

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

This Dictionary is aimed to present to the law student and the busy man, words, expressions and maxims of the law in as concise a form as possible, limiting them to such terms as have a special significance in legal science.

To be able to look up the law, immediately to find a law term, at once to locate the object of the information sought, is a difficult task, and yet what assistance it is to the student or attorney, and how satisfactory to the client when his advisor shows himself thoroughly acquainted with the law and can readily answer from the reports and treatises understandingly, the object of the inquiry, quoting directly from the authority at hand.

The student's greatest difficulty is where to find what he wants. The practitioner's early obstacle is where to locate what he knows is the law, and what to the older members of the profession seems ready knowledge.

Following out this idea of giving a key to the secret chambers of the law has helped the author in availing an encyclopedic dictionary, and thus is presented briefly the useful, separated from the non-useful, overcoming the difficulties encountered by the student and the inexperienced.

The author learned years ago the difficulties of the searcher after legal knowledge and in the twelve volumes of Chadman's Cyclopedia of Law, already compiled, sets out the many elements and principles of legal jurisprudence, thus enabling the student to secure a practical working knowledge of the law without necessitating the securing of many works on legal subjects.

The Dictionary is a companion volume to Chadman's Cyclopedia of Law, and concisely defines in ordinary language the legal words and phrases and abbreviations used in the volumes, limiting the definitions to such terms as are peculiarly adapted to the law.

An appendix is also added wherein has been reproduced for the benefit of the reader and student the translations of the great landmarks in the development of English and likewise American liberty—Magna Charta,

PREFACE

Petition of Rights, Declaration of Rights, and the remarkable arraignment of the judges for over-stepping the known principles of the common law, found in the Mirroure of Justices, one of the earliest treatises on the English law. The appendix also contains the recent uniform legislation, or codification, of the Law of Sales and of Warehouse Receipts, being adopted by the several States.

In the spirit of self-education and home study this volume in its concise and simple form is submitted for the kindly consideration of the student and the profession.

CHAS. E. CHADMAN.

A CONCISE LEGAL DICTIONARY

Adapted for the use of Law Students and all persons studying the Fundamentals of English or American Law.

- A, or a, the first letter of the alphabet, sometimes used to designate a subdivision of a legal treatise or digest, or page or paragraph of a book from the next succeeding one otherwise marked. In Roman law this letter on a juror's ballot meant absolvo; in elections, antiquo; in Law French, of, at, to, for, in, with, from; in Latin, from, by, at, on, if, of.
- A. An. In law the definite article a or an, is not absolutely limited to a single one, as the power to issue a note for a stated amount may authorize the issue of several equaling the amount named.
- A. 1. Of the highest quality; first class.
- A. D. Anno Domini; in the year of our Lord.
- A. G. Attorney General.
- A. J. or A. J. J. Associate or Assistant Judge or Justice, or Judges.
- A. R. Anno Regni; in the year of the reign.
- A aver et tener. To have and to hold.
- A cancellia. A Chancellor.
- A consiliis. Counsellor, of counsel.
- A dato or A datu. From the date.
- A forfait et sans garantie. French, equivalent to "without recourse."
- A fortiori. From the stronger. In argument, from the stronger reasoning.
- A mensa et thoro. From bed and board; a kind of divorce.
- A posteriori. From the latter; a train of reasoning which proceeds from the effects backward to deduce the cause; the converse of a priori.
- A priori. From the earlier. An argument, which assuming the cause, demonstrates the results which must flow from it. From the cause to the effect.
- A quo; a qua. From which.
- A rubro ad nigrum. From the red to the black. From the title, which was anciently in red, to the body of the statute, which was in black.
- A tort. Wrongfully; by wrong.
- A verbis legis non est recedendum. From the words of the law there is no receding.
- Ab assuetis non fit injuria. From matters of long standing no injury arises. An expression of the general principle that a person who neglects to insist upon his rights is deemed to have

- waived or abandoned them by long acquiescence in the existing state of things.
- Ab inconvenienti. From inconvenience or hardship. This phrase designates arguments which seek to refute a proposition by pointing out disastrous consequences or untenable positions to which it necessarily leads.
- Ab initio. From the beginning.
- Ab vinculis matrimonii. From the bonds of matrimony; a kind of divorce.
- Ab intestato. From an intestate. Is generally used as the alternative or opposite of ex testamento.
- Abactor. One who steals cattle by herds or droves.
- Abandon. To forsake; abandon; disclaim; relinquish.
- Abatement. A making less, suspension, taking away, removal. Also special meanings in law: 1. As respects debts and legacies. Where the funds of a decedent's estate are insufficient to pay in full debts and legacies, and the legacies are reduced pro rata to make up the deficit, this is termed an abatement. 2. Abatement of a nuisance, is the removal or destruction of it. 3. In pleading, a matter of defense which only tends to delay or suspend the action and does not go to the merits, is termed a plea in abatement.
- Abbreviare. To abridge; to shorten.
- Abbreviation. A shortened expression or symbol or letter standing for a name, phrase, date or the like.
- See the list of abbreviations commonly used in law, as given in the Appendix to this volume.
- Abbroachment. Forestalling; i. e., buying up merchandise to resell at an advance; similar to the modern cornering the market.
- Abduction. The wrongful or violent carrying away of a human being.
- Abdication. The abandonment of power or office, as the surrender of a throne.
- Abeyance. Undetermined; in suspense. An estate is in abeyance when present in no man, but belonging to him who is next to enjoy it. Same as in nubibus, in the clouds, and in gremio legis, in the bosom of the law.
- Abet. To aid; assist; facilitate, as regards the commission of an act or crime.
- Abiding conviction. The settled conviction of guilt which may follow a thorough and complete examination of all the evidence in a case.
- Abjure; abjurare. To forswear; to renounce an oath.
- Ab nepos. A great-great-grandson.
- Abneptia. A great-great-granddaughter.
- Abnormal. Departing from the ordinary and usual.
- Abode. One's habitation, dwelling place.
- Abolition. Abrogating; annulling.

Abortion. 1. A miscarriage, or the premature expulsion of the foetus. 2. The foetus when brought forth before the term of gestation is completed.

About. 1. Around, close to, near, in the proximity of. 2. When employed to qualify the statement of the length of a line, in a deed, "about" shows that exact precision is not intended.

Abrasio. Erasing in a writ.

legal process. To depart clandestinely out of the jurisdiction of a court.

Absconding debtor. One who goes beyond the jurisdiction or conceals himself from his creditors.

Absence. Non-appearance. The condition of being away or removed.

Absence beyond seas. Out of England; out of a state or the United States.

Absence cum dolo et culpa. Absence to avoid a writ, subpoena, citation, arrest, or to defeat creditors.

Absence, necessary. Where a person is banished, transported, or confined in a penitentiary or prison.

Absentee. One who has departed from the State he lived in without leaving anyone to represent him. One who never had a fixed residence in the State and resides abroad. Emmerling v. Cucullu, 18 La. Ann. 695. Also, an owner of property who resides abroad.

Absolute. Unconditional; complete in itself; not relative; perfect.

Absolute estate. One subject to no condition.

Absolve. To set free; to declare innocent; to deliver from excommunication.

Absque. Without; occurs in phrases taken from the Latin; such as:

Absque hoc. Without this. These are technical words of denial, used in pleading at common law by way of special traverse, to introduce the negative part of the plea, following the affirmative part or inducement.

Absque impetitione vasti. Without impeachment of waste.

Abstention. Preventing an heir from obtaining possession. The tacit renouncing by an heir, of a succession.

Abstract. To take from; to separate; to remove; to take away. A concise abridgment; an epitome, a summary.

Abstract of pleas. A short statement of pleas intended to be pleaded.

Abstract of title. A memorandum or concise statement of the conveyances and incumbrances affecting the ownership of real property.

Abstracts and indices of titles to land are subjects of literary property, so long as the compiler remains owner of the unpublished manuscript, and may be entered for copyright. The term abstract of title does not mean a mere condensed copy, but implies a work requiring learning, skill and labor. Banker v. Caldwell, 3 Minn. 94.

Abundans cautela non nocet. Extreme caution does no harm. This principle is generally applied to the construction of instruments in which superfluous words have been inserted beyond what is absolutely necessary for the purpose. Such superfluous words can do no harm, if the instrument, when read without them is still valid.

Abuse. Excess of ordinary use. Violation. Departure from right. Legal though unjust action. To make an extravagant or excessive use; as, to abuse one's authority.

Abuse of female child, is an expression equivalent to rape.

Abuse of distress is a wrongful using of a thing distrained, by the distrainer.

Abuse of process is a wrongful employment of a regular judicial proceeding.

Abut. To touch ends.

Abuttal. The end of a tract of land, or place where it touches the tract next to it. Strictly, or formerly, ends of a tract have been said to abut, sides to adjoin. Abutments: the ends of a bridge, or parts which touch the land.

Abutting. Bounding upon; adjoining; in contact with.

Academy. Originally, an association formed for mutual improvement, and to advance science or art; also, a species of educational institution, of a grade between the common school and the college. In this sense, it is used in many acts of state legislatures chartering or providing for the incorporation of academies.

Ac etiam. And also. Words used in introducing the real cause of an action where it was necessary to allege a fictitious cause to give the court jurisdiction.

Accedas ad vice comitem. Go to the sheriff. In English law, a writ to a coroner commanding him to deliver a writ to a sheriff directing the latter to make return on a writ which he had refused or neglected to return.

Accept. 1. To acknowledge the sufficiency or validity of. 2. To agree to pay a bill of exchange when due. 3. To assent to the terms of; to receive with approval; to receive with intent to retain.

Acceptance. The agreement to pay a bill of exchange made by the drawee by writing his name on its face when presented. Acknowledging the validity of an act done by another.

Acceptance, conditional. An agreement to pay a bill on the happening of some event.

Acceptance supra protest, or for honor. The acceptance of a bill of exchange to save some one's credit, after the same has been protested and becoming liable for it if not paid at maturity.

Access. Approach; or the opportunity of approaching. Usually employed, as a law term, with reference to sexual intercourse; sometimes as importing its occurrence; otherwise as importing opportunity of communication for that purpose, or such a residence of husband and wife with reference to each other that intercourse may be presumed.

Accessory or Accessory. Accompanying. That which is connected as an incident, or subordinate, with some other thing, deemed its principal. The word is used both as adjective and noun.

In crimes, one who, without being a direct actor in the perpetration of an offense, or present at its performance, is concerned in encouraging or promoting it, or in protecting the principal offender, is termed an accessory, or accessory.

Accessory (or accessory) before the fact. One who aids or procures a crime to be done but is absent when it is committed.

Accessory at the fact. Formerly an aider or abettor, but now called a principal in the first or second degree.

Accessory after the fact. One who knowingly aids a criminal after he has committed a crime.

Accessory to adultery. Procuring or bringing about adultery.

Accession. The right to the produce and increase of property. The uniting of various materials in one product. An increase; an incident to another thing. The mode by which an increase is made. That which is joined to another thing. The acquisition of property of a concomitant nature, by virtue of the ownership of the principal to which it is accessory, or is attached as an incident.

Other uses of the words are that the commencement of a sovereign's reign is called his accession; and if a nation becomes party to a treaty or convention already in force between others, this is called its accession to the treaty.

Accessorium non ducit, sed sequitur, suum principale. The incident does not lead, but follows, its principal.

Accessorius sequitur naturam sui principalis. An accessory follows the nature of his principal. One who is accessory to a crime cannot be guilty of a higher degree of crime than his principal.

Accident. An event not the result of negligence or misconduct; an unusual or unexpected event; that which happens without direct human agency. An equitable plea for relief, now admitted in all the courts of justice.

Accident, avoidable. One which might, with reasonable care, have been avoided.

Accident, inevitable. In maritime law, an accident which could not possibly be prevented by the exercise of ordinary care and maritime skill.

To constitute an accident or casualty, or inevitable accident, the occurrence must be such as the defendant could not have avoided by the use of the kind and degree of care necessary to the exigency, and in the circumstances in which he was placed. Brown v. Kendall, 6 Cush. 292.

Accident, unavoidable. Those accidents which are effected or influenced by the uncontrollable operations of nature.

Accola. One who comes from another country to till land. An agricultural tenant. A class of Italian villains. In Civil law, one who inhabits land near some well known place.

Accolade. The act of the king in putting his hand about the knight's neck in knighthood.

Accommodation bill or note. A bill of exchange given as an accommodation, instead of money. A bill endorsed by one person for another without charge. Such paper, regardless of the want of consideration on the part of the accommodation acceptor or maker, is enforced against him, in favor of a purchaser for value, and before maturity.

Accommodatum; commodatum. The lending of a thing, to be returned in kind.

Accomplice. Any person concerned in a crime with another.

Accord. To agree. A compact; agreement; union. An agreement by one injured to be satisfied with recompense. When the agreement has been executed, and the thing promised paid or performed, the agreement and its execution constitutes an accord and satisfaction.

According to law. As the law would cause or compel a thing to be done. In accordance with the provisions of law.

Accouchement. The act of being delivered of a child.

Accoucheur. A male assistant in childbirth.

Accoucheuse. A midwife; a female assistant in childbirth.

Account. A computation; a bill. Money had and received by defendant for plaintiff's use. A writ or action against a bailiff

- or receiver, to render account. A business relation in which debts and credits are created. A detailed statement of debts and credits between parties. A record of receipts and expenditures. Account implies mutual dealings, and the existence of debt and credit. McWilliams v. Allan, 45 Mo. 573.
- It means a list or catalogue of items, whether of debts or credits. Renselear Glass Factory v. Reid, 5 Cow. 587.
- Account current. An open account to which items are added at intervals; one open to further charges.

- Account, partial. An incomplete account. Involving but a part.
- Account rendered. An account delivered to the debtor, showing the creditor's demand.
- Account, stated. An account rendered and admitted as correct by the debtor.
To support a plea of account stated, the evidence must show that the accounting was final; and that the accounts have been examined, and the balance admitted as the true balance between the parties. Bussey v. Gant, 10 Humph. 238.
The admission need not be in writing. James v. Fellowes, 20 La. Ann. 116.
- Accountant. A man employed in accounts. One who makes a written statement regarding trust property committed to his charge. One who receives anything for which he has to account to another.
- Accountant-General. An officer in Chancery to receive money lodged in Court.
- Accounts, mutual. Accounts kept between merchants; those based on a course of dealing wherein each party has given credit to the other. In such accounts the statute of limitations begins to run from the date of the last item.
- Account, action of. A common law writ or action allowed against a person in a fiduciary office or relation to compel him to render an account.
- Accouple. To marry, to unite.
- Accredit. To receive an envoy and credit him with the authority with which he comes. To send an envoy or agent with proper credentials.
- Accretion. Increment; a growing to; the increase of land by natural causes.
- Accroach. To attempt the exercise of power, sovereign power, without authority.
- Accrocher un proces. To stay the proceedings in a suit.
- Accrue. To vest; to become added to; to append to; to fall due.
- Accruer, clause of. A clause in a deed to tenants in common, pro-

- viding that the survivor shall receive the share of the other tenant or tenants on the latter's decease.
- Accumulative judgment. A judgment rendered after another judgment has already been rendered against the same person.
- Accumulative sentence. A sentence passed before the expiration of the first one, which will take effect as soon as the first one ends. A second or additional sentence.
- Accusare nemo debet se. No one is bound to accuse himself. A maxim more frequently expressed in the form, Nemo tenetur se ipsius accusare. The principle embodied is fundamental in the criminal law, and is always upheld by the courts.
- Accusation. An indictment; the charging any person with a crime; censure.
A charge made to a competent officer against one who has committed a crime or misdemeanor that he may be brought to justice and punishment. Bouv.
- Accuse. To charge with a crime or offense. The term accused is generally applied to the defendant in a criminal case, and is said to be more appropriate than prisoner or defendant.
- Ac Etiam. And also.
- Acknowledge. To admit. To admit the validity of. To avow as one's act.
- Acknowledgment. Confession; avowal; admission; owning to. The act of a party to an instrument in writing, in declaring before the proper officer, that the instrument is his free act and deed. The official certificate of an officer before whom such a declaration is made.
To acknowledge does not necessarily imply words. Bailey v. Boyd, 59 Ind. 292.
- Acknowledgment money. A sum paid by copyhold tenants in England to new landlords.
- Acquets. Property acquired by purchase. Profits of property between husband and wife.
- Acquiescence. Consent indicated by silence, or failure to make any objection to a proposition.

Non suit. The renunciation, or the giving up of a lawsuit by the plaintiff; the failure to pursue an action.

A nonsuit is properly the voluntary act of the plaintiff in deserting his action; and the difference between a nonsuit and non proa. is, that in the former the plaintiff, being called upon in court to proceed, advisedly abandons the suit, because he sees it is likely to go against him; in the latter, he simply neglects to take the proper steps. A nonsuit may, however, be entered by the court above, on application made by the defendant, pursuant to leave reserved by the judge at the time of the trial. And since the judicature act, 1875, any judgment of nonsuit, unless the court or a judge otherwise directs, is to have the same effect as a judgment upon the merits for the defendant. Mozley & W.

A voluntary nonsuit is an abandonment of his cause by plaintiff, who allows a judgment for costs to be entered against him by absenting himself or failing to answer when called upon to hear the verdict. 1 Dutch., 556.

An involuntary nonsuit takes place when the plaintiff, on being called, when his case is before the court for trial, neglects to appear, or when he has given no evidence on which a jury could find a verdict. 13 Johns., 334.

Under the statutes in Pennsylvania a plaintiff may be compulsorily non-suited.

Norman-French. The language introduced into England by the Normans in 1066, and which was used in legal proceedings and court decisions until 36 Edw., III, when by statute it was provided that thereafter the pleadings should be in English and enrolled in Latin. Pertaining to the Normans.

North. When this term is used in the description in a deed without qualification, it means due north. 1. Johns., 156; 96 Col. 505.

The term "North" also signifies that part of the territory of the United States north of Mason and Dixon's line, or the states which adhered to the Union as distinguished from those which joined the Confederacy, and were known as the "South."

Noscitur a sociis. It is known from its associates. That is the meaning or interpretation of a word or clause may be obtained from the accompanying language.

Not a true bill. The modern phrase used by a grand jury instead of "ignoramus," signifying that they have not found a true bill in the case.

Not guilty. A general plea denying the offense charged.

When a defendant pleads not guilty in a criminal charge, he thereby puts himself upon trial, and is entitled to all the chances of escape from conviction which the rules of law afford him in case of the evidence being doubtful, or from any other cause, notwithstanding he may in fact have committed the act which is usually taken to constitute the offense. An accused person is, therefore, in all cases, justified in pleading not guilty to a criminal charge. On the other hand, in civil cases, when a defendant pleads not guilty, he is said to plead the general issue, whereby he is taken to deny the gist of the action. Smith Act, at Law, 533.

Not proven. A verdict which a jury may return in Scotch law, signifying that the guilt of the accused is not proven, while it is not clear that he is innocent.

Nota bene. Note well; observe with care.

Notarial. Pertaining to the office of a notary or a notary public.

Notary public. The title of an officer who holds a seal and is authorized by law to administer oaths and acknowledge deeds, protest commercial paper, take depositions, and do other acts of an official and quasi judicial nature. Anciently a notary was simply a scribe who made drafts of writings and instruments of either a public or private nature.

Notaries are of ancient origin, they existed in Rome during the Republic, and were called tabeliones forenses, or personae pub- licae. Their employment consisted in the drawing up of legal documents. They exist in all the countries of Europe, and as early as A. D. 803 were appointed by the Frankish kings and by the popes. In most of the states notaries are appointed by the governor alone, in others by the governor, by and with the advice of his council, in others by and with the advice of the senate; in the District of Columbia they are appointed by the President of the United States. As a general rule, throughout the United States official acts of a notary public should be authenticated by seal as well as by signature. 49 Ala., 242.

By act of Congress, September 16, 1850, notaries are authorized to administer oaths and take acknowledgments in all cases where under the laws of the United States justices of the peace were formerly authorized to act. By act of August 15, 1876, c. 304, notaries are authorized to take depositions and to do all other acts in relation to taking testimony to be used in the courts of the United States, and to take acknowledgments and affidavits with the same effect as commissioners of the United States circuit courts may do. R. S., Sec. 1778.

The acts of notaries are respected by the custom of merchants and the law of nations. Their protest of a bill is received as evidence in the courts of all civilized countries. Except in cases of protest of bills, the signature of a notary to an instrument going to a foreign country ought to be authenticated by the consul or representative of that country. Bouvier.

Note bought. A memorandum of the sale and of the fact of purchase given by a broker to the buyer to show what has been sold and the terms of sale; its purpose is to apprise the person to whom it is given what he has purchased.

Note, sold. A sold note is the memorandum of a sale and purchase which the broker gives to the seller to advise him the terms and amounts of the commodity that has been sold for him.

Notice. Information; a knowledge of facts, or information imparted; means of knowledge.
Notice, in its full signification, embraces a knowledge of circumstances that ought to induce suspicion or belief, as well as direct information. 5 Sandf., 165.

Notice, actual. Such a notice as is given directly to the person to be notified.

Notice, constructive. That information or knowledge which the law implies a person should have from the facts and circumstances.

Notice of appearance. The notice which the defendant gives the plaintiff of his intention to defend the suit.

Notice of dishonor, or protest. The notice given or sent to the drawer of a bill of exchange, or indorser of a bill or promissory note, setting forth that the person primarily liable upon the instrument has failed to make payment, and that the holder looks to the person notified to pay the bill or note.

Notice of lis pendens. The notice of a pending suit which is allowed in some instances to be filed as a matter of public record, to the end that no person shall deal with the property of the defendant, or in respect to the subject matter of the suit, without opportunity to learn of plaintiff's claim.

Notice of motion. A notice given by either party to litigation, to the other, informing him that upon a certain day designated in the notice, an application will be made to the court tribunal for an order or relief as indicated in the notice.

Notice of trial. A notice given by one party to the other, of his intention to bring a pending action to trial at the succeeding term of court.

Notice to admit. A notice which is given to either of the parties to an action, calling on the other to admit the genuineness of a document wished to be introduced in evidence, in case the party so notified refuses, and the document is proved, the party refusing is chargeable with expenses of making the proof, irrespective of the result of the whole action.

Notice to produce papers. This is a notice which one party may give to the other, for the production of papers or documents in his possession for use at the trial of the action. The production of such papers is governed by statute, which also prescribe the notice to be given. Generally the notice must have been given a reasonable time before the trial, or the party cannot produce secondary evidence of the contents of the papers.

Notice to quit, or leave premises.

The notice required to be given to the tenant by the landlord before a forcible detention action can be brought for the recovery of the possession of the premises.

Notification. The act of giving notice.

Noting. The memorandum made by a notary on a bill after it has been presented for acceptance or payment and payment or acceptance refused. The noting usually includes the day, month and year when the presentment was made, the reason given for the refusal, with his initials and charge. The noting is not indispensable and will not supply the formal protest, but is simply for convenience in making the protest.

Notorious. When this term is used in reference to holding property by adverse possession, it means that the holding must possess such elements of notoriety that the owner may be presumed to have notice of it and of its extent. 33 Fla., 261.

Notoriously. Well and generally understood.

Nova constitutio futuris formam imponere debet, non praeteritis.

A new statute should lay down a rule for the future, not the past.

Nova statuta. New statutes. The designation given to statutes passed since the beginning of the reign of Edward III.

Novation. Making anew. The substitution of a new contract or engagement or obligation for an old one. A renewal.

A transaction whereby a debtor is discharged from his liability to his original creditor by contracting a new obligation in favor of a new creditor by the order of the original creditor. 1 Pars. Cont., 217.

Novellae constitutiones, or novels.

The official compilation of the new constitution, or novels, of Justinian and his immediate successors, published after the Code was completed. They were framed to supply what had been omitted in the preceding laws, with such amendments as were found to be expedient. They were established between 535 and 565 A. D.

Novelty. The quality of being new or original. The term becomes of importance under the patent laws of the United States which restrict the privilege to inventions which are "new and useful." Want of novelty is a sufficient reason why the commissioner of patents should refuse a patent. And it will invalidate a patent which has been granted. To warrant the commissioner in issuing a patent, in the first instance, he must be satisfied, upon examining the application, not only that the applicant is, as compared with any other individual claimant, the true and first inventor of the improvement, but also, and beyond this, that the thing claimed is new, as compared with the general extent of human knowledge and skill in the science or art to which it appertains. The element of novelty is determined by considerations somewhat peculiar, in the case of patents for what are called "combinations." A patent may be obtained for a machine embodying a novel combination of several parts, notwithstanding that each of the parts has been used in some machine formerly in use. And it is no objection to a patent for such a combination that some, or even all, of the parts have been known and used before. But the combination for which a patent is sought must show novelty as to the combination of the parts.

Noverint universi per praesentes. "Know all men by these presents." The formal words used at the commencement of deeds of release in the Latin forms.

Nude. Bare; naked; something without consideration.

Nudum pactum. A naked agreement. A contract or agreement not founded upon a valid consideration.

Nuisance. That which causes annoyance, or is detrimental to health; anything that worketh harm, inconvenience or damage. Nuisances are termed public, when they affect the surrounding community generally, when they impair the rights of neighboring residents as members of the public; and private, when they specially injure individuals. The relief from a nuisance is generally either abatement, which is the right of persons injured by a nuisance to remove it, injunction, action for damages, or criminal prosecution. Abbott.

Nuisance, private. That which annoys or injures an individual or private person.

Nuisance, public. That annoyance which affects the whole community or the general public.

Nul. No; none.

Nul prendra advantage de son tort demesne. No one shall take advantage of his own wrong. That is, a wrongful act will not be allowed to benefit the wrongdoer. This maxim applies to the cases where fraud is alleged to have been committed by one of the parties to a transaction, and is relied upon as a defense by the other. The party who has been responsible for the fraud is estopped thereby to set up his own wrong, or deny that what he has asserted to exist does not, in fact, exist.

Nul tiel record. No such record. A plea at common law denying the existence of the record on which the action is founded.

Nul tort. No wrong. A plea in a real action denying the wrong alleged.

Nulla bona. No goods. The return of a sheriff to a fieri facias where no goods of the defendant have been found to satisfy the writ.

Nulla persona. No person. The term includes not only natural persons, but artificial persons, as corporations.

Nullity. That which is void of itself. An act or proceeding which has absolutely no legal effect. Something which the law ignores, though existing as a matter of fact.

In its consequences a sentence of nullity differs materially from a divorce. The latter assumes the original validity of the marriage, and its operation is entirely prospective. The former renders the marriage void from the beginning, and nullifies all its legal results. The parties are to be regarded legally as if no marriage had ever taken place; they are single persons, if before they were single; their issue are illegitimate; and their rights of property as between themselves are to be viewed as having never been operated upon by the marriage. Thus, the man loses all right to the property, whether real or personal, which belongs to the woman; and the woman loses her right to dower. 2 Bish. Mar. Div. & Sep., Secs. 907, 1597.

Nullity of marriage. A suit or action to have a marriage declared void because it never had any foundation in law, as for want of age, fraud, duress, physical impotence, relationship or prior marriage of one of the parties.

Nullius filius. The son of no one; a bastard.

Nullum exemplum est idem omnibus. No example is fitting for all purposes.

Nullum simile quatuor pedibus currit. No simile runs on four feet; i. e., not every simile or example is exactly alike, or on all fours with another.

Nullum tempus occurrit regi. No time runs against the king. A maxim indicating that no negligence or a laches was to be imputed as against the crown.

Nullum tempus occurrit reipublicae. No time runs against the commonwealth. The rights of the state are not to be defeated or barred by the lapse of time.

Nullus commodum capere potest de injuria sua propria. No one shall take advantage of his own wrong.

Nullus videtur dolo facere qui suo jure utitur. No one is deemed to act wrongfully who is exercising a right. That is, within reason one may act as he wishes with regard to his own matters, and is not liable as for a tort, though maliciously done or injurious to another. The same is true of the performance of an act authorized by law.

Numerata pecunia. Money which has been counted; or paid by actual count.

Nunc pro tunc. Now for then. A phrase signifying that something which is done afterwards is to have the same effect or intention as though done at a previous or proper time.

A nunc pro tunc entry is an entry made now, of something which was actually previously done, to have effect as of the previous date. Its office is not to supply omitted action by the court, but to supply an omission in the record of action really had, but omitted through inadvertence or mistake. 31 N. E. Rep. (Ind.) 670. Leave of court must be obtained to act in legal proceedings nunc pro tunc; and this is granted to answer the purposes of justice, but never to do injustice. Bouv.

Nuncupative. Declared orally; dictated.

Nuncupative will. An oral will; a testament or disposition of property made by declaration to witnesses, and which is afterwards reduced to writing. Such wills are allowed by statute in certain cases.

In early times this kind of a will was very common, and before the statute of frauds, by which it was virtually abolished, save in the case of soldiers and sailors, was of equal efficacy, except for lands, tenements and hereditaments, with a written testament. Such wills are subject to manifest abuses, and by Stat. 1 Vict., c. 26 Secs. 9 and 11, the privilege is confined to soldiers in actual service, and sailors at sea, and extends only to personal estate. Similar provisions have been enacted in many of the states of the United States. Though the statutory provisions are not uniform in the various states.

Nunquam crescit ex post facto praeteriti delicti aestimatio. The quality of a past offense is never aggravated by that which happens subsequently. That is, the character and extent of a crime are determined at the time it is committed, and no subsequent act of the offender can enlarge it.

Nunquam praescribitur in falso. There is never a prescription in case of falsehood. A maxim of the civil law to the effect that title or right cannot be founded upon a false claim, as a forged deed will not be a proper basis for title by prescription.

Nuper. Lately.

Nuper obiit. Lately deceased. An old English writ, issued on behalf of a co-heiress who had been dispossessed by her coparcener of lands of which their common ancestors died seized in fee simple, to compel a proper division of the lands.

Nuptiae secundae. A second marriage. Under the canon law this was any sort of a marriage subsequent to the first.

Nuptial. A marriage ceremony; pertaining to marriage.

Nuptial, post. After marriage.

Nuptias non concubitus sed consensus facit. Not cohabitation, but consent, constitutes marriage.

Nurture. The act of caring for and educating children.

O.

Oath. Such an affirmation of the truth of a statement in a formal manner as will render one liable for perjury if the statements so affirmed are material to the issue. An outward pledge given by the person taking it that his attestation or promise is made under an immediate sense of his responsibility to God. A reverent appeal to God that one's declaration or statement is sincere and true. That formal sanction given to the testimony of a witness before testifying.

Oath, corporal. One manifested by laying the hand on or kissing the Bible.

Oath of calumny. At civil law the oath which a plaintiff was obliged to take at the time of commencing his action that he was not actuated by false motive, but had a genuine and bona fide cause of action.

Oath decisory. At civil law one of the parties could defer or refer the decision of a matter to the oath of the other party. Thus the plaintiff could defer the oath to the defendant when he thought he had not sufficient proof of the fact which constituted his claim; and in the same manner the defendant may defer it to the plaintiff when he has not sufficient proof of his defense. The person to whom the oath is deferred had either to take it or refer it back, and if he did not do either the cause was decided against him. Bouv. The decisory oath has been practically adopted in the district court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts; and admiralty causes have been determined in that court by the oath decisory. Id.

Oath ex officio. The oath by which a minister or clergyman charged with a criminal offense, in former times, could swear himself to be innocent; also the oath by which the compurgators swore that they believed him innocent. 3 Bl. Com., 101, 447.

Oath in litem. Under the civil law an oath which the complainant was allowed to make as to the value of the thing in dispute, where there was no other proof, or the defendant had been guilty of fraud or had suppressed proof in his possession.

Oath purgatory. The oath by which a person destroys presumptions which were against him until the oath was taken.

Ob. On account of; for.

Ob continentiam delicti. On account of the contaminating character of the offense; because found with something illegal. A phrase expressing the reasons for condemning a vessel carrying aid to an enemy.

Ob turpem causam. For an immoral or base cause or consideration.

Obedience. Submission to authority; performance of commands.

Obit. He died. A funeral ceremony, or burial service anciently performed for the dead.

Obiter. Incidentally; by the way, or in passing.

Obiter dicta. That which is immaterial or incidental; unconnected with the main thing or reason. Loose sayings; something by way of illustration, and not necessary to be decided in connection with the point at issue.

Object. To oppose.

Objection. A formal protest against the rulings of a court or judge on a point of law.

Obligation. A binding together; a contract. That which constitutes a legal or moral duty. An enforceable engagement.

Obligation of contracts. The obligation of a contract consists in its binding force on the party who makes it. By constitutional provision this cannot be impaired by law.

