c. and therefore Conditions to restrain any of these, are void. 1 Inst. 224. 10 Rep. 38. As by Statute it is incident to Estates-tail, to make Leases; so by Custom, it is to grant Lands by Copy of Court-Roll, &c. See Recovery.

Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, Is where Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, in Special Tail, and either of them dies without Issue had between them; the Survivor hath an Estate in Tail after Possibility of Issue, &c. Also if they have Issue, and the Issue dies without Issue, whereby there is none left which may inherit by Force of the Intail, the Survivor of the Donees hath an Estate-tail after Possibility. Litt. 32. The Estate of this Tenant must be created by the Act of God, viz. by the Death of either Party without Issue; none can have this Estate but one of the Donees, or a Donee in special Tail; for a Donee in general Tail may by Possibility have Issue. Litt. 34. 1 Inst. 28. 11 Rep. 80. And if one gives Lands to a Man and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies in special Tail, and they live till each of them are one hundred Years old, and have no Issue; yet doth the Law see no Impossibility of having Children, and they continue Tenants in Tail: But if the Wife die without Issue, there the Law seeth an apparent Impossibility. 1 Inst. 28. Tenants in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, are not punishable for Waste; as are Tenants for Life: But such Tenants, or Tenants by the Curtesy, &c. may not suffer a Recovery. And though they have more Privileges than Tenant for Life hath; as if they alien the Land, he in Reversion cannot have a Writ of Entry in Casu Consimili; and they need not require Aid, &c. Yet as to the Quantity of their Estates, they have no Privilege above Estates for Life: For if such Tenant in Tail after Possibility, make a Feoffment of his Land, he in Reversion may enter for the Forfeiture, &c. 1 Inst. 27, 28. 9 Rep. 139. Litt. Sect. 34. A Tenant in Tail cannot be seized to any Use expressed; for his Estate is so fixed, that none can execute the Use: And where Tenants in Tail general or special, &c. die without Issue, the Donor or his Heirs may enter. Jenk. Cent. 195. Litt. 18. If Tenant in Tail in Remainder, be attainted of Treason, &c. the King shall have the Land; for it may not be in Abeyance, nor in any other, he not being dead, but in Law: The Chief Lord cannot have it, by Reason the Tenant for Life is alive; so neither he that is in Reversion, &c. and it cannot Revert, before the Tenant in Tail die without Issue. 2 Leon. 123. Vide Stat. 10 Geo. 2. c. 26.

Tales, (Lat.) Is used in the Law for a Supply of Men impanelled on a Jury and not appearing, or on their Appearance challenged as not indifferent; when the Judge upon Motion orders a Supply to be made by the Sheriff, &c. of one or more such Persons present in Court, equal in Reputation to those that were impanelled, to make up a full Jury, which he could not do by the Common Law; and this is by the Statutes 35 H. 8. c. 6. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 32. 14 Eliz. c. 9. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 32. &c. Tales are of two Sorts; i. e. Tales de Circumstantibus, and a Decem Tales; a Tales de Circumstantibus is where a full Jury do not appear at the Nisi prius, or so many are challenged that there is not a full Jury; then on the Prayer of the Plaintiff's Counsel or Attorney, the Judge will grant this Tales, which the Sheriff returns immediately in Court: A Decem Tales is when a full Jury doth not appear at a Trial at Bar, and is a Writ to the Sheriff appone Decem Tales. 10 Rep. 102. Finch 414. 2 Roll. Abr. 67. Upon a Trial at Bar, if the Jury do not appear full, the Court cannot grant a Tales de Circumstantibus, but will grant a Decem Tales, returnable in some convenient Time the same Term, to try the Cause. 2 Lill. Abr. 552. And a Tales de Circumstantibus ought not to be in an Affise, only a Nisi prius; the Decem Tales must be awarded in an Affise. Cro. Car. 341. A Plaintiff or Defendant may have a Tales de Circumstantibus; and the Statutes which authorize Justices of Nisi prius to award a Tales de Circumstantibus, extend as well to capital Cases as to others; but such a Tales cannot be prayed for the King upon an Indictment, or criminal Information, without a Warrant from the Attorney General, or an express Assignment from the Court before which the Inquest is taken: Though it may be awarded on an Information qui tam, &c. because of the Interest which the Prosecutor hath in such Prosecutions. 2 Hawk. P. C. 409. 3 Salk. 339. A Tales is not to be granted where the whole Jury is challenged, &c. but the whole Panel, if the Challenge be made good, is to be quashed, and a new Jury returned; for a Tales consists but of some Persons to supply the Places of such of the Jurors as were wanting of the Number of Twelve, and is not to make a new Jury. 2 Lill. Abr. 252. If but one Juror appears on the Principal Panel, the Court may order a Tales by the Statute 35 H. 8. 10 Rep. 102. And if upon a Habeas Corpus, or a Disfringas Jur. none of the Jury appear, it is said a Decem Tales shall be awarded: But it shall not be had upon a Veniis fac. Cro. Eliz. 502. Moor 528. See Dyer 245. 2 Roll. Rep. 75. At the Affises, one of the Principal Panel appeared, and no more, and a Tales was awarded, the Title whereof was Nomina Decem Talium, and under it Eleven were returned; this was notwithstanding held good; for it is only a Misprision of the Clerk, and Decem was struck out, and then the Title was Nomina Talium, &c. And it was adjudged, that if after a Tales granted, the Principal Panel should be quashed, the Tales should stand good, and more be added, &c. 4 Rep. 103. 2 Cro. 316. 3 Nelf. Abr. 275. A Day being appointed for a Trial at Bar, the Sheriff of the County by Order of the Plaintiff countermanded the Jurymen; but the Defendant did not know it; whereupon he and Threes of the Jury appeared on the Day, and the Defendant prayed a Tales that the Trial might go on; though the Court would not grant it, but offered to nonsuit the Plaintiff on Record, and directed that the Defendant should contribute to satisfy the three Jurors who appeared, and referred it to the Secondary to tax Costs for the Defendant in Satisfaction of his Trouble and Expences. 2 Sid. 77. No Person shall take any Reward or Fee, upon the Account of any Tales returned; on Pain of forfeiting 10 l. one Moiety to the Informer, and the other to the King. 4 & 5 W. & M. And by this Act, the Qualification of Talesmen is to be 5 l. per Annum Freehold Estate, &c. The Tales de Circumstantibus, is in some Measure taken away, or rendered useless, by the late Statute for regulating of Juries. 3 Geo. 2. c. 25.

Talley, (Tallea, Fr. Taille, Ital. Tagliare, i. e. Scindere) Is a Stick cut in two Parts; on each whereof is marked with Notches, or otherwise, what is due between Debtor and Creditor; as now used by Brewers, &c. And this was the ancient Way of Keeping all Accounts, one Part being kept by the Creditor, the other by the Debtor, &c. Hence the Tallier of the Exchequer, whom we now call the Teller. But there are two Kinds of Tallies mentioned in our Statutes to have been long used in the Exchequer; the one is termed Tallies of Debt, which are in the Nature of an Acquittance for Debts paid to the King, on the Payment whereof these Tallies are delivered to the Debtors, who carrying them to the Clerk of the Pipe-Office, have there an Acquittance in Parchment for their full Discharge. 1 R. 2. c. 5. The other are Tallies of Reward or Allowance, being made to Sheriffs of Counties as a Recompence for such Matters as they have performed to their Charge, or such Money as is cast upon them in their Accounts of Court, but not leviable, &c. 27 Hen. 8. c. 11. 33 & 34 H. 8. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. In the Exchequer there is a Talley Court, where attend the two Deputy Chamberlains of the Exchequer, and the Talley-cutter: And a Talley is generally the King's Acquittance for Money paid or lent, and has written on it Words proper to express on what Occasion the Money is received. Lex Constituta. 205.

Eliz.* 655. Cro. Jac. 134. In Action popular, brought Tam quam, the King can discharge but his own Part, and not the Informer's; but before Action brought, the King may discharge the Whole. 3 Inst. 238. See Information.

Tax, (Taxa, from the Gr. Taxis, i. e. Ordo, Tributum) A Tribute or Imposition laid upon the Subject, which being certainly and orderly rated, was wont to be yearly paid into the King's Exchequer: And it differs from what is commonly called a Subsidy, in this, That it is always certain as it is set down in the Exchequer Book, and levied in general of every Town, and not particularly of every Man, &c. No History mentions that the Saxon Kings had any Taxes after the Manner of ours at present; but they had Levies of Money and personal Services towards Repairing of Cities, Castles and Bridges, and for military Expeditions, which they called Burghbote, Briqbote and Herageld; and when the Danes invaded this Kingdom, great Sums of Money were raised yearly, by a Tax on every Hide of Land, the Lands of the Church only excepted; and thence it was afterwards called Hydagium, which Name remained and was used for all Taxes and Subsidies imposed on Lands; though sometimes it was laid upon Cattle, and then was termed Horngeld: The Normans called these sometimes Taxes, other Times Tallages; and made a Law for the

the particular Manner of their Levying; but many Years after the Conquest, they were levied otherwise than now, as every ninth Fleece, and every ninth Sheaf, &c. Royal's Abr. 4 Inst. 26, 33. It is said that in ancient Times, Taxes were imposed by the King at his Pleasure; but King Edw. 1. bound himself and his Successors, in the 25th Year of his Reign, that from that Time forward no Tax should be laid upon the Subject, without the Assent of the Lords and Commons in Parliament. Stat. 25 Edw. 1. c. 5. But although Taxes which are for the Defence of the Realm, cannot be imposed but by Act of Parliament; yet the Crown has a Right to ask them, upon any Emergency, and therefore 'tis held they have a virtual Existence always, tho' no actual one. In the 14th Year of Ed. 3. an Aid was granted to the King by the Parliament; and Anno 5 R. 2. a Royal Aid for keeping the Sea, and preserving of Rights: Also a Subsidy of 1s. in 20s. on Goods, and Aliens to pay 2s. &c. was granted by 3 & 4 Ed. 6. Besides Fifteenths and Tenths, payable by the Temporality and Clergy in two or three Years, &c. And the Way of Taxing was formerly by Tenths and Fifteenths; then by Subsidies, afterwards by Royal Aids, and at last by a Pound Rate; the former were all upon the Person and Personal Estate, and were much the same; but the Pound-Rate was on Lands and Rents. Anno 18 Ed. 3. a Valuation was made of all the Towns in England; and returned into the Exchequer, and this became the standing Rule for Taxing every Town, (viz.) When a Tax was given, the Officers of the Exchequer presently knew to how much it amounted for every Town, and the Inhabitants taxed the Landholders, and Occupiers of Lands, and they were charged and paid their Proportion, &c. A Subsidy was granted Anno 32 Hen. 8. and this was a Tax upon the Person, both for Lands and Goods, and payable where the Persons lived; and this continued till the 15 Car. 1. and about two Years afterwards the first Assessment was made upon Lands and Rents, according to a Pound-Rate. 2 Inst. 76, 77. 3 Salk. 340. In the 16 & 17 Car. 1. Taxes were granted for Relief of, and disbanding the Army, &c. And 13 Car. 2. cap. 3 & 4. the Sum of 1,260,000 l. was granted for eighteen Months at 70,000 l. per Month, charged on the several Counties by Lieutenants, for Ammunition for the Militia, and several Aids were granted, one of 2,477,000 l. for fitting out a Navy and Maintenance of Wars, &c. in the Years 16, 17, 18, 19 & 25 Car. 2. Also a free and voluntary Present was granted to King Cha. 2. but it was ordained that the same should not be drawn into Example. King James 2. had Aids and Taxes granted him by Parliament; and after the Revolution, heavy Taxes were necessarily laid on Lands and Personal Estate, in the Reigns of King Will. 3. and Queen Anne, to defend the Crown and Kingdom against the Efforts of the King of France, in Favour of the pretended Prince of Wales, and secure the Protestant Succession in the Line of his present Majesty King George. Since this Necessity, joined to others, Land Taxes have been annually granted of 1s. 2s. 3s. and 4s. in the Pound, as the present Exigencies have required; enacted to be levied by Commissioners on the several Counties, Cities, Towns, &c. And in respect of this Tax, it is not the Quantity but the yearly Value of Lands that must be observed; the Farmers or Occupiers of the Land, are to be charged, and deduct it out of their Rents to the Landlords; and a Man may be rated for Goods, as well as Lands, but not for both; and in Case of a Rate on Goods, the Charge must be on the Person: The Commissioners are to ascertain the several Proportions of the Tax, to be charged on every Hundred or Division; and appoint fit Persons to be Assessors and Collectors in every Parish to assess and levy the Money, which when received is to be paid to Receivers; General, and by them returned to the Exchequer, &c. If any Person refuse to pay the Tax, the Collectors may levy it by Distress and Sale of their Goods; but if they are over-rated, they shall be relieved on Appeal to the Commissioners, who have Power to charge the same on others, as they shall see Cause, and in Case of Deficiency to make a Re-assessment; Assessors neglecting their Duty, are to be fined not exceeding 40 l. And Collectors detaining the Money, shall be imprisoned, and their Estates seized and sold, &c. If a General Receiver neglects to return the Money by him received, he is liable to the Penalty of 500 l. And where there is any Failure in raising and paying the Sums of Money charged on any County, Process may issue against the Commissioners for their Neglect, &c. By other later Statutes, when Lands, &c. are assessed at more than an equal Pound-Rate, the Commissioners upon Complaint made in twenty Days, shall abate it, and re-assess such Abatements within the whole Hundred, &c. or on Persons under-rated, so as the Sum charged be fully paid. And where Assessors have omitted to charge themselves to the Land Tax for their own Estates, Commissioners by Statute have been empowered to summon and examine them or others on Oath, and upon Discovery thereof, to award Satisfaction to be made to the Collectors. If Lands or Houses are unoccupied, whereby the Parish is obliged to make good the Tax, the Collectors at any Time after, may enter and Distrain, and sell the Distress in four Days, and the Money shall be distributed proportionably to the Parties who paid for such Lands, &c. In Case any Persons by changing their Residence, escape the Taxation, on Proof before two of the Commissioners, or a Justice of Peace, within one Year, they are to be charged at treble the Value, to be levied by Distress, &c. And in the taking these Distresses, Collectors may break open Houses, Chests, &c. in the Day-time, upon a Warrant under the Hands of two Commissioners, and calling Constables to their Assistance: Also if any Person refuse to pay the Tax, by the Space of ten Days after Demand, or convey away his Goods, &c. the Commissioners may commit him to the common Gaol, till Payment. Papists are doubly taxed; but the Colleges in the Universities are exempted from paying any Thing to this Tax: There is a Poundage Fee for collecting the Tax, of 3 d. per Pound to the Collectors, 2 d. per Pound to the General Receiver, and 1 d. Half-penny per Pound to the Commissioners Clerks. Stat. 1 Geo. 1, &c. See 12, 13, & 15 Geo. 2. The above Statutes, or Land Tax Acts, where 2s. in the Pound is granted, have generally Clauses of Loan of One Million, and when the Tax is 4s. a Pound, Two Millions for publick Uses; likewise in the Malt Tax Acts, there is such Clause of Loan for 750,000 l. at 3 or 4 per Cent. Interest, the Loan to be allowed by the Commissioners or the Treasury, &c.

Taxatio Bladiorum, is a Tax or Imposition laid upon Corn, according to Cowel.

Temporalities of Bishops, Are the Revenues, Lands, Tenements, and Lay-Fees, belonging to Bishops, as they are Barons and Lords of Parliament; all Things as a Bishop hath by Livery from the King, as Manors, Lands, Tithes, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 881. It was a Custom formerly, that when Bishops received from the King their Temporalities, they did by a solemn Form in Writing renounce all Right to the same by Virtue of any Provision from the Pope, and acknowledged the Receipt of them only from the King; which Custom continued from the Reign of Edw. 1. to the Time of the Reformation: And this Practice began by Occasion of a Bull of Pope Gregory 8. wherein he conferred the See of Worcester on a certain Bishop, and committed to him Administrationem Spiritualium & Temporalium Episcopatus prædicti. Anno 31 Edw. 1. The Custody of the Temporalities of every Bishop and Archbishop, during the Vacancy of the Sees, belongs to the King; and no subject can claim them by Grant or Prescription. F. N. B. 32, 34. 2 Inst. 15. And the King may commit the Temporalities during the Vacation of the See; also he may present to a void Advowson, when the Temporalities are in his Hands. *1 Inst. 90, 388. Tenant, (Tenens à tenendo, from holding) Is one that holds or occupies Lands or Tenements, by any Kind of Right, of some Lord or Landlord, by Rent, Fealty, &c. Also the Word Tenant is used with divers Additions; as Tenant in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, Years, or at Will; Tenant in Dower, by the Courtesy, by Copy of Court Roll; Tenant in Mortgage, by Statute-Merchant, and Statute-Staple, Elogit, &c. Co. Lit.

Tenants in Common, Are such as hold Lands for Life or Years, by several Titles, or by one Title and several Rights; and as Jointenants have one joint Freehold, so Tenants in Common have divers Freeholds. 1 Inst. 188. If a Conveyance is made to two Persons, Habendum the one Moiety to one and his Heirs, and the other Moiety to the other, &c. it is a Tenancy in Common, and the Heirs and Executors of Tenants in Common, shall have their Parts or Shares, and not the Survivors, as in Case of Jointenants. 2 Lill. Abr. 559. Tenants in Common know not their own Part, but take the Profits in Common: One Tenant in Common cannot bring Action of Trespass against another Tenant in Common; but one such Tenant may bring Waste against his Partner, &c. 3 Leon. 307. 2 Lill. 561. At Common Law Tenants in Common were not compellable to make Partition; though they are by the Stat. 31 H. 8. See Jointenant.

Tenant to the Precipe, Is he against whom the Writ of Precipe is to be brought in suing out a Recovery. 3 Rep.

Tend, Seems to signify as much as Tender, or Offer; it is mentioned in our old Books, as to tend a Traverse, an Averment, &c. Briton. c. 76. Staundf. Prærog. 16.

Tender, (Fr. Tendre) Is the Offering of Money, or any other Thing in Satisfaction, or circumspcctly to endeavour the Performance of a Thing; as a Tender of Rent is to offer it at the Time and Place when and where it ought to be paid: And it is an Act done to save the Penalty of a Bond before Action brought, &c. Terms de Ley 557. Tender of Rent on any Part of the Land, or at any Time of the last Day of Payment, will save the Condition for that Time, though the Landlord refuse it: But when Rent is tendered, the Lessor may after bring Debt; though he cannot recover any Damages; the Lessee's being ready to pay excuses the Damages, but doth not debar the other of his Rent. 1 Inst. 200. Litt. Rep. 33, 34. 3 Salk. 344. A Tender of Rent to save the Forfeiture must be of the whole Rent due, without any Deduction of Taxes or other Payments; unless it be so agreed, &c. Stoppage being no Payment. 1 Inst. 202. Tender of Money on a Bond, is to be made to the Person of the Obligee at the Day appointed, to save the Penalty and Forfeiture of the Bond, and it ought to be done before Witnesses; though if the Obligor be sued afterwards, he must still pay it: But if the Obligor be to do any collateral Thing, or which is not Part of the Obligation, as to deliver a Horse, &c. and the Obligor offers to do his Part, and the Obligee refuseth it, the Condition is performed, and the Obligation discharged for ever. 1 Inst. 207, 208. A Sum awarded by an Award, was lost by the Tender; it being a collateral Thing. 3 Lew. 217. On Award, that the Defendant should pay Money on such a Day, and at such a Place; the Defendant pleaded, that he tendered the Money at the Day and Place, and because he did not set forth that he continued there ready to pay it at the last Instant of the Day till after Sun-setting, &c. it was held ill. 2 Cro. 243. Where Time and Place of doing an Act is made certain by Agreement of the Parties, and they both meet accordingly; he who pleads a Tender, must also plead a Refusal of the other Party to accept; otherwise such Plea will be ill upon a Demurrer, but not after Verdict; and if the Plaintiff be absent, that is to be set forth, and that the Defendant was at the Time and Place, & obtulit solvere, &c. 2 Salk. 623. A Tender and Refusal being pleaded, 'tis the Refusal which is traversable, and not the Tender, for 'tis that makes it a Payment in Law; and wherever the Demand is certain, there a Tender and Refusal is a good Plea; and a Tender is not well pleaded without a Refusal. 3 Salk. 341. In Action of Debt, Tender and Refusal may be pleaded in Bar of the Damages; though not in Bar of the Action, as the Debt still remains: There is a Difference in Pleading a Tender in Action of Debt, and in Action on the Case; in Debt, the Damages are but Accessary, so that in Pleading a Tender to such Action, the Defendant must pray Judgment de Damnis; but in Affumpsit, the Damages are Principal, and he is to plead semper paratus, with a Profert hic in Curia, and pray Judgment de ulterioribus Damnis. 2 Salk. 622. 3 Salk. 344, 345. A Man pleads a Tender of a Debt at the Day, he need not plead semper paratus; but uncore Prist, and bring the Money into Court. 2 Litt. Abr. 564. And Tender and Refusal, on Covenant to pay Money, where Damages only are to be recovered, is a good Plea without uncore Prist. Show. 129. Tender may be of Money in Bags, without shewing or telling it, if it can be proved there was the Sum to be tendered; it being the Duty of him that is to receive the Money, to put out and tell it. 5 Rep. 115. Though where a Person held the Money on his Arm in a Bag, at the Time of Offering it; this was adjudged no good Tender, for it might be Counters or base Money. Noy 74. 3 Nels. Abr. 281. If a Tender is made of more than is due, it is good; and the Party to whom tendered ought to take out what belongs to him. 5 Rep. 114. Tender of the Money is requisite on Contracts for Goods sold, &c. to intitle Action of Trover: And a Tender of Stock sold for so much Money, if it be well made though not accepted, will intitle the Party to the Sum agreed to be paid. 3 Salk. 343. See Bond, &c.

Tenement, (Tenementum) Signifies properly a House or Home-stall; but more largely it comprehends not only a House, but all Corporeal Inheritances which are holden of another, and all Inheritances issuing out of, or exercisable with the same. Co. Litt. 6, 19, 154. A Tenement may be said to be any House, Land, Rent, or other such like Thing, that is any Way held or possessed; but being a Word of a large and ambiguous Meaning, and not so certain as Messuage, therefore it is not fit to be used to express any Thing which requires a particular Description. 2 Litt. Abr. 566. The Word Tenement is joined with the adjective Frank, to denote an Estate in Lands, Offices, &c. for Life or in Fee. Kitch. 41.

Tenor, (Lat.) Of Writs, Records, &c. is the Substance or Purport of them; or a Transcript or Copy. Tenor of a Libel hath been held to be a Transcript, which it cannot be if it differs from the Libel; and juxta Tenorem imports it, but not ad Effectum, &c. for that may import an Identity in Sense, but not in Words. 2 Salk. 417. In Action of Debt brought upon a Judgment in an inferior Court, if the Defendant pleads Nul tiel Record, a Tenorem Recordi only shall be certified; and by Hale Chief Justice it may be the same on *Certiorari*s. 3 Salk. 296. A Return of the Tenor of an Indictment from London, on a Certiorari to remove the Indictment, is good by the City Charter; but in other Cases it is usual to certify the Record itself. 2 Hawk. P. C. 295.

Tenthis, (Decimæ) Are the Tenth Part of the annual Value of every Spiritual Benefice, being that yearly Portion or Tribute which all Ecclesiastical Livings pay to the King. They were anciently claimed by the Pope, to be due to him Jure divino, as High Priest, by the Example of the High Priest among the Jews, who had Tenthis from the Levites: But

But they have been often granted to the King by the Pope upon divers Occasions, sometimes for one Year, and sometimes for more; and were annexed perpetually to the Crown by Stat. 26 H. 8. 1 Edm. c. 4. And at last granted with the First Fruits, towards the Augmentation of the Maintenance of Poor Clergymen. 1 Ann. c. 11. Collectors of this Revenue are to be appointed by the King by Letters Patent, instead of the Bishops; and an Office is to be kept for Management of the same, in some Part of London or Westminster, &c. 3 Geo. 1. c. 10. Tenths signify likewise a Tax on the Temporality. Tenure, (Tenura, from the Lat. Tenere) Is the Manner whereby Lands or Tenements are holden; or the Service that the Tenant owes to his Lord: And there can be no Tenure without some Service, because the Service makes the Tenure. 1 Inst. 1, 93. A Tenure may be of Houses, and Land or Tenements; but not of a Rent, Common, &c. All Lands in the Hands of a Subject are held of some Lord or Landlord, by Tenure or Service; And all the Lands and Tenements in England are said to be holden either mediately or immediately of the King; and therefore he is Summus Dominus supra omnes. 2 Inst. 531. Tenure signifies the Estate in the Land; and Tenures were anciently divided into the following, viz. Escuage, which was Land held by the Service of the Shield, and by which the Tenant was obliged to follow his Lord into the Wars at his own Charge. Knights Service and Chivalry, where Lands were held of the King or meise Lord, to perform Service in War, and which drew after it Homage, Escuage, Wardship, &c. Burgage Tenure, where Land was holden of the Lord of the Borough, at a certain Rent. Villanage, a base Tenure of Lands, whereby the Tenant was bound to do all inferior villanous Services commanded by the Lord. Grand Serjeanty, a Tenure of Lands by Honourary Services at the King's Coronation, &c. And Petit Serjeanty, where Lands were held of the King to contribute yearly some small Thing towards his Wars. Frankalmoinage, a Tenure by which Land is held by Ecclesiastical Persons in free and perpetual Alms. And Socage Tenure, where Lands are holden by Tenants to plough the Land of their Lord, and do other Services of Husbandry at their own Expence; but this hath been turned into an yearly Rent, for all Manner of Services, when it is called Free Socage. Of these general ancient Tenures, Knights Service, Chivalry, Escuage, Petit Serjeanty, Villanage, &c. are taken away by Statute 12 Car. 2. The common Tenures at this Day, are Fee-simple, which is an absolute Tenure of Lands, to a Man and his Heirs for ever. Fee tail, a limited Fee to a Person and the Heirs of his Body begotten, &c. For Life and Years, where Lands are held by Tenants for those Terms, on Rents reserved. And Copyhold Tenure, a holding for Lives or in Fee, at the Will of the Lord, according to the Custom of the Manor, under divers Services, &c. Vide the Heads, and see Fee and Socage.

Term, (Terminus) Signifies commonly the Limitation of Time or Estate; as a Lease for Term of Life, or Years, &c. Brass. lib. 2.

Terminor, (Tenens or Termino) Is he that holds Lands or Tenements for Term of Years or Life. Litt. 100.

A Terminor for Years, cannot plead in Affise like Tenant of the Freehold; but the special Matter, viz. his Lease for Years, the Reversion in the Plaintiff, and that he is in Possession, &c. Dyer 246. Jenk. Cont. 142.

Terms, Are those Spaces of Time, wherein the Courts of Justice are open, for all that complain of Wrongs or Injuries, and seek their Rights by Course of Law or Action, in order to their Redress; and during which, the Courts in Westminster-Hall sit and give Judgments, &c. But the High Court of Parliament, the Chancery, and inferior Courts, do not observe the Terms; only the Courts of King's Bench, the Common Pleas, and Exchequer, the highest Courts at Common Law. Of these Terms there are Four in every Year, viz. Hillary-Term, which begins the 23d of January, and ends the 12th of February; Easter-Term, that begins the Wednesday Fortnight after Easter-Day, and ends the Monday next after Ascension-Day; Trinity-Term, which begins the Friday after Trinity Sunday, and ends the Wednesday Fortnight after; and Michaelmas-Term, that begins the 23d of October, and ends the 28th of November. Each Term has certain Returns; as Hillary-Term has Four, Easter hath Five, Trinity Four, and Michaelmas Six: And by Statute, Trinity-Term was abridged four Returns; and Michaelmas-Term two Returns; for those Terms were formerly longer than now, till contracted by the Statutes 32 H. 8. c. 21. and 16 Car. 1. c. 16. There are four Days in Term, called the Effoin-Day; the Day of Exceptions; the Day of Returns of Writs; and Day of Appearance, called the Quarto die post: The Term is said to begin on the Effoin-Day, when one Judge sits in each Court of Law at Westminster, to take and enter Effoins; but the third Day afterwards is the first Day of the Term, at which Time the Judges in all the Courts sit to do the Business of the Term. 2 Lill. Abr. 569. All the Term in Construction of Law is accounted but as one Day to many Purposes; for a Plea that is put in the last Day of a Term, is a Plea of the first Day of the Term; and a Judgment on the last Day of Term is as effectual as on the first Day. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. And for this Reason, the Judges may alter and amend their Judgments in the same Term, &c. It has been held, that the Courts sit not but in Term, as to giving of Judgments: And the Judges of B. R. and C. B. before Trinity-Term 1651. did not sit longer in Court than till one a-Clock upon the last Day of Term; because they would not encourage Attornies to neglect their Client's Business to the last Day of Term, as too commonly they do, to the Toil of the Court, and too much Hurry in Dispatch. Mich. 22 Car. 2. Lill. 91. Terms have been adjourned, and Returns of Writs and Processes confirmed. 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 4. Where there is a Term intervening between the Teste and Return of a Writ of Capias, &c. or when the Term to which a Suit is continued is adjourned, and the Suit is not adjourned, it is a Discontinuance, &c. 2 Hawk. 298. The issuable Terms are Hillary and Trinity-Terms only; so called, because in them the Issues are joined and Records made up of Causes, to be tried at the Lent and Summer Assises, which immediately follow. 2 Lill. Abr. 568.

The Terms in Scotland are Martinmas, Candlemas, Whitsonide and Lammas, at which Times the Court of Exchequer, &c. there is to be kept. Stat. 6 Ann. c. 6. And the Terms of our Universities for Students, are different in Time from the Terms of the Courts of Law.

Terms of the Law, Are artificial or technical Words and Terms of Art, particularly used in and adapted to the Profession of the Law. 2 Hawk. P. C. 239.

Thane, (From the Sax. Thenian, ministrare) Was the Title of those Persons as attended the English Saxon Kings in their Courts, and who held Lands immediately of them; and therefore in Domesday they were promiscuously called Thaini, and Servantes Regis. This Appellation was in Use among us after the Norman Conquest, as appears by a certain Writ of K. Will. 1. which runs thus: Willielmus Rex Salutem Hermannum Episcopum & omnes Thanos, &c. though not long afterwards the Word was disused, and instead thereof these Men were called Barones Regis: And there were also Thaini Minores, likewise titled Barons; they were Lords of Manors, and had a particular Jurisdiction within their Limits, and over their own Tenants in their Courts, which to this Day are called Courts-Baron: But this Word signifies sometimes a Nobleman; sometimes a Freeman; and sometimes a Magistrate; and more properly an Officer of the King. Skene saith, that it was a Name of Dignity, equal with the Son of an Earl: And Thainus Regis is taken for a Baron, by Sir Edu. Symb. par. 2. Vide Larceny.

It has been held, that an impossible Time is no Time; and where a Day or Time is appointed for the Payment of Money, and there is no such, the Money may be due presently. Hob. 189. 5 Rep. 22. If no certain Time is implied by Law for the Doing of any Thing, and there is no Time agreed upon by the Parties, then the Law doth allow a convenient Time to the Party for the Doing thereof, i. e. as much as shall be adjudged reasonable, without Prejudice to the Doer of it. 2 Lill. Abr. 572. In some Cases one hath Time during his Life for the Performance of a Thing agreed, if he be not hastened to do it by Request of the Party for whom it is to be done; but if in such Case he be hastened by Request, he is obliged to do it in convenient Time, after such Request made. Hill. 22 Car. 1. Isl. Man.*

Tinpeny, A Tribute so called, usually paid for the Liberty of Digging in Tin Mines, from the Sax. Tinnen, Stannus, & Pemig, Denarius, according to Du Fresne: But some Writers say, it is a customary Payment to the Tithingman from the several Friburghs, as Tedingpeny signified the Money paid the Sheriff by the several Tithings; for that Tin is only a Contraction of Tion, and means the Number Ten. It is mentioned in several Places in the Monasticon.—Non Tributa, non Tedingpeny, non Tinpeny, exigat. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 419.

Tithes, (Decima, from the Sax. Tiota, i. e. Tenth) Are the Tenth Part of the Increase yearly arising from the Profits of Lands, and Industry of the Pa-tioners of any Parish, payable to the Clergy for their Maintenance: They are an Ecclesiastical Inheritance, collateral to the State of the Land; and a Spiritual Duty, not released by a Release of all Demands of a Parishioner out of his Lands. 11 Rep. 13. 1 Cro. 293, 814. The Ecclesiastical Courts do hold, That Tithes are due for every Thing; though by the Common Law it is otherwise, for they are due only for such Things which arise by annual Profits. 4 Mod. 344. Tithes must be paid of all Things as yield an yearly Increase by the Act of God; but are not due to be paid Jure Divino, but per Legem Terræ. Selden. These Tithes are of very early Account with us; being mentioned in the Laws of King Albessan: Though the Priests, and Ministers of the Altar, lived at first wholly on Oblations; in after Times, the Laity gave a certain Portion of their Revenues to the Clergy, but this was voluntarily without any Constraint; which Gift was called Tithe, though not a tenth Part of their Income, or near so much. Then in a following Age, the Prelates in their Councils, in Concert with the Princes, made an express Law, by which they obliged the Laity to give a full Tenth of their Revenues and Fruits, &c. to the Ecclesiasticks. Chamb. Dig. But no Man had a Property in Tithes until the Council of Lateran, which was held in the Reign of our King John; for till that Time there were no Parishes distinct from one another, and by Consequence no Parish-Priests who could claim any Right to the Tithes: By a Canon made in the Lateran Council, every Person is compellable to pay Tithes to the Parson or Vicar of that Parish where they arise; whereas before, the Bishop of every Diocese made a general Distribution of Tithes to Spiritual Persons for their Subsistence, to charitable Uses, and for Repairs of the Church. Hob. 296. At Common Law none had Capacity to take Tithes, but only a Spiritual Person, or mixt Person, as the King; but a Layman was by the Common Law capable of a Discharge of Tithes. 2 Rep. Since the Statutes of Dissolution of Abbies, &c. which were made Anno 27 & 31 H. 8. Tithes and other Ecclesiastical Revenues have been transferred to Laymen, who were not capable to take them at Common Law; and Spiritual Profits being by those Statutes made Lay-Fees in the Hands of Temporal Men, if those Men were wrongfully kept out of their Possession, a subsequent Statute, made the 32 Hen. 8. gave them Remedy to recover in the King's Temporal Courts; though that Act did not take away the Force of the Ecclesiastical Law concerning Tithes; but all Spiritual Persons who had any Right to Tithes before the Statute, might sue for the same as formerly. 11 Rep. 8, 9, 10. An Affise for Tithes is given by the Statute 32 H. 8. c. 7. And the Statute of Limitations doth not extend to an Action of Debt for Tithes. Cro. Eliz. 559. Cro. Car. 513. Anciently many Men were so scrupulously careful in their Payment of Tithes, as they at their Deaths bequeathed Legacies, and ordered Mortuaries to be given to the Priest, in Lieu and Recompence of any Tithes which might be forgotten: But it was observed by Sir Edward Coke, that in later Times, Laymen taking Occasion to withdraw their Tithes, the Statutes 27 & 32 Hen. 8. and other Laws were made, to enforce the Payment thereof. 2 Inst. 648. By the 27 Hen. 8. c. 20. On Complaint, by a Judge of the Ecclesiastical Court, to two Justices of the Peace (one of the Quorum) of any Contumacy or Misdemeanor committed by a Defendant in any Suit depending for Tithes, and other Dues of the Church, the Justices may commit such Defendant to Prison, there to remain without Bail till he find sufficient Surety to give due Obedience to the Process, Decrees and Sentences of the Ecclesiastical Courts. The Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 7. requires, That all Persons do duly set forth, and pay Tithes; and if they are not set out and paid, the Party grieved may convene those as detain them before the Ecclesiastical Judge, who has Power to hear and determine, &c. And Persons refusing Payment after Sentences are to be committed to Prison by two Justices of Peace, on Certificate from the Judge; and if any Persons are disseised of a Parsonage or Tithes, made Temporal, they may have like Remedy in the Temporal Courts as for other Lands, &c. By 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 13. No Person shall carry away his Corn before he hath justly divided and set forth the Tenth Part, or agreed for the Tithes with the Parson or other Proprietor, on Pain of forfeiting treble the Value of the Tithes taken away; and the Owner claiming such Tithes may depute his Servant to view the said Tithes, and see that they are truly set out and severed from the Nine Parts, and the same to take away; and if any Person shall carry his Corn or Hay, before the Tithe is set forth, or withdraw his Tithes, stop the Owner, &c. from viewing or carrying away the same, upon due Proof before a Spiritual Judge, the Party shall pay double Value of the Tithes, besides Costs of Suit: And in Suits for subtracting or withdrawing of Tithes, the Ecclesiastical Judge may excommunicate Persons disobeying his Sentence, &c. The treble Damages are recoverable in the Temporal Courts, by Action of Debt; for they are given generally, not limiting where to be recovered; and the Forfeiture is to the Party grieved, though it is not given to any Person in certain by the Statute; but it cannot be demanded of Executors, because the Wrong was Personal, and it was a personal Contempt of the Statute: As for the double Value, it may be recovered in the Ecclesiastical Court; and it is equivalent to the treble Forfeiture to be recovered in the Temporal Courts, because one may sue in the Spiritual Court for the Tithes themselves, or a Recompence for them, and have also the double Value. 1 Inst. 159. 2 Inst. 612, 650. If the Tithes are set out and severed from the Nine Parts by the Owner, they are become Lay-Chatteles; so that if after the Severance they are carried away by a Stranger, the Remedy is in the Temporal Courts for treble the Value: And if the Owner of the Land carries them away after Severance, this is no Setting forth. 1 Cro. 607. 2 Inst. 613. The Laws of the Church oblige the Owners of Corn, Hay, &c. to give Notice to the Parson of the Setting forth the Tithes; but by the Common Law such Notice is not necessary; and the Statute gives the Parson only a Right of seeing the Tithes set out, but doth not oblige to Notice. 2 Kent. 48. 2 Damv. Abr. 595. If a Person sows his Land, and before Severance the Parson of the Parish dies, the Tithes shall be paid to the Successor; but if the Corn is cut down, the Parson's Executors shall have the Tithes. 1 Cro. And if a Parishioner die before he pay his Tithes, his Executors or Administrators may be sued for them; and if they have Affets to do it, must pay the same. Lee 69. 4 Sdep. Abr. 111. If a Man lets his Ground or Heritage, it is said the Parson may sue either the Owner of the Ground, or of the Cattle for his Tithe; if the Custom of the Place be not against it: And if to evade the Statute, the Owner of Corn, &c. sell it before Severance to another, who doth reap and carry away all the Corn; in this Case the Parson may sue the Vendor, who shall be charged with the treble Damages on the Statute. 13 Rep. 24. 2 Bullf. 184. A Lessee for Years agrees with the Parson to pay him 10*l.* per Annum for his Tithes, and that for this he shall be Tithe free; it is good to ground a Prohibition upon, if the Parson sue for the Tithes. 1 Leon. c. 208. The Statute 13 Eliz. enacts, That Composition for Tithes may be made by the concurrent Consent of the Parson, Patron, and Ordinary; and a Modus Decimandi may arise by Prescription from a real Composition, beyond the Memory of Man, &c. Where there is a Custom alledged for the Payment of Tithes, a Prohibition hibition shall go to the Ecclesiastical Court, which may not try Customs, but the Temporal Courts; and so it is of a Prescription to pay Money in lieu of Tithes; but in a Prescription, except it concerns a Layman, or a Prescription merely Spiritual, &c. it is otherwise. 2 Lev. 103. By the 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 6. Small Tithes of or under the Value of 40 s. may be recovered before two Justices of the Peace not interested in the Tithes, within twenty Days after Demand, and two Years after due; and the said Justices are empowered to administer an Oath to Witnesses, to summon the Party, and after Appearance, or in Default thereof, to determine the Case in Writing, with Coits not exceeding 10 s. but with Liberty of Appeal to the Quarter-Sessions, whose Judgment shall be final, unless the Title of such Tithes come in Question: The Justices may levy the Money adjudged by Distress, upon Refusal, ten Days after Notice, &c. And this Judgment being inrolled by the Complainant, shall not be removed by Certiorari; though if the Defendant insists on a Modus, and gives Security to pay Coits and Damages in the Courts above, which shall be given against him upon a Trial at Law, the Justices shall not proceed; but the Complainant is put to his Remedy by suing for his Tithes in the Courts at Westminster. This Statute doth not extend to the City of London, or any other Corporation, where the Tithes are particularly settled by Act of Parliament. The 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34. ordains, That if any Quaker refuse to pay or compound for great or small Tithes, &c. the two next Justices of Peace may, upon Complaint, convene him before them, and examine upon Oath the Matter of Complaint, and thereupon determine what is due to the Person complaining; and by Order under their Hands and Seals, direct the Payment in all Cases of or under 10 l. And if after the Order such Quaker shall refuse to comply, one of the Justices may by Warrant order the same to be levied by Distress, &c. subject to Appeal to the Quarter-Sessions, in which Case no Warrant for Distress may be granted till the Appeal is determined. By 1 Geo. 1. c. 6. the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34. is made perpetual; and that Statute is extended to the Recovery of any Tithes or Right belonging to the Church, with 10 s. Coits, &c. But notwithstanding all these Statutes, Tithes, if of any considerable Value, are commonly sued for in the Exchequer by English Bill; except it be upon the Statute of 2 & 3 Ed. 6. for treble and double Value, &c. And the Manner of Payment of Tithes is for the most part governed by Custom; it is the Customs of Parishes which generally determine what are the Dues of the Parson, especially of small Tithes. 11 Rep. 16. And Custom may make that Titheable, which of itself is not so. March 65. An ancient Statute obliged the Citizens of London to pay yearly to their Parsons, for every 20 s. Rent of all Houses, Shops, or Warehouses, 2 s. 9 d. and so in Proportion for greater and lesser Rents: But by an Act of Cba. 2. after the Fire of London, the whole Tithes of the Parishes in London were reduced to a Certainty, from 200 l. per Annum, the greatest Incomes of Rectors, to 100 l. per Annum the lowest, over and above Perquisites, Gifts, &c. to be levied by Rate and Assessment on the Inhabitants, made by the several Aldermen of Wards, Common Council Men and Churchwardens; and in Default of Payment, by Distress and Sale of Goods, by Virtue of the Lord Mayor's Warrant; and to be paid Quarterly, &c. The Sums assessed are appointed in lieu of Tithes, for the Maintenance of the respective Parsons, Vicars, &c. of the Parishes in the Act mentioned; and in Parishes where there are Improvements, the Improvements shall pay and allow what they formerly used and ought to pay to the several Incumbents, as Part of the Maintenance of the Parsons; and no Court or Judge Ecclesiastical or Temporal, shall have Cogniance of or determine any Controversy relating to the Sums ordained for those Tithes, but the Persons mentioned in the Statute 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 15.

Tithes are due of common Right to the Parson or Rector of the Parish; and are of three Kinds, viz. Predial, Personal, or Mixed: Predial, such as immediately arise from the Land, either by Manurance, or of its own Nature, as Corn, Grain, Hay, Wood, Fruit and Herbs; and these are due without deducting the Coits. Personal Tithes are those as arise from the Labour and Industry of Man only, being the tenth Part of his clear Gains in Trade, &c. after Charges deducted; which are paid when due by Custom, though but seldom in England, and payable where the Party dwells, and hears Divine Service, &c. But see the Statute 2 & 3 Ed. 6. Mixed, such as arise not immediately from the Ground, but proceed from Cattle and other Things that receive their Nourishment from, and are maintained out of the Land; as Colts, Calves, Pigs, Wool, Lambs, Milk, Cheese, &c. and are paid where they arise. 2 Inst. 490, 649, 656. And Tithes as to their Value, are likewise divided into Great and Small: Great Tithes are Corn, Hay, and Wood; small Tithes comprehend all other Predial Tithes besides Corn and Hay, &c. as also those Tithes which are Personal and Mixed: Some Things may be great or small Tithes, in Regard of the Place; as Hops in Gardens are small Tithes, and in Fields may be great Tithes; and 'tis said the Quantity will turn a small Tithe into a great one, if the Parish is generally sown with it. 1 Roll. Abr. 643. 1 Cro. 578. Wood's Inst. 162. According to the Opinion of Holt, Ch. Just. where Flax or Hemp grow in Gardens, they shall be accounted small Tithes; but when sowed in large Quantities in Fields, that alters the Nature of those Things, and then they become great Tithes: But the other Judges held, that the Quantity did not alter the Nature of the Flax; for let that be as much or as little as it will, it is still small Tithes. 3 Lev. 365. 4 Mod. 183. 3 Nels. Abr. 313. Great Tithes generally belong to the Rector; and small Tithes to the Vicar. Cro. Car. 20. The particular Things for which Tithes are paid, and for which not, according to our Law; are the following, viz. Acorns, as they yearly increase, are liable to the Payment of Tithes; but this is where they are gathered and sold, and reduced to a certain Profit; not when they drop, and the Hogs eat them. 2 Inst. 643. Hel. 27. After-math, or After-pasture pays no Tithes, except by Custom; being the Remains of what was before sowed. 2 Inst. 652. 2 Danv. Abr. 589. Tit. Dispers. Agistment of Cattle upon Pasture Land, which hath paid no other Tithes that Year, pays Tithe for the Cattle; and if a Man breeds or buys barren unprofitable Cattle and sells them, he shall pay for the Agistment; but if he depastures his Land with his own Saddle Horses, he shall pay no Tithes. If Ground is eat up with unprofitable Cattle of a Man's own, or others, a tenth Part of the yearly Value of the Rent of the Land, i. e. the Sum of 2 s. per Pound, is payable by the Owner of the Land, or his Tenant; though the twentieth Part is usually accepted. 1 Roll. Abr. 646. Hard. 184. Alder Trees pay Tithes, notwithstanding they are above twenty Years Growth, not being Timber. Asp is Timber, and therefore if these Trees are above twenty Years Growth they are Tithe free. Asp or Aspin Trees are exempted, if beyond that Growth, in Places where they are used for Timber. 2 Cro. 199. 2 Inst. 643. Bark of Trees is not Titheable, if the Trees whereon produced were Timber. 11 Rep. 49. Barren Land, which is so of its own Nature, pays no Tithe; where Land is barren, and not manurable without some extraordinary Charge, in respect of such Charge, and for the Advancement of Husbandry, such Land being converted to Tillage, shall for the first seven Years after the Improvement, be discharged from Tithes, by the Act 2 & 3 Ed.