The obligation of a contract is not the moral efficacy which inheres and subsists in the contract itself; propria vigore, but in its enforceability, in the law applicable to the contract. Whatever belongs to the remedy may be altered according to the will of the state, provided the alteration does not impair the enforceability of the contract; and such alterations may apply to past as well as future contracts. But any law which, in its operation, amounts to a denial or obstruction of the rights accruing by a contract, though professing to act only on the remedy, is directly obnoxious to the prohibition of the constitution. Hence a law which, though addressed to the remedy, in effect deprives a party of all remedy, is unconstitutional. 1 How., 311. But statutes abolishing imprisonment for debt, or discharging debtors from imprisonment in civil actions, are upheld as not impairing the obligation of contract, upon the view that the right of imprisonment is no part of the contract. 12 Wheat., 370.

Obligation, joint. A duty owing or an engagement entered into by two or more persons and for which both are responsible.

Obligation, several. Such a duty or engagement in which two or more are joined, but each is individually liable.

Obligee. The person to whom a bond or undertaking is made; the one entitled, in the first instance, to enforce it.

Obligor. The person by whom a bond or undertaking is made; the one who is bound by it.

Obscene. Indecent or immoral. That which tends to excite lustful passions.

Obscene literature. Written or printed matter which is offensive to chastity, or tends to corrupt or deprave the pure minded.

Obscene publication. The publication of that which offends modesty, is indecent and lewd, and has a tendency to inflame the passions, and debase society. The - question of its truth or falsity is not to be considered, simply the fact that it is not fit for dissemination.

- Obscenity. That which tends to the corruption of morals or is calculated to promote the violation of law.
- Obsolete. Of no effect; out of date; unenforced. Laws which are unrepealed, but lost sight of.
A positive statute, unrepealed, can never be repealed by non-user alone. The disuse of a law is at most only presumptive evidence that society has consented to such a repeal; however this presumption may operate on an unwritten law, it cannot, in general, act upon one which remains as a legislative act on the statute book, because no presumption can set aside a certainty. Bouv.
- Obstructing a street. To block up, hinder or impede traffic in the public highway or street. To neglect to remove, after notice, an obstruction in the highway, is to wilfully obstruct a highway.
- Obtemperandum est consuetudini rationabili tanquam legi. A reasonable custom is to be followed as law.
- Obtulit se. Offered himself. The words of appearance of a party entered on the record at common law where the other party failed to appear. Abbreviated, opp.
- Occupant. A person who is in the actual possession of property, whether the owner or not.
- Occupation. Actual possession; one's vocation or employment.
- Occupantis fuit derelicta. Things abandoned become the property of the first taker.
- Occupy. To possess; to control actually; to enjoy tangible property.
- Ochlocracy. Government by mob; the rule of the mob.
- Odiosa et inhonesta non sunt in lege praesumanda. Odious and dishonest acts are not to be presumed in law.
- Of counsel. A phrase used to indicate that one has been engaged to assist as counsel in an action in which others are also engaged.
- Of course. A term applicable to those steps in a legal proceeding which are so much a matter of established routine that no application to the court is necessary before taking them. Also, that which is granted by the court upon application without any further inquiry.
- Offence, or offense. A breach of the law; a punishable violation of the law of the land. A crime; a misdemeanor.
- Offer. A proposal to do a thing. In contracts, a proposal to enter into a contract, which when accepted by the party to whom made becomes binding.
- Office. A position of trust or authority, public or private, which confers a duty and a power. Also the place where business is transacted or carried on.
An office is a public station or employment, conferred by the appointment of government. The term embraces the ideas of tenure, duration, emolument and duties. A government office is different from a government contract. The latter, from its nature, is necessarily limited in its duration and specific in its objects. The terms agreed upon define the rights and obligations of both parties. A clerk appointed by a head of a department, under authority of law, holds an office. 6 Wall., 385.

In the abstract, the word office signifies a place of trust. In legal idea, an office is an entity, and may exist, though without an incumbent. 28 Cal., 382.

Judicial offices are those which relate to the administration of justice. Military offices are such as are held by soldiers and sailors for military purposes. Ministerial offices are those which give the officer no discretion as to the matter to be done, and require him to obey the mandates of a superior. Political offices are such as are not connected immediately with the administration of justice or the execution of the mandates of a superior officer. Thus the office of the President of the United States, heads of departments, members of the legislature, are of this class. Bouv.

Office-book. One kept in a public office, and authorized by the law of the state, other than those appertaining to a court.

Officer. The person who is invested with the power and duty of a position, in which he acts on behalf of the public, or other individuals.

Officer de facto. One who holds and exercises the functions of an office to which he has not a good and sufficient right as a matter of law.

Officer de jure. An officer who is clothed with the full legal right and title to the office, but who may be, by reason of the intrusion of some unauthorized person, out of the enjoyment of the office to which he is entitled.

One is said to be an officer de jure when he is clothed with full legal right and title to the office, though circumstances, such as the intrusion of an unauthorized person, may prevent his performance of the duties. He is officer de facto when, having some apparent authority or color of title, he is actually in the possession of the office, exercising its functions, though his election or appointment may be irregular, or the validity of his title disputed and undetermined. Usually both these characters concur. But when one person exercises the office de jure, while another is entitled de jure, the general rule is, that, as far as the public and the rights of third persons are concerned, acts of the officer de facto will be sustained. Abbott.

Official. Pertaining to or connected with a public office or appointment. An officer or the holder of an office.

Officina justitiæ. The workshop of justice. A term applied to the - English Chancery, from which the writs were issued.

- Officium nemini debet esse damnosum. An office ought to be injurious to no one.
- Offspring. The term includes any degree of lineal descendants, and is synonymous with issue.
- Old Style. The mode of reckoning time, which prevailed in England and the colonies, until the year 1752. It differed from the New Style, now in use, in the following particulars: The year commenced on the 25th of March, instead of, as now, on the 1st of January. The reckoning of days was based on the assumption that every fourth year was a leap year, instead of, as now, but 97 leap years in four hundred years. The New Style was introduced into the British dominions by Stat. 24, Geo. II., ch. 23, passed in 1751, and came into operation in the following year. It had prevailed in the Roman Catholic countries of the continent since the year 1582. Mozley & W.
- Oleron. A small island off the coast of France, which was anciently of considerable commercial importance. A maritime code called the "Laws of Oleron" was promulgated from here during the 12th century.
- Olograph. An instrument, as a will, written wholly by the person from whom it emanates. Also spelled holograph.
- Omne majus continet in se minus. The greater contains the less.
- Omne quod inaedificatur solo cedit. All that is built upon it belongs to the soil.
- Omnia performavit. He has performed all. A form of plea in bar where the covenants are in the affirmative.
- Omnia. All; everything.
- Omnia definitio in jure periculosa est. Every definition of law is dangerous. That is, law is difficult of definition, since every rule of law, almost, is subject to exception, and the difference of facts in each case make an exact rule difficult of application.
- Omnia exceptio est ipsa quoque regula. Every exception is itself also a rule.
- Omnia inovatio plus novitiate perturbat quam utilitate prodest. Every innovation disturbs more by its novelty than it benefits by its utility.
- Omnia rati habitio retrotrahitur et mandato aequiparatur. Every ratification relates back, and is equivalent to a command or an authority.
- Omne sacramentum debet esse de certa scientia. Every oath ought to be upon certain knowledge. This maxim is changed in modern practice as many oaths are only upon information and belief.
- Omne testamentum morte consummatum est. Every testament is made complete by death.
- Omnia praesumuntur contra spoliatorem. All things are to be presumed against a despoilee; i. e., as a maxim of evidence, an instrument will be presumed to contain matter against a person who has destroyed it.

Omnia praesumuntur rite esse acta. Everything is presumed to have been done in due form.

Omnia quae sunt uxoris sunt ipsius viri. All things which are the wife's are the husband's. A maxim expressing the common law rule that the property of the wife belongs to the husband after marriage.

On all fours. A common expression among lawyers to indicate that one case, or the case at bar, is identical with some other case, which is cited as a precedent.

On or about. A phrase used to indicate time so as to avoid the injurious effect of possible error.

On or before. This expression in a note or bill gives the payee the right to pay before the day named as the final day of payment.

Onerous. Oppressive. Burdensome.

Onomastic. A signature by another.

Onus probandi. The burden of proof. If no evidence is adduced by the party having the onus probandi the issue may be found against him.

It is a general rule that the party who alleges the affirmative of any proposition shall prove it. It is also a general rule that the onus probandi lies upon the party who seeks to support his case by a particular fact; for example, when to a plea of infancy the plaintiff replies a promise after the defendant had attained his age, it is sufficient for the plaintiff to prove the promise, and it lies on the defendant to show that he was not of age at the time. (1 Term, 648.) But where the negative involves a criminal omission by the party, and, consequently, where the law, by virtue of the general principle, presumes his innocence, the affirmative of the fact is also presumed. In general, wherever the law presumes the affirmative, it lies on the party who denies the fact to prove the negative. Bouv.

Oneris ferendi. Of bearing a burden. In the civil law, a servitude of support for the wall or weight of the adjoining structure.

Ope et consilio. By aid and counsel, civil law term for accessories.

Open account. An account which is yet fully open to be disputed, and has not been settled. Also refers to mutual dealings which are still continuing and have not been closed.

An open account is one in which some item of the contract is not settled by the parties, whether the account consists of one item or many; as where several loads of corn are sold at the same time, and delivered, and there is no stipulation as to the price, the account is open. 1 Ala., 62.

Opening. The beginning; the right to make the first address to a jury after the evidence is all in; the commencement.

Opening a judgment. In Pennsylvania practice, the act of the court in setting aside or annulling the effect of a judgment so far that it cannot be executed, although it still retains some qualities of a judgment, and operates as a lien upon the real estate of the defendant. In practice it is confined to judgment by default, and those entered on warrant of attorney to confess, and the like. It results from the courts in this state have both equitable and common law jurisdiction, and this opening of the judgment by default, is the same as a substitute for a bill in equity to enjoin proceedings at law. 49 Pa. St., 365; 6 W. & S., 493.

Opening a rule. The act of restoring or recalling a rule, which has been made absolute, to its conditional state, as a rule nisi, so as to readmit of cause being shown against the rule.

Operation of law. The effect of legal principles when applied to facts; the obligation of law; its practical workings and effect. A phrase signifying the acquisition of rights under the law.

Opinion. A judgment or decree of the court. The reasoning given for a conclusion of law or fact.

Opinion, concurring. One that agrees with another. Thus where there are two or more judges in a court and separate opinions are rendered they are called concurring and dissenting opinions.

Optima est lex quae minimum relinquit arbitrio iudicis; optimus iudex qui minimum sibi. That law is the best which leaves least to the discretion of the judge; that judge is the best who acts least upon his own (judgment) Broom, Max., 84.

Optimacy. A noble or privileged class; also a government by nobles or a privileged few.

Optimus. Best.

Optimus interpres rerum usus. The best interpreter of things is usage.

Option. In contracts, a right of election, or a choice between two things.

A contract by which A, in consideration of the payment of a certain sum to B, acquires the privilege of buying from or selling to B, specified securities or property at a fixed price within a certain time. 71 N. Y., 420. Stock market options are of three kinds, viz., "calls," "puts" and "straddles," or "spread eagles." A call gives A the option of calling or buying from B or not certain securities. A put gives A the option of selling or delivering to B or not. While a straddle is a combination of a put and a call, and secures to A the right to buy of, or sell to, B or not. Where neither party, at the time of making the contract, intends to deliver or accept the shares, but merely to pay the differences in values according to the rise or fall of the market, the contract is void both by statute and as being contrary to public policy. 89 Pa. St., 250; 71 N. Y., 420.

Optional writ. An original writ, the language of which is in the alter-

- native, directing the defendant to do a certain thing, or show cause why it should not be done. The usual form of a writ of mandamus.
- Opus magnificum, or manificum. Manual labor.
- Oral. Spoken, as distinguished from written, as oral evidence.
- Orator. The former designation of the plaintiff in chancery proceeding, who styled himself in addressing the chancellor as "your orator." A woman petitioner used the term "oratrix."
- Ordain. To institute, to clothe with authority; to appoint; to prescribe or enact.
- Ordeal. The most ancient species of trial, by which the accused was compelled to submit to fire and water, if he escaped without injury he was accounted innocent. The ordeal was based upon the notion that God would interfere miraculously to vindicate the guiltless.
- Order. Any command, direction or mandate from a court or superior authority. The formal paper or writ embodying any direction of a court or judge, other than a judgment or decree, and made to be entered of record, as one of the proceedings in a cause. Abbott.
- Ordinance. A statute or resolution or decree of any nature; most commonly applied to the laws enacted by the legislative authority of a municipal corporation.
- The distinction between an or-

- dinance and a statute as given in Bacon's Abridgment, Statute (A) is as follows. "Where the proceeding consisted only of a petition from parliament and an answer from the king, these were entered on the parliament roll; and if the matter was of a public nature, the whole was then styled an ordinance; if, however, the petition and answer were not only of a public, but a novel nature, they were then formed into an act by the king, with the aid of his council and judges, and entered on the statute roll." Coke Litt., 159b, Butler's note.
- Ordinary. Usual; something common or reasonable.
- Ordinary care. That degree of care which a person of ordinary prudence is presumed to use under the particular circumstances to avoid injury; it varies according to the danger to be avoided and the consequences which would result from neglect. 25 Ind. 185.
- Ordinary negligence. The want of such care and diligence as reasonably prudent men, generally, in regard to the subject-matter of inquiry, would use to prevent or avoid an injury. 49 Kan., 460.
- Ordinary skill. Such skill as a person conversant with the matter undertaken might be reasonably supposed to have. 15 Mass., 316.
- Ordination. In ecclesiastical law, the conferring of holy orders; initiating one into the priesthood.
- Ore tenua. By word of mouth. Verbally; or orally.

Organic law. The basic law or constitution of a state or country.

Original. From the beginning; spontaneous; not the result of imitation.

Original entry. The first series of entries made in the set of books of an account; the first charge of a thing in an account made at the time of the sale or transaction. Original entries are to be distinguished from subsequent entries made in other books as journals and ledgers.

Original jurisdiction. That authority to hear and determine cases in the first instance, and to try and determine the questions of fact involved, and apply the law, as distinguished from appellate jurisdiction.

Original package. A term used in several leading cases construing the commerce clause of the Constitution, and denoting the casing in which imported merchandise is kept and handled while in course of transportation, whether large or small.

The power to regulate or forbid the sale of a commodity after it has been brought into a state does not carry with it the right and power to prevent its introduction by transportation from another. 125 U. S., 465. It is held further in Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S., 100 (three judges dissenting), that a state statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, etc., is, as applied to a sale by an importer and in the original packages or kegs unbroken and unopened, of such liquor brought from another state, unconstitutional and void as repugnant to the commerce clause of the constitution. See for modification of this holding, 155 U. S., 461.

Original process. The first writ or summons for the purpose of getting the defendant into court.

Original writ. An original writ was the process formerly in use for the commencement of personal actions. It was a mandatory letter from the king, issuing out of chancery, sealed with the great seal, and directed to the sheriff of the county wherein the injury was committed, or was supposed to have been committed, requiring him to command the wrongdoer or accused party either to do justice to the plaintiff, or else to appear in court and answer the accusation against him. This writ is now disused, the writ of summons being the process prescribed by the uniformity of process act for commencing personal actions; and under the judiciary act, 1873, all suits even in the court of chancery, are to be commenced by such writs of summons. Brown.

Orphan. A child one or both of whose parents are deceased.

Orphan's Court. Courts in some of the American states which have more or less general probate jurisdiction. These courts exist in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Ostensible partner. One who holds himself out as a partner.

Oust. To eject; to remove from.

- Ouster. The act of putting one out of office, or from possession. Dispossession; eviction.
- Out-house. A small building adjoining or belonging to a dwelling house and within the curtilage.
- Outlaw. Beyond the protection of the law; a person who is put beyond the protection of law and stripped of his civil rights, because of committing offenses against the law.
- Outlawed. When applied to a note, signifies that it is barred by the statute of limitations.
- Out of court. At common law, unless a plaintiff filed his declaration within one year after the service of the summons, he was out of court, unless, by permission of the court, he had secured a longer time in which to file his declaration.
- Out of the state. Same as beyond sea, meaning that one is beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the court.
- Outrage. A general term signifying some heinous offense or particularly atrocious crime.
- Outstanding. Unsettled; uncollected; not discharged.
- Overdraft. A term signifying that one has drawn upon a bank or other place of credit more than one's deposit or credit there would justify.
- Overdue. Matured and unpaid commercial paper; past the time of payment. Dishonored.
- Overplus. The same as surplus; the residue, or remainder of a thing after some other claim or charge has been satisfied.
- Overrule. To deny a request or motion; to make a ruling or decision contrary to the one asked, or different from earlier precedents.
- Overt. Open; public. As applied to crimes it signifies an act which manifests the intention of the person by opening his designs.
- Owe. To be indebted to, or under obligations to another.
- Owely. Equality. The difference or sum which is paid by one of two joint owners, upon a partition of lands which cannot be quite equally divided, in order to equalize the respective shares.
- Owner. One who has the dominion and title to a thing.
Although there can be but one absolute owner of a thing, there may be a qualified ownership of the same thing by many. Thus, a bailor has the general ownership of the thing bailed, the bailee the special ownership. The word owner, when used alone, imports an absolute owner; but it has been held in Ohio that the word owner, in the mechanics' lien law, includes the owner of the leasehold as well as of the reversion, on the ground that any other construction would be subversive of the policy and intent of the statute. 2 Ohio, 123.
- Owner, joint. One owning or holding property with another or others.
- Own motion. In law signifies voluntarily; without compulsion or suggestion from another.

Oyer. A law French term signifying to hear. A hearing or trial; a plea or prayer that a deed or instrument in writing may be read in court. A request for the production of an instrument in writing.

Oyer and terminer. A phrase meaning hear and determine. A class of courts having original criminal jurisdiction.

Oyes or Oyez. Hear; hear ye. The introductory word repeated by the court prior to opening court.

P.

Pace. A measure of distance, being two and one-half feet. The common term "pace" signifies the distance or length of a step; while a geometrical pace is the length of two steps or the whole space passed over by the same foot from one step to another. See Bouv.

Pacific blockade. A means of coercion employed by nations separately or by joint action, not involving a declaration of war, but simply to enforce some measure, or enforce some regulation. Thus Great Britain and Germany united in a pacific blockade of the ports in order to break up the slave trade and stop the importation of arms on the east coast of Africa.

Pack. This word is used to signify the attempt to control a jury by putting in the panel the friends or adherents of the accused; such a jury is said to be packed. To deceive; or false appearances; to counterfeit.

Package, original. The wrapping or case in which merchandise is put for the purpose of transportation. Under court decisions commodities while in the original package are not subject to certain police regulations, as the laws prohibiting the sale of liquor.

Pact. An agreement.

Pacta privata jure publico derogare non possunt. Private agreements cannot detract from the public law or statute.

Pactum constitutae pecuniae. In the civil law, an agreement for the payment of money which one owes to a creditor.

- Par, at. Term indicating that the price on the market is the same as the face value of the commodity.
- Paravail. Below; of inferior rank.
- Par oneri. Equal to the burden or damage.
- Par value. Face value, or the original price at which stock is issued.
- Parachronism. A mistake in the computation of time.
- Paramount. Superior. Of higher quality.
- Parapherna. A civil law term for the property of a wife other than her dowry.
- Paraphernalia. The Anglicized term for parapherna. The articles belonging to a wife outside of her dowry, such as apparel and ornaments.
- Paratum habeo. I have him in readiness. Common law return of the sheriff signifying that he has the defendant ready to be brought into court.

Paratus est verificare. He is ready to verify.

Parcels. Distinct portions. A term applied to land described by its boundaries as set forth in a conveyance or deed.

Parcener. A co-tenant or co-parcener.

Pardon. An act of grace or forgiveness on the part of a sovereign or government to one who has been convicted of a crime, thereby releasing such person from further punishment. An act of clemency on the part of the executive releasing an offender from the penalties prescribed for his wrongdoing.

An absolute pardon is one which frees the criminal without any condition whatever.

A conditional pardon is one to which a condition is annexed, performance of which is necessary to the validity of the pardon.

A general pardon is one which extends to all offenders of the same kind. It may be express, as when a general declaration is made that all offenders of a certain class shall be pardoned, or implied, as in the case of the repeal of a penal statute. Bouv.

Parens patriae. Father of the country. A phrase expressing the relation of the sovereign to the subject, by virtue of which he has a sort of guardianship over persons under certain legal disabilities.

Parent. The father or mother.

Parent and child. A phrase signifying the legal relation arising between a parent and child.

Parliamentary law. That body of the recognized usages of parliamentary and legislative assemblies by which their procedure is regulated, which takes its name from the British parliament and on the practice of which it is mainly founded, with such changes and modifications in American deliberative bodies as has been necessary to adapt it to the usages of this country. Bouv.

Parol. Not in writing; not under seal. Also orally or by word of mouth.

Parol is often used as if precisely equivalent to "oral" and "verbal." We think, however, there is a justification in usage, and very great convenience in distinguishing the various words in this group, as follows: Verbal should mean that which is embodied in language, as distinguished from that which is implied or imputed, and irrespective of whether the language is written or not. Oral should mean that which has been expressed in speech only, and not embodied in writing; it negatives writing. Parol should mean that which may or may not be in writing, but which need not be in writing; the writing is accidental, not a prescribed or necessary formality. Abbott.

Parol agreement. An agreement made orally; not in writing. Also an agreement which is in writing but not under seal. See Abbott.

Parol arrest. One ordered by a court or magistrate for the detention of a person for the commission of an offense in the presence of a court.

Parol demurrer. A plea to delay proceedings in an action because one of the parties interested is an infant, and the purpose of same is to delay the trial of the action until such minor arrives at majority.

Parol evidence. Evidence given orally by a witness. Also evidence that need not be in writing; evidence outside of or independent of a written instrument.

Parol lease. One which is written but not under seal. The rental of property upon an oral agreement.

Parole. The giving liberty to a prisoner on his promise that he will not escape or if a war prisoner, on his oath that he will not again take up arms against his captors. Also a system by which offenders are released from prison before the expiration of their sentence, on their agreement to report at stated times to the officials, and are subject to be returned to prison if they violate the conditions of their parole.

Parricide. One who has committed a murder of his parent. The murder of a parent or ancestor. Under the civil and French law this offense was a specific crime and received an aggravated punishment. It included mother-killing also.

Para. A part; party.

Particeps criminis. One who participates in the crime with another; an accomplice. The term is also used to signify one who assists or participates in a fraud or tort.

Particular estate. An estate which is carved out of a larger, and which precedes a remainder, as, an estate for years to A, remainder to B for life; or, an estate for life to A, remainder to B in tail; this precedent estate is called the particular estate, and the tenant of such estate is called the particular tenant. Bouv.; 2 Bl. Com. 165.

Particularity. In pleading, signifies the setting forth of matters with great carefulness and with reference to all the details.

Particular lien. The right which a person has to retain specific property for money or labor expended on such property. 21 Wend. 14.

Particulars. Details; the items of a bill or claim.

Particulars of sale. Those conditions of a sale at auction which give the terms and conditions upon which the sale is to take place.

Parties. Those having a direct interest in a controversy; the ones concerned in an act or transaction.

Parties and privies. Parties to a deed or contract are those with whom the deed or contract is actually made or entered into. By the term privies, as applied to contracts, is frequently meant those between whom the contract is mutually binding, although not literally parties to such contract. Thus, in the case of a lease, the lessor and lessee are both parties and privies, the contract being literally made between the two, and also being mutually binding; but if the lessee assigns his interest to a third party, then a privity arises between the assignee and the original lessor, although such assignee is not literally a party to the original lease. Brown.

Partition. A division; an allotment of shares. Term signifies the right or the proceedings to enforce the right, which the joint owners of real property have to compel a division of the land held in common.

Partner. A member of a partnership. One who is associated with others in business, and who has a joint interest therein, and shares the profits and losses with them.

Partner, nominal. One who is such in name only and has no real interest in the concern.

Partner, silent. One who takes no active interest in the control of the firm business.

Partnership. That status or legal relation which exists between persons who have united their common property in a business or undertaking, and agreed to share the profits and losses in a certain proportion.

A relation founded upon a contract between two or more persons to do business as individuals on a joint undivided account. Bouv.

Partnership is a contract of two or more competent persons to place their money, effects, labor and skill, or some or all of them, in lawful commerce or business, and to divide the profits and bear the loss in certain propositions. 3 Kent Com. 23.

Partnership, articles of. The contract or instrument in writing which evidences formation of a partnership.

Part owner. One of several persons who own property together, or in common.

Part performance. The doing some part or portion, but not the whole, of what either party to a contract has stipulated to do. Under the statute of frauds, part performance saves the contract from being declared invalid; and also enables the party performing in part to enforce specific performance by the other.

Parturition. Giving birth to a child.

Parus sequitur ventrem. The offspring follows the womb. A maxim of the civil law, signifying that the ownership of the young of animals belongs to him who owns the mother. Under slavery this rule was followed; so that the child of a female slave was born into slavery, notwithstanding the fact that the father of the child was free.

Party. One who is interested or connected with an act, contract or suit. A participant or sharer in anything.

A person concerned or having or taking part in any affair, matter, transaction, or proceeding, considered individually; also, a side or part, composed of one or more individuals. Burrill.

- Pedis possessio. A civil law term signifying placing the foot, or taking actual possession of landed property.

Peer. Originally an equal in rank or station. In modern English law, members of the nobility are called peers.

Peine. Punishment.

Peine forte et dure. Severe and hard punishment. Anciently, a species of punishment or torture inflicted upon one for standing mute, and refusing to plead to an indictment or felony.

In 2 Reeve, Hist. Eng. Law, 134, the method of punishment is described as follows: Time was given for reflection and often the unfortunate was subjected to entreaties of friends and others, but if he remained obdurate he was adjudged to suffer peine forte et dure. The judgment was that he return from whence he came, to a low dungeon into which no light could enter; he was to be laid down, naked, on his back, on the ground, his feet and head and loins covered, his arms and legs drawn apart by cords tied to posts, a sharp stone under his back, and as much weight of iron or stone as he could bear, or more than he could bear, placed on his chest. He was to have the next day three morsels of barley bread, without drink; the next, three draughts, as much each time as he could drink, of the nearest stagnant water to the prison, without bread; and such was to be his diet on alternate days, till he died. This punishment was vulgarly called pressing to death. This method of coercing a plea was not abolished in England until 1772, and at least one case of such punishment occurred in America in colonial days.

Pelagic sealing. The killing of seals in the open sea.

Penal. Relating to punishment or suffering; an infliction of loss or punishment as a matter of restraint or sanction. The word is also used as a synonym for criminal.

Penal action. An expression signifying a suit to collect a penalty imposed by law.

Penal clause. That part or subdivision of a statute in which the sanction or punishment given for its enforcement is stated.

Penal sum. The amount stated as a forfeiture in a bond or penal bill.

Penalty. (1) punishment or a fine; (2) the money recovered or to be recovered under a penal statute; (3) the amount to be forfeited as stated in a bond.

Penance. An act involving shame or suffering, which a convict is required to perform by way of punishment. Penance is self-inflicted, being compelled by ecclesiastical censure.

Penance is an ecclesiastical punishment used in the discipline of the church, which affects the body of the penitent, by which he is obliged to give a public satisfaction to the church for the scandal he has given by his evil example. Thus, for incontinence, the offender is usually enjoined to do a public penance in the parish church, bareheaded and barefooted, in a white sheet, and to

- make open profession of his crime in a prescribed form of words, which is augmented or moderated according to the quality of the offense and the discretion of the judge. Wharton.
- Pendens. Pending.
- Pendens lite. During litigation; or pending the suit.
- Pendens lite nihil innovetur. Pending a suit nothing should be changed. That is, all persons are bound to notice a pending suit and take subject to the rights to be established under it.
- Penitentiary. A prison, or place for the confinement of persons convicted of crime.
- Pension. In civil law, an annual rent. A periodical amount allowed a person by the government in consideration of past services or dangers undergone or for injuries received.
- Per. By; during; through.
- Per aversionem. By turning away. A civil law term signifying a sale of goods in bulk, and not by weight or measure. Similar to common law expression "in bulk" or "by the lump."
- Per capita. By heads; according to the whole number of individuals.
- Per contra. To the contrary; on the contrary. On the other side of the account.
- Per curiam. By the court. A decision by the judge.

- Per quod. By which; whereby.
- Per quod consortium amisit. By which he lost her company.
- Per quod servitium amisit. By which he lost her (or his) services. This phrase was used in declarations at common law in trespass by a master for an injury to his servant, and introduced the averment of loss of service for which damages were demanded. The phrase also came to be used as designating this class of actions. It was also the usual remedy by a father for the seduction of his daughter, the relief being demanded on the basis of loss of service.
- Per se. By itself; in itself.
- Per stirpe. By stock; by roots; by right of representation. A civil law term, used in the modern law of distribution and descent, indicating that the distributees take according to the interest which their ancestors would take if living. The phrase is used in distinction from per capita.
- Per testes. By witnesses.
- Per universitatem. By the whole or as an entirety.
- Per verba de praesenti. By words in the present tense. A phrase

- signifying a method of contracting marriage at common law.
- Per verba de futuro. By words in the future tense. A common law mode of contracting marriage if followed by consummation or a living together.
- Peremptory. Absolute; decisive; obligatory. A final decision or a determination to act without doubt or question.
- Peremptory challenge. A privilege or right allowed a party at the trial, of objecting to a person called as a juror, and having such person withdrawn without assigning any cause for the challenge. The number of peremptory challenges is regulated by statute, and is uniform in civil cases but differs as to the higher crimes, more peremptory challenges being allowed in capital cases.
- Peremptory mandamus. The second writ in a mandamus case, the first usually being in the alternative form. The peremptory writ commands the doing of the act absolutely, and admits of no alternative.
- Peremptory plea. One that if substantiated destroys the right of action, such as a plea in bar, or to the merits of the action. The term issued in contradistinction to dilatory pleas which simply delay or retard the case, and do not go to raise an issue on the merits. Peremptory pleas are also styled pleas in bar, while dilatory pleas are pleas in abatement.
- Peremptory rule. An order of court which must be complied with promptly and fully, without opportunity of argument or hearing in opposition.
- Perfect. To complete; without defect.
- Perform. To carry out or execute. To do something.
- Performance. The act of doing something; the thing done. Is said to be synonymous with fulfillment.
- Periculum rei venditæ, nondum traditæ, est emptoris. The risk of a thing sold, while undelivered, is the purchaser's.
- Peril. In insurance law, the risk, contingency, or cause of loss insured against by the policy.
- Perils of the sea. Such perils as are strictly the natural accidents peculiar to the water, and not caused by the fault of man; but under the law phrase includes some things not strictly resulting from natural causes, as captures by pirates and collisions, which are not caused by the fault of either ship.
- All marine casualties resulting from the violent action of the elements, as distinguished from their natural, silent influence upon the fabric of the vessel. 74 Fed. Rep. 413. It is a loss happening in spite of all human effort and sagacity. 2 Kent Com. 597.
- Periodical. Occurring at regular intervals of time.
- Perishable. Such articles as are subject to speedy and natural decay. A statutory authority to sell

- perishable property which has been seized on an attachment, should be limited to such goods as are liable to perish before the time arrives at which they might be sold in regular course of the proceedings. 31 Conn. 495.
- Perishable goods. Such as will not keep, or become damaged or destroyed if not made use of quickly.
- Perjury. The offense committed by one who having taken an oath or affirmation, lawfully imposed, to testify truly, wilfully makes a material assertion believed to be untrue. Abbott.
- Perjury is a corrupt, wilful, false oath, taken in a judicial proceeding, in regard to a matter material to a point involved in the proceeding. This oath must be taken before some officer or court having authority to administer it, and he must confine his action to the authority given. And it is competent to show that the accused might have been led into a mistake; for then the oaths, though untruthful, cannot have been perjury. 44 A. L. A. 81.
- Perjury, subornation of. The offense of procuring another to commit perjury.
- Permanent abode. The usual and habitual home of a person, and to which a person intends to return when absent for any reason.
- Permission. A license or authority to do an act, which cannot be legally done without such authority.

- Perpetual injunction. An injunction which is not merely temporary or provisional, and which cannot be dissolved except by appeal, or some proceeding in the nature of an appeal.
- Perpetuating testimony. A mode by which testimony of aged or sickly persons or those liable to go beyond the jurisdiction may be reduced to writing and preserved for future legal proceedings. The proceeding is regulated by statute in the various states.
- Perpetuity. Technically, a perpetuity signifies any limitation or restriction upon the alienation of land or the investment of money which will continue the benefits thereof to the enjoyment of the persons in a particular line of descent. Such restrictions for a longer period than a life or lives in being, and twenty-one years thereafter, are illegal and void as against public policy, and are called perpetuities.

Perquisites. (1) The profits of an office or station. (2) Those things which a man obtains of his own industry, or by purchase, as distinguished from those which he acquires by descent.

Person. A broader term than man, including any human being, association, or organized corporation recognized as possessing rights and duties under the law.