3 Ed. 6. cap. 13. But the barren Land, during the seven Years of Improvement, shall pay such small Tithes as have been accustomedly paid before; and afterwards is to pay the full Tithe according to the Improvement: And if Land is over-run with Bushes, or become unprofitable by bad husbandry, it cannot properly be called barren Land; for if it be grubbed, or plough'd and sow'd, it immediately pays Tithes. 2 Inst. 656. Cro. Eliz. 475. Beach Trees, where Timber is scarce, and these Trees are used for Building, if above twenty Years Growth to be Timber, are privileged from Tithes, by the Stat. 45 Ed. 3. c. 3. though this Tree is not naturally Timber, for 'tis Necessity makes it so. 2 Danv. Abr. 589. Bees are tithable for their Honey and Wax, by the tenth Measure, and tenth Pound: It hath been a Question whether the tenth Swarm can be demanded for Tithes of Bees, because Bees are Fera Natura; but when the Bees are gathered into Hives, they are then under Custody, and may pay Tithe by the Hive or Swarm; but the Tithe is generally paid in the tenth Part of the Honey or Wax. 1 Roll. Abr. 651. 3 Cro. 404, 559. Birch Wood is tithable, though of above twenty Years Growth. 2 Inst. 643. Bricks pay not Tithes, for they are made of Parcel of the Freehold, and are of the Substance of the Earth, not an annual Increase. 1 Cro. 1. Broom shall pay Tithe; but it may be discharged by Custom, if burnt in the Owner's House, or kept for Husbandry. 2 Danv. Abr. 597. Calves are tithable, and the tenth Calf is due to the Parson when weaned, and he is not obliged to take it before; but if in on Year a Person hath not the Number of ten Calves, the Parson is not intitled to Tithes in Kind for that Year, without a special Custom for it, though he may take it the next Year, throwing both Years together; and it is a good Custom to pay one Calf in seven, where there hath been no more in one Year; and where a Man sells a Calf to pay the Tenth of the Value, or for the Parson to have the right Shoulder, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 648. Raym. 277. Cattle sold pay Tithe; but not Cattle kept for the Plough or Pail, which shall pay no Tithe for their Pasture, by Reason the Parson hath the Benefit of the Labour of Plough Cattle in tilling the Ground, by the Tithe of Corn, and Tithe Milk for those kept for the Pail; yet if such Cattle bought are sold before used, or if being past their Labour, the Cows are barren, and afterwards fattened in order to sell, Tithes shall be paid for them; though if the Owner kill and spend the Cattle in his own House, no Tithe is due for them, being for his Provision to support him in his Labour about other Affairs, for which the Parson hath Tithes. Cattle feeding on large Commons, where the Bounds of the Parish are not certainly known, shall pay Tithes to the Parson of the Parish where the Owner lives; and if fed in several Parishes, and they continue above a Month in each Parish, Tithes shall be paid the two Parsons proportionably. 1. Roll. Abr. 646, 647, 635. Hardr. 35. Chalk and Chalk pits are not tithable; nor is Clay or Coal, as they are Part of the Freehold, and not annual, to pay Tithes. 2 Inst. 651. Cheese pays Tithe by Custom, where Tithe is not paid for the Milk; but if the Milk pays a Tithe the Cheese pays none: And it may be a good Custom to pay the tenth Cheese made in such a Month, for all Tithe Milk in that Year. 1 Roll. Abr. 651. Chickens are not tithable, because Tithe is paid for the Eggs. 1 Roll. Abr. 642. Colts pay Tithes in the same Manner as Calves. Ibid. Conies are tithable only by Custom, for those that are sold; not for such as are spent in the House. 2 Danv. Abr. 583. Corn pays a Prædial Tithe; it is tithed by the tenth Cock, Heap, or Sheaf, which if the Owner do not set out, he may be sued in an Action upon the Statute 2 & 3 Ed. 6. And if the Parishioner will not sow his Land usually sown, the Parson may bring his Action against him. When Tithe Corn is set forth, the Law gives the Parson a reasonable Time to carry it away; and if he suffer the same to lie too long on the Land to the Prejudice of the Owner thereof, he may be liable to an Action: But the Parson may not set out the Tithes himself, or take them away without Leave. 1 Roll. Abr. 644. 1 Sid. 283. 2 Vent. 48. Ley 70. Deer are not tithable, for they are Fera Natura; though in Parks, &c. they pay Tithes by Custom. 2 Inst. 651. Doves kept in a Dove-house if they are not spent in the Owner's House are tithable. 1 Vent. 5. Eggs pay Tithes when Tithes are not paid for the Young. 1 Roll. Abr. 642. Elm Trees being Timber are discharged from the Payment of Tithes, but not if under twenty Years Growth. 2 Inst. 643. Fallow Ground is not tithable for the Pasture in that Year in which it lies fallow, unless it remain beyond the Course of Husbandry; because it improves and renders the Land more fertile by lying fresh. 1 Roll. Abr. 642. Fens being drain'd and made manurable, or converted into Pasture, are subject to the Payment of Tithes. 1 Roll. Rep. 354. Fish taken in the Sea or common Rivers, are tithable only by Custom, and the Tithe is to be paid in Money, and not the tenth Fish; but Fish in Ponds and Rivers inclos'd, ought to be set forth as a Tithe in Kind. 2 Danv. Abr. 583, 584. Flax pays Tithe; every Acre of Flax or Hemp sown shall pay yearly 5 s. for Tithe, and no more. 11 & 12 W. 3. cap. 16. Forest Lands shall pay no Tithes while in the Hands of the King, though such Lands in the Hands of a Subject shall pay Tithes; and if a Forest shall be disafforested, and within a Parish, it shall pay Tithes. 1 Roll. Abr. 655. 3 Cro. 94. Fowls, as Hens, Geese, Ducks, are to pay Tithes, either in Eggs or the Young, according to Custom, but not in both: Turkies are said to be exempt from Tithes. 2 Danv. Abr. 583. Fruit, Apples, Pears, Plums, Cherries, &c. pay Tithes in Kind when gathered; and ought to be set out according to the Statute. 2 Inst. 621. Fruit-Trees cut down and sold, are not tithable, if they have paid Tithe Fruit that Year before cut. Ibid. 652. Furzes, if sold, pay Tithe, not if used for Fuel in the House, or to make Pens for Sheep, &c. Wood's Inst. 166. Gardens are tithable as Lands, and therefore Tithes in Kind are due for all Herbs, Plants, and Seeds sowed in them; but Money is generally paid by Custom or Agreement. Ibid. Grass mowed is tithable by Payment of the tenth Cock, or according to Custom; but for Grass cut in Swarths for Sustainance of Plough Cattle only, not made into Hay, no Tithe is to be paid. Grass or Corn, &c. when sold standing, the Buyer shall pay the Tithes; and if sold after cut and severed, the Seller must pay it. 1 Roll. Abr. 644, 645. Wood's Inst. 166. Hazle, Holly, and Maple Trees, &c. are regularly tithable, although of 20 Years Growth. 2 Danv. Abr. 589. Hay pays a Prædial Tithe; the tenth Cock is to be set out and paid, after made into Hay, by the Custom of most Places, and the Parishioners shall make the Grass Cocks into Hay for the Parson's Tithe; but if they are not obliged to make the Tithe into Hay, they may leave it in Cocks, and the Parson must take it, for which Purpose he may come on the Ground, &c. A Prescription to measure out and pay the tenth Acre, or Part of Grass standing, in lieu of all Tithe Hay, may be good: And if Meadow Ground is so rich, that there are two Crops of Hay in one Year, the Parson by special Custom may have Tithe of both. 1 Roll. Abr. 643, 647, 950. Headlands are not tithable, if only large enough for turning the Plough; but if larger, Tithe may be payable. 2 Inst. 653. Herbage of Ground is tithable for barren Cattle kept for Sale, which yield no Profit to the Parson. Wood's Inst. 167. Honey pays a Tithe, as under Bees. Hops are Tithable, and the tenth Part may be set out after they are picked : There are several Ways of titheing Hops, viz. by the Hills, Pole, or Pound; in some Places they set forth the tenth Pole for Tithes; but my Lord Chief Just. Roll tells us, they ought not to be *tithe*d before dried. 1 Roll. Abr. 644. Horses kept to sell, and afterwards sold, Tithes shall be paid for their Pasture; though not where Horses are kept for Work and Labour. Hutt. 77. Houses for Dwelling are not properly titheable: A Modus may be paid for Houses in lieu of Tithes of the Land upon which they are built, and a great many Cities and Boroughs have a Custom to pay a Modus for their Houses; as it may be reasonably supposed that it was usual to pay so much for the Land, before the Houses were erected on it. 11 Rep. 16. 2 Inst. 659. Kids pay a Tithe as Calves, the tenth is due to the Parson. Wood 167. Lambs are titheable in like Manner as Calves; but if they are yeaned in one Parish, and do not tarry there thirty Days, no Tithe is due to the Parson of that Place: If there be a Custom that the Parishioner having six Lambs or under, shall pay so much for every Lamb; and if he have above that Number, then to pay the Seventh, it is good. 3 Cro. 403. Lead may pay Tithe by Custom, as it does in some Counties; but it doth not without it. 2 Inst. 651. By Custom only, Lime and Lime Kilns are titheable. 1 Roll. Abr. 642. Mast of Oak and Beech pays Tithe, as under Acorns. Milk is titheable when no Tithes are paid for Cheese, all the Year round, except Custom over-rules; and it is payable by every tenth Meal, not tenth Quart or Part of every Meal; and is to be brought to the House of the Parson, &c. by Custom, in which Particular this Tithe differs from all others, which must be fetched by the Receiver. In some Places they pay Tithe Cheese for Milk, and in others some small Rate according to Custom. Cro. Eliz. 609. 2 Danv. Abr. 596. Mills, as there are several sorts of them, the Tithes are different; the Tithes of Corn-Mills driven by Wind or Water, are paid in Kind, every tenth Toll-Dish of Corn to the Parson of the Parish wherein the Mills are standing: But ancient Corn-Mills are Tithe free, being suggested that they are very ancient, and never paid Tithes, &c. And it is questioned whether Tithe is due for any Corn Mills, unless by Custom, because the Corn hath before paid Tithe; and it seems rather a Personal Tithe where due: The Tithes of Fulling-Mills, Paper-Mills, Powder-Mills, &c. are Personal, charged in respect to the Labour of Men, by Custom only; and are regarded more as Engines of several Trades than as Mills. 1 Roll. Abr. 656. 2 Inst. 621. Mines pay no Tithes but by Custom, being of the Substance of the Earth, and not annually increasing. 2 Inst. 651. Nurseries of Trees shall pay Tithes, if the Owner digs them up and makes Profit of them by selling. 2 Danv. Abr. 585. Oak Trees are privileged as Timber from the Payment of Tithes by the Statute of Sylva Cædua, 45 Edw. 3. if of or above 20 Years Growth; and if Oaks are under that age, it is the same when they are apt for Timber. Moor 541. Offerings, &c. are in the Nature of Personal Tithes. 2 Inst. 659, 661. Orchards pay Tithes both for the Fruit they produce, and the Grass or Grain, if any be sown or cut therein. 2 Inst. 652. Parks are titheable by Custom, for the Deer and the Herbage; and when disparted and converted into Tillage, they shall pay Tithes in Kind: The Tithes of Parks may be in part certain, and Part casual; and 2 s. a Year, and a Shoulder of every Third Deer, hath been paid as Tithe for a Park. 1 Roll. Rep. 176. Hob. 37, 40. Partridges and Pheasants, &c. as they are Feræ Naturæ, yield no Tithes of Eggs or Young 1 Roll. Abr. 636. Pease, if gathered for Sale, or to feed Hogs, pay Tithes; but not Green Pease spent in the House. 1 Roll. Abr. 647. Pigeons ought to pay Tithes when sold; and this holds good if they lodge in Holes about an House, as well as in a Dove-house; and by Custom if spent in the House, they may be titheable, though not of common Right. 2 Danv. Abr. 583, 597. Pigs are titheable, as Calves. Ibid. Pollard Trees, such as are usually lopped, and distinguished from Timber-Trees, pay Tithes. Plowd. 470. Quarries of Stone, &c. are not subject to pay Tithes, because they are Part of the Inheritance, and Tithes ought to be collateral to the Land, and distinct from it. 1 Roll. 644. Rakings of Corn are not titheable, for they are left for the Poor, and are properly the Scatterings of the Corn whereof the Tithes have been paid, left after the Cocks set out are taken away. Cro. Eliz. 660. Saffron pays a predial and small Tithe. 1 Cro. 467. Salt is not titheable, but by Custom only. 2 Danv. Abr. Sheep, a Tithe is paid for of Lambs and Wool, and therefore they pay no Tithe for their Feeding. If Sheep are in the Parish all the Year, they are to pay Tithe Wool to the Parson; but if removed from one Parish to another, the Parsons of each Parish to have Tithe pro Rata, where they remain thirty Days in a Parish; and if they are fed in one Parish, and brought into another to be shorn, the same Titheing is to be observed. 1 Roll. Abr. 642, 647. 3 Cro. 237. Stubble pays no Tithe under Astermath. 2 Inst. 652. Tares, Vetches, &c. are titheable; but if they are cut down green, and given to the Cattle of the Plough, where there is not sufficient Pasture in the Parish, no Tithe shall be paid for them. 1 Cro. 139. Tiles are no yearly Increase, and not titheable. 2 Inst. 651. Timber Trees, such as Oaks, Ashes, and Elms, and in some Places Beech, &c. above the Age of twenty Years, were discharged of Tithes by the Common Law, before the Statute 45 Ed. 3. and the Reason of it is, because such Trees are employed to build Hoases, and Houses when built are not only fixed to, but Part of the Freehold; and if those Trees stand so long till they become rotten and fit for firing only, no Tithe is due for them, because they were once privileged; and Loppings of Timber-Trees, above 20 Years Growth, pay no Tithes, for the Branch is privileged as well as the Body of the Tree; and the Roots of such Trees are exempted as Parcel of the Inheritance. Trees cut for Ploughboot, Cartboot, &c. shall not pay Tithes, although they are no Timber; but all Trees not fit for Timber, and not put to those Uses, pay Tithes. 1 Roll. Abr. 650. Cro. Eliz. 477, 499. Turfs used for Fuel are Part of the Soil, and Tithe free. 2 Inst. 651. Underwood is titheable, though the Tithe is not of annual Payment; and is set out while standing, by the tenth Acre, Pole, or Perch, or when cut down, by the tenth Faggot or Bitet, as Custom directs; and if he that sells the Wood doth not set out the Tithe, he is liable to the treble Damages by 2 Ed. 6. cap. 13. But if the Underwood is used for firing in a House of Husbandry, or to burn Brick to repair the House, or for Hedging and Fencing the Lands in the same Parish, it may be discharged from Tithe. 2 Inst. 642, 643, 652. Hob. 250. 2 Danv. Abr. 597. Warrens where Titheable, see Conies. Waste Ground, whereon Cattle feed, is liable to the Payment of Tithes. 2 Danv. Abr. Woad growing in the Nature of an Herb is a Predial and small Tithe. 2 Danv. 594. Wood is generally esteemed to be a great Tithe: If Wood Grounds have likewise Timber-Trees growing on them, and consist for the most part of such Trees, the Timber-Trees shall privilege the other Wood; but if the Wood is the greatest Part, then it must pay Tithes for the Whole. 13 Rep. 13. If Wood be cut to make Hop-Poles, where the Parson hath Tithe Hops, no Tithe shall be paid for it. Hugbes's Abr. 689. Wool is a mixed small Tithe, paid when clipped; one Fleece in Ten, or in some Places one in seven is given to the Parson. If there is under ten Pounds of Wool at the Shearing, a reasonable Consideration sideration shall be paid, because the Titbes are due of common Right; and if less than ten Fleeces, they shall be divided into ten Parts, or an Allowance be otherwise made. All Sheep killed, and Sheep which die, pay Tithe Wool; and Neck-Wool cut off for the Benefit of the Wool, but not if it is to preserve the Sheep from Vermin, &c. Also the Wool of Lambs shorn at Midsummer, though Tithe was paid for the Lambs at Mark-tide, is titheable. 1 Roll. Abr. 646, 647. 2 Inst. 652. Vide Tithe of Sheep. When any Thing is titheable only by Custom, it may be exempted from Tithe by Custom; but Custom to exempt Corn, &c. from Tithe will not be allowed, because for that Titbes are due de jure. Count. Pars. Compan. 155. See Modus and Prescription.

Titbes Extraparochial, which do not lie in any Parish, belong to the King. 2 Rep. 2, 44.

Tithing, (Tithinga, from the Sax. Teotbunge, i. e. Decuriam) Is in its first Appointment the Number or Company of ten Men with their Families, held together in a Society, all being bound for the peaceable Behaviour of each other: And of these Companies there was one chief Person who was called Teotbungman, at this Day Tithing-man; but the old Discipline of Tithingi is long since left off. In the Saxon Times, for the better Conservation of the Peace, and more easy Administration of Justice, every Hundred was divided into ten Districts or Tithings; and within every Tithing, the Tithing-men were to examine and determine all lesser Causes between Villages and Neighbours; but to refer greater Matters to the then Superior Courts, which had a Jurisdiction over the whole Hundred. Paroch. Antiq. 633.

Tithing-men, Are now a Kind of Petty Constables, elected by Parishes, and sworn in their Offices in the Court Leet, and sometimes by Justices of Peace, &c. There is frequently a Tithing-man in the same Town with a Constable, who is as it were a Deputy to execute the Office in the Constable's Absence; but there are some Things which a Constable has Power to do, that Tithing-men and Headboroughs cannot intermeddle with. Dalt. 3. When there is no Constable of a Parish, the Office and Authority of a Tithing-man seems to be all one under another Name. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2, cap. 12. See Constable.

Title, (Titulus) Is when a Man hath lawful Cause of Entry into Lands whereof another is seized; and it signifies also the Means whereby a Man comes to Lands or Tenements, as by Feoffment, Fine, Last Will and Testament, &c. The Word Title, includeth a Right; but is the more general Word: Every Right is a Title, though every Title is not such a Right for which an Action lies; so that Titulus est justa Causa possidendi quod nostrum est, and is the Means of holding the Lands. Co. Litt. 345. A Man may plead in Trespass, &c. without particularly setting forth his Title, where his Justification is collateral to the Title of the Land; so if Damages are to be recovered, and the Title of the Land is not in Question; and in Actions on real Contracts, where the Plaintiff shews enough to intitle him to the Action, &c. 2 Mod. 70. 1 Roll. Rep. 13. Cro. Car. 571. 3 Nels. Abr. 325. But in Trespass for cutting Corn on Lands, the Party must set forth the Title which he hath to the Corn, or on Demurrer it will be judged ill; for the shewing that he is possessed thereof, is not sufficient without a Title, because the Property shall be intended to be in the Owner of the Soil. 2 Sand. 401. 3 Salk. 361. When a Person will recover any Thing from another, he must make out and prove a better Title than the other hath; or it will not be enough to destroy his Title, &c. Hob. 103. It is not allowed for the Party to forsake his own Title, and fly upon the other's; for he must recover by his own Strength, not the other's Weakness. Ibid. 104. If by the Record it appears that the Plaintiff in the Cause hath no

Title, he shall not have Judgment. Lutro. 1631. The Law will not permit Titles and Things in Entry, &c. to be granted over; and, the Buying or Selling any pretended Rights or Titles to Lands, is prohibited by Statute as Maintenance. 32 H. 8. c. 9.

Titles of Clergyman, Signify some certain Place where they may exercise their Functions. A Title in this Sense, is the Church to which a Priest was ordained and constantly to reside: And there are many Reasons why a Church is called Titulus; one is because in former Days the Name of the Saint to whom the Church was dedicated was engraved on the Porch, as a Sign that the Saint had a Title to that Church; from whence the Church itself was afterwards denominated Titulus. Council. London, Anno 1125. No Persons shall be ordained without a Title; and this is required to keep out those from the Ministry who might otherwise for want of Maintenance bring Disgrace upon the Church. And if a Bishop shall admit any Person into the Ministry without any Title, he shall maintain him till he prefers him to some Ecclesiastical Living; or if he refuses so to do, he shall be suspended from giving Orders for one Year. Can. 31. Anciently a Title of Clergy was no more than entering their Names in the Bishop's Roll, and then they had not only Authority to assist in the Ministerial Functions, but had a Right to the Share of the common Stock or Treasury of the Church; but since a Title is an Assurance of being preferred to some Ecclesiastical Benefice, a Certificate that the Clerk is provided of some Church, or Place, &c. or where the Bishop who ordains him, intends shortly afterwards to admit him to a Benefice or Curacy then void. Count. Pars. Comp. 2, 3.

Titinylls, An old Word for Tale-bearers. In all Realms the Papish Practice hath had Confederacy of false, forsworn, factious, and traitorous Titinylls, untrue to their Sovereign, &c. Letter Secr. State, 28 H. 8. to James 5. King of Scotland.

Toalia, A Towel; and there is a Tenure of Lands by the Service of Waiting with a Towel at the King's Coronation: — Petrus Picate tenet unum Mensag. &c. per Serjanntiam serviendi cum una Toalia ad Coronationem Regis. Inq. Ann. 12, 13 K. John.

Tobacco, Is not to be planted in England, on Pain of forfeiting 40*s.* for every Rod of Ground thus planted; but this shall not extend to hinder the Planting of Tobacco in Physick Gardens. 12 Car. 2. cap. 34. And Justices of Peace have Power to issue Warrants to Constables, to search after and examine whether any Tobacco be sown or planted, and to destroy the same; which they are to do under Penalties, &c. 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 26. The 4 & 5 W. & M. continues the Statute 22 & 23 Car. 2. Toll, (Tollere) Signifies to defeat or take away; as to Toll an Entry is to take away the Right of Entry. 8 Hen. 6.

Toll, (Tolnetum, vel Theolonium) Is a Saxon Word, and properly a Payment in Towns, Markets, and Fairs, for Goods and Cattle bought and sold. It is a reasonable Sum of Money due to the Owner of the Fair or Market, upon Sale of Things tollable within the same. 2 Inst. 220. And it is used for a Liberty as well to take, as to be free from Toll; of which Freedom from Toll the City of Coventry boasts an ancient Charter granted by Leofrick Earl of the Mercians, in the Time of King Edw. the Confessor, who at the Importunity of Godewa, his virtuous Lady, granted this Freedom to that City. By the ancient Law of this Land, the Buyers of Corn or Cattle in Fairs or Markets ought to pay Toll to the Lord of the Market, in Testimony of the Contract there lawfully made; for Toll was first invented that Contracts in Markets should be openly made before Witnesses; and privy Contracts were held unlawful. But the King shall pay no Toll for any of his Goods; and a Man may be discharged from the Payment of Toll, by the King's Grant. Also Tenants in Ancient Demesne are discharged of Toll throughout the Kingdom, for Things which arise out of their Lands, or bought for Maintenance thereof, &c. not for Merchandizes. Horn's Mir. lib. 1. 2 Inst. 221. 2 Roll. Abr. 198. Toll doth not of common Right belong to a Fair; though it hath been held, that some Toll is due of common Right, as appears from the Immunities of several Persons not to pay Toll, which proves that if it was not for those Privileges, they ought to pay Toll of common Right; therefore where the King grants a Market, Toll is due, although it is not expressed in the Grant what Toll is to be paid; and this from the Necessity of it, because the Property of Things sold in a Market is not altered without paying Toll. Palm. 76. 2 Lutw. 1377. 3 Nelf. Abr. 326. But it is said, if the King grants to a Man a Fair or Market, and grants no Toll, the Patentee shall have no Toll; for Toll being a Matter of private Right for the Benefit of the Lord, is not incident to a Fair or Market, as a Court of Piepowders is, which is for the Benefit of the Publick and Advancement of Justice, &c. Such a Fair or Market is free from Toll; and after the Grant made, the King cannot grant a Toll to such free Fair or Market, without some proportionable Benefit to the Subject: And if the Toll granted with the Fair or Market be outrageous, the grant of the Toll is void, and the same is a free Market, &c. 2 Inst. 220. Cro. Eliz. 559. When the King grants a Fair, he may likewise grant that Toll shall be paid, though it be a Charge upon the Subjects; but then it must be of a very small Sum. Toll is to be reasonable, for the King cannot grant a burthensome Toll; and one may have Toll by Prescription for some reasonable Cause, but such a Prescription to charge the Subject with a Duty of Toll, must import a Benefit or Recompence for it, or some Reason must be shewn why it is claimed. Cro. Eliz. 559. 3 Lev. 424. 2 Mod. 143. 4 Mod. 323. The Toll in Fairs is generally taken upon the Sale of Cattle, as Horses, &c. but in the Markets for Grain only; and the Lord may seize until Satisfaction is made him: It is always to be paid by the Buyer, unless there be a Custom to the contrary; and nothing is Tollable before the Sale, except it be by Custom Time out of Mind; which Custom none can challenge that claim the Fair or Market by Grant since the Reign of King Richard 2d; so that it is better to have a Market or Fair by Prescription, than Grant. 2 Inst. 220, 221. At this Day there is not any one certain Toll to be taken in Markets; but if that which is taken be unreasonable, it is punishable by the Stat. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 31. And what shall be deemed reasonable is to be determined by the Judges of the Law, when it comes judicially before them; Toll may be said to be unreasonable and outrageous, where a reasonable Toll is due, and excessive Toll is taken; or when no Toll is due, and Toll is unjustly atarp'd, &c. 2 Inst. 222. If excessive Toll be taken in a Market-Town, by the Lord's Consent, the Franchise shall be seized; and if by other Officers, they shall pay double Damages, and suffer Imprisonment, &c. Stat. Westm. 1. 3 Edw. 1. Owners of Markets and Fairs are to appoint Toll-takers, where Toll is to be taken, under Penalties, by the 2 & 3 Pb. & M. cap. 7. And he that hath the Toll, or Profit of the Market where no Toll is; ought to provide a lawful Measure of Brads, and chain it in the publick Market place, or shall forfeit 5*l.* 22 Car. 2. cap. 8. See Market.

Port-Toll. A Prescription to have Port-Toll for all Goods coming into a Man's Port may be good; and this 'tis said without any Consideration. 2 Lev. 96. 2 Lut. 1519. And it hath been adjudged, that the Liberty of bringing Goods into a Port for Safety, implies a Consideration in itself. 3 Lev. 37. Prescription of Toll for Goods landed in a Manor, or to have Port-Toll for all Goods coming into Port, is a good Prescription; but not to have Toll of Goods brought into a River, &c. 2 Lev. 96, 97. Toll-Travers being to pass a nearer Way, he that hath it is to repair the Way, because he receives Money for it. 2 Lill. Abr. 585.

Thorough-Toll, Is when a Town prescribes to have Toll for such a Number of Beasts, or for every Beast that goeth through their Town; or over a Bridge or Ferry, maintained at their Cost, which is reasonable, though it be for passing through the King's Highway, where every Man may lawfully go, as it is for the Ease of Travellers that go that Way. Terms de Ley 561, 562. Persons may have this Toll by Prescription or Grant; but it must be for a reasonable Cause, which must be shewn, viz. that they are to repair and maintain a Causeway, or a Bridge, or such like. Cro. Eliz. 711. The King granted to a Man, to take such Toll of Persons that passed over certain Bridges with their Cattle, as was taken there and elsewhere in England, &c. and it was held void for Incertainty. Bridgm. 88.

Turn-Toll, A Toll paid for Beasts that are driven to Market to be sold, and do return unfold. 8 Rep. 46. There is also In-toll; and Out-toll, mentioned in ancient Charters: But if any one take Toll where he ought not, the Party grieved shall have an Action on the Case, or Action of Trespass, &c. 3 Nelf. Abr. 325, 326. Of Toll, and Grants, Customs and Prescriptions for Toll, good, and not so, see 4 Mod. 319. 5 Mod. 361. Lutw. 1380, 1518.

Traverse, (from the Fr. Traverser) Is used in the Law for the denying of some Matter of Fact, alledged to be done in a Declaration or Pleadings; upon which the other Side comes and affirms that it was done; and this makes a single and good Issue for the Cause to proceed to Trial: And the formal Words of a Traverse are in our French Sans ceo, in Latin Abque hoc, and in English without that, that such a Thing was done, or not, &c. Kittb. 227. West. Symb. part. 2. A Plea will be ill, which neither traverseth nor confesseth the Plaintiff's Title, &c. And every Matter in Fact, alledged by the Plaintiff, may be traversed by the Defendant; but not Matter of Law, or where it is Part Matter of Law and Part Matter of Fact; nor may a Record be traversed which is not to be tried by a Jury And if a Matter be expressly pleaded in the Affirmative, which is expressly answered in the Negative, no Traverse is necessary, there being a sufficient Issue join'd; also where the Defendant hath given a particular Answer in his Plea, to all the material Matters contained in the Declaration, he need not take a Traverse; for when the Thing is answered, there needs no further Denial. Cro. Eliz. 755. Yelv. 173, 193, 195. 2 Mod. 54. If a Traverse contain no more than the Party hath pleaded before, it will not be good: No Traverse ought to be taken but where the Thing traversed is issuable: And where one will make a Traverse to a Declaration, he ought to traverse that Part of it, the doing whereof will make an End of the Matter, when the Point is determined by the Jury. 2 Roll. Rep. 37. 2 Lill. Abr. 587. 3 Nels. Abr. 355. As one Traverse is enough to make a perfect Issue, a Traverse cannot regularly be taken upon a Traverse, if 'tis well taken to the material Point, and goes to the Substance of the Action; but where the first Traverse is not well taken, nor pertinent to the Matter, there to that which was sufficiently confessed and avoided before, the other Party may well take a Traverse after such immaterial Traverse taken before: And if special Matter alledged in a foreign County in the Defendant's Plea be false, the Plaintiff may maintain his Action, and traverse that special Matter; and in such Case a Traverse on a Traverse hath been adjudged good. 1 Saund. 32. Popb. 101. These Rules are to be observed in Traverses: 1. The Traverse of a Thing immediately alledged, vitiates a good Bar. 2. Nothing must be traversed but what is expressly alledged. 3. Surplusage in a Plea doth not enforce a Traverse. 4. It must be always made to the substantial Part of the Title. 5. Where an Act may indifferently be intended to be at one Day or another, there the Day is not traversable. 6. In Action of Trespass generally the Day is not material; though if a Matter to be done upon a particular Day, there it is material and traversable. 2 Roll. Rep. 37. 1 Roll. Rep. 235. Yelv. 122. 2 Lill. Abr. 313. If the Parties have agreed on the Day for a Thing to be done, the Traverse of the Day is material; but where they are not agreed on the Day, it is otherwise; and though 'tis proved to be done on another Day, 'tis sufficient. Palm. 280. Per Holt Ch. Just. Where a Traverse goes to the Matter of a Plea, &c. all that went before is waved by the Traverse; and if the Traverse goes to the Time only, it is not waived. 2 Salk. 642. In Action of Trespass, a particular Place and Time were laid in the Declaration, and in the Plea there was a Traverse as to the Place, but not as to the Time: On Averment that it was eadem Transgressio, the Plea was held good. 3 Lev. 227. 2 Lutw. 1452. Where a Plea in Justification of a Thing is not local, a Traverse of the Place is wrong. 2 Mod. 270. The Substance and Body of a Plea must be traversed. Hob. 232. But a Traverse, that a Person died seized of Land in Fee modo & forma as the Defendant had declared; was adjudged good. Hutt. 123. A Lord and Tenant differ in the Services, there the Tenure and not the Seisin shall be traversed; but if they agree in the Services, the Seisin and not the Tenure is traversable; and it is a general Rule, that the Tenant shall never traverse the Seisin of the Services without admitting the Tenure. March 116. 3 Nels. Abr. 361. That which is not material nor traversable, is not admitted when it is alledged, and not traversed. 2 Salk. 561. But the Omitting a Traverse where it is necessary, is Matter of Substance. 2 Mod. 60. And a Traverse of a Debt is ill when a Promise is the Ground of the Action; which ought to be traversed, and not the Debt. Leon. 252. A Traverse should have an Inducement to make it relate to the foregoing Matter. And 'tis no good Plea for the Plaintiff to reply, that a Man is alive who is alledged to be dead, without traversing that he is not dead. 2 Lill. 3 Salk. 357. It is said that where a Traverse absque hoc comprizes the whole Matter generally, it may conclude & de hoc pon. se super Patriam; but when it traverses a particular Matter, the Conclusion ought to be with an Averment, &c. 1 Salk.

1 Salk. 4. Traverse in an Answer in Chancery, Replication, &c. See Chancery.

Traverse of an Indictment or Presentment, Is to take Issue upon, and contradict or deny some chief Point of it: As in a Presentment against a Person for a Highway overflow'd with Water, for Default of scouring a Ditch, &c. he may traverse the Matter, that there is no Highway, or that the Ditch is sufficiently scoured; or otherwise traverse the Cause, viz. That he hath not the Land, or he and they whose Estate, &c. have not used to scour the Ditch. Lamb. Eiren. 521. Book Entr.

Traverse of an Office, Is to prove that an Inquisition made of Lands or Goods by the Escheator, is defective and untruly made. No Person shall traverse an Office, unless he can make to himself a good Right and Title: And if one be admitted to traverse an Office, this Admission of the Party to the Traverse, doth suppose the Title to be in him, or else he had no Cause of Traverse. Vaugh. 64. 2 Lill. Abr. 590, 591.

Treason, (From the Fr. Trahir, to betray, and Trahison Betraying, contracted into Treason) is the Crime of Treachery and Infidelity to our lawful Sovereign; the Latin Word for which used in Law is Proditio, and is divided into High Treason, Alta Proditio, and Petit Treason, Proditio parva: And there is Mention of Accumulative and Constructive Treason in some of our Statutes. High Treason is defined to be an Offence committed against the Security of the King and Kingdom; and as all Treasons include Felony, the Word Proditio must be used in the Indictment for Treason, to distinguish it. 3 Inst. 4, 15. The Greatness of this Offence of Treason, and Severity of the Punishment thereof, is upon two Reasons; because the Safety, Peace and Tranquillity of the Kingdom, is highly concerned in the Preservation of the Person and Government of the King; and therefore the Laws have given all possible Security thereto, under the severest Penalties: And as the Subjects have Protection from the King and his Laws; so they are bound by their Allegiance to be true and faithful to him. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 59. At Common Law there were different Opinions concerning High Treason; and before the Statute 25 Ed. 3. Treason was a very uncertain Crime; for the Killing of the King's Brother, or even of his Messenger, was taken to be included in it; so when Acts tended to diminish the Dignity of the Crown, and where a Man grew popular, this was construed to be inroaching Royal Power, and held to be Treason; so that by the Excess of the Times, any Crime by aggravating the Circumstances of it, was heightened into Treason: Wherefore this Statute was made to determine what should be Treason; and since the Making thereof, there can be no constructive Treason, i. e. Nothing can be construed to be Treason, which is not literally specified in that Act; nor may the Statute be construed by Equity, because it is a declarative Law, and one Declaration ought not to be a Declaration of another; besides it was made to secure the Subject in his Life, Liberty and Estate, which by admitting Constructions to be made of it, might destroy all. 1 Hawk. P. C. 34. 3 Salk. 358. The Statute 25 Ed. 3. cap. 2. (reciting that divers Opinions having been, what Cases should amount to High Treason) enacts and declares, That if a Person doth compass or imagine the Death of the King, Queen, or their eldest Son and Heir; or if he do violate and deflower the King's Wife or Companion, or his eldest Daughter unmarried, or the Wife of the King's eldest Son; or if he levy War against the King in his Realm, or adhere to his Enemies, give them Aid and Comfort in the Realm, or elsewhere, and thereof be provably attainted of open Deed; and if a Man counterfeit the King's Great or Privy Seal, or his Money, or bring false Money into the Kingdom, like to the Money of England, to make Payment therewith in Deceit of the King and his People; or if he kill the Chancellor, Treasurer, or any of the King's Justices of either Bench, Justices of Assize, &c. being in their Places doing their Offices; these Cases are to be adjudged Treason: And if any other Case happen before the Justices, supposed to be Treason, they shall not proceed to Judgment till it be declared by the King and Parliament whether it ought to be judged Treason, or not. 25 Ed. 3. It was made High Treason to wish or desire, by Words or Writing, or to imagine the Death of the King, Queen, or their Heir apparent; or to publish, that the King was an Heretick, Schismatick, Infidel, &c. by 26 H. 8. c. 13. And to endeavour to depose the King, or affirm by Writing that he is an Usurper, Tyrant, &c. was declared Treason by the 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. But these are repealed by 1 Mar. which enacts, That no Act, Deed or Offence, shall be deemed or adjudged Treason, but such as are declared and express'd to be so by the 25 Ed. 3. concerning Treasons. 1 Mar. Sess. 1. c. 1. All Treasons were settled by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. c. 2. And by 1 Mar. c. 1. that Act was re-inforced and confirmed and made the only Standard of Treason; the 1 Mar. takes away the Power of the King and Parliament to adjudge any Thing else to be Treason, than what is declared to be such therein: So as no Crime is at this Day High Treason, Petit Treason, or Misprision of Treason, unless it be declared by 25 Ed. 3. or by some Statute since the 1 Mar. cap. 1. All other Statutes made between those two Acts concerning High Treason are abrogated; but since 1 Mar. many Offences are made High Treason by Statute, which were not so before; as relating to the Pope, Popish Priests and Papists, the Protestant Succession, &c. And to say that the King is a Papist, or that he intends to introduce Popery; intending Death or bodily Harm, or a Restraint of the King's Person; or to incite an Invasion, &c. and such Intentions declared by Printing, Writing or Speaking, the Offenders shall be adjudged Treason. 13 Car. 2. c. 1. It was declared Treason for Persons to send any Arms, Powder, Mails, Cordage, &c. to France, during the late War, by 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 13. Corresponding with the pretended Prince of Wales, or remitting him Money, is made High Treason. 13 W. 3. c. 3. And if any one shall maliciously by Writing or Printing, declare that the King is not lawful King, or that the Pretender hath any Title to the Crown, he shall be guilty of Treason. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 3. Officers or Soldiers of this Realm, holding Correspondence with any Rebel, or Enemy to the King, or giving them any Advice, Information by Letter, Message, &c. is declared Treason by the 2 & 3 Ann. And if a Subject of Great Britain or Ireland shall enlist himself a Soldier, with Intent to go beyond Sea, to serve any Foreign Prince or State, he shall suffer and forfeit as in Treason. 12 Ann. &c. These are the chief of our Statutes tutes ancient and modern, declaring what Offences shall be Treason; and Treasons committed out of the Realm may be tried in B. R. as if the Offence had been done in the County of Middlesex; also they may be inquired of and tried in such County as the King thinks fit, &c. A Party within one Year after Outlawry for Treason, may surrender himself to the Chief Justice of England, and traverse the Indictment; and none shall be attainted of Treason but by the Testimony of Two Witnesses, &c. by Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 2. 5 & 6 E. 6. c. 11. All Trials for High Treason shall be according to the Course of the Common Law, and not otherwise. 1 Ed. 2 Ph. & Mar. cap. 10. And Persons indicted for Treason are to have a Copy of the Indictment five Days before Trial, to advise with Counsel; and shall be admitted to make a full Defence by Counsel learned in the Law, and by lawful Witnesses, &c. and there must be two Witnesses to the same Overt Act, or two Acts of the same Treason, produced Face to Face, to make out the Treason against them. 7 H. 3 cap. 3. If one Witness in High Treason be positive, and the other is only by Hearsay; these are not two lawful Accusers, within the Statutes: But two Witnesses are not required either upon the Indictment or Trial of Treasons for Counterfeiting Money, by the Proviso of the Statute. 1 Ed. 2 P. & M. Offenders guilty of High Treason by being concerned in the Rebellion in the first Year of K. Geo. 1. were to be tried before such Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery, and in such County as his Majesty by any Commission under the Great Seal should appoint, by lawful Men of the same County, as if the Fact had been there committed: This extended only to Persons actually in Arms. 1 Geo. 1. c. 33. All are Principals in High Treason; and on Attainder of Treason, the Blood of the Criminal is corrupted; he shall be drawn, hang'd and quarter'd; and forfeit his Lands and Goods to the King, &c.

Treason by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. in compassing and imagining the Death of the King, must be manifested by some Overt Act; as by providing Arms to do it, consulting to levy War against him, writing Letters to excite others to join in it, assembling Persons in order to imprison or depose the King, or to get him into their Power, &c. these Acts are sufficient to prove that one compassed or imagined the Death of the King, and to make a Man guilty of High Treason. 3 Inst. 6, 12. It has been a very great Question whether Words spoken can amount to High Treason: But it was resolved in the Trial of the Regicides, that though a Man cannot be indicted of High Treason for Words only; yet if he be indicted for compassing the King's Death, these Words may be laid as an Overt Act, to prove that he compassed the Death of the King; and to support this Opinion, the Case of a Person was cited who was indicted of Treason, Anno 9 Car. 1. for that he being the King's Subject at Lisbon used these Words: I will kill the King, (innuendo King Charles) if I may come to him; and afterwards he came into England for that Purpose; and two Merchants proving that he spoke the Words, for that his traitorous Intent and the wicked Imagination of his Heart was declared by these Words, it was held to be High Treason by the Common Law, and within the Statute of the 25 Ed. 3. cap. 2. Cro. Car. 242. 1 Lev. 57. Deliberate Words, which shew a direct Purpose against the King's Life, will amount to an Overt Act of compassing or imagining the King's Death; as the Compassing or Imagining the Death of the King is the Treason, Words are the most natural Way of expressing the Imagination of the Heart, and may be good Evidence of it: And any external Act which may be a Manifestation of such Imagination, is an Overt Act; but although Words may be an Overt Act of Treason, they must be so certain and positive, as plainly to denote the Intention of the

Speaker, and be laid with an Averment that they were spoken de Rege, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 40. 2 Salk. 631. 3 Mod. 52. The Maxim, That no Words can amount to Treason, at this Day, is not generally true; and notwithstanding the Objection made against Words being High Treason, from the Stat. 1 M. cap. 1. wherein it is said, that many honourable Persons, and others of good Reputation, had then of late for Words only suffered shameful Death, that the Severity of such like dangerous and painful Laws should be abolished: It was enacted, That no Offence made Treason by Words, Writing, Cyphering, &c. should be adjudged Treason: It appears from the next Part of the Preamble of the said Statute, that it is applicable only to the Statutes in the Time of King Hen. 8. which made bare Words High Treason. And in the first Edition of Hale's Pleas of the Crown it is twice said, that it hath been adjudged that Words are an Overt Act; though in the latter Edition it is said, that Compassing by bare Words is not an Overt Act, &c. 1 Hawk. 41. Ever since the Revolution, it has been the constant Practice, where a Person, by treasonable Discourses, has manifested a Design to murder or depose the King, to convict him upon such Evidence: And Chief Justice Holt was of Opinion, That express Words were not necessary to convict a Man of High Treason; but if from the Tenor of his Discourse, the Jury were satisfied he was engaged in a Design against the King's Life; this was sufficient to convict the Prisoner. State Trials, Vol. 4. pag. 172. Words of Persuasion to kill the King, are Overt Acts of compassing his Death; and it hath been adjudged, that he who intended by Force to prescribe Laws to the King, and to restrain him of his Power, doth intend to deprive him of his Crown and Life; that if a Man be ignorant of the Intention of those who take up Arms against the King, if he join in any Action with them, he is guilty of Treason; and that the Law construeth every Rebellion to be a Plot against the King's Life, and a Deposing him, because a Rebel would not suffer that King to reign and live, who will punish him for Rebellion. Moor 620. 2 Salk. 63. 3 Nels. Abr. 365. It is said, that Words spoken to draw away the Affection of the People from the King, and to stir them up against him, tend to his Death and Destruction, and are Treason: But the Imagination in High Treason, without Act or Word, is not punishable. Dyer 128. 1 Rep. Jenk. Cent. 88. If Words are set down in Writing, and kept privately in one's Closet, they are not an Overt Act of Treason, except the Words are published. Kel. 20. But it has been held, that treasonable Matter put in Writing, Scribere est agere; and though it was not published, but sent in a Box to the King, it shewed the Intent of the Party to be High Treason. 2 Roll. Rep. 88. Under the Head of compassing and imagining the King's Death, Intention of Treason proved by Circumstances, is High Treason: The Law takes Notice of Intentions to commit Treason, and Mens Actions are governed by their Intentions, &c. 1 Inst. 140. 5 Mod. 206. For a Man to say, That he will be King after the King's Death, hath been adjudged Treason: And so to prophesy when the King shall die; for this may imply a Knowledge of a Conspiracy. Roll. Rep. 88. There must be a Compassing, Intent or Imagination to kill the King, to make the Offence Treason; the Killing him per infortunium, as Sir Wa. Tyrrel killed King Will. 2. by the Glance of an Arrow in New Forest, is not Treason: And though by the ancient Law, if a Madman killed, or offered to kill the King, it was held to be Treason; by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. by Force of the Words Compass or Imagine, he that is Non Compos Mentis, and totally deprived of all Compassings and Imaginations, cannot commit High Treason; but it must be an absolute Madness, and total Deprivation of Memory. 3 Inst. 6. If the Husband of a Queen

Queen Regent conspire her Death; or a Queen Consort shall conspire the King's Death, either of these Acts are Treason: And though the Compassing the Death of the Queen Consort be Treason, by the 25 Ed. 3. this must be intended during the Marriage; and it doth not extend to a Queen Dowager. 3 Inst. 8. And the eldest Son and Heir of the King, that is living, is intended by the said Act, though he was not the first Son; but if the Heir apparent to the Crown be a collateral Heir, he is not within the Statute; nor is a Conspiracy against such collateral Heir, Treason by this Act. Ibid. Also Violating the Queen Consort is High Treason, and her yielding and consenting to it is Treason; but this doth not affect a Dowager Queen: So likewise Violating the Wife of the Prince is Treason only during the Coverture. 3 Inst. 9. And the eldest Daughter of the King is such a Daughter as is eldest not married, at the Time of the Violation, which will be Treason, although there was an elder Daughter than her, who died without Issue; for now the Elder alive has a Right to the Inheritance of the Crown, upon Failure of Issue Male: And Violating the Queen's Person, &c. was High Treason at Common Law, by Reason it destroyed the Certainty of the King's Issue, and consequently raised Contention about the Succession. H. P. C. 16. A Queen Dowager after the Death of her Husband, is not a Queen within the Statute; for though she bears the Title, and hath many Prerogatives answering the Dignity of her Person, yet she is not the King's Wife or Companion: And a Queen divorced from the King a vinculo Matrimonii, is no Queen within this Act, although the King be living; which was the Case of Q. Katharine, who after twenty Years Marriage with King Hen. 8. was divorced causa affinitatis. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 124. At Common Law Compassing the Death of any of the King's Children, and declaring it by Overt-Act, was taken to be Treason; though by this Statute it is restrained to the eldest Son and Heir. Ibid. 125. By the Common Law, Levying War against the King was Treason: But, as in Cases of High Treason, there must be an Overt-Act; a Conspiracy or Compassing to levy War is no Overt-Act, unless a War is actually levied; though if a War is actually levied, then the Conspirators are all Traitors, although they are not in Arms: And a Conspiracy to levy War will be Evidence of an Overt-Act to maintain an Indictment for Compassing the King's Death; but if the Indictment be for levying War only, Proof must be made that a War was levied, to bring the Offender under this Clause of the Statute 25 Ed. 3. 3 Inst. 8, 9. H. P. C. 14. If two or more conspire to levy War, and one of them alone raises Forces; this shall be adjudged Treason in all. Dyer 98. And Persons raising Forces for any publick End or Purpose, and putting themselves in a Posture of War, by choosing Leaders, and opposing Conitables or Guards, &c. is High Treason: Some Time ago there was a great Riot in London by the Apprentices there, some whereof being imprisoned, the Rest conspired to kill the Lord Mayor, and release their Comrades; and in order to it, to provide themselves with Armour, by Breaking open two Houses near the Tower; they marched with a Cloke on a Pole, instead of an Ensign, towards the Lord Mayor's House; and in the Way meeting with Opposition from the Sheriffs, resisted them; this was held Levying of War and Treason. Trin. 37 Eliz. Sid. 358. Those who make an Insurrection in order to redress a publick Grievance, whether it be a real or pretended One, are said to levy War against the King, although they have no direct Design against his Person; as they are for doing that by private Authority, which he by publick Justice ought to do, which manifestly tends to a Rebellion: For Example; Where great Numbers by Force endeavour to remove certain Persons from the King, or to lay violent Hands on a Privy Counsellor, or revenge themselves against a Magistrate for executing his Office, or to deliver Men out of Prison, expel Foreigners, or to reform the Law or Religion, to pull down all Bawdy-houses, or throw down all Inclosures in general, &c. But where a Number of Men rise to remove a Grievance to their private Interest, as to pull down a particular Inclosure, they are only Rioters; for there is a Difference between a Pretence that is publick and general and one that is private or particular. 3 Inst. 9. H. P. C. 14. Kel. 75. 1 Hawk. P. C. 37. It was resolved by all the Judges of England in the Reign of King Hen. 8. That an Insurrection against the Statute of Labourers, for raising their Wages, was a Levying of War against the King; because it was generally against the King's Law, and the Offenders took upon them the Reformation thereof. Read. Statutes, Vol. 5, pag. 150. Not only such as directly rebel and take up Arms against the King; but also those who in a violent Manner withstand his lawful Authority, or attempt to reform his Government, do levy War against him; and therefore to hold a Fort or Castle against the King's Forces, or keep together armed Men in great Numbers against the King's express Command, have been adjudged a levying War, and Treason: But those who join themselves to Rebels, &c. for fear of Death, and return the first Opportunity, are not guilty of this Offence. 3 Inst. 10. Kel. 76. A Person in Arms was sent for by some of the Council from the King, and to give in the Names of those that were armed with him; but he refused, and continued in Arms in his House, and it was held Treason: Also where he went with a Troop of Captains and others into London to pray Help of the City to save his Life, and bring him to Court to the Queen, though there was no Intent of Hurt to her, was adjudged Treason; and in them who joined with him, though they knew nothing but only a Difference between him and some Courtiers: So if any Man shall attempt to Strengthen himself so far, that the Prince cannot Resist him. Earl of Essex's Case, Moor 620. To succour or adhere to the King's Enemies, give them Comfort or Relief, or for any Person to be in Council with others to levy any seditious Wars, are High Treason: And the Delivery or Surrender of the King's Castles or Forts, by the Captains thereof, to the King's Enemy, within the Realm or without, for Reward, &c. is an Adhering to the King's Enemies, and Treason by the 25 Ed. 3. A Lieutenant of Ireland let several Rebels out of Dublin Castle, and discharged some Irish Hostages which had been given for Securing the Peace; and for this he was attainted of High Treason in adhering to the King's Enemies. 33 H. 8. 1 Leon. Adhering to the King's Enemies out of the Realm is Treason; and one who was beyond Sea having solicited a foreign Prince to invade the Kingdom, was held guilty of High Treason, and triable by the Statute 35 Hen. 8. But Adherence out of the Realm must be alledged in some Place in England. 3 Inst. 10. H. P. C. 14. Dyer 298, 310. If there be War between the King of England and France, those Englishmen that live in France before the War, and continue there after, are not merely upon that Account Adherents to the King's Enemies, to be guilty of Treason, unless they actually assist in such War; or at least refuse to return into England, upon a Privy Seal, or on Proclamation and Notice thereof; and this Refusal is but Evidence of an Adherence and not so in itself. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 165. It has been adjudg'd, that Adhering to the King's Enemies is an Adhering against him; and that English Subjects joining with Rebel Subjects of the King's Allies, and fighting with them under the Command of an Alien Enemy Prince, is Treason, in Adhering to the King's Enemies; and Cruising in a Ship with Intent to destroy the King's Ships, without doing any Act of Hostility, is an Overt-Act of Adhering, Comforting and Aiding; for where an Englishman lifts himself and marches, this is Treason without coming to Battle, or actual Fighting. 2 Salk. 634. An Indictment for Levying of War, or Adhering to the King's Enemies generally, without shewing some particular Instances, is not good; because of these Words, viz. And thereof shall be proveably attained by Overt Deed, which follow and are connected to the Treasons of Compassing the King's Death, Levying War, and Adhering to the King's Enemies; and as these Treasons are several and distinct Treasons, one of them cannot be made an Overt-Act of another. Ibid. There is no Necessity expressly to allege that Adherence was against the King; but the Special Manner of Adherence must be set forth: And it is said, that the Succouring a Rebel, fled into another Realm, is not within the Statute; for a Rebel is not properly an Enemy, and the Statute is strictly taken. 1 Hawk. 38. Subjects of the King, in open War or Rebellion, are not the King's Enemies, but Traitors; and if a Subject join with a foreign Enemy, and come into England with him, if he be taken Prisoner, he shall not be ransomed or proceeded against as an Enemy, but as a Traitor to the King: On the other Hand, an Enemy coming in open Hostility into England, and taken, shall be either executed by Martial Law, or ransomed; for he cannot be indicted of Treason, because he never was within the Ligeance of the King. 3 Inst. 11. By the Word Proveably, a Person ought to be convicted of the Treason on direct and manifest Proofs, and not upon Presumptions or Inferences; and the Word Attainted, necessarily implies, That the Prisoner be proceeded against and attainted according to due Course of Law; wherefore if a Man be killed in open War against the King, or be put to Death arbitrarily, or by Martial Law, and be not attainted of Treason according to the Common Law, he forfeits nothing; for which Cause some Persons kill'd in open Rebellion against the King, have been attainted by Act of Parliament. Ibid. 12. If a Person be indicted of Treason, and will not answer, or if he answers impertinently, Judgment shall be given against him as taken pro Confesso that he is Guilty. Styles 104. On a Judgment for High Treason, Error was brought, for that the Indictment did not conclude contra Ligeantiam, &c. Now though all the particular Facts of the Treason were fully expressed, so that it appeared that it must be contra Ligeantiam sue debitum, yet the Judgment was reversed. 3 Lev. 396. Upon a Writ of Error to reverse an Attainder in Treason, because the Party convicted was not asked what he had to say why Judgment should not be given against him, the Attainder was reversed; for he might have a Pardon, or some Matter to move in Arrest of Judgment. 2 Salk. 630. 3 Mod. 265. And the Omission of any necessary Part of the Judgment for Treason, is Error sufficient to reverse an Attainder, as it is more severe and formidable in Treason, than for any other Crime. 2 Salk. 632. As to the Counterfeiting the King's Seal, this was Treason by the Common Law; and the Statute 25 Ed. 3. mentions only the Great Seal and Privy Seal; for the Counterfeiting of the Sign Manual or Privy Signet, is not Treason within that Act, but by 1 Ed. 2 P. & M. c. 6. Those who aid and consent to the Counterfeiting of the King's Seal are equally guilty with the Actors: But an Intent or Compassing to counterfeit the Great Seal, if it be not actually done, is not Treason; there must be an actual Counterfeiting, and it is to be like the King's Great Seal. 3 Inst. 15. S. P. C. 3. H. P. C. 18. And this Branch of the Statute does not extend to the Affixing the Great Seal to a Patent, without a Warrant for so doing; nor to the Raving any Thing out of a Patent, and Adding new Matter therein; or to the Taking off the Wax impressed by the Great Seal from one Patent, and fixing it to another; yet this, though it be not a Counterfeiting, has been adjudged a Misprision of the highest Degree: And a Person guilty of an Act of this Nature, with Relation to a Commission for levying Money, &c. had Judgment to be drawn and hang'd. 2 H. 4. 3 Inst. 16. Kel. 80. Till a new Great Seal is made, the old one of a late King, being used and employed as such, is the King's Seal within the Statute; notwithstanding its Variance in the Inscription, Portraiture, and other Substantials: And when an old Great Seal is broken, the Counterfeiting of that Seal, and applying it to an Instrument of that Date wherein it stood, or to any Patent, &c. without Date, is Treason. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 177. The adding a Crown in a Counterfeit Privy Signet, which was not in the true; and omitting some Words of the Inscription, and inserting others, done purposely to make a little Difference, alters not the Case, but 'tis High Treason; being published on a feigned Patent to be true, &c. Ibid. 184. At Common Law Forging of the King's Money was Treason, as Counterfeiting it is by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. Forging or Counterfeiting foreign Money made current here by Proclamation, is likewise High Treason, by 1 Mar. c. 6. And if not current here, it is Misprision of Treason. Counterfeiting the King's Coin, or impairing or lightening it by Clipping, &c. is Treason; but it shall work no Corruption of Blood. 18 El. cap. 1. And as those who coin Money without the King's Authority are guilty of Treason; so are those that have Authority to do it, if they make it of greater Alloy, or less Weight than they ought. 3 Inst. 17. 2 Inst. 577. H. P. C. 20. If a Counterfeit Money, and another vent the same for his own Benefit, he is not guilty of Treason; for it is only a Cheat and Misdemeanor in him, punishable by Fine and Imprisonment: But if one Counterfeits the King's Money, though he never vents it, this is a Counterfeiting and Treason within the Statute. And if any Man doth Counterfeit the lawful Coin of this Kingdom in a great Measure, but with some Variation in the Impression, &c. yet it is Counterfeiting of the King's Money; and shall not evade the Statute. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 214, 215. Treason in making Stamps, Dyes, &c. for coining and colouring Metal, &c. See 8 Ed. 9 W. 3. and Coin. Bringing False Money into this Kingdom, counterfeited like the Money of England, knowing it to be false, is Treason by the 25 Ed. 3. In this Case it must be counterfeited, according to the Likeness of English Money, and is to be knowingly brought over from some foreign Nation, not from any Place subject to the Crown of England; and must be uttered in Payment. 3 Inst. 18. The Killing of the King's Chancellor, Treasurer, Justices of either Bench, &c. declared to be Treason, relates to no other Officers of State besides those expressly named; and to them only when they are in actual Execution of their Offices, representing the Person of the King; and it doth not extend to any Attempt to kill, or wounding them, &c. 3 Inst. 18, 38. H. P. C. 17. The Places for the Justices to do their Offices, are the Courts themselves, where they usually or by Adjournment sit, for Dispatch of the Business of their Courts. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 232. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 39. it is made High Treason to hold Correspondence with the Pretender's Sons: And if they land or attempt to land in his Majesty's Dominions, they are to be deemed attainted of High Treason. By the Stat. 20 Geo. 2. c. 30. any Person impeached by the Commons of High Treason, whereby any Corruption of Blood, may make his Defence by Counsel, not exceeding two, to be assigned him on Application at any Time after Articles exhibited. See Misprision.

Petit Treason, Is where one, out of Malice, takes away the Life of a Subject, to whom he owes special Obedience: And is called Petit Treason, in respect to Highb Treason, which is against the King. 3 Inst. 20. It may be committed where a Servant kills his Master, a Wife her Husband, or a Secular or Religious Person killeth his Prelate or a Superior. 25 Ed. 3. c. 2. And Aiders, Abettors, and Procurers, are within the Act; but if the Killing is upon a sudden falling out, or Se Defendens, &c. it is not Petit Treason; for Persons accused of Petit Treason shall be adjudged Not guilty, or Principal and Accessary, according to the Rules of Law in other Cases. H. P. C. 24. Petit Treason is committed against the Head, though not against the supreme Head; and if a Servant kills his Mistress, or the Wife of his Master, she is Master within the Letter of the Statute, and it is Petit Treason: But this Statute is so strictly construed, that no Case which cannot be brought within the Meaning of the Words of it, shall be punished by it; and therefore if a Son kill his Father, he shall not be tried for Petit Treason, except he served his Father for Wages, &c. in which Case he shall be indicted by the Name of a Servant; and yet the Offence is more heinous by far in a Child than a Servant. 3 Inst. 20. H. P. C. 23. 11 Rep. 34. A Servant procured another to kill his Master, who killed him in the Servant's Presence; this was Petit Treason in the Servant, and Murder in the other; if the Servant had been absent, the Crime would not have been Petit Treason, but Murder, to which he would have been accessary. 3 Inst. 20. Moor 91. Where a Servant intended to kill his Master, and laid in Wait for that Purpose while he was his Servant, but did not do it till he had been a Year out of his Service; it was adjudged Petit Treason. H. P. C. 23. A Maid Servant and a Stranger conspired to rob the Mistress, and in the Night the Servant opened the Door and let in the Stranger into the House, who killed her Mistress, she lighting him to her Bed, but neither saying or doing any Thing, only holding the Candle; and this was held Murder in the Stranger, and Petit Treason in the Servant. Dyer 128. If a Wife and a Stranger kill the Husband, it is Petit Treason in the Wife, and Murder in the Stranger: And so it is of an Ecclesiastick Person, killing his Prelate, &c. Dalt. 337. If a Wife and her Servant conspire to kill the Husband, and appoint Time and Place for it, but the Servant alone in the Absence of the Wife killeth him; it shall be Petit Treason in both: And if the Wife procure a Servant to kill the Husband, both are guilty of Petit Treason; also if a Stranger procures a Wife or Servant to kill the Husband or Master, he may be indicted as accessary to Petit Treason. Dyer 128, 332. Crompt. 41. Where the Wife and another who was not her Servant, conspired the Death of the Husband, the Indictment was that the Wife Proditrice, and the other Person Felonice gave him Poison, &c. whereof he died; And the Wife being acquitted on the Indictment, she brought an Action against her Son-in-Law for a malicious Prosecution, and recovered Damages; but afterwards he brought an Appeal of Murder against her, upon which she was convicted in B. R. and carried down into the County where the Fact was done, and there executed. Cro. Car. 331, 382. Mod. Ca. 217. 3 Nelf. Abr. 372. On Divorce from the Husband for Adultery, a Woman is a Wife within the Statute to be guilty of Petit Treason against her Husband; for they may cohabit again: But where a Man marries a second Wife, the former being alive, she is not within this Law. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 381. If a Clergyman be ordained by the Bishop of A. and he kills that Bishop, it is Petit Treason, for he hath professed Canonical Obedience to him: And where a Parson hath Benefices in two Dioceses, if he kill the Bishop of either, 'tis Petit Treason; but in Case he killeth a Bishop, out of the Diocese where he is Beneficed, it is only Murder. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 381. A Parson kills the Metropolitan of his Province, this will be Petit Treason, though he be not his immediate Superior. Ibid. In Petit Treason, it is said that there must be two Witnesses to the Indictment; and need not be to the Trial of it, for it is not within the Stat. 7 W. 3. 2 Hawk. P. C. 258. All Petit Treason implies Murder, and is the highest Degree thereof: And an Attempt by a Wife to kill her Husband; Piracy by a Subject, &c. were Petit Treason by the Common Law. 1 Hawk. 87, 88. This Kind of Treason gives Forfeiture of Lands by Escheat to the Lord of the Fee, &c. and a Man is drawn and hanged for it; and a Woman burned. 1 Inst. 37.

An Indictment for Petit Treason.

Treasure, (Tesaurus) Signifies Riches and Wealth; and as the King's Treasure is the Honour and Safety of the King, for this Reason Mines of Gold and Silver belong to the King.

Treasurer, (Tesaurarius) Is an Officer to whom the Treasure of another is committed to be kept, and truly disposed of: The Chief of these with us is the Lord Treasurer of England, who is a Lord by his Office, and one of the greatest Men of the Kingdom. This great Officer holds his Place Durante beneplacito, and is instituted by the Delivery of a White Staff to him by the King; and in former Times he received his Office by Delivery of the Golden Keys of the Treasury: He is also Treasurer of the Exchequer, by Letters Patent. And by 31 Ed. 3. in Writs of Error the Lord Chancellor and Lord Treasurer shall cause the Record and Process of the Exchequer to be brought before them, who are Judges; but the Writ is to be directed to the Treasurer and Barons, who have the Keeping of the Records. Under the Charge and Government of the Lord Treasurer, is all the King's Wealth contained in the Exchequer; he has the Check of all the Officers employed in Collecting the Customs and Royal Revenues; all the Offices of the Customs in all Ports of England are in his Gift and Disposition; Escheators in every County are nominated by him; and he makes Leases of all the Lands belonging to the Crown, &c. But the high and important Post of Lord Treasurer has of late Years, like some other great Offices, been esteemed too great a Task for one Person, and been generally executed by Commissioners. And see more belonging to this Office, Stat. 20 Ed. 3. c. 6. 31 H. 6. c. 5. 4 Ed. 4. c. 1. 17 Ed. 4. c. 5. 21 H. 8. c. 20. and 1 Ed. 6. c. 13. 4 Inst. 104. Besides the Lord Treasurer, there is a Treasurer of the King's Household, who is of the Privy Council, and with the Controller, &c. has great Power. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 1. A Treasurer of the Navy or War. 35 Eliz. c. 4. Treasurer of the King's Chamber. 33 H. 8. c. 39. A Treasurer of the Wardrobe. 25 Ed. 3. c. 21. And there are Treasurers of Corporations, &c.

Treasurer in Cathedral Churches, An Officer whose Charge was to take Care of the Vestments, Plate, Jewels, Relicks, and other Treasure belonging to the said Churches; and at the Time of the Reformation, the Office was extinguished as needless in most Cathedral Churches; but it is still remaining in those of Salisbury, London, &c.

Treasurer of the County, Is he that keeps the County Stock: There are Two of them in each County, chosen by the major Part of the Justices of the Peace, &c. at Easter-Sessions; they must have 10 l. a Year in Land, or 150 l. in Personal Estate, and shall not continue in their Office above a Year; and they are to account yearly at Easter-Sessions, or within ten Days after to their Successors, under Penalties: The County Stock, of which this Officer hath the Keeping, is raised by Rating every Parish yearly; and is disposed of to Charitable Uses, for the Relief of maimed Soldiers and Mariners, Prisoners in the County Gaols, paying the Salaries of Governors of Houses of Correction, and Relieving poor Alms-houses, &c. And the Duty of those Treasurers, with the Manner of raising the Stock, &c. is particularly in the Statutes of 43 El. c. 2. 7 Jac. 1. c. 4. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 18. 5 Ann. c. 32. 6 Geo. 1. c. 23.

Treasure-trove, (Thesaurus inventus) Is where any Money is found hid in the Earth, but not lying upon the Ground, and no Man knows to whom it belongs; then the Property thereof belongs to the King, or the Lord of the Manor by special Grant or Prescription: But if the Owner may any ways be known, it doth not belong to the King or Lord of the Liberty, but such Owner: By the Civil Law, Treasure trove is given to the Finder; but the Law of England gives it to the King by his Prerogative, or some other claiming under him, &c. Brañ. lib. 3. 3 Inst. 132. Kitch. 80. Nothing is said to be Treasure-trove, but Gold and Silver; and it is every Subject's Part as soon as he has found any Treasure in the Earth, to make it known to the Coroners of the County, &c. and concealing Treasure found is punished by Fine and Imprisonment. Briton. cap. 17. S. P. C. 25. Coroners ought to inquire of Treasure trove, being certified thereof by the King's Bailiffs or others, and of who were the Finders, &c. 4 Ed. 1. And Seizures of Treasure trove, may be inquired of in the Sheriff's Turn. 2 Havk. P. C. 67.

Trebuchet, Tribuch, A Tumbrel or Cucking-stool; also a great Engine to cast Stones to batter Walls. 3 Inst. 319.

Treet, (Triticum) Fine Wheat, mentioned in the Statute 51 H. 3.

Tremagium, Tremessum, Tremissum, The Season or Time for sowing Summer-Corn, being about

March, the third Month, to which the Word may allude; and Corn sowed in March is by the French called Tremes and Tremois: Tremessum was the Season for Summer-Corn, Barley, Oats, Beans, &c. opposed to the Season for Winter Corn, Wheat and Rye, called Hibernagium, and is thus distinguished in old Charters. Cartular. Glaston. MS. 91.

Tremellum, A Word used for Granary, in Ms. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 470.

Trencheator, (From the Fr. Trancher, to cut) A Carver of Meat at a Table; as in the Patent Rolls Mention is made of a Pension granted by the King to A. B. uni Trencheatorum nostrorum, &c.

Trental, (Fr. Trentale) An Office for the Dead, that continued thirty Days, or consisting of thirty Masses; from the Ital. Trenta, i. e. Triginta. Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14.

Trespas, (Transgressio) Is any Transgression of the Law under Treason, Felony, or Misprision of either: But it is most commonly used for that Wrong or Damage, which is done by one private Man to another; or to the King in his Forest, &c. In which Signification it is of two Sorts: Trespas general, otherwise term'd Trespas Vi & Armis, and Trespas special, or upon the Case. Bro. Trespas. Brañ. lib. 4. Trespas supposes a Wrong to be done with Force; and Trespas against the Person of a Man are of several Kinds, viz. By Menacing or Threatening to hurt him; assaulting or setting upon one to beat him; Battery being the actual Beating of another; maiming of a Person so that he loses the Use of his Limbs; by Imprisonment, or restraining him of his lawful Liberty, &c. Trespas against a Man's Property may be committed in divers Cases; as against his Wife, Children, or Servants, or his House and Goods, &c. and against his Land, by carrying away Deeds and Evidences concerning it, Cutting the Trees, or spoiling the Grass therein, &c. F. N. B. 86, 87. Finch 198, 201. 2 Roll. Abr. 545. Action of Trespas lies where a Man makes an Entry on the Lands of another, and does Damage: And Trespas Vi & Armis may be brought by him that hath the Possession of Goods, or of a House, or Land, if he be disturb'd in his Possession; for the Disturbance, besides the private Damage, is also a Breach of the Publick Peace. 1 Inst. 57. 2 Roll. Abr. 572. 2 Lill. Abr. 596. There is this Difference between an Action of Trespas Vi & Armis, and Trespas on the Case: The one lies where the original Act was a Wrong in itself, and the other where an Injury is consequential to a lawful Act; as for Instance, 'tis lawful for a Man to make a Dam on his own Ground; but if by making it, the Water overflows his Neighbour's Land, an Action on the Case lies against him. Mod. Caf. in L. & E. 275. Entry into a House against a Man's Will is Trespas; but a Man may lawfully come into the House of another Person, to demand or pay Money; and if Trespas be brought he may plead it specially. 2 Lill. Abr. Trespas lies generally for Breaking a Man's Clofe; for chasing Cattle, whereby they die or are injured; Taking away Pales, and Breaking of Fences, or of Doors or Windows of a House; for Driving a Cart and Horses over the Ground of another, where there is no Way for it; Fishing in another Person's Pond, and for Breaking the Pond; for Eating the Corn of another with Cattle, and Digging in any Man's Coal Mines, and carrying away Coals; for Taking away so much of the Plaintiff's Money; Tearing a Bond, &c. 1 Bro. 338. 1 Saund. 220. 2 Cro. 463. Latch 144. And where a Person has only the Crop and Vesture, or Pasture of Land, he may maintain Trespas. Mor 456. 2 Lutw. In Trespas for taking Goods, the Plaintiff must alledge a Property in himself; because in such such Case there may be two Intendments, one that they were the Defendant's own Goods, and then the Taking is lawful; and the other that they were the Goods of the Plaintiff, when the Taking will be wrongful; but wherever the Construction is indifferent, it shall always be most strong against the Plaintiff. 2 Lev. 20. Yeko. 36. If the Defendant makes the Place where the Trespass was done material by his Plea, he must shew it with great Certainty; but if it be a Trespass Quare clausum fregit in B. and the Defendant pleads that the Place where is his Freehold, which is the common Bar in this Case, and so Justifies as in his Freehold, &c. if Issue be taken thereon, the Defendant may give in Evidence any Close in which he hath a Freehold; though if the Plaintiff had replied and given the Close a Name, the Defendant must have a Freehold in that very Close. 2 Salk. 453. Cartber's Rep. 176. A Plaintiff may make a New Assignment of the Place where, &c. and then the Defendant may vary from his first Justification: As for Instance; In Action of Trespass assign'd to be done generally in D. the Defendant justified the Taking Damage-secant; and the Plaintiff in his Replication made a new Assignment, upon which the Defendant justified for a Heriot; and it was adjudg'd good. Moor 540. 3 Nelf. Abr. 381. The Defendant in his Plea may put the Plaintiff to the new Assignment; and every new Assignment is a new Declaration, to which the Defendant is to give a new Answer, and he may not traverse it, but must either plead or demur; yet where Trespases are alleged to be done in several Places, and the Defendant pleads to some, and agrees to the Places wherein the Plaintiff alleged the Trespases to be done, there the Plaintiff may answer that Part of the Plea by a Traverse, and shew a new Assignment as to the Rest. Cro. Eliz. 492, 812. One Action of Trespass may be brought for a Trespass committed in Lands which lie in several Towns or Villis, if they are in one and the same County; for else they cannot receive one Trial, as they are local Causes of Action triable in the County where done. 2 Lill Abr. 595. A Man may have one Action of Trespass for several Trespases: And if divers Actions of Trespass are brought for one and the same Cause, the Defendant may get them joined into one, if brought to vex him; but the Trespases must not be of several Natures, which may not be tried in one Action. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. All Persons that are accessory to any Trespass, may be charged as Principals; and Trespases continued may be laid with a Continuando diversis diebus & vicibus; but Things must lie in Continuance, and not terminate in themselves, or it will not be good: And where a Trespass is alleged with a Continuance, that cannot be continued, the Evidence ought only to be to the first Act. 2 Salk 638, 639. The best Way to declare for such Trespases which lie in Continuance, is for the Plaintiff to set forth in his Declaration, that the Defendant, between such a Day and such a Day, cut several Trees, &c. and not lay a Continuando Transgressiones from such a Day to such a Day; and upon such Declaration, the Plaintiff may give in Evidence a Cutting on any Day within those Days. 3 Salk 360. When a Trespass is done before the Day mentioned in the Declaration, it is good enough; because being once a Trespass, it is always a Trespass. Cro. Eliz. 32. In all Trespases there ought to be a voluntary Act, and also a Damage; and though in Detinue and Trover, where the Thing it self is in Demand, it should be particularly named; 'tis not so in Trespass where Damages only are to be recovered: But if Trespass be laid in a Declaration for Taking of Goods, without expressing the Quantity and Quality of them, or the Value, &c. it is bad upon a general Demurrer; though as to the Omission of the Value, it hath been held to be good after Verdict. Latch 13. Style 170. 2 Lev. 230. Lutw 1384 Sid. 39. If the Defendant in Trespass Quare clausum fregit, disclaim any Title to the Land, and the Trespass is involuntary or by Negligence, he may be admitted to plead a Disclaimer and Tender of Amends before the Action brought, &c. And if it be found for the Defendant, the Plaintiff shall be barred. 21 Jac. c. 16. Where a Defendant justifies for a Trespass, he must confess it, or it will be ill: And a Defendant shall never be excused in Trespass, unless upon an inevitable Necessity. 3 Nelf. Abr. 379. In a Trespass Quare clausum fregit, where there is only a Force in Law; as if one enters into the Ground of another, the Party must be required to go out before Hands may be laid on him; for every Imposition of Hands is an Assault which cannot be justified upon the Account of a Force or Breaking a Close in Law, without Request to be gone; but 'tis otherwise where there is an actual Force. 2 Salk 644. For any the least Beating of a Man's Wife, the Husband and Wife together may bring Action of Trespass: And if it be such a Beating, as he thereby loses her Company, or Service, he alone may have this Action. 3 Rep. 113. 10 Rep. 130. Trespass for Breaking the Plaintiff's Close, and Beating his Servant; the Plaintiff had a Verdict, but could never get Judgment, because he did not declare per quod Servitium amisit: The Servant himself may have an Action of Trespass for the Beating, though his Master cannot, unless it be so great that he loses his Service; without which, it is no Damage to the Master. 5 Rep. 10. 9 Rep. 111. Action of Trespass may be brought for Taking away a Man's Servant; but not for the Taking away of a Man generally. 5 Mod. 191. Trespass quod cepit & abduxit lies not for the Father for Taking and carrying away any of his Children, except for Taking of a Son or Daughter who is Heir. Cro. Eliz. 769. A Man committed Adultery with a Woman in Southwark, where they both dwelt, and the Woman went to Ratcliff in Middlesex, from whence the Man brought her to Richmond in Surrey; the Husband brought an Action of Trespass de Uxore Rapta & abducta cum bonis Viri; and it was a Doubt, whether upon this Matter given in Evidence, the Defendant could be found guilty in London; but the Jury found him guilty generally, and gave the Plaintiff 300 l. Damages. Dyer 256. Executors may bring Trespass for Goods taken out of their Possession, or for Goods and Chattels taken in the Life of the Testator; also Administrators shall have it for Goods of Intestates; and an Ordinary may bring Action of Trespass for Goods in his own Possession to administer as Ordinary, &c. If a Man voluntarily take away my Goods or Cattle, and keep them till I pay him Money, or Pretence that they are his Heriot, &c. when they are not so, I may have Action of Trespass. Bro. Tresp. 354. And if the Sheriff have a Writ against the Lands and Goods of one Man, and he by Mistake execute it upon my Lands or Goods; this Action lies against him, and it will be no Excuse that the Plaintiff or any other informed him they were the Goods, &c. of the Defendant. Dyer 295. Kelw. 119, 129. He that is possessed of Lands, though he hath no good Title, shall have this Action for a Trespass against one who hath no Right to the Lands; but not against him that hath Right: And yet a Man having Right or Title to Land only, by Descent, Lease, &c. may not bring Trespass, before Entry made thereon. Plowd. 431, 546. Kelw. 163. The Lessee for Years after his Lease is expired, may have Action for a Trespass done on the Land before his Lease was ended. Bro. Tresp. 456. An Action of Trespass was brought by the Lord of a Manor, for Trespass done in the Highway, by a Tenant's Beasts breaking out of his Close into the Waste; and it was adjudged it would not lie. 1 Bull. 157. If A. is bound to Fence his Close against B. and he against C. a Neighbour; and neither of them inclose against one another, so that the Beasts of C. for Want of Inclosure go out of the Ground, to that of B. and thence to A.'s Ground: In this Case A. shall have Trespass against C. for he is bound only to Fence against B. and every one ought to keep his Cattle as well in open Grounds, not inclosed, as in several Grounds where there is Inclosure. Dyer 366. Jenk. Cent. 161. One drives my Cattle into another Man's Land, I may go on the Land and fetch them out; yet by this I am a Trespasser to the Owner of the Ground, and he may have his Action against me for it, and I must take my Counter Remedy against him that drove them in. 21 H. 7. 27. 1 Rep. 54. If another Man have a Horse, or other Goods in my House or Ground, and he enter to take it away, without my Leave, Action of Trespass lies against him: But if I drive the Cattle or carry the Goods of another into my Land, he may come upon the Land and take them, and no Action lieth. 4 Skep. Abr. 135, 136. Where a Man's Corn is in Danger of spoiling, in the Harvest, &c. and his Neighbour brings it Home to save it; or if strange Cattle be in my Corn, and he drive them out, without Leave, Trespass may be brought against him: But if my own Cattle in my Corn, are driven out by another, it is otherwise. Kelw. 88. If a Man hunt my Beasts, in Ground belonging to me, or some other Person; he is liable to this Action: Though the Owner of the Land wherein Cattle are doing this Trespass, may gently by himself, or his Dogs, chase them out, and justify the same. Hill. 16 Jac. B. R. Bro. Tresp. 421. 8 Rep. 67. If any Person shall maliciously maim, or hurt any Cattle, or destroy any Plantation of Trees, or throw down Inclosures, he shall forfeit treble Damages in Action of Trespass. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. But in Action of Trespass, if the Jury give not 40 s. Damages, the Plaintiff shall have no more Costs than Damages, except the Freehold or Title of Land come in Question, or something of the Plaintiff's be carried away, &c. Stat. 23 Car. 2. c. 9. Though the Plaintiff, where the Trespass is wilful and malicious, upon Certificate thereof by the Judge on the Back of the Record, shall recover Damages and full Costs, by 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 11. And Damages being small under 40 s. in Trespass, on Motion full Costs have been allow'd; where Entry was made on the Freehold, &c. Skin. 100. Caribew 225. A Court, which is not a Court of Record, cannot hold Plea of Trespass Vi & Armis. F. N. B. 85. Writs of Trespass lie either to the Sheriff to determine the Matter in the County-Court, or returnable in B. R. or C. B. And the Words Vi & Armis shall be in the returnable Writs, but not in the others: Though in Writs of Trespass upon the Case, those Words must not be inserted, if returnable in B. R. &c. F. N. B. 86, 190. Trespass quare Vi & Armis clausum fregit was brought, wherein the Plaintiff laid Damage to the Value of 20 s. and the Defendant demurred for that Cause, alledging that B. R. could have no Cognizance at Common Law, or by the Statute of Gloucester, to hold Plea in an Action where the Damages are under 40 s. But it was adjudg'd, that Trespass Quare Vi & Armis will lie in this Court, be the Damages what they will. 3 Mod. 275. At Common Law, in Trespass Vi & Armis, if the Defendant was convicted, he was to be fined and imprisoned; but in other Trespasses only amerced. Jenk. Cent. 185. In Action of Trespass against two Persons for carrying away Goods, &c. one lets Judgment go by Default, and the other justifies under a Licence from the Plaintiff, and has a Verdict; this goes to the whole, and Judgment shall be arrested as to the other Defendant. 2 Ld. Raym. 1372, 1374. The Process in Writ of Tres- pass is an Attachment and Distingas, and upon a Return of a Nihil by the Sheriff, a Capias, Alias, and Pluries shall issue; and then Exigent and Process of Outlawry, &c. New Nat. Br. 193, 203. See Action on the Case, and Traverse.

Form of a common Writ of Trespass.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of S. Greeting: If A. B. shall make you secure, &c. then put by good and safe Pledges C. D. that he be before our Justices at Westminster, on the Oath of St. Hillary, to shew why with Force and Arms, upon him A. at, &c. be made an Assault, and him beat, wounded, and evil treated, and other Wrongs to him did, to the grievous Damage of the said A. and against our Peace; and have you there the Names of the Pledges and this Writ, &c. — Or, why with Force and Arms, the Close of him A. at N. be did break, and in it without his Leave, so many Cows, of such Price, be took and carried away, &c. — Or, why the Grass or Corn of him A. at, &c. lately growing, to the Value of, &c. with certain Beasts, he eat up, trod down and consumed; and other Wrongs, &c.

Trespasser, Is one who commits a Trespass; and though the Law allows a Man to enter a Tavern, a Landlord to distrain on Land, &c. yet if he doth abuse it by Committing a Trespass, the Law will adjudge him a Trespasser ab initio 8 Rep. 146. But where Persons for any Irregularity in taking a Distress, &c. shall not be Trespassers ab initio; so as they make Satisfaction for any special Damage, vide Stat. 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. and Distress.

Trespassants, (Fr.) Is used for Passengers, by Britton, cap 29.

Trestrurnare, To turn or divert another Way; as to turn a Road, &c. Chart. K. John.

Trepts, (Fr.) Signifies taken out or withdrawn, and is applied to a Juror removed or discharged. F. N. B. 159.

Trial, (Triatio) Is the Examination of a Cause, Civil or Criminal, before a Judge who has Jurisdiction of it, according to the Laws of the Land: It is the Trial and Examination of the Point in Issue, and of the Question between the Parties, whereupon Judgment may be given. 1 Inst. 124. Finch 36. Also 'tis taken for the Manner and Order of Proceeding, in the hearing and determining of Matters in Difference, being diversly used, according to the Nature of the Thing to be tried. Ibid. And there are many Kinds of Trials; as of Matters of Fact, which shall be tried by a Jury; Matters of Law, that are triable by the Court; and Matters of Record tried by the Records themselves; also some Things shall be tried by the Bishop's Certificate; and some by Inspection, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 602. Nothing that is triable by an Issue, can be directed to be tried otherwise: Irregularities in suing out a Judgment or Execution, are tried by Reference, &c. But other Matters subsequent to the Judgment, by an Audita Querela. Comber. 8, 14. In criminal Cases, it is usual to ask the Criminal how he will be tried; which was formerly a very significant Question, though it is not so now, because anciently there were Trial by Battle, by Ordeals, and by Jury; and when the Offender answered the Question, By God and his Country, it shewed that he made Choice to be tried by a Jury: But now there is no other Way of Trial of Criminals. Blount's Dict. It is ordained by Magna Charta, that no Person shall be condemn'd on any Accusation without Trial by lawful Judgment of his Peers, or by the Law. 9 Hen. 3. cap. 29. And the most general Rule has been, that every Trial shall be out of that Town, Precinct, &c. within within which the Matter of Fact triable is alledg'd, or the nearest thereunto, for the better Cognizance of the Fact committed; and not to have Things tried in Foreign Counties, where the Jury are Strangers to the Parties, to the Witnesses, and the Point in Issue. 1 Inst. 125. But when an Indictment is found against a Person in the proper County, it may be heard and determined in another County by special Commission, &c. 3 Inst. 27. If a Subject of England be killed in a Foreign Kingdom, by an Englishman, he may be tried by the Constable and Marshal; or by Commissioners in any County. Stat. 33 H. 8. If any Man die here in one County, of a Wound received in another; he shall be tried by a Jury of the County where his Death was: In Appeal in such Case, it is to be there brought, and Trial be by both Counties. Stat. 3 Ed. 6. cap. 24. 3 H. 7. c. 12. And if one be wounded on the Sea, or out of England, and die of the same here; or shall be wounded in England, and die on the Sea, or at any Place abroad; an Indictment may be found by Jurors of the County in which the Death, or Stroke, &c. happen'd, and the Judges proceed in the Trial against the Offenders, as if the Felony were there done, &c. by Stat. 2 Geo. 2. c. 21. An Issue being joined in B. R. of a Matter triable in Ireland; this shall be sent into Ireland to be tried, and after Trial be remanded: Though if an Issue be thus joined of a Thing in Wales, the Record shall not be sent there to be tried; but it shall be tried in the next County of England adjoining thereto. 1 Dunw. Abr. 248. If a Foreign Issue which is local, should happen, it may be tried where the Action is laid; and for that Purpose the Plaintiff may enter a Suggestion on the Roll, that such a Place in such a County is next adjacent; and it may be tried in B. R. by a Jury from that Place, according to the Laws of that Country, which may be given in Evidence: Adjudged in Action of Debt for Rent, upon a Lease made in London of Lands in Jamaica; and it was held, that where the Lessor declares upon the Privy of Estate, the Action must be brought where the Lands are; but 'tis otherwise when the Action is founded on the Privy of Contract, the one being local, and the other transitory, as in this Case. 2 Salk. 651. In Covenant, the Action was laid in London, and Issue joined upon a Feoffment in Oxfordshire, of Lands in that County, and the Cause was tried in London; after Verdict it was objected that the Trial ought to have been in Oxfordshire, but resolved that by the Stat. 17 Car. 2. it was well tried in the County where the Action was brought: But though the Words of that Statute are, that it shall be good, if tried by the County where the Action is laid, it hath been adjudged, that must be understood of a Trial by the County where the Matter in Issue doth arise; for otherwise it would destroy the whole Law concerning Trials by Juries. 3 Salk. 364. In the Trial of a Grant of Lands, if the Issue be whether such Grant was made or not, the Vifne shall be from that Place where that is alledged; so upon Dimissit: But 'tis otherwise of a Feoffment or Lease for Life, when Livery is made; for there it should be tried where the Land lieth. Jenk. Cent. 338. In Ejectment the Venue ought to come always from the Place where the Lands lie, and not from the Place where the Demise is laid to be made: But that Fault is help'd after Verdict. Mod. Ca. 265. And by the Statute 4 & 5 Ann. the Venue for the Trial of any Issue in a civil Cause, shall be awarded of the Body of the County where the Issue is. On civil Causes grown to Issue, if they are to be tried in London or Middlesex, and the Defendant live not forty Miles from London, eight Days Notice of Trial is to be given; and if the Defendant lives that Distance or further, he must have fourteen Days Notice from the Plaintiff, before he tries his Cause; but eight Days Notice of Trial is good at the

Affises, let the Defendant live where he will, except on an old Issue; where a Cause hath remained four Terms without Prosecution; in which Case a Term's Notice is to be given: Upon due Notice of Trial, the Defendant must generally go to Trial, or Judgment will pass against him by Default; and where the Plaintiff proceeds not to Trial after Notice, and there is no Countermand, the Defendant shall have Costs for Attendance, &c. or the Defendant may give a Rule to try the Cause by Proviso, and on Notice given the Plaintiff bring it to Trial, that he may discharge himself of the Action, and herein he may recover Costs. 2 Lill. Abr. 609, 613. 23 Hen. 8. cap. 15. A late Statute ordains, that where any Issue is joined in the Courts at Westminster, &c. if the Plaintiff neglects bringing it to be tried, according to the usual Practice, the Judges on Motion made, and due Notice given, shall pass the like Judgment for the Defendant in the Action, as in Case of a Nonsuit, and award him Costs; unless a Judge find Cause to allow further Time for the Trial: And no Cause shall be try'd before any Justice of Assize or Nisi prius, or at the Sittings in London or Westminster, without ten Days Notice at least, if the Defendant lives above forty Miles from the said Cities; and when any Party gives such Notice of Trial, if he does not countermand it in Writing six Days before, he shall pay Costs to the Defendant, &c. Stat. 14 Geo. 2. c. 17. If a Cause to be tried, be not enter'd in the Judge's Book, two Days before the Time of Trial, a Ne Recipiatur may be enter'd, that it be not set down to be tried that Time; but this will not be admitted in Sittings after the Term. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. To proceed to Trial, in the Courts at Westminster, when the Declaration is drawn, and the Appearance of the Defendant made, it must be delivered with an Imparance to the Defendant's Attorney; then it is to be entered upon the Prothonotary's Roll and docketted that Term, and the Term following Rule must be given with the Secondary for the Defendant to plead by such a Day, or the Plaintiff to have Judgment: The Defendant having pleaded, a Copy of the Issue is to be made out and delivered to the Defendant's Attorney, giving him Notice of Trial; in order to which, the Venire facias must be had and return'd by the Sheriff, and then is sued out the Habeas Corpora, to bring in the Jury: But if the Defendant neglects to plead, and lets it go by Default, on entering Judgment, a Writ of Inquiry of Damages is to be awarded, returnable the next Term, of the Execution whereof the Defendant's Attorney shall have Notice; which being executed, and the Damage inserted in a Schedule annexed to the Writ returned by the Sheriff, a Rule is to be given upon it, and Costs are taxed by the Prothonotary; and lastly, it is carried to the Clerk of the Judgments, who on giving him the Number Roll and Term, when the Judgment was enter'd, he will make out a Writ of Execution, either a Capias ad satisfaciend. or Fieri facias, for the Damages and Costs, &c. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. pag. 99. At the Affises, when a Cause comes on to Trial, first a Disfringas of the Jury is to be return'd by the Sheriff, and then the Record must be delivered to the Judge's Marshal; and the Record being put into the Hands of the Marshal, Briefs prepared for the Counsel, and all Parties ready, the Marshal delivers the Record to the Judge, and the Crier calls over the Jury: The Jury are now to be Ballotted and sworn, and bid to stand together and hear their Charge; after which, the Counsel on both Sides open the Case, first of the Plaintiff, the Proof lying on his Side, and looking over their Breviaries argue the Matter in Contest according to Law, producing Witnesses to prove the Facts alledged; and when the Counsel have done, the Judge sums up the Evidence, and gives it in Charge to the Jury to do impartially, and the Clerk

Clerk of Assise, or his Associate, delivers a Copy of the Jury's Names, and the Issue they are to try, to the Jury; and a Bailiff being sworn to keep them without Meat, Drink, &c. till they are agreed, they depart from the Bar; and when they are all agreed, they return to give in their Verdict: Then the Plaintiff is called, and if he do not appear, a Nonsuit shall be recorded; but if he appears, the Clerk asks the Jury who they find for, and what Costs and Damages, and so enters it on the Back of the Panel, and repeats it to the Jury, which finishes the Trial: And after the Trial is over, the Associate delivers to the Party recovering the Record with the Disfringas, and the Names of the Jury annexed, on the Back of which he indorses the Substance of the Verdict, and the Costs given by the Jury; and then upon the Back of the Record is ingrossed the Postea, which is delivered to the Clerk of the Rules, and he makes out a Four Days Rule for Judgment; and when the Rule is out, if Judgment be not arrested, further Costs are taxed, and the Judgment is fit to be entered: But in Trials at the Assises, the Record and Disfringas are usually kept by the Associate till the next Term, when he is to be called upon for the Postea, and you proceed to have it marked, make out a Rule, and sign Judgment; and Judgment being entered, Execution is thereupon awarded, and Writs of Ca. sa. Fieri fac. Elegit, &c. Ibid. 100, 101. If a Trial be had the last Day of Term, or at the Sittings after the Term, or the Assises, Judgment cannot be given thereon, till the first Day of the next Term. When a Defendant is not prepared to try his Cause, upon Petition and Affidavit of the Reasons, the Judge will order the Cause to be stayed till another Day the same Assises; or in London till the next Term, on Payment of Costs: And in Case at a Trial, the Court sees that one of the Parties is surprised, through some Casualty, and not by any Fault of his own, they may in their Discretion put off the Trial to another Time, until such Party is better prepared. 2 Lill. 609, 610. If the Matters contested are of great Value, or the Title in Question is difficult or intricate, on Motion the Judges will order a Trial at Bar, for the better Satisfaction of the Parties; though it is not usual to grant Trials at Bar the same Term moved for: And these Trials are appointed by the Statute of Westm. 2. where the Cause requires Magnam Examinationem; also Officers of the Court, and Barristers at Law, may insist upon a Trial at Bar; after which, a new Trial is not to be granted. 2 Salk. 648, 651, 653. It hath been laid down as a Rule, that after a Trial at Bar, no new Trial shall be had in any Case, except it appear that there hath been some Corruption in the Jury. Cartbrow 507. New Trials may be granted generally in several Cases, viz. where the Defendant had not sufficient Notice given him of the former Trial; if excessive Damages are given; a Verdict is against Evidence; there was any Fraud, &c. But a new Trial ought not to be allowed for Want of Evidence at the former Trial, which the Party might then have produced: And it hath been denied, where the Defendant forgot to bring a Settlement at the Trial; so likewise where very large Damages were given, on the Report and Opinion of the Judge who tried the Cause, that he believed the Jury gave a Verdict according to their Consciences: And no new Trial shall be granted for too small Damages; unless where Action of Covenant is brought for a Sum certain, and the Jury give Damages under the same, &c. The Reason of granting new Trials upon Verdicts against Evidence at the Assises is, because the Trials are subordinate to the Courts; and such new Trials have been anciently granted, as appears from this; that it is a good Challenge to a Juror to say that he hath been a Juror before in the same Cause; Adjudged that a new Trial cannot be granted in an inferior Court. 2 Salk. 647, 648, 649, 650. 3 Nels. Abr. 414, 417.