Person, natural. Any human being, male or female; the term is used to distinguish individuals from artificial persons such as corporations, etc.

Persona conjuncta aequiparatur interesse proprio. A close relationship or united personality is equivalent to one's own interest. One of Bacon's maxims, which he explains as follows. "The law hath that respect of nature and conjunction of blood, as in divers cases it compareth and matcheth nearness of blood with consideration of profit and interest, yea, and in some cases alloweth of it more strongly. So, if a man menace me, that he will imprison or hurt in body my father or my child, except I make unto him an obligation, I shall avoid this duress as well as if the duress had been to my own person." Bac. Max.

Personal. Pertaining to the person; that which belongs to an individual, or human being. Also that which is done in person.

Personal action. An action for the recovery of personal property, or the enforcement of a contract, or damages growing out of acts or neglects of duty by persons. Term is used to distinguish such actions from actions in rem.

Personal assets. Personal property; chattels, money and contracts, as distinguished from real property.

Personal injury. An injury inflicted upon one's person or body as opposed to injuries affecting his property or reputation.

Personal property. This term includes all property of a movable or personal nature, as well as rights or interests in land which are less than a freehold. Chattels; personalty.

Personal representatives. Executors or administrators of the deceased person.

Personal security. A term which signifies a safety or protection of the individual under the law. Also, a security for a debt which looks to the individual as distinguished from those which are liens on land.

Personalty. Personal property; movables, the opposite of real property.

Personalty signifies generally any personal property, in contradistinction to realty, which signifies real property. In our old law, an action was said to be in the personalty when it was brought for damages out of the personal estate of the defendant.

Personalty is either pure or mixed. Pure personalty is personalty unconnected with land; mixed personalty is a personal interest in land, or connected therewith. The distinction is important with reference to the statutes of mortmain, as pure personalty is not within the operation of those statutes. Mozley & W.

Pertinent. Relevant; important or material.

Perverse verdict. A return by a jury of a verdict which is contrary to the law as given by the court.

Petit. Small; the lesser of two.

Petit or petty jury. The lesser jury. The ordinary jury of twelve persons, for the trial of causes as distinguished from the grand jury, usually consisting of a greater number of persons.

Petit, or petty larceny. Small larceny. At common law the stealing of property of less value than twelve pence was distinguished from stealing things of greater value, and punished less severely. The distinction has maintained in modern statutes, though the amount varies in the several states.

Petit, or petty, treason. The killing of a person in authority by an inferior was, in early English law, styled petit treason, as it involved somewhat the element of breach of allegiance, so prominent in high treason. See 4 Bl. Com. 89, 203, 204. This crime is now murder only.

Petition. A formal written application made to a superior authority or to a court of law, setting forth a statement of facts and praying for relief.

Petition of rights. A parliamentary declaration of the liberties of the people, assented to by King Charles I., in 1629. In English law, also a proceeding in the chancery by a subject to recover property from the possession of the king.

Petitioning creditor. Proceedings in compulsory or involuntary bankruptcy are commenced upon the petition of some creditor or creditors, setting up the facts of the debtor's insolvency and asking that he be adjudged bankrupt and his property distributed among the creditors, the creditor or creditors so petitioning are styled the petitioning creditors.

Petitory. In admiralty and civil law practice, suits which involve and litigate only the title to property are called petitory, in distinction from those which seek to recover the possession, and are hence called possessory actions. 1 Kent Com. 371.

Pettifogger. A term applied to a lawyer whose knowledge of the law is limited, or one whose business is in connection with small or petty cases. Also one who resorts to dishonest or unjustifiable methods or sharp practice.

Pew. A seat in a church, separate from all others, with a convenient place to stand therein. Bouv. It is an incorporeal interest in the real property. The pewholder does not own the soil. 32 Barb. 234.

Phrenasthenia. A morbid condition, also known as the insanity of the degenerates, used to indicate the general mental infirmity of degenerates, or individuals with vices of organization who are insane, but whose insanity presents special characteristics growing out of mental infirmity. It is usually hereditary and congenital. 2 Clevenger, Med. Jur. 856.

Physical examination. The examination of one's person allowed by court under circumstances where the matter in dispute cannot be otherwise fairly determined. It has been allowed in both civil and criminal cases from early times, but the rule is quite restricted in criminal cases except by the consent of the accused.

sentation of a note or bill for acceptance of payment.

Presents. A word used in legal documents as a deed, signifying the deed itself, and is expressed by the phrase "these presents." Burrill explains that it is taken immediately from the Latin praesentes, which was used with literae, as formal words of description in the old conveyances. Omnibus ad quos praesentes literae pervenerint, salutem, to all to whom the present letters shall come, greeting. The word literae was sometimes suppressed; thus, pateat universis per praesentes. This led to the use of the word praesentes as a substantive, and ultimately to the English word presents, its plural form; as, "know all men by these presents." Abbott.

President. The common designation or title of a presiding officer of a meeting or assembly; also the title of an executive officer. The chief executive officer of the United States.

Presiding Judge. A presiding judge; a title used in some states to indicate the law judge as distinguished from the lay judges who sit with him.

Presidential Electors. The persons elected in the various states as prescribed by the Constitution and whose duty it is to select the President and Vice-President of the U. S. It is for these electors that the direct vote is cast, but they always vote for the party candidate by whom they are nominated. Their number in each state corresponds to the number of representatives and senators to which the state is entitled in Congress.

Presidential Succession Act. The Act of Congress of Jan. 19, 1886, is so called, and provides that in case of the death or disability of the President and Vice-President, the heads of the executive departments shall become the chief magistrate in the following order: Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, Attorney General, Postmaster General, Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of the Interior.

Prison breach. The offence of breaking out of prison, or escaping therefrom when lawfully in custody. Also, perhaps, the breaking into a prison for the purpose of rescuing a prisoner.

Prisoner. One lawfully confined in a public prison or place of detention. A person deprived of his liberty, or held in confinement against his will.

Prisoner at the bar. An accused person while on trial is so called.

Prisoner of war. A term signifying that one has been captured while regularly enrolled in the army or navy, as opposed to those whose acts of hostility would not be recognized by the rules of international law as warfare.

Privacy. The right of privacy has been defined as the right of an individual to withhold himself and his property from public scrutiny, if he so chooses. The doctrine is of recent growth, and is as yet insufficiently defined. It is said to be incapable of exact definition, and to exist only so far as its assertion is consistent with law or public policy, and in a proper case equity will interfere if there is no remedy at law, to prevent an injury threatened by the invasion of, or infringement upon, this right from motives of curiosity, gain or malice. Such remedy has been invoked to prevent the publication of oral lectures delivered by a professor; 12 App. Cas. 326; 3 L. J. Ch. 209; or copies of private drawings and etchings; 1 McN. & G. 25; or a letter in the possession of a person by whom it was received, without the writer's consent, where the publication is not necessary for the vindication of the receiver or the public interest; 2 Ves. & B. 19; a telegram of a private nature; 50 How. Pr. 194; or a photograph by the photographer; 40 Ch. Div. 345; 64 Fed. Rep. 280. But such publication of a photograph or portrait will not be prevented where the person is a "public character," such as a foremost inventor of world-wide reputation; 64 Fed. Rep. 280, reversing 57 id. 434, on this point. Bouvier.

Private. That which affects or belongs to individuals, and does not concern the general public. Also, a private person, or private capacity, signifying a person without official position.

Privilege. An exemption or release from burdens to which others are subject; superior right or favor allowed an individual different from the common rule.

Privilege from arrest. An exemption which the law accords to some persons from liability to be arrested. It is a permanent right of ambassadors and public ministers and their families and servants, and in England of the royal family and servants, and of peers and peeresses. It is accorded, temporarily, to members of congress, of state legislatures, and of the house of commons—that is, during the sessions of their houses, and while going and returning—and to some other classes varying in different jurisdictions; but attorneys, solicitors, counsellors, parties, and witnesses in attendance on the courts, generally enjoy it. The privilege is not absolute, as respects all causes of arrest; but many of the classes of persons named may be arrested for some of the higher crimes, or to require surety of the peace. Abbott.

Privileged communication. (1) In the law of libel and slander, means that the matter communicated, although aspersive and false, is not actionable, for the reason that the circumstances under which it was published or uttered gave the defendant a right to make it known. The chief grounds of such privilege are: That the defendant was the master of the plaintiff and spoke the words to him while the relation was continuing. That the defendant spoke or wrote the words as part of a character, which he was requested to give the plaintiff. That the words were a fair comment upon an author or speaker. That the defendant had a pecuniary interest, direct or indirect, in the business, with reference to which the words were spoken.

(2) In the law of evidence, a communication is often called privileged, with the meaning that the person to whom it was made cannot be compelled to disclose it, on examination as a witness in a court of justice. Abbott.

A writ, for returning for further procedure in the lower court, a matter which has been taken to a superior court and has been found not entitled to consideration on the grounds alleged for its removal. In English practice, the writ was issued to a court from the chancery to compel an inferior court to proceed and render judgment in an action.

Procedure. The method of carrying on legal proceedings. The rules, of evidence, practice, etc., by which remedies are made effective in courts of law or equity.

This word is commonly opposed to the sum of legal principles constituting the substance of the law, and denotes the body of rules, whether of practice or pleading, whereby rights are effectuated through the successful application of the proper remedies. It generally comprehends practice and pleading, but excludes evidence, and the law of substantive rights and wrongs, or the rules upon which the claims of parties are ultimately decided. Abbott.

Process. In practice, the means of compelling the defendant to appear in court, after suing out the original writ, in civil, and after indictment, in criminal, cases. Bouv. Strictly, the mandate of the court to the officer, commanding him to do certain things or perform certain services within his official cognizance. Abbott.

Prochein ami. Next friend. The individual by whom a person under disability, as an infant, prosecutes an action.

- Quilibet. Any one who will; any person without distinction; whoever will.
- Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se introducto. One may renounce a right established for his own benefit.
- Quinto exactus. Called the fifth time. The form and name of a return by the sheriff at common law, importing in proceedings for outlawry, that a defendant has been proclaimed and called in five county courts successively, and failed to appear; upon which he was outlawed. Abbott.
- Quisque. Every; every one.
- Quisque utitur jure auctoris. Every one exercises the right of him from whom the right is derived.
- Quitclaim. A release or acquittance; a surrender of title or claim.
- Quit-rent. A rent of land, so called anciently because the tenant thereby went free and quit of other services to the lord.
- Quittance. A release or discharge.
- Quivis. Any; any one; every one.
- Quivis praesumitur bonus donec probetur contrarium. Every one is presumed innocent until the contrary is proved. This principle or maxim, is styled "the golden rule of lawyers."
- Quo animo. With what intention.
- Quo jure. By what right.
- Quo minus. By which less.
- Quo warranto. A prerogative writ by which the question, by what authority a person claiming or usurping an office, franchise or privilege, is litigated. It compels the party in the office or claiming it to show what right he has to exercise the same, and installs the person entitled in the office.
- Quoad. Concerning; in respect of; as to.
- Quoad hoc. As to this; as regards the matter in question. Signifies in legal reports, that the law is as stated.
- Quod. For that; for the reason that; because.
- Quod ab initio non valet, tractu temporis non convalescet. What from the beginning is invalid does not gain validity by lapse of time.

Quod computet. That he account.

Quod cum. That whereas for that whereas. Technical words used in common law pleading introducing matters of inducement.

Quod fieri debet, facile præsumitur. What ought to be done is easily presumed.

Quod non apparet, non est. What does not appear, is not.

Quod nullius est fit domini regis. What is the property of no one becomes the property of the sovereign.

Quod nullius est, id ratione naturali occupanti conceditur. What is the property of no one is, by natural reason, given to the occupant. A maxim of the civil law, also adapted into the common law.

Quod sub certa forma concessum vel reservatum est, non trahitur ad valorem vel compensationem. What is granted or reserved under a certain form is not to be made the subject of valuation or compensation. One of Lord Bacon's maxims, which he explains as follows: "The law permitteth every man to part with his own interest and to qualify his own grant as it pleaseth himself, and therefore doth not admit any allowance or recompense, if the thing be not taken as granted."

Quorum. Of whom. As a substantive it signifies the number of persons belonging to a legislative, corporate, or other body, whose presence is necessary to the proper transaction of business by that body. The number is determined by some constitution, statute or rule which governs.

Quota. The proportion of a total amount which is to be borne by the individual.

Quoties in verbis nulla est ambiguitas, ibi nulla expositio contra verba fienda est. So long as there is no ambiguity in the language of an instrument, no interpretation contrary to the language is allowed.

Quum duo inter se pugnancia reperiuntur in testamento, ultimum ratum est. When repugnant things are found in a will the last of the two shall stand.

Quum principalis causa non consistit, ne ea quidem quae sequuntur locum habent. When the principal subject-matter ceases to exist, those things which follow it have no longer any place.

R

Racing. The offering of prizes or purses of a definite sum by a racing association to be awarded to the successful horses in a race, and to be paid out of the general funds of the association, made up in part of entrance fees paid by the owners of the competing horses, is not a violation of the constitutional provision against gambling. 6 Park Cr. Rep. 256.

Rack-rent. An exorbitant rent; one that nearly equals the profits of the property rented.

Radius. The distance from the center of a circle to the circumference; also a straight line drawn from the center to any point in the circumference of a circle.

Raffle. A kind of lottery.

Railroad. A graded road, fitted with ties and iron rails for the wheels of the locomotive and cars to run upon. They are not public highways, but the public or state has such an interest in their control and regulation as to be able to fix maximum rates to be charged and make other regulations in regard to their operation and charges.

A road graded and having rails of iron or other material for the wheels of railroad cars to run upon. Bouvier. The question has been mooted whether the general term railroad includes horse or street railroads, or is confined to those run by steam. The decisions differ; and the rule seems to be that, in this respect, the meaning depends on the context and general intent.

Railroad property. The property which is essential to a railroad company to enable it to discharge its functions and duties as a common carrier by rail. It includes the road bed, right of way, tracks, bridges, stations, rolling stock, and such like property. Lands owned and held for sale, or other disposition for profit, and in no way connected with the use or operation of the railroad, are not railroad property in the sense mentioned, but are property of the company independently of its functions and duties as a common carrier. 47 Fed. Rep. 681.

Raise. To bring into existence; to create or establish.

Raising a promise. When it is said that the law "raises a promise," or "raises an assumpsit," upon any given transaction, it is meant that a promise, for breach of which an action may be brought, is legally involved in, or to be inferred from, the transaction in question.

Raising a use. Creating, establishing or bringing a use or trust into existence.

Range. In public land laws and surveys, range indicates a row of townships between meridian lines. A base line and a meridian line are drawn through each other at right angles, the first line running east and west, and the second north and south. Townships are numbered north and south of the base line and east and west of the principal meridian. The range is east or west of the meridian, and the number of the range gives the location of the township as regards this meridian line. In describing the land in the U. S. system of public land surveys, the section number is given, there being 36 of these sections in each township, the number of the township

- north or south of the base line, and the number of the range east or west of the principal meridian.
- Ranger. An old English officer of the forest.
- Ransom. A sum of money paid for a pardon, or release from imprisonment or punishment. In international law, the sum paid for the release of prisoners captured or property taken during hostilities.
- Rape. The offence committed by a man in having carnal knowledge of a woman forcibly and unlawfully against her will. Actual violence is not necessary to constitute the crime under modern statutes, so that the commission of the offence by the use of drugs to overcome the victim, or under duress, of threats of bodily harm, constitutes rape.
- Rape, statutory. A statutory offence consisting of having carnal knowledge of a female under the age of consent, with or without her consent.
- Rasure. Removing letters or words from an instrument by scraping off the ink. A species of erasure, or alteration of a written instrument.
- Rate. A valuation or assessment put upon property or articles to determine how much of a common or public burden each shall pay. A per cent or proportion of a thing as a tax rate, poor rate, etc.
- Rate of exchange. The rate or amount paid to procure the cash for an order or bill drawn upon another place or country.
- Ratification. A confirmation or acceptance of a previous act. The sanction and adoption of what has been done without previous authority.
- Ratio. A reason or cause; also, an account. Relative amount.
- Ratio legis est anima legis. The reason of the law is the soul of the law.
- Rattening. The offense of trying to coerce a workman to join a labor union or trades union by taking away his tools, and the like.
- Ravish. To rape.
- Re, or in re. In the matter of; in the case of.
- Real. In common-law jurisprudence this word generally signifies landed property; having the attributes of permanency and immobility which distinguishes the soil; connected with or relating to land, or estate in land. In the civil law the meaning is more comprehensive, corresponding with the derivation from rea. It distinguishes things, movable or immovable, from persons, and means connected with or relating to things. Thus a real injury is any tort to lands or chattels, not to the person; a real statute is one which relates to things, not to persons.
- Real contract. A contract relating to or arising out of matters connected with realty.

- Real property. Land, and immovable things akin to land.
- Realty. A term sometimes used as a collective noun for real property or estate—more generally to imply that that of which it is spoken is of the nature or character of real property or estate. Bouv.
- Re-argument. A second argument or hearing granted to the same points at issue.
- Reasonable. Agreeing with reason; just and proper under the circumstances. Sufficient or proper.
- Reasonable care, or diligence. Such attention or pains as is fit and proper under the circumstances, having regard to the nature of the act or duty involved.
- Reasonable doubt. An expression referring to the state of mind which precludes the court or jury from finding an accused person guilty. It is hard to define, and is stated to be best understood without definition. It does not mean a mere possible doubt, and is said to be that state of the case which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in that condition that they cannot say they feel an abiding conviction to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge.
- Reasonable skill. Such ability as is customary or usual among those who are authorized to act in a similar capacity or calling.
- Reasonable time. A phrase indicating that a thing is to be done within a time which by the circumstances and usages of the business will be considered right and proper.
- Rebate. An allowance in the way of discount or drawback of money that has been paid. The reduction of an amount due.
- Rebel. A citizen or subject who unjustly and unlawfully takes up arms against the constituted authorities of the nation, to deprive them of the supreme power, either by resisting their lawful and constitutional orders in some particular matter or to impose on them conditions. Vattel.
- Rebut. To contradict; to oppose by evidence or allegations.
- Rebuttal. Refutation. The evidence introduced by the plaintiff to refute testimony of the defendant.
- Rebutter. The answer of a defendant to the surrejoinder of the plaintiff, in common law pleading.
- Recall. To revoke or countermand. The depriving a diplomat or representative of his official functions. To replace him by another representative. Also, one of the features of direct legislation, which is made up of the initiative, or the right of the general public to begin laws by petition, the referendum, which is the right to have all laws, or certain of them submitted to the people before they shall become operative, and the recall which is the right of the people to withdraw their authority from their officers or delegates at any time that his action shall not meet with their approval, instead of allowing him to hold for a definite time.

Reception. 1. The taking of a person who has escaped from former arrest. 2. A remedy by the act of the party injured, by recovering with his own hand property wrongfully detained or taken, or releasing a wife or child from the control of another.

Recapture. The recovery of property which has been previously taken in war as a prize.

Receipt. A written acknowledgment of payment or delivery. The act of receiving.

Receipts. Money received; income.

Receiver. In equity practice, an officer appointed by a court to take charge of property or funds while in litigation and do such acts as are necessary to preserve or convert them into money for proper adjustment and distribution.

Receivers' certificates. Acknowledgments of indebtedness issued by a receiver under the order of the court by which he was appointed, either directly in discharge of obligations incurred in the management of the property, or for borrowing money for the maintenance and operation of the property, and redeemable out of its proceeds. They may be made a lien on the property when that is necessary for its proper management and operation in the interest of all who may be concerned in it, as directed in the order under which they are issued, and are usually made a first charge on the fund in the receiver's hands, after payment of the operating expenses. Bouvier.

Recesses. The intervals when the court is not open or engaged in the transaction of business.

Recession. A re-grant or return of land or territory to a government which formerly held it by another country or state.

Reciprocity. Mutuality; the doing something in return for a like act from another person or country. Mutual concessions made by nations in favor of the importation of the products and manufactures of each other.

Recital. A setting out by way of preamble or explanation of the reasons or purposes of the instrument, as in a deed.

Recite. To state in a written instrument facts connected with its inception, or reasons for its being made.

Reclaim. To take back or recover a thing which had been lost. To put in a condition of usefulness; or to tame animals.

To demand again what one has previously parted with. With reference to animals, to reclaim, means to domesticate them, or bring them back from a wild state. It is also used in this sense in reference to wild lands, which are said to be reclaimed when brought under cultivation.

Recognisance or Recognisance. An obligation of record, signed before a court of record or magistrate duly authorized, binding the signer to do some act or perform some duty therein stipulated, as to appear for trial, keep the peace, pay costs, or the like.

Record. To enter in writing for future reference or safe keeping. To transcribe in official books. To write out as authentic evidence of what has been done. Also, the complete history or compend of a trial in court.

Recordari facias loquellam. That you cause the plaint to be recorded. The emphatic words in the writ used in England to remove replevin suit from the county court to one of the superior courts.

Record of nisi prius. In the practice of the English common law courts, this is an official transcript or copy of the proceedings in an action, entered on parchment, sealed, and passed, as it is termed, at the proper office. It serves as a warrant to the judge to try the cause, and is the only document at which he can judicially look for information as to the nature of the proceedings and the issues joined between the parties. Abbott.

Recorder. A judicial officer in some American cities with the powers and authority of a judge. Also, a county or state officer with duties of keeping and recording deeds and other papers required by law to be placed in the public records.

Recording. The act of placing on record, or transcribing into the official records.

Recording acts. The name of the statutes which in various jurisdictions govern the recording of deeds, mortgages and the like instruments, which it is desired to place upon the public records. The theory and purpose of these acts is thus described by Abbott: "To make known the chain of title to landed property within the state, and enable persons proposing to buy or lend upon lands, to learn of any adverse titles or claims. The general operation of the recording acts is, that in each county of the state a public office is maintained for the record of instruments transferring or incumbering lands within the county. To entitle an instrument to be recorded it must be acknowledged or proved by a subscribing witness or witnesses; and these requirements being complied with, the grantee or incumbrancer has the right to have it transcribed at length upon the books of the office. This being done, gives constructive notice, by the provisions of the recording acts, to all the world, of the existence and contents of the instrument as recorded."

Recoupment. To deduct or keep back something. The abatement or reduction of a demand.

Recourse. A return or going back. Used in reference to commercial paper to indicate the right of a holder of paper to look back to the various indorsers for payment of the same, unless they have indorsed "without recourse."

Recourse, without. That qualified indorsement of commercial paper which relieves the indorser from liability to the indorsee or holder.

The general mercantile law allows that when a payee or indorsee of a negotiable instrument desires to transfer his property in it, without at the same time assuming the responsibility of an endorser, he may do so by what is called a qualified or restricted indorsement. The form in common use is for him to write above the indorsement of his name the words "without recourse;" and this mode of indorsing is known as an indorsement without recourse. Abbott.

Recovery. Obtaining by means of a judicial proceeding. Actual possession by a judicial decree.

Recovery, common. A method of transferring title to property, formerly used in England to get around statutes restricting the transfer of real property.

Rectus in curia. Right in court; one who has freed himself of a charge or accusation before the court, as by being freed from outlawry, or the like.

Recriminate. To answer an accusation by a countercharge against the accuser. As in a divorce suit where adultery is charged, the counter charge of adultery on the part of the plaintiff is styled "recrimination."

Recusant. One who obstinately rebels against authority or refuses to conform to church discipline.

Reddendo singula singulis. Referring particular things to particular persons. A phrase descriptive of a method of construing a written instrument so as to separate and distribute the things mentioned therein among the persons mentioned, so that the intention of the party making the instrument may be carried out, notwithstanding some apparent conflict in the disposition of the things.

Redhibitory action. A suit to annul a sale for defect of the thing sold and delivered.

Red tape. A vernacular expression signifying official authority in minor matters carried to extremes.

Redeem. To recover, or buy back. To secure again something which has been parted with to secure a liability.

Redemption, equity of. The right or privilege of paying a mortgage debt within a stated time and thereby freeing the property or article pledged for its security.

Redraft. A bill of exchange drawn at the place where another bill was made payable and where it was protested, upon the place where the first bill was drawn, or, when there is no regular

- commercial intercourse rendering that practicable, then in the next best or most direct practicable course. Bell, Com. 406.
- Redress. Satisfaction received for an injury to person or property.
- Reduce. To diminish or abate from a demand or claim.
- Reduction into possession. The act of converting a right of action into possession by bringing suit or collecting what is due thereon.
- Redundancy. A fault in pleading or in the drafting of instruments consisting of inserting matters which have no connection or relevancy to the subject matter or which are without the scope of the instrument.
- Re-entry. The act of taking back the control or possession of real property which has been parted with for some purpose, as where the property had been leased and the lease has terminated or been avoided by breach of the conditions therein.
- Re-examination. A second examination of a person or thing.
- Re-exchange. The additional expense or exchange incurred where a bill is dishonored in a foreign country and where it is made payable, and therefore returned to the country in which it was made or indorsed for payment.
- Refer. To direct attention to. To turn a cause or matter over to a person or referee for some proceeding or action to be taken.
- Referee. A quasi-judicial officer who is sometimes appointed by a court for the purpose of taking testimony, or doing some detail work in connection with a litigated matter. His report or findings is returned to the court appointing him.
- Referendum. One of the methods of securing popular government by direct legislation. It requires that a proposed statute or law before becoming operative shall be submitted or referred to the people for their approval by ballot. The other features of direct legislation, are the initiative, giving the people the right to formulate laws in the first instance, and the recall, by which the people can recall or remove a public officer or representative by petition before the expiration of his term of office.
- Reform. To correct; to make over with a view to bettering. A procedure by which an instrument is changed to conform to what is decreed to have been the real intention of the parties.
- Reformatory. A penal institution, in which an effort is made to improve the moral and mental condition of the persons therein detained. Juvenile offenders are usually confined in such places.
- Refreshing the memory. A phrase indicating that one's recollection of a matter or event has been revived by referring to some memorandum or document made at the time or connected with the matter in question.

- Refund. To pay back something which has been received as an over-payment, or which should not have been paid.
- Refuse. To deny a request or demand; to decline to do something.
- Register. To write in a book or public record something which is required to be placed there. The record itself. The keeper of the record.
- Registration. The act of recording in an official record.
- Regnal years. The years of a reign of an English king or queen.
- Regrating. Formerly, the offence of buying up inanimate provisions at a market with the purpose of reselling in the same market at an advance. The offender was termed a regrator.
- Regular. According to law or custom. In accordance with the usual rule, or general practice.
- Regulate. To adjust by rule; to control by statute; to restrict or direct.
- Rehearing. A second hearing before the same tribunal, or of the same controversy. A re-argument of an issue.
- Reimburse. To repay; to make good a loss or damage.
- Reinstate. To restore to a former condition. Used in connection with the restoration of a case to its place on the docket, after it had been dropped.
- Reinsurance. Insurance effected by an underwriter upon a subject against certain risks, with another underwriter, on the same subject, against all or a part of the same risk, not exceeding the same amount. Insurance with another company by an underwriter who has assumed a risk upon property to an amount greater than it is desirable for him to carry.
- Rejoinder. The defendant's answer to the plaintiff's replication.
- Relation. A connection or tie between two subjects or persons. The recital of facts or contentions.
- Relative. Having connection; comparative. One connected by blood.
- Relative fact. One having relation to another fact, which is of more importance in the issue; a minor fact, or circumstance.
- Relator. An informer. The technical term for one who is the plaintiff or informer in a quo warranto proceeding, or other action begun by information.
- Release. A discharge or surrender. A voluntary discharge of a claim or debt. The act or instrument by which the discharge or release is made.
- Relevancy. Pertinent or applicable to the issue as made up between the parties, and qualified to aid in determining the truth or falsity of the respective contentions.
- Relevant. Pertinent and applicable to the issue.
- Relict. A surviving husband or wife.

- Relinquish. To surrender or abandon something previously claimed. The giving up of a right or claim.
- Remainder. An estate limited to take effect after the termination of another estate.
- Remainder-man. The person designated to enjoy an estate in remainder.
- Remand. To send back, or recommit. Used of sending a cause back for trial which has been improperly appealed, and also in regard to the recommittal of an accused person to prison.
- Remedial. Affording a remedy or redress for a wrong or injury done. Pertaining to the method of redressing injuries or securing rights.
- Remedy. The judicial means of enforcing a right or redressing a wrong.
- Remise. To give up, or relinquish.
- Remit. To abandon or forgive. To discharge; to give up. Also, to transmit or send money.
- Remitter. A term in real property law for a fiction or theory whereby one who has the right of entry in lands, but is out of possession, and who obtains possession of the lands under some subsequent title, which, however, is of course defective, is considered to be sent back (remitted), by operation of law, to his ancient and more certain title. The possession which he gained by a bad title is deemed annexed to his own good title, and his defeasible estate is annulled by the act of the law. Abbott.
- Remittitur. It is sent back. The order of a superior court to an inferior court accompanying the record of a case with instructions as to what further action the lower court shall take.
- Remote. Distant from; having slight connection with a matter.
- Remover. The transfer of a cause from one court or jurisdiction to another.
- Renewal. The act of replacing a former matter or thing by one later in date. Extending time of payment on an obligation.
- Rent. A compensation or return for the use of a thing. The price paid for the privilege of occupying real property of another.
- Reopening a case. A court of equity, in the exercise of a sound discretion, has full power to reopen a case, and allow the correction of mistakes in testimony. To reopen a case is to permit the introduction of new evidence and, practically, try it anew; to rehear a case is to hear it again upon the same proofs and allegations. Bouvier.
- Repeal. To revoke a statute by legislative act. A revocation or recalling of a decree or edict.
- Repellitur a sacramento infamiae. An infamous person is repelled from an oath. That is, an infamous person is not allowed to take the oath as a witness. But the maxim does not now maintain.
- Replead. To plead anew; to put in new pleadings.

- Replevin. The common law action or writ devised to obtain the specific chattel or thing which the plaintiff claimed was his property. It still retains its distinctive characteristic.
- Replevy. Obtaining property by means of the employment of the action of replevin.
- Replication. The pleading of the plaintiff in response to the plea or answer of the defendant. Under the code the corresponding pleading would be the reply.
- Reply. The plaintiff's response to the answer of the defendant. Also, the answer to a letter or argument.
- Report. A brief, or statement of the facts of a matter or judicial controversy. The finding or opinion of a person who has been delegated to investigate a matter made to the person or official delegating him.
- Reports. The official volumes giving the decisions of the various courts of record. They are designated by the name of the state and court in which they were rendered.
- Reports, the. Lord Coke's famous compilations of decisions have become known simply as The Reports, without giving his name in the citation. They cover the period from 14 Elizabeth to 13 James I.
- Representative. One who stands in the place of another, or represents him. Also, the designation of the legislative officers elected by the people to make the laws, and who are regarded as representing the electors or constituents.

- Republic. A commonwealth, or form of government in which the whole people share in the possession of the sovereignty and administration of the government by means of elected or delegated officials. The mass of the people as a collective entity.
- Republican government. A government by the people through representatives chosen by them, and involving a recognition that the supreme authority or sovereignty still resides in the whole people, and its exercise by elected officials is only a delegated and limited authority.
- Repugnancy. An inconsistency in the parts of a pleading or a written instrument.
- Reputation. The opinion in which one is generally held in the community in which he lives. The opinion as to the character or condition of a person or thing generally entertained by those who are acquainted with the facts.
- Rea. A thing, or things. Anything which may be the object of a right, or the subject matter of an action.

Reserve. To withhold; to keep back. Thus to reserve something in a lease or deed is to retain its control or keep it back from the part or portion granted.

Res gesta. Things done. The entire transaction. In evidence, the term signifies the things done or surrounding the main fact, and happening either simultaneously with the main act or so closely connected with it as to adhere to and form a part of it. Such acts are sometimes permitted to be shown in evidence the same as the act itself.

They are said to be the automatic and undesigned incidents of a particular litigated act, and which are admissible in evidence when illustrative of such act. 96 Cal. 125. Whart. Ev.

Resignation. To relinquish or surrender an office, title, personal privilege, power or the like.

Res integra. A new thing or question; a matter undecided.

Res inter alios acta. An act done between others. Something to which one is not a party.

Res inter alios acta alteri nocere non debet. A thing done between others ought not to injure one. Abbott explains this to be one of the most important and useful maxims relating to the law of evidence. Its significance being to protect the rights of a litigant from being taken away or impaired by the acts, conduct, declarations, or evidence of strangers to the litigation.

Res ipsa loquitur. The thing speaks for itself, or of itself. An expression signifying that an accident is of such a character as to show negligence from its mere happening, or by proof of the accident alone.

Res judicata. A matter decided or adjudged. Something already passed upon by a court, and which is now a thing adjudicated.

Res judicata pro veritate accipitur. A matter adjudged is received for truth. That is, court records and the like are deemed to have been correctly made, the acts of the officers in regard to them regular and proper, until the contrary is shown.