After a Motion in Arrest of Judgment, the Party shall not move for a new Trial; but after Motion for a new Trial, he may move in Arrest of Judgment. 2 Salk. 647. A new Trial is never granted in criminal Cases, where the Defendant is acquitted, if some Fraud or Trick be not proved in the Case. Ibid. But on Conviction, a new Trial may be granted upon Cause; so if a Trial on Indictment be by a wrong Venue; and in Cases where Appeal may be brought. 2 Lill. 606, 613. If the Issue tried in any Cause is not joined, it is not a good Trial; except it be an Issue in Chancery in the Petty-Bag Side, which is to be sent from thence to be tried in B. R. Hull. 22 Car. It is a Mistrial for a Thing to be tried before a Judge, who hath Interest in the Thing in Question; and if a Cause is tried by a Jury out of a wrong County, or there be any Error in the Process against the Jurors, or it is directed to a wrong Officer, &c. it is a Mistrial; likewise where Matter of Record is tried by a Jury, it will be a Mistrial; but if the Matter of Record be mixed with Matter of Fact, Trial by Jury is good. Hob. 124. On a Mistrial, Judgment may not be given; but shall be arrested, &c. But a Mistrial is helped by the Statute of Jesails. See Issue, Nisi prius, &c.

A Record of a Trial and Judgment in Action of Debt.

Plens before the Lord the King at Westminster, of Hillary Term in the Sixth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, King of Great Britain, &c. Roll 20.

Somerfet, ff. IT is to be remembered, that heretofore, to wit, in Michaelmas Term last past, came before the Lord the King at Westminster, A. B. by C. D. his Attorney, and brought here into the Court of the said Lord the now King, then there held, his certain Bill against E. F. in Custody of the Marshal, &c. of a Plea of Debt, and there are Pledges of Prosecuting, to wit, John Doe and Richard Roe; which said Bill follows in these Words, that is to say: Somerfet, ff. A. B. complains of E. F. otherwise called, &c. in the Custody of the Marshal of the Marshalsea of our Sovereign Lord the King, being before the King himself, of a Plea, that he render unto the said A. Forty Pounds of good and lawful Money of Great Britain, which he owes to him, and unjustly detains; For that, whereas the aforesaid E. the fifth Day of June in the Fourth Year of the Reign of the Lord George the Second, now King of Great Britain, &c. at Bridgewater in the County of Somerfet aforesaid, by his Writing Obligatory, sealed with the Seal of the said E. and now here shewn to the Court of the said Lord the King, the Date whereof is the same Day and Year above, acknowledged himself to be held and firmly bound to the aforesaid A. in the aforesaid Forty Pounds, to be paid to the said A. when he should afterwards be thereunto required: Yet the said E. although thereto often required, hath not paid the said Forty Pounds to the said A. but hitherto hath altogether denied, and still doth deny to pay the same to him; to the Damage of the said A. Twenty Pounds, and thereupon he brings his Suit, &c. And now at this Day, to wit, on the Day, &c. in this same Term, to which Day the aforesaid E. had Licence of Imparling, and then to Answer, &c. before the Lord the King at Westminster, came as well the aforesaid A. by his Attorney aforesaid, as the aforesaid E. by G. H. his Attorney; and the said E. defends the Force and Injury, when, &c. and saith, That he by Virtue of the aforesaid Writing Obligatory, ought not be charged with the Debt aforesaid, because he saith, that the Writing Obligatory aforesaid, is not his Deed; and of this he puts himself upon the Country, and the aforesaid A. likewise, &c. Therefore let there come a Jury thereof before our Lord the King

King at Westminster, on, &c. (such a Return Day) and who are neither, &c. to recognize, &c. because as well, &c. The same Day is given to the said Parties here, &c. And afterwards the Proceeding thereof was continued between the Parties aforesaid, of the Plea aforesaid, by Jurors put thereof between them respited before our said Lord the King at Westminster, until the Day, &c. unless the Justices of the Lord the King, assigned to hold the Assizes in the County aforesaid, should on the Day of, &c. at, &c. according to the Form of the Statute in such Case made and provided, come before for Default of the Jurors; therefore let the Sheriff have their Bodies, &c. The same Day is given to the Parties aforesaid there, &c. And be it known, that the Writ of the said Lord the King thereof, on the Day, &c. (the Day of the Return of the Venire) in the same Term, before the Lord the King at Westminster, was delivered of Record to the Deputy Sheriff of the County aforesaid, in due Form of Law to be executed, &c. Afterwards, (that is to say) on the Day, and at the Place within contained, came as well the within named A. B. as the within written E. F. by their said Attornies within mentioned, before Sir R. E. Knight, Chief Justice of the Lord the King of his Court of Common Pleas, and R. J. Esq; (associated to him for this Purpose) and A. D. Esq; another of the Justices of the said Lord the King, of his said Court of Common Pleas, appointed to hold the Assizes in the County of Somerset, by Virtue of the Writ of the Lord the King, directing the said Assizes to be held before any two of the Persons therein named, if all named therein should not come there, (the Presence of the said A. D. not being expected) and the Jurors of the Jury, being Summoned and Ballotted, according to the Form of the Statute in that Case made and provided, and tried and sworn to declare the Truth of what is within contained, say upon their Oath, that the Writing Obligatory in the Declaration within mentioned, is the Debt of the said E. as the said A. hath within declared against him; and they assess the Damages of the said A. on that Occasion, besides the Expences and Costs by him laid out in the Prosecution of this Cause to one Shilling, and his Expences and Costs to Fifty three Shillings and Four-pence. Therefore it is considered, that the said A. do recover against the said E. his said Debt, and the Damages assessed by the said Jury by Reason of detaining the same, and also Fourteen Pounds for his Expences and Costs awarded by this Court to the said A. with his Consent, by way of Increase; which said Damages, Expences and Costs, amount in the whole to Sixteen Pounds Fourteen Shillings and Four-pence, and the said E. is in Mercy, &c.

Trials in Criminal Cases. First the Bill of Indictment against an Offender is prepared; and the Party Prosecutor and others bound over to give Evidence, being ordered to attend, the Grand Jury retire to consider of the Bill; and on Examination of the Witnesses, either they find the Bill of Indictment, or bring it in Ignoramus: If the Jury find the Bill, the Prisoner is brought to the Bar of the Court; and the Crier says to him, A. B. hold up thy Hand, Thou standest indicted by the Name of A. B. for such a Felony, &c. (reciting the Crime laid in the Indictment) How sayest thou, art thou Guilty of this Felony, &c. whereof thou standest indicted, or Not Guilty? To which the Prisoner answers, Not Guilty; whereupon the Clerk of the Peace says Cul. prit. How wilt thou be tried? And the Offender answers, By God and his Country: When the Prisoner has pleaded Not guilty, (which is the common Plea) it is to be recorded; and then the Petty Jury are called upon the Panel, and a full Jury appearing, the Prisoner is told they are to pass upon his Life and Death, and that he may Challenge any of them before they are sworn; for not being indifferent, but partial, or other Defect, &c. Then the Jury are sworn well and truly to try the Prisoner, and to bring in a true Verdict: This being done, the Indictment is recited, and the Jury are acquainted with the particular Crimes of which the Prisoner stands indicted; and the Clerk of the Peace says, To which Indictment he hath pleaded Not guilty, and for his Trial hath put himself upon God and his Country; so that you (the Jury) are to inquire whether he be guilty of the Felony, &c. whereof he stands indicted, or not? If you find him Guilty, you are to make Enquiry into what Goods and Chattels he had at the Time that the said Felony, &c. was committed, or at any Time since: And if you find him Not Guilty, you shall inquire whether he did fly for it; and if he fled for it, what Goods, &c. he had at the Time of his Flight; but if you find him Not Guilty, and that he did not fly, you shall then say no more. Then the Clerk of the Peace swears the Witnesses to give true Evidence; to speak the whole Truth, and nothing but the Truth; and when the Evidence is given to the Jury concerning the Prisoner, the Jury are to be kept in a Room, by a sworn Bailiff appointed, without Meat, Drink, Fire or Candle, and without any Persons speaking to them, till they bring in their Verdict. All Things being given in Charge, the Jury go to their Room and consider of the Matter: when they are all agreed, and returned within or near the Bar, the Prisoner is brought forth, and the Jury are called over; who all appearing, and the Prisoner set to the Bar, the Clerk of the Peace says to them, Look upon the Prisoner, you Gentlemen of the Jury; How say you, is A. B. Guilty of the Felony, &c. of which he stands indicted, or Not guilty? If the Jury say Guilty, it is recorded, and the Prisoner taken away; if they say Not Guilty, he is bid to down upon his Knees, &c. and then the Clerk of the Peace says, My Masters of the Jury, hearken to your Verdict as the Court hath recorded it; You say A. B. is guilty of the Felony, &c. whereof he stands indicted: To which they answer Yes: Then Proclamation is made for all Persons to keep Silence, on which the Prisoner is set to the Bar, and Sentence passed upon him; after which an Order or Warrant is made for his Execution. This is the Matter of Proceeding against common Criminals; and the Prisoner is first to say what he can himself, then all that can say any Thing against him are to be heard upon Oath, and then others may be heard for him; and the Court is to be of Counsel with the Prisoner, and ought to advise him for his Good, not taking Advantage too strictly against him. Mod. Just. Edit. 3. pag. 402, 403. 2 Hawk. P. C. 9 Co. Rep. 9. And a great Author observes, that through the Punctuality required by Law in the Trial of Causes, there is as much as Art and Conscience can contrive against Corruption, and in Favour of Right, Liberty, Life and Reputation: And the greatest Criminals here, have Privileges which they cannot be debarred of. See Fortescue's Laud. Leg. Angl. 59, 60.

T. then and there feloniously, voluntarily, and of his fore-thought Malice did shoot off and discharge, and the aforesaid T. W. with the Leaden Bullet aforesaid, from the Gun aforesaid then and there discharged and sent out, the said L. T. in and upon the Left Part of the Body of him the said L. T. at London aforesaid, in the Parish and Ward aforesaid, in Manner and Form aforesaid, feloniously, voluntarily, and of their fore-thought Malice did kill and murder, against the Peace of the Lord the King that now is, his Crown and Dignity, &c. And afterwards, that is to say, at the Gaol-Delivery of the Lord the King at Newgate, held for the City of London aforesaid, at Justice-Hall in the Old-Bailly, in the Parish of St. Sepulchres, in the Ward of Farringdon without aforesaid, the Day of, &c. in the Year of the Reign of our said Lord George the Second, &c. before Sir F. Esqrs; Sheriffs of the City of London aforesaid, to the Bar aforesaid brought, in their proper Persons came, and being severally asked, how of the Felony and Murder aforesaid they would acquit themselves; the said T. W. saith, That he cannot deny, but that he is guilty of the Felony and Murder aforesaid, to him in Form aforesaid imposed, and the said Felony and Murder expressly confesseth, and thereof putteth himself upon the Mercy of the King; and the said J. R. saith, That he of the Felony and Murder aforesaid, to him in Form aforesaid imposed or charged, is Not guilty, and therefore for Good and Ill puts himself upon the Country: Therefore immediately cause a Jury thereof to come, &c. And the Jurors of the Jury aforesaid, by the aforesaid Sheriffs of the City of London, to this impanelled being called, that is to say, L. M. N. O. P. R. S. T. &c. came; who to say the Truth of and upon the Premises, to the said J. R. imposed, chosen, tried and sworn, say upon their Oath, that the aforesaid J. R. is Guilty of the Felony and Murder, to him in Form aforesaid imposed, in Manner and Form as by the Indictment aforesaid it is supposed; and that he at the Time of the Felony and Murder aforesaid, in Form aforesaid committed; or ever after had no Goods or Chattels, Lands or Tenements, to the Knowledge of the Jurors aforesaid: Upon which the said T. W. and J. R. being severally spoken unto; If they had any Thing for themselves to offer, or could say, why the Court aforesaid, to Judgment and Execution of them and either of them for the Premises ought not to proceed, and they say nothing but what at first they had said; upon this, then and there, It is considered by the said Justices, that the aforesaid T. W. and J. R. to the Gaol of Newgate aforesaid from whence they came, shall be sent back, and thence be led, and either of them be led unto the Place of Execution, and there be hanged, and either of them be hanged, until, &c.

Trover, (From the Fr. Trouver, i. e. inventire) Is an Action which a Man hath against one, that having found any of his Goods, refuseth to deliver them upon Demand: Or if another hath in his Possession my Goods, by Delivery to him, or otherwise, and he sells or makes Use of them without my Consent, this is a Conversion for which Trover lies; so if he doth not actually convert them; but doth not deliver them to me on Demand. 2 Lill. Abr. 618. It is called Trover and Conversion, and is a special Action of the Case, brought to recover Damages to the Value of the Goods, &c. In this Action, the Plaintiff surmisseth that he lost such and such Goods, and that the Defendant hath found them, and converted them to his own Use at such a Place; but the Losing is but a mere Suggestion, and not material: For if the Plaintiff delivered the Goods to the Defendant; or if the Defendant take the Goods in his Presence, &c. this Action lies against him, if there be a Conversion; which is the Point of the Action, and therefore must be particularly alledged: If a Man finds Goods; he may take Possession of them, and no Action lies; but he ought not to abuse or use them, for therein lies the Offence: And where a Man finds my Goods, and refuseth to deliver them upon Demand, it is a Conversion in Law; but if he answers that he knows not whether I am the true Owner or not, and therefore denies to deliver them; this is no Conversion if he keeps them for me. 1 Danv. Abr. 21, 22, 23. A Person finds the Goods of another, and uses or willfully abuses them; as if it be Paper, and he put it into Water, or the like, this Action of Trover lies against him: But not for any Negligence in the keeping of them; as where one finds another's Garment, and suffers it to be Moth-eaten, &c. here no Action will lie. 1 Cro. 219. If in Trover, an actual Conversion cannot be proved, then Proof is to be had of a Demand made, before the Action brought, of the Thing for which the Action is commenced, and that the Thing demanded was not delivered; and in this Case, though an actual Conversion may not be proved, a Demand, and Refusing to deliver the Things demanded, is a sufficient Evidence to the Jury that he converted the same, till it appears to the contrary. 10 Rep. 56, 491. 2 Lill. 619. Where a Defendant comes to the Possession by finding, Denial is a Conversion; but if he had the Goods, &c. by Delivery, there Denial is no Conversion, but Evidence of a Conversion: And in both Cases, the Defendant hath a lawful Possession, either by Finding or by Delivery; and where the Possession is lawful, the Plaintiff must shew a Demand and a Refusal, to make a Conversion: Though if the Possession was tortious, as if the Defendant takes away the Plaintiff's Hat, the very Taking is a sufficient Proof of the Conversion, without proving a Demand and Refusal. Sid. 264. 3 Salk. 365. By Holt Chief Justice, the Denial of Goods to him, who hath a Right to demand them, is a Conversion; and after a Demand and Refusal, if the Defendant tender the Goods, and the Plaintiff refuse to receive them, that will go only in Mitigation of Damages; not to the Right of the Action of Trover, for the Plaintiff may have that still. Mod. Caf. 212. 3 Nelf. Abr. 424, 425. An Action of Trover and Conversion may be brought for Goods, although the Goods come into Possession of the Plaintiff before the Action is brought; which doth not purge the Wrong, or make Satisfaction for that which was done to the Plaintiff by detaining the Goods: If a Man takes my Horse and rides him, and afterwards delivers him to me, Trover lies against him; for this is a Conversion, and, the Re delivery is no Bar to the Action. 1 Danv. Abr. 21. 2 Lill. 618. If Goods are delivered to one to deliver over to another, and he to whom they were first delivered do afterwards refuse to deliver them over, and converts them to his own Use; he is liable to Action of Trover, not only by him who first delivered them, but also by him to whom they were to be delivered: And a Plaintiff may chuse to have his Action of Trover against the first Finder of Goods; or any other who gets them afterwards by Sale, &c. 1 Bull. 68. 1 Leon. 183. If a common Carrier has Goods deliver'd to him to carry to a certain Place, and a Stranger takes them out of his Possession, and converts the Goods to his own Use; Action of Trover and Conversion lies for the Carrier against him. 1 Mod. 31. Trover doth not lie against a Common Carrier for Negligence in losing Goods; though it doth for an actual Wrong: And if Goods are stolen from a Carrier, he may not be charged in Trover and Conversion; but Action upon the Case on the Custom of the Realm, &c. 2 Salk. 655. It has been held, that where Goods are stolen, and before Prosecution of the Offender by Indictment the Party robbed brings Action of Trover, it lies not; for so Felonies might be compounded: But where A. steals the Goods or Money of B. and is convicted and hath his Clergy, upon the Prosecution of B. If he brings Trover and Conversion for the Money, and on Not Guilty pleaded this special Matter is found, the Plaintiff shall recover. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 546. If upon a Fieri facias the Sheriff takes Goods in Execution, and before the Sale of them, a Stranger takes them away and converts them to his own Use; the Sheriff may have an Action of Trover and Conversion, as he had a lawful Possession, and is answerable for them. 2 Sand. 47. And an Executor may may have Trover for the Goods of the Testator; the Law gives him a Property, which draweth the Possession to it, though there be not an actual Possession. Latch 214. There must be a Right or Property in the Goods, or a lawful Possession, &c. which is to be proved by the Plaintiff in Trover, before the Goods came to the Defendant's Hands: And if a Man finds his Goods lost in the Hands of another, if he bought them in open Fair or Market; this alters the Property, and he cannot recover them. 1 Inst. 498. 1 Darw. 23. The Plaintiff declared on a Conversion of his own Goods; the Defendant justified, for that the Property of the Goods was in A. B. who sold them to him; adjudged this was no good Title to justify the Conversion without a Traverse, unless the Goods had been sold in the Market. 1 Leon. 221. In Trover, the Plaintiff may declare upon a Devenerunt ad manus generally; or specially per Inventionem devenerunt: And the Plea on the Defendant's Part is commonly Not guilty, on which the special Matter may be given in Evidence, to prove the Plaintiff hath no Cause of Action; or to intitle the Defendant to the Thing in Controversy: If the Defendant pleads a special Plea, he must confess and avoid, or traverse the Title of the Plaintiff. 2 Bulst. 313. Wood's Inst. 540. The Defendant in Trover may plead Not guilty, and give in Evidence, that he distrained the Goods, and detained them till he was paid; but he cannot plead specially that he took the Goods by Distress, or that he detained them as a Host till paid for Horses standing, &c. for the Detainer being lawful, no Conversion is confessed; though if he pleads a Matter which confesses a Conversion, and avoids it, 'tis good. Yelv. 198. 2 Salk. 654. A Man puts out Cattle to Pasture at so much per Week; and then sells them to the Plaintiff, who demands the Cattle, but the Defendant refuses to let them go till paid for; Trover well lies, and the Defendant's Remedy must be by Action for the Money due to him for depasturing the Cows; and he may not detain them for the Money, as in Case of an Inn-keeper, or a Taylor, of Things in their Custody. Cro. Car. 27. 2 Lill. 622. In Trover for a Bond, the Plaintiff need not shew the Date; for the Bond being lost or converted, he may not know the Date; and if he should set out the Date, and mistake it, he would fail in his Action. Cro. Car. 262. If the Defendant find the Bond, and receive the Money, Action of Account lieth against the Receiver, and not Trover. Cro. Eliz. 723. The Plaintiff in Action of Trover alledged, that such a Day and Year he required the Defendant to deliver the Goods, but he refused and converted them to his own Use; though he shewed no Day or Place of the Conversion, as the Day and Place were alledged of the Request and Refusal, it was held sufficient. Cro. Car. 262. But the Place of Conversion must be generally mentioned in Trover, or it will be naught. Cro. Eliz. 78, 97. And yet where the Trover of Goods is in one County, and the Conversion in another County, the Action brought for these Goods may be laid in the County where the Conversion was, or in any other County, as it is only a transitory Action; and neither the Place of Trover, nor Conversion, are traversable. Pasib. 23 Car. B. R. If there be Trover before the Marriage of a Female Plaintiff, and a Conversion afterwards; the Husband and Wife may join, and it will be good. 2 Lev. 107. Trover lies against Baron and Feme, setting forth that they converted the Goods to the Use of the Husband; for the Feme may be a Trespasser, and convert them to the Husband's Use, or the Use of a Stranger, but not to her own Use; and if the Conversion be laid ad usum of her self and Husband, or ad usum proprium, &c. it will not be good. Cro. Car. 494. In Trover the Plaintiff may lay a Conversion here, and prove it in Ireland; 'tis otherwise in Tres- pass quare Clausum fregit, for there the Party cannot prove the Trespass but where it lies, nor lay it in any other Place than where it is. Stile 331. 1 Mod. Entr. Engl. 393. Action of Trover, or Detinue, at the Plaintiff's Election, may be brought for Goods detained; for it is but Justice that the Party should have his Goods detained if they may be had, or else Damages to the Value for the Detaining and Conversion of them. 2 Lill. Abr. 618. And Trespass or Trover, lies for the same Thing; though they cannot be brought in one Declaration: And the Allegation of the Conversion of the Goods in Trespass, is for Aggravation of the Damages, &c. Cro. Jac. 50. Lutw. 1526. Detinue doth not lie for Money numbered; but Trover and Conversion lies for it: For though in the Finding and Converting generally, the Money of one Person can't be distinguished from that of another, all Money being alike; yet the Proof that the Plaintiff lost, and Defendant converted so much, maintains the Action, if the Verdict finds it. Jenk. Cent. 208. Where Money is given to a Person to keep, though it be not in Bags, Action of Trover will lie; because this Action is not to recover the Money, but Damages. Poph. 91. 3 Salk. 365. In Case a Master delivers Corn to his Servant to sell, who does so and converts the Money, the Master may bring Trover against the Servant. 2 Bulst. 307. 1 Roll's Rep. 59. And where an Apprentice goes into the Sea-Service, his Master shall have an Action of Trover for what Money he earns, if the same be refused Payment, &c. Mod. Cas. 69. There is no proper Plea in Action of Trover, where it lies, but the General Issue Not Guilty; on which the Defendant may give in Evidence that the Goods or Money were not the Plaintiff's. Bro. 109. Trover lieth not for any Part of a Freehold; but if Doors fix'd are removed and converted, it will lie. Wood's Inst. 540. In Trover, the Defendant may not wage his Law, as he may in Detinue; wherefore it often takes Place of that Action. See Detinue.

Trust, (Fiducia, Confidentia) Is a Confidence which one Man reposes in another; and if a Person in whom a Trust is reposed, breaks or doth not perform the same, the Remedy is by Bill in Chancery, the

the Common Law generally taking no Notice of Trusts. 2 Lill. Abr. 624. A Trust and a Use were all one at Common Law, till the Stat. 27 H. 8. which distinguished them: The Method of making Conveyances by Way of Trust, was invented to evade the Statute of Uses; and these Conveyances are not so much favoured in Law, as plain and direct Conveyances of Estates. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. Declarations and Creations of Trusts, of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, are to be in Writing, sign'd by the Party empowered to declare such Trust, &c. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. In the Explanation of this Statute, it is provided, That this shall not extend to resulting Trusts, or Trusts arising by Implication or Construction of Law; which shall be of like Force as before that Act. 4 St. 5 Ann. And there is a Statute by which Infants seized of Estates in Fee in Trust, may make Conveyances of such Estates, by Order of the Chancery. 7 Ann. If a Man buys Land in another Person's Name, and pays the Money for the Lands, this will be a Trust for him that paid the Money, though there be no Deed declaring the Trust; because the Statute of Frauds extends not to Trusts raised by Implication of Law: And a bare Declaration by Parol, on a Deed assigned, may prevent any resulting Trust to the Assignor. 2 Ventr. Rep. 361. 2 Vern. 294. Where there has been Fraud in gaining a Conveyance from another, that is a Reason of making the Grantee considered as a Trustee: But the Statute 29 Car. 2. relates only to equitable Trusts and Interests, and not an Use, which is a legal Estate. 1 P. Williams 113. There are only two Kinds of Trusts by Operation of Law; either where the Deed or Conveyance has been taken in the Name of one Man, and the Purchase-Money paid by another; or where the Owner of an Estate has made a voluntary Conveyance of it, and declared the Trust with regard to one Part to be for another Person, but hath been silent as to the other Part; in which case he himself ought to have the Benefit of that, it being plainly his Intent. Barnardist. 388. Trust Estates are generally governed by the like Rules, and within the same Reason, as legal Estates; for there ought to be a like Rule of Property in all Courts, to avoid Uncertainty: There shall be a Tenancy by the Curtesy, &c. of a Trust Estate; but of such an Estate, a Woman shall not be endowed. 1 P. Williams 109. Talbot's Cas. 139. See 2 P. Williams 147. A Fine and Recovery of Cestui que Trust shall bar and transfer a Trust, as it should an Estate at Law, if it were upon a Consideration. Chan. Rep. 49. In Equity Trusts are so regarded, that no Act of a Trustee will prejudice the Cestui que Trust; for though a Purchaser, for valuable Consideration, without Notice, shall not have his Title any Ways impeached, yet the Trustee must make good the Trust: But if he purchases, having Notice, then he is the Trustee himself, and shall be accountable. Abr. Cas. Eq. 384. Where Trustees in a Settlement, join with Tenant for Life in any Conveyance, to defeat a Remainder, before it comes in esse; this is a plain Breach of Trust; and those as claim under such Deed, having Notice of the Trust, will be liable to make good the Estates. 2 Salk. 680. Yet in case a Trustee joins with Cestui que Trust in Tail, in a Deed to bar the Intail; as it is no more than what he may be compelled to, 'tis no Breach of his Trust. 1 Chan. Cas. 49, 213. It has been decreed, that a Trust for a Son, &c. shall pass with the Lands, into whose Hands soever they come, and cannot be defeated by any Act of the Father or Trustees. And though a Husband and Wife, have no Children in many Years, and they and the Trustees agree to sell the Land settled, &c. it will not be permitted in Chancery. Abr. Cas. Eq. 391. 1 Vern. 181. A Termor grants his Lands in Trust for himself for Life, and to his Wife for Life, and after to his Children for their Lives, and then to A. B. This Trust to A. B. is good; though if it had been to the Heirs of their Bodies, it would be otherwise: And a remote Trust of a Term, which tends to a Perpetuity, has been decreed a void Limitation. Chan. Rep. 230, 239. If a Husband makes a Lease for Years, in Trust for his Wife, he may sell it, and it will bind her: But when a Trust is first created for a Wife bona fide, he cannot sell it, unless she join in a Fine. Ibid. 307, 308. It hath been adjudged, where a Term is settled in Trust for a Jointure on a Wife, or in Pursuance of Marriage Articles, or if the Term of the Wife be assigned by her before Marriage; the Husband can neither charge or sell it, &c. though if the Assignment is made after Marriage in Trust for the Wife, it is then voluntary and fraudulent. Ibid. 225. A Trust to pay Portions, Legacies, &c. out of the Rents and Profits of the Lands, at a Day prefix'd, gives the Trustees Power to sell; if the annual Profits will not do it within that Time, then they may sell the Land, being within the Intention of the Trust: And they cannot sell to raise the Money, except it be to be paid at a certain Time. Ibid. 176. A Trustee for Sale of Lands for Payment of Debts, paying Debts to the Value of the Land, thereby becomes a Purchaser himself. Ibid. 199. Where a Trustee for paying Portions, pays one Child his full Share, and the Trust Estate decays, he shall not be allowed such Payment. 2 Chan. Ca. 132. If one devises Lands to Trustees until his Debts are paid, with Remainder over, and the Trustees misapply the Profits, they shall hold the Land only 'till they might have paid the Debts, if the Rents had been duly applied; and after that the Land is to be discharged, and the Trustees are only answerable. 1 P. Williams 519. And a Person having granted a Lease of Land to Trustees, in Trust to pay all the Debts which he should owe at his Death, in a just Proportion, without any Preference; it was here decreed, that the Simple Contract Debts became as Debts due by Mortgage, and should carry Interest. Ibid. 229. Trust of a Fee-simple Estate, or Fee tail, is forfeited by Treason, but not by Felony; for such Forfeiture is by Way of Escheat, and an Escheat cannot be but where there is a Defect of a Tenant; and here is a Tenant Hard. 495. See Jenk. Cent. 245. A Trust for a Term is forfeited to the King in Case of Treason or Felony; and the Trustees in Equity shall be compelled to assign to the King. Cro. Jac. 513. If a Bond be taken in another's Name, or a Lease be made to another in Trust for a Person, who is afterwards convicted of Treason or Felony, they are as much liable to be forfeited as a Bond or Lease made in his own Name, or in his Possession. 2 Hawk. 450. Execution may be sued, and Lands held in Trust delivered, where any Person is seized or possessed in Trust for another; by the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. Trustees being obliged to join in Receipts, one is not chargeable for Money received by the other: In the Case of Executors 'tis otherwise. 1 Salk. 318. 2 Vern. Rep. 515. A Trustee robbed by his own Servant, shall be discharged of it on Account; though great Negligence may charge him with more than he hath received, in the Trust. 2 Chan. Ca. 2. 1 Vern. 144. There is a Breach of Trust in Servants, going away with their Masters Goods delivered them, &c.

Turn, Is the King's Leet through all the County; of which the Sheriff is Judge, and this Court is incident to his Office; wherefore it is called the Sheriff's Turn: And it had its Name originally from the Sheriff's taking a Turn or Circuit about his Shire, and holding this Court in several Places; for the Word Turn properly taken, doth not signify the Court of the Sheriff, but his Perambulation. Crompt. Jurisd. 230. 4 Inst. 260. 2 Hawk. P. C. 55. The Turn is a Court of Record; and by the Common Law, every Sheriff ought to make his Turn or Circuit throughout all the Hundreds in his County, in order to hold a Court in every Hundred for the Redressing of Common Grievances, and Preservation of the Peace; and this Court might be holden at any Place within the Hundred, and as often as the Sheriff thought fit: But this having been found to give the Sheriff too great Power of oppressing the People, by holding his Court at such Times and Places, at which they could not conveniently attend, and thereby increase the Number of his Amercements; by the Stat. of Magna Charta, cap. 35. it was enacted, That no Sheriff shall make his Turn through a Hundred but twice in a Year, viz. once after Easter, and once after the Feast of St. Michael; and at the Place accustomed: Also a subsequent Statute ordain'd, That every Sheriff shall make his Turn yearly, one Time within the Month after Easter, and another Time within the Month after Michaelmas; and if they hold them in any other Manner, they shall lose their Turn for that Time. 37 Ed. 3. cap. 15. Since these Statutes, the Sheriff is indictable for holding this Court at another Time, than what is therein limited, or at an unusual Place: And it hath been held, that an Indictment found at a Sheriff's Turn, appearing to have been holden at another Time, is void. Dalt. Sher. 390, 391. Dyer 151. 38 Hen. 6. At Common Law the Sheriff might proceed to hear and determine any Offence within his Jurisdiction, being indicted before him, and requiring a Trial, till Sheriffs were restrained from holding Pleas of the Crown by Magna Charta, c. 17. But that Statute doth not restrain the Sheriff's Turn, from taking Indictments or Presentments, or awarding Process thereon; though the Power of awarding such Process being abused, was taken from all the Sheriffs (except those of London) by the 1 Ed. 4. c. 2. and lodged in the Justices of Peace at their Sessions, who are to award Process on such Indictments delivered to them by the Sheriffs, as if they had been taken before themselves, &c. 2 Hawk. 57, 70, 71. The Sheriff's Power in this Court is still the same as anciently it was, in all Cases not within the Statutes above mentioned; he continues a Judge of Record, and may inquire in his Turn of Treasons and Felonies, by the Common Law; as well as the lowest Offences against the King, such as Purpitudes, Seizures of Treasure-Trove, of Waifs, Eltrays, Goods wreck'd, &c. All common Nuisances and Annoyances, and other such like Offences; as selling corrupt Victuals, breaking the Assize of Beer and Ale, or keeping false Weights or Measures, are here indictable; also all common Disturbers of the Peace, Barretors, and common Oppressors; and all dangerous and suspicious Persons, &c. And the Sheriff in his Turn may impose a Fine on all such as are guilty of Contempts in the Face of the Court; and upon a Sutor to the Court making Default, or refusing to be sworn on the Jury; or on a Bailiff not making a Panel; or on a Tithing-man neglecting to make his Presentment; or on a Person whose Constable refusing to be sworn, &c. And he may amerce for Offences; which Fines and Amercements are leviable and recoverable by Distress, &c. Ibid. 58, 60, 67. But notwithstanding this it has been observed, that great Part of the Business of the Turn and Leet, hath for several Years past, through the Negligence of Sheriffs and Stewards, devolved on the Quarter-Sessions. Wood's Inst. See County Court and Court-Leet.

Turno Vicecomitum, Is a Writ that lieth for those that are called to the Sheriff's Turn out of their own Hundred. Reg. Orig. 173.

Turnpikes. There are Statutes continually made for erecting Turnpikes for Repairing of Ways; empowering Justices of Peace and other Commissioners to appoint Surveyors of the Roads to amend the same; and also Collectors of the Toll at the Places where the Turnpikes are set up; which Toll is generally 1 s. or 6 d. for Coach or Waggon, and 1 d. for every Horse, &c. and the Money collected is to be paid weekly to the Surveyors, who are to account to the Justices, &c. Persons driving Horses or other Cattle through any Grounds adjoining to the Ways, to avoid the Toll, shall forfeit 10 s. And if any Person wilfully and maliciously break down or destroy any Turnpike Gate, &c. he shall be sent to the common Gaol for three Months; and for a second Offence, the Offender shall be transported as a Felon. Stat. 8 Geo. 1. c. 5. 1 Geo. 2. c. 23. Persons maliciously pulling down, plucking up, or otherwise destroying any Turnpike Gate, Posts, Rails, Walls, Chains, Bars, &c. or House erected for the Use of such Turnpike, or who shall rescue any Persons in Custody for such Offences, shall be guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy: And the Inhabitants of the Hundred are to make Satisfaction for Damages, &c. but to be made good to them, if any of the Offenders are convicted in twelve Months. If any Person assault any Collector of the Toll, or by Force pass through a Turnpike Gate, without paying, he shall forfeit 5 l. leviable by Justices; and the like Penalty is inflicted on Constables, refusing to execute Warrants of Commissioners, &c. 8 Geo. 2. c. 20. Where any Person having paid Toll, at a Turnpike, gives his Ticket to another, that he may avoid paying the same, both the Person giving and receiving it, are liable to a Forfeiture of 10 s. on Conviction before the Commissioners, or a Justice of Peace. 13 Geo. 2. c. 25. And by a late Statute, the Trustees or Commissioners are to cause Engines to be erected, for weighing all Carriages that pass through any Turnpike with their Loading, and take over and above the Toll 20 s. for every Hundred they weigh above 6000 Pound Weight; the Money to go towards mending the the Ways, and be levied by Distress in like Manner as for any Toll, &c. Persons hindering the weighing shall be imprisoned three Months, and forfeit 10*l.* upon Oath made thereof by one Witness, before the next Justice, &c. Stat. 14 Geo. 2. c. 42. By the Stat. 21 Geo. 2. c. 28. The Commissioners may erect weighing Engines upon any Part of the Road, at such Distance from the Turnpike as they shall think requisite. And if any Person shall take out any Part of the Goods before the Waggon, &c. comes to the weighing Engine, in order to avoid Payment of the Duty 20*s.* per 100 Pound Weight, he shall forfeit 20*l.*

Vagrants, (Vagantes) By the Statute 17 Geo. 2. c. 5. They, who threaten to run away and leave their Wives or Children to the Parish; or unlawfully return to a Parish from whence they have been legally removed; or, not having wherewith to maintain themselves, live idle, and refuse to work for the usual Wages; and all Persons going from Door to Door, or placing themselves in Streets, &c. to beg in the Parishes where they dwell, shall be deemed idle and disorderly Persons. All Persons going about as Patent Gatherers, or Gatherers of Alms, under Pretences of Losses by Fire, &c. or as Collectors for Prisons, &c. all Fencers and Bearwards; all common Players of Interludes, and Persons who for Hire, Gain or Reward act, represent or perform, or cause to be acted, &c. any Interlude, Tragedy, Comedy, Opera, Play, Farce, or other Entertainment of the Stage, or any Part therein, not being authorised by Law; all Minstrels, Juglers; all Persons pretending to be Gypsies, or wandering in the Habit or Form of Egyptians, or pretending to have Skill in Physiognomy, Palmistry, or other crafty Science, or to tell Fortunes, or using any subtle Craft to deceive and impose on a Person; or playing or betting at any unlawful Games or Plays; and all Persons, who run away and leave their Wives and Children, whereby they become chargeable to any Parish; all Pedlars not duly licensed; all Persons wandering abroad and lodging in Alehouses, Barns, Out-houses or in the open Air, not giving a good Account of themselves; and all Persons wandering abroad and begging, pretending to be Soldiers, Mariners, or pretending to go to work in Harvest, not having proper Certificates; and all other Persons wandering abroad and begging; and all Persons going from Door to Door, or placing themselves in Streets, &c. to beg in the Parishes where they dwell, and being apprehended for the same, shall resist or escape, shall be deemed Rogues and Vagabonds. All End gatherers offending against the Stat. 13 Geo. 1. c. 23. being convicted; all Persons apprehended as Rogues and Vagabonds, and escaping or refusing to go before a Justice or to be examined upon Oath before such Justice, or refusing to be conveyed by Pa's; or giving a false Account of themselves after Warning of the Punishment; and all Rogues or Vagabonds breaking or escaping out of any House of Correction; and all Persons who having having been punished as Rogues and Vagabonds shall again commit any of the said Offences, and Offenders against this Act having Children with them, (and such Children being put out Apprentices or Servants pursuant to this Act) being again found with the same Children, shall be deemed incorrigible Rogues. The Punishment of idle and disorderly Persons is Commitment to the House of Correction, there to be kept to hard Labour, not exceeding a Month. Rogues and Vagabonds are to be publicly whipt or sent to the House of Correction until the next Sessions, or any less Time, and after such Whipping or Commitment may be passed to their last legal Settlement or Place of Birth, or if under fourteen, and have a Father or Mother living, to the Place of Abode of such Father or Mother. And if committed until the next Sessions and adjudged a Rogue or Vagabond, the Justices may order him to be kept in the House of Correction to hard Labour not exceeding six Months. A Person adjudged at the Sessions an incorrigible Rogue may be kept in the House of Correction to hard Labour, not exceeding two Years nor less than six Months, and during the Confinement be corrected by Whipping, at such Times and Places as the Justices shall think fit, and may then be passed as aforesaid: And if a Male, and above the Age of twelve Years, the Justices before his Discharge may send him to be employed in the King's Service, either by Sea or Land. If before the Expiration of his Commitment he shall escape from the House of Correction, or offend again in the like Manner, he shall be deemed to be guilty of Felony, and transported for any Time not exceeding seven Years. Any Person may apprehend and carry before a Justice any Persons going about from Door to Door, or placing themselves in Streets, Highways or Passages to beg Alms in the Parishes where they dwell, and the Justices may order the Overseers of the Poor to pay such Persons 5*s.* for every Offender, which on Refusal of Payment may be levied on the Overseers Goods. Any Person may apprehend an Offender against this Act, and carry him before a Justice. A Constable refusing or neglecting to use his Endeavour to apprehend any such Offender shall forfeit not exceeding 5*l.* nor less than 10*s.* to the Use of the Poor, to be levied by Distress. And any other Person charged by a Justice of Peace to apprehend such Offender, refusing so to do, shall forfeit 10*s.* A Justice may order the High Constable to pay to any Person, whether a Constable or not, who shall apprehend any such Offender, 10*s.* for every Offender. The Justices are four Times in the Year at least, to cause a general privy Search to be made in one Night, for the apprehending Rogues and Vagabonds. To prevent Expences in passing Rogues, Vagabonds and incorrigible Rogues, the Justice is to deliver to the Officer a Note directing how they are to be conveyed, whether in a Cart, by Horse, or on Foot. The Constable is to convey such Person in such Manner and Time as by the Pass is directed, the next direct Way to the Place where such Person is ordered to be sent if in the same County, &c. but if another County, &c. he shall deliver the Person to the proper Officer of the first Town in the next County, &c. in the direct Way to the Place where such Person is to be conveyed, together with the Pass and Duplicate of Examination, taking his Receipt for the same; and such Officer is immediately to apply to a Justice of Peace in the same County, who is to make a like Note and deliver it to the Officer, who is to convey the Person to the first Parish, &c. in the next County, and so in like Manner from one County to another, till they come to the Place where such Person is sent: And if the Officer who shall receive such Person there, shall think the Examination to be false, he may carry the Person before a Justice of Peace, who, if he see Cause, may commit such Person to the House of Correction, till the next Sessions, where the Justices, if they see Cause, may deal with such Person as an incorrigible Rogue, but he shall not be removed but by Order of two Justices. If the Vagrant upon Search be found to have Effects sufficient to pay all or Part of the Expence of Passing him, the Justice may order the same to be sold and employed for that Purpose. The Justices at Sessions may direct what Rates and Allowances shall be made for Passing such Rogues, Vagabonds, &c. and make Orders for the more regular proceeding therein. The High Constable is to pay to the Petty Constable or other Officer the Rates so allowed, on Penalty of forfeiting double the Sum, to be levied by Distress. When a Vagrant is to be passed to Ireland, the Ile of Man, Jersey, Guernsey or Scilly, the Master of any Ship bound to those Places shall, on a Warrant from a Justice of Peace, and being paid such Allowance as the Justice shall think proper, receive such Vagrant and convey him to such Place, and give a Receipt for the Vagrant and Money on the Back of the Warrant, on Penalty of 5*l.* to the Poor, to be levied by Distress; but not to be obliged to take above one Vagrant for every twenty Tons burthen of his Ship. The Parish to which any Vagrant shall be passed may employ him in Work till he shall betake himself to some Service, and if he shall refuse to work or go to Service, he may be sent to the House of Correction. See Rogue, Lunatic.

Vallet, Walcott, or Wadlet, (Valletus vel Valletus) Was anciently a Name specially denoting young Gentlemen, though of great Descent or Quality; but afterwards attributed to those of lower Rank, and now a Servitor, or Gentleman of the Chamber. Camd. Selden's Tit. Hon. Brañ. lib. 3. In the Accounts of the Inner Temple, it is used for a Benchers Clerk, or Servant; and the Butlers of the House corruptly call them Varlets.

Valentia, The Value or Price of any Thing. See Value.

Valerista, Signifies the Kindred of the Slain, one on the Father's Side, and another on the Side of the Mother, to prove that a Man was a Welfman: It is mentioned in Stat. Wallie 12 Ed. 1. cap. 4.

Value, (Valentia, Valor) Is a known Word; and the Value of those Things in which Offences are committed, is usually comprised in Indictments; which seems necessary in Theft to make a Difference from Petit Larceny, and in Trespass to aggravate the Fault, &c. But in other Cases a Distinction has been made between Value and Price. If a Plaintiff declares in an Action of Trespass for the Taking away of live Cattle, or one particular Thing, he ought to say that the Defendant took them away, Preterit so much; if the Declaration be for taking of Things without Life, it must be alledg'd ad valentiam, &c. so that live Cattle are to be prized at such a Price, as the Owner of them did esteem them to be worth; and dead Things to be reckon'd at the Value or the Market, which may be certainly known. O*r* Coin not current it shall be Preterit; but of common Coin current, it shall be neither said Preterit nor ad valentiam, for the Value and Price thereof is certain: The Difference between Preterit and ad valentiam may proceed from the Rule in the Register of Writs, which shews it to be according to the ancient Forms used in the Law. West. Symb. part. 2. 2 Lill. Abr. 629. A Jewel 'tis said is not valuable in Law, but only according to the Valuation of the Owner of it, and is very uncertain: But there seems to be a certain Value for Diamonds among the Merchant Jewellers, according to their Weight and Lustre, &c. Hill. 21 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 628. A Man cannot say that another owes him so much, when the Value of the Thing owing is uncertain;

tain; for which Reason Actions in these Cases are always brought in the Detinet, and the Declaration ad valentiam, &c. 1 Lutw. 484. See Money.

Value of Land, May be intended such as it was anciently, and not adjudged according to its improved Value. 2 Leon. 117. Lutw. 1304. Vide Purchase.

Value of Marriage, (Valore Maritagii) Was a Writ that lay for the Lord, having offered Marriage to an Infant without Disparagement, if the Man refused to take the Lord's Offer, and married another Woman, to recover the Value of the Marriage. Reg. Orig. 164. This is also called Forfeiture of Marriage, Forisfactura Maritagii. See the Statute 12 Car. 2. cap. 24.

Vantarius, (Præcursor) As Vantarius Regis, the King's Fore-footman — Richardus R. Miles ten. Terias per Serjeantiam esse Vantarium Regis, &c. Rot. de finibus. Term. Mich. 2 Edw. 2.

Variance, (Variantia, from the Fr. Varier, i. e. Alterare) Signifies any Alteration of a Thing formerly laid in a Plea, or where the Declaration in a Cause differs from the Writ, or from the Deed upon which it is grounded, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 629. If there is a Variance between the Declaration and the Writ, it is Error; and the Writ shall abate. And if there appear to be a material Variance between the Matter pleaded and the Manner of the Pleading it, this is not a good Plea; for the Manner and Matter of Pleading ought to agree in Substance, or there will be no Certainty in it. Cro. Jac. 479. 2 Lill. 629. But when the Pleading is good in Substance, a small Variance shall not hurt. 3 Mod. 227. Where the Original Writ varies from the Declaration, 'tis not remedied by any Statute of Jeofails. 5 Rep. 37. There was a Variance between the Writ and Declaration, in Action of the Case, the one being for more than the other, and though the Plaintiff had a Verdict, he could not get Judgment: It was held, that it was not help'd by the Stat. 18 Eliz. for that Statute helps when there is no Writ, not where there is one that varies in Substance from the Declaration. 2 Cro. 829. In Ejectment, the Original was Teste 24 Jan. And the Ejectment supposed to be 31 Jan. in the Year; the Plaintiff had a Verdict, and this was assign'd for Error, viz. That the Original was taken out before there was any Cause of Action, and being certified to be between the same Parties, and of the same Land, in the same Term, it was adjudged ill, and not to warrant the Declaration; and thereupon the Judgment was reversed. Cro. Car. 98, 205. Though a Verdict in Ejectment was for a Messuage next the Messuage of A. B. and the Judgment for a Messuage next another Messuage in the Occupation of A. B. This is no material Variance, but is amendable by the Statute 16 & 17 Car. 2. cap. 8. which enacts, That all Omissions, Variations, &c. not being against the Right of the Matter of the Suit, shall be amended. Raym. 398. 3 Salk. 368. The Original Writ in C. B. concluded ad damnum 40 l. and the Declaration was ad damnum 100 l. The Jury gave 12 l. Damages; and on a Writ of Error brought this Variance was assign'd; it was held that this had been a good Objection in the Original Action on a Demurrer to the Declaration; but it is not so after Verdict; not being Matter in Point of Judgment, especially as the Jury found only 12 l. Damages; but if the Verdict had found more Damages than what was mentioned in the Writ, though less than what was set forth in the Declaration, it had been ill, because there was no Writ to warrant such Damages. 2 Cro. 629. 1 Bull. 49. If a Defendant pleads a Variance between the Writ and Declaration, he is to crave Oyer of the Writ before he shall have any Advantage of the Variance, because the Writ and Declaration are not upon the same Roll; and therefore if the Defendant plead to it without demanding Oyer, on Demurrer Judgment may be for him to answer over, &c. 2 Salk. 658. If in the Imparance Roll the Declaration is in Debt, and in the Plea Roll 'tis in Trespass; this is such a Variance, that if the Plaintiff hath Judgment it shall be reversed. 3 Bull. 229. When a Contract is intire, an Action of Debt cannot be brought for Part of the Money, without shewing how the other is satisfied; if it be, this Variance from the true Debt will make it ill. 3 Nels. Abr. 440. In Writ of Error in the Exchequer-Chamber to remove a Record out of B. R. of a certain Trespass the Husband and Wife had done, the Record certified was of a Trespass done by the Woman alone, and for this Variance the Writ was abated, and the Record judged not removed. Sid. 269. 3 Salk. 369. If a Lease be alledged to be made by two Persons, and it appears on Evidence they were Tenants in Common, and so several Leases; it is a material Variance: But on its appearing that the two Lessors were Coparceners, it will be otherwise, for it is there a Lease of them both. 2 Roll. Abr. 719. On Variance in the Persons or Number of Acres, &c. between a Fine and an Indenture to lead the Uses; if the Party avers, there was not any other Consideration, or new Agreement, but that the Fine was levied according to the Uses and Intents mentioned in the Indenture, it is good. 5 Rep. 25. Variance in Names, &c. how supplied by Averment, that a Man is the same Person, and Inquest of Office, &c. see Averment and Pardon. Vide Amendment.

Vassal, (Vassallus) In our ancient Customs signified a Tenant or Feudatary; or Person who vowed Fidelity and Homage to a Lord, on Account of some Land, &c. held of him in Fee; also a Slave or Servant, and especially a Domestick of a Prince. Du Cange. Vassallus is said to be quasi inferior Socius, as the Vassal is inferior to his Master, and must serve him; and yet he is in a Manner his Companion, because each of them is obliged to the other. Skene.

Vassalage, Signifies the State of a Vassal, or Servitude and Dependency on a superior Lord: Liege Vassalage only belonged to the King.

Vassalery, Was the Tenure or holding of Vassals. Cowel.

Viewers, (Visores, from the Fr. Veior, i. e. Cernere) Are such Persons as are sent by the Court to take a View of any Place in Question, for the better Decision of the Right thereto: And it is used for those that are appointed to view an Offence; as a Man murdered, a Woman ravished. &c. Old Nat. Br. 112. Braët. lib. 5.

Veltrarius, One who leads Greyhounds, which Dogs in Germany are called Welters, in Italy Veltres, &c. And Lands are held per servitium inveniend. unum veltrarium Canes ducere, &c. Blount's Tenures, pag. 9.

Velum quadragesimale, A Veil or Piece of Hangings, drawn before the Altar in Lent, as a Token of Mourning and Sorrow. — Item ad qualibet Altare, &c. Velum quadragesimale, Velum Nuptiale, Palla Mortuorum, &c. Synod. Exon. Anno 1217.

Vencaria, Are those Beasts which are caught in the Woods by hunting. Leg. Canut. c. 108.

Venatio, In the Statute of Charta de Foresta signifies Venison, in Fr. Venaison: It is called Venaison, of the Means whereby the Beasts are taken, quoniam ex Venatione capiuntur, and being hunted are most wholesome: And they are termed Beasts of Venary, (not Veneris) because they are gotten in Hunting. 4 Infr. 316.

Venditioni exponas, Is a judicial Writ, directed to the Sheriff, commanding him to sell Goods which he hath formerly taken into his Hands, for the Satisfying a Judgment given in the King's Court. Reg. Judic. 33. Stat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 21. The Sheriff upon a Fieri facias takes Goods in Execution, and returns that he hath so done, and cannot find Buyers; or if he delay to deliver them to the Party, &c. then the Writ Venditioni exponas shall issue to the Sheriff, to make Sale of the Goods, and bring in the Money. 13 H. 7. 1. Dyer 363. If a Superfedas be not delivered to the Sheriff till he hath in part executed a Writ of Execution, he may afterwards be authorised to go through with it by a Venditioni exponas; as he may also in the like Case after a Writ of Error. Dyer 98. Cro. Eliz. 597. 1 Roll. Abr. 894.

Vendito; Regis, The King's Salesman; being the Person who exposed to Sale Goods and Chattels seized or distrained to answer any Debt due to the King: This Office was granted by King Ed. 1. to Philip de Lardiner, in the County of York; Ita quod ipse vel certus suus Attornatus ibit ad Mandatum Vicecomitis de loco in locum infra Com. præd. sumptibus suis ad prædict. Venditiones faciendas, & capiat de unaquaque Venditione pro Feodo suo xxxii. den. But the Office was seized into the King's Hands for the Abuse thereof. Anno 2 Ed. 2.

Venia, Is used for a Kneeling or low Prostration on the Ground, by Penitents. Walsing. 196.

Venire facias, A Writ judicial awarded to the Sheriff to cause a Jury of the Neighbourhood to appear, when a Cause is brought to Issue, to try the same; and if the Jury come not at the Day of this Writ, then they shall go a Habeas Corpora, and after a Distrès until they appear. Old Nat. Br. 157. But where a Venire omits Part of the Issue to be tried, or any of the Parties; if a Juror is named in the Habeas Corpora, by a Name different from that in the Venire; or a Juror return'd on such a Panel is omitted in the Habeas Corpora; or a Venire or Distrès are issued without any Award on the Roll to warrant them; it will be ill, and is said to be a Discontinuance. 2 Hawk. P. C. 298, 299. A Venire facias ought to be de aliquo Vicineto; and Venire de Vicineto Civitatis, is good without naming of the Parish within the City out of which the Jurors are summoned. 2 Lill. 633, 636. Though it hath been held, that the Venire facias may be of a Town, Parish, Manor, or any Place known, called a Lieu Commun; but not of a City, or County. Cro. Eliz. 260. And yet where a Venue cannot come from a Vill, Hamlet, &c. there it might be de Corpore Comitatus, to prevent Failure of Justice, before the Statute 4 & 5 Ann. By which Act a Venire facias may be from the Body of the County, &c. In an Information against a County for not repairing a Bridge, it was held, that the Attorney General might take a Venire to any adjacent County; and that it might be de Corpore of the Whole, or de Vicineto of some particular Place therein next adjoining. Trin. 3 Ann. 3 Salk. 381. The Plaintiff in Assumpsit declared upon a Promise made at Maidstone in Kent; and upon Non Assumpsit pleaded, the Venire facias was de Vicineto Villæ & Parochiæ de Maidstone, and a Trial was had: But it was resolved to be an insufficient Trial, because the Venire ought to be of a larger Precinct, than the Plaintiff himself had alleged in his Declaration. Yelv. 104. And it will be Error if the Venire be short; as a Defendant in Trespas prescribed for a Foot-way leading from Hinton so far as the Foot way of Horn-Castle, &c. Issue was taken upon this Prescription, and the Venire facias awarded de Vicineto de Hinton only, when it should have been of Hinton and Horn-Castle; and the Judgment was reversed. Moor 357, 412. So if in Ejectment Lands are laid in A. B. and C. and tried for the Plaintiff by a Vifne out of A. only; this is insufficient. 5 Rep. 36. Though in Action of Trespas, &c. for rescuing a Distrès for Rent, setting forth that the Plaintiff made a Lease of Lands to the Defendant lying in three several Places; the Plaintiff having a Verdict, it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Trial was insufficient, because the Venire was from one Place, when it ought to be from all three Places where the Lands lie; but adjudged, that this Action being brought against a wrong Doer, and not upon the Lease it self, the Venue may be laid in that very Place where the Wrong was done. Lutw. 213. One Venire facias is sufficient to try several Issues, between the same Parties, and in the same County. 2 Cro. 550. And where an Action was brought against two, they both joined Issue, and one died; and after the Venire facias was awarded to try the Issue between both, which was done; and held to be no Error, though it issued against a dead Person, because one of the Defendants was living. Cro. Car. 308. 3 Nels. Abr. 444. If a Venire facias is return'd by the Coroner, for Defect of the Sheriff, &c. when it ought to be returned by the Sheriff, the Trial is wrong, and not remedied by any Statute of Jeofails. 5 Rep. 36. In all Cases, where there is to be a special Jury, the Venire must be special: If the Matter to be tried be within divers Places, in one and the same County, the Venire facias shall be general; and if in several Counties, it shall be special. 2 Lill. Abr. 635. If a Matter of Law be depending in Court undetermined, and an Issue also joined in the Cause, there is to be a special Venire awarded, tam ad Triandum Exitum, quam ad Inquirendum de Dampnis, &c. as well to try the Issue, as to find the Damages both upon the Issue and the Matter put in Judgment of the Court. Ibid. 636. The Plaintiff's Attorney ought to give a Copy of the Jury return'd upon a Venire facias to the Defendant's Attorney, before the Trial; and it is to be filed. Pascb. 24 Car. B. R. At a Trial at Nisi prius, the Plaintiff changed the Venire facias, and Panels, and had a Jury the Defendant knew not of; and ruled, that the Defendant cannot be aided, if the first Venue was not filed: And a Difference was taken when the first Venire was not filed, that he cannot be aided, because he may resort to the Sheriff, and have a View of the Panel, to be prepared for his Challenges; but if the first Venire was filed, then the Defendant shall have a new Trial. Raym. 79. A Venire facias after filed, cannot be altered without Consent of Parties: Though where a Verdict in a Cause is imperfect, so that Judgment cannot be given upon it, there shall be a new Venire facias to try the Cause, and find a new Verdict. 2 Lill. 634, 635. And if a Plaintiff be nonsuit on a Mistake in the Nisi prius Record, and the Paper-Book and Roll are right; the Nonsuit may be set aside, and a Venire facias de novo awarded, and the Issue tried, &c. Cro. Jac. 669. A Venire facias may be amended by the Issue Roll, when that is right, in some Cases. 3 Nels. 446.

Venire

Venire facias, Is also the common Procefs upon any Presentment, being in Nature of a Summons for the Party to appear; and is a proper Procefs to be first awarded on an Indictment for any Crime, under the Degree of Treason, Felony, or Maihem, except in such Cafes wherein other Procefs is directed by Statute: And if it appears by the Return to such Venire, that the Party has Lands in the County whereby he may be distrained, the Distress infinite shall be awarded till he do appear; and he shall forfeit on every Default, so much as the Sheriff returns upon him in Issues: But if a Nilil be return'd, a Capias, Alias, and Pluries, shall issue, &c. 2 Hawok. 283. The Venire facias ad Respondendum may be without a Day certain, because by an Appearance the Fault in this Procefs is cured; but a Venire facias ad triand. exitum must be returnable on a Day certain, &c. 3 Salk. 371.

Ventre facias tot Matronas, Is mentioned in Lambard's Eiren. lib. 4. See Ventr. inspiciendo.

Venitare, Is the Book of Ecclasiasticus; so called, because of the Venite Exultemus Domino, Jubilate Deo, &c. writ in the Hymn Book or Psalter as it is appointed to be sung, &c. It often occurs in the History of our Englisb Synods; and is called Venitarium. Mon. Ang. Tom. 3 pag. 332.

Venter, Signifies the Belly; but is also used for the Children by a Woman of one Marriage: There is in Law a first and second Venter, &c. where a Man hath Children by several Wives; and how they shall take in Descents of Lands, vide Dijent.

Ventre inspiciendo, Is a Writ to search a Woman that saith she is with Child, and thereby withholdeth Lands from the next Heir: The Trial whereof is by a Jury of Women. Reg. Orig. 227 The Law hath provided this Writ for the Benefit of right Heirs, contra Partus suppositios; and it is sued out of Chancery, and returnable in the Common Pleas, &c. And if a Man having Lands in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, dieth, and his Wife soon after marries again, and feigns herself with Child by her former Husband; in this Case, though she be married, the Writ de Ventre inspiciendo doth lie for the Heir against her. 2 Lill. Abr. 631. Thomas de Aldbam of Surry, Brother of Adam de Aldbam, Anno 4 Hen. 3. claimed his Brother's Estate; but Joan, Widow of the said Adam, pleaded she was with Child; whereupon the said Thomas obtained the Writ Ventre inspiciendo directed to the Sheriff. — Quod assumptis tecum discretis & legalibus militibus & discretis & legalibus mulieribus de Comitatu tuo in propria Persona accedas ad ipsam Joannam, & ipsam a prediis mulieribus coram prefatis militibus videri facias, & diligenter tractari per ubera & per Ventrem, & Inquisitionem factam Certificari facias sub sigillo tuo & sigillo duorum militum Justiciariorum nostris apud Westm. &c. And in Easter Term 29 Eliz. this Writ was sued out of the Chancery into C. B. at the Prosecution of Percival Willoughby, who had married the Eldest of the five Daughters of Sir Francis Willoughby, who died without any Son, but left a Wife named Dorothy, that at the Time of his Death pretended herself to be with Child by Sir Francis; which if it were a Son, all the five Sisters would thereby lose the Inheritance descended unto them; which Writ was directed to the Sheriffs of London, and they were commanded to cause the said Dorothy to be viewed by 12 Knights, and searched by 12 Women, in the Presence of the 12 Knights, Et ad tractandum per ubera & ad ventrem inspiciendum, whether she were with Child, and to certify the same to the Court of Common Pleas; and if she were with Child, to certify for how long, in their Judgments, Et quando sit paritura; upon which the Sheriffs accordingly caused her to be searched, and returned that she was twenty Weeks gone with Child, and that within twenty Weeks more, suit paritura: Thereupon another Writ issued out of C. B. requiring the Sheriffs safely to keep her in such a House, and that the Doors should be well guarded; and that every Day they should cause her to be viewed by some of the Women named in the Writ, and when she should be delivered, that some of them should be with her to view her Birth, whether it be Male or Female, to the Intent that there should be no Falsity: And upon this Writ the Sheriffs return'd, That they had caused her accordingly to be kept and view'd, and that such a Day she was delivered of a Daughter. Cro. Eliz. 566. In the 22d Year of K. James 1. the Widow of one Duncomb married within a Week after the Death of her first Husband, and his Cousin and Heir brought the Writ Ventre inspiciendo directed to the Sheriff of L. who returned that he had caused her to be searched by such Matrons who found her with Child, Et quod paritura fuit within such a Time; and thereon it was prayed that the Sheriff might take her into his Custody, and keep her till she was delivered, but because she ought to live with her Husband, they would not take her from him; but he was ordered to enter into a Recognizance not to remove her from his Dwelling-house, and a Writ was awarded to the Sheriff to cause her to be inspected every Day, by Two of the Women which he had returned had searched her, and that Three of them should be present at her Delivery, &c. Cro. Jac. 685. These two last Cafes are notable Precedents of the Form of Prosecuting these Writs: And where Women condemn'd for Crimes, who plead their Belies, pretending to be with Child, are to be viewed and tried by a Jury of Matrons, see Repricue.

Venue, (Vicinetum, or Vijnctum) Is taken for a neighbouring Place, Locus quem Vicini habitant: It is the Place from whence a Jury are to come for Trial of Causes. F. N. B. 115. In Actions of Trespass and Ejectment, the Venue is to be from the Vill or Hamlet, where the Lands in Question do lie: And in all real Actions, the Venue must be laid in that County where the Thing is for which the Action is brought. 2 Lill. Abr. 634, 635. But the Judges may, in all transitory Actions, alter the Venue from the Place where by the Law it otherwise should be, if they believe through any just Cause there cannot be an indifferent Trial in the County the Venue was first laid in; though if a Defendant will move to change the Venue, he must make Affidavit that the Cause of Action (if any be) did arise in the County where he would have the Venue to be, or elsewhere, and not in the County where the Plaintiff hath laid his Action: And if upon a Motion the Court orders the Venue to be altered, the Plaintiff is to alter his Declaration, and lay his Action in the other County, &c. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. Motion to change a Venue must be within eight Days after the Declaration delivered; but this Rule is not strictly observed: It is never granted after the Rules for Pleading are out; and 'tis a Rule not to change a Venue, where necessary Evidence arises in two Counties to support the Action, if the Plaintiff will be bound to give some material Evidence in the County where he laid his Action. 2 Salk. 668, 669. If the Defendant is a Barrister or Attorney, on Motion the Venue shall be changed into Middlesex; and where an Attorney is Plaintiff, and lays his Action in Middlesex, there the Venue shall continue. Ibid. The Want of a Venue is only curable by such a Plea which admits the Fact, for the Trial whereof it was required to lay a Venue. 3 Salk. 381. Vide Venire facias.

Verderoz, (Viridarius, from the Fr. Verdeur, i. e. Custos Nemoris) Is an Officer in the King's Forest, whose Office is properly to look to the Vert, and see it well maintained; and he is sworn to keep the Assises of the Forest, and view, receive, and inrol the Attachments and Presentments of Trespasses of Vert and Venison, &c. Manwood, par. 1. pag. 332.

Verdist.

Verdict, (Verdictum, quasi dictum Veritatis) Is the Answer of a Jury given to the Court, concerning the Matter of Fact in any Cause committed to their Trial; wherein every one of the Twelve Jurors must agree, or it cannot be a Verdict: And the Jurors are to try the Fact, and the Judges to adjudge according to the Law that ariseth upon it. 1 Inst. 226. Verdicts are either General, or Special: A General Verdict is that which is brought into the Court in like general Terms to the General Issue; as if a Defendant pleads Not guilty, or no Wrong, then the Issue is general, whether he be guilty, or the Fact be a Wrong, or not; which being committed to the Jury, they, upon Consideration of the Evidence, say for the Plaintiff, that the Defendant is guilty of a Wrong, or for the Defendant, that it is no Wrong, &c. A Special Verdict is where they find the Matter at large, according to the Evidence given, that such a Thing is done by the Defendant; and declaring the Course of the Fact, as in their Opinions it is proved, pray the Judgment of the Court as to what the Law is in such a Case. S. P. C. 1 Inst. 227. And a Fact may be found Specially, viz. Where a Person is indicted of Murder; the Jury may bring him in guilty of Manslaughter, &c. Or they may leave the Matter to the Judges, in which Cases sometimes it is referred to the Lord Chief Justice of B. R. and all the Judges, to determine it; wherein 'tis said a Recorder of London who tried a Prisoner hath given his Opinion; and the King himself, to whom the Matter was reported. 3 Lev. 255. 2 Nell. Abr. 97. There are likewise Publick and Privy Verdicts: Publick, when given in open Court; and Privy, when given out of the Court, before any of the Judges thereof; and is called Privy, being to be kept secret from the Parties 'till affirmed in Court. 1 Inst. 227. But a Privy Verdict is in Strictness no Verdict; for it is only a Favour which is allowed by the Court to the Jury for their Ease: The Jury may vary from it, and when come into Court give a contrary Verdict; but this must be before the Privy Verdict is recorded. 5 Mod. 351. 1 Inst. No Privy Verdict can be given in criminal Matters, which concern Life, as Felony, &c. but it must be openly in Court; because the Jury are commanded to look upon the Prisoner, when they give their Verdict, and so the Prisoner is to be there present: But in criminal Causes, where the Defendant is not to be personally present at the Time of the Verdict, and in Informations, a Privy Verdict may be given. Raym. 193. 1 Ventr. 97. A Special Verdict may be given in criminal, or civil Cases; and where the Court directs the Jury to find a Special Verdict in a civil Cause, one of the Counsel on each Side agree upon Notes for it, and draw them up and set their Hands to them; and then they are to be delivered to the Jury in convenient Time, or the Court will take a General Verdict: If at the Prayer of the Plaintiff or Defendant, a Special Verdict is ordered to be found, the Party praying it is to prosecute the Special Verdict, that the Matter in Law may be determined; and if either Party delay to join in drawing it up, and pay his Part of the Charges, or if the Counsel for the Defendant refuses to subscribe the Special Verdict, the Party desiring it shall draw it up and enter it Ex parte. 2 Lill. Abr. 645, 653. Where the Parties disagree, or the Special Verdict is drawn contrary to the Notes agreed upon, the Court on Motion will rectify it; and the Court may amend a Special Verdict, to bring the Special Matter in Question: Though if a Matter of Fact be left out in the Notes of the Special Verdict drawn by Counsel, this cannot be amended afterwards. Ibid. 646. The Plaintiff and Defendant are both of them to appear in Court to hear a Special Verdict, and the Jury is to be called and to have the Special Verdict read unto them by the Secondary; and upon the Reading of it, if there be any Mistake in the Drawing it up, the Counsel on either Side may except against it; and when the Counsel are agreed, then the Secondary demands of the Jury, whether they agree to find it so; and if they answer they do, the Verdict is found; and it is to be afterwards entered, &c. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 646. A Special Verdict, though agreed to by the Counsel, &c. is not a Special Verdict 'till allowed by the Court. Ibid. In all Cases and all Actions, the Jury may give a General or Special Verdict; and the Court is bound to receive it, if pertinent to the Point in Issue; and if the Jury doubt, they may refer themselves to the Court, but are not bound so to do. 3 Salk. 373. Though the Plaintiff and Defendant in a Cause consent to have the Jury find a Special Verdict, yet they may find a General Verdict; but this is not usual: And if the Jury will take upon them to find, against the Directions of the Court, any Thing in Matter of Law, the Court will receive the Verdict; but if they give a false Verdict, they are liable to Attaint. Pasch. 23 Car. The ancient Course of laying a Fine on Jurors, barely for giving a Verdict contrary to the Directions of the Court, is condemn'd as illegal, and difused: And it is the same if the Verdict be given against Evidence; for the Jury may give it against Evidence, if they know the Fact themselves. Kel. 50, 58. If Jurors eat or drink any Thing at the Charge of him for whom they give their Verdict, before they are agreed; or if by Casting of Lots they find for the Plaintiff or Defendant; if any Writing, Letter, &c. be delivered by the Plaintiff, or in his Behalf to the Jury, concerning the Matter in Issue, after the Jury are gone from the Bar, and the Verdict is found for the Plaintiff; or if either of the Parties, their Attornies or Solicitors, speak any Thing to the Jury before agreed on their Verdict, which relates to the Cause; as that 'tis a clear Cause, or I hope you will find for such a Person; or if any Witness be sent for by the Jury, after gone from the Bar, and he repeats his Evidence again, &c. In these Cases the Verdict shall be void and set aside: But though where the Jury eat and drink at the Charge of the Plaintiff, and the Verdict being found for him, it is void; it is not so if given for the Defendant: And if the Plaintiff, after the Jury are gone from the Bar, deliver any Writing to any of the Jurors, although the Verdict shall be void if given for the Plaintiff; it is otherwise if given for the Defendant, and sic è converso, &c. Also if the Jury have eat or drank after they went from the Bar, and before they gave their Verdict, this ought to be shewed before the Verdict is given. 1 Inst. 227. 1 Ventr. 125. 2 Lev. 140. Moor. 17. 3 Nell. Abr. 454. A Jurymen withdrawing from his Fellows, or keeping them from giving their Verdict, without giving good Reason for it shall be fined; but if he differ from them in Judgment, he shall not: And although Jurymen are punishable for Misdemeanors, every Misdemeanor of the Jury before they give their Verdict, is not a sufficient Cause to make void the Verdict. Dyer. 53. 2 Lill. Abr. 647. If one of a Jury that found a Verdict, were outlawed at the Time of the Verdict, it is not good: And where a Verdict is given by thirteen Jurors, it is said to be a void Verdict; because no Attaint will lie. 2 Lill. 644, 650. If there be eleven Jurors agreed, and but one dissenting, the Verdict shall not be taken, nor the Refuser fined, &c. Though 'tis said anciently it was not necessary, that all the twelve should agree in Civil Causes. 2 Hale's Hist. P. C. 297. In capital Cases, a Verdict must be actually given; and if the Jury don't all agree upon it, they may be carried in Carts after the Judges, round the Circuit till they agree; and in such Case they may give their Verdict in another County. 1 Inst. 227, 281. 1 Ventr. 97. The Court may set aside a Verdict that convicts a Man contrary to Evidence in a criminal Cause; but they cannot not set aside a Verdict which acquits him. Wood's Inst. 648. If the Jury acquit a Person of an Indictment of Felony against Evidence, the Court, before the Verdict is recorded, may order them to go out again and re-consider the Matter; but this hath been thought hard, and of late Years is not so frequently practised as formerly: There are Instances where Defendants acquitted of Crimes contrary to Evidence, have been bound to the good Behaviour. 2 Hawk. P. C. 442. In Case a Jury acquits a Man upon Trial against full Evidence, and being sent back to consider better of it, are peremptory in and stand to their Verdict, the Court must take it, but may respite Judgment upon the Acquittal: And here the King may have an Attaint. And if the Jury will by Verdict convict a Person against or without Evidence, and against the Opinion of the Court; they may relieve him before Judgment, and certify for his Pardon. 2 Hale's Hist. P. C. 310. When a Verdict in a Civil Action is given against Evidence, it shall be set aside, and a new Trial had, &c. If the Fact upon which the Court was to judge, be not found by the Verdict, a new Venire facias may be granted. 1 Roll. Abr. 693. A Verdict being given where no Issue is joined, there can be no Judgment upon it; but a Repleader is to be had. Mod. Ca. 4. And if a Verdict be ambiguous, insufficient, repugnant, imperfect, or uncertain, Judgment shall not pass upon it. 1 Saund. 154, 155. Verdicts must in all Things directly answer the Issue, or they will not be good; and if a Verdict finds only Part of the Issue, it may be ill for the Whole. 3 Salk. 374. But there is a Difference between Actions founded on a Wrong, and on a Contract; for where 'tis founded on a Wrong, as on a Trespass, or Ejectment, &c. 'tis maintainable if any Part of it is found: So in Debt for Rent, a less Sum than demanded may be found by the Verdict, because it may be apportioned; but where an Action is founded on a Contract, there 'tis intire, and otherwise. 2 Cro. 380. If several Persons are indicted, or jointly charged in an Information, a Verdict may find some of the Defendants guilty, and not others. And if the Substance of an Issue be found, or so much as will serve the Plaintiff's Turn, although not directly according to the Issue, the Verdict is good. 1 Lev. 142. Hob. 73. 1 Mod. 4. According to Glyn, Ch. Just. if an Action be brought for 500*l.* the Jury may find Part paid against the Plaintiff, and Part unpaid against the Defendant, and so divide the Verdict. Trin. 1658. 2 Lill. Abr. 649. If the Jury find the Issue and more, it is good for the Issue, and void for the Residue: And where a Jury find a Point in Issue, and a superfluous Matter over and above, that shall not vitiate the Verdict. 2 Lev. 253. Yet if a Man brings an Action of Debt, and declares for 20*l.* and the Jury upon Nil debet pleaded, find that the Defendant owed 40*l.* this Verdict is ill; for the Plaintiff cannot recover more than he demands; and in this Case he may not recover what he demands, because the Court cannot sever their Judgment from the Verdict. 3 Salk. 376. A Plaintiff failing to prove his Issue, the Verdict ought to be found for the Defendant; and the Court will give Judgment for the Defendant, where it appears that the Plaintiff hath recovered by Verdict without Cause of Action. 2 Lill. Abr. 644, 651. A Verdict found against a Record, which is of a higher Nature than any Verdict, is not good: But where a Verdict may be any Ways construed to make it good, it shall be so taken, and not to make it void. Ibid. Upon a General Issue, a Verdict which is contrary to another Record, may be allowed; but not where the Verdict found is against the same Record upon which it is given. Dyer 300. A Verdict against the Confession of the Party, is void: But it has been held, that the Verdict may be good in the Disjunctive, though it be not formal; but if it find a Thing merely out of the Issue, 'tis not good. Jenk. Cent. 257. Hob. 53, 54. And where the Jury begin with a direct Verdict, and end with special Matter, &c. that shall make the Verdict: Also if they begin with any Special Matter, and after make a general Conclusion upon it, contrary to Law; the Judges will judge of the Verdict, according to the Special Matter. Ibid. 53. No Verdict will make that good, which is not so by Law, of which the Court is to judge; Judgment is to be given on Verdicts, that stand with Law; and what both Parties have agreed in the Pleading, must be admitted so to be, though the Jury find it otherwise, it being a Rule in Law. Hob. 112. 2 Cro. 678. 2 Mod. 4. The Statute of Jeofails helps after Verdict; as it supposes the Matter left out was given in Evidence, and that the Judge directed accordingly. 1 Mod. 292. If there be no original Writ, it is help'd by a Verdict by the Statute of Jeofails; but not if there be a bad Writ: A Declaration that is not good, is in many Cases help'd after Verdict; but not where the Declaration doth not make it appear that the Plaintiff had some Cause of Action, to warrant his Declaration, &c. A Verdict may make an ill Plea good, by Intendment, &c. But a Verdict will not help, where there is no Issue: And what is good after Verdict, would be ill on Demurrer; also in criminal Cases, Real Actions, or Actions Qui tam, if there be any Errors in the Proceedings, they are not help'd after Verdict, by the Stat. of Jeofails. 2 Lill. Abr. 644, 647. 2 Bulst. 41. 2 Salk. 664. 3 Mod. 161. Where a Verdict is found for the Plaintiff, and he will not enter it, or the Defendant may compel him to do it, on Motion; or the Defendant may enter it himself. 2 Lill. After a Verdict is returned in Court, it cannot be altered, but if there be any Misprision, it is to be suggested before: And a Mistake of the Clerk of the Assises appearing to the Court, was ordered to be amended. Cro. Eliz. 112, 150. On Return of Verdicts, in Civil Causes, given at the Assises, to the Courts at Westminster, Judgment is had thereon; and generally if the Judgment differ from the Verdict, it may be reversed, &c. See Issue and Judgment.

Verr, (Fr. Verd, i. e. Viridis, otherwise called Green hue) In the Forest Laws signifies every Thing that beareth a Green Leaf within a Forest, that may cover a Deer; but especially great and thick Coverts. Of Verr there are divers Kinds; some that bear Fruit, which may serve for Food, as Chestnut-trees, Service-Trees, Nut-Trees, Crab Trees, &c. And for the Shelter of the Game, some called Haut-boys, serving both for Food and Browze; also for the Defence of them, as Oaks, Beeches, &c. and for Shelter and Defence, such as Ashes, Poplars, Maples, Alder, &c. Of Sub-boys, some for Browze and Food of the Game; of Bushes and other Vegetables, some are for Food and Shelter, as the Haw thorn, Black-thorn, &c. And some for Hiding and Shelter, such as Brakes, Gorse, Heath, &c. But Herbs and Weeds, although they be Green, our legal Vert extendeth not to them. 4 Inst. 327. Manwood divides Vert into Overt-vert and Nether-vert; the Overt-vert is that which the Law Books term Haut-boys; and Nether-vert, what they call Sub boys: And into Special Vert, which is all Trees growing within the Forest that bear Fruit to feed Deer; called Special, because the Destroying it is more grievously punished than of any other Vert. Manw. par. 2. pag. 33. And when Rates are made, the Parishioners must have Notice of a Vestry held for that Purpose; and then all that are absent shall be concluded by a Majority of those that be present, who in Construction of Law are the whole Parish. Wood's Inst. 90. And if a Parishioner be shut out of the Vestry Room by the Clerk of the Parish; and he makes it appear that he hath a Right to come into the Room, and to be present and vote in the Vestry, &c. Action of the Case lies, as a Remedy. Mod. Ca. in L. & E. 52, 354. Vestry-men in London are a select Number of the chief Parishioners in every Parish within the City and Suburbs, who yearly chuse Officers for the Parish, and take Care of its Concernments, &c. by Statute 15 Car. 2. c. 5. And the Parish-Officers, with the Vestry or principal Inhabitants of the new Parishes, are in Easter Week to assess the Rates for the Poor, &c. 9 Ann. c. 22. Vestries of Parishes are to be consulted by Parish-Officers, and to give their Assent on hiring of Houses for the better Employing and Maintaining of the Poor. 9 Geo. 1.

Wecture, (Vestura) Signifies a Garment; but in the Law it is metaphorically applied to a Possession or Seisin. Stat. West. 2. cap. 5. And in this Signification it is borrowed of the Feudists, with whom Investitura imports a Delivery of Possession, and Vestura Possession itself. Hotom. Vesture of an Acre of Land is the Profit of it; and it shall be inquired how much the Vesture of an Acre of Ground is worth, and how much the Land, &c. 4 Ed. 1. 14 Ed. 3. By Grant of Vestura terræ, the Soil will pass; and the Vesture being the Profit of Land, 'tis generally all one to have that, as the Land itself. 1 Vent. 393. 2 Roll. Abr. 2.

Vicar, (Vicarius, quasi vice fungens Rectoris) The Priest of every Parish is called Rector, unless the Prebendal Tithes are appropriated, and then he is stiled Vicar; and when Rectories are appropriated, Vicars are to supply the Rectors Places. At first a Vicar was a meer Curate to the Impropriator of the Church, temporary, and removable at Pleasure; as those who are now Parish-Priests, in ancient Times when there were no particular Parishes, were only Curates to the Bishops; but by Degrees the Vicars got a settled Maintenance of Glebe, and some Kind of Tithes, and now claim their Dues either by Endowment or by Prescription: And where the Vicar is endowed, and comes in by Institution and Induction, he hath Curam Animarum actualiter, and is not to be removed at the Pleasure of the Rector, who in this Case hath only Curam animarum habitualiter; but where the Vicar is not endowed, nor comes in by Institution and Induction, the Rector hath Curam animarum actualiter, and may remove the Vicar. 1 Vent. 15. 3 Salk. 378. In every Church appropriated, one is to be ordained perpetual Vicar, and to be canonically instituted and inducted, and also endowed at the Discretion of the Ordinary; which Endowment is a Part of the Rectorry, set out by the Patron, Parson, and Ordinary, for Maintaining the Vicar: The Institution and Induction, &c. of Vicars is done in the same Manner as that of Rectors; and over and above they are to take an Oath of perpetual Residency, but this the Bishop may dispense with; the Statutes concerning Pluralities, Dilapidations, &c. relate to them as well as to Parsons. 4 H. 4. 2 Roll. Abr. 337. Upon Endowment, the Vicar hath an Equal, though not so great an Interest in the Church as a Rector; the Freehold of the Church, Church-yard and Glebe is in him; and as he hath the Freehold of the Glebe, he may prescribe to have all the Tithes in the Parish, except those of Corn, &c. Many Vicars have a good Part of the great Tithes; and some Benefices, that were formerly severed by Impropriation, have, by being united, had all the Glebe and Tithes given to the Vicar: But Tithes can no other Way belong to the Vicar than by Gift, Composition or Prescription; for all Tithes de jure appertain to the Parson; and yet generally Vicars are endowed with Glebe and Tithes, especially small Tithes, &c. If a Vicar be endowed of small Tithes by Prescription, and afterwards Land, which had been arable Time out of Mind, is altered, and there are growing small Tithes thereon, on, the Vicar shall have them; for his Endowment goes to such Tithes, in any Place within the Parish. Cro. Eliz. 467. Hob. 39. But where the Vicar is endow'd out of the Parsonage, he shall not have Tithes of the Parson's Glebe, or of Land that was Part thereof at the Time of the Endowment, but now severed from it: Yet it seems to be otherwise, if the Glebe Lands are in the Hands of the Parson's Lessee. Cro. Eliz. 479. Maller. Q. Impad. 4. The Endowment of Vicarages hath been always favour'd in Law, the Vicars for the most part having the Cure of Souls. 2 Roll. 335. Comp. Incumb. 347. March Rep. 11.

Vicarage, (Vicaria) Of Places did originally belong to the Parsonage or Rectory, being derived out of it: The Rector of common Right is Patron of the Vicarage; but it may be settled otherwise; for if he makes a Lease of his Parsonage, the Patronage of the Vicarage passes as incident to it. 2 Roll. Abr. 59. And if a Vicarage become void, during the Vacancy of the Parsonage, the Patron of the Parsonage shall present to such Vicarage. 19 Ed. 2. 41. If the Profits of the Parsonage or Vicarage fall into Decay, that either of them by itself is not sufficient to maintain a Parson and Vicar, they ought again to be reunited: Also if the Vicarage be not sufficient to maintain a Vicar, the Bishop may compel the Rector to augment the Vicarage. 2 Roll. 337. Parf. Counsell. 195, 196. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 8. Upon the Appropriation of a Church, and Endowment of a Vicar out of the same, the Parsonage and Vicarage are two distinct Ecclesiastical Benefices: And it hath been held, That where there is a Parsonage and Vicarage endowed, that the Bishop in the Vacation may dissolve the Vicarage; but if the Parsonage be impropriated, he cannot do it; for on a Dissolution the Cure must revert, which it cannot into Lay Hands. Comp. Incumb. 2 Cro. 518. Palm. 219. For the most part Vicarages were endow'd upon Appropriations; but sometimes Vicarages have been endowed without any Appropriation of the Parsonage; and there are several Churches, where the Tithes are wholly impropriated, and no Vicarage endowed; and there the Impropriators are bound to maintain Curates to perform Divine Service, &c. The Parson, Patron and Ordinary, may create a Vicarage, and endow it: And in Time of Vacancy of the Church, the Patron and Ordinary may do it; but the Ordinary alone cannot create a Vicarage, without the Patron's Assent. 17 Ed. 3. 51. Cro. Jac. 516. Where there is a Vicarage and Parsonage, and both are vacant, and in one Person's Patronage; if he presents his Clerk as Parson, who is thereupon inducted, this shall unite the Parsonage and Vicarage again. 11 H. 6. 32. Vicarage or not, is to be tried in the Spiritual Court, because it could not begin to be created but by the Ordinary. 3 Salk. 378.

Vill, or Village, (Villa) Is sometimes taken for a Manor, and sometimes for a Parish, or Part of it: But a Vill is most commonly the Out-part of a Parish, consisting of a few Houses, as it were separate from it—Villa est ex pluribus Mansionibus vicinaria, & collata ex pluribus Vicinis. 1 Inst. 115. Fleta mentions the Difference between a Mansion, a Village, and a Manor, viz. a Mansion may be of One or more Houses, but it must be but one Dwelling-place, and none near it; for if other Houses are contiguous, it is a Village; and a Manor may consist of several Villages, or one alone. Flet. lib. 6. cap. 51. And according to Fortescus, the Boundaries of Villages, are not by Houses or Streets; but by a Circuit of Ground, within which there may be Hamlets, Woods, and Waste-Ground, &c. Fortesc. in Laud. Leg. Ang. cap. 24. When a Place is named generally, in legal Proceedings, it is intended to be a Vill, because as to civil Purposes the Kingdom was first divided into Vills; and it is never intended a Parish, that being an Ecclesiastical Division of the Kingdom to Spiritual Purposes, though in many Cases the Law takes Notice of Parishes as to Civil Purposes. 1 Mod. 250. 3 Nell. Abr. 57. If no Vill, &c. is alledged, where a Messuage and Lands lie, no Trial can be had concerning it: But some Counties in the North of England, and in Wales, have no Vills but Parishes; where in both Real and Personal Actions, a Jury of the Parish will serve. *Jenk. Villa Regia, A Title given to those Country Villages, where the Kings of England had a Royal Seat, and held the Manor in their own Demesne, having there commonly a free Chapel, not subject to Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction. Paroch. Antiq. 53.

Villain, (Villanus, Fr. Vilain, i. e. Vilis) Signifies a Man of servile or low Condition, a Bondman, or Servant. Of those Bondmen or Villains there were two Sorts in England; one termed a Villain in gross, who was immediately bound to the Person of the Lord, and his Heirs: The other, a Villain regardant to a Manor, being bound to his Lord as a Member belonging and annexed to a Manor, whereto the Lord was Owner. And he was properly a pure Villain, of whom the Lord took Ransom to marry his his Daughter, and to make him free; and whom the Lord might put out of his Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels at his Will, and chastise, but not maim him: For if he maimed his Villain, he might have Appeal of Maihem against the Lord; as he could bring Appeal of the Death of an Ancestor against his Lord, or Appeal of Rape done to his Wife. Bract. lib. 1. cap. 6. Old Nat. Br. 8. Terms de Ley. 574. 575. Some were Villains by Title or Prescription, that is to say, that all their Blood have been Villains regardant to the Manor of the Lord Time out of Mind: And some were made Villains by their Confession in a Court of Record, &c. Though the Lord might make a Manumission to his Villain, and thereby enfranchise him: And if the Villain brought any Action against his Lord, other than an Appeal of Maihem, &c. And the Lord, without Procestation, made Answer to it, by this the Villain was made free. Terms de Ley 576. Villain Estate was contradistinguished to free Estate, by the Statute 8 H. 6. c. 11. And the Villani were such as dwelt in Villages, and of that servile Condition, that they were usually sold with the Farm to which they respectively belonged; so that they were a Kind of Slaves, and used as such: And Villenage or Bondage, it is said, had Beginning among the Hebrews, and its Original of Canaan the Son of Cham, who because he had mocked his Father Noe to Scorn, was punished in his Son Canaan with Penalty of Bondage. Ibid. 455. Villenage cometh of Villain, and was a base Tenure of Lands or Tenements, whereby the Tenant was bound to do all such Services as the Lord commanded, or were fit for a Villain to perform: The Division of Villenage, by Bracton, was into Purum Villenagium à quo præstatum Servitium incertum & indeterminatum, & Villanagium Sacagium; which was to carry the Lord's Dung into his Fields, to plough his Ground at certain Days, sow and reap his Corn, &c. and even to empty his Jakes, as the Inhabitants of some Places were bound to do, though afterwards turn'd into a Rent, and that villanous Service excused. Every one that held in Villenage, was not a Villain or Bondman; for Tenure in Villenage could make no Freeman Villain, unless it were continued Time out of Mind; nor could free Land make a Villain free. Bract. lib. 2. c. 8. Copyhold Tenures seem to be sprung from Villenage. F. N. B. 28. And the Slavery of this Custom hath been long ago taken off: for we have hardly heard of any Case in Villenage since Crouche's Case in Dyer's Rep. There are not properly any Villains now; and the Title and Tenure of Villenage are abolish'd by the Stat. of Car. 2. See Nisf.