Res nova. A new matter.

Res nullius. Things of no one. Something without an owner.

Res privata. Things belonging to individuals, or owned in private capacity.

Res publica. Public property. The public property, as seas, rivers, harbors and the like.

Rescind. To overthrow or cancel previous action; to vacate; to set aside.

Reservation. An exception; something reserved or retained in a grant which would otherwise be included. The part of a deed or instrument which reserves a thing not in esse at the time of the grant, but is newly created. Bouv.

Reside. To dwell; to live at or in a place. To dwell permanently.

Residence. One's permanent place of abode.

Residuary. Something left over; pertaining to the remains or residue after previous gifts or grants.

Residue. All that remains after specific grants and charges have been satisfied.

Resist. To oppose.

Resolve. To determine, to state.

Respite. A postponement of a thing; to adjourn or prolong.

Respondent. Let him answer.

Respondent ouster. That he answer over. A form of judgment for plaintiff against defendant upon a plea in abatement.

Respondent superior. Let the master answer.

The principal or master is responsible for the acts done by his agent or servant, as such. This rule is of almost universal application, whether the act be one of omission or commission, whether negligent, fraudulent, or deceitful, provided it is not the wilful, wanton act of the servant. The fact that the master did not authorize the act, or even know of its performance, makes no difference. Even if he disapproved of and forbade it, he is still liable, if the act or neglect of the servant was done in the scope of the employment or agency. The reason upon which the rule rests is, that, as the master has the selection of those admitted to his employment, he ought to be responsible for the results, if, through want of due inquiry or otherwise, he selects an improper person. He is thus made responsible only for his own want of care. Abbott.

Respondent. A defendant in an equity, admiralty or divorce action.

Respondentia. A loan of money, on maritime interest, on goods laden on board of a ship, upon the condition that if the goods be wholly lost in the course of the voyage, by any of the perils enumerated in the contract, the lender shall lose his money; if not, that the borrower shall pay him the sum borrowed, with the interest agreed upon. Bouvier.

Responsa prudentum. Answers of learned men; opinions of those learned in the law, under the Roman law. These were treasured and came to have the weight of modern precedents.

Responsible. One that is legally or morally liable for his acts. Financial ability to meet obligations.

Rest. A period of time in the calculation of interest upon a note or loan, at which time the principal and interest are calculated and interest charged upon the new principal including the interest then due.

Restitution. The restoring of a thing unlawfully taken from another. An order or writ to make such restoration.

- Restrain. To enjoin; to limit or confine.
- Resulting trust. A trust raised by implication or construction of law, and presumed to exist from the supposed intention of the parties and the nature of the transaction. Bouvier.
- Resulting use. A use raised by equity for the benefit of a feoffor or who has made a voluntary conveyance to uses without any declaration of the use. See Washb. R. P. 100.
- Retainer. The act of employing or engaging an attorney or advocate. The fee paid or agreement made on the first employment of an attorney. Also, the right which an executor has of retaining from the assets of the estate sufficient to pay his own debt as a creditor of the estate.
- Retention. In Scotch law, the right to retain property until a debt due thereon is satisfied.
- Retorno habendo. For having a return; the name of the writ of execution for the return of the property in the action of replevin at common law.
- Retorsion. An act by a sovereignty in returning the same sort or treatment to the citizens of another nation as they give to its citizens; a measure of retaliation.

- Retreat. To go backward; to retire or avoid an assault or attack.
- Retroactive. Acting in the past; designates laws which purport to operate upon past events or transactions.
- Retrospective. Looking backward. Same as retroactive.
- Return. An official statement by an officer of what he has done in obedience to a command from a superior authority, or why he has done nothing, whichever is required. The certificate endorsed on a writ or process by the officer charged with serving it, of what has been done thereunder is termed "a return."
- Return day. The day named in a writ or process, within which the officer is required to return it to the court with an endorsement thereon of what he has done under it.
- Revenue. Income; the income of the government from whatever source.
- Reus. At civil law, a defendant in a civil action, as distinguished from the plaintiff, or actor. Also, a person accused of crime, or the defendant in a criminal action.
- Reversal. The annulment or setting aside of the verdict or decision of a lower court by a higher one.
- Reverse. To declare void; to annul, or revoke.
- Reversion. The residue of an estate left in a grantor, to commence after the expiration of a granted estate. The return or reverting of the land to the orig- inal grantor after the expiration of the term granted.

- Reversioner. The one entitled to a reversionary estate.
- Review. To examine again, or a second time. To consider for the purpose of correction. The term includes any or all of the methods by which a judicial act may be revised, including appeal, writ of error, rehearing, re-examination, etc.
- Revise. To correct upon another or second examination.
- Revised Statutes. Those which have been amended and arranged in order, or re-enacted.
- Revive. To renew; to make operative an abated or dormant judgment.
- Revocation. The act of calling back, or annulling; avoiding.
- Revocatur. It is revoked. A term applied to a judgment signifying that the judgment has been annulled for an error in fact, and not for error in law.
- Revoke. To annul; to withdraw or take away authority or a grant previously made. To render inoperative and void.
- Revolt. An offense on shipboard, which consists in the endeavor of a crew of a vessel, or any one or more of them, to overthrow the legitimate authority of her commander, with intent to remove him from his command, or to take possession of the vessel against his will, by assuming the government and navigation of her, or by transferring their obedience from the lawful commander to some other person. 11 Wheat. 417.
- Rex. King.
- Rex non potest peccare. The king can do no wrong. An ancient principle of the English monarchical system.
- Rex nunquam moritur. The king never dies. The theory of the continuance of sovereign power under the English monarchical system, the rights and powers being vested immediately in the successor on the death or abdication of the sovereign.
- Rider. In parliamentary and legislative practice, the addition or annexation of a clause to a bill or measure while in course of passage.
- Right. An enforceable claim or title; a legal or well-founded claim. A claim to the enjoyment of something to which the individual is entitled as a member of society. That which a person is guaranteed by law.
- Right of action. A right which will sustain an action at law or in equity. A right to recover by judicial remedy.
- Right of way. The privilege of passing over the land of another.
- Riot. An act of violence, or tumultuous disturbance of the public peace by three or more persons assembling together of their own authority.
- Riot act. A famous English statute (1 Geo. I. st. 2, ch. 5.) providing for the suppression of riots. It provided for the proper executive officer to call upon the persons assembled and unlawfully disturbing the peace, to disperse, after which if the orders were not obeyed within one hour, they might be dispersed by force, and in addition the persons were deemed guilty of a felony. Reading the riot act, as it was called, was the proclamation made to such riotous assemblies by the proper officer.

Riparian. Relating to the banks of rivers or seas.

Riparian proprietors. Those who own or control the banks of a stream or watercourse.

Riparian rights. The rights incident to the ownership of the banks of waterways.

Road. A passageway, whether public or private, for the use of persons and equipages.

Road, public. One dedicated to public use.

Road, law of the. The customary regulations for the convenience of travel upon public streets or roads.

Robbery. The felonious taking of property from the person of another, accomplished by means of force or fear. 4 Bl. Com. 243.

Robbery, highway. Robbery upon the public highway. Formerly punished more severely than robbery elsewhere.

Roll. The piece of parchment upon which legal proceedings were formerly entered. The record of a court.

Round robin. Signatures so written that it is impossible to tell which was written first. As where they are written around a circle.

Rout. A disturbance of the peace by persons assembling together with an intent to do a thing which, if executed, will make them rioters, and actually making a motion towards the execution thereof. Hawk. Pl. Crown, 516.

Rule. A regulation or provision prescribed by some specific authority. A decision or mandate of a court, made during the progress of a cause or as a means of regulating proceedings in general. Also, the passing upon a question.

Rule absolute. When a rule to show cause has been defaulted or has been heard, and the cause given is shown insufficient, the next step is called making the rule absolute; that is, a final, peremptory and unconditional order is made upon the party to do the act. This rule is opposed to the preliminary one, called the one to show cause, or rule nisi.

Rule in Shelley's case. The famous rule affecting real property enunciated by the court in Shelley's case, and which has come down to modern law. As stated by Lord Coke the rule is: "When the ancestor, by any gift or conveyance, taketh an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limit-

ed, either mediately or immediately, to his heirs in fee or in tail, the heirs are words of limitation of the estate, and not words of purchase." 1 Co. 104.	between parties, which are open and unsettled.
Rule of course. One that is granted by a court officer as a matter of course, without the intervention of the court.	Running of the statute of limitations. A phrase signifying the passing of the time in which an act becomes invalid or unenforceable under the statute of limitations.
Rule of court. An order or regulation made by a court.	Running with the land. This phrase signifies that a right or privilege, or easement, passes with the title to land without special mention in the deed.
Running accounts. Existing mutual accounts, or cross-demands

S.

Sabbath-breaking. The desecration of the sabbath, or Sunday, by doing things which are contrary to the laws protecting the repose and quiet of the day.	Said. Technically, the next before mentioned; previously mentioned.
Sabbath, or Sabbath-Day. Saturday, or the seventh day of the week. Also applied to Sunday, or the first day of the week. A day consecrated to rest and religious service.	Salary. Regular money payments for services rendered.
Sacrilege. The offence of reviling or desecrating anything that has been consecrated to religious purposes. Thus, despoiling churches, or destroying instruments of worship.	Sale. A contract for the transfer of property from one person to another for a valuable consideration. 2 Kent Com. 625. The transferring the property in goods from one to another upon a valuable consideration.
Safe-conduct. A written permission given by a belligerent government, or one of its naval or military commanders, enabling an enemy subject to go to a particular place for a particular object. Bouv.	Sale on approval. This phrase, and the corresponding phrases, "sale on trial" and "sale or return" is a sale dependent upon a condition precedent; viz., on condition that the purchaser is satisfied with or approves the goods. The approval need not be expressed: it may be implied from keeping the goods beyond a reasonable time. See Benj. Sales, 483.
Safeguard. A writ or assurance from the king guaranteeing the safety and privileges of strangers in England.	Sale with faults. A sale in which the goods are not warranted free of faults, but are subject to such defects as do not destroy their identity.

Saloon. In common parlance signifies a place where intoxicating liquors are sold, and this restricted meaning will be given to the term where the context or other circumstances require it. But it also means a place of refreshment, or an apartment for the reception of company or the public.

Salus populi est suprema lex. The welfare of the public is the highest law. That is, the rights of the individual are secondary and must yield to the public or general good.

Salvage. The allowance to persons for saving a ship or goods from the perils of the sea. The aid so rendered, or in towing or assisting a vessel in distress.

Same. Of the like kind, though not necessarily identical. Also used to refer to something previously mentioned in a written instrument.

Sanctuary. A place of refuge, where the life of the refugee was privileged from attack, and where the processes of the law cannot be executed. Bouvier says that sanctuaries may be divided into religious and civil. The former were very common in Europe, nearly all religious houses affording protection from arrest to all persons, whether accused of crime or pursued for debt. This kind was never known in the United States. Civil sanctuary, or that protection which is afforded to a man in his own house, was always respected in this country. The house protects the owner from the service of all civil process in the first instance, but not if he is once lawfully arrested and takes refuge in his own house. But no place affords protection from arrest in criminal cases.

Sane. Sound in mind; possessing normal mental faculties.

Sans recours. Without recourse.

Satisfaction. Payment, or extinguishment of a debt or claim. The entry of release of a suit, demand, or mortgage.

Satisfaction, Accord and. An agreement between two parties to give and accept something in satisfaction of a right of action which one has against the other, which when performed is a bar to all actions upon this account. Also called "Accord." Bouv.

Satisfy. To comply actually and fully with a demand. To meet the stipulated conditions or terms.

Saving clause. A clause in a legal instrument excepting or exempting something which would otherwise be included within the general terms of the instrument.

Savings bank. An institution only partially embodying the features of a bank in the full sense of the term, the purpose of which is to promote the prosperity of persons of small means and limited opportunities of investing them, by receiving their savings in even trivial sums, and lending them in larger amounts, whereby interest may be gained, to be divided among the depositors. Abbott.

- Scandal. In pleading, anything alleged in a pleading in such language as is unbecoming the court to hear, or which is contrary to good manners, or which charges a crime or offence unnecessary to be shown in the action.
- Scandalous matter. Defamatory matter or allegations inserted in a pleading which are immaterial to the issue. See Scandal.
- Scandalum magnatum. Slander of the nobility.
- Schedule. A detailed statement or list of articles which is appended to an instrument in which the same articles are mentioned generally. An outline or plan.
- Science. Systematized knowledge; principles and deductions arranged so as to be available for the use of persons.
- Scienter. Knowingly; with knowledge that makes one liable for an act.
- Scientia utrimque par pares contrahentes facit. Equal knowledge on both sides makes the contracting parties equal. Hence, what is known by one need not be communicated by the other.
- Scilicet. To wit; that is to say; namely. Abbreviated sc. and ss. Videlicet is commonly used in the same sense.
- Scintilla. The smallest amount; a spark.
- Scintilla juris. A spark of right; the smallest portion of legal right or interest.
- Scintilla of evidence. Slight evidence, but sufficient in some cases to support a verdict.
- Scire facias. That you cause to know. The name of a common-law writ, and the proceedings thereunder, founded upon a public record, and requiring the defendant or person against whom it is issued to show cause why the plaintiff should not have the advantage of the record. The writ is also used to revive a judgment, and upon a bail bond or recognizance.
- Scire feci. I have caused to know. The return to the writ of fieri facias.
- Scire fieri. To cause to know. The name of a former English writ to enforce a judgment against an executor.
- Scribere est agere. To write is to act. A maxim indicating that to urge the commission of an offense, as treason, is an overt act of treason.
- Scrivener. Formerly a person whose business it was to write deeds or other instruments for others; a sort of conveyancer, or business agent or notary.
- Scroll. A mark or lines made with a pen and intended to take the place of a seal. Also, a rolled paper or instrument in writing.
- Seal. Originally, a wax or wafer pressed with a ring or stamp on a document as a means of attesting the genuineness thereof and its solemn execution. The impression thus made. Now, any scroll or emblem printed or made after a signature to indicate sealing.

Sealing a verdict. The act of a jury in putting their finding or verdict in a cause in a sealed envelope before returning it to the clerk of the court.

Search. An examination by authority of law, as a search for prior patents. The examination of public records to determine the title or condition of a thing.

Search-warrant. A warrant or authority from a court or magistrate to search a house or place for the purpose of discovering something alleged to be concealed or hidden. The right to this warrant is safeguarded by state and national constitutions.

Seaman. A mariner or sailor; one whose business is following the sea, or navigating ships.

Seashore. The space of land between high and low water mark.

The seashore must be understood to be the margin of the sea, in its usual and ordinary state. Thus, when the tide is out, low-water mark is the margin of the sea; and when the sea is full, the margin is high-water mark. The seashore is therefore all the ground between the ordinary high-water and low-water mark. It cannot be considered as including any ground always covered by the sea; for then it would have no definite limit on the seaboard. Neither can it include any part of the upland, for the same reason. This definition of the shore seems to result necessarily from its nature and situation. 6 Mass. 435.

In England the seashore is deemed to be the property of the sovereign, subject to the public right of the sovereign and people together, to pass and repass over it; which latter right is in the way of an easement.

In this country the seashore belongs to the state. 3 Kent, Com. 347; 60 N. Y. 56; 16 Pet. 367. In England the sovereign is not the absolute proprietor, but holds the seashore subject to the public rights of navigation and fishery; and if he grants it to an individual, his grantee takes subject to the same rights. So in this country it has been held that the rights of fishery and navigation remain unimpaired by the grant of lands covered by navigable water. But the power of the states, unlike that of the crown, is absolute except in so far as it is controlled by the federal constitution. The states, therefore, may regulate the use of their shores and the fisheries thereon, provided such regulations do not interfere with the laws of congress. Bouvier.

In Massachusetts and Maine, by the colony ordinance of 1641, and by usage arising therefrom, the proprietors of adjoining land on bays and arms of the sea, and other places where the tide ebbs and flows, go to low water mark, subject to the public easement, and not exceeding one hundred yards below high water mark. 6 Mass. 439. It is the general rule that the owner of lands owns to low-water mark, although bounded by stakes and stones on the bank of the river. 1 Whart. 131.

Seaworthy. A term applied to vessels signifying that they are in - good condition to go to sea, and fit for general navigation.

- Secession. Separation; withdrawing from a union or compact.
- Secondary. Of an inferior grade, or of less importance. Applied to evidence, means that which is not the best, or of the highest quality to be obtained. When the best or primary evidence of the existence of a fact is destroyed or lost, then secondary evidence may be admitted.
- Secondary conveyance. A conveyance of such a nature as presupposes some other conveyance precedent, and which only serves to alter, confirm, enlarge, restrain, restore, or transfer the interest granted by such original conveyance, is sometimes distinguished as secondary. Abbott. Thus the assignment of a lease is a secondary conveyance.
- Secondary evidence. That which is not primary or of the highest grade to prove the point in issue, but which is allowed because the primary or best evidence is not obtainable.
- Section. In public land, a portion of a township consisting of one square mile, or 640 acres of land. Also a division or paragraph of a law or statute.
- Secundum allegata et probata. According to what is alleged and proved. A recovery must be governed by the allegations and evidence in the case.
- Secundum bonos mores. According to good morals.
- Secundum formam statuti. According to the form of the statute.
- Secured. Protected; guaranteed or indemnified. As a secured creditor, who holds property or security for his claim.
- Security; collateral. Something given with another thing as a guaranty of performance or payment. Property delivered with a promise to pay money.
- Secus. Otherwise. A word used in introducing a converse proposition.
- Se defendendo. In defending himself.
- Sed non allocatur. But it is not allowed. A phrase meaning that the court held otherwise than as contended.
- Sedition. Conduct tending towards treason, but lacking an overt act; an attempt made by speeches or writings to subvert the government may be so classed.
- Sed per curiam. But by the court. Where the opinion of the court differs from that of a single judge this expression is sometimes used.
- Seduce. The procuring of a female, by promise of marriage or otherwise, to submit to carnal intercourse.
- Seduction. The act of seducing by persuasion or enticements; the debauching of a female by means of solicitations or promises.
- Seisin. The possession of real property as of right, or by reason of a chain of title. Ownership. Under the feudal system, a seisin indicated a freehold estate.

Self-defence. The protection of one's person or property from injury by means of one's own strength.

Self-disserving evidence. Evidence consisting of previous statements or actions of a person which are against his interest or contention.

Self-serving evidence. The statements or actions of a party which are in his favor at the time they are offered, though previously made. Both self-serving and self-disserving evidence is called self-regarding evidence.

Semble. It seems.

Semper. Always.

Semper in dubiis benigniora præferenda sunt. In case of doubt, the more favorable constructions are always to be preferred.

Semper præsumitur pro legitimatione. The presumption is always in favor of legitimacy. That is, the law believes things to have been done legally or morally, rather than illegally.

Semper præsumitur pro negante. The presumption is always in favor of the party denying. The burden is on the affirmative of a question.

Senatus consultum. Ordained by the senate.

Sentence. The judicial pronouncement of the penalty or punishment to be meted upon one convicted of crime. The penalty so pronounced.

Sentence of death recorded. A former English practice of recording or entering a sentence of death, but upon the understanding that it was not to be executed; practically a reprieve or suspension of sentence by the court.

Separaliter. Separately.

Separate action. A phrase used with reference to the doctrine which, in many cases, allows two persons interested in the same demand, or injured by the same wrong, to join in one suit. Where such privilege is refused, it is common to say that they must bring separate actions. Abbott.

Separatim. Separately.

Separation. In divorce law, a cessation of intercourse or cohabitation of husband and wife upon a mutual agreement to that effect. Statutes permit of a voluntary separation of husband and wife.

Separate maintenance. An allowance made to a wife on her separation from her husband under an agreement to live apart.

Sequester. To take into judicial custody during the pendency of an action. To confiscate.

Sequestration. The act of taking litigated property from the possession of both the claimants during the suit and placing same with a commission or commissioners to take charge of same pending the final termination of the action. A process to seize the property of one who is in contempt. A taking for public use, etc.

- Serf. In feudal times, a menial, who was regarded as being affixed to the land of the manor in which he belonged.
- Sergeant-at-law. Under the English system, a barrister in the common-law courts of high rank or standing.
- Seriatim. Successively; one after another; individually.

- Share. A part or portion of anything, whether equal or not.
- Shelley's case, Rule in. "When the ancestor, by any gift or conveyance, taketh an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or

- conveyance an estate is limited, either mediately or immediately, to his heirs in fee or fee tail, the heirs are words of limitation of the estate, and not words of purchase." 1 Co. 104.
- Sheriff. A county official of great antiquity, whose duties are to keep the peace and serve the writs and processes of the courts within the county.
- Sheriff's sale. A sale of property conducted by a sheriff upon process from the county court.
- Shifting use. Such a use as takes effect in derogation of some other estate, and is limited expressly by the deed or is allowed to be created by some person named in the deed. Bouv.
- Ship. A vessel employed in navigation. A vessel with three masts. The word comprehends every description of vessel navigating on any sea or channel, lake or river, to which the provisions of revised statutes, title "Merchant Marine," may be applicable; R. S. Sec. 4612; 119 U. S. 629.
- Ship's husband. The agent of a ship, appointed by the owner.
- Ship's papers. This is the general term used to designate the several papers which a commercial vessel must carry, to make known the ownership, nationality, etc., of the ship and cargo. The general law of nations prescribes some, and the statutes of particular commercial nations prescribe others in addition. Abbott.
- Shire. A county.
- Short cause. In the English chancery practice, and also in the several states, causes which will take but a few minutes or a short time to hear may be so marked, and may be taken up out of the regular order and thus be more speedily disposed of.
- Short entry. A term used among bankers to denote the fact which takes place when a note has been sent to a bank for collection, and an entry of it is made in the customer's bank-book, stating the amount in an inner column, and carrying it out into the accounts between the parties when it has been paid. Bouv. The effect is, that the bill or note remains the property of the depositor, and the bank holds it as collecting agent only.
- Short session. The second session of the U. S. Congress, beginning on the first Monday in December and ending March 4th following.
- Si aliquid sapit. If he knows anything; that is, if he is not entirely devoid of reason.

Stabit præsumptio, donec probetur in contrarium. A presumption shall stand until proof to the contrary is given. A presumption must be rebutted.

Stale demand. One that has not been asserted for so long a time that a court of equity will refuse to recognize it as valid, because of complainant's laches in not asserting it sooner.

Standing aside jurors. A practice which originated in England of directing jurors to stand aside until the whole panel was exhausted, without showing cause on the part of the crown. The same practice has been allowed in some of the states, and even where there is a peremptory right of challenge by the state. See Bouvier.

Standing mute. Refusing to plead when called upon to do so upon arraignment, or refusing to accept trial.

Stare decisis, et non quieta movere. To stand by precedents, and not to disturb what is established. A phrase signifying the policy of the English and American courts in following decided cases or precedents in subsequent litigation. The rule or doctrine is called stare decisis.

State. To aver; to allege. A condition or status. A sovereign government. One of the members of a federal union.

In American constitutional law, the word state has gathered associations which are not to be considered as changing its meaning as a term, but deserve distinct notice. The supreme court has defined it, in the sense in which it ordinarily occurs in the constitution, as meaning a political community of free citizens living in a territory of defined boundaries, and organized under a government authorized and limited by a written constitution, adopted by the will of the people; but in the clause of the constitution which provides that the United States shall guarantee to every state in the Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them from invasion, the term state is used to express the idea of a people or political community, as distinguished from the government. Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700.

State trial. A prosecution by the government. In England the more important cases in which the government was interested have been collected and are known as State Trials.

Stat pro ratione voluntas. The will stands in place of a reason. A phrase applicable to the right of a testator to dispose of his property.

Stat pro ratione voluntas populi. The will of the people takes the place of a reason.

Statu quo. The existing state of things.

- Status. One's standing or legal condition; a political or civil condition or situation.
- Statute. A law enacted by a duly qualified legislative power. A manifestation of the sovereign power through the will of the legislative body in a state. Also, the written law as opposed to that which is unwritten.
- Statute of Frauds. The Statute of 29 Charles II., c. 3, enacted in 1678, to obviate frauds and perjuries. Many of its leading provisions have been copied into the legislation of the various states in almost the exact wording of the original statute.
- Statutes at large. The statutes in full, as originally enacted and unabridged. Thus the acts of Congress are known as the United States Statutes at Large.
- Stay. The granting of a suspension of judicial proceedings; to stop or prevent the carrying out of legal process.
- Stay laws. In times of extended and severe financial trouble, the legislatures of some of the states have endeavored to give debtors some protection against oppressive enforcement of laws for collection of debts, by enactment of laws suspending certain judicial remedies; as by providing that foreclosure suits shall not be commenced for a certain period of time, or that execution shall not issue in certain cases. Laws of this nature are popularly called stay laws. Abbott.
- Stay of execution. The suspension of a judgment or decree; a delaying of the executive or ministerial action of carrying out the judgment of a court. A period fixed by law, when bond has been given, during which execution cannot be issued in civil cases.
- Steal. To commit larceny; that is, to feloniously take and carry away the property of another.
- Stet processus. Let the process stand; let the proceedings be stayed.
- Stipend. A periodical payment for services rendered. The pecuniary compensation of an English curate.
- Stipulation. An item in a contract or agreement. In admiralty practice, a species of bail or recognizance for the appearance of a defendant, or his abiding by the decision of the court.
- Stirpes. A root. The source of descent.
- Stirpes, per. The division of property among heirs so that each one takes by right of representation, so that if an heir has died his children take his share among them, and do not inherit equally with the more immediate heirs, as would be the case if the estate were divided equally or per capita.
- Stock. A family, or source of descent. The capital of a corporation, and the indebtedness of the government as divided into shares is so called.
- Stockholder. One who has property interests in the assets of a corporation and who is entitled to take part in its control and - receive its dividends. The word includes all members having a direct financial interest in the business of the corporation with power to participate in the profits and in the conduct of its affairs, though they hold no shares. Bouvier.

- Stoppage in transitu. The remedy given a seller of an article to be shipped to the buyer, before payment, of stopping it while in transit upon learning of the insolvency of the buyer. The exercise of this right is known as stoppage in transit.
- Stray. A beast or domestic animal running at large away from its owner; also an estray.
- Strand. The seashore; the shore or bank of a sea or river.
- Strictum jus. Strict law.
- Strictissimi juris. Of the strictest right or construction. Subject to the most rigid application of rules of law.
- Struck jury. In a class of cases in which peculiar and difficult questions are involved, rendering it proper that persons of peculiar knowledge and qualifications should form the jury, instead of its being composed by lot, what is called a struck jury is allowed. This is also sometimes called a special jury; but it seems that the term special is less definite, as there may be other special panels. In this country, the proceeding is rare; and the steps to be taken are regulated by statute or rule of court, which may vary in detail in different jurisdictions. But its distinguishing features according to old forms are these: The clerk of court returns a list of a large number of selected names of men of known qualifications for the trial of such questions as are presented in the cause. Thus, if it is a cause involving difficult questions of banking and finance, he returns (in theory) the names of approved bankers or men of like experience. From this list the attorneys of the parties alternately strike off names, until twenty-four are left. These constitute the panel returned to the court from which the jury for the trial of the cause is selected. Abbott.
- Sub. Under.
- Sub modo. Under restrictions or qualifications.
- Sub pœna. Under penalty. A phrase from which the word subpœna is derived, meaning a writ to procure the attendance of a witness under penalty.
- Subject, or subject-matter. The thing referred to, or the thing in controversy.
- Sub-let. To transfer to another what one has procured a contract to perform; to lease over to another all or part of lands or tenements which one has leased.
- Suborn or Subornation of Perjury. To induce another to swear falsely.
- Subpœna. A writ or process commanding the person therein named to appear at a time and place mentioned, under pain of a penalty.

- Subrogation. The substitution of one person to the rights of another; the method by which one who pays the obligation of another succeeds to the rights and securities of the first creditor.
- Subscribe. To write underneath. The writing of one's name at the bottom or end of an instrument by way of adoption, attestation or ratification.
- Subscribing witness. One who puts his or her name to an instrument in writing as an attesting witness.
- Subsidy. Originally, pecuniary assistance or aid granted by parliament to the crown. In modern American usage it signifies governmental assistance given to any enterprise which benefits the general public.
- Succession. The transmission of property from an ancestor to an heir; the transfer of property or rights and franchises from one to another. The right to inherit or succeed another in property or rights.
- Succession, perpetual. The right of perpetual renewal or existence, as the right of a corporation to its franchises and property.
- Sue. To bring or prosecute an action at law.
- Sufferance. Omission to object; passive consent; a sort of negative permission arising from neglect to assert one's right or claim against another. Thus a tenant by sufferance is one who came lawfully into possession of lands, but whose right has expired, and who continues to occupy merely by the implied permission of the owner who has not given notice for him to quit.
- Sufferance, estate at. At will; an estate which is not founded on any right and is subject to be divested at the will of the owner, as where a tenant holds over after expiration of his lease.
- Suggestio falsi. False representations or suggestions.
- Suggestion on the record. This phrase refers to a common method of bringing to the knowledge of the court matters of fact important to the right conduct or decision of a cause, but which cannot, under the circumstances, be pleaded. As where a party to the suit dies, this is gotten into the record by what is called a suggestion, so that the proper proceedings may be had to continue the action. Abbott.
- Sui generis. Of a special kind or class. Of its own kind.
- Sui juris. Of one's own right. Legally competent to represent one's self.
- Suicide. Self-destruction; taking one's own life while in possession of one's faculties.
- Suit. An action at law or in equity; the whole of the proceedings in an action at law or in equity.
- Summary. Peremptory; without delay; immediate.
- Summa ratio est quae pro religione facit. An argument which is favorable to religion is of great weight. That is, a law which is in positive conflict with the law of God or nature is void. As if a statute should attempt to legalize murder, it would be void.

Summary conviction. A trial of offenders before a magistrate or bench of magistrates, without the intervention of a jury. It is the usual method of trying the lesser offenses.

Summing up. An address, such as is usually incidental to a jury trial of a cause, reviewing the evidence and explaining the application of the law to the facts, is called the summing up of the cause, or, briefly, the summing up. Making this address is summing up, and to make it is to sum up. Abbott.

Summons. The writ or notice to the defendant to appear and answer given at the beginning of an action.

Summum jus, summa injuria. The extremes of law become great injuries. That is, right pushed to extremes, becomes wrong.

Sumptuary laws. Laws which purport to restrain excess in apparel or prohibit costly clothes, were originally so called in England. The term now is applied to all those laws which affect the individual in his private concerns, as matters of food, drink, clothing, and the like.

Sunday. The first day of the week. A legal holiday, and by custom given over to religious or moral instruction.

Supercargo. An owner's agent or representative who has charge of the cargo while on shipboard.

Superior. One in a position of authority over others; one vested with command or control.

Supersedeas. That you refrain or set aside. The name of a common-law writ issued to a ministerial officer commanding him to desist or refrain from proceeding further under another writ. An order commanding a stay of proceedings in a case, or a stay of judgment.

Supplemental. Something added to complete a thing. Made to aid or supply defects in a previous proceeding or instrument. In pleading, a supplemental pleading differs from an amended one in that it is only an addition or aider of the original pleading, while an amended pleading takes the place of and supplants the former one.

Supplemental answer. One which is filed to add something, explain or correct the original answer previously filed.

Support. The right of having one's land or buildings carried up by the soil adjoining as fully as the natural state of the soil will permit. Also, to contend in favor of a rule or order.

Suppressio veri. Suppression of truth; concealment of facts.

Supra protest. Over protest. The acceptance of a bill of exchange by a person not a party to it,

- after protest, for the purpose of protecting the credit of a party.
- Supremacy. The supreme authority; the highest estate or dominion.
- Surcharge. An overcharge; an exaction or charge of incumbrance greater than is just or can be properly borne.
- Surety. One who by contract has become answerable for the act or obligation of another; one who has engaged that a debtor shall pay, and becomes liable himself if he does not do so.
- Suretyship. The relation in which one who has engaged to be answerable for another's debt or obligation stands, as regards the creditor and the primary debtor.
An undertaking to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another, by which the surety becomes bound as the principal or original debtor is bound.
Bouv.
- Surname. The name of a family as distinguished from the baptismal name. The name of the father, called surname, because originally they were written over the name in judicial writings and contracts.
- Surplusage. Matter in an instrument or pleading which is extraneous or unnecessary.
- Surprise. The being taken unawares, or misled by acts which could not have been differently understood.
- Surrogate. The style or title of a judicial officer charged with the probate of wills and the settle-
- ment of estates of decedents, and matters of guardianship. Similar to probate judge.
- Surrebutter. The plaintiff's answer to the defendant's rebutter.
- Surrejoinder. The answer by plaintiff to defendant's rejoinder.
- Surrender. To yield possession, or give one's self up to answer a charge or complaint.
- Survey. To examine, view or measure in order to determine boundaries, area, etc., of land.
- Survive. To live beyond; to live after a person or event.
- Survivorship. A right which falls to the one who survives of taking all of the estate.
- Suspendatur per collum. Latin, let him be hanged by the neck. The judgment entered against a prisoner sentenced to be hanged formerly used in English practice.
- Suspension. A temporary cessation of a right or estate for a time. The taking away of privilege or benefit of rules of law for a limited time.
- Suum cuique tribuere. To render to every one his own. One of Justinian's three fundamental maxims.
- Sworn. Applicable to one who has taken an oath as a witness.
- Syllabus. An abstract. An epitome of the points decided in a case.
- Symbolic delivery. The giving of a thing in representation of another thing, which is not subject of actual delivery.