Villanous Judgment, (Villanum Judicium) Is that which casts the Reproach of Villany and Shame upon him against whom it is given, as a Conspirator, &c. And the Judgment in such a Case shall be like the ancient Judgment in Attaint, viz. That the Offender shall not be of any Credit afterwards; nor shall it be lawful for him to approach the King's Court; and his Lands and Goods shall be seized into the King's Hands, his Trees rooted up, and Body imprisoned, &c. Staundf. P. C. 157. Lamb. Eiren 63. Stat. 4 H. 5. And the Punishment at this Day appointed for Perjury, may partake of the Name of Villanous Judgment; as it hath somewhat more in it than corporal, or pecuniary Pain, i. e. the discrediting the Testimony of the Offender for ever.

a Thing too mean for him, but fit to be perform'd by a Man of great Trust and Secrecy: And in the Vacancy of the Lord Treasurer's Office, he did all Things in the Receipt, &c. This Officer is mentioned in several Statutes; and named Treasurer of the Exchequer till the Reign of Queen Eliz. when he was termed Under-Treasurer of England. 39 Eliz. cap. 7.

Union, (Unio) Is a Combining or Consolidating of two Churches into one: Also it is when one Church is made subject to another, and one Man is Rector of both; and where a Conventual Church is made a Cathedral. Lyndwode. In the first Signification, if two Churches were so mean that the Tithes would not afford a competent Provision for each Incumbent, the Ordinary, Patron, and Incumbents might unite them at Common Law, before any Statute was made for that Purpose; and in such Case it was agreed which Patron should present first, &c. for though by the Union the Incumbency of one Church was lost, yet the Patronage remain'd, and each Patron might have a Quare Impedit upon a Disturbance to present in his Turn. 3 Nels. Abr. 480. The Bishop, Patron, and Incumbent may unite Churches, without License from the King, by the Statute 37 H. 8. The License of the King is not necessary to an Union, as 'tis to the Appropriation of Advowsons; for an Appropriation cannot be made by them without the King's License, because that is a Mortmain, and the Patronage of the Advowson is lost, and by Consequence all Tenths and First Fruits. Dyer 259. Moor 409, 661. By Assent of the Ordinary, Patron, and Incumbent, two Churches lying not above a Mile distant from the other, and whereof the Value of the one is not above six Pounds a Year in the King's Books of First Fruits, may be united into one. Stat. 37 H. 8. c. 21. And by another Statute, in Cities and Corporation Towns, it shall be lawful for the Bishop, Patrons, and Mayors, or Chief Magistrates of the Place, &c. to unite Churches therein; but where the Income of the Churches united exceeds 100 l. a Year, the major Part of the Parishioners are to consent to the same; and after the Union made, the Patrons of the Churches united shall present by Turns, to that Church only which shall be Presentative, in such Order as agreed; and notwithstanding the Union, each of the Parishes united shall continue distinct as to Rates, Charges, &c. though the Tithes are to be paid to the Incumbent of the united Church. 17 Car. 2. c. 3. A Union where made of Churches of greater yearly Value than mentioned in the Statute 37 H. 8. was held good at Common Law; and by the Canon Law, the Ordinary with Consent of the Patron, might make an Union of Churches, of what Value soever: So by Statute, with the Assent of the King. Dyer 259. 2 Roll. Abr. 778. And when two parochial Churches were thus united, the Reparations continued several as before; and therefore the Inhabitants of the Parish where any such Church was demolished, were not obliged to contribute to the Repairs of the remaining Church to which it was united. Hob. 67. And this occasion'd the Statute 4 & 5 W. & M. by which it is ordain'd, That where any Churches have been united, by Virtue of the Statute 17 Car. 2. and one of them is demolished; when the other Church

Church shall be out of Repair, the Parishioners of the Parish whose Church is down, shall pay in Proportion towards the Charge of such Repairs, &c. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 12.

Unity of Possession, (Unitas Possessionis) Is where a Man hath a Right to two Estates, and holds them together jointly in his own Hands; as if a Man take a Lease of Lands from another at a certain Rent, and after he buys the Fee-simple, this is an Unity of Possession, by which the Lease is extinguished, because that he who had before the Occupation only for his Rent, is now become Lord and Owner of the Land. Termin'd Ley. A Lessee for Years of an Advowson, on the Church becoming void, was presented by the Lessor, and instituted and indicted; and it was held, that this was a Surrender of his Lease; for they cannot stand together in one Person, and by the Unity of Possession one of them is extinguished. Hutt. 105. No Unity will extinct or suspend Tithes; but notwithstanding any Unity they remain, &c. 11 Rep. 14. 2 Lill. 658. Unity of Possession extinguisheth all Privileges not expressly necessary; but not a Way to a Close, or Water to a Mill, &c. because they are thus necessary. A Way of Eafe is destroy'd by Unity of Possession; and a Rent, or Easement, do not exist during the Unity, wherefore they are gone. Litch 153, 154. 1 Vent. 95. Trin. 7 W.

Univerſity, (Universitas) Is a Place where all Kinds of Literature are universally taught: It is likewise used by Civilians for any Corporation, or Body Politick. And by the 13 Elix. it is enacted, That each of the Universities shall be incorporated by a certain Name, though they were ancient Corporations before; and that all Letters Patent and Charters granted to the Universities, shall be good and effectual in Law: That the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of either of the said Universities, shall enjoy all Manors, Lands, Liberties, Franchises, and Privileges, and all other Things which the said incorporated Bodies have enjoyed, or of Right ought to enjoy, according to the Intent of the said Letters Patent; and all Letters Patent, and Liberties, Franchises, &c. shall be establish'd and confirm'd, any Law, Usage, &c. to the contrary notwithstanding. The Universities have the Keeping the Assise of Bread and Beer, and are to punish Offences concerning it: Also they have the Assise of Wine and Ale, &c. And the Chancellor, his Commissary, and Deputy, are Justices of Peace for the Vill of Oxon, County of Oxon, and Berks, by Virtue of their Offices; see the Stat. 51 H. 3. 31 Ed. 1. 7 Ed. 6. 2 & 3 P. & M. and the Chart. 29 Ed. 3. 14 H. 8. &c. By Letters Patent, Anno 11 Car. 1. granted to the University of Oxford, the old Privileges are explained, and larger granted: And the Privilege of the University is allowed to Scholars, and Servants, &c. 14 Car. 2. r. 4. Persons acting Theatrical Performances within the Precincts of either University, or five Miles thereof, shall be deemed Vagrants; and the Chancellor, &c. may commit them to the House of Correction, or common Gaol for one Month. Stat. 10 Geo. 2. c. 19. See Courts of the Universities.

only, and but for the Time 'tis so. Argument on incestuous Marriages. Vaugh. 224.

Unques piſt, Always ready to perform a Thing: Used in Pleading to an Action, which if the Plaintiff cannot prove to the contrary, he shall recover no Damages. Kitch. 243.

Voidance, (Vacatio) Is a Want of an Incumbent upon an Ecclesiastical Benefice. Vide Avoidance.

Void and Voidable. In the Law some Things are absolutely void, and some are voidable. A Thing is void which is done against Law at the very Time of the Doing of it; and it shall bind no Person: But a Thing which is only voidable, and not void, although it be what he that did it ought not to have done, yet when it is done the Doer cannot avoid the same; though by some Act in Law it may be made void by his Heir, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 653. Where a Grant is void at the Commencement, no Act afterwards can make it good: If a Lease is absolutely void, Acceptance of Rent will not affirm it; it is otherwise when a Lease is voidable, there it will make it good. 3 Rep. 64. A Lease for Life, which is voidable only, must be made void by Re-entry, &c. Ibid. 'Tis generally held that Covenants made in a void Lease or Deed, are also void. Yeto. 18. See Owen 136. A Deed of Exchange, entered into by an Infant, or one Non sane memoria, is not void; but may be avoided by the Infant when arrived of Age, or by the Heir of him who is Non sane memoria. Perk. 281. But it hath been adjudg'd, that a Bond of an Infant, or of one Non Compos, is void, because the Law hath not appointed any Thing to be done to avoid such Bonds; for the Party cannot plead Non est factum, as the Cause of Nullity doth not appear upon the Face of the Deed. 2 Salk. 675. 3 Nelf. Abr. 486. Where the Condition of a Bond is void, in Part by Statute, it may be void totally; though it is otherwise if void in Part by the Common Law, for there it shall be good for the Residue. Moor 856. 1 Brownl. 64. A Deed being voidable, is to be avoided by Special Pleading; and where an Act of Parliament says, that a Deed, &c. shall be void, it is intended that it shall be by Pleading, so as 'tis voidable, but not actually vacated. 5 Rep. 119. A Judgment given by Persons who had no good Commission to do it, is void, without Writ of Error: But an erroneous Attainder is not void, but voidable by Writ of Error, &c. 2 Harok. P. C. 459, 321.

Voyte, A French Word signifying truly. Law Fr. Dic.

Voyte dire, (Fr. Veritatem dicere) Is when it is pray'd upon a Trial at Law, that a Witness may be sworn upon a Voire dire; which is, that he shall on his Oath speak the Truth, whether he shall get or lose by the Matter in Controversy; and if it appears that he is unconcern'd, his Testimony is allow'd otherwise not. Blount. On a Voire dire, a Witness may be examin'd by the Court, if he be not a Party interested in the Cause; as well as the Person for whom he is a Witness; and this has been often done, where a busy Evidence, not otherwise to be excepted against, is suspected of Partiality. Termin'd Ley. 61.

Volumus, Is the first Word of a Clause in the King's Writs of Protection and Letters Patent; of Protections, some are cum clausula Volumus. 13 R. 2. cap. 16. Co. Litt. 159.

Voluntary, As applied to a Deed, is where any Conveyance is made without a Consideration, either of Money, or Marriage, &c. And Remainders limited in Settlements, to a Man's right Heirs, &c. are deem'd Voluntary in Equity; and the Person claiming under them called Volunteers. Abr. Cas. Eq. 385. 3 Salk. 174. See Frank.

Voluntas

Voluntas, Is when a Tenant by Lease holds Lands at the Will of the Lessor; or a Copyholder holdeth his Lands at the Will of the Lord, by Copy of Court-Roll, according to the Custom of the Manor, &c.

Votum, A Vow or Promise, used by Fleta for Nuptiae; so Dies Votorum, is the Wedding-Day. Fleta, lib. 4.

Vouche, (Fr. in Latin Voco) Signifies to call one to warrant Lands, &c.

Voucher, Is a Word of Art, when the Tenant in Writ of Right calls another into the Court, who is bound to him to Warranty; and is either to defend the Right against the Demandant, or yield him other Lands to the Value, &c. And it extends to Lands or Tenements of Freehold or Inheritance, and not to any Chattel, Real, Personal, or Mixt: He that voucheth is called the Voucher, (vocans) and he that is vouched is called the Vouchee, (warrantatus) and the Process whereby the Vouchee is called, is a Summons ad Warrantizandum; on which Writ, if the Sheriff return that the Party hath nothing whereby he may be summoned, then goes out another Writ called sequatur sub suo periculo, &c. Co Litt. 101. There is also a foreign Voucher, when the Tenant being impleaded within a particular Jurisdiction, as in London, voucheth one to Warranty in some other County out of the Jurisdiction of that Court, and prays that he may be summoned, &c. 2 Rep. 50. On a Suit in England, a Voucher doth not lie in Ireland; But it lies in Wales, and the Tenant shall be summoned in the next County to it. A Vouchee by entering into Warranty, becomes Tenant in Law of the Lands; and when the Demandant Counts against him, he may plead a Release, &c. Jenk. Cent. 41, 100. In a Writ of Entry in the Degrees, none shall vouch out of the Line: And in Writs of Right and Possession, it is a good Counterplea, that neither the Vouchee nor his Ancestors had ever Seisin of the Land. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 40. And the Demandant may aver a Vouchee to be dead, and that there is no such Person, where the Tenant voucheth a Person deceased to Warranty. 14 Ed. 3. c. 18. Single, double and treble Voucher. See Recovery. And vide Warranty.

Voucher, Is also used for a Leiger-Book, or Book of Accounts, wherein are enter'd the Acquittances or Warrants for the Accountant's Discharge. Stat. 19 Car. 2. cap. 1.

Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 19. and 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 23.

Upland, High Ground, or Terra firma, as it is called by some, contrary to marshy and low Ground. Ingulpb.

Ufa, Is the River Isis; which River was term'd Isis from the Goddess of that Name; for it was customary among the Pagans to dedicate Hills, Woods, and Rivers, to favourite Goddesses, and to call them after their Names; and the Britons having the greatest Reverence for Ceres and Proserpina, who was also called Isis, did for that Reason name the River Isis: And she being the Goddess of the Nights, from thence they computed Days by Nights; as Seven Nights, &c. Blount.

Ufage, Differs from Custom, and Prescription: No Man may claim a Rent, Common, or other Inheritance by Ufage; though he may by Prescription, 6 Rep. 65. See Prescription.

Ufance, A Calendar Month, as from May 20 to June 20, and double Ufance, is two such Months; Words used in Bills of Exchange. Merch. Dict.

Use, (Ufus) Is in Application of Law, the Profit or Benefit of Lands and Tenements; or a Trust and Confidence repos'd in a Man for the holding of Lands, That he to whose Use the Trust is made shall take the Profits thereof. West. Symb. par. 1. 1 Inst. 272. An Use is only a Trust or Confidence which one Man puts in another; and therefore 'tis not a Thing issuing out of the Land, but collateral to it, and annexed to the Privy of Estate between them, (viz.) That he to whom the Use is made shall have the Profits; and that the Tenant of the Land shall make an Estate as he shall direct: But the Cestui que use hath neither ius in Re or ad Rem, his only Remedy being in Chancery to compel the Cestui que Trust to execute the Use. 3 Nels. Abr. 487. The Limitation of an Use, was at the Common Law but a Matter of Equity: But now Feoffments to Uses, &c. have the same Acceptation as Deeds at Common Law; and Uses limited by any Conveyance, are govern'd and directed according to the Rules of the Law. 2 Lill. Abr. 664. There were two Inventors of Uses; Fear in the Time of Trouble and Civil War, for the saving of Inheritances from Forfeiture; and Fraud in Time of Peace, to defeat Debts, Escheats, &c. And it is said, the Original of Uses was the Statute of Mortmain, which cramp'd the Clergy so much that they were forced to take Shelter under the Laity, and make use of them to purchase Lands in Trust for them and to their Use: Afterwards the Wars between the Houses of York and Lancaster coming on, Trusts and Uses increas'd more than ever; and although the Common Law could take no Cognizance of them, yet there were always, until King Hen. 8th's Reign, Clergymen Chancellors, who were ready upon all Occasions to decree the Performance of the Trust and Use. 2 Lill. 662, 663. It hath been observed by some Writers, that there were no such Things as Uses at Common Law; the Reason was, because the Feoffee was always taken as the Owner of the Land; and it was very inconvenient and absurd that there should be two several Fees, and the Owners of the same Land simul & simul; therefore by the Common Law the Feoffees to Uses were the very Tenants, &c. But the Statute of Uses hath united the Estate to the Use, so that now the Feoffees to Uses have no Estate or Interest at all, but in Respect of the contingent Estate and Uses limited in the Deed. 3 Salk. 386. Because in Time many Deceits were invented, by settling the Possession in one Man, and the Use in another, inasmuch that the Possession and the Use were divided, which opened a Gap for Frauds: To avoid these Inconveniencies, the Statute of 27 H. 8. gives the Possession to him who has the Use, and as before the Statute the Possession ruled the Use, so now the Use governs the Possession; for this Reason in Conveyances it is set down in the Habendum to whose Use the Lands are conveyed, and whatever Estate a Man hath in the Use, the same he has in the Possession at this Day. 1 Rep. 121. 2 Leon. cap. 25. The Stat. 27 H. 8. cap. 10. enacts, That where any are or shall be seized of Lands, to the Use of any other, by reason of any Bargain and Sale, Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, Contract, Agreement or Will, &c. he to whose Use the Lands are settled in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, or otherwise, shall be esteemed in Possession of the Land to all Intents and Purposes: And where one is seized of Lands to the Use or Intent that another shall have an yearly Rent out of the same, Cestui que Use shall be deemed in Possession and Seisin of the said Rent, and of like Estate as in the Use, &c. And if there are any Uses limited in a new Manner, they are void. 1 Rep. 129, 138. But there are Uses that are not executed, by this Statute; as if Lands are are granted to others in Trust, that the Feoffees shall take the Profits, and deliver them to the Feoffor and his Heirs; also Leases for Years of Lands in Use, (which Leases had their being before, and are granted over in Use and Trust) where the Lessee is possessed only of his Term, and not seised of any Freehold, &c. and there still remains an Use of Goods and Chattels Personal, which is properly a Chancery Trust, wherein the Use and Possession are divided; though in other Cases the Statute executes Agreements as the Chancery would have done before. Wood's Inst. 256, 257. All Lands of Inheritance, Liberties, Franchises, visible or local, may be conveyed by Way of Use: But Inheritances Personal, which have no Relation to Lands or local Hereditaments, cannot be conveyed by Way of Use. And some Questions having been made, out of what an Use shall arise, it hath been held, That Uses shall be raised only out of a Freehold; that they cannot be raised out of a Chattel, nor out of an Use, or a bare Right or Power, nor out of an intended Purpose, &c. Moor 509. 1 Leon. 148. 3 Salk. 386. In Uses there ought to be Privity of Estate to erect the Use upon: And there are four Things required to the Execution of a Use within the Statute, viz. There must be a Person seised; but the King or a Corporation, an Alien, &c. cannot be seised to the Use of another: There is to be a Cestui que Use in Being; for the Words of the Act are, Stand and be seised to the Use of any Person or Persons: There must be a Use in Esse, in Possession, Remainder, or Reversion; and the Estate of the Feoffees, &c. out of which the Uses arise, is to be vested or transferred to Cestui que Use; and if any of these fail, the Use will not be executed. 1 Rep. 126. 1 Inst. 19. 2 Cro. 50, 401. Uses are in Esse, either in Possession, Remainder, or Reversion; or in Contingency, which by Possibility may fall into Possession, or in Reversion, &c. Contingent Uses in posse, may be created though they are not executed by the Statute, but remain at Common Law: But when they come in Esse, then the Statute executes them; and before that, they may be destroyed, discontinued or suspended. 1 Rep. 135. A Use is also express, or implied; Express, as when a Feoffment is made of Land to A. B. and his Heirs, to the Use of C. D. and the Heirs of his Body, &c. Implied, where the Use is not declared between the Parties, but is left to the Construction of the Law: And if a Man seised of Lands makes a Feoffment in Fee without any Consideration, and it is not declared to whose Use, by Implication of Law it shall be to the Use of the Feoffor, &c. It hath been adjudg'd, that if by Feoffment, or Lease and Release, a Man conveys any particular Estate mediate or immediate to another Person, there the Residue of the Estate shall by Implication remain to the Use of the Party himself: But where no Estate is limited to another, the whole Conveyance is to no Purpose, if the Party be construed to have the resulting Use in him; indeed upon a Fine or Recovery Persons may have their particular Estates in other Respects, as barring upon Nonclaims, &c. 1 Rep. 121. 2 Roll. Abr. 781, 782. 2 Salk. 678. 3 Salk. 387. An Use may be raised two Manner of Ways, 1st, By Transmutation, or departing with the Possession of the Estate. 2dly, Without Transmutation of the Estate, by keeping the Land in a Man's own Hands, and making the Possession be to the Use of another: Those Uses that arise by Transmutation of Estate, are by Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, &c. And those which arise without Transmutation, being by Bargain and Sale inrolled, and Covenant to stand seised to Uses. 1 Plowd. 301. 1 Inst. 271. Conveyances to Uses are of three Sorts; a Covenant to stand seised; a Feoffment, Fine, or Recovery to Uses, and a Bargain and Sale; by which last a contingent Use cannot be supported, though by the two First it may; and there is a Difference between a Feoffment to Uses, and a Covenant to stand seised, because the Feoffor departs with his whole Estate, but the Covenantor departs with no more than what is actually vested in the Cestui que Use. 2 Sid. 64, 129. In Bargains and Sales, and Covenants to stand seised, some Consideration is necessary to make those Deeds operate to Uses; the Consideration of Money in a Bargain and Sale, and natural Affection, Blood, Affinity, Marriage, &c. in the Covenant to stand seised: And they may be good to a Man's Wife or Family, without any Consideration; but not to others. Plow. 301. Dyer 169. 3 Lev. 306. The Consideration, or a Reservation of 12 d. a Penny, or a Pepper Corn, are sufficient Considerations to raise an Use. 2 Mod. 251. 3 Salk. 387. If a Man covenants in Consideration of Marriage, or of a Sum of Money paid to him, that the Covenantor shall have such Lands; the same shall change the Use immediately, for these are good Considerations either to change or raise Uses. Dyer 6. But a Person covenanteth to make an Estate to certain Persons to certain Uses, in Consideration of Marriage; no Use arises by such bare Covenant, unless the Estate be made accordingly: So where upon Marriage there is a Covenant to levy a Fine, except the Fine be levied; but if a Fine be levied, it shall be to the Uses. Dalif 112. 3 Lev. 306. Cro. Eliz. 401. An Use arises when declared by Estate executed, which needs no Consideration: A Fine it self without any Consideration, doth raise Uses, where a Marriage is intended; but in other Conveyances, the Consideration of Marriage will not raise an Use, if the Marriage take not Effect; because the Consideration must be executed before the Use shall arise. 1 Leon. 138. A Consideration of Money given by one, may extend to all the Estates; but if it be of Blood, &c. it is Singular, and will raise the Use of that only to which it goeth: Though if I Covenant with B. in Consideration of the Marriage of my Son with his Daughter, to be seised to the Use of a Stranger for Life, and after to my Son and his Wife in Tail; here the Use shall arise to the Stranger, to bear up the Remainder, which is not good without a particular Estate. Plowd. 307. Dyer 174. 11 Rep. 24. Yet if such Covenant be to stand seised to the Use of my self for Life, and after to C. a Stranger for the Term of Twenty Years, and after that to my Son in Tail; in this Case the Use limited to C. is void, and my Son after my Death shall have the Land. 1 Rep. 155. A. Covenanted for natural Affection, to be seised to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Death that the Land should descend or remain to his Cousin B. in Fee; resolv'd by all the Judges, that no Use is raised to B. by Reason of the Disjunctive, remain or descend. Jenk. Cent. 267. An Use cannot be raised by any Covenant, Proviso, or Bargain and Sale, upon a general Consideration, without special Averment: And although he that hath the Fee-simple of Land, may make what Uses he will of it in Fee, for Life, or Years; yet Tenant in Tail may not. 4 Shep. Abr. 180. 2 Cro. 400, 401. Uses may be made to a Man and the Wife he shall marry, or to his first, second, or third Wife, &c. And if Parties to a Deed declare, that one of them shall make a Feoffment, or levy a Fine to the Use and Intent that one shall hold the Land for Life, and after his Death another in Tail, and after that a Third in Fee simple, &c. the Estate settlenth according to the Uses declared by the Deed. 1 Rep. 13, 121. A Devise may be to an Use, and be so executed: A Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of his Will, he hath the Use in the mean Time; and when the Feoffor by Will limits the Estate pursuant to his Power, the Estate takes Effect by the Feoffment, and the Use is directed by the Will. Lutw. 823. 6 Rep. 17, 18. If Uses are settled upon Condition, the Condition must first be performed; and a future Use may well arise on the Non performance of a Condition. 2 Lill. Abr. 668. There may be a future springing Use, without a precedent Estate made to support it, as a Man covenants to stand seised after his Death to the Use of his Kinsman and his Heirs, the Estate in the mean Time is in him; for it cannot pass out of him during his Life, and therefore in Case of Covenant he hath such Estate. 1 Rep. 154. 2 Lev. 77. An Use is construed as favourably as may be, to comply with the Intent of the Party: Intention is the Foundation of Uses, but it ought to be out of the Words of the Deed, to be agreeable to Law, and collected and taken from the intire Deed. 1 Mod. 98. Lutw. 700, 790. If the Meaning of the Party doth appear, that he intended to pass his Estate by Way of raising an Use; there the Words, Give, Grant, &c. shall enure as a Covenant to stand seised: But where it doth not appear, that he intended to pass it by way of Use, but by Conveyance at Common Law, no Use is raised. March 50. Lands being once sold and settled to Uses, the Party that makes the Use may not create any farther Uses: Where the Estate out of which an Use ariseth is gone, the Use is gone likewise; and Uses may be made void by Release, or Power of Revocation. Dyer 186. 1 Inst. 237. Deeds of Gift of Goods, &c. made in Trust to the Use of the Grantor, shall be void. 3 H. 7. c. 4. And no Use will prevent Dower of a Woman after her Husband's Death, &c. See Covenant to stand seised.

Superstitious Uses. By Statute, a Devise of Lands or Goods to Superstitious Uses, is where 'tis to find or maintain a Chaplain or Priest to pray for the Souls of the Dead, or Lamp in a Chapel, a Stipendiary Priest, &c. These, and such like, are declared to be Superstitious Uses; and the Lands and Goods so devised are forfeited to the King. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. But a Man devised Lands to Trustees and their Heirs, to find a Priest, to pray for his Soul, so long as the Laws of the Land would permit; and if the Laws would not permit it, then to apply the Profits to the Poor, with Power to convert the Profits to either of the said Uses; adjudged this was not a Devise to any Superstitious Use. 3 Nels. Abr. 259. And where certain Profits arising out of Lands are given to Superstitious Uses, the King shall have only so much of the yearly Profits, which were to be applied to the Superstitious Use; though when the Land itself is given by the Testator, declaring that the Profits, without saying how much, shall be employed for such Uses, in this Case the King shall have the Land itself. Moor 129. If a Sum certain is given to a Priest, and other Goods which depend upon the Superstitious Use, all is forfeited to the King; yet if Land, &c. is given to find an Obit or Anniversary, and for an other good Use; and there is no Certainty how much shall be employed to the Superstitious Use, the Gift to the good Use, shall preserve the Whole from Forfeiture. 4 Rep. 104. 2 Roll. 205. It has been held, where a Superstitious Use was void, so that the King could not have it; that it was not so far void, as to result to the Heir at Law; and therefore the King may apply it to Charity. 1 Salk. 163. See the Stat. 23 Hen. 8. under Mortmain; and the 1 Geo. 1. Title Forfeiture.

Uter de Dition, Is the Pursuing or bringing an Action, in the proper County, &c. Broke 64.

Usher, (Fr. Huiffier, a Door keeper) Is an Officer in the King's Houle, as of the Privy Chamber, &c. And there are Ushers of the Courts of Chancery and Exchequer.

Uscaption, (Uscaptio) Signifies the Enjoying by Continuance of Time; a long Possession, or Prescription. Terms de Ley.

Usufructuary, (Usufructuarius) One that hath the Use, and reaps the Profit of a Thing.

Usurpation, (Usurpatio) Is the using that which is another's; an Interruption or Disturbing a Man in his Right and Possession, &c. And Usurpations in the Civil and Canon Law are called Intrusions; and such Intruders having not any Right shall submit, or be excommunicated and deprived, &c. by Boniface's Constit. Gibf. Codex 817: The Usurpation of a Church Benefice is, when one that hath no Right, presenteth to the Church, and his Clerk is admitted and instituted into it, and hath quiet Possession six Months after Institution before a Quare Impedit brought: It must commence upon a Presentation, not a Collation; because by a Collation the Church is not full, but the right Patron may bring his Writ at any Time to remove the Usurper. 1 Inst. 227. 6 Rep. 30. And by Usurpation, the Fee of an Advowson may be gained, as well as the Avoidance upon which the Usurpation is made: And the true Patron cannot remove the Incumbent to regain the Possession, without a Writ of Right of Advowson, which he is driven to for Recovery of the Inheritance. 6 Rep. 49. It has been formerly held, that upon an Usurpation the Usurper gains a Fee-simple in the Advowson; in like Manner as he who enters into Land during a Vacation, and claims the same as his Inheritance by Wrong: But as the Dying seised of Lands in that Case, will not take away the Entry of the Successor; no more shall the Usurpation on a Vacancy, take away his Right of Presentation when the Church becomes void. 2 Co. Inst. 360. 17 Ed. 3. 37. At Common Law the Patron in Fee was put out of Possession by an Usurpation, and to recover the Advowson it self by a Writ of Right; but he hath no Remedy for the Presentation hac vice, nor if another Avoidance happen, unless he bring his Writ of Right of Advowson, and recontinue the Advowson: If the Patron had the Advowson in Tail, or for Life, this Turn and also his whole Advowson was gone. 3 Salk. 388. An Usurpation upon a Lessee for Years, gains the Fee-simple, and puts the true Patron out of Possession; and though by the Stat. Westm. 2. he in Reversion after the Determination of the Lease for Years, may have a Quare Impedit when the Church is void, or may present; and if his Clerk is instituted and inducted, then he is remitted to his former Title; yet till that is done, the Usurper hath the Fee, and the Writ of Right of Advowson lies against him. Hutt. 66. 3 Salk. 389. Upon the Statute 1 Eliz. if an Usurpation be on a Bishop, it shall bind him; but his Successor may present to the next Avoidance, or bring a Quare Impedit, although he is out of Possession: All Usurpations shall bind the Bishop who suffers them; not their Successors. 1 Leon. 80. 2 Cro. 673. No one can usurp upon the King; but an Usurpation may dispossess him of his Presentation; so as he shall be obliged to bring a Quare Impedit; though it will not so devert his Estate in an Advowson, as to bind his Inheritance, and put him to a Writ of Right. 3 Salk. 389. One Coparcener or Jointenant, &c. cannot usurp upon the other: But where there are two Patrons of Churches united, if one presents in the other's Turn, it is an Usurpation; for they are not as Coparceners, who are privy in Blood. Dyer 259. 17 Ed. 3. If one presents to a Church in Time of War, the Presentment shall not put the rightful Patron out of Possession: And a Presentation which is void in Law, as in Case of Simony, or to a Church that is full, &c. makes no Usurpation. 2 Rep. 93. Wood's Inst. 160. Also by a late Statute, no Usurpation on any Avoidance, shall displace the Estate or Interest of any Person intitled to an Advowson; or hinder him to present upon the next Avoidance, or to maintain a Quare Impedit to recover Possession, &c. 7 Ann. c. 18. This Statute hath quite altered the Law concerning Usurpations of Churches. Mallor. 2. Imped. 146

Usurpation of Franchises and Liberties, Is when a Subject unjustly uses any Royal Franchises, &c. And it is said to be an Usurpation upon the King, who shall have the Writ of Quo Warranto against the Usurpers. See Quo Warranto.

Usurious Contract, Is any Bargain or Contract, whereby a Man is obliged to pay more Interest for Money than the Law allows. Vide Usury.

Usury,

Ufury, (Ufura) Is Money given for the Use of Money; and is particularly defined to be the Gain of any Thing by Contract above the Principal, or that which was lent, exacted in Consideration of Loan thereof, whether it be of Money, or any other Thing. 3 Inst. 151. Some make Ufury to be the Profit exacted for a Loan made to a Person in Want and Distress; but properly it consists in extorting an unreasonable Rate for Money, beyond what is allowed by Statute. The Letting Money out at Interest, or upon Ufury, was against the Common Law; and in former Times, if any one after his Death had been found to be a Ufurer, all his Goods and Chattels were forfeited to the King, &c. And according to several ancient Statutes, all Ufury is unlawful; but at this Time neither the Common or Statute Law, absolutely prohibit Ufury. 3 Inst. 151, 152. Though excessive Ufury is liable to the Forfeiture of treble Value of the Money taken by Statute; and if Judgment cannot be given on the Statute, if it be found that a Person took Money for Forbearance by corrupt Agreement, Judgment may be given against him at Common Law, which is Fine and Imprisonment. 3 Salk. 391. Reasonable Interest may be taken for the Use of Money at this Day: The Stat. 27 Hen. 8. cap. 9. allowed 10 l. per Cent. for Money lent on Mortgages, &c. The 13 Eliz. c. 8. ordained 8 l. per Cent. And the 21 Jac. 1. c. 17. the like Interest. The 12 Car. 2. c. 13. lowered the Interest of Money to 6 l. per Cent. And the 12 Ann. cap. 16. to 5 l. per Centum per Annum. But it is said, that the Statutes 13 Eliz. and 21 Jac. 1. allow not Ufury, but punish the Excess of it; and the 12 Ann. is called the Statute against Excessive Ufury. By the Stat. 12 Ann. c. 16. no Person shall take directly or indirectly, for Loan of any Money, or any Thing, above the Value of 5 l. for the Forbearance of 100 l. for a Year, and so proportionably for a greater or less Sum; and all Bonds, Contracts, and Assurances made for Payment of any principal Sum to be lent on Ufury, above the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. shall be void: And whoever shall take, accept or receive by way of corrupt Bargain, Loan, &c. a greater Interest, shall forfeit treble the Value of the Money lent; and Scriveners, Solicitors and Drivers of Bargains, are not to take above 5 s. for the Procuring the Loan of 100 l. a Year, on Pain of forfeiting 20 l. &c. It hath been adjudg'd on this Statute, that a Contract for 6 l. per Cent. made before the Statute, is not within the Meaning of it; and therefore that it was still lawful to receive such Interest, in respect of any such Contract: And if a Man, when Interest was at 6 l. per Cent. lent Money at that Rate, and after the Statute comes and sinks the Interest to 5 l. per Cent. if he continues the old Interest on that Bond, the Bond shall not be void as ufurious; but it is said the Party shall be liable to forfeit treble Value. 1 Hawk. 246. 1 Mod. 69. The Receipt of higher Interest than is allowed by the Statute, by Virtue of an Agreement subsequent to the first Contract, doth not avoid an Assurance fairly made; and a Bond made to secure a just Debt, payable with lawful Interest, shall not be avoided by a corrupt ufurious Agreement between others, to which the Obligee was no ways privy: Nor shall Mistakes in drawing Writings make void a fair Agreement. Ibid. If the original Contract be not ufurious, nothing done afterwards can make it so: And a Counter-Bond to save one harmless against a Bond made upon a corrupt Agreement, will not be void by the Statutes. But if the original Agreement be corrupt between all the Parties, and so within the Statute, no Colour will exempt it from the Danger of the Statutes against Ufury. 1 Brownl. 73. 2 And. 428. 4 Shrep. Abr. 170. A Fine levied, or Judgment suffered as a Security for Money, in Pursuance of an ufurious Contract, may be avoided by an Averment of the corrupt Agreement; as well as any common Specialty, or parol Contract: And it is not material, whether the Payment of the Principal and the ufurious Interest, be secured by the same, or by different Conveyances, for all Writings whatsoever for the Strengthening such a Contract are void; also a Contract reserving to the Lender a greater Advantage than allowed, is ufurious, if the Whole is reserv'd by way of Interest, or in Part only under that Name, and in Part by way of Rent for a House, let at a Rate plainly exceeding the known Value; so where Part is taken before the End of the Time, that the Borrower hath not the Profit of the whole principal Money, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 248. 3 Nelf. Abr. 509. By Holt Ch. Just. If A. owes B. 100 l. who demands his Money, and A. acquaints him, that he hath not the Money ready, but is desirous to pay it if B. can procure it to be lent by any other Person; and thereupon B. having present Occasion for his Money, contracts with C. That if he will lend A. 100 l. he will give him 10 l. on which C. lends the Money, and the Debt is paid to B. this is a good and lawful Contract, and not ufurious between B. and C. Cartbrew's Rep. 252. It is not Ufury, if there be not a corrupt Agreement, for more than Statute Interest; and the Defendant shall not be punish'd, unless he receive some Part of the Money in Affirmance of the ufurious Agreement. 3 Salk. 390. There can be no Ufury, without a Loan; and the Court hath distinguished between a Bargain and a Loan. 1 Lutw. 273. Sid. 27. If a Man lend another 100 l. for two Years, to pay for the Loan 30 l. and if he pays the Principal at the Year's End, he shall pay nothing for Interest; this is not Ufury, because the Party may pay it at the Year's End, and so discharge himself. Cro. Jac. 509. 5 R.p. 69. And it is the same where a Person by special Agreement, is to pay double the Sum borrowed, &c. by way of Penalty, for Nonpayment of the principal Debt; the Penalty being in Lieu of Damages, and the Borrower might repay the Principal at the Time agreed, and avoid the Penalty. 2 Lutw. 89. 2 Roll. Abr. 801. A Man surrenders a Copyhold Estate to another upon Condition that if he pays 80 l. at a certain Day, then the Surrender to be void; and after it is agreed between them that the Money shall not be paid, but that the Surrenderor shall forfeit, &c. In Consideration whereof, the Surrendree promises to pay to the Surrenderor on a certain Day 60 l. or 6 l. per Annum from the said Day pro usu & interesse of the said 60 l. till that Sum is paid: This 6 l. shall be taken to be Interesse Damnum, and not Lucri, and but limited as a Penalty for Nonpayment of the 60 l. as a Nomine pænæ, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 469. 1 Danv. Abr. 44. On a Loan of 100 l. or other Sum of Money for a Year, the Lender may agree to take his Interest Half-Yearly, or Quarterly; or to receive the Profits of a Manor or Lands, &c. and be no Ufury, though such Profits are rendered every Day. Cro. Jac. 26. If a Grant of Rent, or Lease for 20 l. a Year of Land which is worth 100 l. per Annum be made for One hundred Pounds, 'tis not ufurious; if there be not an Agreement, that this Grant or Lease shall be void, upon Payment of the Principal and Arrears, &c. Jenk. Cent. 249. But if two Men speak together, and one desires the other to lend him an hundred Pounds, and for the Loan of it, he will give more than legal Interest; and to evade the Statute, he grants to him 30 l. per Ann. out of his Land for ten Years, or makes a Lease for one hundred Years to him, and the Lessee regrants it upon Condition that he shall pay 30 l. yearly for the ten Years: In this Case it is Ufury, though the Lender never have his own hundred Pounds again. 1 Cro. 27. See 1 Leon. 119. A Man granted a large Rent for Years, for a small Sum of Money: The Statute of Usury was pleaded; and it was adjudg'd, that if it had been laid to be upon a Loan of Money, it had been usurious; though 'tis otherwise if it be a Contract for an Annuity. 4 Shep. Abr. 170. If one hath a Rent-charge of 30 l. a Year, and another asketh what he shall give for it, and they agree for 100 l. this is a plain Contract for the Rent Charge, and no Usury. 3 Nelf. 510. The Grant of an Annuity for Lives, not only exceeding the Rate allowed for Interest, but also the Proportion for Contracts of this Kind, in Consideration of a certain Sum of Money, is not within the Statutes against Usury; and so of a Grant of an Annuity, on Condition, &c. Cro. Jac. 253. 2 Lev. 7. See 1 Sid. 182. Where Interest exceeds 5 l. per Cent. per Annum on a Bond, if possibly the Principal and Interest are in Hazard, upon a Contingency, or Casualty; or if there is a Hazard that one may have less than his Principal, as when a Bond is to pay Money upon the Return of a Ship from Sea, &c. these are not Usury. 2 Cro. 208, 508. 1 Cro. 27. Show. 8. Though where B. lends to D. three hundred Pounds on Bond, upon an Adventure during the Life of E. for such a Time; If therefore D. pays to B. twenty Pounds in three Months, and at the End of six Months, the Principal Sum, with a further Premium, at the Rate of 6 d. per Pound a Month; or if before the Times mentioned E. dies, then the Bond to be void: This differing from the Hazard on a Bottomry Bond, was adjudged an usurious Contract. Cartberw 67, 68. Comberb. 125. One hundred Pounds is lent to have 120 l. at the Year's End, upon a Casualty; if the Casualty goes to the Interest only, and not the Principal, it is Usury: The Difference in the Books is, that where the Principal and Interest are both in Danger of being lost, there the Contract for extraordinary Interest is not usurious; but when the Principal is well secur'd, 'tis otherwise. 3 Salk. 391. A Person secures the Interest and Principal, if it be at the Will of the Party who is to pay, it is no Usury. 2 Cro. 509. And a Lender accepting a voluntary Gratuity from the Borrower, on Payment of Principal and Interest; or receiving the Interest before due, &c. without any corrupt Agreement, shall not be within the Statutes against Usury. 2 Cro. 677. 3 Cro. 501. Also if one gives an usurious Bond, and tenders the whole Money; yet if the Party will take only legal Interest, he shall not forfeit the treble Value by Statute. 4 Leon. 43. On an Information upon the Statute of Usury, he who borrows the Money may be a Witness, after he hath paid the Money. Raym. 191. In Action for Usury, the Statute against Usury must be pleaded, and a corrupt Agreement set forth: It is not sufficient to plead the Statute, and say that for the Lending of 20 l. the Defendant took more than 5 l. per Cent. without setting forth a corrupt Agreement or Contract. Lutw. 466. 2 Lill. 672. 3 Nelf. 514. And in pleading an usurious Contract by way of Bar to an Action, the whole Matter is to be set forth specially, because it lay within the Party's own Privity; but in an Information on the Statute for making such a Contract, it is enough to mention the corrupt Bargain generally, by Reason Matters of this Kind are supposed to be privily transacted; and such Information may be brought by a Stranger. 1 Hawk. 248. In Case of Usury, &c. an Obligor is admitted to aver against the Condition of a Bond, or against the Bond itself, for Necessity's Sake. Pasch. 6 W. & M. B. R. Wager of Law, (Vadiare Legem) Is where an Action of Debt is brought against a Man upon a simple Contract between the Parties, without Deed or Record; and the Defendant swears in Court in the Presence of his Purgators, that he oweth the Plaintiff nothing in Manner and Form as he hath declared: And the Reason of Waging of Law is, because the Defendant may pay the Plaintiff his Debt in private, or before Witnesses which may be all dead, and therefore the Law allows him to wage his Law in his Discharge; and his Oath shall rather be accepted to discharge himself, than the Law will suffer him to be charged upon the bare Allegation of the Plaintiff. 2 Inst. 45. Wager of Law is used in Actions of Debt without Specialty; and also in Action of Detinue, for Goods or Chattels lent or left with the Defendant, who may swear on a Book; and certain Persons with him, that he detaineth not the Goods in Manner as the Plaintiff has declared, and his Compurgators are to be six, eight or twelve of his Neighbours, as the Court shall assign him. Terms de Ley 196. The Manner of Waging Law is thus: He that is to do it, must bring six Compurgators with him into Court, and stand at the End of the Bar towards the Right-hand of the Chief Justice; and the Secondary asks him, whether he will wage his Law? If he answers that he will, the Judges admonish him to be well advised, and tell him the Danger of taking a false Oath; and if he still persists, the Secondary says, and he that Wages his Law repeats after him: Hear this ye Justices, That I A. B. do not owe to C. D. the Sum of, &c. nor any Penny thereof in Manner and Form as the said C. D. hath declared against me: So help me God. Though before he takes the Oath, the Plaintiff is is called by the Crier thrice; and if he do not appear he becomes nonsuited, and then the Defendant goes quit without taking his Oath; and if he appear, and the Defendant swears that he owes the Plaintiff nothing, and the Compurgators do give it upon Oath that they believe he swears true, the Plaintiff is barred for ever; for when a Person has waged his Law, it is as much as if a Verdict has passed against the Plaintiff: If the Plaintiff do not appear to hear the Defendant perform his Law, so that he is nonsuited; he is not barred, but may bring a new Action. 1 Inst. 155. 2 Lill. Abr. 674. In an Action of Debt on a By-Law, the Defendant waged Law; a Day being given on the Roll for him to come and make his Law, he was set on the right Corner of the Bar, and the Secondary ask'd him if he was ready to wage his Law; who answering that he was, he laid his Hand on the Book, and then the Plaintiff was called: Then the Judges admonished him and his Compurgators not to swear rashly; and thereupon he made Oath, That he did not owe the Money modo & forma as the Plaintiff had declared; and then his Compurgators, who were standing behind him, were called, and each of them laying his Right hand upon the Book, made Oath that they believed what the Defendant had sworn was true. 2 Vent. 171. 2 Salk. 682. The Defendant cannot wage his Law in any Action, but personal Actions, where the Cause is secret; and Wager of Law has been denied on hearing the Case, and the Defendant been advised to plead to Issue, &c. Also this Wager of Law being, it is said, abused by the Iniquity of the Times, the Law was forced to find another Way to do Justice, and that was by turning Actions of Debt on simple Contract, &c. into Action upon the Case by Indebitatus Assumpsit, which hath ousted the Defendant of his Ley Gager. 2 Lill. 675, 676.

Ufury

Wagers. By Statute, all Wagers laid upon a Contingency relating to the late War with France, and all Securities, &c. therefore, were declared to be void; and Persons concerned to forfeit double the Sums laid. 7 Ann. cap. 17.