Syngraph. A deed or other written instrument, under the hand and seal of all the parties to it.

So-called since the parties wrote together. It is a canon law term, the common law writers designating such an instrument a chirograph.

T.

Tabella. A table. A tablet on which the judge or jurors wrote their vote or decision in Roman times.

Table. A synopsis or statement showing details or particulars of a subject.

Table of cases. A list of cases; an index showing cases cited in a text book.

Tempus. Time; a limited period of time.

Tempus continuum. A continuous period of time.

Tempus utile. Useful or beneficial time; such time as is available for the exercise of a right, or in which the statute of limitations will continue to run.

Tenancy. The estate or holding of a tenant.

Tenant. Generally it signifies any person who holds or possesses land, by whatever sort of title. More restricted, it signifies a lessee or qualified possessor of property under a lease from a superior landlord.

Tenant by the curtesy. A husband occupying, after his wife's death, lands of which she was seized, in virtue of the curtesy, i. e., custom, of England, which accords a life-estate to the husband who survives his wife in lands of which she was seized during the marriage, if they had issue. 2 Bl. Com. 128.

Tenant in dower. A widow occupying lands of her husband's estate in virtue of her right of dower.

Tenants in common. Persons who own lands by several and distinct titles, occupying it together and having a unity of possession and enjoyment. The usual tenure where two or more persons own realty together.

A tenancy in common differs from a joint tenancy in this respect: joint tenants have one estate in the whole, and no estate in any particular part; they have the power of alienation over their respective aliquot parts; and, by exercising that power, may give a separate and distinct right to their particular parts. Tenants in common have several and distinct estates in their respective parts; hence the difference in the several modes of assurance by them. Each tenant in common has, in contemplation of law, a distinct tenement and a distinct freehold. Wharton.

Tender. A formal offer of payment or performance; such an offer of a thing as will release the party proffering it of costs or penalty though it be refused by the other party.

Tender, legal. Anything which the law authorizes to be offered in payment of a debt; currency or money receivable in payment of all legal obligations.

Tenement. Anything permanent in the way of real property that may be held by a tenant. A house or homestead; the property held by a tenant.

Terre extendenda. Land to be valued.

Terre-tenant. One who is in actual possession of land, or is seized of the same. The legal owner as distinguished from the equitable interest or owner.

Terre transit cum onere. Land passes with its incumbrance.

Territory. A part of a country separately organized from the - general government, and subordinate in government or jurisdiction to the country of which it is a part. A large area of land.

- Territorial courts. The courts provided and established by Congress for the administration of justice in the territories. They consist of a supreme court, district courts, probate courts and justices of the peace.
- Testacy. A term signifying that one has died leaving a will disposing of his effects.
- Testament. A will; a formal instrument disposing of property, designed to take effect at the death of him who makes it.
- Testamentary. Connected with or pertaining to wills or testaments.
- Testamentary capacity. Refers to the mental condition of one qualified to make a valid will, it is said to consist in being able to talk and discourse rationally and sensibly, and being able to perform rational acts requiring thought, judgment and reflection.
- Testamentary capacity amounts to nothing more than a knowledge by the testator of what he is about, and how he is disposing of his property, with the purpose so to do it. 5 Harr. (Del.) 459.
- Testamentary guardian. One appointed by a father, in his last will and testament, to be the guardian of his children, until they attain the age of majority.
- Testate. Leaving a testament or will at death, as opposed to intestate.
- Testatrix. A female who makes a will or testament.
- Testatum. Witnesseth.
- Teste. Witness. The clause stating the date of a writ or process, and the attestation clause.
- Testify. To give evidence under oath, or according to the legal requirements.
- Testimony. The evidence obtained from witnesses; the whole record of the evidence in a case.
- Theft. The same as larceny.
- Thellusson Act. The Statute, 39 & 40, Geo. III. ch. 98, passed in 1799, in consequence of the effect of a peculiar will made by a man named Thellusson. He was a man of great estate, and by his will left the bulk of his property to be accumulated until his descendants living, or in ventra sa mere at the time of his death should be dead. The Thellusson Act was passed to prevent similar bequests. By its provisions a grantor or testator is forbidden to direct the accumulation of his property for a period exceeding twenty-one years from his death, subject to certain exceptions mentioned in the act. Similar legislation has been adopted in some of the states.
- Then and there. Words used to refer to the time and place previously mentioned in an instrument to avoid repeating them.

Theory. An underlying principle.

An unproved doctrine as opposed to something that is scientific or practical.

Thief. One guilty of larceny or theft.

Threat. A menace by words or actions to such an extent, and of such a nature as to have an effect upon the mind of the party against whom it is directed, so that his action in regard to a matter is not free or voluntary. A menace of destruction or injury to the lives, character or property of those against whom it is made.

Three-mile limit. The distance of a marine league from shore, the territory over which a nation has control of the sea or tide waters.

Tide. The flow and reflow of the waters of the ocean.

Tide water. Water in which the tide ebbs and flows.

Transitory action. Those actions which might happen, as regards the principal facts upon which they are founded, at any place, and so follow the person and may be brought wherever service can be had; they are opposed to local actions, which are connected with the place or locality in which they arise. Thus actions to collect a debt or in regard to personal property are transitory, while those seeking to obtain possession of land are local.

Transportation. The carriage of persons or movable property from one place to another. Also, in criminal law, the exportation of a criminal or convicted person out of the country as a punishment. Abbott says that in this sense it differs from "banishment" and "exile" in that it includes the idea that the person is kept under confinement or restraint, while the other terms merely import that he is expelled from the home country.

Traverse. To deny. In pleading, the denial of the allegations set forth in a declaration or pleading, or the charges of an indictment.

Treason. A much abused offence at common law, by which most anything the judges desired amounted to treason. Under the U. S. Constitution treason consists only in levying war against the U. S., or in adhering to or giving aid and comfort to their enemies.

Treasure-trove. Money or coin, gold, silver, plate, or bullion, found hidden in the earth or other private place, the owner thereof being unknown. In such case the treasure belongs to the king, and is part of his ordinary revenue; but if he that hid it be known, or afterwards found out, the owner, and not the king, is entitled to it. 3 Inst. 132.

Treaty. A solemn and formal compact or agreement made between independent nations touching their relations with each other.

Tres faciunt collegium. Three make a corporation. A principle of Roman law. In many states three or more incorporators are necessary to constitute a corporation.

Trespass. A general name for a number of wrongs or injuries committed with force actual or implied. Any misfeasance or act of one whereby another is damaged. Commonly used with reference to the unlawful entry upon the land of another person.

Trespasser ab initio. Wrongdoer from the beginning.

Ubi aliquid conceditur, conceditur et id sine quo res ipsa esse non potest. When anything is granted that also is granted without which the thing cannot exist.

Ubi aliquid impeditur propter unum, eo remoto, tollitur impedimentum. Where any thing is obstructed by some one particular cause, its removal takes the obstruction away. That is, the thing may then be performed.

Ubi cessat remedium ordinarium, ibi decurritur ad extraordinarium. Where a common or simple remedy ceases, then recourse must be had to an extraordinary one.

Ubi culpa est, ibi poena subesse debet. Where there is culpability, there punishment ought to be received.

Ubi eadem ratio, eadem jus.
Where the reason is the same, the law is the same.

Ubi factum nullum, ibi fortia nulla. Where there is no principal fact, there can be no accessory.

Ubi jus, ibi remedium. Where there is a right, there is a remedy. That is, there can be no rights without remedies.

Ubi lex non distinguit, nec nos distinguere debemus. When the law makes no distinction, we ought not to distinguish.

Ubi major pars est, ibi totum. Where the greater part is, there is the whole.

Ubi non est cogendi auctoritas, ibi non est parendi necessitas. Where there is no authority for compelling, there is no necessity of obeying.

Ubi nullum matrimonium, ibi nulla dos. Where there is no marriage, there is no dowry.

Ultimatum. The last. A last or final proposition in conducting negotiations, which must be accepted or rejected as it is made.

Ultra mare. Beyond the sea.

Ultra vires. Beyond the powers. A phrase used in corporation law to indicate an act done without the powers of the corporation or its officers to perform under their charter.

Umpire. An arbiter; a person selected to decide a dispute be-

- tween two or more persons. Also, one who governs a game or play.
- Unalienable. Rights or privileges which may not be disposed of.
- Una voce. One voice; unanimously.
- Uncertainty. Obscurity; the condition of a will or written instrument which is so couched as to be unintelligible or incapable of intelligent interpretation.
- Unconscionable. Opposed to good conscience or equity. A hard or unusual contract or stipulation.
- Unconstitutional. Contrary to the fixed principles of the constitution of the U. S. or of a state. All acts or laws of this kind are declared to be void by the courts.
- Unde nihil habet. Whereof she has nothing. A writ for dower in old English law.
- Undertake. To promise to do or perform something. A unilateral engagement.
- Under-tenant. A lessee who holds lands from another who is also a lessee.
- Underwriter. An insurer in a contract of insurance; one who accepted by writing his name under a proposition for the insurance of the vessel or cargo of another.
- Underwriting. An agreement made in forming a company and offering its stocks and bonds to the public, that if they are not all taken up, the underwriter will take what remains. Bouv. The agreement thus made.
- Undue influence. Any improper or wrongful constraint, machination, or urgency of persuasion, whereby the will of a person is overpowered and he is induced to do or forbear an act which he would not do, or would do, if left to act freely and voluntarily. That influence or persuasion which induces mental action which is short of duress. That influence which compels one to do that which is against his will from fear, the desire of peace, or some feeling which is tantamount to force or fear. 95 Ala. 495.
- Unilateral contract. One-sided; where the person who receives the promise or undertaking of another makes no return express promise.
- Unimpeached. Unquestioned; not discredited.
- Unintelligible. That which cannot be definitely understood.
- Unincumbered. Free of incumbrances or liens.
- United States. The nation or government formed by the union of the various states. The whole territory of North America comprised within the jurisdiction of the federal government.
- Unlawful. Illegal; forbidden by law.
- Universal agent. One who is appointed to do generally all that the principal can do, or all that may lawfully be delegated to another.
- Unlawful assembly. A disturbance of the peace by persons assembling together, with an intention to do a thing, which if executed would make them rioters, but neither actually executing it, nor making a motion towards the execution of it. 4 Bl. Com. 146.

Unliquidated. Unascertained; still remaining to be determined or assessed.

Unsound mind. A phrase indicating mental incapacity, including the various forms of temporary and permanent derangement.

Usage. The general and uniform practice; a reasonable, legal and customary way of doing things.

Usance. Days of grace, or time allowed after the maturity of a foreign bill of exchange in which to pay it. The length of time was fixed by commercial custom.

Use. The term a use, in its original legal application, denoted simply the benefit or beneficial enjoyment of land. After the enactment of the statutes of mortmain, by which lands were prohibited from being given directly to religious houses, the ecclesiastics obtained grants to persons to the use of religious houses, which the clerical chancellors of those days declared to be binding. This device, in some measure, evaded the operation of the statutes of mortmain; and under it a use came to consist in the equitable right to receive the profit or benefit of lands and tenements, which was, in cases of lands conveyed to uses, divorced from the legal ownership thereof. Abbott.

Useful. The word useful, in the patent law, is used in opposition to frivolous or noxious. It is not necessary that the invention should be the best possible of its kind. It is sufficient if it may be applied to some beneficial use in society.

User. The actual exercise of a right or the enjoyment of property.

Usufruct. The right or privilege of drawing profit or advantage from the property of another; the right does not extend to the consumption of the article from which the profit comes.

A term of the civil law signifying the income, or fruits of property of another.

Usury. Originally, any compensation for the use of money; later, it signifies only unlawful or forbidden rates of interest, or payment for the use of money.

Ut currere solebat. As it was wont to run.

Ut res magis valeat quam pereat. That the subject-matter may rather have effect than be destroyed.

Utile per inutile non vitiatur. If useful is not to be destroyed by the useless. A maxim that pleading the material will not be destroyed by immaterial matters alleged, the latter being treated as mere surplusage.

Utter, or uttering. In criminal practice, the offering for acceptance of a forged instrument with the representation by words or actions that it is genuine.

Uxor. Latin, for wife. Abbreviated ux.

V.

- Vacancy. The condition of being unoccupied or destitute of an incumbent.
- Vacant. Empty; unoccupied; an office without an incumbent; without a tenant.
- Vacant office. An office is vacant when there is no person entitled to exercise the powers and receive the emoluments thereof. Also, when it is open to be filled by election or appointment.
- Vacant possession. This occurs where a tenant has abandoned the premises which he held, though still continuing in the virtual possession of them, as by leaving some articles, in such case the possession cannot be treated as vacant, and the landlord must proceed by ejectment in the ordinary way.
- Vacant succession. An inheritance, or hereditary office, to which there is no designated heir or successor.
- Vacate. To declare void; to annul. To leave empty or unoccupied.
- Vacation. The time between two terms of court. A time of rest or relaxation from study or duty.
- Vadium. A pledge; the giving security by pledging property.
- Vadium mortuum. A dead pledge. A mortgage of property that makes no return to the mortgagee, but only becomes his upon the failure of the mortgagor to fulfill the conditions of the mortgage.
- Vadium ponere. To take bail for the appearance of one in court.
- Vadium vivum. A living pledge. One in which the mortgaged property brings returns or profit to the mortgagee and which goes to pay the debt or obligation for which it is pledged.
- Vagrant. One that wanders about and has no visible means of livelihood. A vagabond. The term has no definite significance, and what constitutes vagrancy or who are vagrants is a matter for statutory designation. It is said that a vagrant generally means a person who lives idly, without a settled home, and sometimes the term includes beggars.
- Valeat quantum valere potest. It shall operate as far as it can be operative. A maxim of construction.
- Valuable. Having worth or value. Of monetary worth.
- Valuable consideration. The distinction between a good and valuable consideration is, that the former consists of considerations of blood, or of natural love and affection; as when a man grants an estate to a near relation from motives of generosity, prudence, and natural duty; and the latter consists of such a consideration as money, marriage which is to follow, or the like, which the law esteems an equivalent given for the grant. Brown.

- Value. Estimated or appraised worth. Purchasing power. The money worth of an article.
- Value, market. The price or value of an article in the customary markets.
- Value received. Words indicating that a proper and valuable consideration has been received for a thing or note.
- Variance. When a difference or inconsistency arises between the evidence offered and the allegations in the pleading this is said to be a variance. Also, a disagreement between the writ and the declaration as to the form of the action.
- Vassal. In early English or feudal times, a tenant or feudatory; also, a slave or servant.
- Vehicle. Every sort of contrivance for the transportation of property or persons on land.
- Vellum. A fine parchment made from the skins of very young animals.
- Venal. Something purchasable; but only used in an improper sense, indicating that the individual is purchasable.
- Vendee. The party who buys in a contract of sale. Vendee and purchaser are appropriate terms in a sale of real property, and buyer when the sale is of chattel property.
- Venditio exponas. That you expose for sale. A common law writ of execution, ordering the sheriff to sell goods formerly taken on a writ of fieri facias.
- Vendor. The seller; one who sells or disposes of an article for a price in money.
- Vendor's lien. The right or claim given in equity to one who sells land upon the land sold until he has received the full purchase price.
- Venire. To come. The name of a writ for summoning a jury.
- Venire facias. That you cause to come. The chief words and the name of a writ to the sheriff to secure twelve men for a jury. The full name of the writ is venire facias juratores.
- Venire facias de novo. That you make to come anew. The name of a writ to summon a jury for a second trial. Also, the motion or rule for a new trial.
- Venit et defendit. He comes and defends.
- Venit et dicit. He comes and says.
- Venue. The neighborhood or place; locality. In pleading, the place of the commission of a crime, or the happening of an act or transaction. The name of the clause in a declaration in which the county in which the event happened is stated, or where the action is pending. The part of an affidavit which shows the place in which the affidavit was given.
- Verbal. Communicated by word of mouth as opposed to writing. Oral; spoken.
- Verba accipienda sunt secundum subjectam materiam. Words are to be taken in reference to the subject matter.

- Verba aliquid operari debent. Words should have some effect. That is, words of an instrument are to be given some meaning in its construction, and if their meaning is doubtful, that one should be taken which produces some reasonable effect.
- Verba artis ex arte. Words of art form the art. So that words of technical import must be construed with regard to the significance they bear in that art to which they pertain.
- Verba chartarum fortius accipiuntur contra proferentem. The words of writings are to be taken most strongly against the offering party.
The governing principle under this maxim, in regard to contracts, as against the party making them, seems to be, that he who makes an instrument should take care so to express his own liability as not to bind himself beyond his intention; and that the party who receives an instrument shall have a construction put upon it in his favor, because the words of the instrument are not his, but those of the other party. Whart. Max.
- Verba generalia generaliter sunt intelligenda. General terms are to be construed generally.
- Verba illata in esse videntur. Words referred to are considered as a part of the instrument.
- Verba intentioni debent inservire. Words ought to subserve intention. That is, the intention of the party is to be considered in the construction of the language used.
- Verdict. The decision of a trial or petit jury upon an issue of facts submitted to them.
- Verdict, general. One given in terms of the issue, as "for the plaintiff in the sum of $.....," or "not guilty" and the like.
- Verdict, open. One that finds the commission of a crime, but not the guilty party.
- Verdict, special. A return of special or distinct facts by the jury, to which the court is to apply the rule of law.
- Verify. To confirm, by oath or affirmation. To establish by evidence, or matter of fact.
- Verification. The making oath to an instrument in confirmation of its truthfulness or genuine character.
- Versus. Against. Abbreviated v. or vs. Is said to be a contraction of adversus.
- Vest. To clothe with, or confer upon, as to vest an estate upon a person, by which is meant that the estate becomes the property of the person in whom it is vested. But an estate may be vested or thrown upon one, though the actual present enjoyment is in someone else.
- Vested estate. An estate is vested when it has been conferred upon a person in such a way as not to be subject to any unperformed condition precedent.
- Vested legacy. A legacy is said to be vested when the words of the testator making the bequest convey a transmissible interest, whether present or future, to the legatee in the legacy. Thus, a legacy to one, to be paid when he obtains the age of twenty-one years, is a vested legacy, because it is given unconditionally and absolutely, and therefore vests an immediate interest in the legatee, of which the enjoyment only is deferred or postponed; and if such legatee die before that age, his representatives shall receive it out of the testator's personal estate at the time that it would have become payable had the legatee himself lived. Abbott.

Veto. I forbid. The right or power given to American executive officers of refusing to assent to the enactment of legislation, and causing the enactment to fail unless passed by a larger majority, usually a two-thirds vote.

Via trita via tuta. The beaten path is the safe path. That is, it is best to follow precedents, or the usual and customary mode of procedure.

Vice-consul. One who acts in the place of, or as a substitute for a consul.

Vice-president. The officer elected at the same time as the President of the United States, with the same qualifications, and who succeeds to that office on the death or disqualification of the President.

Vide. See. A word used to call attention to some other mentioned object or subject.

Videlicet. To wit; namely; that is to say.

View. An examination by the eye; the actual examination of a place or object by a jury.

Vigilantibus et non dormientibus jura subveniunt. The law aids the vigilant, not those who sleep. That is, in order to secure one's legal rights they must be vigilant and not sleep on their rights.

Villenage. The tenure of a villein under Saxon institutions. The condition or state of a villein.

Vim vi repellere omnes leges omnique jura permittunt. Force to repel force is permitted by all written and unwritten laws. This maxim is limited to that force necessary to one's defense, and if exceeded the person using it becomes liable criminally. Thus violence may not be used to recover property which has been wrongfully taken from one, he must let the recovery be made according to law.

- Virtute cujus. By reason whereof. Words used in common law declaration to state or introduce the injurious consequences of the grievances previously set forth.
- Virtute officii. By virtue of office. Done as an officer.
- Vis. Force.
- Vis major. A superior or irresistible force. The power of nature, or of an uncontrollable human agency.
- Vise. An official endorsement or certification of documents.
- Viva voce. With living voice. By word of mouth. Orally.
- Void. Illegal; without binding force or effect. To annul.
- Voidable. Capable of being set aside or avoided; an act or contract that may be assailed in a proceeding for that purpose.
- Voir dire. To speak the truth. A preliminary oath administered to a witness or juror in order to then examine him as to his fitness or qualifications as a witness or juror. The examination itself.
- Volenti non fit injuria. Having consented no injury is done.
- Voluit, sed non dixit. He willed, but he did not say. That is, one may have intended an act, but did not express it openly.
- Voluntary conveyance. A deed or transfer of property in which no consideration moves from the vendee to the vendor.
- Voluntary escape. An escape which is attributed to the actual consent or connivance of the keeper of the prison, as distinguished from one which is attributable to mere neglect to take the proper precautions for the safekeeping of the prisoner.
- Voluntary manslaughter. Killing done voluntarily, but reduced below the grade of murder by having been done upon a sudden heat of the passions. 4 Bl. Com. 190, 191.
- Voluntas reputabatur pro facto. The desire or intent shall be taken for the deed. The old common law rule of criminal responsibility in the crime of treason.
- Volunteer. In conveyancing, one who takes title under a conveyance made without a good or valuable consideration, and therefore has no real title as against creditors. In military law, one who freely enlists in place of another, or who offers his service to his country without having been called upon.
- Vote. To express one's wishes or preference by ballot. Suffrage; the method of deciding the majority opinion in a body or aggregate of persons.
- Vouch. To bear witness. To summon. To become surety for another.
- Voucher. A receipt; the certificate or document which attests the existence of a matter.

W.

- Wage. To give a pledge or security for the performance of an act or agreement. Also signifies earnings.
- Wager. A bet; an agreement to pay money or property upon the happening of some event which is uncertain or unknown to the parties to the agreement, and in which they have no interest.
- Wager of battel, or battle. A method of trial prevailing among the Anglo-Saxons, by which the controversy was determined according to the results of a personal combat between the parties or their champions.
- Waive. To abandon, relinquish or surrender one's right or claim in a matter.
- Wanton. Ruthless conduct without regard to the rights of others. Without justification or provocation.
- War. A contest between independent states or nations with military force. During its existence all intercourse between citizens of the contending states is cut off, and all law is suspended except those rules of international law which self-respect causes all civilized states to observe.
- Ward. Originally, to protect, to guard; to take charge of. A person in the care and control of another, who occupies a semi-parental relation to the one protected. The technical name for an infant or person under the guardianship of another.
- Wardship. The custody of a ward.
- Warden. A keeper of a public institution or prison.
- Warehouse. A place where merchandise is kept for transportation or storage.
- Warehouseman. One whose business or calling is to receive and store merchandise of others for reward. The proprietor of a warehouse.
- Warrant. The name of that class of judicial writs authorizing the arrest of persons, searches, seizures and the like acts, in aid of justice. Also, to guarantee; to empower.
- Warrant of attorney. A power in writing authorizing an attorney-at-law to appear in court and confess judgment on behalf of the party who gives the power.
- Warranty. A species of covenant in conveyancing by which the grantor binds himself and his heirs to warrant and defend the title to the grantee, his heirs and assigns against all persons whatsoever. Also, a guaranty or assurance that an article or thing shall be as represented.
- Waste. An injury or lasting damage to the reversion caused by the destruction of the buildings or growing trees or the like by one who is only a tenant for life or for years.

Water-course. A term signifying the general flow of water in a river, stream, creek, or other channel, and is used with reference to the right or rights of the riparian owners to have it protected from interference.

A water-course is a right which a man may have to the benefit or flow of a river or stream. This right includes that of having the course of the stream kept free from any interruption or disturbance to the prejudice of the proprietor, by the acts of persons without his own territory, whether owing to a diversion of the water, or to its obstruction, or pollution by offensive commixture. 1 Steph. Com. 659, 693.

Way. A road; the easement or right to pass over land of another.

Weapon. An instrument which may be used in personal combat, whether offensive or defensive.

Week. The time between midnight Saturday and midnight of the following Saturday; a period of seven days.

Weight of evidence. This phrase is used to signify that the proof on one side of a cause is greater than on the other. The fact as to the weight of the evidence is for the jury to determine. But if the jury abuse their right the court may give a new trial.

Wharfinger. One who owns or controls a wharf and allows others to use it for a consideration.

Whole blood. A term expressing the relation between two persons descended from a pair of nearest common ancestors; as opposed to the relation of the half-blood, in which there is but one nearest common ancestor, whether male or female. Abbott.

Whore. A harlot; a woman who for hire practices unlawful sexual commerce with men; a prostitute.

Widow. A woman who has lost her husband by death.

Widower. A man who has lost his wife by death.

Wife. A woman who has a husband living and undivorced.

Wilful. Voluntary; intentional. An act is wilful when done with knowledge and desire on the part of the person doing it.

Will. The power of mind which conceives and executes. Also, the name of the legal instrument by which a person disposes of his property, to take effect at his death.

Winding up. The process of liquidating the assets of a partnership or corporation, for purposes of distribution. In England a number of statutes, known as the Winding-up Acts, have been passed to facilitate the settlement of partnership affairs. Bouv.

Withdrawing a juror. A means of stopping a trial and allowing a subsequent trial, accomplished by the court allowing one of the parties, by virtue of an agreement, made in the interests of justice, and because of some unforeseen circumstance preventing the continuance of the trial, to withdraw a juror from the panel, leaving it incomplete, and making a new trial necessary.

Without day. An expression referring to the postponement of an action or the adjournment of a court or other meeting without a definite time fixed for the hearing, or resumption of the meeting. The Latin of the expression, being sine die. It may mean simply indefinitely, or that the meeting will never assemble again.

Without prejudice. Words indicating that the action taken or compromise effected, and in reference to which they are used, is not to affect the merits of the controversy in case a settlement is not effected.

Without reserve. In sales at auction these words indicate that there is to be no by-bidding on the part of the owner.

Witness. One who is called to give oral testimony in court.

Also, one who witnesses or subscribes an instrument to attest it as the act of another.

THE SALES ACT.

AN ACT

To establish a law uniform with the laws of other States on Sales.¹

Also called

THE SALES ACT²

Being a codification of the law relating to the sale of goods.³

PART I.

FORMATION OF THE CONTRACT.

SECTION 1. (1.) A contract to sell goods is a contract whereby the seller agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a consideration called the price.

(2.) A sale of goods in an agreement whereby the seller transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a consideration called the price.

¹—99 Vol. Laws of Ohio, 413-435. Passed May 9, 1908, and went into effect January 1, 1909.

See also, Conn. Pub. Acts, 1907, C. 212; New Jersey Laws, 1907, C. 132; Arizona Sess. Laws, 1907, C. 99.

³—Following the example of Great Britain, which in 1893 enacted the Sale of Goods Act, several states of the Union have already enacted the so-called Sales Act. The English act was drafted by Mr. M. D. Chalmers, who prepared the English Bills of Exchange Act, which is the foundation of the Negotiable Instruments Law, now in force in a large part of the Union. The Sales Act is based on the English Sale of Goods Act. The original draft was prepared in 1902-3 by Prof. Samuel Williston of Harvard University, at the request of the Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, and was presented to the Conference of the Commissioners and discussed at its meeting in 1904. The draft was then recommitted to the Committee on Commercial Law, and a revised draft was presented at the meeting of the conference in 1905. This draft included for the first time a number of sections on the transfer of property by means of document of title which are not contained in the English act, and because of these sections it was thought best again to recommit the draft. At the meeting of the conference in 1906 the draft in its present form was adopted and recommended to the Legislatures of the several states for passage. The act is in the main declaratory in its effect; but it makes some changes, and necessarily changes the law in some jurisdictions on points concerning which a conflict of laws has existed.—Tiffany on Sales, sd. Ed.

(3.) A contract to sell or a sale may be absolute or conditional.

(4.) There may be a contract to sell or a sale between one part owner and another.

SECTION 2. Capacity to buy and sell is regulated by the general law concerning capacity to contract, and to transfer and acquire property.

Where necessaries are sold and delivered to an infant, or to a person who by reason of mental incapacity or drunkenness is incompetent to contract, he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

Necessaries in this section mean goods suitable to the condition in life of such infant or other person, and to his actual requirements at the time of delivery.

FORMALITIES OF THE CONTRACT.

SECTION 3. Subject to the provisions of this act and of any statute in that behalf, a contract to sell or a sale may be made in writing (either with or without seal), or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, or may be inferred from the conduct of the parties.

SECTION 4. (1.) A contract to sell or a sale of any goods or choses in action of the value of twenty-five hundred ($2500.00) dollars or upwards shall not be enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part of the goods or choses in action so contracted to be sold or sold and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract or sale be signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf.⁴

(2.) The provisions of this section apply to every such contract or sale, notwithstanding that the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract or sale be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery, or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof, or rendering the same fit for delivery; but if the goods are to be manufactured by the seller especially for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business, the provisions of this section shall not apply.⁵

(3.) There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer, either before or after delivery of the goods, ex-

⁴—The amount of $2,500 here fixed is exceptionally large. In the Massachusetts Act the value is fixed at $500, and in the English Statute it is ten pounds. Under this provision it is only the exceptionally large contracts of sale that need be in writing, and the former provision of the Statute of Frauds is largely nullified.

⁵—The last clause of this subdivision is not found in the English Act.

presses by words or conduct his assent to becoming the owner of those specific goods.⁶

SUBJECT MATTER OF CONTRACT.

SECTION 5. (1.) The goods which form the subject of the contract to sell may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, or goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract to sell, in this act called "future goods."

(3.) Where the parties purport to effect a present sale of future goods, the agreement operates as a contract to sell the goods.

SECTION 6. (1.) There may be a contract to sell or a sale of an undivided share of goods. If the parties intend to effect a present sale, the buyer, by force of the agreement, becomes an owner in common with the owner or owners of the remaining shares.

(2.) In the case of fungible goods, there may be a sale of an undivided share of a specific mass, though the seller purports to sell and the buyer to buy a definite number, weight or measure of the goods in the mass, and though the number, weight or measure of the goods in the mass is undetermined. By such a sale the buyer becomes owner in common of such a share of the mass as the number, weight or measure bought bears to the number, weight or measure of the mass. If the mass contains less than the number, weight or measure bought, the buyer becomes the owner of the whole mass and the seller is bound to make good the deficiency from similar goods unless a contrary intent appears.⁷

SECTION 7. (1.) Where the parties purport to sell specific goods, and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have wholly perished at the time when the agreement is made, the agreement is void.

(2.) Where the parties purport to sell specific goods, and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have perished in part or have wholly or in a material part so deteriorated in quality as to be substantially changed in character, the buyer may at his option treat the sale:

(a.) As avoided, or

(b.) As transferring the property in all of the existing goods or in so much thereof as have not deteriorated, and as binding the buyer

6—This clause in the English Act reads as follows: (3) There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer does any act in relation to the goods which recognizes a pre-existing contract of sale whether there be an acceptance in performance of the contract or not.

7—The clauses of section six are not found in the English statute, and are opposed to English authorities. The law is that stated in Kimberly v. Patchin, 19 N. Y. 330 (1859).

to pay the full agreed price if the sale was indivisible or to pay the agreed price for the goods in which the property passes if the sale was divisible.⁸

SECTION 8. (1.) Where there is a contract to sell specific goods, and subsequently, but before the risk passes to the buyer, without any fault on the part of the seller or the buyer, the goods wholly perish, the contract is thereby avoided.

(2.) Where there is a contract to sell specific goods, and subsequently, but before the risk passes to the buyer, without any fault of the seller or the buyer, part of the goods perish or the whole or a material part of the goods so deteriorate in quality as to be substantially changed in character, the buyer may at his option treat the contract:⁹

(a.) As avoided, or,

(b.) As binding the seller to transfer the property in all of the existing goods or in so much thereof as have not deteriorated, and as binding the buyer to pay the full agreed price if the contract was indivisible, or to pay the agreed price for so much of the goods as the seller, by the buyer's option, is bound to transfer if the contract was divisible.

THE PRICE.

SECTION 9. (1.) The price may be fixed by the contract, or may be left to be fixed in such manner as may be agreed, or it may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties.

(2.) The price may be made payable in any personal property.

(3.) Where transferring or promising to transfer any interest in real estate constitutes the whole or part of the consideration for transferring or for promising to transfer the property in goods, this act shall not apply.