Wages, Is what is agreed upon by a Master to be paid to a Servant, or any other Person which he hires to do Business for him. 2 Lill. Abr. 677. The Wages of Servants, Labourers, &c. is to be assessed by Justices. 5 Elix. cap. 4. 1 Jac. 1. cap. 6. And Justices of Peace may order Payment of Wages for Husbandry, &c. but not in other Cases. Mod. Caf. 204, 205. The Statute of Labourers Wages extends to Covenant Servants in Husbandry; tho' an Order of Justices was quashed in B. R. because made upon the Servant's Oath, without other Evidence. 2 Ld. Raym. 1305. See Servants. Wages of Seamen, vide Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. 1. c. 25.

Waggons. The 22 Car. 2. enacted, That Waggons should not be drawn with more than five Horses in Length, under certain Penalties. By the 6 Ann. cap. 29. Waggons were to be drawn with six Horses, and no more, on Pain of 5 l. But Carriages for drawing Hay, Straw, Coal, Timber, Ammunition, &c. were excepted out of the Statute. And by 5 Geo. 1. c. 12. Waggons travelling in Highways for Hire, shall not be drawn with more than six Horses; and no Cart with above three Horses, on Pain of forfeiting all supernumerary Horses; also travelling Waggons are to have their Wheels bound with Iron, two Inches and a Half broad, at least, or all the Horses shall be forfeited above the Number of Three, &c. In London, &c. Waggons having their Wheels bound with Iron, are not to carry more than 12 Sacks of Meal, one Chalders of Coals, &c. on Pain of forfeiting one of the Horses with the Furniture, &c. Stat. 6 Geo. 1. c. 6. By a late Act, Carts may be drawn with four Horses, for the Convenience of Farmers and others going to Markets, &c. Stat. 16 Geo. 2. cap. 29.

Waifs, (From the Sax. Wafian, Fr. Chose grieve, Lat. Bona Waviata) Are Goods which are stolen and waved, or left by the Felon, on his being pursued, for fear of being apprehended; which are forfeited to the King or Lord of the Manor. Kitch. 81. If a Felon in Pursuit waves the Goods, or having them in his Custody, and thinking that Pursuit was made, for his own Ease and more speedy Flight, flies away and leaves the Goods behind him; then the King's Officer or the Bailiff of the Lord of the Manor, within whose Jurisdiction they are left, who hath the Franchise of Waif, may seize the Goods to the King or Lord's Use and keep them; except the Owner makes fresh Pursuit after the Felon, and sue an Appeal of Robbery within a Year and a Day, or give Evidence against him whereby he is attainted, &c. In which Case, the Owner shall have Restitution of his Goods so stolen and waved. 21 H. 8. cap. 11. 5 Rep. 109. Goods waved by a Felon, in his Flight from those who pursue him, shall be forfeited: And though Waif is generally spoken of Goods stolen; yet if a Man be pursued with Hue and Cry as a Felon, and he flies and leaves his own Goods, these will be forfeited as Goods stolen; but they are properly Fugitives Goods, and not forfeited till it be found before the Coroner, or otherwise of Record, that he fled for the Felony. 2 Haruk. 450. 5 Rep. The Law makes a Forfeiture of Goods waved, as a Punishment to the Owner of the Goods, for not bringing the Felon to Justice: But if the Thief had not the Goods in his Possession, when he fled, there is no Forfeiture: If a Felon steals Goods and hides them, and afterwards flies, these Goods are not forfeited; so where he leaves stolen Goods any where; with an Intent to fetch them at another Time, they are not waved; and in these Cases the Owner may take his Goods where he finds them, without fresh Suit, &c. Cro. Elix. 694. 5 Rep. 109. Moor 785. Waifs and Strays are said to be Nullius in bonis; and therefore they belong to the Lord of the Franchise where found. Briton, cap. 17. We read of Placitum Corona & Waif, in the Manor of Upton, &c. in Com. Salop.

Wain, (Plaustrum) A Cart, Waggon, or Plough to till Land.

Wainable, i. e. That may be ploughed, or manured; Land tillable. Chart. sine dat.

Wainage, (Wainagium) According to Sir Edw. Coke, signifies the Containment of a Villain; or the Furniture of his Cart or Wain. 2 Inst. 28. And the Villain of any other, if he fall into our Mercy, shall be amerced saving his Wainage. Magn. Chart. c. 14. Wainage has been also used for Tillage. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. p. 612. See Gainage.

Waive, (Waivaire) In the general Signification, is to forsake; but is specially applied to a Woman, who for any Crime, for which a Man may be outlawed, is termed Waive. Reg. Orig. 132.

Waiver, Signifies the passing by of a Thing, or a Refusal to accept it: Sometimes it is applied to an Estate, or something convey'd to a Man, and sometimes to a Plea, &c. And a Waiver or Disagreement as to Goods and Chattels, in Case of a Gift, will be effectual. Litt. Sect. 710. If a Jointure of Lands be made to a Woman after Marriage, she may waive this after her Husband's Death. 3 Rep. 27. And an Infant, or if he die, his Heir may by Waiver avoid an Estate made to him during his Minority. 1 Inst. 23, 348. But where a particular Estate is given with a Remainder over, there regularly he that hath it may not waive it, to the Damage of him in Remainder: Though it is otherwise where one hath a Reversion; for that shall not be hurt by such Waiver. 4 Skep. Abr. 192. After Special Issue joined in any Action, the Parties cannot waive it, without Motion of Court. 1 Keb. 225. Wales, (Wallia) Is Part of England on the West-side formerly divided into three Provinces, North-Wales, South-Wales, and West-Wales, and inhabited by the Off-spring of the ancient Britains, chased thither by the Saxons, called in to assist them against the Picts and Scots. Lamb. Stat. Wallia, 12 Edw. 1. England and Wales were originally but one Nation, and so they continued till the Time of the Roman Conquest: But when the Romans came, those Britains who would not submit to their Yoke, betook themselves to the Mountains of Wales, from whence they came again soon after the Romans were drove away by their Dissensions here: After this came the Saxons, and gave them another Disturbance, and then the Kingdom was divided into an Heptarchy; and then also began the Welsh to be distinguished from the English: Yet 'tis observable, that tho' Wales had Princes of their own, the King of England had Superiority over them, for to him they paid Homage. Camd. 67. 2 Mod. 11. The Stat. 28 Ed. 3. c. 2. annexed the Marches of Wales perpetually to the Crown of England; so as not to be of the Principality of Wales. And by the 27 Hen. 8. c. 26. Wales was incorporated to and united with England; and all Persons born in Wales shall enjoy the like Liberties as those born in England, and Lands descend there according to the English Laws: The Laws of England are to be executed in Wales; and the King to have a Chancery and Exchequer at Brecknock and Denbigh: Officers of Law and Ministers shall keep Courts in the English Tongue; and the Welsh Laws and Customs to be inquired into by Commission, and such of them as shall be thought fit continued; but the Laws and Customs of North Wales are saved. By 34 & 35 Hen. 8. cap. 26. A Division of Wales was made into twelve Counties; and a President and Council shall remain in Wales and the Marches thereof, with Officers, &c. Two Justices are to be assign'd to hold a Sessions twice every Year, and determine Pleas of the Crown, and Affises, and all other Actions; and Justices of Peace shall be appointed as in England, &c. The 18 Elix. cap. 8. enacts, That the King may appoint two other Persons learned in the Laws, to be Judges in each of the Welsh Circuits, which had but one Justice before; or grant Commissions of Association, &c. An Office for Inrolments was erected, and the Fees and Proceedings regulated in passing Fines and Recoveries in Wales, by 27 Elix. cap. 9. Persons living in Wales, may give and dispose of their Goods and Chattels by Will, in like Manner as may be done within any Part of the Province of Cambrury or elsewhere. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 38. Jurors returned to try Issues in Wales, are to have 6 l. a Year of Freehold or Copyhold, above Reprises: And none shall be held to Bail in Wales, unless Affidavit be made that the Cause of Action is 20 l. or upwards. 11 & 12 W. 3. cap. 9. In Actions where the Debt, &c. amounts not to 10 l. in the Court of Great Sessions in Wales, the Plaintiff shall sue out a Writ or Process, and serve the Defendant with a Copy eight Days before holding of the said Court, &c. who shall appear at the Return, or before the Third Court; or the Plaintiff may enter an Appearance, and proceed. 6 Geo. 2. c. 14. Waltheam Blacks, In the Reign of K. Geo. 1. there sprung up a Set of desperate Villains called Waltheam Blacks, headed by one whom they stiled K. John; who blacking their Faces, and using other Disguises, robb'd Forests, Parks, and Warrens, destroy'd Cattle, levied Money on their Neighbours, by Threats and Menaces to fire their Houses, and committed divers other Violences and Outrages to the great Terror of the People; but they were suppressed, and declared Felons, by Stat. 9 Geo. 1. c. 22.

Wang, (Sax.) We use for the Cheek, or Jaw where the Teeth are set: Hence Chawer called the Cheek-Teeth or Grinders, Wangs or Wang-Teeth; which is recorded in this old Way of sealing Writings:

I bite the Wax with my Wang-tooth.*

Wanlafs, Or driving the Wanlafs, is to drive Deer to a Stand, that the Lord may have a Shoot; which is one of our ancient customary Tenures of Lands. Blount's Ten. 140.

Wapentake, (From the Sax. Weapon, i. e. Armatura, & tac, tacus) Is all one with what we call a Hundred; specially used in the North Counties beyond the River Trent. Bract. lib. 3. Lamb. The Words seem to be of Danish Original, and to be called so for this Reason; when first this Kingdom, or Part thereof, was divided into Wapentakes, he who was the Chief of the Wapentake or Hundred, and whom we now call a High Constable, as soon as he entered upon his Office, appeared in the Field on a certain Day on Horseback with a Pike in his Hand, and all the chief Men of the Hundred met him there with their Lances, and touch'd his Pike; which was a Sign that they were firmly united to each other, by the Touching their Weapons. Hoveden. Fleta, lib. 2. But Sir Thomas Smith says, That anciently Musters were made of the Armour and Weapons of the several Inhabitants of every Wapentake; and from those that could not find sufficient Pledges for their good Abearing, their Weapons were taken away, and given to others; from whence he derives this Word. *Rep. War, (Bellum) A Fighting between two Kings Princes or Parties, in Vindication of their just Rights; also the State of War, or all the Time it lasts. By our Law, when the Courts of Justice are open, so that the King's Judges distribute Justice to all, and protect Men from Wrong and Violence, it is said to be a Time of Peace: But when by Invasion, Rebellion, &c. the peaceable Course of Justice is stopt, then it is adjudged to be a Time of War: And this shall be tried by the Records and Judges, whether Justice at such a Time had her equal Course of Proceeding or no? For Time of War gives Privileges to them that are in War, and all others within the Kingdom. 1 Inst. 249. In the Civil Wars of K. Char. 1. it was computed that there were not fewer than 200,000 Foot and 50,000 Horse Horle in Arms on both Sides; which was an extraordinary Host, considering it composed of Britains sufficient to have shaken Europe, though it was otherwise fatally employed. And in ancient Times, when the Kings of England were to be served with Soldiers in their Wars, a Knight or Squire that had Revenues, Farmers and Tenants, would covenant with the King by Indenture inrolled in the Exchequer, to furnish him with such a Number of military Men; and those Men were to serve under him, whom they knew and honoured, and with whom they must live at their Return. 1 Inft. 71. This was an excellent Institution; but we have had many Statutes which have alter'd this Method of recruiting the Army, by introducing the Lifting of Soldiers, and retaining them by Virtue of Money paid and advanced, &c. The Statute 25 E. 3. enaiged, That none should be constrain'd to find Men of Arms but by Tenure of Land, or Grant in Parliament. And what Persons are obliged to attend upon the King, when he goes himself in Person to the Wars, &c. Vide 11 H. 7. c. 18. See Law of Arms, and Soldiers.

Ward, (Custodia) Is variously used in our old Books: A Ward in London is a District or Division of the City, committed to the special Charge of one of the Aldermen; and in London there are Twenty-six Wards, according to the Number of the Mayor and Aldermen, of which every one has his Ward for his proper Guard and Jurisdiction. Stow's Surv. A Forest is divided into Wards. Manwood, par. 1. p. 97. And a Prison is called a Ward. Lastly, The Heir of the King's Tenant, that held in Capite, was term'd a Ward, during his Nonage: But this Wardship is taken away by the Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

And although a Warrant of Attorney given by a Man in Custody to confess a Judgment, no Attorney being present, is void as to the Entry of a Judgment; yet it may be a good Warrant to appear and file Common Bail. 2 Lill. Abr. 682. A Warrant of Attorney which warrants the Action, is of Course put in by the Attornies for the Plaintiff and Defendant; so that it differs from a Letter of Attorney, which passes ordinarily under the Hand and Seal of him that makes it, and is made before Witnesses, &c. Warranty, (Warrantia) Is a Promise or Covenant by Deed made by the Bargainor, for himself and his Heirs, to warrant or secure the Bargainee and his Heirs, against all Men for the Enjoying of the Thing granted. Bract. lib. 2. c. 5. West's Symb. par. 1. A Warranty is Real or Personal; Real, when it concerns Lands or Tenements, granted in Fee, or for Life, &c. And real Warranties are either in Deed, as by the Word Warrantizo or Warrant expressly; or in Law, by the Word Dedi, &c. And a Deed of Gift and Exchange, have a Warranty in Law implied. Litt. 697. Sir Edward Coke defines a real Warranty to be a Covenant Real annex'd to Lands, whereby a Man and his Heirs are bound to warrant the same to some other and his Heirs; and that they shall quietly hold and enjoy the Lands, and upon Voucher, or by Writ of Warrantia Charta, to yield other Lands and Tenements to the Value of those that shall be evicted by elder Title: And Warranty being a Covenant real, bindeth to yield Lands in Recompence. 1 Inst. 365, 384. Warranty is also of three Sorts, viz. Warranty Lineal, Warranty Collateral, and Warranty that commences by Disseisin: Warranty lineal is where a Man seised in Fee makes a Feoffment, and binds himself and his Heirs by the Deed to Warranty, and hath Issue a Son and dies, and the Warranty descends to his Son and Heir; for if no Deed with Warranty had been made, then the Right of the Lands should have descended to the Son as Heir to his Father, and he would have conveyed the Descent from Father to Son: This Warranty binds the Right of Fee-simple; but not the Right of an Estate-tail, unless the lineal Warranty be with Assets in Fee-simple. Litt. 697, 703. 1 Inst. 370. Collateral Warranty is when the Party upon whom the Warranty descends, cannot convey the Title which he hath in the Land from him that made the Warranty, or shew that he is his Heir, &c. As if Tenant in Tail discontinues the Tail, or alienates the Land, and then dieth, leaving Issue, and the Uncle of the Issue releases to the Discontinuee with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this is a collateral Warranty to the Issue in Tail, and bindeth his Right, without Assets, it descending upon him, and he can't make a Title to the Intail from his Uncle. Litt. 704. 1 Inst. 373, 376. Warranty by Disseisin, is where one that hath no Right to the Freehold of another, entereth and conveyeth it away with Warranty; which shall not bind or bar the Person disseised, or the right Heir that ought to have the Land: And if where Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, leases for Years with Agreement with the Lessee, that he shall make a Feoffment of the Land, and then he will release with Warranty, which is done accordingly; adjudged that this collateral Warranty commencing by Disseisin, shall not bind the Heir in Tail, upon whom it descended. Litt. 698. 1 Inst. 366, 367. Cro. Car. 483. Accomp. Conv. 1 Vol. 56. He that makes a Warranty, may make it as large, or strait as he pleases; as for himself and his Heirs, and what Heirs, &c. And if the Warranty be made for Life, or in Tail, 'tis good, and shall bind for so long only. 1 Inst. 387. 1 And. 262, 305. But no Warranty can enlarge an Estate granted; for if the Lessor by Deed doth Release to his Lessee for Life, and warrant the Land to him and his Heirs, it shall not make his Estate greater. 1 Inst. 389. And where one binds him and his Heirs to Warranty; by this they are not bound to warrant new Titles, or any Right that commences after Warranty made, but such as were in esse at that Time. Bridgm. 77. If one make an Estate, and grant to warrant the Land, but doth not say for how long; it shall be taken for so long as the Estate to which the Warranty is knit doth last: A Man grants to warrant Lands to another, and says not against what Persons; here it will be held a general Warranty against all Men. 1 Rep. 1. A Warranty may be annexed to Estates of Inheritance or Freehold, and that not only to Houses and Lands, but also Rents, Advowsons, Commons, &c. which issue out of Lands or Tenements. 1 Inst. 366, 389. And to every good Warranty in Deed, to make it binding; the Person that doth warrant must be a Person able; it is necessary that there be some Estate to which the Warranty is annexed, to support it; that the Warranty descend upon him who is Heir of the whole Blood by the Common Law, to him that made it, and not upon another; and that the Heir claim by the same Right as the Ancestor; that it take Effect in the Life-time of such Ancestor; and he be bound thereby; and the Estate of Freehold, which is to be barred, be put to a Right before, or at the Time of the Warranty; and that he to whom the Warranty descends, have then but a Right to the Land. 1 Inst. 367, 370, 384, 388. 10 Rep. 96, 97. If one be a Successor only in Case of a Corporation, he shall not be bound by the Warranty of his Natural Ancestor: And he that comes into Land merely by Act of Law, as the Lord by Escheat, &c. shall never take Advantage of a Warranty; but it is otherwise where the Estate arises by Limitation of Use, or a common Recovery, which is the Act of the Party. 1 Inst. 370. 3 Rep. 62. Though if the Estate the Warranty is annexed to be spent, the Warranty is gone: So if a Feoffment with Warranty be made to two or more, and they being Jointenants, do after by Deed make Partition. But where one enfeoffs two Men and their Heirs, and a Feoffment is made in Fee by one of them; the other may notwithstanding have the Benefit of the Warranty. 10 Rep. 96. 6 Rep. 12. 1 Inst. 385. Two Persons make a Feoffment with Warranty, the Survivor shall not be charged alone, without the Heir of the other; and if both die, the Heirs of both shall be equally bound. 3 Rep. 14. All Warranties before the Statute of Gloucester, which descended to those who were Heirs to the Warrantors, were Bars to the same Heirs to demand any of the Lands; except the Warranty began by Disseisin; That Statute hath ordained, that the Warranty of the Father shall be no Bar to his Son for the Lands which come by the Heritage of the Mother; nor the Warranty of the Mother be binding to the Son for the Lands which come by the Heritage of the Father; but neither the Statute 11 Hen. 7. c. 20. or any other Statute hath provided any Remedy against a collateral Warranty; therefore such Warranty is yet in Force, and shall be a Bar to the Issue in Tail. Litt. Terms de Ley 370, 371. But by the 4 & 5 Ann. for Amendment of the Law, Warranties made by Tenant for Life, of any Lands, coming or descending on him in Reversion or Remainder, shall be void; and all collateral Warranties made of any Lands, &c. by any Ancestor, who hath not an Estate of Inheritance in Possession therein, shall be also void against the Heir. If Lands are held of a Man and his Heirs, by certain Service, without any Clause of Warranty, they are bound to Warranty: But when the Deed is Dedi & concessi, &c. to be holden of the Chief Lord of the Fee, or of others, and not the Feoffors and their Heirs, reserving no Service, and without the aforesaid Clause; here the Heirs of the Feoffor shall not be bound to Warranty. Stat. 4 Ed. 1. A Warranty according to Law is intire, and extends to all the Lands, and is a Bar to every Person on whom it descends; and where several have a Right, jointly or severally, every one of them are barred: Though there is this Difference as to Warranties; where the Entry is gone, and only a Right of Action is left, there a Warranty descending upon the Heir at Law, shall bind: And where there is a Right of Entry, it shall not bind. 8 Rep. 54. 2 Lill. Abr. 684. And if any Person make a Deed with Warranty, by which his Heir should be barred, and after the Warranty is attainted of Felony; his Heir shall not be bound by such Warranty, for it cannot descend upon him, the Blood being corrupted. Litt. If a Warranty descend upon an Infant, it shall not bind him, in Case his Entry into the Lands be lawful; but he must take Care not to suffer a Descent after his full Age, before he hath made his Re entry. 1 Rep. 140. Poph. 71. Warranty may be added to any Conveyance of Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments; as upon Fines, Feoffments, Gifts, Release and Confirmation, &c. And the ancient Form of a Warranty is in this Manner.—Et Ego prefatus A. B. & heredes mei predicti. Messuag. & decem acras terræ cum pertinentiis suis, prefato C. D. heredibus & assignatis suis contra omnes gentes Warrantizabimus in perpetuum per presentes, &c.

Warranty

Warrantia Chartæ, Is a Writ that lieth where a Man is infeoffed of Lands with Warranty, and then he is sued or impleaded. And if the Feoffee be impleaded in Assise, or other Action, in which he cannot vouch or call to Warranty, he shall have this Writ against the Feoffor, or his Heirs, to compel them to warrant the Land

Land unto him, and if the Land be recovered from him, he shall recover as much Lands in Value against the Warrantor, &c. But the Warrantia Charta ought to be brought by the Feoffee depending the first Writ against him, or he hath lost his Advantage. Pl. Be. 134. Terms de Ley 372. 388. And if a Person doth infeof another of Lands by Deed with Warranty, and the Feoffee maketh a Feoffment over, and taketh back an Estate in Fee, the Warranty is determined, and he shall not have the Writ Warrantia Charta because he is in of another Estate: Also where one makes a Feoffment in Fee with Warranty against him, and his Heirs, the Feoffee shall not have a Warrantia Charta upon this Warranty against the Feoffor or his Heirs, if he be impleaded by them; but the Nature of it is to rebut against the Feoffor and his Heirs. Dalt. 48. 2 Lill. Abr. 684. This Writ may be sued forth before a Man is impleaded in any Action, but the Writ doth suppose that he is impleaded; and if the Defendant appear and say, that he is not impleaded, by that Plea he confesseth the Warranty, and the Plaintiff shall have Judgment, &c. and the Party shall recover in Value of the Lands against the Voochee, which he had at the Time of the Purchase of his Warrantia Charta: and therefore it may be good Policy to bring it against him before he is sued, to bind the Lands as he had at that Time; for if he have aliened his Lands before the Voucher, he shall render nothing in Value. New Nat. Br. 298. 299. If a Man recover his Warranty in Warrantia Charta, and after he is impleaded; he ought to give Notice to him against whom he had recovered, of the Action, and pray him to shew what Plea he will plead, to defend the Land, &c. And where one upon a Warranty doth vouch and recover in Value, if he is then impleaded of the Land recovered, he may not vouch again, for the Warranty was once executed. 23 E. 3. 12. In a Warranty to the Feoffee in Land, made by the Feoffor; upon Voucher if Special Matter be shewed by the Voucher, when he entered into the Warranty, viz. That the Land at the Time of the Feoffment was worth only 100*l.* and now at the Time of the Voucher it is worth 200*l.* by the Industry of the Feoffee; the Plaintiff in a Warrantia Charta, &c. shall recover only the Value as it was at the Time of the Sale. Jenk. Cont. 35. If the Voucher can shew Cause why he should not Warrant, that must be Tried, &c.

Form of a Writ de Warrantia Charta.

GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of W. Greeting: Command A. B. that justly, &c. be warrant to C. D. one Messuage with the Appurtenances in S. which he holds, and claims to hold of him, whereas of he hath his Deed or Charter of Feoffment, as he saith; and unless, &c. then Summon the said A. &c.

The Count or Declaration in this Writ.

AB was summoned to Answer C. D. of a Plea, that he warrant to him one Messuage, with the Appurtenances, in S. which he holdeth, and claimeth to hold of him, and whereof he hath his Deed, &c. And whereas the said C. in his proper Person saith, that whereas the said A. was seised of the Messuage aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, in his Demesne as of Fee, and being so thereof seised, by his certain Deed or Charter of Feoffment, whith the said C. brings here into Court, whose Date is the, &c. granted, bargained and sold, released, enfeoffed and confirmed to the said C. the Messuage aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, among other Things, by the Name of, &c. To have and to hold to the said C. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, and bound himself and his Heirs to warrant to the same C. his Heirs and Assigns the Messuage aforesaid, with the Appurtenances; against all Men for ever, by the said Deed, as by the said Deed more fully appears: By Virtue of which Grant, and Deed of Feoffment, the said C. was seised of the said Messuage, with the Appurtenances, in his Demesne as of Fee: and being so seised thereof, one E. D. brought against him the said C. an Assise of Novel Disseisin of the Messuage aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, before Sir F. R. and Sir J. R. Justices of the Lord the King, assigned to take the Assise in the County aforesaid, in which said Assise, then and there depending, the said C. was required, the said A., that he would warrant to him the said C. the Messuage aforesaid, with the Appurtenances; Nevertheless, the said A. hath refused to warrant to the said C. the said Messuage, with the Appurtenances, and still denies to do the same, whereupon the said C. hath sued this Writ, and hath Damages to the Value of Twenty Pounds, and therefore he brings his Suit, &c.

Warrantia Carta. Is an ancient Writ lying where one having a Day assign'd personally to appear in Court to any Action, is in the mean Time employ'd in the King's Service, so that he cannot come at the Day appointed: And it is directed to the Justices to this End, that they neither take nor record him in Default for that Time. *Reg. Warren. (Warrens, from Germ. Warren, i. e. Custodire, or the Es. Garrene) Is a Franchise, or Place privileged, by Prescription or Grant from the King, for the Keeping of Beasts and Fowls of the Warren; which are Hares and Conies, Partridges, Pheasants, and some add Quails, Woodcocks and Water-Fowl, &c. Terms de Ley 589. 1 Inf. 233. A Person may have a Warren in another's Land, for one may alien the Land, and reserve the Franchise: But none can make a Warren, and appropriate those Creatures that are Fera Natura, without Licence from the King, or where a Warren is claim'd by Prescription. 8 Rep. 108. 11 Rep. 87. A Warren may lie open; and there is no Necessity of Inclosing it, as there is of a Park. 4 Inf. 318. If any Person offend in a free Warren, he is punishable by the Common Law, and by Stat. 21 Ed. 3. And if any one enter wrongfully into any Warren, and chase, take or kill any Conies, without the Consent of the Owner, he shall forfeit treble Damages, and suffer three Months Imprisonment, &c. by 23 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. When Conies are on the Soil of the Party, he hath a Property in them by Reason of the Possession, and Action lies for Killing them; but if they run out of the Warren, and eat up a Neighbour's Corn, the Owner of the Land may kill them, and no Action will lie. 5 Rep. 104. 1 Cro. 548. In Waste, &c. against a Lessee of a Warren, the Waste assigned was for stopping Coney-Boroughs; and it was held, that this Action did not lie, because a Man cannot have the Inheritance of Conies; and Action may be brought against him who makes Holes in the Land, but not against him that stops them, by Reason the Land is made better by it. Owen 66. 3 Nels. Abr. 530.

Waste. (Vastum) Is where any Spoil or Destruction is made in Houses, Lands, Woods, &c. by Tenants to the Damage of the Heir, or him in Reversion or Remainder: Whereupon the Writ or Action of Waste is brought for Recovery of the Thing wasted, and Damages. Kitch. 168. Waste in another Signification

tion is taken for those Lands which are not in any Man's Occupation, but lie Common; which are so called, because the Lord cannot make such Profit of them as of other Lands, by Reason of that Use which others have thereof in passing to and fro, &c. but upon this none may build, cut down Trees, or dig, without the Lord's Licence. Co. Litt. And Year, Day and Waste is a Punishment or Forfeiture belonging to Petit Treason and Felony. S. P. C. lib. 3. Waste is said to be voluntary, where the Tenant doth it willingly, as if he pull down the Houses, &c. or Permissive and Negligent, when he suffers it to be done: And the Writ also that is given for Relief, is either in the Tenet, where it is brought against him who hath and continueth in the Estate; or in the Tenuit, being against him that had such an Estate, but now it is ended. 1 Inst. 53, 57. Action of Waste is maintainable against Tenant by the Curtesy, in Dower, for Life, or Years, and treble Damages, recoverable by the Stat. Gloc. 6 Ed. 1. c. 5. And this Action may be brought by the Heir for Waste done in his Ancestor's Time: And be maintain'd by the Reversioner against Tenant for Life or Years, that aliens his Estate to a Stranger, who afterwards commits Waste, such Tenant still receiving the Profits; also by one Tenant in Common against another. 13 Ed. 1. 20 Ed. 1. 11 H. 6. c. 5. At Common Law, there is a Writ of Waste, for Waste done by Tenants in Dower, or by Guardians; and by Statute, the Action of Waste lies against Tenants for Life, or Years, &c. But not against Tenant by Statute-Merchant, Staple or Elegit, they not being Tenants for Years; though Trespass lieth against them, or Covenant for voluntary Waste: It lies not against Tenant after Possibility of Issue extinct; and the Stat. 13 Ed. 1. extends to Jointenants, but not to Coparceners. 1 Inst. 54, 200. 2 Inst. 299. When Action of Waste is brought against any one in the Tenuit, Damages are only to be recovered, and not the Place wasted; but when brought in the Tenet, then both are recoverable. 6 Rep. 44. 3 Nels. Abr. 532. If Tenant by the Curtesy, or in Dower, assign their Estate to another, the Heir shall have Action of Waste against them for Waste done after the Assignment; for notwithstanding the Assignment, the Privy of Estate still remaineth; but if the Heir grant over his Reversion, then the Privy of Estate is gone, and he cannot bring Waste against them. 3 Rep. 9 Rep. 138. Tenant by Curtesy, in Dower, for Life, Years, &c. must answer for the Waste done by themselves, or a Stranger; being left to take their Remedy against the Stranger, if he did Waste. 1 Inst. 54. 2 Inst. 145. If a Lease be made for Life to one, the Remainder in Tail to another, the Remainder in Fee to Lessee for Life; and the Tenant for Life doth Waste, he in the next Remainder may have the Action against him. 1 Rep. 45. A Lease was granted to A. for Life, Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of B. who bargains and sells all his Estate to D. and then A. commits Waste; in this Case D. may not have this Action, because he hath no Estate but for the Life of the Grantor, as to the Remainder in Tail; and the Fee-simple passeth not till the Tail is spent. 1 Leon. 88. 4 Shep. Abr. 230. There is Tenant for Life, the Remainder to another for Years, the Remainder to a third in Fee, or in Tail to him, or a third hath the Reversion; if the Tenant for Life doth waste, Action may be brought against him presently: But 'tis said Execution for the Place wasted, cannot be had till the Lease for Years be ended. 5 Rep. 75. F. N. B. 59. If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life, Remainder in Fee, and Tenant for Life commits Waste; the Remainder man for Life dies, or surrenders his Estate, in the Life-time of Tenant for Life, then and not before, he in Remainder in Fee may bring Waste against Tenant for Life; because there being an intermediate Estate for Life, it is not ad exhereditationem of him in Remainder. 5 Rep. 76. A Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Decease to the Use of A. B. and his Heirs; if the Feoffor commits Waste, it has been held, that the Feoffee shall have a special Writ against him. Hell. 79. In Action of Waste, if the Defendant plead he repaired before the Action brought, 'tis a good Plea, but not afterwards. Jones 144. And this Plea acknowledges a Waste; though by the Plea Non fecit Vastum nothing is admitted. Dyer 276. 2 Larw. 1539. Where the Defendant in a Writ of Waste, loath by Default at the Grand Distress, Inquiry shall be made of the Waste, and to what Damages; but if he loses by Nil dicit, &c. the Waste is acknowledg'd, and it shall not be inquired of. 2 Lill. Abr. 686, 689. Not only all voluntary but permissive Waste is punishable; but this Action ought to be brought by one who hath the immediate Estate and Inheritance in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail; and not by Tenant for Life: Though a Parson may have Action of Waste; and a Tenant by the Curtesy and Heir may join in this Action; and the Tenant shall have Locum Vastum, and the Heir have Damages. If Lessee for Years doth Waste and dieth, an Action of Waste doth not lie against his Executor or Administrator, for Waste done before their Time. Wood's Inst. 304, 548, 1 Leon. 48. Waste may be committed in Houses, by pulling them down, or suffering them to be uncovered, whereby the Timber becomes rotten: But if the House was uncovered when the Tenant entered, it is no Waste in the Tenant to suffer the House to fall down. 1 Inst. 53. 2 Inst. 145. To pull down a House, unless the same be ruinous, and in order to rebuild it of the same Dimensions, is Waste: So it is if the Tenant builds a new House; and if he suffers it to be wasted, it is a new Waste. 1 Inst. 53. But it has been held, that to build a new House is not Waste; though to take Timber, either for the Building or Repairing such a House is Waste. Hob. 234. To permit a House to be burnt by Negligence, &c. if the Tenant do not repair it, 'tis Waste: But if the House be destroyed by Lightning, Tempests, Floods, or Enemies, without any Possibility of the Lessee's Preventing it, this is no Waste in the Lessee. Kelw. 87. 1 Inst. 53. And if the House fall down by Tempest, or be burnt by Lightning, or prostrated by Enemies, or the like, without any Default of the Tenant; or was ruinous at his Coming in, and fall down, the Tenant may build the same again with such Materials as remain, and with other Timber, which he may take growing on the Ground, for his Habitation, and it will be no Waste; but he must not make the House larger than it was: If the House be uncovered by Tempest, the Tenant must in convenient Time repair it, or 'twill be Waste; and though there be no Timber growing upon the Ground, 'tis said the Tenant must at his Peril keep the Houses from Wasting. 1 Inst. 53. To convert a Brew-house into Tenements, although of a greater Value, is Waste: And if a Corn-mill be converted into a Fulling mill, &c. it will be Waste in the Lessee; for Things must be used in their natural and proper Manner, and not be altered. 1 Lev. 309. Cro. Jac. 182. The taking away or breaking down Waincot, Doors, Windows, Benches, or Coppers fixed to the House, is Waste: Though a Distinction has been made between outer Doors, and inner Doors, put up by the Lessee, after the Commencement of his Term; the taking away of one at the End of the Term being adjudg'd Waste, and the other not so. 1 Inst. 53. Moor 177. And although where any of these are fixed by the Lessor it is Waste in the Lessee to take them away; yet when they are set up by the Lessee, it hath been lately held, that they may be taken down by such Lessee before the

End

End of his Term, so as he do not thereby weaken the Freehold; but leave the same in as good Plight as it was at the Time he fixed them. 1 Salk. 368. The Felling of Timber-Trees, whether Oak, Ash, or Elm, or other Trees in some Counties reputed Timber, or Topping them to sell, or any other Intent but for Repairs of the House, it is Waste: It is the same if young Trees are cut where there is other Timber. 1 Inst. 53. Timber is Parcel of the Inheritance, and reserv'd by Law to the Lessor: Therefore if it be cut down by a Lessee, the Lessor may take it away; and the Lessee having an Interest only in Trees while standing, as in the Fruit, Shrowd, Shadow, &c. on this Account if he cuts down Timber-Trees, or doth any other Act whereby they may decay, it is Waste: And if the Lessee has covenanted to leave the Wood in as good Condition at the End of the Term as he found it, the Lessor shall presently have an Action of Covenant for Cutting down the Timber; for now it is not possible for him to perform his Agreement, or to leave the Wood as he found the same: But 'tis otherwise, if during the Term the Lessee doth Waste in Houses; for those may be repaired before the Term expires. 2 Rep. 62. 5 Rep. 11, 21. 7 Rep. 15. If Timber Trees be growing in the Hedges of a Field or Close, and the Lessee cutteth them down, the Field shall not be forfeited in an Action of Waste brought against the Lessee; but if the Trees cut did grow scatteringly throughout the Field or Close, the whole Field is forfeited by Cutting them down. 2 Lill. Abr. 686. Where Waste is done in Woods, so much shall be recovered wherein the Waste is done; and so it is in Houses: Though if the Waste be done here and there through the Whole, all shall be recovered. 1 Inst. 54. 2 Inst. 303. To cut Willows, Beech, Maple Trees, &c. standing in Defence of a House, or planted for Fencing a Manor, is Waste: So the Cutting down of Fruit Trees, if they grow in an Orchard or Garden, although the same be used in Reparations of the House, &c. But it is not so if they grow in a Field. 1 Inst. 53. A Tenant may cut down Underwood; though where the Law hath appointed a Time for Tenant for Life to fell Underwood, and 'tis not done in that Time, if he do it afterwards 'tis Waste: And if a Tenant suffer the young Germins to be destroyed, or stubs them up, it will be Waste; as is likewise Stubbing up a Quickset Hedge, &c. 1 Inst. 53, 88. 3 Nels. Abr. 540. Cutting down green Wood, where there is dry; or more Fire-bote than is necessary, is Waste: But Tenants may take sufficient Wood to repair the Pales, Hedges and Fences; and what is called Plough-bote, Fire-bote, and other House-bote. 1 Inst. 53. The Ploughing of Lands that have not been ploughed up Time out of Mind, is Waste; it is also Waste to plough up Woodlands: Though the letting arable Lands lie unploughed is not Waste. 1 Inst. 53. Dyer 37. It has been observ'd, that if a Tenant converts arable Land into Wood, Wood into arable Land, or Meadow into Arable, Arable into Meadow, or Pasture into Arable; these are Waste: For they not only change the Course of Husbandry, but also the Proof of the Landlord's Evidence of his Estate. 1 Inst. 53. If ancient Meadow Ground, or Brook Meadow is ploughed up, it is Waste: But where Meadow Ground hath been at any Time arable, or sometimes Meadow and sometimes Pasture; it will be no Waste to plough it up. 2 Roll. Abr. 814. A Lessee for Years converted a Meadow into a Hop-Ground, and adjudg'd no Waste; because it may be easily made Meadow again: But converting it into an Orchard is Waste; though it may be more profitable. 2 Leon. 174. It is Waste to suffer a Wall of the Sea to be in Decay, so that the Meadow Ground is surrounded with Water, and rendered unprofitable; though if the Land be overflow'd suddenly by the Violence of the Sea, occasion'd by Tempest, it is not punishable as Waste: The same Law is as to the Repairs of Banks or Walls against Rivers; where the Meadows receive Damage. 1 Inst. 53. The not Scouring of a Mote or Ditch, by Reason whereof the Grounds of the House are rotten, is Waste. Owen 43. The Digging for Lime, Clay, Brick, Earth, Stone, or the like; or Mines of Metal, Coal, &c. hidden in the Earth, and that were not open when the Tenant came in, is Waste: But the Tenant may dig Gravel, Clay, Earth, &c. for Reparations of the House; as well as he may take convenient Timber. 1 Inst. 54. 5 Rep. 12. To destroy Conies, and dig up their Boroughs, is no Waste. Noy 70. Destroying Deer in a Park, Doves in a Dove-house, or Fish in a Pond; or if such sufficient Stores be not left by the Lessee, as he found when he entered on the Land, it is Waste: And so is doing any Thing by which the Lessor is abridg'd of his annual Profits, &c. 1 Inst. 53. Action of Waste lies in any of the foregoing Instances; and before any Waste is done, a Prohibition may be had directed to the Sheriff not to permit it; or he in Remainder, &c. may have an Injunction out of the Chancery to stay the Waste, and enter a House or Lands to see if Waste is committed, &c. F. N. B. 55. 1 Inst. 53. 2 Inst. 146, 306. 11 Rep. 49. The Process incident to Action of Waste, is first a Writ of Summons made by the Curitor of the County where the Land lies, and on the Return of this Writ the Defendant may Essoin, and the Plaintiff adjourn, &c. Then a Pone is to be made out by the Filizer of the County, on the Return of which a Distingas issues for the Defendant to appear, and upon his Appearing the Plaintiff declares, and the Defendant pleads, &c. Or if the Defendant makes Default, a Writ of Enquiry goes to the Sheriff to inquire by the Oath of twelve Jurors, what Damage the Plaintiff hath sustained, and then the Party hath Judgment to recover the Treble of it; also after Judgment entered, a Writ of Seisin is awarded to the Sheriff to give Possession to the Plaintiff of the Place wasted. Comp. Atorn. 250, 251, 258, 259. And a Plaintiff shall have Cofts in all Actions of Waste, where the Damages found do not exceed twenty Nobles, which he could not by the Common Law. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 11. A common Writ of Waste is of this Form. GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of S. Greeting: If A. B. shall secure you, &c. then summon by good Summoners C. D. that he be before our Justices, &c. to shew why, whereas by the Common Council of this Kingdom of England, it is provided, that it shall not be lawful for any Man to commit Waste, Spoil, or Destruction in Lands, Houses, Woods or Gardens to him demised for Term of Life or Years; the said C. in a House, Lands and Woods at W. which he holds for the Term of his Life, of the Demise of the said A. hath made Waste, Spoil, and Destruction, to the Dishonouring of him the said A. and against the Form of the Provision aforesaid, &c.

A Lease, without Impeachment of Waste, takes off all Restraint from the Tenant of doing it; and he may in such Case pull up, or cut down Wood or Timber, or dig Mines, &c. at his Pleasure, and not be liable to any Action. Plowd. 135. But though the Tenant may let the Houses be out of Repair, and cut down Trees, and convert them to his own Use; where a Tenant in Fee-simple made a Lease for Years, without Impeachment of Waste, it was adjudg'd that the Lessor had still such a Property, that if he cut and carried away the Trees, the Lessee could only recover Damages in Action for the Trespas, and not for the Trees: Also it hath been held, that Tenant for Life, without Impeachment of Waste, if he cuts down Trees, is only exempt from an Action of Waste, &c. 11 Rep. 82. 1 Inst. 220. 2 Inst. 146. 6 Rep. 63. Dyer 184. And if the Words are, To hold without Impeachment of any Writ or Action of Waste, the Lessor may seize the Trees, if the Lessee cuts them down; or bring Trover for them. Wood's Inst. 551. The Clause, without Impeachment of Waste, is common in Leases made on Settlements; and on the other Hand it is as common to provide against Waste by by Tenants, where it is not allow'd by Condition, Covenant, &c.

Wassel-Bowl, (From the Sax. Waf-beal, i. e. Health be to you) A large Silver Cup or Bowl, where in the Saxons, at their Entertainments, drank a Health to one another, in the Phrase of Waf-beal: And this Wassel or Waf-beal Bowl, was set at the upper End of the Table in Religious Houses for the Use of the Abbat, who began the Health or Poculum Charitatis to Strangers, or to his Fraternity. Hence Cakes and fine white Bread, which were usually sopped in the Wassel-Bowl, were called Wassel-Bread. Matt. Paris, 141.

Watch, Is to stand Sentry or attend as a Guard, &c. And Watching is properly for apprehending of Rogues in the Night, as Warding is for the Day; and for Default of Watch and Ward, the Township may be punish'd. In all Towns, &c. between the Day of Ascension and Michaelmas-Day, Night-Watches are to be kept, in every City with six Men at every Gate; and six or four in Towns; and every Borough shall have twelve Men to watch, or according to the Number of the Inhabitants of the Place, from Sun-setting to Sun-rising; who are to arrest Strangers suspected, and may make Hue and Cry after them, and justify the Detaining them until the Morning: And Watches shall be kept on the Sea-Coasts, as they have been wont to be. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 4. 5 H. 4. c. 3. Every Justice of Peace may cause these Night-Watches to be duly kept; which is to be composed of Men of able Bodies, and sufficiently weapon'd: And none but Inhabitants in the same Town are compellable to watch, who are bound to keep it in Turn; or to find other sufficient Persons for them, or on Refusal are indictable, &c. Co. Litt. 70. Cro. Eliz. 204. By a late Statute, the Watch of St. James's Parish, and Hanover-Square are regulated; the Vestry to chuse a sufficient Number of Watchmen, and one Beadle for each Ward, and appoint Stands, and what Wages or Allowances shall be made them; and may make Orders for their better Government, &c. The Watchmen shall apprehend all Rogues, Vagabonds, and other Disturbers of the Peace, and deliver them to the Constable of the Night, in order to be carried before a Justice, &c. Weights, (Pondera) and Measures, Are used between Buyers and Sellers of Goods and Merchandise, for reducing the Quantity and Price to a Certainty, that there may be the less Room for Deceit and Imposition. There are two Sorts of Weights in use with us, viz. Troy weight, and Averdupois: Troy weight contains twelve Ounces to the Pound, and no more; by which are weighed Gold, Silver, Pearl, Jewels, Medicines, Silk, Wheat-Bread, &c. and Averdupois contains sixteen Ounces in the Pound, by which Grocers Wares, Copper, Iron, Lead, Flesh, Cheese, Butter, Tallow, Hemp, Wool, &c. are weighed; and here twelve Pounds over are allowed to every Hundred, so as one hundred and twelve Pounds makes the Hundred weight. Dalt. 248. In the Composition of Troy weight, Twenty Penny weights make an Ounce, twenty four Grains a Penny-weight; twenty Mites a Grain, twenty-four Droits a Mite, twenty Perits a Droit, and twenty-four Blanks a Perit: And the Troy weight is said to be 20 s. Sterling in the Pound; and the Averdupois weight 25 s. Sterling. 4 Shap. Abr. 194.

Fleta mentions a Weight, called a Trans-weight, being the same with what we now call Troy weight; and according to the same Author, all our Weights have their first Composition from the Penny Sterling, which ought to weigh thirty two Wheat-Corns of the middle Sort; twenty of which Pence make an Ounce, and twelve such Ounces a Pound; but fifteen Ounces make the Merchant's Pound. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 12. By Magna Charta, 9 H. 3. c. 25. 14 Ed. 3. c. 12. 25 Ed. 3. c. 10. 27 Ed. 3. &c. There is to be but one Weight, &c. throughout the Kingdom; but this is to be understood of the same Species of Goods, otherwise the Troy and Averdupois Weights would not be permitted. Every City, Borough and Town, shall have a common Ballance, with common Weights sealed; on Pain of 10 l. the City, 5 l. the Borough, and 40 s. the Town. 8 H. 6. c. 5. But only Cities and Market-Towns are enjoined to have common Balances, Weights and Measures, by 11 H. 7. c. 4. And by this Statute, Weights are to be mark'd by the Chief Officers of Places, and Sealed, &c. Refusing or delaying to do it, is liable to a Penalty of 40 s. And allowing Weights not agreeable to the Standard, incurs a Forfeiture of 5 l. &c. And the Mayors and such Officers are once a Year to view all Weights and Measures, and burn and destroy those which are defective; also fine the Offenders, &c. And two Justices of Peace have Power to hear and determine the Defaults of Mayors. See the Statutes 17 Car. 1. c. 19. 22 Car. 2. c. 8. &c. and vide Measure.