(4.) Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions the buyer must pay a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of each particular case.

SECTION 10. (1.) Where there is a contract to sell or a sale of goods at a price or on terms to be fixed by a third person, and such third person, without fault of the seller or the buyer, can not or does not fix the price or terms, the contract or the sale is thereby avoided; but if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to and appropriated by the buyer he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

⁸—This second subdivision of this section is not found in the English statute.

(2.) Where such third person is prevented from fixing the price or terms by fault of the seller or the buyer, the party not in fault may have such remedies against the party in fault as are allowed by Parts IV and V of this act.¹⁰

CONDITIONS AND WARRANTIES.

SECTION 11. (1.) Where the obligation of either party to a contract to sell or a sale is subject to any condition which is not performed, such party may refuse to proceed with the contract or sale or he may waive performance of the condition. If the other party has promised that the condition should happen or be performed, such first-mentioned party may also treat the non-performance of the condition as a breach of warranty.

(2.) Where the property in the goods has not passed, the buyer may treat the fulfillment by the seller of his obligation to furnish goods as described and as warranted expressly or by implication in the contract to sell as a condition of the obligation of the buyer to perform his promise to accept and pay for the goods.¹¹

SECTION 12. Any affirmation of fact or any promise by the seller relating to the goods is an express warranty if the natural tendency of such affirmation or promise is to induce the buyer to purchase the goods, and if the buyer purchases the goods relying thereon. No affirmation of the value of the goods, nor any statement purporting to be a statement of the seller's opinion only shall be construed as a warranty.

SECTION 13. In a contract to sell or a sale, unless a contrary intention appears, there is—

(1.) An implied warranty on the part of the seller that in the case of a sale he has a right to sell the goods, and that in the case of a contract to sell he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass.

¹¹—Section ten of the English statute is omitted, and the present section is radically different from the corresponding section of that statute.

In the first place, the election of a party to treat the breach of a condition as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated by the other party, is expressly limited, as it should be, to promissory conditions; that is, to cases where "the other party has promised that the condition should happen or be performed."

In the second place, the section, taken with the next four sections, and section sixty-nine, obliterates most of the distinctions between promissory conditions and collateral warranties.—Burdick on Sales, note to this section in Appendix IV.

(2.) An implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods as against any lawful claims existing at the time of the sale.

(3.) An implied warranty that the goods shall be free at the time of the sale from any charge or encumbrance in favor of any third person, not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract or sale is made.

(4.) This section shall not, however, be held to render liable a sheriff, auctioneer, mortgagee, or other person professing to sell by virtue of authority in fact or law goods in which a third person has a legal or equitable interest.¹²

SECTION 14. Where there is a contract to sell or a sale of goods by description, there is an implied warranty that the goods shall correspond with the description and if the contract or sale be by sample, as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description.

SECTION 15. Subject to the provisions of this act and of any statute in that behalf, there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract to sell or a sale, except as follows:

(1.) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, and it appears that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment (whether he be the grower or manufacturer or not), there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose.

(2.) Where the goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the grower or manufacturer or not), there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be of merchantable quality.

(3.) If the buyer has examined the goods, there is no implied warranty as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed.

(4.) In the case of a contract to sell or a sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied warranty as to its fitness for any particular purpose.

(5.) An express warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade.

(6.) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied under this act unless inconsistent therewith.

¹²—This paragraph (4) is not found in the English statute but is supported by English and American cases.

SALE BY SAMPLE.

SECTION. 16. In the case of a contract to sell or a sale by sample—

(a.) There is an implied warranty that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality.

(b.) There is an implied warranty that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk with the sample, except so far as otherwise provided in section 47 (3).

(c.) If the seller is a dealer in goods of that kind, there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample.

PART II.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY AS BETWEEN SELLER AND BUYER.

SECTION 17. Where there is a contract to sell unascertained goods no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained, but property in an undivided share of ascertained goods may be transferred as provided in section 6.

SECTION 18. (1.) Where there is a contract to sell specific or ascertained goods, the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred.

(2.) For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties, regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties, usages of trade, and the circumstances of the case.

SECTION 19. Unless a different intention appears, the following are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer:

Rule 1. Where there is an unconditional contract to sell specific goods, in a deliverable state, the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment, or the time of delivery, or both, be postponed.

Rule 2. Where there is a contract to sell specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods, for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing be done.

Rule 3. (1.) When goods are delivered to the buyer "on sale or return," or on other terms indicating an intention to make a present sale, but to give the buyer an option to return the goods instead of paying the price, the property passes to the buyer on delivery, but he may revert the property in the seller by returning or tendering the goods within the time fixed in the contract, or, if no time has been fixed, within a reasonable time.

(2.) When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or on trial or on satisfaction, or other similar terms, the property therein passes to the buyer—

(a.) When he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction.

(b.) If he does not signify his approval or acceptance to the seller, but retains the goods without giving notice of rejection, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time, and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

Rule 4. (1.) Where there is a contract to sell unascertained or future goods by description, and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract, either by the seller with the assent of the buyer, or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be expressed or implied, and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made.

(2.) Where, in pursuance of a contract to sell, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to or holding for the buyer, he is presumed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract, except in the cases provided for in the next rule and in section 20. This presumption is applicable, although by the terms of the contract the buyer is to pay the price before receiving delivery of the goods, and the goods are marked with the words collect on delivery or their equivalents.

Rule 5. If a contract to sell requires the seller to deliver the goods to the buyer, or at a particular place, or to pay the freight or cost of transportation to the buyer, or to a particular place, the property does not pass until the goods have been delivered to the buyer or reached the place agreed upon.¹

SECTION 20. (1.) Where there is a contract to sell specific goods, or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve the right of possession of property in the goods until certain conditions have been fulfilled. The right of possession of property may be thus reserved not—withstanding the delivery of the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer.

(2.) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the seller or his agent, or to the order of the seller or of his agent, the seller thereby reserves the property in the goods. But if, except for the form of the bill of lading, the property would have passed to the buyer on shipment of the goods, the seller's property in the goods shall be deemed to be only for the purpose of securing performance by the buyer of his obligations under the contract.

(3.) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the buyer or of his agent, but possession of the bill of lading is retained by the seller or his agent, the seller thereby reserves a right to the possession of the goods, as against the buyer.

(4.) Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading together to the buyer to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honor the bill of exchange, and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading he acquires no added right thereby. If, however, the bill of lading provides that the goods are deliverable to the buyer or to the order of the buyer, or is endorsed in blank, or to the buyer by the consignee named therein, one who purchases in good faith, for value, the bill of lading, or goods from the buyer will obtain the property in the goods, although the bill of exchange has not been honored, provided that such purchaser has received delivery of the bill of lading indorsed by the consignee named therein, or of the goods, without notice of the facts making the transfer wrongful.

SECTION 21.² In the case of a sale by auction:

(1.) Where goods are put up for sale by auction in lots, each lot is the subject of a separate contract of sale.

(2.) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer announces its completion by the fall of the hammer, or in other customary manner. Until such announcement is made any bidder may retract his bid; and the auctioneer may withdraw the goods from sale unless the auction has been announced to be without reserve.

(3.) A right to bid may be reserved expressly by or on behalf of the seller.

(4.) Where notice has not been given that a sale by auction is subject to a right to bid on behalf of the seller, it shall not be lawful for the seller to bid himself or to employ or induce any person to bid at such sale on his behalf, or for the auctioneer to employ or induce any person to bid at such sale on behalf of the seller or knowingly to take any bid from the seller or any person employed by him. Any sale contravening this rule may be treated as fraudulent by the buyer.

SECTION 22. Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not, except that—

(a.) Where delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or to a bailee for the buyer, in pursuance of the contract and the property in the goods has been retained by the seller merely to secure performance by the buyer of his obligations under the contract, the goods are at the buyer's risk from the time of such delivery.

(b.) Where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller the goods are at the risk of the party in fault as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault.

TRANSFER OF TITLE.

SECTION 23. (1.) Subject to the provisions of this act, where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof, and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell.

(2.) Nothing in this act, however, shall affect—

(a.) The provisions of any factors' acts, recording acts, or any enactment enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof.

(b.) The validity of any contract to sell or sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.³

(1.) Where goods are sold in market overt, according to the usage of the market, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of any defect or want of title on the part of the seller.

(2.) Nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to the sale of horses.

(3.) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland. This system of rules as to sales in market overt have never been of any importance in this country, as such markets are not used.

Section 24 of the English Act, is not found in the American acts, as its provisions are not recognized here. The section in the English Act is as follows:

(1.) Where goods have been stolen and the offender is prosecuted to conviction,

SECTION 24. Where the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto, but his title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith, for value, and without notice of the seller's defect of title.

SECTION 25. Where a person having sold goods continues in possession of the goods, or of negotiable documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by an agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving and paying value for the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorized by the owner of the goods to make the same.⁴

SECTION 26. Where a person having sold goods continues in possession of the goods, or of negotiable documents of title to the goods, and such retention of possession is fraudulent in fact or is deemed fraudulent under any rule of law, a creditor or creditors of the seller may treat the sale as void.⁵

the property in the goods so stolen reverts in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, notwithstanding any intermediate dealing with them, whether by sale in market overt or otherwise.

(2.) Notwithstanding any enactment to the contrary, where goods have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to larceny, the property in such goods shall not revert in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender.

(3.) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

4—The second and third subdivisions of this section as given in the English Act are omitted from the American statutes as not in accordance with the weight of authority. The omitted parts are as follows:

(2.) Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner.

(3.) In this section the term "mercantile agent" has the same meaning as in the Factors Acts.

5—Section 26 of the English statute is as follows:

(1.) A writ of hieri facias or other writ of execution against goods shall bind the property in the goods of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the sheriff to be executed; and, for the better manifestation of such time, it shall be the duty of the sheriff, without fee, upon the receipt of any such writ to indorse upon the back thereof, the hour, day, month, and year when he received the same.

Provided that no such writ shall prejudice the title to such goods acquired by any person in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless such person had at the time when he acquired his title notice that such writ or any other writ by

SECTION 27. A document of title in which it is stated that the goods referred to therein will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such document is a negotiable document of title.⁶

SECTION 28. A negotiable document of title may be negotiated by delivery.

(a.) Where by the terms of the document the carrier, warehouseman, or other bailee issuing the same undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer, or

(b.) Where by the terms of the document the carrier, warehouseman, or other bailee issuing the same undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the document has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where by the terms of a negotiable document of title the goods are deliverable to bearer or where a negotiable document of title has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the document shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee.

SECTION 29. A negotiable document of title may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are by the terms of the document deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner.

SECTION 30. If a document of title which contains an undertaking by a carrier, warehouseman, or other bailee to deliver the goods to the bearer, to a specified person or order, or to the order of a specified person, or which contains words of like import, has placed upon it the words "not negotiable," "non-negotiable" or the like, such a document may nevertheless be negotiated by the holder and is a negotiable document of title within the meaning of this act. But nothing in this act contained shall be construed as limiting, or defining the effect upon the obligations of the carrier, warehouseman, or other bailee issuing a document of title of placing thereon the words "not negotiable," "non-negotiable," or the like.

virtue of which the goods of the execution debtor might be seized or attached had been delivered to and remained unexecuted in the hands of the sheriff.

(2.) In this section the term "sheriff" includes any officer charged with the enforcement of a writ of execution.

(3.) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

6—The matter given in sections 27 to 40 are not a part of the English Sales Act, they were added by the Committee on Commercial Law, to cover transfers by documents of title.

SECTION 31. A document of title which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee. A non-negotiable document cannot be negotiated and the indorsement of such a document gives the transferee no additional right.

SECTION 32. A negotiable document of title may be negotiated—

- (a.) By the owner thereof, or
- (b.) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the document has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the document the bailee issuing the document undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the document has been entrusted, or if at the time of such entrusting the document is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery.

SECTION 33. A person to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated acquires thereby,

(a.) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the document to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the document had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and,

(b.) The direct obligation of the bailee issuing the document to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the document as fully as if such bailee had contracted directly with him.

SECTION 34. A person to whom a document of title has been transferred, but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferrer, the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferrer.

If the document is non-negotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the bailee who issued the document of the transfer thereof, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of such bailee to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the document.

Prior to the notification of such bailee by the transferrer or transferee of a non-negotiable document of title, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of such bailee may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferrer, or by a notification to such bailee by the transferrer or a subsequent purchaser from the transferrer of a subsequent sale of goods by the transferrer.

SECTION 35. Where a negotiable document of title is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferrer is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferrer to compel him to indorse the document unless a contrary intention appears.

The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made.

SECTION 36. A person who for value negotiates or transfers a document of title by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a document of title unless a contrary intention appears, warrants:

- (a.) That the document is genuine.
- (b.) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it.
- (c.) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the document, and,
- (d.) That he has the right to transfer the title to the goods and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose, whenever such warranties would have been implied if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a document of title the goods represented thereby.

SECTION 37. The indorsement of a document of title shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the bailee who issued the document or previous indorsers thereof to fulfill their respective obligations.

SECTION 38. The validity of the negotiation of a negotiable document of title is not impaired by the fact that the negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the document was induced by fraud, mistake, or duress to entrust the possession or custody thereof to such person, if the person to whom the document was negotiated or a person to whom the document was subsequently negotiated paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake, or duress.

SECTION 39. If goods are delivered to a bailee by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner and a negotiable document of title is issued for them they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of such bailee be attached by garnishment or otherwise or be levied upon under an execution unless the document be first surrendered to the bailee or its negotiation enjoined. The bailee shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the document is surrendered to him or impounded by the court.¹

SECTION 40. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable document of title shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction by injunction and otherwise in attaching such document or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which can not readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process.

PART III.

PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT.

SECTION 41. It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods, and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract to sell or sale.

SECTION 42. Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods.

SECTION 43. (1.) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer, is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties. Apart from any such contract, express or implied, or usage of trade to the contrary, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence; but in case of a contract to sell or a sale of specific goods, which to the knowledge of the parties when the contract or the sale was made were in some other place, then that place is the place of delivery.

(2.) Where by a contract to sell or a sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time.

(3.) Where the goods at the time of sale are in the possession of a third person, the seller has not fulfilled his obligation to deliver to the buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on the buyer's behalf; but as against all others than the seller the buyer shall be regarded as having received delivery from the time when such third person first has notice of the sale. Nothing in this section, however, shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods.

(4.) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact.

(5.) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller.

SECTION 44. (1.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell, the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts or retains the goods so delivered, knowing that the seller is not going to perform the contract in full, he must pay for them at the contract rate. If, however, the buyer has used or disposed of the goods delivered before he knows that the seller is not going to perform his contract in full, the buyer shall not be liable for more than the fair value to him of the goods so received.

(2.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

(3.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of a different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole.

(4.) The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement, or course of dealing between the parties.

SECTION 45. (1.) Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by installments.

(2.) Where there is a contract to sell goods to be delivered by stated installments, which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes defective deliveries in respect to one or more installments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more installments, it depends in each case on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is so material as to justify the injured party in refusing to proceed further and suing for damages for breach of the entire contract, or whether the breach is severable, giving rise to a claim for compensation, but not to a right to treat the whole contract as broken.

SECTION 46. (1.) Where, in pursuance of a contract to sell or a sale, the seller is authorized or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer is deemed to be a delivery of the goods to the buyer, except in the cases provided for in section 19, rule 5, unless a contrary intent appears.

(2.) Unless otherwise authorized by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable, having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omit so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier as a delivery to himself, or may hold the seller responsible in damages.

(3.) Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer under circumstances in which the seller knows or ought to know that it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their transit, and, if the seller fails to do so, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such transit.

SECTION 47. (1.) Where goods are delivered to the buyer, which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

(2.) Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

(3.) Where goods are delivered to a carrier by the seller, in accordance with an order from or agreement with the buyer, upon the terms that the goods shall not be delivered by the carrier to the buyer until he has paid the price, whether such terms are indicated by marking the goods with the words collect on delivery, or otherwise, the buyer is not entitled to examine the goods before payment of the price in the absence of agreement permitting such examination.²

SECTION 48. The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him, and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when, after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them.

SECTION 49. In the absence of express or implied agreement of the parties, acceptance of the goods by the buyer shall not discharge the seller from liability in damages or other legal remedy for breach of any promise or warranty in the contract to sell or the sale. But if, after acceptance of the goods, the buyer fail to give notice to the seller of the breach of any promise or warranty within a reasonable time after the buyer knows, or ought to know, of such breach, the seller shall not be liable therefor.³

SECTION 50. Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer, and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he notifies the seller that he refuses to accept them.

SECTION 51. When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods, and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods. If the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation or breach of the entire contract, the seller shall have the rights against the goods and on the contract hereinafter provided in favor of the seller when the buyer is in default.

PART IV.

RIGHTS OF UNPAID SELLER AGAINST THE GOODS.

SECTION 52. (1.) The seller of goods is deemed to be an unpaid seller within the meaning of the act—

(a.) When the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered.

(b.) When a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has been broken by reason of the dishonor of the instrument, the insolvency of the buyer, or otherwise.

(2.) In this part of this act the term "seller" includes an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been endorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid, or is directly responsible for, the price, or any other person who is in the position of a seller.

SECTION 53. (1.) Subject to the provisions of this act, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller of goods, as such, has—

(a.) A lien on the goods or right to retain them for the price while he is in possession of them.

(b.) In case of the insolvency of the buyer, a right of stopping the goods in transitu after he has parted with the possession of them.

(c.) A right of resale as limited by this act.

(d.) A right to rescind the sale as limited by this act.

³—The second sentence in this section imposes upon the buyer the duty of giving notice to the seller, an act not required by English law, nor in many of our states.

(2.) Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage "in transitu" where the property has passed to the buyer.

UNPAID SELLER'S LIEN.

SECTION 54. (1.) Subject to the provisions of this act, the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely:

(a.) Where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit.

(b.) Where the goods have been sold on credit, but the term of credit has expired.

(c.) Where the buyer becomes insolvent.

(2.) The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding that he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee for the buyer.

SECTION 55. Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an intent to waive the lien or right of retention.

SECTION 56 (1.) The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien thereon—

(a.) When he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the property in the goods or the right to the possession thereof.

(b.) When the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods.

(c.) By waiver thereof.

(2.) The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien thereon, does not lose his lien by reason only that he has obtained judgment or decree for the price of the goods.

STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

SECTION 57. Subject to the provisions of this act, when the buyer of goods is or becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transitu, that is to say, he may resume possession of the good at any time while they are in transit, and he will then become entitled to the same rights in regard to the goods as he would have had if he had never parted with the possession.¹

SECTION 58. (1.) Goods are in transit within the meaning of section 57:

(a.) From the time when they are delivered to a carrier by land or water, or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee.

(b.) If the goods are rejected by the buyer, and the carrier or other bailee continues in possession of them, even if the seller has refused to receive them back.

(2.) Goods are no longer in transit within the meaning of section 57:

(a.) If the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination.

(b.) If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee acknowledges to the buyer or his agent, that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee for the buyer, or his agent, and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer.

(c.) If the carrier or other bailee wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf.

(3.) If goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer, it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier or as agent of the buyer.

(4.) If part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transitu, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement with the buyer to give up possession of the whole of the goods.

SECTION 59. (1.) The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transitu either by obtaining actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may prevent a delivery to the buyer.

(2.) When notice of stoppage in transitu is given by the seller to the carrier, or other bailee in possession of the goods, he must redeliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such redelivery must be borne by the seller. If, however, a negotiable document of title representing the goods has been issued by the carrier or other bailee, he shall not be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to the seller unless such document is first surrendered for cancellation.²

RE-SALE BY THE SELLER.³

SECTION 60. (1.) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the seller expressly reserves the right of resale in case the buyer should make default, or where the buyer has been in default in the payment of the price an unreasonable time, an unpaid seller having a right of lien or having stopped the goods in transitu may resell the goods. He shall not thereafter be liable to the original buyer upon the contract to ²—The last sentence of this subdivision is not found in the English Act.

RE-SALE BY BUYER OR SELLER.

47. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller's right or lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto.

Provided that where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for valuable consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is defeated, and if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee.

48—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this section, a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise by an unpaid seller of his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu.

(2.) Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu resells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer.

(3.) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller gives notice to the buyer of his intention to resell, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, the unpaid seller may resell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract.

(4.) Where the seller expressly reserves a right of resale in case the buyer should make default, and on the buyer making default, resells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim the seller may have for damages.

sell or the sale or for any profit made by such resale, but may recover from the buyer damages for any loss occasioned by the breach of the contract or the sale.

(2.) Where a resale is made, as authorized in this section, the buyer acquires a good title as against the original buyer.

(3.) It is not essential to the validity of a resale that notice of an intention to resell the goods be given by the seller to the original buyer. But where the right to resell is not based on the perishable nature of the goods or upon an express provision of the contract or the sale, the giving or failure to give such notice shall be relevant in any issue involving the question whether the buyer had been in default an unreasonable time before the resale was made.

(4.) It is not essential to the validity of a resale that notice of the time and place of such resale should be given by the seller to the original buyer.

(5.) The seller is bound to exercise reasonable care and judgment in making a resale, and subject to this requirement may make a resale either by public or private sale.

RESCISSION BY THE SELLER. (4)

SECTION 61. (1.) An unpaid seller having a right of lien or having stopped the goods in transitu, may rescind the transfer of title and resume the property in the goods, where he expressly reserved the right to do so in case the buyer should make default, or where the buyer has been in default in the payment of the price an unreasonable time. The seller shall not thereafter be liable to the buyer upon the contract to sell or the sale, but may recover from the buyer damages for any loss occasioned by the breach of the contract or the sale.

(2.) The transfer of title shall not be held to have been rescinded by an unpaid seller until he has manifested by notice to the buyer or by some other overt act an intention to rescind. It is not necessary that such overt act should be communicated to the buyer, but the giving or failure to give notice to the buyer of the intention to rescind shall be relevant in any issue involving the question whether the buyer has been in default an unreasonable time before the right of rescission was asserted.

SECTION 62. Subject to the provisions of this act, the unpaid seller's right of lien or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto.

If, however, a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the right of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such document has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the carrier or other bailee who issued such document, of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu.

PART V.

ACTIONS FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT.—REMEDIES OF THE SELLER.

SECTION 63. (1.) Where, under a contract to sell or a sale, the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract or the sale, the seller may maintain an action against him for the price of the goods.

(2.) Where, under a contract to sell or a sale, the price is payable on a day certain, irrespective of delivery or of transfer of title, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may maintain an action for the price, although the property in the goods has not passed, and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract. But it shall be a defense to such an action that the seller at any time before judgment in such action has manifested an inability to perform the contract or the sale on his part or an intention not to perform.⁵

(3.) Although the property in the goods has not passed, if they can not readily be resold for a reasonable price, and if the provisions of section 64 (4) are not applicable, the seller may offer to deliver the goods to the buyer, and, if the buyer refuses to receive them, may notify the buyer that the goods are thereafter held by the seller as bailee for the buyer. Thereafter the seller may treat the goods as the buyer's and may maintain an action for the price.⁶

SECTION 64. (1.) Where the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to 5—The last sentence in this subdivision was added by the codifiers to settle a conflict in the American authorities on the matter, and the rule adopted is, as they believed, supported by the weight of authority.

6—This subdivision differs radically from the rule in England, and that of some States, and follows the New York rule as to the right of the seller to sue for the purchase price.

accept and pay for the goods, the seller may maintain an action against him for damages for non-acceptance.

(2.) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the buyer's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question, the measure of damages is, in the absence of special circumstances, showing proximate damage of a greater amount, the difference between the contract price and the market or current price at the time or times when the goods ought to have been accepted, or, if no time was fixed for acceptance, then at the time of the refusal to accept.

(4.) If, while labor or expense of material amount are necessary on the part of the seller to enable him to fulfill his obligations under the contract to sell or the sale, the buyer repudiates the contract or the sale, or notifies the seller to proceed no further therewith, the buyer shall be liable to the seller for no greater damages than the seller would have suffered if he did nothing towards carrying out the contract or the sale after receiving notice of the buyer's repudiation or countermand. The profit the seller would have made if the contract or the sale had been fully performed shall be considered in estimating such damages.⁷

SECTION 65. Where the goods have not been delivered to the buyer, and the buyer has repudiated the contract to sell or sale, or has manifested his inability to perform his obligations thereunder, or has committed a material breach thereof, the seller may totally rescind the contract or the sale by giving notice of his election so to do to the buyer.⁸

REMEDIES OF THE BUYER.

SECTION 66. Where the property in the goods has passed to the buyer and the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods, the buyer may maintain any action allowed by law to the owner of goods of similar kind when wrongfully converted or withheld.⁹

SECTION 67. (1.) Where the property in the goods has not passed to the buyer, and the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods, the buyer may maintain an action against the seller for damages for non-delivery.

⁷—This is an addition to the English statute, made necessary by American decisions.

⁸—This section is also an addition, and not found in the English Act.

⁹—Not found in English Act.

(2.) The measure of damages is the loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the seller's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question, the measure of damages, in the absence of special circumstances showing proximate damages of a greater amount, is the difference between the contract price and the market or current price of the goods at the time or times when they ought to have been delivered, or, if no time was fixed, then at the time of the refusal to deliver.

SECTION 68. Where the seller has broken a contract to deliver specific or ascertained goods, a court having the powers of a court of equity may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the buyer, by its judgment or decree direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the seller the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The judgment or decree may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price and otherwise, as to the court may seem just.

SECTION 69. (1.) Where there is a breach of warranty by the seller, the buyer may, at his election—

(a) Accept or keep the goods and set up against the seller, the breach of warranty by way of recoupment in diminution or extinction of the price;

(b) Accept or keep the goods and maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty;

(c) Refuse to accept the goods, if the property therein has not passed, and maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty;

(d) Rescind the contract to sell or the sale and refuse to receive the goods, or if the goods have already been received, return them or offer to return them to the seller and recover the price or any part thereof which has been paid.

(2.) When the buyer has claimed and been granted a remedy in any one of these ways, no other remedy can therefore be granted.

(3.) Where the goods have been delivered to the buyer, he cannot rescind the sale if he knew of the breach of warranty when he accepted the goods, or if he fails to notify the seller within a reasonable time of the election to rescind, or if he fails to return or to offer to return the goods to the seller in substantially as good condition as they were in at the time the property was transferred to the buyer. But if deterioration or injury of the goods is due to the breach of warranty, such deterioration or injury shall not prevent the buyer from returning or offering to return the goods to the seller and rescinding the sale.

(4.) Where the buyer is entitled to rescind the sale and elects to do so, the buyer shall cease to be liable for the price upon returning or offering to return the goods. If the price or any part thereof has already been paid, the seller shall be liable to repay so much thereof as has been paid, concurrently with the return of the goods, or immediately after an offer to return the goods in exchange for repayment of the price.

(5.) Where the buyer is entitled to rescind the sale and elects to do so, if the seller refuses to accept an offer of the buyer to return the goods, the buyer shall thereafter be deemed to hold the goods as bailee for the seller, but subject to a lien to secure the repayment of any portion of the price which has been paid, and with the remedies for the enforcement of such lien allowed to an unpaid seller by section 53.

(6.) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events from the breach of warranty.

(7.) In the case of breach of warranty of quality, such loss, in the absence of special circumstances showing proximate damage of a greater amount, is the difference between the value of the goods at the time of delivery to the buyer and the value they would have had if they had answered in the warranty.¹⁰

SECTION 70. Nothing in this act shall affect the right of the buyer or the seller to recover interest or special damages in any case where by law interest or special damages may be recoverable, or to recover money paid where the consideration for the payment of it has failed.

¹⁰—This section differs materially from the corresponding section in the English Act. The law followed in the American statute is that of the State of Massachusetts, and is contrary to that prevailing in many states. See, Thornton v. Wynn, 12 Wheaton, (N. S.) 183. The English Act is as follows:

(1.) Where there is a breach of warranty by the seller, or where the buyer elects, or is compelled, to treat any breach of a condition on the part of the seller as a breach of warranty, the buyer is not by reason only of such breach of warranty entitled to reject the goods; but he may

(a.) set up against the seller the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price; or

(b.) maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty.

(2.) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the breach of warranty.

(3.) In the case of breach of warranty of quality such loss is prima facie the difference between the value of the goods at the time of delivery to the buyer and the value they would have had if they had answered to the warranty.

(4.) The fact that the buyer has set up the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price does not prevent him from maintaining an action for the same breach of warranty if he has suffered further damage.

(5.) Nothing in this section shall prejudice or affect the buyer's right of rejection in Scotland as declared by this Act.

PART VI.

INTERPRETATION.

SECTION 71. Where any right, duty, or liability would arise under a contract to sell or a sale by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by custom, if the custom be such as to bind both parties to the contract or the sale.

SECTION 72. Where any right, duty or liability is declared by this act, it may, unless otherwise by this act provided, be enforced by action.

SECTION 73. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall continue to apply to contracts to sell and to sales of goods.

SECTION 74. This act shall be interpreted and construed, if possible, as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.¹¹

SECTION 75. The provisions of this act relating to contracts to sell and to sales do not apply, unless so stated, to any transaction in the form of a contract to sell or a sale which is intended to operate by way of mortgage, pledge, charge, or other security.

SECTION 76. (1.) In this act, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires—

“Action” includes counterclaim, set-off and suit in equity.

“Buyer” means a person who buys or agrees to buy goods or any legal successor in interest of such person.

“Defendant” includes a plaintiff against whom a right or set-off or counterclaim is asserted.

“Delivery” means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

“Divisible contract to sell or sale” means a contract to sell or a sale in which by its terms the price for a portion or portions of the goods less than the whole is fixed or ascertainable by computation.

“Document of title to goods” includes any bill of lading, dock warrant, warehouse receipt or order for the delivery of goods, or any other document used in the ordinary course of business in the sale or transfer of goods, as proof of the possession or control of the goods, or authorizing or purporting to authorize the possessor of the document to transfer or receive, either by indorsement or by delivery, goods represented by such document.

"Fault" means wrongful act or default.

"Fungible goods" means goods of which any unit is from its nature or by mercantile usage treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

"Future goods" means goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale.

"Goods" include all chattels personal other than things in action and money. The term includes emblements, industrial growing crops, and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale.

"Order" in sections of this act relating to documents of title means an order by indorsement on the document.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

"Plaintiff" includes defendant asserting a right of set-off or counter-claim.

"Property" means the general property in goods, and not merely a special property.

"Purchaser" includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Purchases" includes taking as a mortgagee or as a pledgee.

"Quality of goods" includes their state or condition.

"Sale" includes a bargain and sale as well as a sale and delivery.

"Seller" means a person who sells or agrees to sell goods, or any legal successor in interest of such person.

"Specific goods" means goods identified and agreed upon at the time a contract to sell or sale is made.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing claim, whether for money or not, constitutes value where goods or documents of title are taken either in satisfaction thereof, or as security therefor.

(2.) A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this act when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not.

(3.) A person is insolvent within the meaning of this act who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business or can not pay his debts as they become due, whether he has committed an act of bankruptcy or not, and whether he is insolvent within the meaning of the federal bankruptcy law or not.

(4.) Goods are in a "deliverable state" within the meaning of this act when they are in such a state that the buyer would, under the contract, be bound to take delivery of them.

SECTION 77. This act shall take effect on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and nine.

UNIFORM LAW OF WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

AN ACT

To establish a law uniform with the laws of other states on warehouse receipts.¹

PART I.

THE ISSUE OF WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

SECTION 1. Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman.

SECTION 2. Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

- (a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored.
- (b) The date of issue of the receipt.
- (c) The consecutive number of the receipt.
- (d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order.
- (e) The rate of storage charges.
- (f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them.
- (g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent.
- (h) If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership, and
- (i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred, is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damage caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required.

SECTION 3. A warehouseman may insert in a receipt, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

(a) Be contrary to the provisions of this act.

(b) In any wise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safe-keeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own.

SECTION 4. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a non-negotiable receipt.

SECTION 5. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt is a negotiable receipt.

No provision shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is non-negotiable. Such provision, if inserted, shall be void.

SECTION 6. When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word "duplicate" shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt.

SECTION 7. A non-negotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it "non-negotiable," or "not negotiable." In case of the warehouseman's failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable, may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable.

This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character.

PART II.

OBLIGATIONS AND RIGHTS OF WAREHOUSEMEN UPON THEIR RECEIPTS.

SECTION 8. A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this act, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

- (a) An offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien;
- (b) An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt; and
- (c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the warehouseman.

In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal.

SECTION 9. A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, to one who is—

- (a) The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent;
- (b) A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods, or who has written authority from the person so entitled either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper, or,
- (c) A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee.

SECTION 10. Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions he shall be so liable, if prior to such delivery he had either—

- (a) Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or,
- (b) Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

SECTION 11. Except as provided in section 36, where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he has issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver the goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman.

SECTION 12. Except as provided in section 36, where a warehouseman delivers part of the goods for which he has issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel such receipt, or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman.

SECTION 13. The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was

- (a) Immaterial,
- (b) Authorized, or
- (c) Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt, as they were before alteration.

Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase.

SECTION 14. Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense, which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs and counsel fees.

The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods.

SECTION 15. A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability.

SECTION 16. No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt.

SECTION 17. If more than one person claim the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for non-delivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead.

SECTION 18. If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to the adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead.

SECTION 19. Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in sections 9 and 36, no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt.

SECTION 20. A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt for damages caused by the non-existence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them, or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or the packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor.

SECTION 21. A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise, but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care.

SECTION 22. Except as provided in the following section, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other de-positors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and re-delivery of the goods deposited.

SECTION 23. If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common, and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole.

SECTION 24. The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and re-delivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate.

SECTION 25. If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman, or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court.

SECTION 26. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process.

SECTION 27. Subject to the provisions of section 30, a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, cooping and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice, and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman's lien.

SECTION 28. Subject to the provisions of section 30, a warehouseman's lien may be enforced:

(a) Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, and

(b) Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, if such person had been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid.

SECTION 29. A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods:

- (a) By surrendering possession thereof, or
- (b) By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this act.

SECTION 30. If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms of section 27, although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt.

SECTION 31. A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied.

SECTION 32. Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor, for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay.

SECTION 33. A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain:

(a) An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due.

(b) A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists.

(c) A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered, or from the time when the notice should reach its destination, according to the due course of post, if the notice is sent by mail, and fied the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein.

From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods.

At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this act, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit.

SECTION 34. If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature, will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods and to remove them from the warehouse and in the event of failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in any lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof.

The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of the preceding section.

SECTION 35. The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property.

SECTION 36. After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor, or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable.

PART III.

NEGOTIATION AND TRANSFER OF RECEIPTS.

SECTION 37. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery:

(a) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer, or

(b) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where, by the terms of a negotiable receipt, the goods are deliverable to bearer or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee.

SECTION 38. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are, by the terms of the receipt, deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner.

SECTION 39. A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee.

A non-negotiable receipt cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right.

SECTION 40. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated—

(a) By the owner thereof, or,

(b) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted, or if at the time of such entrusting the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery.

SECTION 41. A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

(a) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and,

(b) The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him.

SECTION 42. A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferrer, the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferrer.

If the receipt is non-negotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt.

Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferrer or transferee of a non-negotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferrer, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferrer or a subsequent purchaser from the transferrer of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferrer.

SECTION 43. Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferrer is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferrer to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made.

SECTION 44. A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

- (a) That the receipt is genuine,
- (b) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it,
- (c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt, and
- (d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby.

SECTION 45. The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations.

SECTION 46. A mortgagee, pledgee or holder for security of a receipt who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described.

SECTION 47. The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was induced by fraud, mistake or duress to entrust the possession or custody of the receipt to such person, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake, or duress.

SECTION 48. Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation.

SECTION 49. Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiations be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation.

PART IV.

CRIMINAL OFFENSES.

SECTION 50. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars or by both.

SECTION 51. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

SECTION 52. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "Duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings as provided for in section 14, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both.

SECTION 53. Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

SECTION 54. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods is outstanding and uncanceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, shall, except in the cases provided for in sections 14 and 36, be found guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

SECTION 55. Any person who deposits goods to which he has not title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

PART V.

INTERPRETATION.

SECTION 56. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern.

SECTION 57. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

SECTION 58 (1) In this act, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires—

“Action” includes counter-claim, set-off, and suit in equity.

“Delivery” means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

“Fungible goods” means goods of which any unit is, from its nature or by mercantile custom, treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

“Goods” means chattels or merchandise in storage, or which has been or is about to be stored.

“Holder” of a receipt means a person who has both actual possession of such receipt and a right of property thereon.

“Order” means an order by indorsement on the receipt.

“Owner” does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

“Person” includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a point or common interest.

To “purchase” includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee.

“Purchaser” includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Receipt" means a warehouse receipt.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a receipt is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

"Warehouseman" means a person lawfully engaged in the business of storing goods for profit.

(2) A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this act, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not.

SECTION 59. The provisions of this act do not apply to receipts made and delivered prior to the taking effect of this act.

SECTION 60. This act shall take effect and be in force on and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and nine.

MAGNA CHARTA.

The following is a full translation of the Great Charter, justly called by Hallom "the keystone of English liberty," and undoubtedly the precursor of that spirit of independence upon the part of the English people that made possible the foundations and subsequent freedom of the American States. It is today the basis and bulwark of the cherished rights and immunities of all English speaking people.

John, by the grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Normandy, Aquitaine, and Count of Anjou, to his Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Justiciaries, Foresters, Sheriffs, Governors, Officers, and to all Bailiffs, and his lieges, greeting. Know ye, that we, in the presence of God, and for the salvation of our soul, and the souls of all our ancestors and heirs, and unto the honour of God and the advancement of Holy Church, and amendment of our Realm, by advice of our venerable Fathers, STEPHEN, Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England and Cardinal of the Holy Roman Church, HENRY, Archbishop of Dublin, WILLIAM of London, PETER of Winchester, JOCELIN of Bath and Glastonbury, HUGH of Lincoln, WALTER of Worcester, WILLIAM of Coventry, BENEDICT of Rochester, Bishops; of Master PANDULPH, Sub-Deacon and Familiar of our Lord the Pope, Brother AYMERIC, Master of the Knights-Templars in England; and of the Noble Persons, WILLIAM MARESCALL, Earl of Pembroke, WILLIAM, Earl of Salisbury, WILLIAM, Earl of Warren, WILLIAM, Earl of Arundel, ALAN DE GALLOWAY, Constable of Scotland, WARIN FITZ GERALD, PETER FITZ HERBERT, and HUBERT DE BURGH, Seneschal of Poitou, HUGH DE NEVILLE, MATTHEW FITZ HERBERT, THOMAS BASSET, ALAN BASSET, PHILIP OF ALBINEY, ROBERT DE ROTPELL, JOHN MARESCHAL, JOHN FITZ HUGH, and others our liegemen, have, in the first place, granted to God, and by this our present Charter confirmed, for us and our heirs for ever:

1. That the Church of England shall be free, and have her whole rights, and her liberties inviolable; and we will have them so observed, that it may appear thence, that the freedom of elections, which is reckoned chief and indispensable to the English Church, and which we granted and confirmed by our Charter, and obtained the confirmation of the same from our Lord the Pope Innocent III., before the discord between us and our barons, was granted of mere free will; which Charter we shall observe, and we do will it to be faithfully observed by our heirs for ever.

2. We also have granted to all the freemen of our kingdom, for us and for our heirs for ever, all the underwritten liberties, to be had and holden by them and their heirs, of us and our heirs for ever: If any of our earls, or barons, or others, who hold of us in chief by military service, shall die, and at the time of his death his heir shall be of full age, and owes a relief, he shall have his inheritance by the ancient relief; that is to say, the heir or heirs of an earl, for a whole earldom, by a hundred pounds; the heir or heirs of a baron, for a whole barony, by a hundred pounds the heir or heirs of a knight, for a whole knight's fee, by a hundred shillings at most; and whoever oweth less shall give less, according to the ancient custom of fees.

3. But if the heir of any such shall be under age, and shall be in ward when he comes of age, he shall have his inheritance without relief and without fine.

4. The keeper of the land of such an heir being under age, shall take of the land of the heir none but reasonable issues, reasonable customs, and reasonable services, and that without destruction and waste of his men and his goods; and if we commit the custody of any such lands to the sheriff, or any other who is answerable to us for the issues of the land, and he shall make destruction and waste of the lands which he hath in custody, we will take of him amends, and the land shall be committed to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall answer for the issues to us, or to him to whom we shall assign them; and if we sell or give to any one the custody of any such lands, and he therein make destruction or waste, he shall lose the same custody, which shall be committed to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall in like manner answer to us as aforesaid.

5. But the keeper, so long as he shall have the custody of the land, shall keep up the houses, parks, warrens, ponds, mills, and other things pertaining to the land, out of the issues of the same land; and shall deliver to the heir, when he comes of full age, his whole land, stocked with ploughs and carriages, according as the time of wainage shall require, and the issues of the land can reasonably bear.

6. Heirs shall be married without disparagement, and so that before matrimony shall be contracted those who are near in blood to the heir shall have notice.

7. A widow, after the death of her husband, shall forthwith and without difficulty have her marriage and inheritance; nor shall she give anything for her dower, or her marriage, or her inheritance, which her husband and she held at the day of his death; and she may remain in the mansion house of her husband forty days after his death, within which term her dower shall be assigned.

8. No widow shall be distrained to marry herself, so long as she has a mind to live without a husband; but yet she shall give security that she will not marry without our assent, if she holds of us; or without the consent of the lord of whom she holds, if she holds of another.

9. Neither we nor our bailiffs shall seize any land or rent for any debt, so long as the chattels of the debtor are sufficient to pay the debt; nor shall the sureties of the debtor be distrained so long as the principal debtor is sufficient for the payment of the debt; and if the principal debtor shall fail in the payment of the debt, not having wherewithal to pay it, then the sureties shall answer the debt; and if they will they shall have the lands and rents of the debtor, until they shall be satisfied for the debt which they paid for him, unless the principal debtor can show himself acquitted thereof against the said sureties.

10. If any one have borrowed anything of the Jews more or less, and die before the debt be satisfied, there shall be no interest paid for that debt, so long as the heir is under age, or whomsoever he may hold; and if the debt fall into our hands we will only take the chattel mentioned in the deed.

11. And if any one shall die indebted to the Jews, his wife shall have her dower and pay nothing of that debt; and if the deceased left children under age, they shall have necessaries provided for them, according to the tenement of the deceased; and out of the residue the debt shall be paid, saving however the service due to the lords; and in like manner shall it be done touching debts due to others than the Jews.

12. No scutage or aid shall be imposed in our kingdom, unless by the general council of our kingdom; except for ransoming our person, making our eldest son a knight, and once for marrying our eldest daughter; and for these there shall be paid a reasonable aid. In like manner it shall be concerning the aids of the City of London.

13. And the City of London shall have all its ancient liberties and free customs, as well by land as by water; furthermore we will and grant, that all other cities and boroughs, and towns and ports, shall have all their liberties and free customs.

14. And for holding the general council of the kingdom concerning the assessment of aids, except in the three cases aforesaid, and for the assessing of scutages, we shall cause to be summoned the archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls, and greater barons of the realm, singly by our letters. And furthermore we shall cause to be summoned generally by our sheriffs and bailiffs, all others who hold of us in chief, for a certain day, that is to say, forty days before their meeting at least, and to a certain place; and in all letters of such summons we will declare the cause of such summons. And summons being thus made, the business of the day shall proceed on the day appointed, according to the advice of such as shall be present, although all that were summoned come not.

15. We will not for the future grant to any one that he may take aid of his own free tenants, unless to ransom his body, and to make his eldest son a knight, and once to marry his eldest daughter; and for this there shall be only paid a reasonable aid.

16. No man shall be distrained to perform more service for a knight's fee, or other free tenement, than is due from thence.

17. Common pleas shall not follow our court, but shall be holden in some place certain.

18. Assizes of novel disseisin, and of mort d'ancestor, and of darrien presentment, shall not be taken but in their proper counties, and after this manner: We, or, if we should be out of the realm, our chief justiciary, shall send two justiciaries through every county four times a year, who, with four knights, chosen out of every shire by the people, shall hold the said assizes, in the county, on the day, and at the place appointed.

19. And if any matters cannot be determined on the day appointed for holding the assizes in each county, so many of the knights and freeholders as have been at the assizes aforesaid, shall stay to decide them, as is necessary, according as there is more or less business.

20. A freeman shall not be amerced for a small fault, but after the manner of the fault; and for a great crime according to the heinousness of it, saving to him his contenment; and after the same manner a merchant, saving to him his merchandise. And a villein shall be amerced after the same manner, saving to him his wainage, if he falls under our mercy; and none of the aforesaid amerciaments shall be assessed but by the oath of honest men in the neighborhood.

21. Earls and barons shall not be amerced, but by their peers, and after the degree of the offense.

22. No ecclesiastical person shall be amerced for his lay tenement, but according to the proportion of the others aforesaid, and not according to the value of his ecclesiastical benefice.

23. Neither a town nor any tenant shall be distrained to make bridges or banks, unless that anciently and of right they are bound to do it.

24. No sheriff, constable, coroner or other our bailiffs, shall hold pleas of the Crown.

25. All counties, hundreds, wapentakes, and tythings, shall stand at the old rents, without any increase, except in our demense manors.

26. If any one holding of us a lay-fee die, and the sheriff, or our bailiffs, show our letters patent, of summons for debt which the dead man did owe to us, it shall be lawful for the sheriff or our bailiff to attach and inroll the chattels of the dead, found upon his lay-fee, to the value of the debt, by the view of lawful men, so as nothing be removed until our whole clear debt be paid; and the rest shall be left to the executors, to fulfill the testament of the dead, and if there be nothing due from him to us, all the chattels shall go to the use of the dead, saving to his wife and children their reasonable shares.

27. If any freeman shall die intestate, his chattels shall be distributed by the hands of his nearest relations and friends, by view of the church; saving to every one his debts which the deceased owed to him.

28. No constable or bailiff of ours shall take corn or other chattels of any man, unless he presently give him money for it, or hath respite of payment by the good-will of the seller.

29. No constable shall distrain any knight to give money for castle guard, if he himself will do it in his person, or by another able man in case he cannot do it through any reasonable cause. And if we lead him, or send him in an army, he shall be free from such guard for the time he shall be in the army by our command.

30. No sheriff or bailiff of ours, or any other, shall take horses or carts of any freeman for carriage, but by the good-will of the said freeman.

31. Neither shall we nor our bailiffs take any man's timber for our castles or other uses, unless by the consent of the owner of the timber.

32. We will retain the lands of those convicted of felony only one year and a day, and then they shall be delivered to the lord of the fee.

33. All wears for the time to come shall be put down in the rivers of Thames and Medway, and throughout all England, except upon the sea-coast.

34. The writ which is called præcipe, for the future, shall not be made out to any one, of any tenement, whereby a freeman may lose his court.

35. There shall be one measure of wine and one of ale through our whole realm; and one measure of corn, that is to say, the London quarter; and one breadth of dyed cloth, and russets, and haberjeets, that is to say, two sell within the lists; and it shall be of weights as it is of measures.

36. Nothing from henceforth shall be given or taken for a writ of inquisition of life or limb, but it shall be granted freely, and not denied.

37. If any do hold of us by fee-farm, or by socage, or by burgage, and he holds also lands of any other by knight's service, we will not have the custody of the heir or land, which is holden of another man's fee by reason of that fee-farm, socage, or burgage; neither will we have the custody of such fee-farm, socage, or burgage, except knight's service was due to us out of the same fee-farm. We will not have the custody of an heir, nor of any land which he holds of another by knight's service, by reason of any petty serjeanty that holds of us, by the service of paying a knife, an arrow, or the like.

38. No bailiff from henceforth shall put any man to his law upon his own bare saying, without credible witnesses to prove it.

39. Nullus liber homo capiatur, vel imprisonetur, aut utlagetur, aut exuletur, aut aliquo modo destruatur; nec super eum ibimus, nec super eum mittemus, nisi per legale iudicium parium suorum, vel per legem terræ.

40. Nulli vendemus, nulli negabimus, aut differemus rectum aut justitiam.

39. No freeman shall be taken or imprisoned, or disseised, or outlawed, or banished, or any ways destroyed, nor will we pass upon him, nor will we send upon him, unless by the lawful judgment of his peers, or by the law of the land.

40. We will sell to no man, we will not deny to any man, either justice or right.

41. All merchants shall have safe and secure conduct, to go out of, and to come into England, and to stay there, and to pass as well by land as by water, for buying and selling by the ancient and allowed customs, without any evil tolls; except in time of war, or when they are of any nation at war with us. And if there be found any such in our land, in the beginning of the war, they shall be attached, without damage to their bodies or goods, until it be known unto us or our chief justiciary, how our merchants be treated in the nation at war with us; and if ours be safe there, the others shall be safe in our dominions.

42. It shall be lawful, for the time to come, for any one to go out of our kingdom, and return safely and securely, by land or by water, saving his allegiance to us; unless in time of war, by some short space, for the common benefit of the realm, except prisoners and outlaws, according to the law of the land, and people in war with us, and merchants who shall be in such condition as is above mentioned.

43. If any man hold of any escheat, as of the honour of Wallingford, Nottingham, Boulogne, Lancaster, or of other escheats which be in our hands, and are baronies, and die, his heir shall give no other relief, and perform no other service to us, than he would to the baron, if it were in the baron's hand; we will hold it after the same manner as the baron held it.

44. Those men who dwelt without the forest, from henceforth shall not come before our justiciaries of the forest, upon common summons, but such as are impleaded, or are pledges for any that are attached for something concerning the forest.

45. We will not make any justices, constables, sheriffs, or bailiffs, but of such as know the law of the realm and mean duly to observe it.

46. All b̄arons who have founded abbeys, and have the kings of England's charters of advowson, or the ancient tenure thereof, shall have the keeping of them, when vacant, as they ought to have.

47. All forests that have been made forests in our time, shall forthwith be disforested; and the same shall be done with the banks that have been fenced in by us in our time.

48. All evil customs concerning forests, warrens, foresters and warreners, sheriffs and their officers, rivers and their keepers, shall forthwith be inquired into in each county, by twelve sworn knights of the same shire, chosen by creditable persons of the same county; and within forty days after the said inquest, be utterly abolished, so as never to be restored: so as we are first acquainted therewith, or our justiciary, if we should not be in England.

49. We will immediately give up all hostages and writings delivered unto us by our English subjects, as securities for their keeping the peace, and yielding us faithful service.

50. We will entirely remove from our bailiwicks the relations of Gerard de Atheyes, so that for the future they shall have no bailiwick in England; we will also remove Engelard de Cygony, Andrew, Peter, and Gyon, from the Chancery; Gyon de Cygony, Geoffrey de Martyn and his brothers Philip Mark, and his brothers, and his nephew. Geoffrey, and their whole retinue.

51. As soon as peace is restored, we will send out of the kingdom all foreign soldiers, cross-bowmen, and stipendiaries, who are come with horses and arms to the prejudice of our people.

52. If any one has been dispossessed or deprived by us, withov the legal judgment of his peers, of his lands, castles, liberties, or right, we will forthwith restore them to him; and if any dispute arise upon this head, let the matter be decided by the five-and-twenty barons hereafter mentioned, for the preservation of peace. As for all those things of which any person has, without the legal judgment of his peers, been dispossessed or deprived, either by King Henry our father, or our brother King Richard, and which we have in our hands, or are possessed by others, and we are bound to warrant and make good, we shall have a respite till the term usually allowed the crusaders; excepting those things about which there is a plea depending, or whereof an inquest hath been made, by our order, before we undertook the crusade, but when we return from our pilgrimage, or if perchance we tarry at home and do not make our pilgrimage, we will immediately cause full justice to be administered therein.

53. The same respite we shall have (and in the same manner about administering justice, disafforesting the forests, or letting them continue) for disafforesting the forests, which Henry our father, and our brother Richard have afforested; and for the keeping of the lands which are in another's fee, in the same manner as we have hitherto enjoyed those wardships, by reason of a fee held of us by knight's service; and for the abbeys founded in any other fee than our own, in which the lord of the fee says he has a right and when we return from our pilgrimage, or if we tarry at home, and do not make our pilgrimage, we will immediately do full justice to all the complainants in this behalf.

54. No man shall be taken or imprisoned upon the appeal of a woman, for the death of any other than her husband.¹

55. All unjust and illegal fines made by us, and all americiaments imposed unjustly and contrary to the law of the land, shall be entirely given up, or else be left to the decision of the five-and-twenty barons hereafter mentioned for the preservation of the peace, or of the major part of them, together with the aforesaid Stephen, archbishop of Canterbury, if he can be present, and others whom he shall think fit to take along with him; and if he cannot be present, the business shall notwithstanding go on without him; but so that if one or more of the aforesaid five-and-twenty barons be plaintiffs in the same cause, they shall be set aside as to what concerns this particular affair, and others be chosen in their room, out of the said five-and-twenty, and sworn by the rest to decide the matter.

56. If we have disseised or dispossessed the Welsh, of any lands, liberties, or other things, without the legal judgment of their peers, either in England or in Wales, they shall be immediately restored to them; and if any dispute arise upon this head, the matter shall be determined in the marche by the judgment of their peers for tenements in England according to the law of England, for tenements in Wales according to the law of Wales, for tenements of the marche according to the law of the marche; the same shall the Welsh do to us and our subjects.

57. As for all those things of which a Welshman hath, without the legal judgment of his peers, been disseised or deprived of by King Henry our father, or our brother King Richard, and which we either have in our hands, or others are possessed of, and we are obliged to warrant it, we shall have a respite till the time generally allowed the crusaders; excepting those things about which a suit is depending, or whereof an inquest has been made by our order, before we undertook the crusade: but when we return, or if we stay at home without performing our pilgrimage, we will immediately do them full justice, according to the laws of the Welsh and of the parts before mentioned.

58. We will without delay dismiss the son of Llewelin, and all the Welsh hostages, and release them from the engagements they have entered into with us for the preservation of the peace.

59. We will treat with Alexander, King of Scots, concerning the restoring his sisters and hostages, and his right and liberties, in the same form and manner as we shall do to the rest of our barons of England; unless by the charters which we have from his father, William, late King of Scots, it ought to be otherwise; but this shall be left to the determination of his peers in our court.

60. All the aforesaid customs and liberties, which we have granted to be holden in our kingdom, as much as it belongs to us, towards our people of our kingdom, as well clergy as laity shall observe, as far as they are concerned, towards their dependents.

61. And whereas, for the honour of God and the amendment of our kingdom, and for the better quieting the discord that has arisen between us and our barons, we have granted all these things aforesaid; willing to render them firm and lasting, we do give and grant our subjects the underwritten security, namely, that the barons may choose five-and-twenty barons of the kingdom, whom they think convenient; who shall take care, with all their might, to hold and observe, and cause to be observed, the peace and liberties we have granted them, and by this our present charter confirmed; so that if we, our justiciary, our bailiffs, or any of our officers, shall in any circumstance fail in the performance of them, towards any person, or shall break through any of these articles of peace and security, and the offence be notified to four barons chosen out of the five-and-twenty before mentioned, the said four barons shall repair to us, or our justiciary, if we are out of the realm, and, laying open the grievance, shall petition to have it redressed without delay: and if it be not redressed by us, or if we should chance to be out of the realm, if it should not be redressed by our justiciary, within forty days, reckoning from the time it has been notified to us, or to our justiciary, (if we should be out of the realm,) the four barons aforesaid shall lay the cause before the rest of the five-and-twenty barons; and the said five-and-twenty barons, together with the community of the whole kingdom, shall distraint and distress us in all possible ways, by seizing our castles, lands, possessions, and in any other manner they can, till the grievance is redressed according to their pleasure; saving harmless our own person, and the persons of our queen and children; and when it is redressed, they shall obey us as before. And any person whatsoever in the kingdom, may swear that he will obey the orders of the five-and-twenty barons aforesaid, in the execution of the premises, and will distress us, jointly with them, to the utmost of his power; and we give public and free liberty to any one that shall please to swear to this, and never will hinder any person from taking the same oath.

62. As for all those of our subjects who will not, of their own accord, swear to join the five-and-twenty barons in distraining and distressing us, we will issue orders to make them take the same oath as aforesaid. And if any one of the five-and-twenty barons dies or goes out of the kingdom, or is hindered any other way from carrying the things aforesaid into execution, the rest of the said five-and-twenty barons may choose another in his room, at their discretion, who shall be sworn in like manner as the rest. In all things that are committed to the execution of these five-and-twenty barons, if, when they are all assembled together, they should happen to disagree about any matter, and some of them, when summoned, will not, or cannot, come, whatever is agreed upon, or enjoined, by the major part of those that are present, shall be reputed as firm and valid as if all the five-and-twenty had given their consent; and the aforesaid five-and-twenty shall swear, that all the premises they shall faithfully observe, and cause with all their power to be observed. And we will not, by ourselves, or by any other, procure anything whereby any of these concessions and liberties may be revoked or lessened; and if any such thing be obtained, let it be null and void; neither shall we ever make use of it, either by ourselves or any other. And all the ill will, indignations, and rancours that have arisen between us and our subjects, of the clergy and laity, from the first breaking out of the dissensions between us, we do fully remit and forgive: moreover all trespasses occasioned by the said dissensions, from Easter in the fifteenth year of our reign, till the restoration of peace and tranquillity, we hereby entirely remit to all, both clergy and laity, and as far as in us lies do fully forgive. We have, moreover, caused to be made for them the letters patent testimonial of Stephen, lord archbishop of Canterbury, Henry, lord archbishop of Dublin, and the bishops aforesaid, as also of master Pandulph, for the security and concessions aforesaid.

63. Wherefore we will and firmly enjoin, that the Church of England be free, and that all the men in our kingdom have and hold all the aforesaid liberties, rights, and concessions, truly and peaceably, freely and quietly, fully and wholly to themselves and their heirs, of us and our heirs, in all things and places, for ever, as is aforesaid. It is also sworn, as well on our part as on the part of the barons, that all things aforesaid shall be observed bona fide and without evil subtilty. Given under our hand, in the presence of the witnesses above named, and many others, in the meadow called Runingmede, between Windsor and Staines, the 15th day of June, in the 17th year of our reign.

PETITION OF RIGHTS.¹

3 Car. I. c. 1. 1628.

The Petition exhibited to his Majesty by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, concerning divers Rights and Liberties of the Subjects, with the King's Majesty's royal answer thereunto in full Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty

Humbly shew unto our Sovereign Lord the King, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament assembled, that whereas it is declared and enacted by a statute made in the time of the reign of King Edward I., commonly called Statutum de tallagio non concedendo, that no tallage or aid shall be laid or levied by the King or his heirs in this realm, without the good will, and assent of the archbishops, bishops, earls, barons, knights, burgesses, and other the freemen of the commonalty of this realm; and by authority of Parliament holden in the five-and-twentieth year of the reign of King Edward III., it is declared and enacted, that from thenceforth no person should be compelled to make any loans to the King against his will, because such loans were against reason

¹—"On the second of June, A. D. 1628, the peers were assembled, the Commons summoned and the king appeared in the House of Lords to give his answer in Parliament to the bill. But, to the surprise of all men, Charles, instead of using the well-known ancient form of words by which such a bill receives the royal assent, addressed the Parliament and told them, 'The king willeth that right be done according to the laws and customs of the realm, and that the statutes be put in due execution, that his subjects may have no cause to complain of any wrong or oppression contrary to their just rights and liberties; to the preservation whereof he holds himself in conscience as well obliged, as of his prerogative.'

"The Commons returned highly incensed with this evasive circumlocution. They forthwith began to assail the favorites of the Crown and impeached a Dr. Manwaring, who had preached a sermon, which had afterwards been printed by the king's command, in which discourse the right divine of kings to deal as they pleased with their subjects' property on emergencies, whether Parliament consented or not, and the duty of passive obedience in the subject, were openly and unreservedly maintained. The Commons procured the trial and condemnation of this satellite of arbitrary power, and were proceeding to assail others higher in Charles' councils when the king's obstinacy at length gave way and the Petition of Right received the royal assent in the customary form of Norman French, and this second great solemn declaration of the liberties of Englishmen was declared to be the law of the land, amidst the general rejoicings of the nation."—Creasy, The Rise and Progress of the English Constitution, 259-260.

and the franchise of the land; and by other laws of this realm it is provided, that none should be charged by any change or imposition called a benevolence, nor by such like charge; by which statutes before mentioned and other the good laws and statutes of this realm, your subjects have inherited this freedom, that they should not be compelled to contribute to any tax, tallage, aid, or other like charge not set by common consent, in Parliament.

II. Yet nevertheless, of late divers commissions directed to sundry commissioners in several counties, with instructions, have issued; by means whereof your people have been in divers places assembled, and required to lend certain sums of money unto your Majesty, and many of them, upon their refusal so to do, have had an oath administered unto them not warrantable by the laws or statutes of this realm, and have been constrained to become bound to make appearance and give utterance before your Privy Council and in other places, and others of them have been therefore imprisoned, confined, and sundry other ways molested and disquieted; and divers other charges have been laid and levied upon your people in several counties by lord lieutenants, deputy lieutenants, commissioners for musters, justices of peace and others, by command or direction of your Majesty, or your Privy Council, against the laws and free customs of the realm.

III. And whereas also by the statute called "The Great Charter of the Liberties of England," it is declared and enacted, That no freeman may be taken or imprisoned, or be disseised of his freehold or liberties, or his free customs, or be outlawed or exiled, or in any manner destroyed, but by the lawful judgment of his peers, or by the law of the land.

IV. And in the eight-and-twentieth year of the reign of King Edward III., it was declared and enacted by authority of Parliament, that no man, of what estate or condition that he be, should be put out of his land or tenements, nor taken, nor imprisoned, nor disherited, nor put to death without being brought to answer by due process of law.

V. Nevertheless, against the tenor of the said statutes, and other the good laws and statutes of your realm to that end provided, divers of your subjects have of late been imprisoned without any cause shewed; and when for their deliverance they were brought before justices by your Majesty's writs of habeas corpus, there to undergo and receive as the court should order, and their keepers commanded to certify the causes of their detainer, no cause was certified, but that they were detained by your Majesty's special command, signified by the lords of your Privy Council, and yet were returned back to several prisons, without being charged with anything to which they might make answer according to the law.

VI. And whereas of late great companies of soldiers and mariners have been dispersed into divers counties of the realm, and the inhabitants against their wills have been compelled to receive them into their houses, and there to suffer them to sojourn, against the laws and customs of this realm, and to the great grievance and vexation of the people,

VII. And whereas also by authority of Parliament, in the five-and-twentieth year of the reign of King Edward III., it is declared and enacted, that no man should be forejudged of life or limb against the form of the Great Charter and the law of the land; and by the Great Charter and other the laws and statutes of this your realm, no man ought to be adjudged to death but by the laws established in this your realm, either by the customs of the same realm, or by Acts of Parliament: and whereas no offender of what kind soever is exempted from the proceedings to be used, and punishments to be inflicted by the laws and statutes of this your realm; nevertheless of late time divers commissions under your Majesty's great seal have issued forth, by which certain persons have been assigned and appointed commissioners with power and authority to proceed within the land, according to the justice of martial law, against such soldiers or mariners, or other dissolute persons joining with them, as should commit any murder, robbery, felony, mutiny, or other outrage or misdemeanor whatsoever, and by such summary course and order as is agreeable to martial law, and as is used in armies in time of war, to proceed to the trial and condemnation of such offenders, and them to cause to be executed and put to death according to the law martial.

VIII. By pretext whereof some of your Majesty's subjects have been by some of the said commissioners put to death, when and where, if by the laws and statutes of the land they had deserved death, by the same laws and statutes also they might, and by no other ought to have been judged and executed.

IX. And also sundry grievous offenders, by color thereof claiming an exemption, have escaped the punishments due to them by the laws and statutes of this your realm, by reason that divers of your officers and ministers of justice have unjustly refused or forborne to proceed against such offenders according to the same laws and statutes, upon pretence that the said offenders were punishable only by martial law, and by authority of such commissions as aforesaid; which commissions, and all other of like nature, are wholly and directly contrary to the said laws and statutes of this your realm.

X. They do therefore humbly pray your most excellent Majesty, that no man hereafter be compelled to make or yield any gift, loan, benevolence, tax, or such like charge, without common consent by Act of Parliament; and that none be called to make answer, or to take such oath, or to give attendance, or be confined, or otherwise molested or disquieted concerning the same or for refusal thereof; and that no freeman, in any such manner as is before mentioned, be imprisoned or detained; and that your Majesty would be pleased to remove the said soldiers and mariners, and that your people may not be so burthened in time to come and that the aforesaid commissions, for proceeding by martial law, may be revoked and annulled; and that hereafter no commissions of like nature may issue forth to any person or persons whatsoever to be executed as aforesaid, lest by colour of them any of your Majesty's subjects be destroyed or put to death contrary to the laws and franchise of the land.

XI. All which they most humbly pray of your most excellent Majesty as their rights and liberties, according to the laws and statutes of this realm and that your Majesty would also vouchsafe to declare that the awards, doings, and proceedings, to the prejudice of your people in any of the premises, shall not be drawn hereafter into consequence or example; and that your Majesty would be also graciously pleased, for the further comfort and safety of your people, to declare your royal will and pleasure, that in the things aforesaid all your officers and ministers shall serve you according to the laws and statutes of this realm, as they tender the honour of your Majesty, and the prosperity of this kingdom.