Will, or Last Will and Testament, (Testamentum, ultima voluntas) Is a solemn Act or Instrument, whereby a Person declares his Mind and Intention, as to the Disposal of his Lands, Goods or Effects, and what he would have done after his Death. Co. Litt.

111. The Common Law calls that a Will when Lands or Tenements are given; and where it concerns Goods and Chattels alone, it is term'd a Testament: In a Will of Goods there must be an Executor appointed, but not of Lands only without Goods; an Executor having nothing to do with the Freehold. 1 Inst. 111. If Lands are given by Will, it is called a Devise; and Goods and Chattels a Legacy: And there is this Diversity between Lands and Goods given by a Will, that when Lands are devised in Fee, or for Life, the Devisee shall enter without the Appointment of others: In Case of Goods and Chattels there must be the Assent of the Executor, &c. Swinb. 24. If Lands are given and devised by Will, the Will ought to be proved in the Chancery; and of Goods it must be in the Spiritual Court: A Will both of Lands and Goods, may be proved in the Spiritual Court. Ibid. A Will hath not Force till after the Testator's Decease; but then without any further Grant, Livery, &c. it gives and transfers Estates, and alters the Property of Lands and Goods, as effectually as any Deed or Conveyance executed in a Man's Life-time; and hereby Descents may be prevented, Estates in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, or Years, &c. be made: And he that takes Lands by Devise, is in Nature of a Purchaser. Litt. 167. A Devisee is in by Act executed in the Devisor's Life time, though it be not consummated till his Death. Roll. Rep. And therefore a Devise shall take Effect, before a Descent: But an Heir may be in the Land by Descent, notwithstanding a Devise made to him; and to give a Thing by Will to such a Person to whom the Law gives it, is as if it had not been given. 2 And. 11. Moor, Ca. 496. Styles 149. Three Things are requisite to the Perfection of a Will; First, The

The Inception, which is the Writing of it; Secondly, The Progression, being the Publication thereof; and Thirdly, The Consummation of it, which is the Death of the Party. 1 Inst. 113. But such an Estate as by the Rules of the Law may not be conveyed by Act executed in a Man's Life, shall not be created, or conveyed by Will; as to make a Perpetuity, &c. 1 Rep. 85. Dyer 12, 33. A Devise may be of Lands, Goods, or Chattels, simply or absolutely, or conditionally; and be also with a Limitation: And a Rent may be devised, or Land reserving a Rent, with Clause of Distress. 4 Skep. Abr. 20. At Common Law a Man could not devise by Will, the Lands which he had by Descent, though he might those which he had by Purchase; indeed he might devise Lands which he held for a Term of Years, because such an Estate is of little Regard in the Law; but not Lands of which he had the Fee-simple in Possession or Reversion: Yet in certain Borough Towns, the Inhabitants might devise the Houses and Lands, which they had by Descent; and this was a Privilege which they claim'd by the Custom of those Places. 3 Nelf. Abr. 550. By the Common Law, if a Man sole seized of Lands in Fee, had devised the same by Testament, this Devise was void; unless the Lands were in some City or Borough where Lands were devisable by Custom: But by Statute 32 & 34 H. 8. c. 5. All Persons having a sole Estate in Fee-simple, of any Lands, Tenements, &c. may give and devise the same by Last Will and Testament, at their free Will and Pleasure; though if any Part of the Lands be held in Capite of the King, then the Party can devise but two Thirds of the Whole, the other Third being to descend to the Heir at Law, to answer the Duties of the Crown, &c. But the Tenure in Capite being abolished by 12 Car. 2. Devises are now good for the whole Lands. Jenk. Cent. 260. One seized in Coparcenary, or as Tenant in Common, in Fee-simple, of Lands, may by Will devise them at their Pleasure by this Statute: But Lands intailed are not devisable, only Fee-simple Lands, and Goods and Chattels; and Wills made by Infants, Feme Coverts, Ideots, Persons of Nonfane Memory, are not good in Law. Stat. Ibid. 3 Rep. 30. A Person that hath an Estate-Tail in Land, with the Reversion in Fee-simple, cannot devise the Lands in Fee to another, though he should die not having Issue; but it is held he may give Lands by Will to a Charity, and without either Fine levied, or a Recovery. Abr. Cas. Eq. 172. If an Infant makes his Will for Lands, and when of Age he declares it as his Will, yet it is void; though an Infant at fourteen Years of Age may make a Will of his Goods and Chattels. 1 Inst. 89. 2 Lill. Abr. 696. A Feme Sole makes a Will, and gives her Lands to A. B. whom she afterwards marries; by this the Will is countermanded, for otherwise she could not after Marriage revoke it; and if she dies in his Life-time, whilst Feme Covert, the Devise is void. 4 Rep. 60. A Feme Covert cannot make a Will; but the Husband may bind himself by Covenant or Bond to permit his Wife by Will to dispose of Legacies, &c. and this will be such an Appointment as the Husband will be bound to perform; though it is properly no Will, nor ought to be prov'd in the Spiritual Court: Of Things in Action, or of what the Wife hath as her own as Executrix, by her Husband's Consent, 'tis said, she may make a Will; and this is a Will in Law; If in other Cases, she disposes of any Thing by the Consent and Agreement of the Husband, the Property passes from him to her Legatee; and it is as the Gift of her Husband. Cro. Eliz. 27. Cro. Car. 219, 220. 1 Mod. 211. 2 Danv. Abr. 512. If there be an Agreement before Marriage that the Wife may make a Will; if she do so, 'tis good, unless the Husband disagrees; and his Consent shall be implied till the contrary appear: And if the Husband would not have such Will to stand, he ought presently after the Death of his Wife to shew his Dissent; and where after her Death he doth consent, he can never afterwards dissent; also his Assent is good in Law, though he know not the particular Bequests in the Will. 2 Mod. Rep. 172, 173. It is not sufficient that a Person hath his Memory to answer Questions, when he makes his Will; he ought to have a perfect Memory, and Understanding: But if some Witnesses swear that the Testator was of good and perfect Mind and Memory, and others that he was not; their Testimony is to be preferred, which depose that he was of sound Memory, for the Support of the Testament. 6 Rep. 23. Cro. Jac. 497. A Scrivener who wrote the Will, and two others were Witnesses; the Scrivener swore the Testator was Compos mentis, and the two others that he was not Compos; and the Court stopt these two, being suspected to have been dealt with, till the Verdict was brought in, which found the Will a good Will, and then committed the two Witnesses in order to be prosecuted for Perjury. Skinn. Rep. 79. If there are only three Witnesses to a Will, and one of them has a Devise of Lands, &c. with respect to this Devise, the Will is void, and attested but by two Witnesses, &c. Carthew 514. The Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. for Prevention of Frauds, ordains, That all Devises of Lands or Tenements shall be in Writing, signed by the Devisor or some other by his express Directions, in the Presence of three credible Witnesses at least; and no Will in Writing shall be revoked, but by some other Will in Writing, or by cancelling the same by the Testator himself, or by his Directions, &c. And where Nuncupative Wills by Word of Mouth only, are made for the Disposition of Chattels above 30 l. Value, they must be declared in the Presence of three Witnesses; in the last Sickness of the Party, &c. and the Substance thereof must be committed to Writing, in six Days, &c. It hath been formerly adjudg'd, if a Man bids another make his Will, and before it is done he dies, the Will is not good; but if it be drawing up in his Presence, it might be good for the Devises finished. Plowd. 10. And if any Attorney takes Notes of a Will before Witnesses, when a Person is in his last Sickness, and before the Will is perfected such Person dieth, the Will made from the Instructions may be a good Will, though the Testator did not live to sign it. 3 Nelf. Abr. 550. A Man being sick said before Witnesses, that he devised all his Lands to his Wife for Life, &c. and wished that a certain Person was there to make his Will; who being sent for wrote the Will from the Mouth of the Witnesses that heard the Testator declare his Mind; and this Will being lost, a Copy was produc'd and testify'd to be of the same Effect: It was held in this Case, that an actual Devise by Word, is not sufficient for a Stranger to write a Will, but that there ought to be a Writing, and not only a Desire; but the writing this Will from the Mouth of the Witnesses, was a good Will in Writing: That if a Will be found in Writing after the Death of the Testator, and 'tis lost or burnt afterwards, it is good, if it can be prov'd by Copy; otherwise, if lost or burnt before he died, for then 'tis void. Allen 54. 3 Nelf. 552. The Testator, if he be at that Time of sane Memory, may desire another Person to set his Hand and Seal to his Will for him, and if he do it the Will is good. 2 Lill. Abr. 693. And since the Statute 29 Car. 2. a Will was made by which Lands were devised, and no Name subscribed to it, but being sealed in the Presence of three Witnesses was adjudged a good Will: for the Will was written by the Party himself, and his Name in the Will, which was held a sufficient Signing. 3 Lev. 1. And it is said a Will in Writing signed may be good to convey Lands, altho' it be not sealed; the Statute of Wills speaking nothing of Sealing; 2 Danv. Abr. 542. Where three subscribing Witnesses nesses are to a Will, it is sufficient though one of them on the Trial will not swear that he saw the Testator seal and publish it; if it be proved that he set his Name as a Witness to the Will. Skin. 413. If a Will is published before three Witnesses, and it be at several Times, it is good. Preced. Chan. 184. A Will of Copyhold Lands surrendered, shall be good though attested only by one Witness; and the Reason is, because it passes by the Surrender, and not the Will, to make a Title. 2 Vern. 700. A Man makes a Will in divers Pieces of Paper, and there are three Witnesses to the last Paper, and none of them aver they saw the first, this is not a good Will. 3 Mod. 263. As to the Subscribing of Witnesses, it is enough that the Testator might see them; it is not absolutely necessary that he should see them do it; so that it may be in another Room in the View of the Testator, or where the Testator is sick in Bed, and the Curtain drawn. 2 Salk. 688. Lands purchased after making a Will, cannot pass; for the Testator ought to have the Lands at the Time of the Making: But it hath been held, that a new Publication of the Will shall make the Lands pass; and if such Lands are devised for Payment of Debts, &c. Chancery will make the Devise good, without new Publication of the Will. 1 Inst. 111. Plowd. 343. 3 Rep. 25. 2 Chan. Rep. 144. A Testator devised by Will all Lands, Tenements, and Estate whatsoever, whereof at the Time of his Death he should be possessed; and after this he purchas'd Lands, &c. And it was resolv'd, that a Devise of personal Things is good, though the Testator had them not at the Time of his Will; but a Chattel Real, as a Lease for Years, doth not pass: And a Devise of Lands is not good, if the Testator had nothing in them at the Time of making his Will. Gouldsb. 93. 1 Salk. 237. Where after the Will is made a Person annexes a Codicil thereto; or delivers it some time after, and says it shall be his last Will; or if he says, that his Will is in a Box, in such a Chamber, &c. either of these amount to a sufficient Publication, to make Lands pass newly purchased. 1 Roll. Abr. 618. 2 Vern. 209. Though Land bought after making of a Will, passes not by the Devise of all the Land a Man shall have at his Death, it not being within the Statute of Wills, for he is no Person having: Yet if there be Articles for a Purchase, and the Purchaser makes his Will and dies before any Conveyance is executed, there the Lands shall go in Equity to the Devisee: So if any Land be conveyed during one's Life, though he was not seized thereof at the Time of making his Will, and although there be no new Publication. 1 Chan. cas. 39. If one devise to a Person by Will all his Lands and Tenements, not only all the Lands that he hath in Possession do pass, but all those he hath the Reversion of: But where a Man having Lands in Fee, and other Lands for Years, devises all his Lands and Tenements, the Fee simple Lands only pass; though if he hath only Leases for Years, and no Fee-simple Lands, by the Devise of all his Lands and Tenements the Leases for Years pass, otherwise the Will would be to no Purpose. 2 Danv. Abr. 527. The Testator was seized of an House in A. and of an House and Lands in B. and devised to W. R. his House in A. with all and singular his Lands, Meadows, &c. in B. and adjudg'd that his House in B. shall not pass; for though by a Feoffment of Land the Houses will pass, Wills are to be taken according to the Intent of the Testator; and here the particular Devise of the Lands, Meadows, &c. excludes the general Intendment of the Word Terra, which comprehends both Houses and Lands. 2 And. 123. 1 Nelf. Abr. 652. Words in Wills are always construed according to the Intention of the Parties that make them, as near as can be collected; and may have different Construction from those in other Deeds; but the Words and Intent must agree with the Law; and if the Words are insensible and repugnant, they are void. 1 Inst. 25. Plowd. 162. Hob. 34. And the Reason why the Construction of Wills is more favoured in Law than any other Deed or Conveyance, to fulfil the Intent of the Testator, is because the Testator is intended to be inops Concilii, and in a Hurry; and a Devise is not a Conveyance by the Common Law, but by the Statute: The Devises before the Statutes were by Custom, and as Custom enabled Men to dispose of their Estates contrary to the Common Law; so it exempted this Kind of Conveyance from the Regularity and Propriety required in other Conveyances: And thus it came to pass that Wills upon the Statute, in Imitation of those by Custom, gained such favourable Construction. 3 Salk. 127, 128. A Devise by Will to a Man and all his Blood, passes a Fee simple: So a Devise to a Person in perpetuum, or to one and his Assigns for ever; but in a Grant it would be only an Estate for Life, for want of the Word Heirs. Litt. 586. Vaugb. 178. Devise of all a Man's Inheritance carries the Fee simple: Also Lands given to a Person to dispose of at Pleasure, makes a Fee-simple. Hob. 75. 1 Salk. 228. 2 Nelf. 837. If a Man devises that A. B. shall be Heir of all his Land, and the Devisor hath Fee, he shall have Fee: But if there are no Words of Inheritance in the Will, the Devisee hath no more than an Estate during Life. Mod. cas. 107. 2 Nelf. Abr. 745. 746. By Devise to a Person and his Heirs Male, an Estate tail is created; though such a Gift in any other Conveyance would be a Fee simple, it not being said of what Body. 1 Inst. 27. If I give by Will my Manor of D. to my eldest Son, and also all my Lands in S. in Tail; the Entail limited for the Land in S. shall not extend to the Manor: But if the Words be, I Devise my Manor of D. and Lands in S. to my Son in Tail, there it shall be an Estate tail in both. Hughes's Abr. 643. Land is devised to A. B. and the Heirs Males of his Body, and if it happen that he die without Heir of his Body, that it shall go to another and his Heirs; by this A. B. hath an Estate to him and his Heirs Males, and the subsequent Words do not alter it. Dyer 171. If a Man devises his Land he hath in Fee to a Person, paying 10*l.* to J. R. although no Estate is expressed, yet he shall have it in Fee; if the Intent of the Testator does not appear to be otherwise. Bro. 406, 125. But where a Person by Will gives Lands in D. to the Intent, that with the Profits the Devisee shall bring up a Child, or pay to A. 10*l.* or so much Yearly; by this, such Devisee has only an Estate for Life. Bro. 78. 3 Rep. 20. 6 Rep. 18. So it is in Case of a Devise to one without any more Words; or to him and his Heir in the singular Number, &c. Fitz. Devise 16. 6 Rep. 16. A Devise to the eldest Daughter of Land, and that she pay unto the younger Sister yearly 20*l.* is a Conditional Estate; and for Non-payment, the younger Sister may enter. 3 Cro. 146. If one Devise his Lands to J. S. after the Death of T. D. his Son and Heir apparent, by this T. D. will have an Estate for Life implied, and it shall descend to him until the Devise take Effect. 4 Shep. Abr. 40. A Man devises Land to his Son and Heir in Fee simple, or to a Stranger for Years, Remainder to the Son and Heir in Fee; if the Heir after the Death of the Devisor, doth, as he may, refuse the Estate given by the Will, and claim the Land by Discent; by this the Devise will be void: But if the Devise be made to the Son and Heir in Tail, with Remainder to another in Fee, there he may not take it in any other manner. Plowd. 545. Dyer 317, 350. A Devise to one who is Heir for Life, Remainder in Contingency, &c. is good: And Devises to Infants in Ventre sa mere are good, and the Land shall descend to the Heir in the mean Time; for the Testator could not intend they should take presently, they must be first in rerum natura. Lutw. 798. Raym. 28. 2 Mod. 292. Where a Term for Years is devised by Will to A. for Life, with Remainder to B. this Remainder is good by way of Executory Devise for the Residue of the Term. Raym. 164. And a Term may be devised to one for Life, with Remainders to several others for Life, where all the Persons are in esse; but if a Devise in Remainder be to one for Life, who is not then in Being, there no Limitation of a Term may be beyond it. 1 Sid. 451. Devise of a Term to one for Life, and if he dies without Issue, to another and his Issue, &c. is void to the Remainder Man. 1 Lev. 290. A Chattel Personal cannot be given to one for Life, with Remainders to others; though the Use may be given by Will to one during Life; and the Thing itself afterwards to another. Noy Max. 31, 99. Devises may be to one, to the Use of another, and the Use shall be executed. 2 Edm. One by Will devised, that after his Death A. and B. his Feoffees and their Heirs, when they were no Feoffees, should be seised to such Uses; and it was held a good Devise. Benll. 188. Though if there be a Condition in a Will, that a Man shall not marry a Person, &c. or a Woman marry, without Consent, &c. and the Legacy be not devised over to another; these Conditions are void, for Marriages ought to be free. 1 Mod. 308. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1162. A Devise must be not only of a Thing, but to a Person certain; and a Devise to a Man who shall marry my Daughter, or to a Man and his Children, is certain enough. Swinb. 293. If where a Legacy is given by Will, the Legatee dies before it becomes due, the Legacy is extinguished and gone. A Man devises 500 l. to his Daughter by Will, if she attain 21 Years of Age; in this Case, if she dies before that Age the Legacy is gone: But if the Devise had been to be paid her at the Age of 21, then it is debitum in presenti, & solvendum in futuro, and her Administrator, &c. shall have it, if she die before 21. 1 Lill. Abr. 457. The Testator devised a Sum of Money to a Woman at her Age of 21, or Day of Marriage, and then added these Words, To be paid her with Interest; she died unmarried, and before she was 21 Years old; and it was held that the Money should go to her Administrator; but if those Words had not been added, it would have been otherwise; and so if the Money had been devised to her, when the came of Age, &c. 2 Ventr. 342. Where one devises a certain Portion to his Daughter, chargeable upon Lands, and payable at the Age of 21 Years, and the Daughter dies before, the Money shall sink in the Land, for the Benefit of the Heir at Law; here if no Time were limited for Payment, or if it were only a Sum of Money generally devised by the Will, it would go to the Executors, &c. of the Daughter. 1 Vern. 204. 2 Vern. 92. A Lease was settled by the Father, with Reference to his Will, in which he gave 500 l. to each of his Daughters, to be paid at the Age of 21 Years, and if any or all died before that Age, then to others; but devised no Maintenance to them till their Portions became payable: Et per Cur. A Maintenance cannot be decreed, because of the Devise over. Ch Rep. 249. If a Man in his Will releases all his Lands in C. to A. B. and his Heirs; it is good; but one cannot release a Debt or Duty by Will, though he may give and bequeath it. 1 And. 33. 1 Ventr. 39. Things in Action, as Debts and the like, although they are not grantable by Deed, may be devised by Will: But if it be a Thing in Action altogether uncertain, as where one hath Cause of Action, to compel a Man to Account, &c. this may not be devised. Perk. Sett. 517. See 2 Cro. 371. Plowd. 525. Those Things that are annexed and incident to a Freehold or Inheritance, so that they cannot be severed from it; such as the Waincot, and Glafs of Houses, or the like, are not Devisable, but where the Thing itself is so. Kelw. 88. A Devise in a Will of the Use and Occupation of Lands, is a Devise of the Land itself; but 'tis otherwise of Goods, for one may have the Occupation, and another the Property of them. March. 106. If one Devise all his Moveables, by this are given all Personal Goods both quick and dead, which either move themselves, or may be moved; as Horses, Plate, &c. and by Devise of Immoveables, do pass Leases, Rents, Grass, &c. 4 Shep. Abr. 39. A Man gives by Will all his Money in such a Chest, when there is none there; it is a void Devise: But if one give 10 l. remaining in a certain Chest, where in Truth there is but 5 l. this will be a good Devise of that Sum: And Error and Mistake in the Quantity and Quality of the Thing devised, where the same for the Substance of it is certain enough, will not hurt a Will. Swinb. 281. If Lands are devised to A. and his Heirs, and he dieth in the Life of the Devisor, the Heir cannot take the Estate, because nothing was ever in the Ancestor. 1 Peere Williams 398, 400. But where a Devise in a Will is to A. for Life, Remainder to B. and A. dies in the Testator's Life time, B. shall take presently: And if the Devise of Lands be to two Persons, and one so dieth, the other shall have the whole. Salk. 238. 2 Peere Williams 331. It is a Rule that where ever a Testator by his Will has not given an Estate, or but Part thereof, the Remainder undisposed of descends to the Heir, whether it was the Testator's Intent he should have it or not; for some Body must take, and none being appointed by the Testator, the Law throws it upon the Heir. Talb. Cas. 52. The Last Will shall stand in Force; (but if two Wills are made both of one Date, they are both void: And if in a Will there are two Devises of the same Thing, the last Devise shall take Place; for as a latter Will doth overthrow a former, so the latter Part of a Will overthrows the former Part of it. 1 Inst. 112. Plowd. 341. It has been adjudg'd, that where there are several Devises of the same Thing in one Will, the last must take Place: But where the Devise was of Lands to one in Fee, and in the same Will the same Lands were devised to another, this 'twas said made them Jointtenants; and if a Devise of Lands is to one Person in Fee, and to another for Life, or Years, both may stand. 3 Leon. 11. A Testator having devised all his Lands, to A. in Tail, and in the same Will devised Part of his Lands to B. This latter Clause was held an Explanation, viz. That A. should have all the Lands, except those devised to B. who shall take by way of Remainder after the Death of A. without Issue; but it would not have been so if the Devise had been to A. in Fee-simple, and afterwards Part of the Lands was devised to B. in Fee, because one Fee-simple cannot be limited after another. Telw. 209. 1 Nelf. Abr. 654. It hath been held, that a subsequent Will may be made so as not to Revoke or Destroy, but consist with a former; for the Testator may have several Parcels of Land, which he may devise to several Persons by several Wills, and yet all stand together: When a Man hath made a Disposition of any Part of his Estate, 'tis a good Will as to that Part; so likewise the Disposal of every other Part: They are several Wills, but taken altogether, they are an intire Disposition of the whole Estate: Though they were urged to be but Pieces of the Whole, otherwise they must be Codicils. 3 Mod. Rep. 204, 207, 209. When a Testator is moved to make his Will by Fear and Threatning, or circumvented by Fraud, &c. it will be void, or in Danger of being avoided: And if one makes a Will, by the Importunity of his Wife, to the Intent he may be at quiet, and not vexed and troubled by her; it shall be adjudg'd to be made by Constraint, and not good. 4 Shep. Abr. 13. A Will of a Real Estate, 'tis said cannot be set aside in a Court of Equity for Imposition, but must first be tried at Law: But it is likewise held, there may be Fraud in obtaining the Will; of which no Advantage can be taken by Law, that shall be releivable in Equity. 2 Vern. Rep. 700. There is some Difference observed between a Deed and Will, where gained from a weak Man, upon a false Representation; the Chancery will make void the first, when it is without valuable Consideration, but not a Man's Will, which is revocable. 2 Peere Williams 270. A Deed was made between a Father and Son, by which the Father agreed to give the Son so much, and he was to pay such Debts and Sums of Money; and there were some Expressions resembling those in a Will; as that the Father was sick of Body, and did give all his Goods and Chattels, &c. But the Writing was Sealed and delivered as a Deed: This being given in Evidence, and that he intended it for his Last Will, the Court held the same to be Proof of a Will. 1 Mod. 170. In the well-making of a Will, it is good to observe these Rules; That it be done in perfect Memory, and by good Advice; let there be two Parts of it, one whereof to remain in the Hands of the Party as made it, and the other with some Friend, that it may be the less liable to be suppress'd after the Testator's Death; and let the Whole be written in one Hand-writing, and if it may be, in one Sheet of Paper or Parchment; but if there be more Sheets than one, let the Testator sign and seal every Sheet of the same before the Witnesses present at the Execution. A Testator has Power, notwithstanding the Will, to give away during his Life, any Part of his Estate, &c. See Estate, Executor, Revocation, &c.

Form of a Will of Lands, and Goods, Terms of Years, &c.

IN the Name of God, Amen. I A. B. of, &c. being weak in Body, but of sound and perfect Mind and Memory, (Blessed be God) do this Day and Year, &c. make and publish this my Last Will and Testament in manner following, (viz.) First, I give to my Son J. B. the Sum of 500 l. Also, I give to my Daughter M. B. the Sum of 400 l. Also, I give to my dear Wife E. B. the Sum of 300 l. &c. to be paid unto them respectively, within six Months next after my Decease. Also, I give all that my Messuag' or Tenement, with the Appurtenances situate, &c. wherein I now live, to my said Son J. B. To hold to him during his Life, and from and after his Decease I give the same to my Daughter M. B. during the Remainder of my Estate and Interest therein. Also, I give and bequeath unto my loving Brother T. B. of, &c. and L. D. of, &c. all that my Leasehold Estate, situate in, &c. To hold to them the said T. B. and L. D. their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, from and immediately after my Decease, for and during the Rest and Residue then to come and unexpired of the Term to me therein granted; Upon this Trust and Confidence, that they the said T. B. and L. D. and the Survivor of them, and the Executors and Administrators of such Survivor, do and shall permit and suffer her my said Wife E. B. to have, hold and enjoy all my said Leasehold Estate to them given as aforesaid, and to receive and take to her own Use and Bechoof, the Rents, Issues, and Profits thereof, for and during so much of the Term to me therein granted, as shall run out and expire in the Life-time of her my said Wife; And after her Decease, upon this further Trust and Confidence, that they the said T. B. and L. D. and the Survivor of them, and the Executors and Administrators of such Survivor, do and shall out of the Rents, Issues, and Profits arising from my said Leasehold Estate, well and truly pay, or cause to be paid unto my said Daughter M. B. or her Assigns, for and during so much of the said Term to me therein granted, as shall run out and expire in the Life-time of her my said Daughter, the yearly Annuity or Sum of 60 l. at the two most usual Feasts, &c. by even and equal Portions; The first Payment thereof to be made at such of the said Feasts which shall first and next happen after the Decease of my said Wife: And upon this further Trust and Confidence, that they the said T. B. and L. D. and the Survivor of them, &c. do and shall permit and suffer my said Son J. B. his Executors, Administrators, and Assigns, to have, hold and enjoy all such my said Leasehold Estate; (charged with the said Annuity of 60 l. per Ann. payable to my said Daughter) and to receive and take the Overplus of the Rents, Issues and Profits thereof, to his and their own proper Use and Benefit, from and immediately after my said Wife's Decease, for and during all the Rest, Residue, and Remainder of the Term to me therein granted, which shall be then to come and unexpired. Also, I give all those my Freehold Lands in the Parish of, &c. now in the Possession of, &c. to my Wife E. B. To hold to her during her natural Life, for making no Waste or Destruction thereupon; and from and after her Decease, I give and devise the same to my said Son J. B. for the Term of his natural Life; and after his Decease, I devise the same to my Daughter M. B. during her natural Life; and after the Determination of that Estate, I give and devise the same to the said T. B. and L. D. and their Heirs during the Life of my said Daughter M. to the Intent to preserve and support the contingent Uses and Remainders herein after limited; but nevertheless in Trust, to permit my said Daughter M. to receive the Rents and Profits thereof during her Life; and from and after the Decease of my said Daughter M. then to remain to the first Son of my said Daughter M. and the Heirs of the Body of such first Son lawfully issuing; and for Default of such Issue, then to the Use and Bechoof of the second, third, fourth, fifth, and all and every other Son and Sons of my said Daughter M. begotten; the Elder of such Son and Sons, and the Heirs of his Body lawfully issuing, to be always preferred, and to take before the Younger of such Sons, and the Heirs of his Body; and for Default of such Issue, then I give the same to S. B. of, &c. for and during the Term of his natural Life; and after his Decease, to remain to his Issue in Tail in such Manner as I have limited the same to my Daughter M. and for Default of such Issue, then to remain to, &c. and the Heirs Male of his Body begotten, &c. And for Default of such Issue, to remain to my own right Heirs for ever. And all the rest of my Lands and Tenements whatsoever, whereof I shall die seized or possessed, I give to my said Son J. B. his Heirs and Assigns for ever. Also, I give to, &c. ten Guineas a-piece to buy them Mourning. Also I give to my Servant Man and the two Servant Maids that shall be living with me at the Time of my Decease, ten Pounds a-piece. Also, I give to the Poor of the Parish where I shall die, the Sum of twenty Pounds. Also, All the Rest and Residue of my Goods, Chattels and Personal Estate, I give to my said Wife E. B. And I make and ordain her my said Wife sole Executrix of this my Will, and the said T. B. and L. D. Overseers thereof, to take Care and see the same performed according to my true Intent and Meaning; and for their Pains herein, I give and allot to each of them the Sum of, &c. In Witness whereof, I the said A. B. have to this my Last Will and Testament set my Hand and Seal, the Day and Year above written.

Signed, Sealed, Published and Declared by the said A. B. the Testator, as and for his Last Will and Testament, in the Presence of us who were present at the Signing and Sealing thereof,

Witbernam, (From the Sax. Witber, i. e. altera, or, as some say, contra, & Nam, captio) Is where a Distress is driven out of the County, and the Sheriff upon a Replevin cannot make Deliverance to the Party distrained: In this Case the Writ of Witbernam is directed to the Sheriff, for the taking as many of his Beasts or Goods that did thus unlawfully distrain, into his Keeping till the Party make Deliverance of the first Distress, &c. It is a Taking or Reprisal of other Cattle or Goods, in lieu of those that were formerly unjustly taken and esloined, or otherwise withheld. F. N. B. 68, 69. 2 Inf. 140. Stat. West. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 2. This Writ is granted on the Return of the Sheriff upon the Alias and Pluries in Replevin, that the Cattle, &c. are esloined, by Reason whereof he cannot replevy them; and it appears by our Books, that the Sheriff may award Witbernam on Replevin sued by Plaintiff, if it be found by Inquest in the County, that the Cattle were esloined according to the Bailiff's Return, &c. Though upon the Witbernam awarded in the County Court, if the Bailiff doth return that the other Party hath not any Thing, there shall be an Alias and Pluries, and so infinite, and no other Remedy there: But on a Witbernam returned in the King's Bench, or Common Pleas, if the Sheriff return that the Party hath not any Thing, &c. a Capias shall issue against him, and Exigent and Outlawry. New Nat. Br. 166. In Replevin, &c. the Sheriff returns Averia elongata sunt by the Defendant; thereupon a Writ of Witbernam is awarded; and if he return Nihil, the Plaintiff proceeds to Outlawry by Alias and Pluries Cap. in Witbernam, and so to Exigent: And there is some Difference where the Defendant appeareth upon the Return of the Pluries Capias, pias, and when he stays longer, and appears on the Return of the Exigent and not before; for in the first Case his Cattle shall not be taken in Witbernam, but he must find Pledges to make Deliverance, or be committed; and in the last Case, he shall not only find Pledges for making Deliverance, but shall be fined, and his Cattle may be taken in Witbernam: In both Cases, the Plaintiff may declare for the unjust Taking, and yet detaining of his Cattle, and so go to Trial upon the Right; and if 'tis found for him, then he shall recover the Value of the Cattle with Costs and Damages, or may have the Cattle again by a Retorn, habendo directed to the Sheriff; but if it be found for the Defendant, he shall keep the Cattle, and have Costs and Damages for the unjust Prosecution. 1 Brownl. 180. 3 Nelf. Abr. 553, 554. A Defendant in Replevin may have a Writ of Witbernam against the Plaintiff; as if the Defendant hath a Return awarded for him, and he sueth a Writ of retorn, habendo, and the Sheriff return upon the Pluries, quod Averia elongata sunt, he shall have a Sci. fac. against the Pledges which the Plaintiff put in to prosecute, &c. and if they have nothing, then he shall have a Capias ad Witbernam against the Plaintiff. Ibid. And the Cattle taken in Witbernam are to be ad Valentiam, i. e. to the Value of the Cattle that were first taken and detain'd; for 'tis to be understood not only of the Number of the Cattle, but according to the Worth and Value; otherwise he that brings the Replevin and Witbernam, will be deprived of his Satisfaction. 3 Lill. Abr. 690. Where Cattle have been taken in Witbernam, they have been by a Rule of Court delivered back and restored to the Owner, on his Payment to the Plaintiff of all his Damages, Costs and Expences. Ibid. Cattle taken in Witbernam may be milk'd, or work'd reasonably; because they are delivered to the Party as his own Cattle, &c. Contra of Cattle distrained. 1 Leon. 302. Wool, Being a Staple Commodity of the greatest Value in this Kingdom; the Employment of our Poor at home, and our most beneficial Trade abroad, depending in a great Measure upon it; there have been divers good Laws made to preserve the same intirely to our selves, and to prevent its being transported to other Nations. The Stat. 27 Ed. 3. declared it Felony to transport Wool: But the Felony was repealed by 38 Ed. 3. cap. 6. By the 12 Car. 2. cap. 32. If any Person shall export any Wool, Yarn, &c. he shall forfeit the same, and for every Pound-weight of Goods 3 s. The 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 18. made the Trans-

Transportation of Wool Felony again; though this being thought too severe, the 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 28. a second Time repeals the Felony, and ordains, that exporting Wool beyond Sea shall incur a Forfeiture of the Vessel, and treble Value; and Persons aiding and assisting, to suffer three Years Imprisonment. By the Statute 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 40. the former Laws are explained, and a further Provision is made against transporting Wool; by obliging Entries to be made of Wool shorn, and Wool not to be carried near the Sea-Coasts, but between Sun rising and Sun-setting. Et Unlawful Exporters of Wool, where Judgment is obtain'd against them, are to pay the Sum recovered within three Months; or be liable to Transportation for seven Years as Felons. 4 Geo. 1. cap. 11. The Admiralty shall appoint three Sixth Rate Ships, and eight Sloops to cruise on the Coasts, and search and seize Vessels having Manufactures of Wool of the Kingdom of Ireland, to be exported to foreign Parts; which with the Ships shall be forfeited, Et Stat. 5 Geo. 2. c. 21. All woollen Manufactures, are to be shipp'd from Dublin, and certain other Ports in Ireland, and imported here into Biddford, and Ports named, and none others; and be brought from thence hitber in Ships built in Great Britain or Ireland and duly registred on Oath. 12 *Geo. 2. cap. 21. Words, Which may be taken or interpreted by Law in a general or common Sense, ought not to receive a strained or unusual Construction: And ambiguous Words are to be construed so as to make them stand with Law and Equity; and not to be wrested to do Wrong. A Latin Word in Pleading, which signified divers Things, was well used to express that Thing intended to be expressed by it: Incertain Words in a Declaration are made good and certain by a Plea in Bar, where Notice is taken of the Meaning of them; and Words which are in themselves uncertain, may be made certain by subsequent or following Words. The different Placing of the same Words may cause them to have a different Sense, and Construction: A Word which is written short or abbreviated, is not good without a Dash to distinguish it: And senseless Words are void and idle; though they shall not hurt where it is good without them. Nor shall Words in Deeds that are needless, impeach a Clause certain and perfect without such Words. 2 Lill. Abr. 711, 712, 713, 714. Hob. 313. Vide Scilicet.

Wreck, (Lat. Wreccum Maris, Fr. Wreck de Mer, sometimes writ Wreche, Wrecc, Et Scap-werpe, quasi Sea up-werpe, i. e. Ejectus Maris) Signifies in our Law such Goods as, after a Shipwreck, are cast upon the Land by the Sea, and left there within some County; for they are not Wrecks so long as they remain at Sea, in the Jurisdiction of the Admiralty. 2 Inst. 167. Where a Ship is perished on the Sea, and no Man escapes alive out of it, this is called Wreck: And the Goods in the Ship being brought to Land by the Waves, belong to the King by his Prerogative, or to the Lord of the Manor. 5 Rep. 106. By the Common Law all Wrecks belong'd to the Crown; and therefore they are not chargeable with any Customs, and for that Goods coming into the Kingdom by Wreck, are not imported by any Body, but cast ashore by the Wind and Sea: But it was usual to seize Wrecks to the King's Use, only when no Owner could be found; and in that Case, the Property being in no Man, it of Consequence belongs to the King, as Lord of the narrow Seas, Et Brad. lib. 2. cap. 5. And by the Stat. of Westm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 4. it is enacted, that when a Man, or any living Creature, escapes alive out of a Ship cast away, whereby the Owner of the Goods may be known, the Ship or Goods shall not be Wreck; but the same shall be kept a Year and a Day by the Sheriff, to be restored to any Person that can prove a Property in the Goods within that Time; and if no Body comes, then the same shall be forfeited as Wreck. The Year and Day shall be accounted from the Seizure; and if the Owner of the Goods dies within the Year, his Executors or Administrators may make Proof: And when the Goods are Bona peritura, the Sheriff may sell them within the Year; so as he disposes of them to the best Advantage, and accounts for them, Et 2 *Inst. 167. 5 Rep. 106. If Goods wreck'd are seized by Persons having no Authority, the Owner may have his Action against them; or if the Wrongdoers are unknown, he may have a Commission to inquire, &c. 2 Inst. 166. Goods lost by Tempest, or Piracy, &c. and not by Wreck, if they afterwards come to Land, shall be restored to the Owner. 27 Ed. 3. cap. 13. Where a Ship is ready to sink, and all the Men therein, for the Preservation of their Lives, quit the Ship, and afterwards she perishes; if any of the Men are saved and come to Land, the Goods are not lost: A Ship on the Sea was chas'd by an Enemy; the Men therein for the Security of their Lives forsook the Ship, which was taken by the Enemy, and spoil'd of her Goods and Tackle, and then turn'd to Sea; after this by Strefs of Weather she was cast on Land, where it happen'd her Men safely arriv'd; and it was resolv'd, that this was no Wreck. 2 Inst. 167. If a Wreck happens by any Fault or Negligence in the Master or Mariners, the Master must make good the Loss; but if the same was occasion'd by Tempest, Enemies, &c. he shall be excused: And making Holes in Ships, or doing any Thing wilfully tending to the Loss thereof, is Felony, by Stat. 12 Ann. Which Act requires Justices of Peace to command Assistance for preserving Ships in Danger of Wrecks on the Coasts; and Officers of Men of War, and other Ships, are to be aiding, &c. under the Penalty of 100 l. No Person shall enter any such Ship, without Leave from the Commander, or a Constable, &c. And Persons carrying away Goods from such Ships, are liable to pay treble Value; but the Persons giving Assistance, shall be paid by the Masters a reasonable Reward for Salvage, &c. 12 Ann. c. 18. Writ, (Breve, in Sax. Writan, i. e. Scribere) In general is the King's Precept, in Writing under Seal, issuing out of some Court to the Sheriff, or other Person, and commanding something to be done touching a Suit or Action, or giving Commission to have it done. Terms de Ley. 1 Inst. 73. Also a Writ is said to be a formal Letter of the King, in Parchment sealed with a Seal, directed to some Judge, Officer, or Minister, &c. at the Suit or Plaint of a Subject, requiring to have a Thing done, for the Cause briefly expressed, which is to be discussed in the proper Court according to Law. Old Nat. Br. 4. Skep. Abr. 245. Of Writs there are divers Kinds, in many Respects; some Writs are grounded on Rights of Action, and some in Nature of Commissions; some Mandatory and Extrajudicial, and others Remedial; and some are Patent or open, and some Close or sealed up; some Writs issue at the Suit of Parties; some are of Office, some Ordinary, and others of Privilege; and some Writs are directed to the Sheriffs, and in special Cases to the Party, &c. 1 Inst. 289. 2 Inst. 39. 7 Rep. 20. The Writs in Civil Actions are either Original or Judicial: Original Writs are issued out in the Court of Chancery, for the Summoning a Defendant to appear, and are granted before the Suit is begun, to begin the same; and Judicial Writs issue out of the Court where the Original is return'd, after the Suit is begun: The Originals bear Date in the Name of the King; but Judicial Writs bear Teste in the Name of the Chief Justice: And it is observ'd, that a Writ without a Teste is not good, for the Time may be material when it was taken out, and it is prov'd by the Teste; and if it be out of the Common Law Courts, it must bear

Date some Day in Term, (not being Sunday) but in Chancery Writs may be issued in Vacation as well as Term-Time, as that Court is always open; also there are to be fifteen Days between the Teste and Return of all Writs, where the Suit is by Original; but by Statute Delays in Actions by Reason of fifteen Days between the Teste and Return of Writs in Personal Actions, and Ejectments, are remedied. F. N. B. 51, 147. 2 Inst. 40. Lutw. 337. 13 Cur. 2. cap. 2. Writs in Actions are likewise Real; concerning the Possession of Lands, called Writs of Entry, or of Right touching the Property, &c. Personal, relating to Goods, Chattels, and Personal Injuries; and Mix'd, for the Recovery of the Thing, and Damages. 2 Inst. 39. And Writs may be Possessory, of a Man's own Possession; or Ancestral, of the Seisin and Possession of his Ancestor: And there are certain Writs of Prevention or Anticipation; and of Restitution, &c. But the most common Writs in daily Use, are in Debt, Detinue, Trespas, Action upon the Case, Account, and Covenant, &c. which with others must be rightly directed, or they will be naught. F. N. B. Style 42, 237. And in all Writs Care is to be taken, that they be laid and form'd according to the Cause or Ground of them, and so pursued in the Process thereof: Though the Writ in some Cases may be general; and the Count or Declaration special. Hob. 18, 84, 251. After the Action is fixed on, for a Wrong done, or Right detained, such a Writ must be taken out as is suitable to the Action; for the Writ is different from the Action; though they are often confounded: The Writ is to be grounded upon the Action, and is the Means to bring the Plaintiff to his Right. Wood's Inst. 560. The King's Writs cannot be denied to the Subject; and it is regularly true that no Man shall be punished for suing of Writs in the King's Courts, 'be it of Right or Wrong: But Writs may be abated in several Cases, &c. Ibid. An Original Writ defective in Form is abateable; but no Abatement of the Writ is admitted after Judgment in the Cause; the Writ being allow'd by the Pleadings and Proceedings; and a Writ that did not pursue the exact Form of the Register, has been held good. 2 Lill. Abr. 717. Hob. 51. 3 Nelf. Abr. 575. Writs Judicial, if erroneous, may be amended; Original Writs are not amendable, if the Error be by Default of the Party who gave Instructions; yet a new Original may be taken out, where it is not amendable. 2 Lill. 716. Writs may be renewed every Term, until a Defendant is arrested; but in B. R. if the Laitat be not renewed in five Terms, a new Writ is to be taken out; and the Plaintiff may not renew the old one: The Sheriff's Bailiffs cannot execute a Writ directed to the Sheriff, without his Warrant; and if in a Writ several Persons are included, (for four Defendants may be in one Writ) there must be several Warrants from the Sheriff to execute the same. Comp. Attorn. All Writs are to be return'd and filed in due Time, to avoid Post terminum; and it is very unsafe to keep Writs unfiled, because the Filing them is the Warrant for the Proceedings: And where a Writ is issued out directed to the Sheriff, when it comes to his Hands, though the Plaintiff requires the Writ back again, the Sheriff must return and file it in the Court where returnable; unless the Plaintiff procure a Writ of Superseas. 2 Lill. Abr. 720. Attachment lies against Sheriffs, &c. for not executing a Writ, or for doing it oppressively by Force, extorting Money thereon, or not doing it effectually, through any corrupt Practice. Vide 8 Rep. 86. The Court of B. R. cannot give Judgment of a Writ but where it is before them; and has deferred to quash it, because the Defendant was not present in Court. 1 Lord Raym. 618, 620. See Arrests, Variance, &c.

Writ of Assistance, Is a Writ issuing out of the Exchequer, to authorise any Person to take a Constable, Abr. 721.* This Writ lies on a Nil dicit, Non sum informatus, or a Demurrer; but not upon a Verdict; and it is executed before the Sheriff, or his Deputy, at the Time of which both Parties, have the Liberty of being heard before the Sheriff, by their Counsel or Attornies, and Evidence may be given on both Sides: It is the Duty of the Jury diligently to inquire what Damages have been sustained by the Plaintiff, and this cannot be without Evidence given them; and if where an Indebitas Assumpsit is brought for 100*l.* for Goods sold, and the Defendant lets this go by Default; if the Plaintiff at the Executing the Writ of Inquiry, gives no Evidence to the Jury of any Goods, sold or delivered to the Defendant: In this Case, the Jury must find some Damages, because the Defendant hath confes'd the Action, and admitted that there is Damage; but there not being any proved, they ought to find only a Penny, or some such small Matter. 2 Lill. Abr. 721, 722. If a Writ of Inquiry be executed without giving due Notice thereof to the Defendant, it shall be quashed. 2 Lill. 721. In an Action of Covenant, Judgment was given for the Plaintiff in the Common Pleas by Default, and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages executed, and final Judgment for the Plaintiff. And on a Writ of Error brought in by B. R. amongst other Exceptions, one was, that no Day was given on the Writ of Inquiry, and therefore it might be a Discontinuance; but the Court resolv'd, that they never give a Day in C. B. on this Writ, nor is it necessary, because nothing is done but to ascertain the Damages. 1 Ld. Raym. 388. A Writ of Inquiry was ordered to be executed before the Lord Chief Justice, the Action being laid for very large Damages: And such Writ hath been set aside where the Jury gave too little Damages; and a new Writ of Inquiry ordered by Rule of Court, on Payment of Costs, &c. *Mod.