Quâ quidem petitione lectâ et plenius intellectâ per dictum dominum regem taliter est responsum in pleno parlamento, viz. Soit droit fait comme est désiré.

BILL OF RIGHTS.¹

AN ACT FOR DECLARING THE RIGHTS AND LIBERTIES OF THE SUBJECT, AND SETTLING THE SUCCESSION OF THE CROWN.

Whereas the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, assembled at Westminster, lawfully, fully, and freely representing all the estates of the people of this realm, did, upon the thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty-eight, present unto their Majesties, then called and known by the names and style of William and Mary, Prince and Princess of Orange, being present in their proper persons, a certain declaration in writing, made by the said Lords and Commons, in the words following; viz.—

Whereas the late King James II., by the assistance of divers evil counsellors, judges, and ministers employed by him, did endeavour to subvert and extirpate the Protestant religion, and the laws and liberties of this kingdom:—

1. By assuming and exercising a power of dispensing with and suspending of laws, and the execution of laws, without consent of Parliament.

2. By committing and prosecuting divers worthy prelates, for humbly petitioning to be excused from concurring to the said assumed power.

3. By issuing and causing to be executed a commission under the Great Seal for erecting a court, called The Court of Commissioners for Ecclesiastical Causes.

4. By levying money for and to the use of the Crown, by pretence of prerogative, for other time, and in other manner than the same was granted by Parliament.

5. By raising and keeping a standing army within this kingdom in time of peace, without consent of Parliament, and quartering soldiers contrary to law.

6. By causing several good subjects, being Protestants, to be disarmed, at the same time when Papists were both armed and employed, contrary to law.

1—On the accession of William and Mary to the English throne in 1689, the Commons chose this opportunity to secure another great statute declaratory of the liberties and rights of Englishmen, as a part of the act of settling the succession to the crown.

7. By violating the freedom of election of members to serve in Parliament.

8. By prosecutions in the Court of King's Bench, for matters and causes cognisable only in Parliament; and by divers other arbitrary and illegal courses.

9. And whereas of late years, partial, corrupt, and unqualified persons have been returned and served on juries in trials, and particularly divers jurors in trials for high treason, which were not freeholders.

10. And excessive bail hath been required of persons committed in criminal cases, to elude the benefit of the laws made for the liberty of the subjects.

11. And excessive fines have been imposed; and illegal and cruel punishments inflicted.

12. And several grants and promises made of fines and forfeitures, before any conviction or judgment against the persons upon whom the same were to be levied.

All which are utterly and directly contrary to the known laws and statutes, and the freedom of this realm.

And whereas the said late King James II. having abdicated the government, and the throne being thereby vacant, his Highness the Prince of Orange (whom it hath pleased Almighty God to make the glorious instrument of delivering this kingdom from popery and arbitrary power) did (by the advice of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and divers principal persons of the Commons) cause letters to be written to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, being Protestants, and other letters to the several counties, cities, universities, boroughs and cinque-ports, for the choosing of such persons to represent them, as were of right to be sent to Parliament, to meet and sit at Westminster upon the two-and-twentieth day of January, in this year one thousand six hundred eighty and eight, in order to such an establishment, as that their religion, laws and liberties might not again be in danger of being subverted; upon which letters, elections have been accordingly made.

And thereupon the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, pursuant to their respective letters and elections, being now assembled in a full and free representation of this nation, taking into their most serious consideration the best means for attaining the ends aforesaid, do in the first place (as their ancestors in like case have usually done) for the vindicating and asserting their ancient rights and liberties, declare:—

1. That the pretended power of suspending of laws, or the execution of laws, by regal authority, without consent of Parliament, is illegal.

2. That the pretended power of dispensing with laws, or the execution of laws by regal authority, as it hath been assumed, and exercised of late, is illegal.

3. That the commission for erecting the late Court of Commissioners for Ecclesiastical Causes, and all other commissions and courts of like nature, are illegal and pernicious.

4. That levying money for or to the use of the Crown, by pretence and prerogative, without grant of Parliament, for longer time or in other manner than the same is or shall be granted, is illegal.

5. That it is the right of the subjects to petition the King, and all commitments and prosecutions for such petitioning are illegal.

6. That the raising or keeping a standing army within the kingdom in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law.

7. That the subjects which are Protestants may have arms for their defence suitable to their conditions, and as allowed by law.

8. That elections of members of Parliament ought to be free.

9. That the freedom of speech, and debates or proceedings in Parliament, ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Parliament.

10. That excessive bail ought not to be required, nor excessive fines imposed; nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

11. That jurors ought to be duly impanelled and returned, and jurors which pass upon men in trials for high treason ought to be freeholders.

12. That all grants and promises of fines and forfeitures of particular persons before conviction, are illegal and void.

13. And that for redress of all grievances, and for the amending, strengthening, and preserving of the laws, Parliaments ought to be held frequently.

And they do claim, demand, and insist upon all and singular the premises, as their undoubted rights and liberties; and that no declarations, judgments, doings or proceedings, to the prejudice of the people in any of the said premises, ought in any wise to be drawn hereafter into consequence or example.

To which demand of their rights, they are particularly encouraged by the declaration of his Highness the Prince of Orange, as being the only means for obtaining a full redress and remedy therein.

Having therefore an entire confidence that his said Highness the Prince of Orange will perfect the deliverance so far advanced by him, and will still preserve them from the violation of their rights, which they have here asserted, and from all other attempts upon their religion, rights, and liberties:

II. The said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, assembled at Westminster, do resolve that William and Mary, Prince and Princess of Orange, be, and be declared, King and Queen of England, France and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, to hold the Crown and royal dignity of the said kingdoms and dominions to them the said Prince and Princess during their lives, and the life of the survivor of them; that the sole and full exercise of the regal power be only in, and executed by, the said Prince of Orange, in the names of the said Prince and Princess, during their joint lives; and after their deceases, the said Crown and royal dignity of the said kingdoms and dominions to be to the heirs of the body of the said Princess; and for default of such issue to the Princess Anne of Denmark, and the heirs of her body; and for default of such issue to the heirs of the body of the said Prince of Orange. And the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, do pray the said Prince and Princess to accept the same accordingly.

III. And that the oaths hereafter mentioned be taken by all persons of whom the oaths of allegiance and supremacy might be required by law, instead of them; and that the said oaths of allegiance and supremacy be abrogated.

I, A. B., do sincerely promise and swear, That I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to their Majesties King William and Queen Mary:

So help me God.

I, A. B., do swear, That I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, that Princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any authority of the See of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate hath, or ought to have, any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm:

So help me God.

IV. Upon which their said Majesties did accept the crown and royal dignity of the kingdoms of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, according to the resolution and desire of the said Lords and Commons contained in the said declaration.

V. And thereupon their Majesties were pleased, that the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, being the two Houses of Parliament, should continue to sit, and with their Majesties' royal concurrence make effectual provision for the settlement of the religion, laws and liberties of this kingdom, so that the same for the future might not be in danger again of being subverted; to which the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, did agree and proceed to act accordingly.

VI. Now in pursuance of the premises, the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in Parliament assembled, for the ratifying, confirming and establishing the said declaration, and the articles, clauses, matters, and things therein contained, by the force of a law made in due form by authority of Parliament, do pray that it may be declared and enacted, That all and singular the rights and liberties asserted and claimed in the said declaration, are the true, ancient, and indubitable rights and liberties of the people of this kingdom, and so shall be esteemed, allowed, adjudged, deemed, and taken to be, and that all and every the particulars aforesaid shall be firmly and strictly holden and observed, as they are expressed in the said declaration; and all officers and ministers whatsoever shall serve their Majesties and their successors according to the same in all times to come.

VII. And the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, seriously considering how it hath pleased Almighty God, in his marvellous providence, and merciful goodness to this nation, to provide and preserve their said Majesties' royal persons most happily to reign over us upon the throne of their ancestors, for which they render unto Him from the bottom of their hearts their humblest thanks and praises, do truly, firmly, assuredly, and in the sincerity of their hearts, think, and do hereby recognize, acknowledge and declare, that King James II. having abdicated the government, and their Majesties having accepted the Crown and royal dignity as aforesaid, their said Majesties did become, were, are, and of sovereign right ought to be, by the laws of this realm, our sovereign liege lord and lady, King and Queen of England, France, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, in and to whose princely persons the royal State, Crown, and dignity of the said realm, with all honours, styles, titles, regalities, prerogatives, powers, jurisdictions and authorities to the same belonging and appertaining, are most fully, rightfully, and entirely invested and incorporated, united and annexed.

VIII. And for preventing all questions and divisions in this realm by reason of any pretended titles to the Crown, and for preserving a certainty in the succession thereof, in and upon which the unity, peace, and tranquillity, and safety of this nation doth, under God, wholly consist and depend, the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, do beseech their Majesties that it may be enacted, established and declared, that the Crown and legal government of the said kingdoms and dominions, with all and singular the premises thereunto belonging and appertaining, shall be and continued to their said Majesties, and the survivor of them, during their lives, and the life of the survivor of them. And that the entire, perfect, and full exercise of the regal power and government be only in, and executed by, his Majesty, in the names of both their Majesties during their joint lives; and after their deceases the said Crown and premises shall be and remain to the heirs of the body of her Majesty; and for default of such issue, to her Royal Highness the Princess Anne of Denmark, and the heirs of her body; and for default of such issue, to the heirs of the body of his said Majesty: And thereunto the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons do, in the name of all the people aforesaid, most humbly and faithfully submit themselves, their heirs, and posterities for ever; and do faithfully promise, That they will stand to, maintain, and defend their said Majesties, and also the limitation and succession of the Crown herein specified and contained, to the utmost of their powers, with their lives and estates, against all persons whatsoever that shall attempt anything to the contrary.

IX. And whereas it hath been found by experience, that it is inconsistent with the safety and welfare of this Protestant kingdom, to be governed by a Popish Prince, or by any King or Queen marrying a Papist, the said Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, do further pray that it may be enacted, That all and every person and persons that is, are, or shall be reconciled to, or shall hold communion with, the See or Church of Rome, or shall profess the Popish religion, or shall marry a Papist, shall be excluded, and be for ever incapable to inherit, possess, or enjoy the Crown and government of this realm, and Ireland, and the dominions thereunto belonging, or any part of the same, or to have, use, or exercise any regal power, authority, or jurisdiction within the same; and in all and every such case or cases the people of these realms shall be and are hereby absolved of their allegiance; and the said Crown and government shall from time to time descend to, and be enjoyed by, such person or persons, being Protestants, as should have inherited and enjoyed the same, in case the said person or persons so reconciled, holding communion, or professing, or marrying as aforesaid, were naturally dead.

X. And that every King and Queen of this realm, who at any time hereafter shall come to and succeed in the Imperial Crown of this kingdom, shall, on the first day of the meeting of the first Parliament, next after his or her coming to the Crown, sitting in his or her throne in the House of Peers, in the presence of the Lords and Commons therein assembled, or at his or her coronation, before such person or persons who shall administer the coronation oath to him or her, at the time of his or her taking the said oath (which shall first happen), make, subscribe, and audibly repeat the declaration mentioned in the statute made in the thirteenth year of the reign of King Charles II., intituled "An act for the more effectual preserving the King's person and government, by disabling Papists from sitting in either House of Parliament." But if it shall happen, that such King or Queen, upon his or her succession to the Crown of this realm, shall be under the age of twelve years, then every such King or Queen shall make, subscribe, and audibly repeat the said declaration at his or her coronation, or the first day of meeting of the first Parliament as aforesaid, which shall first happen after such King or Queen shall have attained the said age of twelve years.

XI. All which their Majesties are contented and pleased shall be declared, enacted, and established by authority of this present Parliament, and shall stand, remain, and be the law of this realm for ever; and the same are by their said Majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, declared, enacted, or established accordingly.

XII. And be it further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after this present session of Parliament, no dispensation by non obstante of or to any statute, or any part thereof, shall be allowed, but that the same shall be held void and of no effect, except a dispensation be allowed of in such statute, and except in such cases as shall be specially provided for by one or more bill or bills to be passed during this present session of Parliament.

XIII. Provided that no charter, or grant, or pardon granted before the three-and-twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord One thousand six hundred eighty-nine, shall be any ways impeached or invalidated by this Act, but that the same shall be and remain of the same force and effect in law, and no other than as if this Act had never been made.

ABUSIONS OF THE COMMON LAW.

Being Chapter V., Section 1, of The Mirroure of Justices, written originally in the old French, long before the Conquest; and many things added by Andrew Horne. Translated into English by William Hughes, of Gray's Inn, Esq.¹

There are many who say, that although other realms use a written law, yet only England useth her customs, and her usages for law not written; but betwixt rightful and tortious usages there is a difference, for tortious usages not warranted by law, nor suffered by Holy Scripture, are not at all to be used: as for example those of thieves, whose usages are to rob and steal.

And to shew some abuses holden for usages, which are frauds to the law, and repugnants to right, and which are not found justifiable by Holy Scripture, is this chapter made of a collection of part of the abusions of the law, and of persons erring from the knowledge of the right of law and from lawful usages.

Abusion is a disuse, or a misuse of right usages turned to abuses, sometimes by contrariety and repugnancy to law, sometimes by too large a usage thereof.

In the preamble, or preface to this work, the author says: "And for the condemning of false judges I compiled this little book of the law of persons into five chapters, that is to say:

- "1. Of offences against the peace.
- "2. Of actions.
- "3. Of exceptions.
- "4. Of judgments.
- "5. Of Abusions.

"Which book I have called The Mirroure of Justices, according as I have found their virtues, and the most excellent substance after the time of King Arthur, used by holy usages according to the rules, aforesaid; and I desire that you would amend the defects thereof, according to such lawful and true warrants as you prove, both to learn the truth and confound the daily abuses of the law."

It may well be a matter of speculation how many abuses of the written and unwritten law could now be enumerated, if at this early date this writer was able to point out one hundred and fifty-five.

1. The first and chief abusion is, that the king is above the law, whereas he ought to be subject to it, as it is contained in his oath.

2. It is an abuse, that whereas parliaments ought to be, for the salvation of the souls of trespassers, twice in the year at London, that they are there but very seldom, and at the pleasure of the king; for subsidies and collections of treasure, and where the ordinances ought to be made by the assent of the king, and of his earls, they are now made by the king and his clerks, and by aliens, and others who dare not contradict the king, but desire to please him, and to counsel him for his profit, though the counsel be not convenable for the common people, without calling the counties thereunto, and without following the rules of law, whereby it followeth that many ordinances are grounded more upon pleasure than upon law.

3. It is an abuse that the laws, and the customs of the realm, with their occasions, are not put into writing, whereby they may be known, so as they might be known by all men.

4. It is an abuse, that force holds in disseisins after the third day of peaceable seisin, for as much as he is not worthy to be aided by the law, who flyeth from judgment, and useth force.

5. It is an abuse, that justice is delayed in the king's court, more than elsewhere.

6. It is an abuse to suffer any to be in the realm above forty days, who is of the age of fourteen years, English or alien, if he be not sworn to the king by an oath of fealty, and in some pledge and dozein.

7. It is an abuse, that clerks and women are exempted to make the said oath to the king, seeing the kind taketh their homage and fealty for lands.

8. It is an abuse to hold an escape out of prison, or the breach of the gaol, to be a moral offence, for that usage is not warranted by any law, nor is it used in any place but within this realm and in France, for as much as one is warranted to do it by the law of nature.

9. It is an abuse to suffer so many forms of writs to be pleadable, and therein especially that the writs are close, and not patents as the writs of right; and in that they are made with interlinings and rasure, and otherwise vicious.

10. It is an abuse that the money is not quarterable, that it is not silver, that it is held payable if the foreign circle be not whole, to allay the money per 18 d. and make paying of lead to every, etc.

11. It is an abuse that the king takes more than twelve pence for the exchange of twenty shillings in the pound.

12. It is an abuse that no pound is suffered to weigh twenty-five shillings, or more than twelve ounces.

13. It is an abuse that Treason is not adjudged more by appeals than it is.

14. It is an abuse that a man who hath done manslaughter of necessity, or with the peace, or not feloniously, is detained and kept in prison until he hath purchased the king's charter of pardon of death; as it is for mischance.

15. It is an abuse to hold the moveable goods of flyers forfeited before they be attainted of the felony by outlawry, or otherwise.

16. It is an abuse to outlaw a man before it hath been enquired by the oaths of neighbours.

17. It is an abuse to suffer a man attainted of felony to be an approver, and to have a voice as a true man, and that clerks, women, infants, and others who cannot combat are suffered to be approvers.

18. It is an abuse that others receive the appeals of approvers, than coroners, and that they are suffered to appeal oftener than once, or by distress or otherwise, or in any manner falsly.

19. It is an abuse that the Justices drive a true man to be tried by his country, where he profereth to defend himself against the approver by battle.

20. It is an abuse to force people appealed by approvers to acquittals, where the approver put in his appeals, if he be not thereof elsewhere indicted, or after the lying of the approver attained, or after the death of the approver.

21. It is an abuse to suffer an approver to live, after he shall be attainted of a false appeal.

22. It is an abuse to suffer thieves, and known and notorious felons, to be defended in sanctuaries.

23. It is an abuse that those felons who are forjudged the realm are not suffered to chuse their port and passage out of the realm, and to limit their journies.

24. It is an abuse that they enter into the sea, and from the sea, the church next the sea, and that entries into great places are denied them, and that they have not the privilege of pilgrims.

25. It is abuse to adjudge murder for default of Engleshire, since murder ought to be the English punishment of an alien.

26. It is an abuse that acquittances of payments made to the king in the Exchequer are by tallies, and not by the seal appointed for it.

27. It is abuse that the king's officers of the Exchequer, have jurisdiction of other things than the king's monies, of his fees, and of his franchises, without an original writ out of the chancery under white wax.

28. It is an abuse that the king's debts lie dormant, and are delayed to be levied by estreats, since the arrears of sheriffs, and of other the king's receivers are to be levied without delay upon those who prefer them, if they themselves be not sufficient, and the arrearages of the debts of others are to be levied upon their sureties where the principals are not sufficient to pay the arrearages, the amercements are liable upon the assessors if the principals are not sufficient; and so it is of fines, and all other the king's debts whereby it appeareth that no debt ought to be much behind, in so much as some think that none are chargeable with an old debt if not of malice, or by negligence of the king's officers.

29. It is an abuse that they of the Exchequer, or other, receive attornies, or hold conusance without an original writ out of the chancery, which none can do without jurisdiction.

30. It is an abuse that freedom and freeholders have ordinary jurisdiction, but in the courts of lords of manors, or of hundreds of counties.

31. It is an abuse to amerce any man by reason of a presentment in personal trespass, in as much as no man is to be amerced but for the offence in a real or mixt action.

32. It is an abuse to amerce any man by a presentment made of less than twelve sworn freemen.

33. It is an abuse to assess an amercement certain, without the afferment of freemen sworn to it.

34. It is an abuse to affer amercements in the absence of those who are to be amerced.

35. It is an abuse to charge the jurors with any article touching wrong done betwixt neighbour and neighbour.

36. It is abuse to believe any one hath jurisdiction, if a commission give it not.

37. It is an abuse to obey the judge who is appealed of doing wrong, the example whereof appeareth in the old writ of right, Et nisi feceris vicecomes faciat.

38. It is abuse that a freeman be made the king's officer by any election against his will.

39. It is an abuse that the salaries of pleaders be not certain.

40. It is an abuse that the defendants have not amends of wrongful plaintiffs.

41. It is an abuse that pleaders are spared of oaths according to the points.

42. It is abuse to suspend a pleader if he be not attaint of a trespass, for which he is condemnable to corporal punishment.

43. It is abuse to summon a man for a personal offence.

44. It is abuse to adjudge a man to death by suitors, if not in cases so known, that there need no answer.

45. It is an abuse to bring the appeal elsewhere than before the coroner of the county, and that appeareth by the writ of appeal, as a writ grounded upon error.

46. It is abuse to let to bail a man appealed, or indicted of a mortal offence, by pledges.

47. It is an abuse to determine the appeals of felony by judges, ordinaries, suitors.

48. It is abuse that all persons are commonly receivable in appeals of felony.

49. It is abuse that all infants within age are in ward.

50. It is an abuse that people may alien their inheritances from their heirs further than the grants, or their purchase of lands make mention, for none can make an assignee, if it be not specified in the grant.

51. It is abuse that the inheritances of heirs females are held in ward (though it be of knights service) as of heirs males, since a woman is at age at 14 years.

52. It is abuse that gaolers or their sovereigns plunder prisoners, or take from them other things than their arms.

53. It is abuse that prisoners or others for them pay any thing for their entries into the gaol, or for their coming out.

54. It is abuse that a prisoner is laden with irons, or put to pain before he be attainted of the felony.

55. It is abuse that the gaols are not delivered of the prisoners, who are deliverable without delay, without a writ.

56. It is abuse to make a man to answer to the king's suit where he is not indicted, nor appealed.

57. It is abuse to imprison any other than a man indicted or appealed, without a special warrant, in case for want of pledges or mainprisors.

58. It is abuse that justices deliver prisoners not taken before the date of their warrants, since the king's intention was not but of those who are then kept in prison.

59. It is abuse that the writ of Odio et atia take no place but in murder.

60. It is abuse that that writ lieth for indictees.

61. It is abuse that appellees or indictees of mortal crime are got out of prison by bail, or those who are condemned to corporal punishment before they do their penance, or that they have bought in the same by fine and ransom.

62. It is abuse that the writs Sicut alias et sicut pluries pass the seal in case where it should make those officers inobedient of right, and to the king, and should charge others to do such commandment.

63. It is abuse to put these words in writs, Nisi captus sit per speciale præceptum nostrum, vel capitalis justiciarii nostri, vel pro foresta nostra, etc., for no special commandment ought to exceed the common law.

64. It is abuse to suffer the judges to be plaintiffs for the king.

65. It is abuse that aliens or others who have not sworn fealty to the king or infamous persons, or indicted or appealed of mortal crime, or who have not an able commission, or after any wrong done, or after judgment given, be suffered to have jurisdiction, or to judge out of the points specified in their commissions.

66. It is abuse that in appeals by pleaders are the places, and the countries, and the hours of the days, and that it is against the peace, since every offense is against the peace, and such other words needless.

67. It is abuse to abate sufficient appeals, according to the statute of Gloucester.

68. It is abuse that the remedial writs are saleable, and that the king commands the sheriff, that he take sureties to his use for the writ, for and by the purchase of these writs one may destroy his enemy wrongfully; and because that such fines and penalties run in estreats, though they do nothing but hurt to the purchaser thereof.

69. It is abuse that foreigners are not receivable in actions by sureties of freemen, who have not wherewith to find pledges.

70. It is abuse to distrain in personal actions, where the profit of the issues comes to the king, and no profit accrueeth to the plaintiffs.

71. It is abuse that any plaint is received to be heard without sureties present, to testify the plaint to be true.

72. It is abuse, that it is said that villainage is not a frank tenement, and that an assize lieth not of an ejector for term of years, as well as it doth of a frank tenement for term of life, or in fee; for a villain and a slave are not all one, either in name or signification, for as much as every freeman may hold in villainage to him and his heirs, performing the services and charges of the fees.

73. It is abuse to hold that seisin accrued not to the purchaser when the donor left his goods, for as a contract of marriage is good by the consent of the wills of men and women, although that one of them repent, and after the marriage would withdraw himself, but he cannot thereby dissolve the contract; so as well it sufficeth to make the contract by the delivery of seisin as by the celebration of the marriage, although the purchaser have no other seisin by taking the esplees, nor any deed, nor writing to testify the bargain; and if it were that a woman after the marriage were ravished and consented thereto, and the husband repleve her, and the ravisher answering to the contract say, that the husband had no right nor action, because he was never fully seised by taking the esplees nor had no deed: or said, that he was never out of seisin of the woman because she was cloathed with his robes, and by her robe she remained in his seisin; this exception nothing availeth him to excuse his wrong no more than in this case. If a man buy a horse, and agree with the seller, and the seller deliver the same to the buyer, notwithstanding that the seller repent of the bargain, and forceably take back the horse, although the buyer hath no action for the same, because he remained always seised thereof at will; such exception is not good.

74. It is abuse to think that contracts for goods not moveables are otherwise than for moveable goods.

75. It is abuse to think that seisin accrueth not as soon to a purchaser of his purchase, as to an heir of his inheritance, since the law requires but three things in contracts: 1. The agreement of the wills. 2. Satisfaction to the donor. 3. Delivery of the possession and gift. If a transmutation of seisin be given to the purchaser by the donor at the hour of one of the clock, and the purchaser dieth at the hour of three of the clock he dieth as well seised of the tenement as he should be of a woman, or a horse, though the donor have not departed with and removed his chattels and it shall never be a good plea for him to say, that the freehold after the transmutation of seisin by a simple livery remained in the donor, after this livery of the tenement; but if the agreement of the donor be not performed according to the contract, then he may help himself thereby.

76. It is abuse to think that one cannot recover a term for years; nor presentments to churches in manner of disseisin, since many reasons may avail to redisseisors.

77. It is abuse that attaints are not granted in chancery without difficulty, to attaint all false jurors, as well in all other actions personals, reals and mixt, as in assizes brought.

78. It is abuse to drive a distress out of the hundred.

79. It is abuse to make the view of the distress to bailiffs, in that a plaint will suffice, and a court, and that he is yet seised thereof.

80. It is abuse that we do not sue for a tortious distress by way of felony, and that one attaint not these robbers at the king's suit.

81. It is abuse that vicious contracts are by agreements maintained by law, as forbidden of offence. Is not usury an offence? is not imprisonment an offence? how can one bind himself to usury, or to imprisonment, or a disseisin, if he do not offend?

82. It is abuse that advowsons of charters are aliened by law for years in mortgage, or to farm, or are partable.

83. It is abuse that leases of farms are not longer than forty years, since continuance of seisin by length of time doth disinherit no man.

84. It is abuse that no land is let to farm or in fee, or for years rendering rent by the year, more than the fourth part.

85. It is abuse to outlaw a man for a default, in case where the principal cause is not felony.

86. It is abuse that auditors are appointed by the lords to hear accounts without the assent of bailiffs.

87. It is abuse that bailiffs have no recovery of damages from tortious auditors.

88. It is abuse that regard is had to the persons, when such law is not for bailiffs against their lords, as e contra in the right of debts due by one to the other.

89. It is abuse that a man may challenge one for his nief to whom he never found sustenance, in as much as a villain is not a villain but so long as he remaineth in custody; and since none can challenge his villain for villainage though he be in his custody, if he find not sustenance to his villain, or send him to some land in his manor where he may gain his living, or otherwise retain him in his service.

90. It is abuse that villains are frank-pledges, or pledges of freemen.

91. It is abuse that others suffer villains to be in their views of frank-pledges.

92. It is abuse that the lords suffer their villains to plead, or be impleaded without them, for a villain is not amerceable in any other court, because he can lose nothing, as he who hath nothing proper of his own.

93. It is abuse to hold villains for slaves, and this abuse causeth great destruction of poor people, great poverty, and is a great offence.

94. It is abuse that a man is summoned who is no freeholder.

95. It is abuse to summon a man elsewhere than in the land contained in the demand, if it contain land.

96. It is abuse that a man travel at his own charges, by any summons personal.

97. It is abuse that a justice or other make a summons, who is not a freeholder within the county.

98. It is abuse to summon men without giving them reasonable warning upon what to answer.

99. It is abuse that false causes of essoins are admitted, for as much as the law alloweth falsity in no case.

100. It is abuse that an essoiner is admitted in a personal action to the defendant, since one is mainprized to appear in court by mainprisors.

101. It is an abuse to receive an esoin cast in by an infant within age.

102. It is an abuse to receive an attorney, where no power so to do is given by writ out of the chancery.

103. It is abuse to receive an attorney, where the plea is not to be judged in the presence of the parties, if not in case where one maketh an attorney general.

104. It is abuse that none can make an attorney in personal actions, where corporal punishment is to be awarded.

105. It is abuse to receive exceptions in judgments, if they be not sufficiently pronounced, for from the order of the exception rarely ariseth clear judgment.

106. It is abuse to allow a warrant of voucher to a thief, or in other personal action.

107. It is abuse that judges assigned shew not the parties pleading their warrants, or of his power, when they demand it.

108. It is abuse that justices and their officers, who kill people by false judgment, be not destroyed as other murderers, which King Alfred caused to be done, who caused forty-four justices in one year to be hanged as murderers for their false judgment.

1. He hanged Darling because he had judged Sidulf to death, for the retreat of Edulf his son, who afterwards acquitted him of the fact.

2. He hanged Segnor who judged Ulfe to death after sufficient acquittal.

3. He hanged Cadwine, because that he judged Hockwy to death without the consent of all the jurors, and whereas he stood upon the jury of twelve men, and because three would have saved him against the nine, Codwine removed the three, and put others upon the jury, upon whom Hackwy put not himself.

4. He hanged Cole, because he judged Ive to death when he was a mad-man.

5. He hanged Malme, because he judged Prat to death upon a false suggestion that he committed the felony.

6. He hanged Athulf because he caused Copping to be hanged before the age of one and twenty years.

7. He hanged Markes because he judged During to death by twelve men who were not sworn.

8. He hanged Ostline because he judged Seaman to death by a false warrant, grounded upon false suggestion, which supposed Seaman to be a person in the warrant, which he was not.

9. He hanged Billing, because he judged Leston to death by fraud, in this manner he said to the people, Sir, all ye here but he who assisted to kill the man, and because that Leston did not sit with the other he him commanded to be hanged, and said that he did assist, where he knew he did not assist to kill him.

10. He hanged Seafaule because he judged Olding to death for not answering.

11. He hanged Thurston because he judged Thurguer to death by verdict of enquest, taken ex officio without issue joined.

12. He hanged Athelston, because he judged Herbert to death for an offence not mortal.

13. He hanged Rombold because he judged Lischild, in a case not notorious, without appeal, and without indictment.

14. He hanged Rolfe, because he judged Dunstan to die for an escape out of prison.

15. He hanged Freburne because he judged Harpin to die, whereas the jury were in doubt of their verdict, for in doubtful causes one ought rather to save than to condemn.

16. He hanged Seabright who judged Aihebbus to death, because he condemned one by a false judgment mortal.

17. He hanged Hale because he saved Tristram the sheriff from death, who took to the king's use from another's goods against his will, for as much as any such taking from another against his will, and robbery hath no difference.

18. He hanged Arnold because he saved Boyliffe, who robbed the people by colour of distresses, whereof, some were by selling distresses, some by extortion of fines, as if betwixt extortion of fines, releasing of tortious distresses, and robbery there were difference.

19. He hanged Erkinwald because he hanged Franklin, for naught else but because he taught to him who vanquished by battle mortal to say the word of cravant.

20. He hanged Bermond because he caused Garbolt to be beheaded by his judgment in England, for that for which he was outlawed in Ireland.

21. He hanged Alkman because he saved Cateman by colour of disseisin, who was attained of burglary.

22. He hanged Saxmond because he hanged Barrold in England, where the king's writ runneth for a fact which he did in the same land where the king's writ did not run.

23. He hanged Alhet because he judged a clerk to death, over whom he had no cognizance.

24. He hanged Piron because he judged Hanting to death because he gave judgment in appeal before the forty days pendant the appeal, by a writ of false judgment before the king.

30. He hanged Therberne because he judged Osgot to death for a fact, whereof he was acquitted before, against the same plaintiff, which acquittance he tendred to aver by oath, and because he would not aver it by record, Therberne would not allow of the acquittal which he tendred him.

31. He hanged Wolster because he adjudged Haubert to death at the suit of the king, for a fact which Haubert confessed, and of which the king gave him his pardon, but he had no charter thereof, nevertheless he vouched the king to warrant it, and further tendred to aver it by inrolment of the chancery.

32. He hanged Oskitell because he judged Catling to death, by the record of the coroner, whereby replication allowable the plea did not hold. And the case was such, Catling was taken and punished so much, as he confest he had mortally offended, and that to be quitted of the pain; and Oskitell adjudged him to death upon his confession which he had made to the coroner, without trial of the truth of the pain, or the fact. And further, he caused the coroners and officers accessaries to be apprehended, who hanged the people, and all those who might have hindred the false judgment, and did not hinder the same in all cases; for he hanged all the judges who had falsly saved a man guilty of death, or had falsly hanged any man against law, or any reasonable exception.

33. He hanged the suitors of Calevot, because they had adjudged a man to death in a case not notorious, although he were guilty thereof; for no man can judge within the realm but the king, or his commissaries, except those lords in whose lordships the king's writ doth not run.

34. He hanged the suitors of Dorchester, because they judged a man to death by jurors in their liberty, for a felony which he did out of the liberty, and whereof they had not the conusance by reason of foreignty.
